A COMMENTARY UPON THE Book of JOSHUA.

THIS Title doth not neceſſarily ſignify that this Book was written by JOSHUA, as the five foregoing were by Moſes, but only that it contains the Acts done by Joſhua. Yet there wants not Arguments to prove that Joſhua was the Author of this Book: For though Grotius and many other modern Writers, with ſome of the Ancients, think they find Reaſons in the Book itſelf againſt this Opinion; yet the ancient Talmudiſts, and ſeveral of the latter, aſcribe it to him, being principally induced thereunto by thoſe Words in the laſt Chapter of this Book, Ver. 26. which I cannot ſay are an evident Proof of it (for thoſe Words may relate only to the Covenant mentioned in that Chapter;) but thus they ſay expreſly in Bava Bathra, Cap. 1. Joſhua wrote his own Book, and the eight laſt Verſes of the Law; and then concerning the five laſt Verſes of this Book, they write after this manner in the ſame Place; Eleazar wrote the 29*th Verſe*, &c. of the xxiv*th Chapter, as Phineas did Ver.* 33. And there are Men of excellent Learning who have undertaken to anſwer all that can be objected unto this, (particularly Daniel Huetius in his Demonſtratio Evang. Propoſ. IV.) Which Objections I ſhall conſider in their proper Places, where they ſeem to ariſe in this Book.

Which the Jews reckon among the firſt Prophets (as they call them) tho' it contain only an Hiſtory of what paſſed till the Death of Joſhua; which, in all likelihood, he would not neglect to write himſelf, as Moſes did, what paſſed in his Time, that every Tribe and every Family might have an unqueſtionable Title to their Inheritance under his own Hand, who had by God's Order made a Diviſion of the Land; and that all Poſterity might ſee the Promiſes made unto them by Moſes were ſo punctually fulfilled, that there failed not ought of any good Thing which the LORD had ſpoken, but all came to paſs; as he obſerves xxi. 45. and that in a ſhort Time; for this Book contains the Hiſtory of the Iſraelites, from the Death of Moſes to the Death of Joſhua; that is, as ſome compute, for the Space of ſeventeen Years, or rather near twenty-ſeven. See upon xiv. 10.

CHAP. I.

Ver. 1. NOW after the Death of Moſes.] Thus thoſe Books are wont to begin, whoſe Argument relates to the Book before-going. As the Book of Judges is in this manner connected with this of Joſhua, and the Book of Ruth with that of Judges; and the LXX. make ſuch a Preface to join the Book of Lamentations with the Prophecy of Jeremiah.

After the Death of Moſes.] I ſuppoſe immediately after the Days of mourning for him were ended, Deut. xxxiv. 8.

The Servant of the LORD.] See Deut. xxxiv. 5.

It came to paſs that the LORD ſpake unto Joſhua the Son of Nun.] Out of the Sanctuary, it is moſt likely, from whence he had ſpoken to him a little before Moſes his Death, and made him a Promiſe of what he orders him now to accompliſh, (Deut. xxxi. 14, 23.) and where Eleazar was appointed long before to aſk Counſel for him, when there was great Occaſion, Numb. xxvii. 21.

Moſes Miniſter.] Who had attended upon Moſes from the Beginning, in his higheſt Employment, Exod. xxiv. 13. Deut. i. 38.

Ver. 2. Moſes my Servant is dead.] He hath finiſhed his Work, and can do me no farther Service.

Now therefore ariſe.] Put an end therefore unto your mourning for him, and go about the Buſineſs which he hath left thee to perform.

Go over this Jordan.] Within Sight of which they lay encamped.

Thou and all this People, unto the Land which I do give to them, even to the Children of Iſrael.] As he promiſed when he changed his Name from Oſhea into Joſhua, Numb. xiii. 16. Deut. i. 38. Deut. iii. 28.

Ver. 3. Every Place.] Within the Limits mentioned in the next Verſe.

That the Sole of your Foot ſhall tread upon, that have I given you, as I ſaid unto Moſes.] He would not have them doubt what Moſes ſaid from him, (Deut. xi. 24.) tho' he were dead.

Ver. 4. From the Wilderneſs.] This was the Bounds of the Country, on the South.

And this Lebanon.] Which was the Bounds on the North. And Joſhua ſeems now to have been in the Sight of it; to which the Divine Majeſty directed his Obſervation, as the moſt eminent Mountain in thoſe Parts of the World.

Even unto the great River, the River Euphrates.] Which was the Eaſtern Bounds, and called by other Authors the great River, as I have obſerved on Deut. i. 7.

All the Land of the Hittites.] Who were a very powerful People in the Country, dwelling, together with the Amorites, in the mountainous Parts of it, Numb. xiii. 29. ſome of which were of the Race of the Giants, and are therefore particularly mentioned, to ſhew that the moſt terrible People ſhould not be able to ſtand before Joſhua; but he ſhould either deſtroy them, or expel them, and make them flee their Country, as theſe Hittites did; of whom we read, and of their Kings, 2 Kings vii. 6.

Unto the great Sea.] The Mediterranean, which was the Weſtern Border, as it here follows.

Towards the going down of the Sun, ſhall be your Coaſt.] See upon Deut. xi. 24. and other Places.

Ver. 5. There ſhall not any Man be able to ſtand before thee all the Days of thy Life.] Deut. vii. 24.

As I was with Moſes, ſo I will be with thee.] To ſubdue all the People of Canaan before him; as he did the Egyptians, the two Kings of the Amorites, and the Midianites before Moſes: To counſel alſo, and adviſe him in all Difficulties, as he had done Moſes.

I will not fail thee, nor forſake thee.] See upon Deut. xxxi. 6, 8. On which Promiſe they relied in future Times, 1 Kings viii. 57.

Ver. 6. Be ſtrong and of a good Courage. This Charge he had given him before the Death of Moſes, Deut. xxxi. 23. And David gave the ſame to Solomon, 1 Chron. xxviii. 20.

For unto this People ſhalt thou divide for an Inheritance the Land which I ſwear unto their Fathers to give them.] He had promiſed him, in the Place before named, that he ſhould bring them into the Land, &c. and here now adds, that he would ſettle them in the Poſſeſſion of it, by aſſigning every one their Portion in it; which he did by ſuch a divine Direction, as ſilenced all Diſputes about it.

Ver. 7. Only be thou ſtrong and very courageous, that thou mayeſt obſerve to do according to all the Law, which Moſes my Servant commanded thee.] It requires the greateſt Courage and Reſolution, eſpecially in a Governor, to be truly pious and religious, by obſerving the Laws himſelf, and ſeeing them obſerv'd by others.

Turn not from it to the Right-Hand or to the Left.] By adding to it, or taking away from it, Deut. xii. ult. or, more ſimply, No way deviate from it; for it is a Metaphor from Men in a Journey, who go ſtrait forward in the plain High-Way, and turn not aſide into By-paths, which lead they know not whither.

That thou mayeſt proſper whitherſoever thou goeſt.] Or do wiſely, as it is in the Margin; for it is the greateſt Policy to be truly religious.

Ver. 8. This Book of the Law.] The Original of which was preſerved in the Sanctuary; from whence GOD now ſpake to him, Deut. xxxi. 26.

Shall not depart out of thy Mouth.] He was to read in it continually, that he might inſtruct others, and be thereby an Example to all future Governors and Kings, according to the Law, Deut. xvii. 18, 19. By which it is evident, that Joſhua had a Copy of the Law; which was then written and extant in his Time.

But thou ſhalt meditate therein Day and Night.] His other weighty Employments were not to hinder him from pondering, as well as reading, the Law of GOD; becauſe it was to be his Rule in all his private Tranſactions and publick Adminiſtrations.

That thou mayeſt obſerve to do according to all that is written therein.] Which was not poſſible,

ble, without the ſerious and attentive Conſideration before mentioned.

For then thou ſhalt make thy Way proſperous, and then thou ſhalt have good Succeſs.] Or, do wiſely. Prudence and Proſperity go together; but no Prudence comparable to the ſtrict Obſervance of the Laws of GOD, upon which the Felicity of Kingdoms and States depend.

Ver. 9. Have not I commanded thee? Be ſtrong and of a good Courage; be not afraid, neither be thou diſmayed; for the LORD thy GOD is with thee whitherſoever thou goeſt.] He confirms him in the Reſolution he had put into him (Ver. 6.) by two Arguments, the Divine Vocation, and the Divine Preſence with him. See Deut. i. 29, 30. xxxi. 6, 7, 8. The latter of which the Targum thus expreſſeth, For the WORD of the LORD thy GOD ſhall be for thy Help, in every Place where thou goeſt. See Ver. 14.

Ver. 10. Then Joſhua commanded the Officers of the People, ſaying.] I have often obſerved, that as SCHOPHETIM were Judges, who heard Cauſes in their Courts, and pronounced Sentence; ſo SCHOTERIM were inferior Officers belonging to the Court, who ſummoned People to attend, and executed the Sentence: For after Moſes had mentioned (Deut. i. 15.) the Chief of their Tribes, Captains over Thouſands, and Hundreds, and Fifties, and Tens, he at laſt mentions theſe Officers among their Tribes; who were employed, it appears by this Place, in the Camp, as well as in the Courts of Juſtice.

Ver. 11. Paſs thro' the Hoſt, and command the People, ſaying, Prepare you Victuals.] They were to make Proclamation not only in all the four Camps of Iſrael, but in the ſeveral Tribes who were under thoſe Standards, to provide themſelves with ſuch Victuals as the Country of Sihon and Og, which they had lately conquered, afforded. For being, after three Days, (iii. 1.) to remove very early in the Morning, perhaps they might not have had Time to gather Manna ſufficient, and to prepare it before they began their March.

For within three Days.] See iii. 1, 2.

Ye ſhall paſs over this Jordan.] Which was not ſo far from Shittim, where they now lay, but they could ſee it.

And go to poſſeſs the Land, which the LORD your GOD giveth you to poſſeſs it.] He conſtantly remembers them of this Donation from GOD; both to ſtrengthen their Faith, and to excite their Thankfulneſs. For they gat not the Land in Poſſeſſion by their own Sword, neither did their Arm ſave them; but his Right Hand, &c. becauſe he had a Favour to them, as the Pſalmiſt ſpeaks, xliv. 3.

Ver. 12. And to the Reubenites, and to the Gadites, and to Half the Tribe of Manaſſeh, ſpake Joſhua, ſaying.] Here he begins to do according to the Command of Moſes, as GOD before directed him, Ver. 7, 8. For Moſes had given this Charge to the Reubenites, &c. when he gave them their Poſſeſſion on this ſide Jordan, Numb. xxxii. 20, 21, &c. and put them in Mind of it again, Deut. iii. 18, &c.

Ver. 13. Remember the Word which Moſes the Servant of the LORD commanded you, ſaying.] It is very obſervable, how gently and not imperiouſly Joſhua exerciſes his Authority, at his firſt Entrance upon his Office. For he only puts them in Mind of what Moſes required from them, and leaves them to reflect upon the Promiſe they made to him.

The LORD your GOD hath given you Reſt, and hath given you this Land.] That is, actually beſtowed upon them a Country to ſettle in. For here their Wives, and Children, and Cattle remained, (with a ſufficient Number of Perſons to look after them) when they marched into Canaan, as it follows in the next Verſe.

Ver. 14. Your Wives, your little ones, and your Cattle, ſhall remain in the Land which Moſes gave you on this ſide Jordan; but ye ſhall paſs before your Brethren armed.] March in the Front of them, to ſhew their Forwardneſs to bring them into the ſame happy Condition with themſelves.

All the mighty Men of Valour to help them.] Such as Joſhua picked out; for it is evident they did not all go over; but only Forty Thouſand of them, iv. 13. The reſt, tho' fit for War, were left to defend their Wives, Children, and Flocks, while thoſe mighty Men of Valour went to help their Brethren.

Ver. 15. Until the LORD have given your Brethren Reſt, as he hath given you.] A ſettled Poſſeſſion of the Land of Canaan, as they had of the Land of the two Kings of the Amorites.

And they alſo have poſſeſſed the Land which the LORD your GOD giveth them.] He would have them look upon the Conqueſt of the Land as certain, becauſe GOD had made a Grant of it to their Brethren.

Then ye ſhall return to the Land of your Poſſeſſion, and enjoy it, which Moſes, the LORD'S Servant, gave you on this ſide Jordan, towards the Sun-riſing.] According to the Agreement which Moſes had made with them, Numb. xxxiii. 20, 21, 22.

Ver. 16. And they anſwered Joſhua, ſaying, All that thou commandeſt us, we will do; and whitherſoever thou ſendeſt us, we will go.] It is likely, this was the Anſwer not only of the Reubenites, Gadites, and Manaſſites, but of all the reſt of the Tribes: Before whom, Joſhua put theſe two Tribes and an Half in Mind of their Duty: Which they all engage to perform exactly; theſe Words containing a full Recognition of Joſhua's Authority, and their abſolute Submiſſion to it.

Ver. 17. According as we hearkned unto Moſes in all Things, ſo will we hearken unto thee.] Here they acknowledge his Authority to be equal to that of Moſes, who was undoubtedly ſet over them by GOD; as they now own Joſhua to be.

Only the LORD thy GOD be with thee, as he was with Moſes.] Theſe Words are not a Reſtriction of their Obedience, which did not depend upon his Succeſſes; but a ſolemn Prayer to GOD, of whom they deſired no other Governor than Joſhua, that he would make him as victorious as Moſes was over all their Enemies. Therefore ſome tranſlate the Words, not Only, but May the LORD thy GOD, &c. or Since the LORD thy GOD hath promiſed to be with thee. The Targum paraphraſe theſe Words as he did, ver. 9. Only let the WORD of the LORD thy GOD be thy Helper, as he was to Moſes.

Ver.

Ver. 18. Whoſoever he be that doth rebel againſt thy Commandment, and will not hearken unto thy Words in all that thou commandeſt him, he ſhall be put to Death.] This ſeems to be the Voice of all the People, and of their Elders, or a Decree made by the Elders, as the Jews underſtand it: Who looking upon Joſhua to be a King, as Moſes was, extend this to all the Kings of Iſrael in following Times. So Guil. Schickard obſerves out of Maimonides in his Miſchpat Hammelech, Cap. IV. Theor. XIV. p. 101. But it ſhould rather be ſaid, that Joſhua was a King and a Prophet as Moſes was; and the Law, as Ruſi obſerves, ordered him to be put to Death that tranſgreſſed the Orders of Moſes, and of a Prophet.

Only be ſtrong, and of a good Courage.] He had the greater Reaſon to be courageous, ſince they reſolved, as one Man, to ſtand by him, and never to diſobey him. And therefore the Word Rak, which we tranſlate only, ſhould rather be tranſlated therefore, as it plainly ſignifies, xiii. 6. where, ſpeaking of the Land that remained to be poſſeſſed, God promiſes to drive out the Inhabitants, and therefore bids Joſhua to divide it to the Iſraelites for an Inheritance.

CHAP. II.

Ver. 1. AND Joſhua the Son of Nun ſent.] Or had ſent, before the Directions given to the Officers, mentioned in the foregoing Chapter, ver. 10, 11. which beſt agrees with the 22d Verſe of this Chapter, and the reſt of the Story.

Out of Shittim.] Which was in the Plains of Moab, where Iſrael now lay, Deut. xxxiv. 1. called Abel-Shittim, Numb. xxxiii. 49.

Two Men.] Which were ſufficient for the Buſineſs they went about.

To ſpy ſecretly.] So that none were privy to it among the Iſraelites, but Joſhua: Who, it is probable, did not ſend them without an Order from God, who intended to diſpoſe Things ſo, that they ſhould bring back to him a great Encouragement to his Faith.

Saying, go view the Land.] Not the whole Country of Canaan, but only that Part of it which lay about Jericho, as it here follows: Whoſe Fortifications they were to obſerve, and the Approaches to it, with the Strength that was in it.

And they went.] Over the Fords of Jordan, I ſuppoſe, mentioned ver. 7.

And came into an Harlot's Houſe, called Rahab.] Who kept a Publick Houſe, or an Inn, to entertain Strangers: By going into which, they thought they would be leſs ſuſpected of any Deſign. The Word Zonah, which is commonly tranſlated an Harlot, the Chaldee Paraphraſe renders Pundakitha; which is plainly the Greek Word Πανδοχία, ſignifying ſhe kept a Houſe of publick Reception. And ſo St. Chryſoſtom calls this Woman, in his ſecond Sermon of Repentance, πανδοχεύτριαν· for there is no doubt ſhe kept a Publick Houſe. But ſuch Perſons, in thoſe Days, made their Bodies as publick as their Houſes; and therefore ſhe is conſtantly called Rahab the Harlot, by the Antients; and even by two Apoſtles, who call her πόρνη, Hebr. xi. 21. James ii. 25. For ſo ſhe had been; tho' now it is probable, converted by the Faith which was wrought in her. Which was ſo eminent, that ſhe was not only admitted into the Society of God's People, but married into a noble Family of the Tribe of Judah, from whom Chriſt ſprung, Matth. i. 5. and is propounded as an Example of lively Faith unto all Chriſtians, Hebr. xi. 31. Jam. ii. 25.

And lodged there.] Took up their Lodging in her Houſe, by a divine Direction, and appeared afterwards.

Ver. 2. And it was told the King of Jericho.] Who was not negligent, we may well think, to ſet a Watch, to obſerve who came in and went out of the City.

Saying, Behold, there came Men in hither to Night.] In the Evening, which was the moſt proper Time to come into the City undiſcovered, becauſe then the People, whoſe Buſineſs lay out of the City, were generally going home to their own Houſes.

Of the Children of Iſrael.] As they judged by their Habit, or Language, or Aſpect.

To ſearch out the Country.] For they could not think they came for any other End.

Ver. 3. And the King of Jericho ſent unto Rahab, ſaying, Bring forth the Men that are come to thee, which entered into thy Houſe, for they be come to ſearch out all the Country.] He ſent ſome Officers with a Warrant to apprehend them, and to require her to deliver them up into their Hands, as Enemies of their Country.

Ver. 4. And the Woman took the two Men, and hid them.] Or rather had hidden them, before the Officers came; having heard, it is likely, a Rumour, that they were diſcovered, and Search would be made for them.

And ſaid thus, There came Men unto me, but I wiſt not whence they were.] She could not deny that ſhe received ſuch ſtrange Gueſts, but would not own that ſhe knew from what Country they came; nor was it her Buſineſs to make ſuch Enquiry, her Houſe being open unto all.

Ver. 5. And it came to paſs, about the Time of ſhutting of the Gate.] The Gate of the City, next to her Houſe, which was wont to be ſhut (as they are now in all well-governed Cities) at a certain Hour.

When it was dark.] And conſequently few or none ſtirring in the Streets.

The Men went out, whither they went I wot not.] She would have them think, they went both out of her Houſe, and out of the City; tho' ſhe knew not which way they went, it being dark.

Purſue after them quickly, for ye ſhall overtake them.] Yet it was ſo little a while ſince they went out, that ſhe would have them believe, they could not, if they made Haſte, but overtake them before they got over Jordan. For if they were Iſraelites, it might be certainly concluded they went that Way. No body can ſay, that Rahab did not tell an Untruth; truth; but this may be ſaid in her Excuſe: That it is no wonder if ſhe thought it lawful, if not neceſſary, ſo to do, for the ſaving of the Life of innocent Men. Since ſeveral great Philoſophers have been of that Opinion, and ſome of the ancient Fathers of the Church; particularly St. Auſtin confeſſes it to be a very difficult Queſtion, Cap. XV. ad Conſentinum. And Arias Montanus upon this very Place, makes it one's Duty to elude thoſe, who we think intend to do Miſchief, to others. Which he pretends to juſtify by many Examples, in a Diſcourſe concerning Mens true and certain Duties. But that is too bold an Undertaking; ſince the Fathers before St. Auſtin, and all the Jews condemn this Practice.

Ver. 6. But ſhe brought them up, &c. or rather, ſhe had brought them up to the Roof of the Houſe.] Which was made flat, ſo that Men might lie or walk upon it in thoſe Countries. See Deut. xxii. 8.

And hid them with the Stalks of Flax, which ſhe had laid in order upon the Roof.] Covered them all over with the Stalks of Flax, which I ſuppoſe were newly cut, and laid upon the Roof of the Houſe to be dried by the Sun, till they were fit to be peeled. Or, as ſome think, theſe were Stalks of Flax cut the Year before; and made uſe of now to ſhew that no body was gone upon the Roof, where ſhe laid them.

Ver. 7. And the Men purſued after them the Way to Jordan, unto the Floods.] Where Jordan was ſo ſhallow that Men might wade, or ſo narrow that they might ſoon ſwim over it. There the Purſuers lay, three Days, waiting to catch them in their Return.

And as ſoon as they which purſued them were gone out, they ſhut the Gate.] Which being opened to let the Purſuers out, was immediately ſhut again; that if the Spies lurk'd in the City, they might not eſcape in the Dark; and that no other Perſon might enter, who they might poſſibly think, lay watching an Opportunity to get in.

Ver. 8. And before they were laid down.] To compoſe themſelves to Sleep; which after their Journey they might be glad to take any where.

She came up unto them, upon the Roof.] To bring them down, it is likely, to a more commodious Lodging.

Ver. 9. And ſhe ſaid unto the Men, I know that the LORD hath given you the Land.] Wonder not that I have taken ſuch Care of your Preſervation; for I believe in the LORD as you do, and know that he hath beſtowed this Country upon you, for your Poſſeſſion.

And that your Terror is fallen upon us, and that all the Inhabitants of the Land faint becauſe of you.] She was the more confident of their Succeſs; becauſe ſhe obſerved the People of the Land were ſtruck with ſuch a Dread of them, as not to be able to defend their Country againſt them. See Deut. xi. 25.

Ver. 10. For we have heard how the LORD dried up the Water of the Red Sea for you, when you came out of Egypt.] And there overthrew Pharaoh and his Hoſt, after he had ſmitten him and his Country, with divers miraculous Plagues. The Report of which was come to them, as well as their paſſing though the Sea: Which though it were forty Years ago, was remembred with Aſtoniſhment.

And what you did unto the two Kings of the Amorites that were on the other ſide Jordan, Sihon and Og, whom ye utterly deſtroyed.] This was a thing of freſh Memory, and could not but ſtrike them with Conſternation; theſe two Kings being very potent; and their near Neighbours and Allies. For they were part of the Amorites, who dwelt in the mountainous Parts of this Country; as was before obſerved.

Ver. 11. And as ſoon as we heard theſe things.] As Moſes propheſied they would, Exod. xv. 14, 15.

Our Hearts did melt.] The ſame Phraſe in Deut. i. 28. where we tranſlate it diſcouraged; and ſo it is here explained in the next Words.

Neither did there remain any more Courage in any Man, becauſe of you.] the moſt valiant among them were utterly diſheartned.

For the LORD your God, he is God in Heaven above, and in the Earth beneath.] This is a plain Confeſſion of the true God, the Creator of Heaven and Earth; wherein he rules and governs all things according to his Pleaſure. This is her Faith celebrated by the Apoſtle to the Hebrews, which moved her to entertain the Spies, and to preſerve them with the Danger of her own Life, if ſhe had been diſcovered.

Ver. 12. Now therefore, I pray you, ſwear unto me by the LORD.] The Targum hath it, by the WORD of the LORD.] An Oath was the greateſt Security that could be deſired for the Performance of what they promiſed. For all Nations expected grievous Puniſhments would fall upon perjured Perſons; which they that feared the LORD, the true God, above all Men dreaded. See Selden, Lib. II. de Synedr. Cap. XI. N. IV.

Since I have ſhewed you Kindneſs.] As they could not but acknowledge.

That ye will alſo ſhew Kindneſs to my Father's Houſe, and give me a true Token.] She asked two things of them; firſt, that ſhe and her whole Family might be preſerved, as ſhe had preſerved them; and then that they would give her ſuch a Token, as ſhould not fail her; but upon the Sight of it, the Iſraelites ſhould abſtain from doing them any Hurt.

Ver. 13. And that you will ſave alive my Father and my Mother, and my Brethren, and my Siſters.] This is a particular Explication of what ſhe meant by her Father's Houſe, in the foregoing Verſe; and ſhews that ſhe had no Husband, nor Children.

And all that they have, &c.] All her Kindred, as we tranſlate it, vi. 23. Or the Children of her Brethren and Siſters: Or perhaps, all their Cattle, that they could bring with them into her Houſe.

Ver. 14. And the Men anſwered her, Our Life for yours.] They ſware to her (it appears from ver. 17.) and wiſhed they might periſh, if they did not preſerve her and her Family. For they did not doubt but Joſhua would ratify what they promiſed, though without his Authority, for the publick Good and Safety.

If ye utter not.] Do not divulge or declare to any one.

This our Buſineſs.] In the Hebrew, this our Word. i. e. this Agreement they had made with her. Leſt others ſhould ſhelter themſelves under her Roof, or uſe that Token they intended to give her; and thereby ſecure themſelves from Deſtruction. In this they ſhewed great Prudence and Management; taking care that their Gratitude might not prove an Obſtruction to the publick Juſtice.

And it ſhall be when the LORD hath given us the Land, that we will deal kindly and truly with thee.] Upon this Condition, they promiſe, when they had taken Jericho (for that's here meant by the Land, v. 1.) they would keep their Word faithfully with her, and be as kind to her as ſhe had been to them.

Ver. 15. Then ſhe let them down by a Cord, through the Window.] Which in thoſe Countries were large, as appears by the Story of Jezebel, whom her Eunuchs threw down out of a Window, 2 Kings ix. 30, 32.

For her Houſe was upon the Town Wall.] Both the Time (which was in the Night) and the Place were very commodious to contrive their Eſcape; becauſe her Houſe was adjoining to the Wall of the City.

And ſhe dwelt upon the Wall.] I take the Meaning to be, that the Apartment ſhe reſerved for herſelf was next to the Wall, and built upon it; the reſt of her Houſe towards the Street being kept for Strangers. This gave her the fair Opportunity, without any Noiſe, to let them down.

Ver. 16. And ſhe ſaid unto them, Get ye to the Mountain, leſt the Purſuers meet you.] This was prudent Advice, not to go towards Jordan preſently, but firſt to one of the Mountains, wherewith the Plain of Jericho was ſurrounded, as Joſephus tells us, Lib. I. de Bello Judaico, Cap. 12, 13. and Lib. V. Cap. 4. And the Scripture itſelf informs us as much, 2 Kings ii. 15, 16.

And hide yourſelves there.] In ſome of the Caves, which were frequent in the Mountains.

Three Days.] For ſo long ſhe thought the Purſuers might ſtay about Jordan, waiting for their Return.

Until the Purſuers be returned; and afterward may ye go your way.] Which ſhe thought probably would be within that Time; and perhaps ſhe underſtood their Orders were to ſtay no longer.

Ver. 17. And the Men ſaid unto her.] As ſhe was about to let them down; for it was not ſafe to have this Diſcourſe together after they were down; which might have been overheard by the Watch.

We will be blameleſs of this thy Oath, which thou haſt made us to ſwear.] The Meaning is, that it ſhould not be their Fault, if their Oath was not kept; and therefore they now name the Token, upon which the Preſervation of her Family ſhould depend; with ſome other Conditions that were reaſonable to be obſerved. Which they mention to ſhew, how ſtudious they were not to be guilty of violating their Oath.

Ver. 18. Behold, when we come into the Land, thou ſhalt bind this Line of Scarlet Thread.] It is called a Cord before, ver. 15. and no doubt conſiſted of ſo many Threads twiſted together, as made it a Line ſtrong enough to hold the Weight of a Man's Body, and not break. But there are thoſe who doubt whether the Hebrew Word Scheni ſignify any thing of the Colour, but only a twined or twiſted Cord, funiculum conduplicatum, or contortum, from Shanah to double. See Gataker in his Miſcellanea, Cap. xl.

In the Window which thou haſt let us down by.] Or rather, doſt let us down by. For ſhe was about to do it, but had not done it, when they had this Diſcourſe with her. Some refer this to the Window at which ſhe let them out; but it is moſt natural to refer it to the Line. For by that they were let down; and it was to remain in the Window, that the Iſraelites might ſee it, as the Token that that was the Houſe, which was to be ſaved. Procopius Gazæus compares this Scarlet Line with the Blood which Moſes ordered to be ſtruck upon the Side Poſts of their Doors, which was a Token they ſhould be preſerved, Exod. xii. 7, 13.

And thou ſhalt bring thy Father, and thy Mother, and thy Brethren, and all thy Father's Houſhold home to thee.] That is, all their Children; and perhaps near Relations, ſuch as Uncles, Aunts, and Couſins; as we ſeem to underſtand it, vi. 23. And one cannot but think, that Great Grand-fathers, and Grand-mothers, if ſhe had any alive, were comprehended in theſe Words.

Ver. 19. And it ſhall be, that whoſoever ſhall go out of the Door of thy Houſe into the Street, his Blood ſhall be on his Head, and we will be guiltleſs.] They would be bound to preſerve none but thoſe who kept in the Houſe. Which was but reaſonable, for they did not know how to diſtinguiſh them from others, if they were in the Street.

And whoſoever ſhall be with thee in the Houſe, his Blood ſhall be on our Head, if any Hand be upon him.] They would as ſoon die themſelves, as let any of thoſe periſh. An Emblem of our Safety and Salvation, by continuing conſtantly in the Church in Faith and Holineſs. For her Houſe was a very fit Figure of the Church, eſpecially of the Gentiles; who like her, had gone a whoring after Idols, but were converted to ſerve the living God.

Ver. 20. And if thou utter this our Buſineſs, then we will be quit of the Oath, which thou haſt made us to ſwear.] They repeat the Condition mentioned ver. 14. as of great Importance. See there.

Ver. 21. And ſhe ſaid, According to your Word, ſo be it.] She agreed to all the Conditions they impoſed upon her.

And ſhe ſent them away, and they departed.] After this mutual Agreement, confirmed with an Oath.

And ſhe bound the Scarlet Line in the Window.] Immediately, as ſome think; that the Spies might know where to look for it hereafter; and that ſhe might have always before her Eyes, ſuch a comfortable Pledge of her Safety. It was more prudent alſo, as Arias Montanus obſerves, to do it now, than when the Iſraelites came to beſiege the Place; for that Novelty might have made the People of Jericho ſuſpect ſome Correſpondence.

Ver.

Ver. 22. And they went and came unto the Mountain, and abode there three Days, until the Purſuers were returned.] Being furniſhed, it is likely, with ſufficient Proviſion by Rahab. Many think they ſtaid there but one whole Day, and Part of other two, which, according to the Style of the Scripture, may be called three Days: But their only Reaſon for it is to make theſe three Days, and thoſe mentioned in the firſt Chapter, ver. 11. to be the ſame; which is not probable.

And the Purſuers ſought them throughout all the Way, &c.] Which led to the Fords of Jordan. This expreſſes their Diligence, though it wanted Succeſs; and perhaps there were more Ways than one that led thither; in all which they placed themſelves, or ſome other Perſons, to watch for them.

Ver. 23. So the two Men returned, and deſcended from the Mountain.] From whence perhaps they could ſee when the Purſuers came back; or they had ſome Intelligence of their Return; or, as I ſaid before, that they had Commiſſion only to ſearch for them three Days.

And paſſed over.] The River Jordan.

And came to Joſhua the Son of Nun, and told him all Things that befel them.] Since they left him. This ſhews that Joſhua ſent them ſo privately, that it was unknown to the People, (as I expounded, ver. 1.) for they give him alone an Account of what had happened unto them. See vi. 17.

Ver. 24. And they ſaid unto Joſhua, Truly the LORD hath delivered into our Hands all the Land; for even all the Inhabitants of the Country do faint becauſe of us.] This was Part of what they had learn'd from Rahab, ver. 9, &c. who had ſtrengthned their Faith by her own.

CHAP. III.

Ver. 1. AND Joſhua roſe early in the Morning.] The next Morning after he had commanded the Officers to warn the Hoſt, to prepare for their Removal, Chap. i. 10, 11.

And they removed from Shittim.] Where they had lain now above two Months; for they came hither on the firſt Day of the Eleventh Month of the Fortieth Year after they came out of Egypt. See Deut. i. 3.

And came to Jordan, he and all the Children of Iſrael.] Which River, as Joſephus tells us, was ſixty Stadia from Shittim; but it is ſo uncertain what his Stadia or Furlongs were, that one can only gueſs how many of our Miles Threeſcore of them made. Moſt think about Seven.

And lodged there before they paſſed over.] The Hebrew Word Jalinu doth not neceſſarily ſignify that they lodged there only one Night, for it often denotes a longer Time of Abode; and therefore the Vulgar Latin tranſlates it morati ſunt, they ſtayed there, viz. three Days, as it follows in the next Verſe.

Ver. 2. And it came to paſs after three Days, that the Officers went through the Hoſt.] In the End of the three Days before-mentioned, Chap. i. 10, 11. he ſent the ſame Officers there mentioned, to make a new Proclamation: for it ſeems to me the moſt reaſonable to take all this Story in the Order wherein it is related, only ſuppoſing the Spies to have been ſent before the firſt Proclamation made by the Officers (as I obſerved, ii. 1. the words may be tranſlated.) And thus our great Primate of Ireland underſtands it: After Joſhua was confirm'd in his Office, (Chap. i. ver. 1, 2, &c.) he ſent out the Spies, and then commanding the People to provide themſelves Victuals, he marched from Shittim to Jordan; and the third Day (after that Command to provide themſelves Victuals) he gave a new Command to prepare themſelves to paſs over Jordan the next Day.

Ver. 3. And they commanded the People.] By Order from Joſhua, and in his Name and Authority.

Saying, When ye ſee the Ark of the Covenant of the LORD your God, and the Prieſts the Levites bearing it.] "Hitherto, ſaith Kimchi upon this Place, "the Levites (that is, the "Children of Kohath) carried the Ark; but "now the Prieſts are appointed to that Office, "for the greater Sanctification or Honour of it, "and becauſe of the Miracle which was to be "wrought before it. Our Rabbins ſay, that the "Prieſts carried it thus three times; now in this "Place, and when they compaſſed Jericho, and "when Zadok and Abiathar brought it back to "Jeruſalem, when David fled from Abſalom, "2 Sam. xv. 29." Unto which he adds a Fourth, when it was brought into the Temple which Solomon built; for the Levites were not permitted to go into the Sanctuary, much leſs into the moſt Holy Place, into which it was carried by the Prieſts, 1 Kings viii. 6.

Then ye ſhall remove from your Place, and go after it.] By this it appears the Ark was carried in the Front of them; whereas uſually it was ordered to be carried in the Middle of their Camps, as we read Numb. ii. 17. But at their firſt Removal from Mount Sinai, which was a Time extraordinary, it march'd before them for three Days, Numb. x. 33. and ſo it did now, (and at no other Time) when they were to enter into Canaan, for a ſpecial Reaſon alſo, as I ſhall obſerve on the next Verſe.

Concerning the Phraſe, the Prieſts the Levites, ſee Deut. xvii. 9.

Ver. 4. Yet there ſhall be a Space between you and it, about two Thouſand Cubits.] This is a Demonſtration that it was not uſual for the Ark to go before the whole Army; for if it had, there would have been no need to inſtruct them at what Diſtance they ſhould keep from it, which would have been conſtantly obſerved.

By Meaſure.] It is likely they meaſured the Diſtance by a Line, at which the People were at firſt ſet; and then walking in equal Paces with the Prieſts, kept at the ſame Diſtance, though perhaps not preciſely; for they might chance to move a Pace or two faſter, or take larger Paces; and therefore he ſaith about two thouſand Cubits.

That ye may know the Way by which ye muſt go.] There was the very ſame Reaſon for the Ark's going before them now, that there was when they came from Mount Sinai; for then it was to ſearch out a Reſting-place for them, i. e. to ſhew them where they ſhould reſt; and now it was to lead them in the Way they were to march, unto their long-expected Settlement in the Promiſed Land. If it had not been for this, it would have been carried in its uſual Place; but the Pillar of the Cloud, which hitherto conducted them, having now left them, as R. Solomon obſerves, this ſupplied its Place, and went before them, as that had been wont to do.

For ye have not paſſed this Way heretofore.] They were to be led in an untrodden Path, which the Power of God (of whoſe Preſence with them the Ark was the Symbol) made for them.

Ver. 5. And Joſhua ſaid unto the People.] The Night before they went over Jordan, as appears by the latter Part of the Verſe; and perhaps he ſpake this himſelf, at the head of every one of their Tribes, it being of great Importance.

Sanctify yourſelves.] Other Places tell us what was their uſual Sanctification. See Exod. xix. 10, 11. Numb. xi. 18. But beſides the Legal Purifications, one cannot but think that he intended they ſhould diſpoſe their Minds by holy Meditations and Prayer to God to receive his Benefits, and to be more ſenſible of them when they were beſtowed on them.

For to-morrow the LORD will do Wonders among you.] Which he would have them be in a Condition to obſerve, and to lay to Heart; and in order thereunto, prepare themſelves by ſerious Thoughts of God, and of his Providence, as well as by waſhing their Bodies, and abſtaining from their Wives, which were a Part of the Sanctification here intended.

Ver. 6. And Joſhua ſpake unto the Prieſts.] The next Morning.

Saying, Take up the Ark of the Covenant.] Upon their Shoulders, for ſo it was to be carried, Numb. vii. 9.

And paſs over before the People.] This Precept had been unneceſſary, if they had been wont to carry it before the People.

And they took up the Ark of the Covenant, and went before the People.] After Joſhua had ſpoken what follows, ver. 7, 8, &c. But it is mentioned now, to ſhew the Readineſs of the Prieſts, as well as of the People, to obey the Commands of Joſhua; whom they look'd upon as a Prophet, as Moſes was, who had Power to give extraordinary Orders from God. Such were theſe for the Prieſts to carry the Ark, and to march with it before the People, not in the midſt of their Camps.

Ver. 7. And the LORD ſaid unto Joſhua.] By an audible Voice, I ſuppoſe, from the Sanctuary, near unto which he now was; the Prieſts being about to take out the Ark from thence, to carry it before the People.

This Day.] The tenth Day of the firſt Month, on which the Paſchal Lamb was, by the Law, to be ſet apart to be offered four Days after, Exod. xii. 3.

Will I begin to magnify thee in the Sight of all Iſrael.] By doing ſuch Wonders before them all, as ſhould convince them Joſhua was appointed by God to be their ſupreme Governor, who ſhould give them Poſſeſſion of the Land of Canaan. See iv. 14.

That they may know, that as I was with Moſes, ſo I will be with thee.] See i. 5. From the Time of Moſes to the Days of Saul, God declared, by ſome extraordinary Things, whom he would have to be the ſupreme Governor of his People, whoſe Authority he eſtabliſhed by doing Wonders.

Ver. 8. And thou ſhalt command the Prieſts that bear the Ark of the Covenant, ſaying.] Every thing was done by his Order, that it might appear he was powerful with God, who wrought thoſe Wonders at his Word.

When ye are come to the Brink of the Water of Jordan.] Jordan then overflowed beyond its Banks; therefore they were not to go to the Brink of the River, but of the Water.

Ye ſhall ſtand ſtill in Jordan.] And there ſtop till the Waters above were ſuſpended, and thoſe below run away; and then they went and ſtood in the midſt of the River, ver. 17.

Ver. 9. And Joſhua ſaid unto the Children of Iſrael, Come hither.] To the Sanctuary, I ſuppoſe, where he now was, ver. 7.

And hear the Words of the LORD your God.] Which Joſhua reported to them from God, who was about to demonſtrate himſelf to be the omnipotent, LORD of all Creatures, and in a peculiar Manner their God, in Covenant with them, and full of Kindneſs to them.

Ver. 10. And Joſhua ſaid, Hereby ye ſhall know that the living God is among you.] Theſe are the Words of the LORD their God, who is called the living God, in Oppoſition to the Idols of the Heathen; who could do nothing, much leſs ſuch Miracles as demonſtrated the God of Iſrael to be the eternal LORD of Heaven and Earth, who giveth Life to all Things; and he is ſaid to be among them (or in the midſt of them) whom he takes into his Protection, to defend and preſerve them from all Evil.

And that he will without fail drive out from before you.] Moſt certainly make good his Promiſe made to Abraham long ago, (Gen. xv. 18, &c.) becauſe he lives for ever to perform his Word.

The Canaanites, and the Hittites, and the Hivites, and the Perizzites, and the Girgaſites, and the Amorites, and the Jebuſites.] Here all the ſeven Nations are mentioned (as they are Deut. vii. 1.) though ſometimes only ſix of them are mentioned, the Girgaſites being omitted. See Exod. iii. 17.

Ver. 11. Behold the Ark of the Covenant.] So called, becauſe in it were the two Tables of the Covenant between God and them. It is frequently called the Ark of the Teſtimony, Exod. xl. 20, 21. Numb. iv. 5. and here in this Book, iv. 16.

Of the LORD of the whole Earth paſſeth before you.] To take Poſſeſſion of the Land of Canaan; which he gave them as LORD of the whole Earth, and as particularly engaged by his Covenant to beſtow upon them. The Author of the Book Coſri underſtands this, as if

if the Ark of the Covenant was called the LORD of the whole Earth; becauſe God was ſo preſent with it, that where the Ark was, there were Wonders wrought; which ceaſed in its Abſence. Pars IV. Sect. 3. D. Kimchi, and Jos. Albo ſay the ſame; and I find Andreas Maſius following this Fancy; becauſe there is an Accent after the Ark of the Covenant, diſtinguiſhing thoſe Words from what follows, which (ſay they) are therefore added by Appoſition. But Bonfrerius hath confuted this very judiciouſly; obſerving, that the Accent is not of that Nature; and therefore the LXX, the Chaldee, Vulgar Latin, Symmachus, Aquila, the Syriack and Arabick, tranſlate it as we do, the Ark of the Covenant of the LORD of the whole Earth. See Buxtorf de Arca, Cap. I. And yet, I know not how it came to paſs, ſome have been ſo bold as to alter our Tranſlation in ſome printed Copies, which I have met withal; where theſe Words are thus tranſlated, the Ark of the Covenant, even the LORD of the whole Earth.

Into Jordan.] By which Miracle they were confirmed in their Belief of his Promiſe, when they ſaw the Waters of Jordan flee before him.

Ver 12. Now therefore take ye twelve Men out of the Tribes of Iſrael.] To do what he ſhould command them, iv. 2, &c.

Out of every Tribe a Man.] The Tribe of Levi was one of the XII, upon all Accounts but only in the dividing of the Land: Ephraim and Manaſſeh being but one, viz. the Tribe of Joſeph.

Ver. 13. And it ſhall come to paſs, as ſoon as the Soles of the Feet of the Prieſts that bear the Ark of the LORD, the LORD of the whole Earth.] Here the Ark of the Covenant is called the Ark of Jehovah, (not Jehovah) who is the LORD, or Governor or Ruler of the whole Earth: In which is comprehended the Sea, and the Rivers, and all Waters which he commandeth as he pleaſeth.

Shall reſt in the Waters of Jordan.] Dip their Feet in the Brim of the Waters as it is explained, ver. 15.

That the Waters of Jordan ſhall be cut off from the Waters that come down from above.] The Waters which now ran in one Stream, were divided over-againſt the Place where the Prieſts trod; ſo that the lower Part of them ran down the Channel towards the dead Sea; and thoſe above not coming down to ſupply their Place, the Ground was left dry.

And they ſhall ſtand on an Heap.] Viz. The Waters above, towards the Head, or Springs of the River, were made to ſtand ſtill, as if they were congealed; riſing in an Heap, piled one upon another, but not running down at all.

Ver. 14. And it came to paſs when the People removed from their Tents to paſs over Jordan, and the Prieſts bearing the Ark of the Covenant before the People.] The Prieſts moved firſt, and then the People followed them, at ſuch a Diſtance as Joſhua had preſcribed, ver. 3, 4.

Ver. 15. And as they that bare the Ark of the Covenant were come into Jordan, and the Feet of the Prieſts that bare the Ark were dipped in the Brim of the Water.] Which had overflown, as it here follows, beyond the Bounds of the Channel.

For Jordan overfloweth all his Banks at the time of Harveſt.] This is meant of Barley-Harveſt; which began about the Paſſover, as many have obſerved; and particularly Hermannus Conringius, in his Book De Initio anni Sabbatici. See upon Deut. xvi. 9. And it appears by he next Chapter, iv. 19. that it was the firſte Month, or the Month Abib when the Paſſov was to be kept: and therefore muſt ſignifiy that Harveſt. See alſo 1 Chron. vii. 15. This was likewiſe a Time when the River was more likely to overflow than in Wheat-Harveſt; becauſe now the Snow began to melt, that was in the neighbouring Mountains; eſpecially in Lebanon; at the Foot of which was the Fountain of Jordan. By which the River was always ſwoln at this Time and thereby the Miracle increaſed. Such Overflowing of other Rivers, greater than this, are obſerved by Authors, at certain Seaſons; with which I ſhall not trouble the Reader.

Ver. 16. And the waters which came down from above ſtood.] Stopt and ran no farther; but were driven back unto thoſe that were coming down.

And roſe up upon an Heap.] Inſtead of flowing down the Channel, were lifted up into the Air; and appeared like a Mountain, as the Vulgar Latin tranſlates it.

Very far from the City Adam.] At a great Diſtance from a City then called Adam, which lay upon the River.

That is beſide Zaretan.] The former was a ſmall City, and therefore its Situation is deſcribed by a Place of greater Note, called Zaretan, which lay on one Side of it, in the Plain of Jordan, as we read 1 Kings vii. 46.

And thoſe that came down toward the Sea of the Plain, even the Salt-Sea, failed, and were cut off.] Thoſe Waters of the River, which were below, towards the Salt-Sea, into which Jordan emptied itſelf, ran all thither, and ſo left the Channel perfectly dry, that the People might paſs over, which they did, directly over-againſt Jericho.

And the People paſſed over right againſt Jericho.] Having that famous City in their View, from whence, perhaps, the People on the Walls might, with Amazement, ſee the Iſraelites walk through the River on dry Ground. It was a great Refreſhment alſo to the Iſraelites after their March, to pitch their Tents in ſo goodly a Plain, as this before Jericho.

Ver. 17. And the Prieſts that bare the Ark of the Covenant of the LORD ſtood firm on dry Ground, in the midſt of Jordan.] In one and the ſame Place and Poſture, with their Faces towards Jericho.

And all the Iſraelites paſſed over on dry Ground.] Keeping, I ſuppoſe, the ſame Diſtance, of Two Thouſand Cubits from the Ark; for there was Room enough on either Side, to march by it, and not come near it.

Until all the People were paſſed clean over Jordan.] Which they could not do in a ſhort

Time, unleſs we ſuppoſe them to have marched all in a-breaſt, which is not likely. For there was a certain Place, called, ever after, by the Name of Bethabara, to preſerve the Memory of their paſſing over there, which is mentioned, John i. 28. It made therefore the Faith and Conſtancy of the Prieſts very remarkable, who remained ſo long in the Middle of the River, 'till the whole Multitude were got over, without Fear of that great Mountain of Waters from above, coming tumbling down upon them.

They who look upon this Part of the Divine Hiſtory as improbable, if not incredible, ſhould conſider what a Shame it is to have leſs Faith than the Heathens: Who, leſt their Gods ſhould be thought leſs powerful than the God of Iſrael, forged thoſe Stories which the Perſians tell of Zoroaſter's paſſing over Rivers; and the Greeks of Inachus dried up by Neptune; and other ſuch like; which Huetius hath collected in his Quæſtiones Alnetanæ, Lib. II. Cap. XII. Numb. XV. Why then do they call in Queſtion the Power of the true God; who either by himſelf, or by his Angels, could eaſily ſtop the Courſe of a River, which he himſelf made; and both made the Waters riſe up in a Heap as high as he pleaſed; and alſo ſtand ſo reared up, in a firm Hardneſs, as if they had been congealed?

CHAP. IV.

Verſe 1. AND it came to paſs, when all the People were clean paſſed over Jordan, that the LORD ſpake unto Joſhua, ſaying.] It is likely he went to return Thanks unto God for ſo wonderful a Mercy; and then God ſpake to him what follows:

Ver. 2. Take you twelve Men out of the People, out of every Tribe a Man.] He bids him now call together the Twelve Men formerly choſen, iii. 12.

Ver. 3. And command you them.] I ſuppoſe Joſhua had ſome of the Elders, or Heads of the Tribes, that joined with him in this Office.

Saying, Take you hence out of the midſt of Jordan.] Which continued perfectly dry for ſome Space after they were all gone over; that is, till the Prieſts removed from thence.

Out of the Place where the Prieſts Feet ſtood firm, twelve Stones.] Some underſtand this ſo preciſely, as if they were to take them from under the very Soles of the Prieſt's Feet; which is not probable; but only near to the Place where they ſtood. For the Prieſts did not ſtir a Step from the Place where they firſt ſtood; and therefore none can tell how they ſhould take theſe Stones from under their Feet, and place others in their Room, (ver. 9.) while they remained ſtanding fixed in the ſame Place.

And ye ſhall carry them over with you.] In the Sight of all the People, to make the Miracle more known among them all.

And leave them in the Lodging-place, where you ſhall lodge this Night.] As a Monument of this miraculous Work of God; which remained ever after in Gilgal; the Place where they lodged that Night, ver. 19, 20.

Ver. 4. Then Joſhua called the twelve Men whom he had prepared, &c.] Before they paſſed over Jordan, iii. 12.

Ver 5. And Joſhua ſaid unto them, Paſs over before the Ark of the LORD God into the midſt of Jordan.] This is a Divine Order to go back again into the River, to the very Place where the Prieſts ſtood with the Ark; by which theſe XII Men were diſpenſed withal, to come nearer to the Ark than the reſt of the Congregation.

And take ye up every Man a Stone upon his Shoulder.] Great Stones as big as they could well lift, and carry. So the Hebrew Word imports, ver. 3.

According unto the number of the Tribes of the Children of Iſrael.] That they might publiſh in every Tribe this evident Teſtimony of the Power of God; which laid the Bottom of the River dry for ſo long a Time, that they not only all went over on dry Ground; but ſome of them returned again, and took up theſe Stones, and laid others in their Room, ver. 9.

Ver. 6. That this may be a Sign unto you.] A Token of what God had now done for them.

That when your Children aſk their Fathers in Time to come, ſaying, What mean theſe Stones?] It was natural for Men, in future Ages, ſeeing great Stones, (in a Place perhaps where there were no more) and juſt XII of them, laid together, or one upon another, to aſk how they came there, and for what End they were brought thither, and by whom.

Ver. 7. Then ſhall they anſwer them, That the Waters of Jordan were cut off, before the Ark of the Covenant of the LORD; when it paſſed over Jordan, the Waters of Jordan were cut off.] This was to give them Occaſion to report at large, what God had done for them at their Entrance into Canaan; that their Poſterity might be affected with it, no leſs than themſelves.

And theſe Stones ſhall be for a Memorial to the Children of Iſrael for ever.] To keep in Memory this Miracle in all Ages to come, as long as this Nation laſted. All People have been wont to erect Monuments of Stone to preſerve the Memory of Covenants, or Victories, or other great Things. And though there was no Inſcription upon theſe Stones, yet the Number of them, and the Place where they lay, which was not ſtony, was ſufficient to ſignify ſome memorable Thing; which, upon Enquiry, would be made known to thoſe that ſaw and obſerved them.

Ver. 8. And the Children of Iſrael did ſo as Joſhua commanded, &c.] That is, the twelve Men did according to his Order, both in taking up the Stones, and carrying them to the Place where they lodged.

And laid them down there.] Which, perhaps, were erected into a kind of Pillar, that they might look like a Monument of ſomething done thereabout. Or, they were ſo placed, as to be ſo many little Monuments of God's Mercy, See Ver. 20.

Ver. 9. And Joſhua ſet up twelve Stones in the midſt of Jordan, in the Place where the Feet of the Prieſts that bare the Covenant, ſtood.] This renders it probable that the other XII Stones taken out of Jordan were ſet up in Gilgal, as theſe, taken out of ſome of the Fields thereabouts, were erected in the midſt of the River, to teſtify to all Poſterity their miraculous Paſſage over it, at this Place.

And they are there unto this Day.] From hence, not only ſuch Men as Mr. Hobbs, but Maſius, and Grotius, and divers others, have argued, that this Book was not written by Joſhua, but by ſome Perſon who lived at a great Diſtance from his Time, as theſe Words, they fancy, import. But this is a mere Fancy; for if Joſhua wrote this Book in his old Age, or at leaſt then added his laſt Hand to it, (as it is probable he did) he might as well uſe theſe Words, as one that lived an hundred Years after. And at this Rate of arguing, (as Huetius obſerves) Moſes muſt not be the Author of the Book of Deuteronomy, where he ſpeaks in the ſame Style, x. 5. xi. 4.) nor St. Matthew the Author of the Goſpel, which he wrote not many Years after our Saviour's Death; who uſes the very ſame Words, xxvii. 8. xxviii. 21. See Demonſtr. Evang. Propoſ. iv. Cap. xxiv.

Ver. 10. For the Prieſts that bare the Ark, ſtood in the midſt of Jordan.] It is remarkable in this whole Relation, that when the Prieſts are mentioned, theſe Words are ſtill added, that bare the Ark, or, the Ark of the Covenant, (both in this Chapter, ver. 9, 16, 18. and in the foregoing ver. 13, 14, 15, 17.) to ſhew that this Miracle was not to be aſcribed to them, but to the Power of the LORD, unto whom they miniſtred.

Until every thing was finiſhed, that the LORD commanded Joſhua to ſpeak unto the People.] Concerning the taking up of the Twelve Stones, and placing others in their room; and all that preceded concerning their paſſing over the River; which it is likely he exhorted them to do chearfully.

According to all that Moſes commanded Joſhua.] We do not read that Moſes gave any particular Directions about the foregoing Matters; therefore the Meaning is, that Joſhua ſtrenuouſly executed all that God ordered, as Moſes had admoniſhed him, Deut. iii. 28. and other Places.

And the People haſted, and paſſed over.] This doth not refer to all the People, as if they went a ſwift Pace over the River, out of Fear of the Waters overwhelming them, (as ſome think) but to ſuch as remained ſtill behind the Ark, to attend its Motion. Who now ſeeing all that Joſhua commanded was finiſhed, made haſte to get over the River, as their Brethren had done before them. It is ſaid, indeed, ver. 1. that when all the People were clean paſſed over, Joſhua gave Order about the Twelve Stones: But the Meaning is, when the main Body of the People were gone over: For it appears by the next Verſe, that they had not all entirely paſſed over until now.

Ver. 11. And it came to paſs, that when all the People were clean paſſed over.] So that none were remaining in the Plains of Moab, from whence they came.

That the Ark of the LORD paſſed over, and the Prieſts.] They who went firſt into the River, came laſt out: It being by the Power of the LORD, whoſe Ark the Prieſts bare, that the Courſe of the River was ſtopped, and a Way made for all the People to paſs over.

In the Preſence of the People.] Who beheld the Water ſtanding ſtill on an Heap, while the Ark was in the River; but come tumbling down when it was gone. Which demonſtrated that it was God's Preſence with them, to which alone they owed this miraculous Mercy.

Ver. 12. And the Children of Reuben, and the Children of Gad, and half the Tribe of Manaſſeh, paſſed over, armed, before the Children of Iſrael, as Moſes ſpake unto them.] They were the firſt that paſſed over, (according to their Engagement, Numb. xxxiii. 20, 21, 27, of which Joſhua had put them in mind, i. 13.) ready to encounter any Enemy that might have oppoſed their Landing.

Ver. 13. About forty thouſand prepared for War.] Or, ready armed (as it is in the Margin) and prepared to fight, in caſe they met with any Oppoſition. It is obſervable, that in the laſt Muſter, made not long ago, of thoſe that were fit for War in their ſeveral Tribes, there were above forty Thouſand in the Tribe of Reuben alone; and above fifty Thouſand in that of Manaſſeh, Numb, xxvi. 7, 34. And therefore it is likely Joſhua pick'd out only this Number of choſen Men; and left all the reſt to look after their Families and Flocks.

Paſſed over before the LORD unto Battle.] Being paſſed over the River, they ſtood in Battle Array before the Ark; at the Diſtance, I ſuppoſe, of two Thouſand Cubits.

In the Plains of Jericho.] Where it might be ſuppoſed the People of Jericho would have encamped, to hinder their Paſſage.

Ver. 14. On that Day the LORD magnified Joſhua in the Sight of all Iſrael.] As he promiſed, iii. 7.

And they feared him, as they feared Moſes, all the Days of his Life.] This Wonder gained him the like Reſpect and Reverence, that the dividing the Red Sea did to Moſes, Exod. xiv. 31.

Ver. 15. And the LORD ſpake unto Joſhua, ſaying.] All this Buſineſs was managed purely by the Divine Direction,

Ver. 16. Command the Prieſts that bear the Ark of the Teſtimony, that they come up out of Jordan.] The midſt of which River, where they ſtood, being the loweſt and deepeſt Part of it, they are properly ſaid to come up when they left that Station.

Ver. 17. Joſhua therefore commanded the Prieſts, ſaying, Come ye up out of Jordan.] Where they waited for the Divine Order, and did not ſtir till they received it.

Ver. 18. And it came to paſs, when the Prieſts that bare the Ark of the Covenant of the LORD were come up out of the River Jordan, and the Soles of the Prieſts Feet were lift up unto the dry Land.] Where the Waters of Jordan, when it overflowed farthermoſt, were never wont to come.

That the Waters of Jordan returned into their Place.] The Channel was filled again by the Deſcent of the Waters. Which for ſome time had ſtood heaped up, and could not ſtir; but now were let looſe to keep their antient Courſe.

And

And overflowed all his Banks, as they did before.] Which was done, it is likely, by a gradual Deſcent of the Water, and not by the tumbling down of that great Heap all at once.

Ver. 19. And the People came out of Jordan on the tenth Day of the firſt Month.] In which Month they came out of Egypt, upon the fifteenth Day of it: So that there wanted juſt five Days of forty Years ſince their coming from thence.

And encamped in Gilgal.] A Place very famous in After-times, becauſe of their firſt Encampment here; where they ſeem to have continued for ſeveral Years, during the Wars of Canaan. Here alſo they were circumciſed, (from whence the Place had its Name, ver. 9.) and kept the firſt Paſſover; the Tabernacle and the Ark remaining here, as long as the Iſraelites kept their Station in this Place. See ix. 6. x. 6, 43. xiv. 6. which was, I ſuppoſe, till the War was ended, and they had alſo begun to divide the Land. See xiv. 6. After which the Tabernacle was fixed in Shiloh, xviii. 1. xxii. 9, 12. Though ſtill Gilgal continued a famous Place, as appears from Judges ii. 1. 1 Sam. xi. 14, 15. xiii. 4, &c.

In the Eaſt Border of Jericho.] That is, between Jordan, which lay behind them, and Jericho, which lay before them.

Ver. 20. And thoſe Twelve Stones which they took out of Jordan, did Joſhua pitch in Gilgal.] We are not told in what Form they were pitched; whether they remained ſingle and diſtinct, or, as Joſephus will have it, joined together in the Form of an Altar. It ſeems to agree beſt with the End and Intention of them, if we conceive them to have been ſet down ſingle, but in ſome Order, (ſuppoſe three in a Row) repreſenting, like ſo many little Pillars, the Twelve Tribes of Iſrael; who paſſing over Jordan on dry Ground, a Man out of each Tribe was ordered to bring a Stone, and place them here, for a perpetual Memorial (ver. 7.) of what God had done for them. For Stones, every one knows, (eſpecially ſome Sorts of them) are of a very durable Nature, and therefore uſed by all Nations in the Monuments they have made to preſerve the Memory of Perſons and Things. Inſomuch, that if it be true which Procopius reports (in his ſecond Book de Bello Vandalico) concerning the two Pillars erected by the Canaanites, who fled into Africa before the Face of Joſhua, with an Inſcription ſignifying their Expulſion by him; I conclude it to have been done in Imitation of theſe Stones, whereby Joſhua preſerved the Memory of the miraculous Way which was opened to him, for their Expulſion.

Ver. 21. And he ſpake unto the Children of Iſrael, ſaying, When your Children ſhall ask their Fathers in Time to come, ſaying, What mean theſe Stones?] See ver. 6. where he had ſaid this, at the Time they took up the Stones; and now repeats it, when they pitched them. For then he may be thought to have ſpoken only to the XII Men; but now to all the XII Tribes.

Ver. 22. And ye ſhall let your Children know, ſaying, Iſrael came over this Jordan on dry Land.] That it might not be left to every Man's Liberty to give what Anſwer they pleaſed to their Children, when they enquired the Meaning of theſe Stones, he ſets down the very Words they ſhould ſpeak unto them; that they might be ſure to be duly inſtructed in the wonderful Mercy of God to their Nation.

Ver. 23. For the LORD your God dried up the Waters of Jordan from before ye, until ye were paſſed over.] He would have Poſterity made ſenſible, it was a Divine Benefit beſtowed on them, by the Divine Power: Which alone could ſtop the Courſe of a River, till a whole Nation paſſed over on dry Ground.

As the LORD your God did to the Red-ſea] At the ſame Time he would have them take Occaſion to remember them of another miraculous Mercy, like unto this, though ſuperior to it. Which the Prophets, in After-times, delighted to commemorate together, as appears from Pſal. cxiv. 5.

Which he dried up before us, untill we were gone over.] What he did for their Fore-fathers, he did for them, who reaped the happy Fruit of it juſt as the ſaving of Noah and his Family in the Ark, was the ſaving of all Mankind, who ſprang from them.

Ver. 24. That all the People of the Earth might know the Hand of the LORD.] All Nations round about, who heard of this, might be made ſenſible of the Power of the God of Iſrael.

That it is mighty.] Which can do all Things.

And that ye might fear the LORD your God for ever.] The People of Iſrael, eſpecially, (for whom theſe Wonders were wrought) might religiouſly worſhip and ſerve him: For ſo the Fear of God frequently ſignifies in Scripture: And therefore the LXX here tranſlate theſe Words ἵνα ὑμεῖς σέβησθε Κύριον τὸν Θεὸν ὑμῶν, that ye may worſhip the LORD your God; which includes in it all the Duty owing to him. And ſo they tranſlate the laſt Words for ever, ἐν παντὶ ἔργῳ, every thing that you do.

CHAP. V.

Ver. 1. AND it came to paſs, when all the Kings of the Amorites.] Theſe were the principal Inhabitants, and the moſt valiant in all the Country; as hath been formerly noted.

Which were on the Side of Jordan Weſtward.] This ſeems to be added, to ſhew that beſides the two Kings of the Amorites, Sihon, and Og, whom they had already ſubdued on the other Side of Jordan, Eaſtward; there were other Kings of the ſame Nation on that Side of Jordan, where the Iſraelites now were. And it is not improbable, that theſe Kings commanded the Hittites, Hivites, and Jebuſites, as well as the Amorites.

And all the Kings of the Canaanites, which were by the Sea.] i. e. the Mediterranean, where the People properly called Canaanites, dwelt; though there were Colonies of them ſpread in other Places. The LXX here call them Βασιλεῖς τῆς Φοινίκης, the Kings of Phœnicia: For upon upon that Sea were the principal Cities of the ancient Phœnicians, viz. Tyre and Sidon. But though the People that lived upon the Sea-coaſt were peculiarly called by this Name of Phœnicians, yet they were ſo powerful, that the whole Country was called χώρα τῶν Φοινίκων, the Country of the Phœnicians; as the LXX call the Land of Canaan, ver. 12. of this Chapter.

Heard that the LORD had dried up the Waters of Jordan from before the Children of Iſrael, until we were paſſed over.] This ſounds like the Language of Joſhua, or of ſome other Perſon then preſent, when this Wonder was wrought; which aſtoniſhed thoſe that lived in the remoteſt Parts of the Country; who little thought of an Invaſion on that Side, (which, it is likely, made them not draw any Forces that Way) imagining the River, eſpecially when it overflowed all its Banks, was a ſufficient Security unto them on that Frontier.

That their Hearts melted, neither was there Spirit in them any more, becauſe of the Children of Iſrael.] They quite loſt their Courage; which began to fail them before, as we read, Chap. ii. ver. 11. Or, as the LXX expounded it, their Underſtanding failed them; and they were in ſuch a Conſternation, that none knew what to adviſe for their Safety. In which the Providence of God is much to be obſerved, that by this means the Iſraelites were ſecurely circumciſed (as it here follows) whereas if the People of Canaan had been courageous and watchful, they had taken them at a great Advantage, if they had then fallen upon them; as appears by the Story of the Shechemites, Gen. xxxiv. 25. They had Leiſure alſo, without any Diſturbance, to celebrate the Paſſover, ver. 10.

Ver. 2. At that Time the LORD ſaid unto Joſhua.] The next Day, which was the Eleventh Day of the firſt Month; as our Primate Uſher and others judge moſt likely.

Make thee ſharp Knives.] Or, as it is in the Margin of our Bibles, Knives of Flints: Which Stones were plentiful, it is likely, in the Mountains thereabouts. And after they had marched forty Years in the Wilderneſs, it is probable (as Theodoret notes) that they were not provided with ſuch Knives as we uſe, of Iron. By the very Words alſo of Joſhua, it appears, he ſpeaks of Knives they were now to provide; and not of ſuch as they had already. Nor is it ſtrange ſuch Knives ſhould be uſed, for they were common in the Eaſtern Countries, as may be gathered out of the Talmud, in the Treatiſe of the Sabbath; where they ſay, in the killing of Beaſts, they uſe either a Flint-ſtone (ſo they interpret the Word Tzur) or Glaſs, or a Quill. From whence Theodoric Hackſpan concludes, that if ſharp Stones ſufficed for the killing of Beaſts, there was no need of any other in Circumciſion. Who obſerves alſo, that the Jews ſay, they might circumciſe with any Inſtrument, made either of Stone or Glaſs, but not of a Quill; becauſe there was Danger, it might ſlit and hurt ſo tender a Part. And at this Day they do circumciſe in the Eaſt, with Knives made of Stones, ſuch as Zipporah, it is ſuppoſed, uſed in the Circumciſion of her Son, Exod. iv. 25. See this Queſtion debated in Sixtinus Amama, his Antibarbarus, Lib. 2. Pag. 282. Juſtin Martyr thinks there was ſome Myſtery in the Uſe of theſe Knives. See his Dialogue with Trypho, p. 341, 342.

And circumciſe again the Children of Iſrael the ſecond time.] This doth not ſignifiy that they who had been circumciſed heretofore, were to be now circumciſed again, (from whence ſome have drawn an Argument for the repeating of Baptiſm, as St Auſtin tells us) but that there had been ſuch a general Circumciſion heretofore ordered, as there was to be now after a long Omiſſion of that Rite. And it is probable that it was at Mount Sinai, in the firſt Month of the ſecond Year after they came out of Egypt. When they kept a Paſſover on the fourteenth Day of that Month, (Numb. ix. 1, 2, 3.) and before they kept it, circumciſed all that had not been circumciſed in Egypt, or ſince they came out of it. For no uncircumciſed Perſon, nor any one who had a Son, or a Man-Servant in his Houſe uncircumciſed, was capable to be admitted to it. We do not read indeed of the Neglect of Circumciſion in Egypt, or in that Year wherein they came out of it; but, conſidering the great Oppreſſion they lay under in that Country, and the ſeveral Diſtreſſes they were in, after their Deliverance, for three Months, till they came to Sinai; and the Abſence of Moſes a long Time, after they came thither, it is very probable this Rite was omitted, till God called upon them (as he did now) to celebrate the Paſſover; and then they were conſtrained to take Care of it, becauſe otherwiſe they could not have kept it. See Selden, Lib. 2. de Synedr. Cap. H. N. 1.

Ver. 3. And Joſhua made him ſharp Knives, and circumciſed the Children of Iſrael.] Ordered every one that wanted it to be circumciſed; and, it is probable, not only all thoſe that came over Jordan, but ſuch of the Reubenites, Gadites, and Manaſſites, as were left on the other Side, were circumciſed alſo, and all in one Day, that they might be in a Condition to eat the Paſſover: Nor need it ſeem ſtrange that it was diſpatched in ſuch a ſhort time, for they might employ as many Hands as they pleaſed in this Work, there being no Neceſſity that a Prieſt or Levite ſhould do it, but it might be performed by their Fathers or Mothers, or any other Perſon.

At the Hill of the Fore-skins.] In the Hebrew, at Gibeah Naaraboth; which ſome take to be the Name of the Place where they were circumciſed; but then that Place was ſo called from the Fore-skins that were there thrown; which were ſo many, that being laid upon an Heap and covered with Earth, they made a little Hillock, as the Jews conceive. See Pirke Elieſer, Cap. xxix.

Ver. 4. And this is the Cauſe why Joſhua did circumciſe.] The Reaſon of this Order, and of the Execution of it, is here given.

All the People that came out of Egypt, that were Males, even all the Men of War, died in the Wilderneſs, by the Way, after they came out of Egypt.] That is, all that were then twenty Years

Years old, for ſuch only were reputed Men of War, and were guilty of the Sedition mentioned in Numb. xiv. for which they were doomed to periſh in the Wilderneſs.

Ver. 5. Now all the People that came out were circumciſed.] Not only thoſe that died for their Rebellion, but all the reſt under twenty Years old, were generally circumciſed, except ſome Infants, who (as I ſaid upon ver. 2) might have been neglected during their heavy Oppreſſion there.

But all the People that were born in the Wilderneſs by the Way, 'as they came forth out of Egypt, them they had not circumciſed.] Never ſince they removed from Mount Sinai, where it is likely there was a general Circumciſion, as there was now to be before their celebrating the Paſſover, which had not been kept ſince that Time.

Ver. 6. For the Children of Iſrael walked forty Years in the Wilderneſs, till all the People that were Men of War, which came out of Egypt, were conſumed, &c.] Theſe Words ſeem to give the Reaſon why they were not circumciſed, becauſe they were in a wandering Condition, while they remained in the Wilderneſs, and did not know when the Cloud would remove from the Tabernacle to lead them to another Place; which if it had done, when Children were newly circumciſed, their Lives might have been endangered by Motion, while they were ſore. This, a great many think, made Moſes diſpenſe with Circumciſion by God's Direction. We do not find him indeed conſulting God about it; but he was ſatisfied that God approved of this Reaſon for the Omiſſion of it. R. Joſe, as Mr. Selden obſerves, gives this Account of the whole Buſineſs: The Iſraelites kept but one Paſſover all the time they were in the Wilderneſs; the Reaſon was, in that Year (which was the next to that wherein they came out of Egypt) their Tents were pitched in a place where they might ſafely circumciſe the Males that had been lately born, leſt the Neglect of it ſhould hinder the legitimate Eating of the Paſſover. But in all the Time following, wherein they wandered in the Deſart, they did not circumciſe their Children, becauſe of their incommodious Journeys, and the Danger of Circumciſion by the way; ſo that they could keep no more Paſſovers till they came to Canaan. This is a far better Reaſon than what many of them give, who ſay, Circumciſion was omitted, becauſe the North Wind never blew all the Time they were in the Wilderneſs; and Wounds are very dangerous when it doth not blow. Whence their Medical Maxim mentioned in the Talmud; In cloudy Days, and when the Eaſt Wind blows, we neither circumciſe nor open a Vein. See Buxtorf. Synagog. Judaica, Cap. IV. But If this Matter be well conſidered, we cannot reſt ſatisfied with the foregoing Reaſon; for all the Time they were in the Wilderneſs, Children were born, and Women lay in; and there was greater Danger by their Motion, while they were in Labour, and when they were newly brought to Bed, than there was in their Childrens being circumciſed, who were ſore but for a few Days; whereas the other were not fit to go abroad, or to travel, in a great many. For which, and for ſeveral other Reaſons, Fortunatus Scacchus thinks this was not the Cauſe why they were not circumciſed during their Travels in the Wilderneſs; but the true Reaſon was, that they did not look upon the Precept of Circumciſion as obliging them, till they came to ſettle in the Land of Canaan: For in the Covenant which Moſes made with them at Mount Sinai, there is nothing ſaid about Circumciſion, unto which they were bound by the Covenant made with Abraham (as our Saviour obſerves, John vii. 21.) and that runs thus, I will give unto thee, and unto thy Seed after thee, the Land wherein thou art a Stranger, &c. Thou ſhalt keep my Covenant therefore, thou, and thy Seed after thee, &c. Every Man-Child ſhall be circumciſed, Gen. xvii. 8, 9, 10. See Sacror. Elaochriſm. Myrother. 2. Cap. liv.

Ver. 7. And their Children, whom he raiſed up in their ſtead, them Joſhua circumciſed.] Now that they were come to their Reſt in the Land of Promiſe.

For they were uncircumciſed, becauſe they had not circumciſed them by the Way.] For the Reaſon above-mentioned: To which this may be added, that ſeveral great Men (ſuch as Theodoret and St. Hierom among the Ancients) think that Circumciſion, being a Note of Diſtinction between the Iſraelites and other People, there was no need of it in the Wilderneſs, when (as Cedrenus ſpeaks) they were πάντος ἀλλογένους κεχωρισμένοι, ſeparated from all Strangers, by the Wilderneſs itſelf. Others think that the mixed Multitude of Egyptians, who, moved by the Miracles they had ſeen done in their Country, went out of it with the Iſraelites, and joined themſelves to them, were the Cauſe of this Omiſſion; for they could not preſently incorporate with them by receiving Circumciſion; and therefore it was ſuſpended, that theſe Egyptians might not look upon themſelves as quite a different People: But longer than till they came to Canaan they would not have it diſcontinued, when all, Egyptians as well as Iſraelites, received it, that they might not be upbraided as a People of a different Original. And as the Omiſſion of it in the Deſart made the Proſelytes who came out of Egypt equal with the Iſraelites, while they ſtayed there; ſo, as a moſt learned Friend of mine (Dr. Alix) ſuggeſts to me, it ſhewed, that there was no abſolute Neceſſity of this Rite, and that it could not be of eternal Obligation.

Ver. 8. And it came to paſs, when they had done circumciſing all the People, that they abode in their Place in the Camp.] Lay ſtill without Motion (which would have hindred the Healing of the Sore) and had not the leaſt Diſturbance given them by the People of Canaan.

Till they were whole.] Which they were againſt the Paſſover: for reckoning the eleventh Day for one, there were four Days between their Circumciſion and the Paſſover, which was not kept till the 14th Day at Even, when the Pain was pretty well over, for it was ſmarteſt on the third Day. See upon Gen. xxxiv 25.

Ver. 9. And the LORD ſaid unto Joſhua, This Day have I rolled away the Reproach of Egypt from off you.] It is commonly thought that by the Reproach of Egypt, is meant nothing elſe but Uncircumciſion, with which the Iſraelites always reproached other People, particularly the Egyptians, among whom they had long dwelt, and with whom they were beſt acquainted. But our learned Dr. Spencer thinks the Reproach of Egypt, is the Slavery to which they had been there long ſubject, but now were fully declared a free People by receiving the Mark of the Seed of Abraham, and made Heirs of the Promiſed Land. This he very often repeats, Lib. 1. de Leg. Hebr. Ritual. Cap. IV. p. 44, 51, 55. And no doubt Joſhua now choſe, immediately upon their Entrance into the Land of Canaan, to cauſe them to be circumciſed, not only as a Token they peculiarly belong'd to him, but to oblige them to be careful to obſerve all the Laws of God, many of which could not, and others were not, obſerved in the Wilderneſs, but were now to be regularly practiſed, becauſe they held the Land of Canaan by this Tenure. To this Purpoſe alſo Theodoret diſcourſes, in his Queſtions upon this Book; They were made now Lords of the Promiſed Land, who were lately Slaves in Egypt; for they could not be the legitimate Children of Abraham, Iſaac, and Jacob, and Heirs of the Promiſes made to them, till they were circumciſed. Ralbag hath another Notion of it; That the Egyptians ſeeing the Iſraelites wander ſo long as they did in the Wilderneſs, reproached and flouted them, as if they were brought thither to be deſtroyed, and not to poſſeſs the Land of Canaan; from which Reproaches God now delivered them, when he aſſured them, by enjoining their Circumciſion, that they ſhould ſhortly enjoy that Country which God promiſed; but which no uncircumciſed Perſon might inherit: But the firſt is the plaineſt and moſt unconſtrained Senſe.

Wherefore the Name of the Place is called Gilgal unto this Day.] This was the firſt Original of the Name, which this Place had ever after; for Galal in Hebrew, from whence this Word comes, ſignifies to remove, take away, or devolve. And ſo here the LXX. tranſlate the Word Gallothi (I have rolled away) by ἀφεῖλον, and the Vulgar Latin by Abſtuli (I have taken away;) which makes it ſtrange that Joſephus ſhould ſay, (Lib. V. Antiq. Cap. I.) that this Word Gilgal ſignifies Liberty, whom Theodoret follows; as if this Place was ſo called, becauſe now they found themſelves perfectly freed from the Egyptians, and from all the Troubles they endured in the Wilderneſs.

Unto this Day.] Theſe Words are alledged by ſome againſt Joſhua's being the Author of this Book; to which an Anſwer hath been given, iv. 9.

Ver. 10. And the Children of Iſrael encamped in Gilgal.] Continued their Camp there, as they were enjoined, ver. 8.

And kept the Paſſover.] Which was the ſecond Paſſover that had been kept ſince its firſt Inſtitution, the firſt being obſerved the ſecond Year after their coming out of Egypt at Mount Sinai; after which it had been omitted thirty-nine Years, becauſe many of the People were uncircumciſed.

On the fourteenth Day of the Month at Even.] According to the Command of God, Exod. xii. 6.

In the Plains of Jericho.] Where the Tabernacle was in the midſt of their Camp, unto which they brought their Lamb, for it could be ſacrificed no where elſe, Deut. xvi. 2. And therefore hither the Reubenites and Gadites and Manaſſites, on the other ſide Jordan, came to offer this Sacrifice; which was eaſier for them, than it was in After-times to go up to Jeruſalem.

Ver. 11. And they did eat the old Corn of the Land.] Which the People of the Country had left in their Barns when they fled into Jericho, and other ſtrong Holds.

The Morrow after the Paſſover.] There is a great Diſpute among the Jews, whether this were the Fifteenth Day of the Month, which was properly the next Day after the Paſſover, or, as others take it, the Sixteenth Day, which was the ſolemn Sabbath kept on the firſt Day of Unleavened Bread, (Levit. xxiii. 10, 11.) when they were to wave the Sheaf of the Firſt Fruits before the LORD. The former are in the right.

Unleavened Cakes.] That is, they kept the Feaſt of Unleavened Bread, which was diſtinct from the Paſſover, as I obſerved, Exod. xii. 15, &c.

And parched Corn on the ſelf-ſame Day.] This was new Corn, which was growing that Year they entered into Canaan, of which it was not lawful to eat, till they had offered the Sheaf before-mentioned, (Levit. xxiii. 14.) and therefore it is made an Argument by ſome, that it was the Sixteenth Day of this Month when this Corn was parched.

Ver. 12. And the Manna ceaſed on the Morrow after they had eaten of the old Corn of the Land, neither had the Children of Iſrael Manna any more.] Becauſe they had no need of it, (as Kimchi and others interpret it) being ſupplied by the Store of old Corn which they found in the Land of Canaan, and by what was growing upon the Ground.

But they did eat of the Fruit of the Land of Canaan that Year.] After they had offered the Sheaf before-mentioned, Levit. xxiii. 11. So that Manna ceaſed on the Sixteenth or Seventeenth Day of the firſt Month, having continued with them forty Years, wanting about a Month. So R. Bechai truly interprets theſe Words, Exod. xvi. 35. not to ſignify Forty Years compleat, but near Forty Years; for it began to fall on the Fifteenth Day of the ſecond Month, and ceaſed on the Sixteenth or Seventeenth Day of the firſt Month of the Fortieth Year after they came out of Egypt; and therefore, to ſhew that they were not to expound thoſe Words, They did eat Manna Forty Years, in a ſtrict and preciſe Senſe, Moſes immediately adds, until they came to a Land inhabited; they did eat Manna until they came to the Borders of the Land of Canaan; which was exactly fulfilled, Gilgal being on the Borders of the Land, where it now ceaſed; but it continued till that Time, tho' they came to a Land inhabited, when they conquered the Kingdoms of Sihon and Og.

Ver. 13. And it came to paſs, when Joſhua was by Jericho.] After he had performed theſe ſolemn Rites of Circumciſion and the Paſſover, Joſhua went to take a View of Jericho, and to obſerve, as Generals are wont to do, the Approaches to it.

That he lift up his Eyes and looked.] Theſe Words ſignify a ſudden Apparition of a Perſon to him; for ſo this Phraſe is uſed, when ſomething new and unexpected preſents itſelf, as one is intent upon ſomething elſe, Gen. xviii. 1. Dan. x. 5.

And behold there ſtood a Man before him.] Whom he took to be a Man.

With his Sword drawn in his Hand over-againſt him.] He ſeemed to be a Soldier, or rather a great Commander, and ſtood directly oppoſite to him.

And Joſhua went unto him.] Such was his undaunted Courage, with which GOD had inſpired him.

And ſaid unto him, art thou for us, or for our Adverſaries?] He demands of him, whether he came to help the Iſraelites, or the People of Canaan; for whom (it appears by the Anſwer) Joſhua ſuſpected he came to fight.

Ver. 14. And he ſaid, Nay.] i. e. I am not on the Side of your Adverſaries.

But as Captain (or Prince) of the Hoſt of the LORD am I now come.] By the Hoſt of the LORD, is here meant the whole Body of the People of Iſrael, whom the LORD himſelf led forth out of Egypt, as his Army, (ſee Exod. xii. 41.) and now appeared in this manner, that he might ſhew he would ſtill conduct them, as their chief Commander and Leader, by whom they ſhould be victorious over their Enemies: For tho' many take this to have been a created Angel (Michael, ſuppoſe, the Chief of them) yet it is evident that Joſhua did not think him ſo to be, for he fell down and worſhipped him, as we read in the Words following.

And Joſhua fell on his Face to the Earth.] With the profoundeſt Reverence.

And did worſhip.] Which he durſt not have given (for GOD alone is to be adored) nor would an Angel have received, without ſuch a Check as an Angel gave St. John, (Revel. xxii. 10.) if he had not taken him to be the Divine WORD that was come to fight for them. So the Chaldee Paraphraſe upon Joſh. x. 42. It was the WORD of the LORD that fought for them, according to GOD's Promiſe, i. 9, 17. This a moſt learned Friend of mine (Dr. Alix) ſhews was the Judgment of the ancient Jewiſh Church (ſee his late Book on that Argument, p. 234.) and it is moſt certain was the Judgment of the ancient Chriſtians, particularly of Juſtin Martyr, Euſebius, and Theodoret. See Valeſius in his Annotations upon Euſebius's Eccleſiaſtical Hiſtory, Lib. 1. Cap. 2. p. 7. And therefore our great Primate of Ireland fears not to ſay in his Annals, Jeſus Dominus noſter, princeps militiæ patris ſui, Jeſu typico ad Jerichuntem gladio ſtricto apparens, promittit ſe populum defenſurum; that is, Jeſus our LORD, the Prince of his Father's Hoſt, appearing to him who was a Type of him at Jericho, with a drawn Sword, promiſed to be the Defender of the People: Where he ſeems by the Captain of the LORD's Hoſt, to underſtand our LORD, who commands Angels themſelves; for they are ſometimes called the Hoſt of Heaven, 1 Kings xxii. 19. Luke ii. 13. And it may very well be thought the Meaning here.

And ſaid unto him, What ſaith my Lord unto his Servant?] Joſhua was poſſeſſed with ſuch a deep Senſe of the Greatneſs of this Perſon, that he humbly deſires to receive his Commands, and he would obey them.

Ver. 15. And the Captain of the LORD's Hoſt ſaid unto Joſhua, Looſe thy Shoe from off thy Foot, for the Place where thou ſtandeſt is holy.] This is the fulleſt Evidence that can be given of the Divinity of this Perſon that appeared to him; who was ſo far from reproving him for doing him too much Honour, that he commanded him to do much more; for that which he here requires, is the higheſt Acknowledgment of a Divine Preſence that was uſed among the Eaſtern Nations, as the ſame Dr. Alix obſerves, and conſidering that theſe are the very ſame Words which were ſpoken to Moſes, Exod. iii. 2, 3. we learn the Reaſon why GOD commanded this to Joſhua; which was, for the ſtrengthening of his Faith, that as now he was placed in Moſes his ſtead, ſo GOD would be with him, as he had been with Moſes. And thus Joh. à Coch diſcourſes very reaſonably upon the Gemara of the Sanhedrin, Cap. 6. N. 3. This Angel, who ſuffered himſelf to be worſhipped, and by whoſe Preſence the Place where he appeared was ſanctified, ſo that Joſhua was commanded to put off his Shoes, no doubt was he whom all the Angels in Heaven worſhip.

And Joſhua did ſo.] Put off his Shoes, in Token of Reverence to that Place; which was holy, while that Divine Preſence remained there, tho' not after it was gone: And it continued there for ſome Space of Time, to give Joſhua Advice, and to encourage him to hope for his Protection and Aſſiſtance; as appears from v. 2. of the next Chapter.

CHAP. VI.

Ver. 1. NOW Jericho was ſtraitly ſhut up, becauſe of the Children of Iſrael.] The Targum underſtands it as if he ſpake of the ſtrong Fortifications of Jericho, which made it needful Joſhua ſhould be encouraged in his Enterprize againſt it. But the Words in the Hebrew are literally (as is noted in the Margin of our Bibles) did ſhut up, and was ſhut up, which plainly relates to the ſtrict Guards which were kept, that none could get into the City, nor get out of it: So it is explained in the next Words.

None went out, and none came in.] They ſhut up their Gates ſo cloſe, that none could go out to carry Intelligence to Joſhua; and they were blocked up ſo cloſe by the Iſraelites (to which the latter Part of the foregoing Words may perhaps refer) that none could get in to bring any Intelligence or Relief to the Inhabitants of Jericho.

Ver. 2. And the LORD ſaid unto Joſhua.] The ſame Perſon ſpeaks to him (all agree) who is called the Prince of the LORD*'s Hoſt* in the foregoing Chapter; and here is called JEHOVAH. Which ſhews he was not a created Angel, but God himſelf; who alone could promiſe and perform what follows.

See, I have given into thy Hand Jericho, and the King thereof, and the mighty Men of Valour.] Who were gathered together in this Place out of ſeveral Nations: It being a Frontier City, which they made as ſtrong as they were able, and defended by the moſt valiant Men they had in the Country. See xxiv. 11. For we are to ſuppoſe that they had refuſed the Offers of Peace which God ordered to be firſt ſent unto them, (Deut. xx. 10.) and, truſting to their Forces, took up a deſperate Reſolution not to yield upon any Terms.

Ver. 3. And ye ſhall compaſs the City, all ye Men of War, and go round the City once.] At ſuch a Diſtance, I ſuppoſe, that they could not reach them from the City, with their Arrows or Stones ſlung againſt them.

Thus ſhall ye do ſix Days.] Once every of thoſe Days, in ſuch Order as is deſcribed, ver. 6, 7, 8, 9. This look'd not like making War; but appeared to the Beſieged, it was probable, as a Paſtime.

Ver. 4. And ſeven Prieſts ſhall bear before the Ark ſeven Trumpets of Rams Horns.] Such Trumpets as they uſed to blow withal in the Year of Jubilee, Lev. xxv. 9. for ſo the Phraſe is in the Hebrew, Trumpets of Jobel: And I have obſerved elſewhere, that Rams Horns, not being hollow, Trumpets could not be made of them.

And the ſeventh Day ye ſhall compaſs the City ſeven times.] The ſeventh Day's March differed in two Things from the other ſix; that they compaſſed it but once on other Days, and made not the leaſt Noiſe, but now ſeven times, and made a great Shout at the End of the laſt Circuit. Concerning this Number Seven, ſee Druſius upon this Place, and upon Levit. iv. 6. Grotius ſaith of it in ſhort (upon 2 Chron. xxix. 21.) Heptas ſacris propria; The Number Seven is proper to ſacred Things: As appears by the ſeven Angels and ſeven Trumpets, Revel. viii. 2.

And the Prieſts ſhall blow with the Trumpets.] All the time they marched ſo often round the City. See Tertullian, Lib. 2. adv. Marcion Cap. 21.

Ver. 5. And it ſhall come to paſs, that when they make a long Blaſt with the Rams Horns.] A loud Sound protracted after a ruſtick manner, as Bochart interprets it in his Hierozoicon, P. 1. Lib. 2. Cap. 43.

And when ye hear the Sound of the Trumpet.] And were commanded by Joſhua to ſhout, ver. 16.

All the People ſhall ſhout with a great Shout.] Such as Soldiers uſe when they make an Onſet upon a Place, or when Armies meet to give Battle.

And the Wall of the City ſhall fall down flat.] Or, fall under it as it is in the Hebrew; which ſeems to ſignify that the Foundations of the Wall were ſubverted, ſo that it ſunk and fell into the Ditch, or (as the Jews explain it) ſunk into the very Ground on which it ſtood, ſo as to leave no Ruins, as in the common Fall of Walls; in which they ſuppoſe another Miracle.

And the People ſhall aſcend up every Man ſtrait before him.] The whole Wall did not fall down, for Rahab's Houſe ſtood, which was upon the Wall, ii. 15. But ſuch wide Breaches were made every where round about, that the Iſraelites went ſtrait forward, and found an eaſy Entrance into this City, which the amazed Inhabitants had no Heart to defend; or rather, the whole Wall ſunk into the Earth, only Rahab's Houſe was left ſtanding, which made the Thing more remarkable. And thus God demonſtrated, that it was his wonderful Power which overthrew the City, againſt which they brought no Engines nor battering Rams, &c. ἀλλὰ μόνῃ φωνῇ σάλπιγγος καὶ κεφαλίνης, καὶ εὐχῇ δικαίᾳ &c. as Epiphanius ſpeaks, Hæreſ. 66 N. 83.

Ver. 6. And Joſhua the Son of Nun called the Prieſts, and ſaid unto them, Take up the Ark of the Covenant.] This is the ſecond Time that the Prieſts are ordered to carry the Ark, which belonged to the Office of the Kohathites. See iii. 3.

And let ſeven Prieſts bear ſeven Trumpets of Rams Horns before the Ark of the LORD.] As the LORD commanded, ver. 4.

Ver. 7. And he ſaid unto the People, Paſs on and compaſs the City, and let him that is armed paſs before the Ark of the LORD.] This explains, ver. 3. where he ſeems to command only the Men of War to compaſs the City. But the Meaning is, that the whole Body of the People ſhould march in this Circuit, the Men of War going before the Ark, and the reſt of the People following it, as it is explained ver. 9.

Ver. 8. And it came to paſs, when Joſhua had ſpoken unto the People.] By the Prieſts, as the LXX underſtand it.

That the ſeven Prieſts bearing the ſeven Trumpets of Rams Horns, paſſed on before the LORD, and blew with the Trumpets, and the Ark of the Covenant of the LORD followed them.] According to the Direction given ver. 6.

Ver. 9. And the armed Men went before the Prieſts, that blew with the Trumpets.] Here the Order of their March explains the Command, ver. 7.

And the Rear-ward came after the Ark.] That is, the reſt of the People who had no Arms, old Men, Women and Children, came in the Rear of the Ark. Concerning the Word Meaſſeph, (which we tranſlate Rear-ward) ſee Numb. x. 23. From whence may be gathered, that by this Rear-ward, is meant the Tribe of Dan; as the Targum, Raſi and Kimchi underſtand it; who by the armed Men before mentioned, underſtand the Reubenites, Gadites and Manaſſites, who were engaged by Moſes to go armed before the LORD to War, Numb. xxxii. 20. and renewed this Engagement to Joſhua, i. 12, &c.

The Prieſts going on, and blowing with the Trumpets.] The Word Prieſts is not in the He- brew, which made the Vulgar to tranſlate the Words in ſuch a manner as if the whole Multitude before mentioned made a Sound with Trumpets, Buccinis omnia concrepabant. But there being no Order for any to blow with Trumpets but only the Prieſts, our Tranſlators have done well to ſupply that Word from Ver. 4. as they do alſo from Ver. 13. where this is again repeated.

Ver. 10. And Joſhua had commanded the People, ſaying, Ye ſhall not ſhout, nor make any Noiſe with your Voice, neither ſhall any Word proceed out of your Mouth.] They were not to talk to one another as they went along, but march in a profound Silence, before and after the LORD, waiting on him, to ſee what he would do for them.

Until the Day I bid ye ſhout, then ſhall ye ſhout.] That is, on the ſeventh Day, after they had compaſſed the City ſeven times.

Ver. 11. So the Ark of the LORD compaſſed the City, going about it once.] It is uncertain upon what Day they began to do this; but it is very probable (as the Jews ſay in their Larger Chronicle) that it was the next Day after the ſeven Days of Unleavened Bread were ended.

And they came into the Camp, and lodged in the Camp.] They ſpent the reſt of the Day in the Camp to refreſh themſelves, and lay there the following Night.

Ver. 12. And Joſhua roſe up early in the Morning.] Viz. That Morning of the firſt Day of compaſſing the City.

And the Prieſts took up the Ark of the LORD.] Theſe Words, and thoſe that follow in the next Verſe, give a particular Account of what was done the firſt Day, according to that which was ſaid in general, Ver. 8, 9.

Ver. 13. And the ſeven Prieſts bearing ſeven Trumpets of Rams Horns before the Ark of the LORD, went on continually.] Without reſting or making any Stop, in a continued Motion, till they had finiſhed their Circuit.

And blew with the Trumpets.] As ſoon as they began their Motion.

And the armed Men went before them, but the Rear-ward came after the Ark, the Prieſts going on, and blowing with the Trumpet.] Till they have ended their Circuit.

Ver. 14. And the ſecond Day they compaſſed the City once.] In the ſame Order before deſcribed.

And returned into the Camp.] As they had done the firſt Day, Ver. 11.

And ſo they did ſix Days.] The remaining four Days were ſpent in the ſame pompous Shew, without ſtriking a Stroke, or ſpeaking a Word, that the Subverſion of the City might be aſcribed wholly to the Power of GOD, which ſecretly undermined the Walls, and threw them down.

Ver. 15. And it came to paſs on the ſeventh Day.] The Jewiſh Writers ſay this was the Sabbath, as Raymundus obſerves in his Pugio Fidei, and Joſ. de Voyſin in his Annotations upon him, p. 625. But I ſhall only mention the Words of Kimchi, which are theſe; The Ark of the LORD compaſſed the City the firſt Time, on the firſt Day of the Week: So our Doctors, of pious Memory, have delivered, that the ſeventh Day whereon the City was taken, was the Sabbath, tho' they killed and burnt upon that Day; for he that commanded the Sabbath to be obſerved, commanded it now to be prophaned for the Deſtruction of Jericho, as he commanded Burnt Offerings to be ſacrificed on this Day: Which is the very Inſtance whereby our bleſſed Saviour juſtifies his doing ſome Works upon the Sabbath-Day. And here I cannot but note, that it was JEHOVAH, according to this Explication, who gave this Command to compaſs the City on this Day as well as any other. That great LORD who gave the Command to keep the Sabbath, now diſpenſed with it: He that ſpake from Mount Sinai was the Perſon who appeared to Joſhua: For whether this Day was the Sabbath or no, it is certain, one of the ſeven Days wherein they were thus employed, was the Sabbath, and conſequently their Reſting on that Day was diſpenſed withal, by the ſame Authority that made the Law of the Sabbath.

That he roſe early about the Dawning of the Day.] All the ſix Days, I ſuppoſe, they roſe early, as they did upon the firſt (Ver. 12.) but upon this Day very early, as ſoon as they could ſee, becauſe they had ſeven times as much Work to do as they had upon the other Days.

And compaſſed the City after the ſame manner, ſeven times.] Not with a continued Motion, I ſuppoſe, but reſting a while (perhaps after each Circuit) to refreſh themſelves; otherwiſe by ſo much Motion, they might have been diſpirited, and unfit to attack Jericho, when the Wall of it fell down before them.

Only on that Day they compaſſed the City ſeven times.] For ſo the LORD ordered, Ver. 4.

Ver. 16. And it came to paſs at the ſeventh time.] As ſoon as they had ended the ſeventh Circuit.

When the Prieſts blew with the Trumpets.] Such a long Sound as is mentioned, Ver. 5.

Joſhua ſaid unto the People.] By ſuch Officers as he had appointed to give the Order, when they heard that unuſual Sound of the Trumpet.

Shout.] In aſſured hope of Victory, as it follows in the next Words, for the LORD hath given you the City.

Ver. 17. And the City ſhall be accurſed.] All the Commands given in this, and in the two following Verſes, could not be delivered juſt before he bad them ſhout; but they had been given ſome time before they began to march the ſeventh time about the City. And if any thing of theſe Matters was repeated now, it was very briefly, by bidding them remember the Orders they had received concerning the City, and all that was therein.

I have obſerved elſewhere, that this Word Cherem (which we tranſlate accurſed) ſignifies ſometimes the Gift itſelf which is devoted to GOD, for his Uſes, Levit. xxvii. 24. ſometimes that which is devoted to perpetual Deſtruction, by the Right which GOD hath to puniſh capital Enmities to him, as here in this Place. And thus, Mr. Selden obſerves, the great Sanhedrim might might devote those to Destruction, who in War did not observe such Charges as were given them; of which they find an Instance in Judg. xxi. 5. See him Lib. 4. de Jure Nat. & Gentium, Cap. 6.

Even it and all that are therein, to the LORD.] As the first Fruits of their Victories, in the Land of Canaan. All whose Inhabitants God ordered to be exterminated; but thought fit to make such an Example of the first that refused to submit, as to raze their very City, and command it never to be built again: For that this was done by a particular Order from God, appears from 1 Kings xvi. 34. Thus he commanded even such Cities in Israel to be destroyed, as should hereafter revolt to Idolatry, Deut. xiii. 15, 16, 17.

Only Rahab the Harlot shall live, she and all that are with her in the House. Which is explain'd in the Execution of this Order, Ver. 23.

Because she hid the Messengers.] Who sware unto her that she should be preserved: And therefore, both in Justice and Gratitude, Joshua was bound to take Care of her; and, no doubt, had Order from God to make good the Oath of the Spies.

That we sent.] This seems to import, that Joshua sent the Spies by the Advice or Consent of the Elders; tho' it may signify no more but that he sent them upon a publick Account. See Ch. ii. 1, 23.

Ver. 18. And you, in any wise, keep yourselves from the accursed Thing.] Take heed, lest you meddle with any of the Spoils, which are devoted to God, and appropriate them to your own Use.

Lest you make yourselves accursed, when ye take of the accursed Thing.] Bring yourselves under the same Sentence of being devoted to Destruction.

And make the Camp of Israel a Curse.] And, more than that, expose the whole Camp to the same Danger. For many times God takes Occasion to punish the whole Body of a People for their other Sins, when some of them only have highly offended him.

And trouble it.] Disturb the Course of their Victories.

Ver. 19. But all the Silver and Gold and Vessels of Brass and Iron.] And other Metals, I suppose.

Are consecrated to the LORD.] Except the Gold and Silver of their Images, which were utterly to be destroy'd, according to an express Command of God, Deut. vii. 25, 26.

They shall come into the Treasury of the LORD.] Which was in the Tabernacle. To the Service of which, such Things were wholly appropriated, and might not be employ'd to any other Use. But it is very probable, that before such Things were put into the Treasury, they were purified, by making them go through the Fire: According to the Law, Numb. xxxi. 22, 23. The Jews think these Things were given to God, because the City was taken on the Sabbath.

Ver. 20. So the People shouted, when the Priests blew with the Trumpets.] As they had been commanded, Ver. 16.

And it came to pass, when the People heard the Sound of the Trumpet, and the People shouted with a great Shout.] This is repeated to shew, that this was all that the People contributed to the Expugnation of this City; Which they wholly ascribed to God.

That the Wall fell down flat.] As the LORD had promised, Ver. 5.

So that the People went up into the City, every Man straight before him, and they took the City.] As it was easy to do, when the Garrison was in such a Consternation, at the sudden Fall of the Wall, without any visible Force to throw it down; that, in all Likelihood, they could make little or no Resistance.

Ver. 21. And they utterly destroyed all that was in the City, both Man and Woman, Young and Old, and Ox, and Sheep, and Ass, with the Edge of the Sword.] See Deut. xx. 16, 17. Some have observed that there are no Camels here mention'd; which were not commonly bred in this Country, much less Mules, which were not known in the Land of Israel till the Days of David. As Bochart concludes from the Mention, upon several Occasions, of Oxen, Sheep, and Asses; but never of these Creatures till his Time. But if there were any other Animals in Jericho besides these here named, they were all killed; for that was the Law of the Cherem. As for their killing of Infants and Women, see Grotius, Lib. III. de Jure Belli & Pacis, Cap. 4. Sect. 9. And it must also be remembred that they were a People guilty of such foul Idolatry, that it was fit the whole Race of them should be destroyed, as Sodom was; where all the Children perished as well as others. And this was a Type of the entire Destruction of new Babylon, mentioned in the Revelation.

Ver. 22. But Joshua had said unto the two Men that had spied out the Country.] He had given this Order before the falling of the Wall; when he began their March on the Seventh Day, the Seventh Time, and before they shouted.

Go into the Harlot's House.] Which, by the wonderful Providence of God over her, was left standing with Part of the Wall upon which it was built, when the rest sunk into the Ground.

And bring out thence the Woman, and all that she hath.] With her in the House.

As ye sware unto her.] Ch. ii. 14.

Ver. 23. And the young Men that were Spies, went in, and brought out Rahab, and her Father, and her Mother, and all that she had; and they brought out all her Kindred.] By this it appears, that all related to her, who took Shelter under her Roof, were preserved from Destruction. Such is the great Clemency of God, who, for the Sake of one excellent Woman, spared a great many that had done nothing to deserve his Favour.

And left them without the Camp of Israel.] They were brought out of the House, because it was to be burnt, with all the rest of the City: Which was to be laid desolate without Inhabitant. And they were carried without the Camp of Israel, because it was Holy by the the Presence of the LORD there: Which made it unlawful for them to enter into it, till they had abjured their Gentile Superstition; and, by Circumcision, (and by Baptism, as the Custom was in After-times, if not now) admitted into the Body of the Israelites.

Ver. 24. And they burnt the City with Fire, and all that was therein.] By the just Judgment of GOD upon it, for the horrible Wickedness committed therein. See Grotius de Jure Belli & Pacis, Lib. 3. Cap. 12. Sect. 2.

Only the Silver and the Gold, and the Vessels of Brass and Iron, they put into the Treasury of the House of the LORD.] As had been enjoined before they took the City, ver. 19.

Ver. 25. And Joshua saved Rahab the Harlot alive, and her Father's Houshold, and all that she had.] It is likely her Father and his Houshold gave Credit to what she said; and consequently were converted, as she was, to the true Religion, by what they had heard before, and now saw with their own Eyes, of the wonderful Works of GOD.

And she dwelleth in Israel unto this Day.] Was incorporated with the Israelites, and made a Member of their Body; as all her Kindred, it's likely, were: At least, they became Proselytes of the Gate, (as they called those who renounced Idolatry, and worshipped the God of Israel) tho' they were not circumcised. Concerning this Phrase unto this Day, see before iv. 9.

Because she hid the Messengers which Joshua sent to spy out Jericho.] Which proceeded not merely from her Humanity, but was a noble Act of courageous Faith.

Ver. 26. And Joshua adjured them at that time, saying.] He made the Elders and Heads of their several Tribes (I suppose) bind themselves by a solemn Oath, and they took the same Security of all the People; adding a Curse upon themselves and their Posterity, if any of them broke this Oath.

Cursed be the Man before the LORD.] This shews that this Cherem, whereby he adjudged him and his Family to destruction, who should rebuild Jericho, was a Sentence pronounced by the LORD; and not by Joshua without his Order. And so we read expresly in the First Book of the Kings, xvi. ult. See concerning this Cherem, Mr. Selden, Lib. 4. de Jure Nat. & Gent. Cap. 7. P. 505.

That riseth up and buildeth this City Jericho.] Whose Ruins GOD would have remain, as a perpetual Monument of his Power, and of his Severity. So Maimonides, in his More Nevochim, Pars 3. Cap. 50. This Anathema, saith he, was pronounced, that the Miracle of the Subversion of Jericho might be kept in perpetual Memory: For whosoever saw the Walls sunk deep into the Earth, (as he understands it) would clearly discern that this was not the Form of a Building destroyed by Man, but miraculously thrown down by GOD.

He shall lay the Foundation thereof in his Firstborn.] That is, in the Death of his First-born.

And in his youngest Son shall he set up the Gates of it.] The Meaning is, in the Progress of the Work, the rest of his Children should die: And when he had finished it, (which was when he set up its Gates) he should lose the last of them. Which was fulfilled exactly in the Days of Ahab, as we read in the Place beforenamed, 1 Kings xvi. 34. Which, by the way, shews this Book of Joshua to have been older than the Book of the Kings.

We are not to imagine that this Anathema reached any farther, than to the Builder of Jericho and his Family; not to those who should inhabit it, after it was rebuilt. For there was a Company of Prophets, who made no Scruple to settle here in future Times, 2 Kings i. 15. And if it had been built in any other Place, and not on the Ruins of the old City, (tho' they had given it the Name of Jericho) one cannot think he that built it would have fall'n under this Curse. Which either he did not mind, or did not believe, otherwise he would not have ventured to restore this City: Unto which he was tempted by its pleasant Situation, 2 Kings i. 19.

Ver. 27. So the LORD was with Joshua.] Thus GOD made good his Promise to him, i 5, 9. Where the Targum, as I observed, hath it, the WORD of the LORD thy God shall be thy Helper. And so these Words run in that Paraphrase, and the WORD of the LORD helped Joshua: That Divine Person who appeared to him, and encouraged him in this Undertaking, Chap. v. 13, 14, &c.

And his Fame was noised throughout all the Country.] There was no Part of the Country, which did not hear of their wonderful Entrance into it over Jordan; and of the miraculous taking of Jericho; and the Execution done there; which made the Name of Joshua famous among them, as a Captain before whom Rivers fled, and the strongest Walls fell down flat.

CHAP. VII.

Verse 1. BUT the Children of Israel.] That is, one among them. Which is an usual Form of Speech in the Holy Scriptures, to ascribe that to many indefinitely, wherein one alone is concerned; because, where Men are united in a Society, they are all to partake in the Good or Evil that every of their Members doth. Instances of which we find in Gen. viii. 4. xix. 29. xxiii. 6. Jugdes xii. 7. Matth. xxvi. 8. See Bochart in his Hierozoicon, P. 1. Lib. 2. Cap. 17. Pag. 212. and a great many more Instances he heaps up, P. 2. Lib. 5. Cap. 3. P. 669.

Committed a Trespass in the accursed Thing.] Offended GOD by purloining to his own Use, some of the Spoils, which were devoted to Destruction, or appropriated to GOD's Treasury, with a Curse upon him that meddled with them.

For Achan the Son of Carmi.] Who is called Achar, in 1 Chron. ii. 7. because he having troubled Israel, (as the Word Achar signifies) Ver. 25. of this Chapter, it is likely, that, in After-times, they turned his Name into Achar instead of Achan.

The Son of Zabdi.] Who is called Zimri, 1 Chron. ii. 6.

The Son of Zerah, of the Tribe of Judah.] For we find Zerah was the Son of Judah, and came with him into Egypt, when he was very young; for we read of no Children he had, Gen. xlvi. 12. And if we suppose him to have begotten Zabdi, when he was Seventy Years old, and allow as many Years before Zabdi begat Charmi, and as many before Charmi begat Achan; we may make Account (with Bonfrerius) that Achan was now about Fifty Years old; an Age wherein many Men begin to be more covetous than they were in their Youth.

Took of the accursed Thing.] What it was, he himself confesseth, Ver. 21.

And the Anger of the LORD was kindled against the Children of Israel.] The Sin of one Member of the Body provoked the Divine Majesty to express his Displeasure against them all, (which they deserved upon other Accounts) that they might be awakened to find out, and to punish him, who had brought them into great Danger.

This Preface is made to this Chapter, to shew whence the ill Success they had at Ai proceeded.

Ver. 2. And Joshua sent Men from Jericho to Ai.] Called Hai in Abraham's Time, Gen. xii. 8. Which Joshua, I suppose, had summoned to surrender, according to the Precept in Deut. xx. 10. but they had refused. It was a City about Three Miles distant from Jericho, as the Jews say in Semoth Rabbah; which Masius takes to signify three Leagues.

Which is beside Beth-aven.] Whether Beth-aven here signify a City or a Wilderness, is uncertain. See xviii. 12.

On the East Side of Beth-el.] A Place which was but one League from Ai, as Masius computes, and lay Westward of it, (Gen. xii. 8.) for the War was carried on from the East, where Jericho was, to the Western Parts of the Country. It was called Beth-aven, in future Times, by way of Reproach, when the Golden Calves were set up in it; which made it not a House of God, (as Beth-el signifies) but an House of Iniquity, i. e. Idolatry, which is the import of Beth-aven. But it is plain from hence, these were two distinct Places.

And spake unto them, saying, Go up and view the Country; and the Men went up and viewed Ai.] How it lay, and how it was fortified, &c. And it seems to have been seated in the Hilly Country; and belonged to the Amorites, Ver. 7.

Ver. 3. And they returned unto Joshua, and said unto him, Let not all the People go up, but let about two or three Thousand Men go up, and smite Ai, &c.] They thought this Number would be sufficient, because, as it follows in the End of the Verse, they were but few; and therefore they would not have all Israel put to the Trouble of marching thither. In which Counsel a good Providence of God interposed; for if the Flight of Three Thousand Men put the Israelites into such a Consternation, (as we read, Ver. 5, 6.) what a Condition would they have been in, if all the People had been put to the Worse? as they would have been, if they had attacked Ai, while this Guilt remained among them.

Ver. 4. So there went up thither of the People about three Thousand Men, and they fled before the Men of Ai.] Who seeing so small a Number, came out and engaged the Israelites; whose Courage quite failed them, so that they seem not to have struck a Stroke, but immediately run away. For God had left them; to whom they owed all their Valour and Victories.

Ver. 5. And the Men of Ai smote of them about Thirty and Six Men.] Of the hindermost of them, it is most likely, who could not run away so fast as the rest.

For they chased them from before the Gate.] Of the City Ai.

Unto Shebarim.] A Place, I suppose, between Ai and Jericho; which the Targum thinks had its Name from the Rout of the Israelites there.

And smote them in the going down.] Till they came to the Plains of Jericho. For Ai standing on a Hill, there was a Descent from thence thither.

Wherefore the Hearts of the People melted.] As Wax doth before the Fire, (Psalm lxviii. 2.) or as Ice before the Sun.

And became Water.] Weak and wavering, in uncertain Resolutions; not knowing what to do.

Ver. 6. And Joshua rent his Cloaths.] As the Manner was when they were full of Grief, upon Occasion of any great Calamity, or the Commission of any great Crime. Which Custom was very ancient, Gen. xxxvii. 34. xliv. 13. and continued in the Times of the Prophets; who make it a Crime that Men did not rend their Clothes, when grievous Sins were committed.

And fell to the Earth upon his Face.] To make his Supplication to God for Mercy.

Before the Ark of the LORD] Not in the Sanctuary, but with his Face towards it. In Imitation of which, the Præcentor in the Jewish Synagogue, at this Day, falls down before the Chest, wherein they keep the Book of the Law, when he takes it out to read; as Buxtorf observes in his Synag. Judaica. And on solemn Fast-Days, as the Misna tells, such Prostrations were usual.

Until the Even-Tide.] Continued all Day in Fasting and Prayer to God.

He and the Elders of Israel.] Who rent their Cloaths, I suppose, as he had done; and then presented themselves, in this mournful Manner, before God, to implore his Mercy.

And put Dust upon their Heads.] This was still an higher Expression of great Grief, and of a deep Sense of their Unworthiness to be relieved. Which was very usual in this Nation, (1 Sam. iv. 12. 2 Sam. i. 2. &c.) and was imitated by the Gentiles; as we see in the Example of the Ninevites, Jonah iii. 6. and of Achilles, who bewailed the Death of Patroclus, by throwing Dust on his Head, and lying down in the Dust, as Homer describes it in Iliad, Σ. Ver. 23, 24.

Ver.

Ver. 7. And Joſhua ſaid, Alas, O LORD God.] A Form of Speech dolefully bewailing their forlorn Condition: Which did not misbecome ſo great a Captain as Joſhua was; for the moſt generous Spirits have the moſt tender Senſe of Humanity, as Arius Montanus excellently diſcourſes upon this Place.

Wherefore haſt thou at all brought this People over Jordan, to deliver us into the Hands of the Amorites to deſtroy us?] This is not a ſinful Expoſtulation with God (for Joſhua is not reprehended for it, but graciouſly inſtructed) but only a Confeſſion of his Ignorance, why God ſhould do ſuch Wonders for them as he had done, and now let them fall into the Hands of thoſe Enemies, whom they had conquered on the other ſide of Jordan. And it is, as if he had ſaid, I am confounded in my Thoughts, being unable to underſtand why, &c. and conſequently he humbly deſired to be informed in the Reaſon of this Change of his Providence.

Would to God we had been content, and dwelt on the other ſide Jordan.] As far as he could apprehend, they had better have reſted ſatisfied with what they had in Poſſeſſion, than be thus defeated in their Attempt to acquire more.

Ver. 8. O LORD what ſhall I ſay.] What Courſe ſhall I take? Or, how ſhall I anſwer the Reproaches of our inſulting Enemies?

When Iſrael turneth their Backs before their Enemies?] What Hope is there of conquering them, or preſerving ourſelves?

Ver. 9. For the Canaanites and all the Inhabitants of the Land will hear of it.] They that are at the greateſt Diſtance, by the Sea-ſide, will hear the Report of our Defeat; which will ſoon be ſpread over the whole Country.

And ſhall inviron us round about.] Be encouraged thereby to gather all their Forces together, and ſurround us.

And cut off our Name from the Earth.] Utterly deſtroy us.

And what wilt thou do unto thy great Name?] And, which was worſe, God would loſe the Glory of all the Miracles he had wrought, and be thought unable to accompliſh what he had begun to do for his People. This Argument Moſes had formerly preſſed, Exod. xxxii. 12. Numb. xiv. 16. Deut. ix. 28. and God himſelf, in the Song which he bad Moſes teach the People, makes uſe of it, Deut. xxxii. 26, 27.

Ver. 10. And the LORD ſaid unto Joſhua, Get thee up; why lieſt thou thus upon thy Face?] Theſe Words are not a Reproof, but a gracious Anſwer to his Prayers; for when a Perſon who ſupplicates a Prince is commanded to riſe up from his Knees, it is a Token of Acceptance.

Ver. 11. Iſrael hath ſinned.] See ver. 1.

And they have alſo tranſgreſſed my Covenant which I commanded them.] They had promiſed Obedience to all God's Commands, Exod. xxiv. 7. and aſſured Joſhua they would do whatſoever he bad them, i. 16, 17, 18. And this was a late Command delivered by him from God, that they ſhould not meddle with any thing devoted to God, with a ſolemn Curſe.

For they have even taken of the accurſed thing.] That which belongs to me, ver. 1.

And have alſo ſtolen, and diſſembled alſo.] Not only purloined that which God reſerved to himſelf; but denied it after the Fact was done. For I ſuppoſe Joſhua, after the Deſtruction of Jericho, had made Enquiry, whether the Silver and Gold, &c. were brought into the Treaſury, and whether they had deſtroyed all other things, as God commanded; and they all anſwered, that they had.

And they have put it even amongſt their own Stuff.] To conceal it from diſcovery: Or, it is an Expreſſion of his impudent Tranſgreſſion of God's Command, in converting it immediately to his own private Uſe. For in this Verſe the Crime is aggravated in a gradual manner, in that Achan had not only ſinned, but againſt the Covenant they had ſolemnly made with him; and that in a Matter of great Importance, in which he had lately laid his Injunctions upon them; having not only taken to himſelf what belonged to God, but done it by way of Stealth, as if he could not ſee it; and likewiſe denied the doing of it; and perſiſting in the Sin, by mixing what he had ſtolen with his own proper Goods.

Ver. 12. Therefore the Children of Iſrael could not ſtand before their Enemies, but turned their Backs before their Enemies, becauſe they were accurſed.] By having a Man among them, who was fallen under the Curſe of God.

Neither will I be with you any more, except you deſtroy the Accurſed from among you.] Theſe Words ſhew that only one Man among them was accurſed, tho' they all ſuffered for it; and were to continue to ſuffer, till he was deſtroyed. For now that they knew there had been ſuch a crime committed among them, they had been as guilty as Achan, if they had not puniſhed it.

Ver. 13. Up.] He was not ſtill lying on the Ground, for God had bid him riſe before, and he, I ſuppoſe, had obeyed him: But this is a Word whereby he quickens him to make all the Speed he could, to do as he now directed him.

Sanctify the People.] Call upon them to ſanctify themſelves; as it here follows.

And ſay unto them, Sanctify yourſelves.] As they did when they were to meet the LORD at Mount Sinai, Exod. xix. 10, &c. and as they were lately commanded to do, when he led them over Jordan, iii. 5. For now they were to appear before his Majeſty, that an Inquiſition might be made who he was that had been guilty of this foul Crime.

To-morrow.] For he would not have the Guilt remain any longer upon them.

For thus ſaith the LORD God of Iſrael, There is an accurſed thing in the midſt of thee, O Iſrael.] He ſpeaks in this Style, both to awaken them to ſanctify themſelves; and alſo to appear before the LORD next Morning.

Thou canſt not ſtand before thine Enemies, untill ye take away the accurſed thing from among you.] Both the Perſon that had violated the Anathema; and the Thing he had purloined.

Ver. 14. In the Morning therefore ye ſhall be brought.] Before the LORD.

According

According to your Tribes.] Some principal Persons of every Tribe, representing the rest, were set before the LORD.

And it shall be, that the Tribe which the LORD taketh, shall come according to the Families thereof; and the Family which the LORD shall take, shall come by Households; and the Household which the LORD shall take, shall come Man by Man.] There is no Difficulty in these Words, but only to understand how this Inquisition was made, and the Author of the Fact discovered: Which is not here expressed, there being no Words to signify how the LORD took one Tribe, and Family, and Household, and Person, from the rest. The Jews (who are never at a Loss in these Matters) tell us, that when they stood before the Sanctuary, the High-Priest was in it with the Urim and Thummim; wherein were twelve Stone's, with the Names of the Children of Israel engraven in them. And when that Tribe, suppose, to which the guilty Person belonged, was called, that Stone in which was the Name of that Tribe, changed Colour; and so it did when the Family, and the Household, and the Person were called. But this is a mere Fancy of the Stones shining, or becoming duskish; by which, I have shewn elsewhere, Answers could not be given to Enquiries by Urim and Thummim. And what others of them say, is not much better: For instance, Kimchi, who tells us some are of Opinion, that they being made to pass before the Ark, the Guilty could not stir a Foot. See several other Conceits in Buxtorf's Historia Urim & Thummim, p. 304, &c.

But the plainest Account of this Matter is this, that they were discovered by casting of Lots, in the Presence of God; which was an usual Way in After-Times of discovering noxious Persons, 1 Sam. xiv. 41, 42. Jonah i. 7. So Josephus, L. 5. Cap. 1. and Ralbag.

Ver. 15. And it shall be, that he that is taken with the accursed thing, shall be burnt with Fire.] After they had stoned him to Death with Stones, ver. 25.

He and all that he hath.] His Children, and his Cattle; his Tent, and all his Goods; as it is explained ver. 24.

Because he hath transgressed the Covenant of the LORD.] Ver. 11.

And because he hath wrought Folly in Israel.] Committed a very heinous Sin.

Ver. 16. So Joshua rose up early in the Morning.] It is probable he acquainted no body with these Orders; but made all the haste he could to put them in Execution: For if they had been known abroad, Achan's Guilt might have made him flee from so terrible a Sentence.

And brought Israel by their Tribes; and the Tribe of Judah was taken.] Who, if we may believe the Jews, immediately stood to their Arms, and would not lay them down, till they saw the Man apprehended and punished who had done this thing.

Ver. 17. And he brought the Family of Judah, &c.] Every Family of that Tribe, till that of the Zarhites was taken.

And he brought the Family of the Zarhites Man by Man.] That is, every Head of their several Households, as he was directed, ver. 14.

And Zabdi was taken.] That is, the Lot fell upon his Household.

Ver. 18. And he brought his Household Man by Man, and Achan the Son of Carmi, the Son of Zabdi, the Son of Cerah, of the Tribe of Judah, was taken.] Here the Samaritan Chronicle tells the very same Story with the Talmudists, that the Stone in the Breast-plate of the High-Priest, in which was engraven the Name of Judah, was darkned when Achan was named. See Hottinger's Smegma Orientale, Cap. 8. p. 505.

Ver. 19. And Joshua said unto Achan, My Son.] All great Minds are full of Tenderness and Compassion; and nothing more unbecomes a Prince, than violent Passion: Which Joshua was so far from expressing on this Occasion, that he speaks to him with the greatest Mildness imaginable.

Give, I pray thee, Glory to the LORD God of Israel.] The Samaritan Chronicle before named, paraphrases this not amiss; Lift up thine Eyes to the King of Heaven and Earth, and acknowledge that nothing can be hid from him; who knows the greatest Secrets.

And make Confession unto him, and tell me now what thou hast done.] Openly confess thy Guilt; and relate to me what it is, that thou hast converted to thine own Use.

Hide it not from me.] Who thou seest have God at hand, to discover that which none of us know but thyself.

Ver. 20. And Achan answered Joshua, and said, Indeed I have sinned against the LORD God of Israel.] Which the Samaritan Chronicle thus expresses; I acknowledge that I have grievously sinned before God, who knows all secret and hidden Things: For I have prevaricated against the Covenant of God, and against his Embassador.

And thus and thus have I done.] Committed this Sin, with such Circumstances, as here follow.

Ver. 21. When I saw among the Spoils.] He doth not say in what Place: but the forenamed Chronicle saith, it was as he entered into one of their Temples.

A goodly Babylonish Garment.] There are a great many Opinions about this Garment; which Bochart most probably judges to have been a Various Garment, as the LXX translate it; that is, of divers Colours, wherein were several Figures either woven or wrought with a Needle; for which sort of Work Babylon was famous, insomuch that they were called Painted Garments; which made a most glorious Shew, and therefore was very inviting to the Eye of Achan: Who was tempted by its Lustre, to reserve one of these Garments for his own Use, or to sell; for they were of an immense Price. See him in his Phaleg, Lib. 1. Cap. 6. where he hath a long Dissertation about this Garment.

And two hundred Shekels of Silver.] Which is as much as an hundred German Dollars, as Marsius observes.

And a wedge of God.] In the Hebrew a Tongue for it had that Shape.

Of Fifty Shekels Weight.] This may be understood two ways; either that it was worth so many Shekels in Value, that is, Fifty Dollars; or, that it weighed as much as Fifty Shekels, that is, three hundred Dollars. The laſt Senſe Maſius thinks moſt probable.

Then I coveted and took them.] To his own Uſe; when he ſhould have brought them into God's Treaſury, James i. 15.

And behold they are hid in the Earth in the midſt of my Tent.] Till he could have Time to diſpoſe of them to his beſt Advantage.

And the Silver under it.] The Silver was immediately under the Babyloniſh Garment, and the Gold under that: For both Silver and Gold are here meant, tho' one only mentioned.

Ver. 22. Then Joſhua ſent Meſſengers, and they ran to the Tent.] Leſt any one ſhould remove them, and render the Fact dubious; and that the Children of Iſrael might be ſpeedily expiated.

And behold it was hid in his Tent, and the Silver under it.] They found the Babyloniſh Garment (as was ſaid before) hid in the Earth, and the Silver and Gold under it. The LXX indeed underſtand it, as if the Gold and Babyloniſh Garment were uppermoſt, and the Silver under them: For ſo they tranſlate theſe Words both here and in the foregoing Verſe, τὸ ἀργύριον ὑποκάτω αὐτῶν, the Silver under them. The Wedge of Gold perhaps was wrapt in the Babyloniſh Garment; and ſo the Silver might be ſaid to lie, either under it, or under them.

Ver. 23. And they took them out of the midſt of the Tent.] Where he told them he had buried theſe things.

And brought them unto Joſhua, and unto all the Children of Iſrael.] For they were all aſſembled at the Tabernacle, waiting to ſee the Iſſue of this Matter.

And laid them before the LORD.] That the Fact might be manifeſt, and the LORD acknowledged to be omniſcient.

Ver. 24. And Joſhua and all Iſrael with him.] By an univerſal Conſent.

Took Achan the Son of Zerah.] He was Zerah's Great Grandchild.

And the Silver, and the Garment, and the Wedge of Gold.] Which God would not have put into his Treaſury, after they had been thus perverted to a private Uſe.

And his Sons, and his Daughters.] This ſeems very hard, that they ſhould be executed in ſuch a terrible manner, as here follows, for their Father's Fault. But the Jews in Pirke Elieſer ſay, they were puniſhed, becauſe they were privy to their Father's Stealth, and concealed it. Others think this was a neceſſary Severity in the Beginning of a new Empire, and of a plentiful Fortune, upon which they now entered; that they might not wantonly abuſe it. But there are thoſe, who think this is but a ſeeming Difficulty; Achan alone being ſtoned (as we read in the next Verſe, all Iſrael ſtoned him with Stones) and his Children brought forth to be Spectators of it. And when it is ſaid, in the Concluſion of the next Verſe, they ſtoned them with Stones, it relates to his Oxen, and Aſſes, and Sheep, which were ſtoned with him. See Guil. Vorſtius, in his Annotations on Pirke Elieſer, p. 224.

And his Oxen, and his Aſſes, and his Sheep, and his Tent, and all that he had.] This was done, to repreſent to the People the Heinouſneſs of this Offence; and to ſtrike ſuch a Terror into them, that they ſhould not dare to commit the like.

And they brought them unto the Valley of Achor.] Which had its Name from him, ver. 26. See there.

Ver. 25. And Joſhua ſaid.] He was the ſole Judge, as the Jews think, in this Matter. And whereas, by the Law, none might be condemned out of the Mouth of one Witneſs, nor was any Judge to ſit alone, without Aſſiſtants, (according to their Doctors) nor any Man's Teſtimony to be admitted againſt himſelf, (becauſe in a mad Fit, he might undo himſelf) yet their King had this ſingular Prerogative, that he might try a Man alone by himſelf, and condemn him out of the Mouth of one Witneſs, nay, from his own Confeſſion; as Joſhua did here (who was their King or ſupreme Governor) in Achan's Caſe; and as David did afterward in the Caſe of the Amalekite, 2 Sam. i. 15. See G. Schickard, in his Jus Regium, Cap. 4. Theor. 14. But Joſhua is impertinently alledged as a Proof of this extraordinary Power; for it was God who convicted Achan, and pronounced this Sentence; which Joſhua only put in Execution.

Why haſt thou troubled us? the LORD ſhall trouble thee this Day.] The Doctors in the Hieruſalem Talmud, in the Treatiſe Sanhedrim, Cap. 6. fancy there is a peculiar Emphaſis in theſe Words, this Day. As if he had ſaid, In this Day thou ſhalt be troubled, but thou ſhalt not be troubled in the World to come. For they think that he having given Glory to God by confeſſing his Sin, had all his Puniſhment here.

All agree Joſhua alludes to his Name; the Word Achar, ſignifying to trouble or diſturb. Or rather, his Name was changed from Achan unto Achar, becauſe of this Diſturbance which he gave to all Iſrael.

And all Iſrael ſtoned him with Stones] Which was a Puniſhment of great Crimes, as I have obſerved elſewhere. See Lev. xx. 9, 11, 12, 13, &c. as I remember. This is ſaid to be done by all Iſrael; becauſe they were all preſent, and conſenting to it.

And burnt them with Fire, after they had ſtoned them with Stones.] Burnt their dead Carcaſſes. Why they were both ſtoned, and alſo burnt, Elieſer in his Pirke, and Vorſtius upon him, gives a Reaſon in the Place above-named.

Ver. 26. And they raiſed over him a great Heap of Stones unto this Day.] As a Monument of his Sin, and of God's Judgment upon him. Thus they did with Abſalom, 2 Sam. xviii. 17. And Houſes or Cities which were deſtroyed, are ſaid to be turned into an Heap, Iſa. xxv. 2. or Heaps, Jerem. ix. 11. as a Token of their utter Ruin.

And the LORD turned from the Fierceneſs of his Anger.] Was reconciled to his People, after they had executed his Sentence againſt him, that provoked his Anger. So the Samaritan Chronicle. Thus the Anger of God was removed from the Children of Iſrael, and he was pleaſed with what they had done. See Deut. xiii. 17.

Wherefore the Name of that Place.] Where he was ſtoned and burnt.

Was called the Valley of Achor unto this Day.] From that Time all the People called this Place by that Name, in Memory of this Execution done upon Achar: So he was alſo called ever after this. For tho' his Name was Achan, yet from henceforward they called him Achar, the Troubler of Iſrael. And ſo he is here called in the Syriack Verſion, and by Joſephus, Athanaſius, Baſil, and others mentioned by Bochartus; as Ezra himſelf alſo calls him, 1 Chron. ii. 7. See Hierozoicon, P. 1. Lib. 2. Cap. 31. in the latter End.

CHAP. VIII.

Ver. 1. AND the LORD ſaid unto Joſhua.] Who, it is likely, now conſulted GOD about their Progreſs in this War: Which he had not done before (vii. 2.) being ſufficiently authorized by what GOD had often ſaid to him, and by their Succeſs againſt Jericho: But this late Defeat before Ai, might make him think it neceſſary to take Advice of the Divine Majeſty, before he attempted any thing farther.

Fear not, neither be diſmayed.] Becauſe of the late ill Succeſs; of which he now knew the Cauſe; which was removed.

Take all the People of War with thee.] This Order may ſeem ſtrange, ſince the People themſelves thought two or three thouſand were ſufficient, if GOD were with them. But GOD would have them all to ſhare in the Spoil of Ai; that they who had obeyed him in abſtaining from laying their Hands on any thing in Jericho, might be now rewarded for it, by the Prey of this City; as it follows in the next Verſe.

And ariſe, go up to Ai.] Which, it appears by this, was in the Hill Country.

I have given into thy Hand the King of Ai, and his People, and his City, and his Land.] He bids him be confident of a complete Victory, as if he had already won it.

Ver. 2. And thou ſhalt do to Ai and her King, as thou didſt to Jericho and her King.] Only with ſuch a Difference, as follows in the next Words.

Only the Spoil thereof, and the Cattle thereof, ſhall ye take for a Prey unto yourſelves.] None of the Silver or Gold, or any thing elſe, was ſeparated to GOD's Uſe, nor ordered to be deſtroyed; but they were to enjoy it all entirely themſelves.

Lay thee an Ambuſh for the City behind it.] On the Weſt of it; for they were now in Gilgal, which lay Eaſtward.

Ver. 3. So Joſhua aroſe, and all the People of War, to go up againſt Ai.] In Obedience to the Divine Direction, Ver. 1.

And Joſhua choſe out thirty thouſand mighty Men of Valour, and ſent them away by Night.] When they were leſs liable to be obſerved.

Ver. 4. And he commanded them, ſaying, Behold ye ſhall lie in wait againſt the City, even behind the City.] Like a great General, he aſſigns their Poſt to every Part of the Army.

Go not very far from the City.] Lie as cloſe to it as you can, without being diſcovered.

But be ye all ready.] To ſeize upon the City, when all the People were drawn out of it.

Ver. 5. And I, and all the People that are with me, will approach unto the City.] As if they intended to aſſault it.

And it ſhall come to paſs, when they come out againſt us, as at the firſt.] Which he rationally preſumed they would, being fluſh'd with ſuch good Succeſs.

That we will flee before them.] Counterfeit a Flight, as ſoon as they appeared.

Ver. 6. For they will come out after us, till we have drawn them from the City.] Purſue them, with all their Force.

For they will ſay, They flee before us as at the firſt; therefore we will flee before them.] He gives the Reaſon of their Flight, without ſtriking of a Stroke (as we now ſpeak) that all the People might be enticed out of the City, in Purſuit of them, as he concluded they would be; becauſe now there was a greater Number of the Iſraelites than before; which would require their whole Power to deal withal.

Ver. 7. Then ye ſhall riſe up from the Ambuſh, and ſeize upon the City.] Upon the Signal given, mentioned Ver. 18.

For the LORD your God will deliver it into your Hand.] He would not have them fear to enter the City; which he aſſured them GOD would put into their Poſſeſſion.

Ver. 8. And it ſhall be, when ye have taken the City, that ye ſhall ſet the City on Fire.] The Gate where they entered, or ſome of the Skirts of the City; as a Token they were poſſeſſed of it. For they were to take the Spoil of the City before they burnt it, ver. 28.

According to the Commandment of the LORD ſhall ye do.] And not tranſgreſs, as Achan did.

See, I have commanded you.] Acquainted them with the Will of GOD; in the Obſervance of which, they might be confident of Succeſs.

Ver. 9. Joſhua therefore ſent them forth, and they went to lie in Ambuſh.] He ſelected theſe thirty thouſand Men out of the reſt of the Army; and when it was dark, they went upon the fore-named Deſign.

And Joſhua lodged that Night among the People.] The fore-named Detachment (as we now ſpeak) was commanded by ſome great Officer, in whom Joſhua confided; but he himſelf lay all Night in the Body of the Army; that he might be ready in the Morning to give the neceſſary Orders.

Ver. 10. And Joſhua roſe up early in the Morning, and numbered the People.] He firſt gave Orders to the Officers (for he could not do it himſelf alone) to ſee that none of the People were wanting.

And went up, he and the Elders of Iſrael, before the People, to Ai.] And when he commanded them to march, he was attended by the Elders of Iſrael, leading them on towards Ai. But it is uncertain who are here meant by the Elders of Iſrael. Some think, the chief Commanders in the Army; but they are never called Elders, much leſs the Elders of Iſrael. But the Rulers and Judges are called by this Name, who, I ſuppoſe, waited upon Joſhua as a Council of War; being Men authorized by GOD to aſſiſt the ſupreme Governor, Numb. xi. 16, 24, 25.

Ver. 11. And all the People, even the People of War that were with him, went up and drew nigh, and came before the City.] The Diſtance between Gilgal and Ai being but three Leagues, it is likely, the People being muſtered early in the Morning, they got thither before Noon. Thoſe Words, even the Men of War that were with him, ſeem to be oppoſed to the thirty thouſand, whom he had ſent before to lie in Ambuſh, Ver. 3.

And pitched on the North Side of Ai.] Here the main Body of the Army lay, behind the Hills, it's likely, ſo that they were not diſcovered till the Evening, or the next Day.

Now there was a Valley between them and Ai.] Where they of Ai, I ſuppoſe, drew up; when they reſolved to engage them.

Ver. 12. And took about five thouſand, and ſet them to lie in Ambuſh between Bethel and Ai.] Which Places were but a League diſtant one from the other. See vii. 2.

On the Weſt Side of the City.] Where the former Detachment was ordered to lie, Ver. 4. But theſe ſeem to have been a diſtinct Party from them, and ſent, it's likely, for another Purpoſe; to intercept all thoſe that might think to ſave themſelves, by flying thro' By-ways, which they were to guard. There are thoſe indeed who think that there were but thirty thouſand Men in all employed in this Expedition againſt Ai; and that out of them theſe five thouſand Men were ſent to lie in Ambuſh, that they might, in convenient Time, ſet Fire to the City. See Maſius. But this is ſo directly contrary to GOD's Command, to take all the People of War with him, Ver. 1. and to what is ſaid, Ver. 3, 11. that I cannot think it to be true. One had better ſay, this Party was added to ſtrengthen the thirty thouſand Men in their Undertaking.

Ver. 13. And when they had ſet the People, even all the Hoſt that was on the North of the City, and their Liers-in-wait, on the Weſt of the City.] That is, when Things were thus diſpoſed about the Evening.

Joſhua went that Night into the midſt of the Valley.] To pray to GOD, it is likely, for a Bleſſing upon their Enterprize.

Ver. 14. And it came to paſs, when the King of Ai ſaw it.] That is, was informed of their inveſting the City on the North Side of it; which it is likely was in the Evening, or late that Night.

That they haſted.] He called a Council, and they ſpeedily reſolved to diſlodge the Iſraelites.

And roſe up early, and the Men of the City went out againſt Iſrael to Battle, he and all his People.] The Meaning is, all that could fight went out, and their King at the Head of them.

At a Time appointed.] They had agreed all to iſſue out at ſeveral Gates (it is likely) at a certain Hour.

Before the Plain.] He means, perhaps, the Valley which lay between Ai and the Camp of Iſrael; before which they drew up their Army to engage the Iſraelites.

But he wiſt not that there were Liers in-Ambuſh againſt him behind the City.] The King had no Intelligence of that ſtrong Party, which Joſhua had ſent to lie behind the City; they keeping, I ſuppoſe, their Gates ſhut (as they did at Jericho, that none could get in or go out, vi. 1.) and ſuſpecting no Danger from the Weſtern Coaſt, where they lay, but only from the Eaſt, whence they knew the Iſraelites were to march.

Ver. 15. And Joſhua, and all Iſrael, made as if they were beaten before them.] At the firſt Onſet, Joſhua himſelf turned his Back, and all the reſt of his Army; as if they durſt not ſtand before them.

And fled by the Way of the Wilderneſs.] Which lay between Jericho and Ai.

Ver. 16. And all the People that were in Ai.] Who were able to fight.

Were called together to purſue them.] I ſuppoſe ſome of the Men of War might be left in the City till they ſaw the Iſraelites fly, and then they were all called out, (as Ver. 14.) is to be underſtood) together with thoſe of Beth-el, who were come to their Aſſiſtance; being near Neighbours, and both under the ſame King.

And they purſued after Joſhua, and were drawn away from the City.] They were ſo eager in their Purſuit, that they were drawn to a greater Diſtance from Ai, than they would have been, if they had conſidered the Danger of leaving it naked.

Ver. 17. And there was not a Man left in Ai.] None that were able to fight.

Or Beth-el, that went not out after Iſrael.] For they of Beth-el, it appears by theſe Words, were come to the Aſſiſtance of Ai, before any of the Army of Iſrael arrived: For afterwards they could not, becauſe the Ambuſh lay between Beth-el and Ai, Ver. 9.

And they left the City open, and purſued after Iſrael.] There was not ſo much as a Man left to guard the Gates; but all were engaged in the Purſuit.

Ver. 18. And the LORD ſaid unto Joſhua.] GOD ſecretly ſuggeſted to him, that now was the Time for the Ambuſh to fall upon the City; when the Army was drawn ſo far from it that they could not return ſoon enough to relieve it.

Stretch out the Spear that is in thy Hand, towards Ai.] He bids him face about (as we now ſpeak) and ſtop the Flight of the Iſraelites. It is much diſputed what the Hebrew Word Chidon ſignifies; which the Vulgar Latin tranſlates a Shield. But Bochartus hath taken a great deal of Pains to ſhew, that it every where ſignifies in Scripture a Spear (as we tranſlate it) or a Lance, or ſome kind of ſuch-like offenſive Weapon; eſpecially in this Place, he thinks, there can be no Doubt of it: For it was a Weapon he had in his Hand, and was to ſtretch forth towards the City; that it might be a Signal to thoſe in Ambuſh to riſe and enter the City; and to thoſe who fled, to make a Stand, and encounter the Enemy. To which purpoſe, nothing could be more proper than a Spear, with a Flag, it is highly probable, at the End of it, (like to our Enſigns) which made it more viſible. See Hierozoicon, P. 1. Lib. 2. Cap. 8. P. 135, &c. The LXX. here tranſlate it γαῖσον, which Suidas ſays ſignifies a kind of Weapon, οἷον δόρατος, like to a Spear. See the ſame moſt learned Author, in his Canaan, Lib. 1. Cap. 42. P. 744.

For I will give it into thy Hand.] As he promiſed, Ver. 1.

And Joſhua ſtretched out the Spear that he had in his Hand toward the City.] That all Iſrael might ſee it; as they did the Rod of Moſes, when they fought againſt Amalek.

Ver. 19. And the Ambuſh roſe quickly out of their Place.] Being admoniſhed by ſome Divine Suggeſtion (as Maſius thinks) as well as by the Signal, that now was the Time to execute their Deſign.

And they came as ſoon as he had ſtretched out his Hand.] Which they might ſee from ſome of the Hills, at the Back of which they lay. But why they ſhould watch for this Sign, or underſtand what it meant, unleſs Joſhua had received this Order, and told it them before they went, cannot be conceived.

And they entered into the City, and took it.] For there was no body to oppoſe them.

And haſted and ſet the City on Fire.] In one Place; which it is likely was on the North Side of the City; that both the Iſraelites and the People of Ai might ſee the Smoak. This the LORD had ſtrictly commanded, (ſee Ver. 8.) which made them make ſuch haſte, as ſoon as they had poſſeſſed themſelves of the City, to ſet fire to it.

Ver. 20. And when the Men of Ai looked behind them.] I ſuppoſe there was a great Shout made by all the Iſraelites, when they ſaw the Smoak aſcend; which made the Men of Ai look about them.

They ſaw, and behold the Smoak of the City aſcended up to Heaven.] The firing of any Out-Houſes, or Barns, was ſufficient to make ſuch a Smoak; for it is certain the City was not yet burnt. See Ver. 28.

And they had no Power to flee this Way or that Way.] Either they were ſo diſmayed, that they ſtood ſtock-ſtill (as we ſpeak) or found themſelves ſo environed, that they could no way eſcape. For on the North and Eaſt Sides, the great Army came upon them; and on the Weſt the Ambuſh iſſued forth againſt them; and the other five thouſand Men block'd up their Way on the South: Which could not but very much amaze and perplex their Minds; and the more, to ſee all their vain-glorious Hopes vaniſhed, which their King no doubt had entertained, of ſtopping the Progreſs of the Iſraelites, and being the Deliverer of his Country.

And the People that fled to the Wilderneſs turned back upon the Purſuers.] Ver. 15. They counterfeited a Flight no longer, but now boldly look'd their Enemies in the Face.

Ver. 21. And when Joſhua and all Iſrael ſaw.] By this it is plain, the whole Body of the Men of War were here; and not only three thouſand of them, as ſome ſuppoſe. See Ver. 12.

That the Ambuſh had taken the City, and that the Smoak of the City aſcended.] Whereby they underſtood it was taken.

Then they turned again, and ſlew the Men of Ai.] After they had made a Stand a while, and rallied, they fell upon the Men of Ai, and made a great Slaughter of them.

Ver. 22. And the other iſſued out of the City againſt them, ſo they were in the midſt of Iſrael, ſome on this ſide and ſome on that ſide; and they ſmote them, ſo that they let none of them remain, or eſcape.] By this Stratagem, they were all entirely cut off.

Ver. 23. And the King of Ai they took alive, and brought him to Joſhua.] Perhaps they were ordered ſo to do; that he might be made a publick Spectacle of the Divine Vengeance.

Ver. 24. And it came to paſs, when Iſrael had made an end of ſlaying all the Inhabitants of Ai.] That is, the Men of War.

In the Field, in the Wilderneſs wherein they chaſed them.] By this it appears, that they fled before the Iſraelites, as ſoon as they turned upon them; having no Heart to fight them, Ver. 20.

And when they were all fallen by the Edge of the Sword, until they were conſumed.] This is repeated to expreſs a complete Victory.

That all the Iſraelites returned unto Ai.] From whence they counterfeited a Flight.

And ſmote it with the Edge of the Sword.] All the People that were left in it; as every one was, that was not able to go to War.

Ver. 25.] And ſo it was, that all that fell that Day, both of Men and Women, were twelve thouſand.] By which it appears, this was no great City; and that they who were ſent to view the Country, had Reaſon to think a ſmall Party ſufficient to ſubdue it, vii. 2, 3. For the Men of Beth-el ſeem to be included alſo in this Number; being mixed with thoſe of Ai; from whom the Iſraelites could not diſtinguiſh them.

Even all the Men of Ai.] The Inhabitants of the City (as it follows in the next Verſe) and the Territory about it, great and ſmall, Men and Women.

Ver. 26. And Joſhua drew not his Hand back, wherewith he ſtretched out the Spear, until he had utterly deſtroyed all the Inhabitants of Ai.] But kept his Arm extended, with the Spear in it; as Moſes his Rod was lifted up during the Fight with Amalek. Or, the Meaning may be, that he himſelf charged them, and continued to fight, as long as there was a Man left.

Ver. 27. Only the Cattle and the Spoil of the City.] i.e. Their Silver and Gold, and Houſhold-ſtuff, &c.

Iſrael took for a Prey unto themſelves, according unto the Word of the LORD, &c.] Who was ſo far from reſerving any of theſe Things to himſelf that he made an expreſs Grant of them to the Iſraelites, Ver. 2.

Ver. 28. And Joſhua burnt Ai.] After they had gotten all the Spoil of it; which had been loſt, if it had been burnt before by the Liers-in-Ambuſh. See Ver. 8, 19.

And

And make it an Heap, even a Deſolation, unto this Day.] Laid it waſte; ſo that it was known only by its Ruins for a long time after; as it was at the time when this was written. See Ver. 11, 26.

Ver. 29. And the King of Ai he hanged on a Tree.] Being the Head of a very wicked People, who was fit to be made a publick Spectacle of GOD's Diſpleaſure. Lipſius, in his Book de Cruce, Lib. 1. Cap. 11. produces this as an ancient Inſtance of crucifying notorious Malefactors. But that is a great Miſtake, Crucifixion being no Jewiſh, but a Roman Puniſhment. Nor were crucified Perſons hanged and ſtrangled, as the King of Ai and Haman were, but faſtened alive to a Croſs, with Nails ſtruck into their Hands and Feet. The LXX. indeed here expound it, he was hanged, ἐπὶ ξύλα διδύμα, wherein they ſeem to have reſpect to the Figure of the Croſs; but there is no ſuch thing in the Hebrew. See Numb. xxv. 4.

Until the Even-tide; and as ſoon as the Sun went down, Joſhua commanded that they ſhould take his Carcaſs down from the Tree.] For ſo GOD had commanded, Deut. xxi. 22, 23. See there.

And caſt it at the entering of the Gate of the City.] Where he was wont to ſit in Judgment; and, in all Probability, had exerciſed a great deal of Injuſtice and Cruelty.

And raiſed thereon a great Heap of Stones, that remaineth unto this Day.] As they did upon Achan, vii. 26. and for the ſame end, to be a Monument of his being hanged near to this Place.

Ver. 30. Then Joſhua built an Altar unto the LORD God of Iſrael in Mount Ebal.] If this Mount lay between Ai and Beth-el (as Gerardus Mercator endeavours to prove by many Arguments) then this Altar, we may well think, was built immediately after the taking of Ai, as ſoon as they came into Poſſeſſion of this Mount: For they look'd upon themſelves, no doubt, as obliged to fulfil the Command of GOD, given them by Moſes, as ſoon as it was poſſible. But the Scripture plainly deſcribes this Mount Ebal, as near Shechem, for there was only a Valley between Ebal and Gerizzim, from whence Jotham ſpake to the Men of Shechem (Judg. ix. 7.) which was a great way diſtant from Ai. And therefore we muſt ſuppoſe that which is here related, not to have been done till they had the Country about Shechem.

Ver. 41. As Moſes, the Servant of the LORD, commanded the Children of Iſrael.] Deut. xi. 29, 30. xxvii. 2, &c. See in thoſe Places.

As it is written in the Book of the Law of Moſes, an Altar of whole Stones, over which no Man hath lift up any Iron.] The Altar was built according to the Direction given by GOD, in a foregoing Law of his, Exod. xx. 25. and repeated in Deut. xxvii. 5, 6. See there.

And they offered thereon Burnt Offerings unto the LORD, and ſacrified Peace Offerings.] For now they renewed their Covenant with GOD the third time, as I obſerved upon that Chapter in Deuteronomy, Ver. 10.

Ver. 32. And he wrote there upon the Stones a Copy of the Law of Moſes, which he wrote in the Preſence of the Children of Iſrael.] It is a great Queſtion what it was he wrote upon theſe Stones. Some fancy all the five Books of Moſes; others, only the Book of Deuteronomy; which is more likely than the other; but too long for theſe Stones to contain, or for him to write, in the Preſence of all Iſrael. Others, therefore, think only the Ten Commandments; or a Compendium of the Law of Moſes; or, parhaps, the Bleſſings and Curſings: But Fortunatus Scacchus, with ſome Probability, conjectures, that he only wrote the Words of the Covenant, by which the Children of Iſrael acknowledged they held the Land of Canaan, of GOD, as their great LORD; upon Condition they obſerved his Laws, to which they and their Poſterity were obliged. And this he principally grounds upon thoſe Words, Deut. xxvii. 3. Thou ſhalt write upon them all the Words of this Law. Where the Hebrew Word Hazoth (This) he thinks hath a particular Reſpect to what he is ſpeaking of; viz. their going over Jordan to poſſeſs the Land which GOD gave them, upon Condition they obſerved his Statutes. See Sacror. Elæochriſm. Myrother. Lib. 2. Cap. 57. P. 570, &c. and my Notes upon Deuteronomy xxvii. 3.

Ver. 33. And all Iſrael, and their Elders, and Officers, and their Judges, ſtood on this ſide of the Ark, and on that ſide.] With their Faces towards the Ark.

Before the Prieſts the Levites, which bare the Ark of the Covenant of the LORD.] Who were to pronounce the Bleſſings and the Curſings preſcribed by the Law. See Deut. xxvii. 24.

As well the Stranger, as he that was born among them.] For the Law made no Diſtinction between them, Levit. xix 34.

Half of them over againſt Mount Gerizzim, and half of them over againſt Mount Ebal, as Moſes the Servant of the LORD had commanded before.] In Deut. xxvii. 12, 13 See there.

That they ſhould bleſs the People of Iſrael.] There were Curſings, as well as Bleſſings pronounced: But the Intent of Curſing was, that they might avoid thoſe Sins againſt which they were denounced; and thereby obtain a Bleſſing.

Ver. 34. And afterwards he read all the Words of the Law, the Bleſſings and the Curſings, according to all that is written in the Book of the Law.] Viz. In Deut. xxvii. Ver. 15, 16, 17. &c. The Word afterward is not to be neglected, which imports, that after the building of the Altar, and the offering Sacrifices thereon, and writing the Law on the Stones, and diſpoſing the People in their Place about the Ark, then he read the Law to them. Which was likely to be heard with the greater Attention, when they were thus prepared to receive it, and had ſolemnly worſhipped GOD, and owned his Authority.

Ver. 35. There was not a Word of all that Moſes commanded, which Joſhua did not read before all the Congregation of Iſrael.] Viz. All that Moſes directed in Deut. xxvii. or, as others will have it, the whole Book of Deuteronomy, wherein theſe Bleſſings and Curſings are contained. See Deut. xxxi. 13.

With the Women, and the little ones, and the Strangers that were converſant among them.] By the Strangers here mentioned (and in Ver. 33.) are to be underſtood ſuch as were Proſelytes to their Religion: And had undertaken to obſerve this Law, as well as themſelves; and therefore were to be made acquainted with it. And that they might be moved to have the greater Regard to it, Joſhua himſelf, their chief Governor, read it to them. So ſome of the Jews underſtand it; after the Prieſts had read the Bleſſings and Curſings, then Joſhua read all the commanding and forbidding Precepts in the Law.

CHAP. IX.

Verſe 1. AND it came to paſs, when all the Kings which were on this Side Jordan, in the Hills, and in the Valleys, and in all the Coaſts of the Great Sea.] By the Great Sea, is meant the Mediterranean; where thoſe People, peculiarly called Canaanites, dwelt, as hath been often obſerved. And the Amorites ſeem to have been the principal Inhabitants of the Hilly Country, in the South of Judæa. See on Deut. i. 7, 19, 20.

Over againſt Lebanon.] The LXX. and the Vulgar underſtand this, as if he ſpake of thoſe that dwelt near Lebanon.

The Hittite, and the Amorite, the Canaanite, the Perizzite, the Hivite, and the Jebuſite.] Thus they are reckoned up in Deut. xx. 17. where the Gergaſites are omitted, as they are here. See an Account of it in my Notes upon that Place: And on Chap. xvi. of this Book, Ver. 10.

Head thereof.] Of the taking of Jericho and Ai: For what is ſaid, in the Words immediately foregoing, concerning the Iſraelites meeting at Mount Ebal, is not inſerted as a Thing wherein theſe Nations were concerned.

Ver. 2. That they gathered themſelves together to fight with Joſhua, and with Iſrael.] They entered into a Confederacy to oppoſe Joſhua's farther Progreſs in the Conqueſt of their Country. But they did not gather themſelves to Battle, till they heard what Gibeon had done.

With one Accord.] The whole Country were unanimous in that Reſolution: And thereupon rejected the Summons which Joſhua had ſent them to ſurrender themſelves and their Cities to him.

Ver. 3. And when the Inhabitants of Gibeon.] Or, But when, &c. Gibeon was a City in the mountainous Country; for we read afterward of an high Place at Gibeon.

Heard what Joſhua had done to Jericho and to Ai.] They being Hivites, (Ver. 7.) had at the firſt rejected the Offers of Peace which Joſhua ſent them, as the reſt of their Nation, (Ver. 1.) had done. But hearing that Joſhua had taken Jericho and Ai, and deſtroyed all their Inhabitants, they repented of that Reſolution; and conſulted how they might, by ſome Means or other, make their Peace with the Iſraelites.

Ver. 4. And they did work wilily.] It being too late to ſurrender their City to Joſhua upon ſuch Terms, as he is ſuppoſed to have offered, (for there was no Mercy to be ſhewn them, after they had ſtood out againſt the three Proclamations, which the Jews ſay were made to them) they contrived how to put a Fallacy upon the Iſraelites, and by Craft and Cunning procure their Favour. See my Annotations on Deut. xx. 10, 11.

And went.] They choſe ſome from among them, who went in the Name of the reſt, towards the Camp of Iſrael.

And made as if they had been Embaſſadors.] Pretending that they were ſent upon an Embaſſy to them, from a far Country; as they affirmed, Ver. 6.

And took old Sacks upon their Aſſes.] Wherein was their Proviſion.

And Wine-Bottles, old, and rent, and bound up.] Where they were rent.

Ver. 5. And old Shoes clouted upon their Feet.] As if they had been worne out, and patched up, with long Travel.

And old Garments upon them, and all the Bread of their Proviſion was dry and mouldy.] It is obſerved by Arias Montanus, that nothing is ſaid of the Decay of their Wine: Which they pretended, it is likely, to have drank all up, in ſo long a Journey. For it was not ſo eaſy to procure ſour Wine, as mouldy Bread.

Ver. 6. And they went to Joſhua, unto the Camp at Gilgal, and ſaid unto him, and to the Men of Iſrael.] They addreſſed themſelves to him, as the Head of the People; and he had his Council about him: who, in all probability, are here called the Men of Iſrael. Though ſome conceive, that they had laid hold of every one they met withal, and beſeeched them to admit them to their Friendſhip.

We are come from a far Country.] To ſue to you for your Friendſhip.

Now therefore make ye a League with us.] As they might do with thoſe that accepted the Offers of Peace, which they ſent them, (Deut. xx. 11.) and therefore much more with thoſe who came to ſeek to be at Peace with them: And were not Inhabitants of the Land of Canaan, but came from a far Country: which they gave as a Reaſon, why they ſhould make a League with them. And indeed, they had been to blame, if they had denied their Petition: As the Romans were, who when they were grown great, refuſed to receive a remote Nation into their Protection (as Appian tells us) who by their Embaſſadors ſubmitted themſelves to their Power, becauſe they did not ſee they were likely to get any thing by them. Which Bodinus (in his Book againſt Maleſtrettus de Caritate Rerum) cenſures as a baſe Action, and injurious to Almighty GOD. As if (ſaith he) the Majeſty of ruling and adminiſtring Juſtice, eſpecially to miſerable and ill inſtructed People, were not the greateſt Gift of GOD; and the higheſt Honour of which a Man is capable in this World.

Ver. 7. And the Men of Iſrael ſaid.] This ſhews that the Men of Iſrael before-mentioned, were not ordinary Perſons, but ſuch as had Authority to treat with Embaſſadors.

Unto

Unto the Hivites.] Unto thoſe who came from Gibeon, who were really Hivites, as is expreſly ſaid, xi. 19.

Peradventure you dwell among us.] Are ſome of the People of this Land; which we are commanded to rout out.

And how ſhall we make a League with you?] Then it is utterly unlawful for us to do what you deſire: For God hath often forbidden it, Exod. xxiii. 32, 33.—xxxiv. 12, 13, 14, 15, 16. Deut. vii. 2, 3, &c. and other Places.

Ver. 8. And they ſaid unto Joſhua.] With whom alone they had a Deſire to treat.

We are thy Servants.] This doth not ſignify that they were ready to yield themſelves to be Tributaries to the Iſraelites, or accept of any Terms that ſhould be impoſed on them: But are only Expreſſions of great Humility and Civility; acknowledge the Iſraelites to be ſuperior in Power and Strength, and therefore deſiring their Protection in their Liberties. Thus Abraham addreſſed himſelf to the Travellers, whom he entertained as greater Perſons than himſelf, Gen. xviii. 3, 4. And Jacob calls himſelf and his Houſhold the Servants of Eſau, Gen. xxx. 20. And thus Batrirides underſtood their Language here; who ſays the King of Gibeon wrote a Letter to Joſhua, wherein he deſired Security from him; and preſented him with great Gifts, as Hottinger obſerves in his Smegma Orientale, Cap. 8. p. 507.

And Joſhua ſaid unto them, Who are ye? And from whence come ye?] They being backward to name the Country from whence they were ſent; it begat a reaſonable Suſpicion in Joſhua, that they were ſome of the People of Canaan.

Ver. 9. And they ſaid unto him, From a very far Country thy Servants are come.] They ſtill avoid giving a particular Account of their Country, but anſwer in general Terms; in which commonly lies Deceit.

Becauſe of the Name of the LORD thy God.] To divert him from preſſing them to give a more ſatisfactory Anſwer, they pretend Religion had invited them to take this long Journey: Which they knew would procure them a favourable Audience.

For we have heard of the Fame of him, &c.] Of his miraculous Works, particularly thoſe which he did to deliver them from the Egyptian Slavery; which, as it is evident, were come to their Knowledge: So, it is very reaſonable to believe, ſuch wonderful Things were the Motives that made them ſeek for the Iſraelites Friendſhip; they being wrought upon, as Rahab was, to embrace their Religion.

Ver. 10. And all that he did to the two Kings of the Amorites, that were beyond Jordan, to Sihon King of Heſhbon, and to Og King of Baſhan, which was at Aſhtaroth.] They ſay not a Word of the drying up of Jordan, and of the taking of Jericho and Ai: But prudently conceal their Knowledge of thoſe Things, becauſe they would have it ſuppoſed the Tidings of thoſe Wonders could not yet be arrived at a Country ſo far off, as they pretended theirs to be.

Ver. 11. Wherefore our Elders.] The principal Perſons in their Country: Who were the Rulers and Governors of it.

And all the Inhabitants of our Country.] With the unanimous Conſent of all the People.

Spake to us, ſaying, Take Victuals with you for the Journey.] Made choice of us for this Embaſſy; and ordered us to provide ourſelves with Neceſſaries for ſo long a Journey.

And go to meet them.] To prevent the Iſraelites from entertaining any hoſtile Intentions againſt them.

And ſay unto them, We are your Servants: Therefore now make ye a League with us.] The Samaritan Chronicle ſaith, they had Orders to tell Joſhua that they would embrace the Jewiſh Religion; and refuſe nothing, great or ſmall, that he ſhould deſire of them. And indeed, one would think, by what they ſaid before, that they had a Senſe of the God of Iſrael, as ſuperior to all other Gods: And conſequently, were diſpoſed to become Worſhippers of him. For which Reaſon, he was pleaſed to diſpoſe Things ſo, that, by their Wiles, they ſhould compaſs their End, and be entertained into the Friendſhip of the Iſraelites.

Ver. 22. This our Bread we took hot for our Proviſion out of our Houſes.] When it was newly come out of the Oven.

On the Day we came forth to go unto you; but now behold, it is dry, and it is mouldy.] This they ſay to demonſtrate that they came from a Country far diſtant from Canaan. Which tho' it was not true, yet there are thoſe (particularly Puffendorf) who think it was not culpable, nor properly a Lye; being a Device to ſave their Lives. For who will reprehend a Perſon, ſaith he, who by a Fiction preſerves himſelf from being killed by an Enemy? Eſpecially in ſuch a Caſe as this, wherein the Iſraelites ſuffered no Damage by their Craft? For what Loſs doth he ſuſtain, who is hindered from ſhedding another Man's Blood, but hath it in his Power to deſpoil him of all he hath, and bring him into perpetual Servitude, ſo diſarmed and weakened that he can never riſe up againſt him? Thus he. Which is a Doctrine that ought not to be allowed.

Ver. 13. And theſe Bottles of Wine, which we filled, were new, and behold, they be rent: And theſe Garments and our Shoes are become old, by reaſon of the very long Journey.] They uſe thus many Words, to divert him from making any farther Enquiry, what the Name of their Country was (leſt ſome among the Iſraelites, who had many Strangers in their Camp, ſhould have been able to diſprove them) and mention only the long Time they had ſpent in their Journey, that he might be moved to be kind unto thoſe, who had taken ſo much Pains to beg the Favour of the Iſraelites.

Ver. 14. And the Men.] That is, the Perſons mentioned, Ver. 7. who were the οἱ ἄρχοντες (as the LXX. here ſay) the Princes or Rulers of Iſrael.

Took of their Victuals.] Not to eat them, but to inſpect and examine them, whether their Proviſion was ſo dry and mouldy as they pretended. For the Word we tranſlate Victuals, is the very ſame with that we before tranſlate Proviſion, ver. 5. Which ſhews he doth not ſpeak of Victuals now prepared, but which they brought along with them. Some indeed think the Meaning is, that they entered into a League with the Gibeonites, by taſting of their Victuals. But as this muſt ſuppoſe that they had made a Feaſt for the Entertainment of theſe Princes, and invited them to it, (which is altogether unlikely) ſo the making a League with them follows after this, in the next Verſe, and therefore was not made by taking of their Victuals.

And aſked not Counſel of the Mouth of the LORD.] Theſe words may ſeem to favour the Senſe now mentioned; that by eating with them (which was a Token of Friendſhip) they had performed Part of the Ceremony which belonged to the making of Leagues, without conſulting the Divine Majeſty about it, but haſtily believing an improbable Story. See. Gen. xxvi. 30, 31. — xxxi. 44, 45. But the Meaning of theſe Words may be no more than this; that they depended wholly upon their own Judgment, and that founded on ſuch ſlight Examination of the Truth, as only taking their Victuals into their Hands, and inſpecting them; when God was near at hand to give them Advice, if they would have conſulted him; and it is probable, would have allowed them to make a League with the Gibeonites, on ſuch Conditions as he directed.

Ver. 15. And Joſhua made Peace with them.] Following the Opinion of the Princes; who took them to be what they pretended.

And made a League with them, to let them live.] Not merely to ſpare their Lives (which, ſuppoſing them to belong to a far Country, they had no Warrant to take away) but to let them continue in the Enjoyment of all they had. For to live in Scripture, ſignifies to be happy; and therefore he promiſed not to hurt, but to protect them in their Rights and Liberties.

And the Prince of the Congregation ſware unto them.] Ratified the League by a ſolemn Oath; the Violation of which, in future Times, was ſeverely puniſhed, 2 Sam. xxii. 6.

Ver. 16. And it came to paſs, at the End of three Days, after they had made a League with them, that they heard that they were their Neighbours, and that they dwelt among them.] Speedy News being ſent by the pretended Embaſſadors to Gibeon of their good Succeſs, (as we may well think) there were great Rejoicings made there, as Arias Montanus ſuppoſes. The Report of which came to the Iſraelites three Days after the League was concluded.

Ver. 17. And the Children of Iſrael journeyed.] Not the whole Body of the People, but a party was ſent to underſtand the Truth.

And came unto their Cities on the third Day.] On the third Day after they began their March thither.

Now their Cities were Gibeon, and Chephirah, and Beeroth, and Kirjath-jearim.] The Capital City was Gibeon (called a Royal City, x. 2.) upon which the other three were Dependents. The three firſt of which fell afterward to the Tribe of Benjamin (xviii. 25, 26.) as the laſt was in the Tribe of Judah, xv. 60.

Ver. 18. And the Children of Iſrael ſmote them not.] Tho' they were not ſuch, as they ſuppoſed, but Canaanites, who were under the Curſe of God; yet they did not deſtroy them, for the Reaſon following.

Becauſe the Princes of the Congregation had ſworn unto them by the LORD God of Iſrael.] Some think their Oath did not bind them, becauſe it was made upon a falſe Suppoſition, that the Gibeonites were no Part of the ſeven Nations of Canaan. But if this were true, as it is not, (ſee Grotius de Jure Belli & Pacis, L. 2. Cap. 13. Sect. 4.) the Princes judged right, that it had been very ſcandalous, and would have highly diſhonoured the Name of God, by whom they had ſworn, if they had broken their Oath. By the keeping of which, the Reverence which the Gibeonites had already to the Divine Majeſty, was very much increaſed; whereas it had been vile in all People's Eyes, if the Iſraelites had not expreſſed this great Regard unto it.

And all the Congregation murmured againſt the Princes.] Or, But all the Congregation murmured, &c. becauſe they were hereby deprived of the Spoil of thoſe Cities.

Ver. 19. But all the Princes ſaid unto all the Congregation.] Their Unanimity in this Opinion, was of great Moment to quiet the People's Diſcontent.

We have ſworn unto them by the LORD God of Iſrael.] Eſpecially ſince they had engaged themſelves, by a ſolemn Oath, to their great and glorious LORD; who fought for them, and gave them all their Victories, ver. 13, 14. For ſo the Targum here expounds theſe Words, We have ſworn by the WORD of the LORD God of Iſrael.

Now therefore we may not touch them.] That is, do them any hurt; which we cannot do without breaking our Oath, and forfeiting his Favour.

Ver. 20. This we will do unto them, we will even let them live.] As they had covenanted, ver. 15.

Leſt Wrath be upon us, becauſe of the Oath which we ſware unto them.] Leſt God be very angry with us for breaking our Oath. Which Joſhua, St. Ambroſe obſerves, religiouſly obſerved, Ne, dum alienam perfidiam arguit, ſuam fidem ſolveret, that he might not be guilty of ſo ſhameful a Thing, as to break his Faith, whilſt he reproved their Perfidiouſneſs. Lib. 3. de Officiis, Cap. 10

Ver. 21. And the Princes ſaid unto them.] But they added this.

Let them live.] Tho' we let them live, becauſe we muſt be as good as our Word, which is the Meaning of the laſt Words of this Verſe (which muſt be joined with theſe) as the Princes had promiſed them.

But let them be Hewers of Wood, and Drawers of Water.] Yet they ſhall not be equal to us in all Privileges, but we will make them in ſome ſort ſerviceable to us; in ſuch Employments, as will ſave us a great deal of Labour.

Unto all the Congregation.] They were not to be Hewers of Wood, and Drawers of Water for every private Perſon; but for the Benefit of the whole Congregation of Iſrael; who were bound bound to find Wood and Water, for the Service of God at the Tabernacle. Which Burden it was now reſolved ſhould be laid upon the Gibeonites; and thereby the Children of Iſrael eaſed of it, ver. 23. where they are ſaid to be made Hewers of Wood and Drawers of Water for the Houſe of the LORD. This was no Breach of their Oath, for they did not make them abſolutely Slaves, but only a Sacred kind of Servants (as Joſephus call them) being employed about the Houſe of God; which was in itſelf honourable, and not baſe and contemptible. Some think they were afterwards called Nethinim, which ſignifies Perſons given to God for his Service; of whom we read in 1 Chron. ix. 2. Ezra vii. 20. and other Places.

Ver. 22. And Joſhua called for them.] For the Embaſſadors, with whom he had made a League.

And he ſpake unto them ſaying, Wherefore have ye beguiled us? &c.] Impoſed upon our Belief by a falſe Story.

Ver. 23. Now therefore ye are curſed.] Notwithſtanding our Oath, you muſt not quite eſcape that Curſe of God, which hath long lain upon all the People of Canaan, Part of which you are. For a ſervile State of any ſort, to which they were reduced, was no ſmall Puniſhment (called here a Curſe) and ſo much the more grievous, becauſe it was to be perpetual.

And there ſhall none of you be freed from being Bondmen.] None of them were to continue Freemen, but have a Servitude impoſed upon them: Not indeed ſuch an one, as made them entire Slaves; but only condemned them to the laborious Employment which here follows.

And Hewers of Wood and Drawers of Water for the Houſe of my God.] This is the Limitation of their Servitude; which did not extend to all things, but only to theſe and ſuch like (it is probable) to hew Stones, for inſtance, for the Reparation of the Temple after it was built; and to carry them to thoſe who were employed in that Work. Grotius hath well expreſſed their Condition, Addicti ſunt perſonali cuidem ſervituti, they were addicted to certain perſonal Servitude: whereas, if they had dealt plainly and openly with the Iſraelites, they might have been admitted only to pay a certain Tribute. Lib. 2. de Jure Belli & Pacis, Cap. 13. Sect. 4. N. 3.

Ver. 24. And they anſwered Joſhua and ſaid, Becauſe it was certainly told the Servants, how that the LORD thy God commanded his Servant Moſes to give you all the Land, and to deſtroy all its Inhabitants, therefore we were ſore afraid of our Lives becauſe of you, and have done this thing.] They firſt give an Anſwer unto Joſhua's Demand, Wherefore have ye beguiled us? Which was done to ſave themſelves, if they could, by any Shift, from that Deſtruction, which they believed God had decreed againſt all the Inhabitants of their Land; and they did not know how to evade it, but by this Artifice; which, ſince it aroſe from ſome Degree of Faith God ſuffered to take Effect, that they might remain for ever among the Iſraelites, as an unqueſtionable Witneſs of their miraculous Conqueſt of the Land of Canaan.

Ver. 25. And now behold, we are in thy Hand; as it ſeemeth good and right unto thee to do unto us, do.] Here they humbly ſubmit to the Doom he had paſſed upon them, or to any other Impoſition he ſhould think fit to load them withall.

Ver. 26. And ſo he did unto them, and delivered them out of the Hand of the Children of Iſrael, that they ſlew them not.] But Joſhua would take no farther Advantage of their Submiſſion, but contented himſelf with this Burden alone; which by a publick Decree he laid upon them. It appears by this, that ſome Gentiles had more Goodneſs in them than many of the Children of Iſrael; who would have deſtroyed theſe well-diſpoſed People (if Joſhua had not hindred) who were better Believers, being ſtruck with a greater Fear of God's Threatnings, than themſelves.

Ver. 27. And Joſhua made them that Day Hewers of Wood and drawers of Water.] He paſſed this Sentence into a Law; that from henceforth they ſhould be ſubject to this Servitude; in which they ſerved God faithfully even to the Times of Nehemiah: Who tells us great Numbers of the Nethinims (who many great Men make no doubt were of the Poſterity of theſe Gibeonites) returned from Babylon to rebuild Jeruſalem and the Temple, Nehem. vii. 46. &c. 73.

For the Congregation, and for the Altar of the LORD, even unto this Day.] They ſerved the Congregation (who otherwiſe muſt themſelves have done it) by ſerving the Altar with Wood and with Water. Which that they might do regularly, it is probable they were diſperſed throughout all the Coaſts of Iſrael, where the Prieſts and Levites were ſettled, and came and ſerved with them in their Courſes, and (as Conradus Pellicanus thinks) were maintained out of the Publick Stock, and the Profits of the Altar. For they did not keep Poſſeſſion of their Cities, but ſurrendered them to the Tribe of Benjamin and Judah, to whoſe Lot they fell; as we read in the following Part of this Book.

Concerning theſe Words, unto this Day, ſee iv. 9.

At the Place which he ſhall chuſe.] Which was now at Gilgal; afterwards at Shiloh; and ſome time in Gibeon it fell; which was a City given to the Prieſts, Joſh xxi. 17. and, as Maimonides ſaith (in his Treatiſe of the Building of the Temple) after Shiloh was deſtroyed, the Tabernacle was placed in Nob, and then in Gibeon: in which two Places it continued fifty and ſeven Years.

CHAP. X.

Ver. 1. NOW it came to paſs, when Adonizedek King of Jeruſalem.] Who ſeems to have been the moſt potent Prince in Canaan, and carried in his Name an honourable Title which had been anciently given to the Kings of this Place; who had been famous for doing Juſtice. For it is probable, that ever ſince Melchizedek, who was King of Salem (the ſame with Jeruſalem) and truly King of Righteouſneſs, teouſneſs, as his Name ſignified; they affected this Title, tho' they did not always anſwer their Character: For this Adonizedek (whoſe Name imports the Lord of Righteouſneſs) had none of the Virtues that were in Melchizedek.

King of Jeruſalem.] It is probably thought that this City held the Name of Salem, which it had in Abraham's Time, till the Iſraelites came into the Land of Canaan; and then they called it Jeruſalem, when they firſt took Poſſeſſion of it. Which they did not ſo fully, but that ſtill the Jebuſites dwelt there with the Children of Benjamin, (ſee Judg. i. 8, 21.) who were ſo weak, that the Jebuſites, in time, recovered it wholly to themſelves, and expelled the Benjamites; ſee Judg. xix. 10. where it is called Jebus; tho' the other Name is alſo acknowledged; becauſe the Iſraelites called it Jeruſalem, while the Jebuſites, having prevailed, called it Jebus.

Heard how Joſhua had taken Ai.] By which Means, the Iſraelites were come nearer to him, than when they took Jericho.

And had utterly deſtroyed it, (as he had done to Jericho and her King, ſo he had done to Ai and her King).] And therefore it highly concerned him to provide, the beſt he could, for his own Safety.

And how the Inhabitants of Gibeon had made Peace with Iſrael.] Eſpecially ſince one of the prime Cities of the Country had ſubmitted to the Iſraelites.

And were among them.] Joined in Society with them, or come (as we now ſpeak) into their Intereſt.

Ver. 2. Then they feared greatly.] All his People thought themſelves in great danger; they as well as their King having heard of the terrible Execution Joſhua had made at Jericho and Ai.

Becauſe Gibeon was a great City.] Having others depending on it.

As one of the Royal Cities.] The Vulgar Latin takes no Notice of the Particle Caph (as) but ſaith, it was a Royal City. And indeed, that Particle doth not always denote Likeneſs, but only the Truth of the Thing ſpoken of; as in Hoſea iv. 4. and many other Places of the New Teſtament, as well as the Old, Joh. i. 14. Phil. ii. 7. But I think here it ſhould be expreſſed, as we do in our Tranſlation; becauſe Gibeon was not a Royal City, that is, had no King in it, that we read of; but was, notwithſtanding, equal to thoſe Cities that had Kings, being governed by Elders (ix. 11.) who were Perſons of very great Authority.

And becauſe it was greater than Ai.] More populous.

And all the Men thereof were mighty.] The Inhabitants were eſteemed Men of great Valour; which made their Revolt to the Iſraelites the more conſiderable.

Ver. 3. Wherefore Adonizedek, King of Jeruſalem, ſent unto Hoham King of Hebron, and unto Piram King of Jarmuth, and unto Japhia King of Lachiſh, and unto Debir King of Eglon, ſaying.] All theſe Cities afterwards belonged to the Tribe of Judah; as appears from the following Part of this Book.

Ver. 4. Come unto me, and help me.] He was the moſt active in the War, and ſeems to have been of greateſt Power; calling the other Kings, only as Auxiliaries to him.

That we may ſmite Gibeon.] He thought to diſcourage others from yielding, by making this City an Example of their Vengeance.

For it hath made Peace with Joſhua, and with the Children of Iſrael.] Forſaken the Intereſt of their Country, and gone over to our Enemies.

Ver. 5. Therefore the five Kings of the Amorites, the King of Jeruſalem, &c.] It is certain that Hebron belonged to the Hittites; as Jeruſalem did to the Jebuſites. But the Amorites being the moſt powerful People in Canaan, (as appears from Gen. xv. 16.) had, it ſeems, brought them under their Power, and ſet Kings of their own Nation over them. Whence it is, that the Gibeonites, who were originally Hivites (ix. 17.) are ſaid to be of the Remnant of the Amorites, (2 Sam. xxi. 2.) becauſe they were fallen under their Power, when Joſhua conquered the Country.

Gathered themſelves together. Had a general Meeting and ſent out Summons to all their People, who were fit for War, to rendezvous (as we ſpeak) at the Place they appointed.

And went up.] Tho' they lived in the high Country, yet Jeruſalem was ſtill higher; where they ſeem to have all met, according to Adonizedek's Deſire; Ver. 4.

They and all their Hoſts, and encamped before Gibeon.] Laid Siege to it.

And made War againſt it.] Began to aſſault it.

Ver. 6. And the Men of Gibeon ſent unto Joſhua to the Camp to Gilgal.] Or, had ſent, as ſoon as they heard of their March towards them.

Saying, Slack not thy Hand from thy Servants.] They doubted not of his Succour, becauſe they were his Servants, who had put themſelves under his Protection; but begged it might be ſpeedy, for fear they ſhould be overpowered by ſuch numerous Forces as were coming againſt them.

Come up quickly, and ſave us and help us, for all the Kings of the Amorites that dwell in the Mountains, are gathered together againſt us.] They did not hope to be preſerved without his Help; not unleſs it arrived quickly.

Ver. 7. So Joſhua aſcended from Gilgal, he and all the People of War with him, and all the mighty Men of Valour.] Theſe laſt Words are the Explication of the former, as if he had ſaid, All the People of War, even all the mighty Men of Valour.] For it is not likely he took along with him all the fighting Men (ſome of which were neceſſary to guard the Camp at Gilgal) but only the choiceſt of them; on whoſe Valour he could moſt rely, and who could march moſt ſwiftly to the Relief of their Confederates.

Ver. 8. And the LORD ſaid unto Joſhua.] Before he ſtirr'd a Foot, he conſulted the Divine Majeſty about this Expedition; who encouraged him to undertake it.

Fear them not, for I have delivered them into thine Hand; there ſhall not a Man of them ſtand before thee.] He promiſed him an entire Victory; which embolden'd him to fall upon them undauntedly.

Ver. 9. Joſhua therefore came upon them ſuddenly, and went up from Gilgal all Night.] Accordingly Joſhua made all the haſte he could towards them, marching all Night, that he might ſurprize them in their Quarters (as I ſuppoſe he did) before they could draw out their Army againſt him.

Ver. 10. And the LORD diſcomfited them before Iſrael.] The Suddenneſs of the Attack, no doubt, put them into great Confuſion. And beſides, God ſtruck a Terror into them, which made them ſeek for Safety by Flight, rather than Fighting.

And ſlew them with a great Slaughter at Gibeon.] Near to the City, as the Particle Beth ſignifies in many Places; particularly in the ſecond Chapter of this Book, where Rahab's Houſe is ſaid to be upon the Wall, (we tranſlate it, near or adjoining to the Wall) and V. 13. where Joſhua is ſaid to be Bejericho, near to that City, for he was not in it when the Captain of the LORD's Hoſt appeared to him. See Bochart his Hierozoicon, P. 1. L. 2. C. 50.

And chaſed them along the Way that goeth up to Beth-horon.] To the Place which was called by this Name, when this Book was written; for there was no ſuch Place now; it being built after they were ſettled in Canaan by Sherah, Daughter or Grandaughter of Ephraim; as we read in 1 Chron. vii. 24.

And ſmote them to Azekah, and unto Makkedah.] Two Cities afterward in the Tribe of Judah, xv. 35, 41. For in the great Confuſion wherein they were, by the Hailſtones falling upon them, (as it here follows) they fled backward and forward, as we ſpeak, ſometimes this way, ſometimes the quite contrary, (for Beth-horon lay Northerly, and theſe other Towns in the South) according as the Hailſtones, by the ſhifting of the Wind, flew in their Faces.

Ver. 11. And it came to paſs, as they fled from before Iſrael, and were in the going down to Beth-horon.] Which was ſeated on the Side of a Hill; and ſeems to have taken its Name from this wonderful Storm here-mentioned: For Beth-horon ſignifies as much, as the Houſe or Place of Fury or Anger.

That the LORD caſt down great Stones from Heaven upon them.] The LXX. call them λίθας χαλάζης Hailſtones of a vaſt Bigneſs; which ſome think were accompanied with Thunder and Lightning. And thus the ancient Heathen ſay, that Hercules was aſſiſted in his War againſt Albion, &c. See Voſſius, Lib. 1. de Orig. & Progreſſu Idol. Cap. 26. And that Raining of Stones is not a Fable, but a real Truth, ſee him alſo, Lib. 3. Cap. 12. Plutarch alſo, in the Life of Timoleon, relates how a terrible Storm in the Face of the Carthaginian Army, gave him a great Victory over them, with a very few Forces which he had to encounter them. They that deſire to ſee more to this purpoſe, may look into Huetius his Quæſtiones Alnetanæ, Lib. 2. Cap. 12. Sect. 12.

Unto Azekah.] The Storm meeting them at Beth-horon, drove them back to Azekah, as obſerved on the foregoing Verſe.

And they died.] They upon whom the Hailſtones fell, were killed by them.

They were more that died with the Hailſtones, than they whom the Children of Iſrael ſlew with the Sword.] For they could not flee from the Stones, which came from Heaven; as they did from the Sword of Iſrael.

Ver. 12. Then ſpake Joſhua unto the LORD.] This Song, as the Hebrews call it, ſee Maſius.

In the Day when the LORD delivered up the Amorites before the Children of Iſrael.] It is not certain at what Time of the Day he ſpake what follows. Many think, when the Sun was declining; others, rather in the Morning. For he marched all Night to ſurprize them, and in all Probability fell upon them by break of Day; and having routed and chaſed them for ſome Hours, and killed great Numbers of them, and ſeen others fall by the Hailſtones, concluded he ſhould deſtroy them all, if he had but Time enough before Night came to favour their Eſcape. Which made him pray that he might have Light to continue his Purſuit, and gain a complete Victory over them.

And he ſaid in the Sight of Iſrael.] It is a frivolous Obſervation of Maimonides, that becauſe it is not ſaid in the Sight of ALL Iſrael (before whom Moſes did his Miracles) Joſhua was inferior to him, even when God wrought this ſtupendious Miracle at his Requeſt: For all Iſrael did not hear him ſpeak theſe Words, but only ſome few; as many perhaps as were with Elijah at Mount Carmel, when he brought Fire down from Heaven to conſume his Sacrifice. But there is no queſtion that Iſrael ſignifies all the Army; who heard, or were told what he ſaid.

Sun, ſtand thou ſtill upon Gibeon.] He deſired it might ſtand immoveable, in that Part of the Heavens, where he ſaw it now ſhining upon Gibeon.

And thou Moon, in the Valley of Ajalon.] There were more Ajalons than one; and it is not certain which it is he means: But it is moſt likely, that in the Tribe of Dan, (xix. 42. Judg. i. 35.) which was fartheſt from Gibeon; for we muſt ſuppoſe theſe two Places to have been at ſome Diſtance, otherwiſe Joſhua could not have ſeen the Sun and the Moon both appear at the ſame Time; as it is probable they were both now in his Eye, when he ſpake theſe Words. It is not fit to enter into ſuch Queſtions as theſe; in what Sign the Sun now was, and whether the Moon was in her Increaſe or Decreaſe, &c. They that can make, and are diſpoſed to ſuch Enquiries, may conſult Bonfrerius.

Ver. 13. And the Sun ſtood ſtill, and the Moon ſtayed.] Thus Callimachus repreſents the Sun as ſtopping the Wheels of his Chariot, to behold a Chorus of Nymphs; which ſo highly pleaſed him, that it made him prolong the Day, ver. 181, 182. of his Hymn to Diana.

Ἦλθε παρ' Ἠελίῳ καλὸν χόρον ἀλλὰ θεῆται
Δίφρον ὑπεὶς ἀνάσσας, τὰ δὲ φάεα μηκύνοιεν.

Where Ezek. Spanhemius excellently notes, that what the Poets only fancied might be, was really done in the Days of Joshua; and wishes Grotius had not followed some of the Jews, who make this only a poetical Phrase to express a long Summer's Day: For the Prophet Habakkuk represents it otherwise, and so do many of the Talmudick Doctors. They that can consult Huetius also, in his Alnetanæ Quæstiones (Lib. 2. Cap. 12. Sect. 27.) will find enough to shame those who disbelieve this History: When they read a great Number of Stories among the Heathen, which shew they thought it within the Power of their Gods, to do such Things. And, among other memorable Things, he doth not forget the ancient Tradition of the Egyptians, related by Herodotus (in his Euterpe, Cap. 142.) concerning the stupendious Alteration of the Course of the Sun. And our Dr. Jackson hath observed, that the Heathen People of those Times did note this miraculous Event and deliver the Tradition of it to their Posterity; who, as Men are wont to do, endeavour to assign some Cause of it. And the Poets in Ages following ascribe it (with some Additions) unto that unnatural Murder which Atreus committed: At which the Heavens blushed, and the Sun stood still. For this bloody Fact, if Statius mistakes not, was in the Time of the Theban War; and that is placed, by good Chronologers, about the Time of Joshua's Conquest of Canaan. See Book 1. upon the Creed, Chap. 15. But in this he was deceived, for Atreus lived in the Days of the Judges.

Until the People had avenged themselves upon their Enemies.] Till they had gained a complete Victory, and utterly destroyed their Enemies.

Is not this written in the Book of Jasher?] The Targum expounds it, in the Book of the Law: As if the meaning was, that their God had foretold, what Wonders he would do for his People. But from the marginal Translation, (which is, the Book of the Upright, or of righteous Men) others take it for a Book, where was recorded the wonderful Things done by, or for, the religious Heroes. And there are some probable Arguments, that it was written in Verse, to fix these things in the Memory of the People. Grotius is of this Opinion: For we find mention of it no where else, but only in 2 Sam. i. 18. and there it is mentioned upon account of a Song, made upon the Death of Saul and Jonathan, by King David; who caused it to be recorded in this Book. Which was not accounted sacred (being written by several Hands, and in several Ages) and so not preserved with such Care, as this and the other Canonical Books were. As for their Opinion, who think this Book contained the ancient Annals of the Jews more largely than they are recorded in this and the following Books, it hath no Ground at all; but is invented merely to frame an Argument from thence, that Joshua was not the Author of this Book; but that it was collected in After-times, out of this great Chronicle, by somebody who made an Abridgment of it. But Du Pin hath well observed, that it is not said here the Wars of Joshua were related in the Book of Jasher; but only that Mention is made therein of the Miracle by which the Moon stood still.

So the Sun stood still.] There is no more Mention of the Moon; for it was the Light of the Sun that made the Day.

In the midst of Heaven.] This doth not necessarily signify, that it stood still precisely in the Meridian Point; but that it appear'd, visible to every body, fixed in the same Place where it was, when Joshua spake the foregoing Words, to which he was moved, no doubt, by a Divine Inspiration.

And hastened not to go down about a whole Day.] It may be simply translated a whole Day: The Particle Caph, as I observed before, signifying oft-times nothing of Similitude, but the very thing itself. Therefore I look upon Maimonides's Explication as ungrounded; who by Kajom Thamim (as a whole Day) understands only, as the longest Day in Summer, More Nevochim, P. 11. Cap. xxxv. Which was a poor Business, it being now Summer-Time, when this Miracle was wrought: And, as Lyra thinks, in the Month of June.

Ver. 14. And there was no Day like that, before it or after it, that the LORD hearkened to the Voice of a Man.] That is, did, at his Desire (or rather Command) such a stupendous Thing as this. Whereby he gave an evident Demonstration, that he who did such Wonders in Egypt, and at the Red Sea, and the River Jordan, had an absolute Power not only over the Elements (as we call them) and all inferior Creatures, but over the Heavenly Bodies, the Sun, Moon and Stars, whom the Heathen worshipped. They have strange Love to Cavilling, who would hence have it thought, this Book was not written by Joshua: When, if he wrote it in his old Age, there were many Days passed since this Prodigy, as Huetius well observes in his Demonstr. Evangelica. P. 186. See various Opinions about the Length of this Day in Sixtinus Amama his Antibarbarus Biblicus, Lib. III. P. 381, &c.

For the LORD fought for Israel.] By throwing Stones from Heaven upon their Enemies; and giving the Israelites Strength to pursue them; and stopping the Sun's Course, that they might not want Light for their Pursuit; and preserving them from the Stones which fell upon their Enemies, and not upon them, though mingled with them in the Fight.

Ver. 15. And Joshua returned, and all Israel with him, unto the Camp to Gilgal.] The LXX. in the common Copies wholly omit this Verse; because Joshua did not return to Gilgal, till he had done what follows: And then he speaks of his Return, in the same Words and Syllables, Ver. 43. but 'tis in the Edition of Hervasius, 1540. as my most learned Friend Dr. Alix informs me; and the Meaning of it here therefore is no more than this; that he was about to return, till he heard where the five Kings were; and that many of the Enemies were still remaining.

Ver. 16. But these five Kings.] Mentioned, v. 3.

Fled.] Escaped the Sword of the Israelites by Flight; being provided perhaps with swift

Beasts

Beasts for that Purpose; and taking some By-ways, separate from their scattered Forces, so that the Hail-stones did not fall upon them.

And hid themselves in a Cave.] Which they knew to have secret lurking Places in it; where they could not be easily discovered.

At Makkedah.] In the Confines of that City. Which not being yet taken, Joshua could not command great Stones to be rolled upon the Mouth of the Cave, if it had been in the City itself.

Ver. 17. And it was told Joshua, saying, That the five Kings were hid in a Cave at Makkedah.] It is likely Joshua had given a particular Charge about them; and they made no Enquiry what was become of them, till it was discovered, that they were in this Place.

Ver. 18. And Joshua said, Roll great Stones upon the Mouth of the Cave.] To hinder their coming out.

And set Men by it for to keep them.] He ordered a Guard also, to see that none removed the Stones.

Ver. 19. And stay you not, but pursue after your Enemies.] They that brought this Intelligence, were, it is likely, some Officers in the Army; whom he would not have to stop their Pursuit of the scatter'd Canaanites, by looking after these Kings; but leave it to others to take Care to keep them safe shut up in the Cave.

And smite the hindermost of them.] He means, all that they could overtake in their Flight.

Suffer them not to enter into their Cities.] And hinder the rest from retreating into their own Cities; by which means they would not remain in a Body together; but dispersed here and there, where they could save themselves.

For the LORD your God hath delivered them into your Hand.] Given you an Opportunity to complete their Destruction.

Ver. 20. And it came to pass, when Joshua, and the Children of Israel.] i. e. The Children of Israel, by the Command and Direction of Joshua; who sent out strong Parties to pursue them; but he himself seems to have gone to lay Siege to Makkedah.

Had made an End of slaying them with a very great Slaughter, till they were consumed.] Till there was none of them to be seen in a Body together.

That the rest which remained of them, entered into fenced Cities.] Those few that escaped, got into such fortified Cities as they could reach.

Ver. 21. And all the People.] Who had been sent out, and engaged in Pursuit of the Enemy.

Returned to the Camp to Joshua at Makkedah.] Where, no doubt, he had order'd a general Rendezvous, as we now speak, of the whole Army that had been employed in this War.

In Peace.] The LXX. translate it ὑγιεῖς, sound and safe; and the Vulgar, sani & integro numero; sound and without the Loss of a Man. Which is to be understood of that Detachment sent to pursue them (Ver. 19.) who came all safe to the Camp, and not a Man of them lost, or so much as wounded.

None moved his Tongue against any of the Children of Israel.] There was not so much as a Dog that barked at them. For that Word Dog is to be supplied (as Bochartus thinks) according to what we read, Exod. xi. 7. See Hierozoicon, P. 1. Lib. 2. Cap. 55. It is an Expression of the great Tranquillity wherein they were, and of an entire Victory; there being not so much as a Dog left to disturb them.

Ver. 22. Then said Joshua, Open the Mouth of the Cave, and bring out those five Kings unto me out of the Cave.] The Wisdom of Joshua is here observed by Arias Montanus; who would not do this Execution till all the People were returned to the Camp, to be Witnesses of it. And he might have added, that he executed them, before he assaulted Makkedah, that the Inhabitants of that City might see there was no Hope of any Succour from those Kings; who had been very powerful.

Ver. 23. And they did so, and brought forth those five Kings unto him out of the Cave, the King of Jerusalem, the King of Hebron, &c.] They are named in the same Order as in Ver. 3. according to their Rank and Quality; for next to the King of Jerusalem, who was the chief, the King of Hebron seems to have been of greater Note; and so of the rest. The same Montanus thinks it probable, that as they brought them forth, and set them before Joshua, they said, This is the King of Jerusalem; and then, This is the King of Hebron, &c.

Ver. 24. And it came to pass, when they brought out those Kings to Joshua, that Joshua called for all the Men of Israel.] That is, all the Men of War.

And said unto the Captains of the Men of War, which were with him.] That is, the great Officers of the Army.

Come near, put your Feet upon the Necks of these Kings.] Who lay bound, I suppose, prostrate upon the Ground.

And they came near, and put their Feet upon the Necks of them.] Not out of Insolence and Pride; but in token that these Kings and their Countries were brought in absolute Subjection to them; and that God had fulfilled his Promise, Deut. xxxiii. ult.

Ver. 25. And Joshua said, Fear not, nor be dismayed; be strong, and of good Courage.] The same that Moses had said to them all long ago, Deut. i. 21, 29. and God had lately said to Joshua, i. 6, 7, 9. and might be said with greater Reason now, when they saw their greatest Enemies lie prostrate under their Feet.

For thus shall the LORD do to all your Enemies, against whom you fight.] To all the Inhabitants of Canaan.

Ver. 26. And afterward Joshua smote them, and slew them.] After they had trampled upon them, he ordered them to be killed.

And hanged them on five Trees.] As a Mark of Infamy, whereby a Terror was struck into all others.

And they were hanging on the Trees till the Evening.] Exposed to this Contempt, all that long Day; which God made on purpose that they might do all the great Things before mentioned, tioned, and what follows, before the night came upon them. Then their Bodies were taken down, not in Honour to them, but in Honour to the Land of Iſrael, were God now dwelt. So Aben Ezra.

Ver. 27. And it came to paſs, at the Time of the going down of the Sun, that Joſhua commanded, and they took them down off the Trees, and caſt them into the Cave, wherein they had been hid, &c.] He had given this Order as ſoon as they were hanged, according to the Law of Moſes, by which he acted before at Ai, viii. 29. And with their Bodies he caſt all the Inſtruments of their Puniſhment (the Trees, and what ſoever faſtned them unto them) into the Cave, as Maimonides ſaith, and the Samaritan Chronicle here particularly obſerves.

Ver. 28. And that day Joſhua took Makkedah.] The ſame Day the King of it was hanged; and it ſeems to me probable it was on that long Day (as I ſaid before) which God made that they might compleat their Conqueſt of theſe Kings; and when they had done, take this City alſo. Our great Primate of Ireland indeed, by that Day, underſtands the ſame Day that he ſat down before the City; which he thinks was ſome time after what is before related.

And ſmote it with the Edge of the Sword, and the King thereof he utterly deſtroyed.] He was ſlain among the reſt, and not taken alive as the King of Ai was.

Them, and all the Souls that were therein.] All the fighting Men, together with the Women and Children; becauſe they had refuſed the Offers of Peace, ſent them from Joſhua, before he invaded their Land.

He let none remain.] But ſaved the Cattle, which they took, with their Goods, for a Prey.

And he did to the King of Makkedah, as he did to the King of Jericho.] What he did to the King of Jericho, is not recorded; but by what is ſaid of other Kings, it is probable that he hanged him up, after he was found dead.

Ver. 29. Then Joſhua paſſed from Makkedah.] This only ſignifies what was their next Expedition; for it is likely they refreſhed themſelves a while, before they left this Place.

All Iſrael with him.] All that he brought along with him, to the Relief of Gibeon. See ver. 7.

Unto Libnah.] A city which fell to the Share of the Tribe of Judah, in the Diviſion of the Land, xv. 42. and was one of the Cities given to the Prieſts, xxi. 13. 1 Chron. vi. 57.

And fought againſt Libnah.] Laid Siege to it, and planted their Batteries againſt it.

Ver. 30. And the LORD delivered it alſo, and the King thereof, into the Hand of Iſrael.] They made an eaſy Conqueſt of it, becauſe God gave it up into their Hand.

And he ſmote it with the Edge of the Sword, and all the Souls that were therein, &c.] The ſame Words whereby the Deſtruction of Makkedah is deſcribed, ver. 28. For both theſe Cities favoured the five Kings before mentioned, and therefore (as Conradus Pellicanus thinks) were deſtroyed utterly, not only by the Command of God, but by the Right of War. But the Command of God was the only Ground, as it is expreſſed, ver. 40.

Ver. 31. And Joſhua paſſed from Libnah, and all Iſrael with him, unto Lachiſh.] Another City which fell to the Tribe of Judah, xv. 39. and was not far from Libnah.

And encamped againſt it, and fought againſt it.] This, it ſeems, was a ſtronger City than either of the former; for there is no mention of an Encampment againſt them before they began their Aſſault.

Ver. 32. And the LORD delivered Lachiſh into the Hand of Iſrael.] He doth not add, and the King thereof, as he doth of Makkedah and Libnah, (ver. 28, 30.) becauſe he was one of the five Kings, which he had lately hang'd; and they had not, it's likely, ſet a new one on his Throne, ver. 23.

Which took it on the ſecond Day.] After they began the Siege; or, the ſecond day after the taking of Makkedah and Libnah. The former is moſt likely, becauſe their Encampment againſt it, ſignifies they ſpent ſome time before it.

And ſmote it with the Edge of the Sword, &c.] Theſe Words, and the following, are the very ſame with what he ſaid before of the two fore-named Cities; only he doth not add, he let none remain; which is to be ſuppoſed.

Ver. 33. Then Horam King of Gezer came up to help Lachiſh.] This was a City afterwards in the Tribe of Ephraim, xvi. 10. belonging to the Levites, xxi. 21. and not far from Gibeon, as may be gueſſed from 1 Chron. xiv. 16.

And Joſhua ſmote him and his People, until he had left him none remaining.] If he deſtroyed his City at this time, he returned to Lachiſh. And it is probable, he ſent forth a Detachment to fight Horam and his Army; who having routed them, deſtroyed alſo their City; and then went on with the Siege of Lachiſh.

Ver. 24. And from Lachiſh Joſhua paſſed unto Eglon.] Which alſo belonged afterward to Judah, xv. 39. and ſeems to have been as conſiderable as Lachiſh; for it follows, that they encamped againſt it, and fought againſt it, as they had done againſt the other. Their King was one of the five, who was killed and hanged before, ver. 23.

Ver. 35. And they took it on that Day.] The ſame Day they ſat down before it; for none came to their Relief, as Horam did to help Lachiſh; which may be one Reaſon that City was not taken till the ſecond Day, ver. 32.

And ſmote it with the Edge of the Sword, &c.] The ſame he had ſaid of the fore-named Cities; only he ſaith, he utterly deſtroyed all that were therein on the ſame Day; which is the ſame with thoſe Words, he let none remain.

Ver. 36. And Joſhua went up from Eglon, and all Iſrael with him, unto Hebron, and they fought againſt it.] This was alſo a City of Judah (as every one knows) xv. 54. and was ſeated in the mountainous Country, as the former were in the Plain; which is the Reaſon he is ſaid to go up to it from Eglon.

Ver. 37. And they took it, and ſmote it with the Edge of the Sword, and the King thereof.] Their King was one of the five, whom Joſhua had had lately killed and hanged. But, it ſeems, they had ſet up a new one, being a City of great Note, which had other Cities depending on it, as it follows in the next Words.

And all the Cities thereof.] It was not only one of the Royal Cities, which had other Cities ſubject to it, (as Gibeon had, which was a kind of Royal City) but of very great Power. For theſe Words import, as if there were many Cities under its Juriſdiction.

And all the Souls that were therein, he left none remaining, &c.] In this Conqueſt, Caleb was very inſtrumental, and ſignalized himſelf (as we now ſpeak) by driving out the three Sons of Anak (xv. 13, 14.) who were ſlain there, Judg. i. 10. Thus we muſt underſtand this Hiſtory; or elſe ſay, as ſome do, either that Joſhua only took the City and deſtroyed it, but could not take the Citadel, or ſtrong Fort on the Top of the Mountain, (which doth not ſeem to be exactly true, for we read in the next Chapter, Ver. 21, 22. that he cut off the Anakims from the Mountains, &c.) or that, after he had deſtroyed it, as is here related, the Anakims came from Gaza and other Cities of the Philiſtines, whither they now fled, and peopled it again; but were expelled again by Caleb, as ſome underſtand, xiv. 12. See Judg. i. 10.

Ver. 38. And Joſhua returned, and all Iſrael with him, to Debir, and fought againſt it.] He had not been there before, but having gone as far South and Weſt as he thought fit, (even as far as Gaza, which was in the Weſtern Coaſt, ver. 41.) he turned his Courſe toward the Camp at Gilgal, which was now North-Eaſt from him, and in his Way thither took Debir, which alſo was a City of Judah, xv. 49. and one of the Cities of the Prieſts, xxi. 15. 1 Chron vi. 58. called alſo Kiriath-Sepher, and Kiriath-Sanna.

Ver. 39. And he took it, and the King thereof and all the Cities thereof, &c.] It was a great City (we may gather from hence, like to Hebron) in the Conqueſt of which Othniel the Brother of Caleb did great Service; and therefore it was given to him; as we read, xv. 15, 16, 17, and Judg. i. 11.

Ver. 40. So Joſhua ſmote all the Country of the Hills, and of the South, and of the Vale, and of the Springs, and all their Kings.] He forbears to name all the Cities he took, and, in ſhort, ſaith he ſubdued the whole Country that lay South and Weſt (as it is explained in the next Verſe) of whatſoever ſort it was; both the Hilly and the Low Country: For they that deſcribe Countries, are wont to have reſpect to two Things; the Condition and Quality of the Soil, and then the Situation: The firſt of theſe he expreſſes in this Verſe; and the other in the next. For here he deſcribes it as partly hilly and dry; and partly plain and full of Springs.

He left none remaining, but utterly deſtroyed all that breathed.] Which muſt be reſtrained to Mankind; for they kept their Cattle as a Prey to themſelves.

As the LORD God of Iſrael commanded.] This is added as a Juſtification of the Iſraelites, from all Imputation of Cruelty or Severity; for they only executed a Divine Sentence againſt this People for their abominable Wickedneſs, (Levit. xviii. 24, 25, &c.) wherewith the Iſraelites would have been in danger to be infected, if they had not been extirpated.

Ver. 41. And Joſhua ſmote them from Kadeſh-Barnea.] Which was in the South of Canaan, as appears from Numb. xxxiv. 4. and Chap. xv. of this Book, ver. 3. where it is mentioned as belonging to the Tribe of Judah.

Even unto Gaza.] A city of the Philiſtines, in the Weſt Part of Canaan, towards the South.

And all the Country of Goſhen.] There was a City in the Tribe of Judah of this Name, which lay in the Mountains, as Hebron did, in the Southern Part of the Country, xv. 51. From which City, the Region thereabouts was called the Country of Goſhen: Which had excellent Paſture-Ground in it, and was well watered, (like that Country in Egypt of the ſame Name) and thence was called Goſhen, as Conradus Pellicanus conjectures; becauſe the Hebrew Word Goſhen ſignifies large Showers, which make the Earth fruitful.

Even unto Gibeon.] Which was in the more Northerly Part of the Country. And therefore as before he gave an Account of his Conqueſt from the South to the Weſt; ſo here of his Conqueſt from the South to the North.

Ver 42. All theſe Kings, and their Land did Joſhua take at one Time.] In one Expedition.

Becauſe the LORD God of Iſrael fought for Iſrael.] Which made their Conqueſt eaſy and ſpeedy. The Targum hath it, The LORD God of Iſrael, by his Word, fought for Iſrael. That is by him who appeared to Joſhua as the Captain of the Lord's Hoſts, ver. 13, 14.

Ver. 43. And Joſhua returned, and Iſreal with him, unto the Camp to Gilgal.] To refreſh themſelves with the Company of their Wives and Children; and to make thoſe who were left to defend them Partakers of their Booty; but eſpecially to return ſolemn Thanks to God for their Victories, at his Houſe, which was now ſettled at Gilgal.

Our great Primate of Ireland thinks, that this War with the five Kings, that came againſt Gibeon, &c. concludes this famous Year. In the firſt Part of which, Moſes took the Kingdoms of Sihon and Og on the other Side Jordan; and in the latter Part of it Joſhua conquered a great Part of the Land of Canaan; and in the middle of it the Manna ceaſed, and they eat of the Fruit of the Country. So that in the Autumn of this Year they began to ſow, and conſequently, from this Time, they began to number their Sabbatical Years. See him in his Annales, A. M. 2554. But another great Man (Dr. Alix) admoniſhes me, that this is againſt the Opinion of the antient Jews, who ſuppoſe that the firſt Year of the Semitah was the fourteenth after their Entrance into Canaan: For the Land muſt have been divided, before it was cultivated; and ſo the Sabbath of the Land muſt be ſeven Years after the Diviſion.

CHAP. XI.

Ver. 1. AND it came to pass, that when Jabin King of Hazor.] This City was the Metropolis of the Northerly Part of Canaan, ver. 10. and fell to the Share of the Tribe of Naphtali in the Division of the Land, xix. 36. Jabin was the Name of the King of the Canaanites in this Part of the Country in future Times; and reigned in this very City, Judg. iv. 2.

Heard of these Things.] Of the Conquest Joshua had made of so many Kings, and their Kingdoms, in the South and the West Part of the Land.

That he sent to Jobab King of Madon.] This is the Name of a Place we read of no where else; but was subject, no doubt, unto Hazor as the rest where.

And the King of Shimron.] A Place afterward in the Tribe of Zebulon, near to the Country of Naphtali, xix. 15.

And to the King of Achshaph.] In the Tribe of Asher, xix. 25. These two last Places Arias Montanus thinks were more remote from Hazor, than Madon; and lay toward the South near Mount Tabor; being the only Southern People that remained, after the five Kings were destroyed. But toward the North, and the East, and the West, there were many still left; whom Jabin now gathered together.

Ver. 2. And to the Kings that were in the North of the Mountains.] Or, mountainous Country, near Lebanon; for that was in the North Part of Canaan.

And in the Plains, South of Cinneroth.] In the flat Country, which lay South of the Lake called afterward Genesaret, now Cinneroth. See Numb. xxxiv. 11.

And in the Valley.] Some conjecture he means that pleasant Valley between Mount Hermon, and Mount Gilboa; called the Valley of Jezreel.

And the Borders of Dor.] A City, with a Country belonging to it, in the Tribe of Manasseh, xvii. 11.

On the West.] Upon the Midland Sea. Where Josephus mentions (in his second Book against Appion) a City called Dora, near Mount Carmel. See Bochartus in his Canaan, Lib. 1. Cap. 41. P. 752.

Ver. 3. And to the Canaanites.] The People peculiarly so called.

On the East, and on the West.] It hath been noted before, that some of this People lived in the East near Jordan; and other of them in the West near the Midland Sea. See Numb. xiii. 29.

And to the Amorite, and the Hittite, and the Perizzite.] There were other Amorites scattered up and down the Country, besides those who were subject to the five Kings mentioned in the foregoing Chapter, ver. 5. who were all now assembled together by Jabin; with the rest of the Hittites and Perizzites, (who were in several Parts of the Country) that they might make as powerful an Army as could be raised.

And the Jebusite, in the Mountains.] About Jerusalem where they kept a strong Hold, till the Time of David; as the Perizzites lived in other mountainous and woody Countries as Bochartus observes.

And to the Hivite under Hermon.] This was a Mountain in the North-East Part of the Country, where some Hivites were settled, as others were about Gibeon. That Hermon was Easterly appears from Psal. lxxxix. 12. Whence it is that the Hivites are called Kadmonites, that is, Easterlings, Gen. xv. 19. as Bochart hath observed in his Phaleg. Lib. 4. Cap. 36. and in his Canaan, Lib. 1. Cap. 19.

In the Land of Mizpeh.] There were several Cities of this Name; one in the Tribe of Judah xv. 38. another belonging to Benjamin, xviii. 26. and two more beyond Jordan in the Land of Gilead; one in the Tribe of Gad, the other in the Tribe of Manasseh, or very near it; which gave Name to the Country about it and seems to be here intended.

Ver. 4. And they went out.] The Kings of all these People.

They and all their Host with them, much People even as the Sand that is upon the Sea shore in Multitude.] A vast Army, which could not easily be numbered; or, which covered the Place where they were encamped, as Sand doth the Sea-shore; so that nothing could be seen but armed Men, Horses, and Chariots, &c. It is a proverbial Speech in Scripture, for vast Numbers of Men or great Quantities of Corn; or exceeding much Knowledge and Wisdom, as every one knows.

With Horses and Chariots, very many.] This made them the more formidable, because the Israelites were all Footmen; who might easily be beaten by a strong Body of Horse; especially when they had Chariots also, which carried Men in them (see upon Deut. xx. 1.) and they had great Numbers also of them, as these Words intimate. Josephus makes their Chariots alone to have been twenty Thousand. The Land of Canaan indeed did not breed Horses (as I have often observed) but they might easily procure them out of Egypt, and they trusted much to this kind of Forces, wherein the Egyptians excelled most People. See Deut. xvii. 16.

Ver. 5. And when all these Kings were met together.] In some Place which the King of Hazor appointed for a general Rendezvous. For tho' this Multitude were of different Nations, yet they all now combined against the Israelites But it was a great Providence of God, that as all this Country was not united under one Head, but divided into several petty Kingdoms; so they did not all enter into a Confederacy at the first against Joshua, but fought severally; only five of their Kings joining together. Tho' now they seem to have seen their Error; and therefore, all that remained, joined, as one Man, to oppose Joshua's further Proceeding.

They came, and pitched together at the Waters of Merom, to fight against Israel.] They marched to these Waters, and there formed a Camp, to prepare, and set themselves in Order, to give Israel Battle. These Waters, all agree, were that Lake which Josephus calls Σάμα χωνίτιδα, from the Abundance of Fiſhes that were in it: For Samachon, or Semechon, in the Arabick Language, ſignifies a Fiſh (as Bochart obſerves in his Hierozoicon, P. 1. Lib. 1. Cap. 6.) and Joſhua here calls the Waters of Merom, that is, the upper Waters; for this Lake was near the Fountain of Jordan, which ran thro' the Lake of Tiberias, and fell into the Lake Aſphaltites, or the Dead Sea. With reſpect to which Waters, theſe were called the upper, they being lower. And here they pitched rather than any other Place; being under the Juriſdiction of Jabin, who had called them together: For Hazor, where he reigned, was ſituate upon this Lake, as Joſephus tells us, Lib. 5. Antiq. Cap. 6.

Ver. 6. And the LORD ſaid unto Joſhua.] Who went, it is probable, (as he had done formerly, x. 8.) to conſult the Divine Majeſty, how he ſhould manage himſelf upon this great Occaſion.

Be not afraid of them.] Some collect from hence (even Joſephus himſelf) that Joſhua was poſſeſſed with ſome Fear, when he heard of ſuch a numerous Army, and ſo well appointed, coming againſt him. But I do not think it at all probable, that after ſo many late Aſſurances and ſignal Demonſtrations, as God had given him of his Preſence with him in this War, he ſhould be capable of this Paſſion. See the firſt Chapter of this Book, ver. 2, 3, 6, 7, 9, iii. 7, 9, 10. v. 13, 14, 15. x. 8. Therefore theſe Words were ſpoken to him, that he might animate the People, whoſe Hearts were apt to fail them, when they ſaw ſuch terrible Enemies.

For to-morrow about this time.] It is not certain what this time was; but it is likely in the Morning, after he had marched all Night (as he did againſt the five Kings, x. 9.) that he might fall upon them unexpectedly.

I will deliver them up all ſlain before Iſrael.] The LXX tranſlate it τέτροπωμένους, put to flight. Which agrees with what follows; for it is certain they were not all ſlain, but many of them fled, and the Iſraelites purſued them: And therefore other Copies of the LXX have it τέτρωμένους, wounded; ſo broken and ſhattered, that they were all in effect dead Men.

Thou ſhalt hough their Horſes.] Cut their Hamſtrings, and thereby render them unfit for future Service.

And burn their Chariots with Fire.] That they might be no more uſed; no not by the Iſraelites themſelves.

Ver. 7. And Joſhua came, and all the People of War with him, againſt them, to the Waters of Merom.] He did not wait for their Motion; but attacked them as they lay in their Quarters; for that is ſignified by the next Word.

Suddenly.] When they thought not of an Enemy near them; but were conſulting, perhaps, how to manage the War againſt the Iſraelites.

And they fell upon them.] When they were unprovided to make ſuch Reſiſtance as they would have done, if they had been ready to receive them.

Ver. 8. And the LORD delivered them into the Hand of Iſrael, who ſmote them.] Routed and killed a great many of them.

And chaſed them to Great Zidon.] This, it ſeems, was a large City, and of great Note in thoſe Days, (for there was no Zidon the Leſs) built by the eldeſt Son of Canaan (as Joſephus thinks) from whom it had its Name. See Gen. x. 15. It lay in the North-Weſt Part of Canaan, upon the Sea.

And unto Miſraphothmaim.] It is thought by ſome that this was a Place where there were hot Waters; which I ſhall not examine; but only note, it is a probable Conjecture, from xiii. 6. that it was a Place in the Country of Zidon, where they made Salt.

Unto the Valley of Mizpeh Eaſtward.] (See ver. 3.) This ſignifies, that in their Confuſion, ſome of them fled Weſtward to Zidon and Miſraphothmaim, and others Eaſtward, towards Miſpeh.

And they ſmote them till they left them none remaining.] As they divided themſelves, and fled ſeveral ways; ſo did the Iſraelites ſend out ſeveral Parties, both to the Weſt, and to the Eaſt; who purſued them ſo cloſe, that they let not a Man of them eſcape.

Ver. 9. And Joſhua did unto them as the LORD bad him; he houghed their Horſes, and burnt their Chariots with Fire.] We do not read, as Kimchi notes upon this Place, of any Horſes or Chariots which the five Kings mentioned in the foregoing Chapter, brought into the Field; becauſe they went only to beſiege Gibeon, and hoped to take it preſently by an Aſſault; in which there was no Uſe of Horſes and Chariots; which they did not want, no more than theſe Kings, who abounded in them, and placed their principal Confidence in their Horſemen and Chariots. Which was the Reaſon God commanded them to hough their Horſes; that is, to cut their Nerves and Sinews in their Hams; which Joſephus tranſlates ἀχρήσους ποιεῖν, to make them uſeleſs and unprofitable: For God would not have his People place their Safety and Security in this, but in himſelf alone, as good People always did, Pſal. xx. 7. Accordingly, when David had conquered Hadedezar, and taken from him a great Number of Horſes and Chariots, he diſabled all the Horſes, after this Example of Joſhua, (as if God intended by him to teach all future Rulers of his People what to do) reſerving only as many as would ſerve for an Hundred Chariots, 2 Sam. viii. 4. And Schickardus obſerves out of the Jewiſh Authors, that they were wont thus to enervate all the Horſes they found in the King's Stables after his Death, that they might not be of uſe to his Succeſſor. See his Miſhphat Hammeleck, Cap. 6. Theorm. 19. and Bochart's Hierozoicon, P. 1. Lib. 2. Cap. 11.

Ver. 10. And Joſhua at that time.] Before he thought of returning to his Camp at Gilgal.

Turned back.] From purſuing thoſe that fled toward the Weſtern Coaſt.

And took Hazor.] Which was in the Eaſtern Part of the Country; upon the Lake before mentioned.

And ſmote the King thereof with the Sword.] This was one Reaſon, it is likely, why he made haſte to inveſt Hazor; becauſe the King thereof, who was the chief Author of this War, had escaped out of the Battle, and thought to defend himself there.

For Hazon before-time was the Head of all those Kingdoms.] Not of all the Kingdoms of Canaan; but of all those mentioned in the beginning of this Chapter. Which was another Reason why he fell upon it at this Time; that by taking the most considerable City of this Part of Canaan, all the rest might be disheartenʼd to hold out against him.

Ver. 11. And they smote all the Souls that were therein with the Edge of the Sword, utterly destroying them; there was not any left to breathe.] See x. 40.

And he burnt Hazor with Fire.] Which the Canaanites afterwards rebuilt, and possessed it for some time; another King of the same Name reigning in it, Judg. iv. 2. For the Kings of this City were called Jabin in many Successions, as the Egyptian Kings were called Pharaoh, and the Kings of the Philistines, Abimelech, &c.

Ver. 12. And all the Cities of those Kings, and all the Kings of them, did Joshua take.] Viz. Those mentioned Ver. 2, 3. whom Jabin drew into Confederacy with him; and perhaps were his Dependants.

And smote them with the Edge of the Sword, and he utterly destroyed them.] That is, all their Inhabitants.

As Moses the Servant of the LORD commanded.] Deut. vii. 2. and many other Places.

Ver. 13. But as for the Cities that stood still in their Strength.] The Hebrew Words all thillam (which we translate in their Strength) literally signify on their Heap, as it is noted in the Margin of our Bibles; that is, were seated in an eminent Place, and therefore of greater Strength than those that stood in the Plain. Thus Bochart interprets it in his Canaan, Lib. 1. Cap. 29. from whence he thinks came the Names of Thelassar, 2 Kings xix. 12. and of Thelabib, Ezek. iii. 15. And thus I observe the Prophet Jeremiah speaks, xxx. 18. Jerusalem shall be built on her own Heap, or high Hill. But the Meaning may be, according to our Translation, the Cities whose Walls were not battered down in the taking of them.

Israel burnt none of them.] Because they intended to dwell in them; and would not be at the Charge and Pains of building new Walls for their Safety.

But Hazor only, that did Joshua burn.] Because it was the capital City, and began this War against them; which being laid desolate by the Israelites, without Inhabitant, the Canaanites took their Opportunity to rebuild it, and settle themselves there again.

Ver. 14. And all the Spoil of these Cities, and the Cattle, the Children of Israel took for a Prey unto themselves.] As the LORD allowed them to do at Ai, viii. 2.

But every Man they smote with the Edge of the Sword, until they had destroyed them, &c.] Because God had often commanded these Nations should be rooted out for their abominable Wickedness; lest the Israelites should be drawn in to imitate them in their filthy Lewdness, as I observed from Lev. xviii. 24, 25, 26, &c. See also xx. 22, 23, &c.

Ver. 15. As the LORD commanded Moses his Servant.] Exod. xxxiv. 11, 12, &c.

So did Moses command Joshua.] Numb. xxvi. 19. Deut. xxxi. 7.

And so did Joshua, he left nothing undone of all that the LORD commanded Moses.] Which is a Demonstration that Moses left in Writing what we read the LORD commanded in the foregoing Books, and that they were not written (as some pretend) in later Times: For then it would have been impossible for Joshua to have executed every thing that he commanded, unless he had had the Book of the Law before him for his Direction. But so desirous are some Men to weaken the Authority of these holy Books, that from hence they argue this Book of Joshua could not be written by himself, but some other; because he gives himself this high Commendation. So the Author of Theolog. Polit. who by the same Reason might have rejected S. Paul's Epistles as none of his, and Cæsar's Commentaries; for both of them relate their own Vertues, and the noble Things they did.

Ver. 16. And Joshua took all that Land.] Belonging to the Kings before mentioned.

The Hills, and all the South Country, and all the Land of Goshen, and the Valley, and the Plain.] This is a Description of his whole Conquest, as appears from x. 40.

The Mountain of Israel.] It is very uncertain what Place this was; but many think it probable to be Beth-el: Where God appeared to Jacob as he went to Padan Aram, and promised to give him this Land, Gen. xxviii. 12, 13. and where he dwelt, by God's Direction, after he came from Padan Aram, and God appeared again to him there, and made him the same Promise, and changed his Name from Jacob to Israel, Gen. xxxv. 1, 9, 10, &c.

And the same of the Valley.] Belonging to the same Mountain. But Conradus Pellicanus thinks the Singular Number is put for the Plural; and thus explains the whole Verse. The Land of Israel was partly in the Hill-Country, partly in the South towards Egypt, partly in the Plain near the Great Sea, and the Sea of Sodom, and the Spring of Jordan, near Tabor in Galilee. And moreover, the Mountains of Israel were the two Carmels, Hermon, Gilead, Lebanus, those about Jerusalem, and many other.

Ver. 17. Even from the Mount Halach.] Or the Stony Mountain, as Bochart interprets it, Lib. 1. Canaan, Cap. 5.

That goeth up to Mount Seir.] Which was the Bounds of the Country of Edom.

Even unto Baal-Gad, in the Valley of Lebanon, under Mount Hermon.] As in the foregoing Words he expresses the Bounds of Joshua's Conquest Southward; so hither they reached Northward. And this seems to be a Description of the Length of the Country which he took from the King of Hazor, and all those that joined with him, as Archbishop Usher understands it.

And all their Kings he took, and ſmote them and ſlew them.] So that none appeared to make head againſt him.

Ver. 18. Joſhua made War a long Time with all thoſe Kings.] But thoſe Kings were ſo many, and made ſuch great Oppoſition, that he ſpent Six Years (as the fore-named great Perſon computes) in this War, before he could finiſh it.

Ver. 19. There was not a City that made Peace with the Children of Iſrael.] This is the Reaſon the War continued ſo long; becauſe there was but one City that ſurrendered on ſuch Terms as had been offered them; but all the reſt obſtinately refuſed to yield unto Joſhua.

Save only the Hivites, the Inhabitants of Gibeon.] viii. 3. Who, if they had truly diſcovered who they were, (which out of Fear they concealed) and begged Peace, they might have obtained it on ſuch Conditions as were propoſed to all.

All other they took in Battle.] By Force of Arms.

Ver. 20. For it was of the LORD to harden their Hearts, that they ſhould come againſt Iſrael in Battle.] Being a People obſtinately wicked, GOD ordered Things ſo in his Providence, that they were emboldened (notwithſtanding the Wonders they had certainly heard were done for Iſrael) to fight with them. By which it appears the Gibeonites were a better ſort of People, who conſidered what GOD had done in Favour of the Iſraelites.

That he might deſtroy them utterly, and that they might have no Favour.] Which they might have found, if they had not been ſo fool-hardy (as we ſpeak) as to imagine they could withſtand thoſe, before whom the River Jordan fled, and the Walls of Jericho fell down flat.

But that he might deſtroy them as the LORD commanded Moſes.] In many Places; particularly in Deut. vii. 2. xx. 16, 17.

Ver. 21. And at that Time.] That is, in the War before-mentioned, and perhaps in the Concluſion of it; after he had left none to oppoſe him in other Places, but only in thoſe mountainous Countries, which were of difficult Acceſs.

Came Joſhua.] Either from the Camp at Gilgal, or from deſtroying the Kings and their Countries, of which he had been ſpeaking in this Chapter.

And cut off the Anakims.] Who were a diſtinct People (Arias Montanus thinks) from the Canaanites; of a fierce, cruel, and tyrannical Diſpoſition, who oppreſſed all their Neighbours.

From the Mountains.] Where they had ſettled, and, it is likely, ſtrongly fortified themſelves: Which moved Joſhua to let them alone till he had finiſhed his other Conqueſts. Concerning theſe Anakims, ſee Numb. xiii. 22, 23.

From Hebron.] Called alſo Kiriath-Arba, the City of Arba, who was a great Man among the Anakims. See Bochartus in his Canaan, Lib. 1. Cap. 1. P. 363.

And Debir.] Called alſo Kiriath-Sepher, as I noted before.

And Anab.] This, as well as the two fore-named Cities, fell to the Tribe of Judah, xv. 50.

And from all the Mountains of Judah.] All the mountainous Country which afterward fell by Lot to that Tribe.

And from all the Mountains of Iſrael.] All the mountainous Country, which was in the reſt of the Tribes of Iſrael, where theſe People, it is likely, fled for Safety.

Joſhua deſtroyed them utterly, with their Cities.] Which it ſeems they had in thoſe mountainous Countries of Iſrael; beſides Hebron, Debir, and Anab in the Tribe of Judah.

Ver. 22. There were none of the Anakims left in the Land of the Children of Iſrael.] He rooted them out of the whole Country which the Iſraelites conquered.

Only in Gaza, in Gath, and in Aſhdod, there remained.] Three Cities of the Philiſtines; unto which either ſome of them eſcaped, and there took Shelter, or they had been there from antient time, and the Iſraelites could not yet expel them. For they did not poſſeſs themſelves of the Country of the Philiſtines till the Time of David; when we find ſome of theſe Giants ſtill there; particularly in Gath. But that there were any of them at Aſcalon, the famous Bochart ſhews to be an Error in the Place above-mentioned. Lib. 1. Canaan, Cap. 1.

Ver. 23. So Joſhua took the whole Land.] Which either the Canaanites, or the Anakims poſſeſſed; that is, ſubdued it ſo, that none roſe up againſt him, though many Places were not yet in the Poſſeſſion of the Iſraelites. See xiii. 1, 2, &c. For which were many Reaſons; one of which was, becauſe the Iſraelites were not yet ſo many as to be able to people the whole Country, and keep the Beaſts of the Field from multiplying upon them, Exod. xxiii. 29. And two more Reaſons are added, Judg. iii. 1, 4.

According to all that the LORD ſaid unto Moſes.] Deut. xxxi. 7, 8.

And Joſhua gave it for an Inheritance unto Iſrael.] Deut. iii. 28.

According to their Diviſions by their Tribes.] Numb. xxvi. 53. Numb. xxxiii. 54.

And the Land reſted from War.] None of the Lords of the Philiſtines, or any other, adventured to give any Diſturbance to the Iſraelites in their Poſſeſſions; but they enjoyed them quietly. And thereby had Liberty to make a Diviſion of the Country; which GOD ordered them to go about, Chap. xiii.

Now began the ſeventh Year from the time the Iſraelites firſt ploughed and ſowed in the Land. And therefore was the firſt Sabbatical Year that they obſerved after Joſhua had brought them to their Reſt in the Land of Promiſe. An Emblem (as our great Primate of Ireland obſerves) of that eternal Sabbatiſm, or Reſt, unto which the true Jeſus will bring his People, Hebr. iv. 8, 9. And from this time they were to reckon, unto their Jubilee mentioned, Levit. xxv. 8, 13. But that was not from their Entrance into Canaan, but from the ſeventh Year after the Diviſion of the Land, as I obſerved before, upon the laſt Verſe of the tenth Chapter.

CHAP.

CHAP. XII.

Verſe 1. NOW theſe are the Kings of the Land, which the Children of Iſrael ſmote, and poſſeſſed their Land.] Before he gives an Account of the Diviſion of the Land, he thinks fit to lay before every one's Eyes, as in a Table, the Land they had conquered; which was to be divided.

On the other Side Jordan towards the Riſing of the Sun.] There they began their Conqueſts, before they paſſed over Jordan.

From the River Arnon, unto Mount Hermon.] So the Bounds of this Conqueſt are deſcribed by Moſes, Deut. iii. 8. iv. 48. See there.

And all the Plain on the Eaſt.] That is, on the Eaſt of Jordan, Deut. i. 1. called the Plain of Moab, Deut. xxxiv. 1.

Ver. 2. Sihon King of the Amorites, who dwelt at Heſhbon.] He was the firſt King whoſe Land they conquered and poſſeſſed. See Numb. xxi.

And ruled from Aroer, which is upon the Banks of the River Arnon.] See Numb. xxi. 24.

And from the Middle of the River.] In which ſtood the City called Aroer. For Ar never was in the Hands of Sihon; but his Kingdom was bounded by it, on that Side. See Deut. ii. 36. iii. 16.

And from half Gilead,] In the Hebrew, and half of Gilead; there being nothing to anſwer to the Word from: Which being left out, the Senſe is plain, that half of the Country of Gilead belonged to Sihon, as the other half did to Og, Ver. 5.

To the River Jabbok, which is the Border of the Children of Ammon.] Thus his Country is conſtantly deſcribed; particularly in Numb. xxi. 24. Deut. iii. 16.

Ver. 3. And from the Plain, &c.] There is nothing anſwering to the Word from in the Hebrew; which may moſt clearly be tranſlated, and the Plain: And ſo the LXX. only retaining the Word Araba, which we tranſlate Plain. This was another Part of Sihon's Country, a great Plain, which lay Eaſtward of the Sea of Cinneroth, and the Salt Sea; by which it was bounded on the Weſt.

The Way to Beth-Jeſhimoth.] Which, by the next Words, is thought to have lain towards the South.

And from the South under Aſhdod-Piſgah.] The Meaning ſeems to be, that on the South it was bounded by Aſhdod-Piſgah. See Deut. iii. 17. I do but touch theſe Things, leaving them to a very learned Friend and Brother of mine, who hath moſt accurately conſidered every Part and Place of this Country.

Ver. 4. And the Coaſt of Og King of Baſhan.] The next Conqueſt they made was of the Kingdom of Og, who was of the Remnant of the Giants. See Deut. iii. 11.

That dwelt at Aſhtaroth and Edrei.] See Deut. i. 4. Some would gather from this Place, and from xiii. 12. that he had two Royal Seats, one at Aſhtaroth, another at Edrei; and that he lived ſometimes in the one, and ſometimes in the other.

Ver. 5. And reigned in Mount Hermon.] At the bottom of which ſome other People lived, who were conquered by Joſhua, xi. 17.

And in Salcah.] This was one of his Cities, in that Part of his Kingdom, which was next to Hermon, as ſome conjecture from xiii. 12. But others think it was in the Southern Part of this Country, poſſeſſed afterwards by the Gadites; which they gather from 1 Chron. v. 11, 12, 16.

And all Baſhan, unto the Border, &c.] See an Account of this, and of all that follows in this Verſe, Deut. iii. 13, 14.

Ver. 6. Them did Moſes the Servant of the LORD, and the Children of Iſrael, ſmite.] Theſe two Kings were conquered by Moſes, before they came into Canaan, Numb. xxi.

And Moſes the Servant of the LORD gave it for a Poſſeſſion to the Reubenites, and Gadites, and the half Tribe of Manaſſeh.] See Numb. xxxii. and Deut. iii. 12. xiii. 8. He gives Moſes the Title of the Servant of the LORD twice in this Verſe, to make them ſenſible that this War againſt the two Kings before-named, was made by Divine Authority; and that their Land was afterward given to the Reubenites, &c. by the ſame Authority.

Ver. 7. And theſe are the Kings.] They that follow in the reſt of the Chapter.

Of the Country, which Joſhua and the Children of Iſrael ſmote on this Side Jordan.] In the late Wars, before mentioned in this Book.

On the Weſt.] Weſtward of Jordan.

From Baal-Gad in the Valley of Lebanon, even unto the Mount Halak, which goeth up to Seir.] This was the Northern and Southern Bounds of the Country of theſe Kings. See xi. 17.

Which Joſhua gave unto the Tribes of Iſrael for a Poſſeſſion, according to their Diviſions.] Unto the reſt of the Tribes who had not their Share on the other Side Jordan, xi. 33.

Ver. 8. In the Mountains, and in the Valleys, and in the Plains.] This is a Deſcription of the Condition of the Country; in which Valleys and Plains differ only in this, that the former were ſuch as lay between Mountains, and the latter, the flat Country, which was remote from Mountains.

And in the Springs.] Which commonly were at the Foot of Mountains.

And in the Wilderneſs, and in the South Country.] Theſe are joined together, becauſe their Wilderneſſes were Southerly, in the hotteſt and drieſt Part of the Land: Whereby we are not to underſtand Countries without People; but that were thinly peopled, in Compariſon with other Parts of the Land. For we read of Houſes and Towns in the Wilderneſs, 1 Kings xi. 34. ix. 18.

The Hivites, the Amorites, and the Canaanites, &c.] This may relate either to the Kings, or the Countries fore-mentioned.

Ver. 9. The King of Jericho one.] He is firſt mentioned, becauſe firſt conquered.

The King of Ai.] He was the next.

Which is beſide Beth-el, one.] The People of which Place came to aſſiſt the King of Ai; and were conquered at the ſame time, viii. 17.

Ver.

Ver. 10. The King of Jeruſalem, one.] Who was the next that oppoſed Joſhua, and therefore next mentioned, x. 1.

The King of Hebron, one.] He, and the three next, the Kings of Jarmuth, Lachiſh, and Eglon (Ver. 11, 12.) joined with the King of Jeruſalem, and were vanquiſhed at the ſame time.

Ver. 12. The King of Gezer, one.] He came out to help Lachiſh, and was ſmitten at the ſame time, x. 33.

Ver. 13. The King of Debir, one.] Mentioned x. 38.

The King of Geder, one.] We read not of him before; but we find ſeveral Towns in the Tribe of Judah, of the ſame or neighbouring Name, viz. Gederah, and Gederoth, and Gederothaim, and Geder, xv. 36, 41, 56. 2 Chron. xxviii. 18. All which, as Bochartus obſerves, have their Name à Sepimento, from the Fence that was about them, Lib. 1. Canaan, Cap. 36.

Ver. 14. The King of Hormah, one; the King of Arad, one.] We have no Mention of theſe Kings before; but we know that Hormah was a City in the Tribe of Judah, xv. 30. Judg. i. 17. 1 Sam. xxx. 30. and afterwards given to Simeon, Joſh. xix. 4. Arad alſo was a Place in the Tribe of Judah, as appears by the Story in Judg. i. 16.

Ver. 15. The King of Libnah, one.] Mentioned before, x. 29.

The King of Adullum, one.] This was a City in the ſame Tribe of Judah, xv. 35. 1 Sam. xxii. 1.

Ver. 16. The King Makkedah, one.] See x. 26.

The King of Beth-el, one.] We read not of any King here before; but it ſeems there was one, depending upon Ai, viii. 17.

Ver. 17. And the King of Tappuah, one.] There were two Cities of this Name; one in the Tribe of Judah, xv. 34. the other in the Tribe of Ephraim, xvii. 8. It is probable the latter is here meant; becauſe the King of it is mentioned next to the King of Beth-el, which was in the Confines of Benjamin and Ephraim. And immediately follows the King of Hepher; which was a Place not far off, in the Tribe of Zebulon.

The King of Hepher, one.] We read of the Land of Hepher, in 1 Kings iv. 10. Which St. Hierom ſaith was in the Tribe of Zebulon, near Sephorim, or Diocæſarea.

Ver. 18. The King of Aphek.] There were two Apheks in this Country which Joſhua conquered; one in the Tribe of Judah, xiii. 53. 1 Sam, ix. 1. xxix. 1. another in the Tribe of Aſher, Joſh. xix. 53. Which of them is here intended, cannot certainly be determined.

The King of Laſſaron, one.] This Place is never named any where elſe in Scripture. But I take it for Saron (as the Vulgar Latin here doth, leaving out the firſt Syllable) which was a City near Lydda, as we learn from Acts ix. 35. And the Country about it was very pleaſant and fruitful, Iſai. xxxiii. 9 xxxv. 2. There was another Saron alſo on the other Side of Jordan in the Eaſt, in the Country of the Gadites, 1 Chron. v. 16. of which ſome think the Prophet Iſaiah ſpeaks, lxv. 10.

Ver. 19. The King of Madon one; the King of Hazor, one.] Both theſe are mentioned before, as conquered by Joſhua, xi. 1.

Ver. 20. The King of Shimron-Meron, one; the King of Achſhaph, one.] Theſe two are mentioned in the ſame Place, xi. 1. And Shimron was in the Tribe of Zebulon; and Achſhaph in the Tribe of Aſher, xix. 15, 25. The former hath the Addition of Meron to it in this Place, to diſtinguiſh it from ſome other Shimron; which ſome think was in the Tribe of Ephraim, called Shomeron, or Samaria.

Ver. 21. The King of Tanaach, one.] A Citd given to the Tribe of Manaſſeh, xvii. 11. any in the Confines of Zebulon. It belonged to the Levites, xxi. 25. But the old Inhabitants were not expelled out of it, Judg. i. 27.

The King of Megiddo, one.] This City fell to the ſame Tribe, as we read in the ſame Place; and was near the River Kiſhon; as may be gathered from Judg. v. 19. The Canaanites were not driven out of this City, Judg. i. 27.

Ver. 22. The King of Kedeſh, one.] There were two Cities called Kedeſh or Kadiſh; one in the Tribe of Judah, xv. 23. the other in the Tribe of Naphtali, xix. 37. The latter is here meant; for it was a fenced City, as we read there; but the other was of no Note.

The King of Jokneam of Carmel, one.] A City in the Tribe of Zebulon, at the Bottom of Mount Carmel, near the River Belus, xix. 11. and one of the Cities of the Levites, xxi. 34. It had its Name from its delightful Situation, as Bochart conjectures, Lib. 1. Canaan, Cap. 28.

Ver. 23. The King of Dor, in the Coaſt of Dor, one.] A City in the Lot of the Tribe of Manaſſeh, xvii. 11. which had a large Territory belonging to it, called after its Name: For it was a Royal City, and one of the moſt ancient in Phœnicia, as Bochart obſerves. So ſtrong alſo, that the Iſraelites could not get Poſſeſſion of it (or could not keep out the ancient Inhabitants) when it fell to the Portion of Manaſſeh, Judg. i. 27. Nor could Antiochus Sidetes, in future Times, take it, tho' he laid Siege to it with a very great Army, Lib. 1. Canaan, Cap. 41.

The King of the Nations of Gilgal, one.] This Gilgal is not the Place where Joſhua encamped when he came over Jordan; for there was no City there, nor any King of that Country, but the King of Jericho. That Place alſo had its Name from the Circumciſion of the Iſraelites there, Ver. 9. We have no Mention indeed of any other Gilgal in Scripture; but St. Hierom ſays, in his Time, there was a Place called Gilgel, about ſix Miles from Antipatris, which was near the Sea, not far from Joppa. Hither, it is likely, Merchants from ſeveral Countries reſorted; and thence the chief Ruler there was called the King of the Nations of Gilgal. Some finding Mention of Galilee of the Nations, fancy that it is the Place here meant. But that Name for ſome Part of Galilee, was not known in the Days of Joſhua; being occaſioned by Solomon's giving Hiram twenty Towns in this Country, 1 Kings ix. 11. So the ſame St. Hierom.

Ver.

Ver. 24. The King of Tirzah, one.] It is not certain in what Part of the Country this City was; but it is very probable, in the Lot of the Tribe of Ephraim. For Jeroboam (who was of this Tribe) and his Succeſſors, made it the Royal Seat, until the Building of Samaria, 1 Kings xiv. 17. xvi. 23, 24.

All the Kings thirty and one.] Some cannot believe, that in ſo ſmall a Country, there were ſo many Kings. But they ſhould conſider, that theſe Kings were only petty Princes, or Lords of Cities; which had a few Villages depending on them, the Inhabitants of which were their Tenants. This appears by ver. 9. where we read of the King of Beth-el; which was ſo ſmall a Place, that he and the King of Ai, joined together, had but twelve thouſand Subjects, viii. 25. For Kingdoms, like all other Things, were antiently very ſmall in their Beginning. See upon Gen. xiv. 1. and Grotius upon the firſt Verſe of this Chapter; and Maſius upon the ſeventh. Unto which may be added that Cæſar in his fifth Book of his Commentaries ſpeaks of four Kings here in the County of Kent alone: How many then was there in all Britain? For it appears by Tacitus, that the Silures and the Brigantes had their own Kings alſo. And Cæſar informs us, that in France there were as many Kings as Princes; and ſo it was in Spain, as Livy writes. And Vopiſcus, in the Life of the Emperor Probus, relates, that when he was in Germany, Reguli novem ex diverſis gentibus, &c. nine petty Kings came from divers Nations, and threw themſelves at his Feet; as he himſelf wrote to the Senate of Rome, in a Letter which is there recorded. In which he calls them Novem Reges, Nine Kings.

CHAP. XIII.

Ver. 1. NOW Joſhua was old and ſtricken in Years.] To what Age he was advanced, we cannot certainly know; becauſe we do not know how old he was when they came out of Egypt. Some think three and forty; and then he was fourſcore and three when they came into Canaan: And now, it may be gathered by probable Conjectures, wanted not much of an hundred.

And the LORD ſaid unto him, Thou art old and ſtricken in Years, and there remaineth yet very much Land to be poſſeſſed.] Which, in his declining Age, he could not hope to live to conquer; and therefore, he would have him go about another Buſineſs, ver. 7.

Ver. 2. This is the Land that yet remains.] To be ſubdued hereafter.

All the Borders of the Philiſtines.] Who lay in the South-Weſt Part of Canaan, near the Sea.

And all Geſhuri.] Which was a City, and a Country, in the North-Eaſt, not far from Hermon; belonging to the Lot of the Tribe of Manaſſeh. See Deut. iii. 14.

Ver. 3. From Sihor, which is before Egypt.] He deſcribes more largely the Borders of the Philiſtines; whoſe Country extended along the Sea Coaſt, South and North; from Sihor, which was a little Stream from one of the Branches of Nile; whereby Paleſtine was bounded on that Side. See Gen. xv. 18. and Voſſius de Orig. & Progr. Idolol. Lib. 2. Cap. 74.

Even unto the Borders of Ekron Northward.] A famous City among the Philiſtines, where Baal-zebub was worſhipped, called in the New Teſtament the Prince of the Devils (or Dæmons) becauſe he was the principal God of the People of Paleſtine. This City was given to the Tribe of Judah at firſt, xv. 45. afterwards to the Tribe of Dan, xix. tho' neither of them could get the Poſſeſſion of it.

Which is counted to the Canaanite.] For the Philiſtines were not original Inhabitants of this Country, which belonged to the Off-ſpring of Canaan, the youngeſt Son of Ham; whereas the Philiſtines were deſcended from Miſraim, his ſecond Son; who expelled the Avites out of this Country; as we read Deut. ii. 23. And ſee my Annotations on Gen. x. 14, 19.

Five Lords of the Philiſtines.] Which Country was under the Government of five Lords, as they are conſtantly called in Scripture; in the Hebrew, Seraim, or Seranaim; which ſeems to be an antient Phœnician Word (the ſame with Sarim) for a Ruler of a Province, or City. The LXX call them Σατραπαι, and the Vulgar Latin, Reguli, petty Princes. But they are never called Melakim, i. e. Kings, in Scripture, as the reſt of the Princes of Canaan are. Which inclines me to think, that their Government was not ſo abſolute, as that of the reſt of the Kings of Canaan. Only we read in future Times, that Achiſh was King of Gath; having it ſeems, in David's Days, made himſelf more abſolute than the former Lords of that Place.

The Gazathites, and the Aſhdothites, the Eſhkalonites, the Gittites, and the Ekronites.] Theſe People had their Names from the five principal Cities in this Country, where they inhabited; which are commonly known.

Alſo the Avites.] Theſe were a People mixed with them, being a Remnant (as I ſaid before) of the ancient Inhabitants of this Country. But there was no diſtinct Lord of them, there being but five in all; and ſo many without one over theſe. Some have confounded them with the Hivites; but their Name is quite different in the Hebrew, and ſo is their Country. For the Hivites lived in Hermon in the North; and theſe here in the Weſt. From whence tho' they were driven by the Caphtorites (Deut. ii. 23.) yet ſome of them, it ſeems, remained; as ſeveral of the Canaanites did, when the Iſraelites diſpoſſeſſed them of their Country. See Bochartus in his Phaleg, Lib. 4. Cap. 36. who thinks they were not the Off-ſpring of Canaan; but it is manifeſt they inhabited Part of the Country belonging to him: For Sidon was the Firſt-born of Canaan, who was ſettled on that Coaſt; and the Border of the Canaanites is ſaid to be from thence unto Gaza, Gen. x. 19.

Ver. 4. From the South.] Of the Philiſtines Country.

All the Land of the Canaanites.] All that Tract of Land which belonged to the People properly called Canaanites; who lived upon the Sea-Coaſt.

And

And Merah.] We find no mention of this Place elſewhere: Some tranſlate it, a Cave.

That is beſides the Sidonians.] Who were in the Northern Point of that Sea-Coaſt.

Unto Aphek.] See xii. 18. Where I obſerved there were two Cities of this Name; but it is moſt reaſonable here to underſtand that in the Tribe of Aſher; whoſe King tho' Joſhua had ſlain, he had not taken his Country.

To the Borders of the Amorites.] Who were in theſe Parts: For they being a mighty People, had diſperſed themſelves, not only in the Eaſt, and in the South; but in theſe Northern Regions.

Ver. 5. And the Land of the Giblites.] A People inhabiting a City called Gebal, and the Country about it, near to Tyre and Sidon; as appears from Ezek. xxvii. 9. and in 1 Kings v. 18. they are mentioned as Stone-Cutters ſent by Hiram King of Tyre to King Solomon. See alſo Pſal. lxxxiii. 7.

And all Lebanon toward the Sun-riſing.] They extended their Conqueſts thus far, xi. 17. but could not ſubdue the Eaſtern Part of this Country.

From Baal-Gad under Mount Hermon, unto the entring into Hamath.] concerning Baal-Gad, ſee xi. 17. and concerning the entering into Hamath, Numb. xxxiv. 8.

Ver. 6. All the Inhabitants of the Hill Country.] In the Northern Parts of the Land.

From Lebanon.] This ſhews what hilly Country he ſpeaks of.

Unto Miſrephath-maim.] A Place before-mentioned, xi. 8. where, as I obſerved, ſome render it Hot Waters, or Baths: For Sharaph ſignifies to burn, and Maim is Waters. And I may add, there are thoſe that think they were Lime Kilns, others Glaſs-Furnaces; but moſt likely Salt-Pits.

And all the Sidonians.] Who were near to the Inhabitants of Libanus, Weſtward upon the Sea.

Them will I drive out before the Children of Iſrael.] If they perſiſted conſtant in his Worſhip and Service. Which they did not; and therefore we never read that the Sidonians were conquered by the Iſraelites; and the People of Lebanon were only made Tributaries in the Days of David and Solomon.

Only.] Or rather therefore, as the Word Rak ſometimes ſignifies. See ch. i. ver. ult.

Divide thou it by Lot unto the Children of Iſrael for an Inheritance.] Tho' they be not yet driven out, yet, ſince I have promiſed to expel them, aſſign all the fore-mentioned Countries to the Children of Iſrael by Lot, as the Inheritance I have beſtowed upon them. Which gave them a ſtrong Aſſurance they ſhould have all this Land; both becauſe God had given it to them for an Inheritance, and ordered it to be divided by Lot.

As I have commanded them.] Or, as I now command thee, and give thee Authority to do.

Ver. 7. Now therefore divide this Land for an Inheritance, unto the Nine Tribes, and the Half Tribe of Manaſſeh.] Both that which was conquered, and that which remained unconquered, was to be divided, that every Tribe might know what belonged to them, by God's Gift; and be encouraged to attempt the Conqueſt of it, when they were able; and be preſerved from entring into any Covenant or Society with thoſe, who kept their Inheritance from them; and likewiſe hinder the Unconquered People from joining their Forces together to recover their Country, the Iſraelites inhabiting the Cities and Fields that lay between them.

Ver. 8. With whom.] That is with the other half of the Tribe before-mentioned.

The Reubenites and Gadites have received their Inheritance, which Moſes gave them beyond Jordan Eaſtward.] Numb. xxxii. 33, &c.

Even as Moſes the Servant of the Lord gave them.] Which he did by Order from God; and therefore they were not to be diſturbed in their Poſſeſſion, Deut. iii. 18.

Here the Words of God to Joſhua (ver. 1.) end; and in the next Verſe the Writer of this Book begins to deſcribe the Country which God ordered to be given to the forenamed two Tribes and an half, that there might be no future Diſpute about this Diviſion; but it might be held as good, as that which was made by Lot among the reſt of the Tribes.

Ver. 9. From Aroer that is upon the Brink of the River Arnon, and the City that is in the midſt of the River.] See xii. 2. and Deut. iii. 16.

And all the Plain of Medeba unto Dibon.] Theſe are two Cities which the Amorites took from the Moabites (as we read Numb. xxi. 30.) and the Iſraelites took from them when they conquered Sihon their King. The former of them was in the Portion of the Reubenites; the other of the Gadites: And when the Ten Tribes were carried Captive, they returned into the Poſſeſſion of the Moabites again. For Iſaiah ſpeaks of them as belonging to Moab, xv. 2. and ſo doth Jeremiah, xlviii. 22. The Plain of Medeba ſeems to be the ſame with the Plain of Moab.

Ver 10. And all the Cities of Sihon King of the Amorites, which reigned in Heſhbon, unto the Border of the Children of Ammon.] See Numb. xxi. 24, 25, &c.

Ver. 11. And Gilead, and the Border of the Geſhurites, and Maachathites.] Geſhur and Maacha were two Cities near Mount Hermon, in the extreme Bounds of this Country Northward; whoſe Inhabitants the Iſraelites could not drive out (ver. 13.) and yet their Land was divided among them.

And all Mount Hermon, and all Baſhan, unto Salcah.] See all this Verſe explained, xii. 5. I ſhall only add, that Maacah was in the Tribe of Manaſſeh, and is the City which Ptolomy calls Epicæos. Which Name the Chaldee Paraphraſt uſes both here and xii. 4, 5. and Deut. iii. 14. inſtead of Maacha; as Bochart obſerves, L. 2. Phaleg. Cap. 6.

Ver. 12. All the Kingdom of Og in Baſhan, which reigned in Aſhtaroth and in Edrei, who remained of the Remnant of the Giants. See xii. 4. and Deut. iii. 11.

For these did Moses smite, and cast them out.] These Rephaim (which we translate Giants) were perfectly conquered, and rooted out by Moses. They were smitten in Abraham's Time, by Chedarlaomer, Gen. xiv. 5. but recovered Strength so much, that their Country, when Moses conquered it, was called the Land of Giants, Deut. iii. 13.

Ver. 13. Nevertheless, the Children of Israel expelled not the Geshurites and Maachathites.] See Ver. 2.

But the Geshurites and the Maachathites dwelt among the Israelites unto this Day.] For Joshua growing old (Ver. 1.) made no further Conquest, but left this People unsubdued, as Moses also had done.

Ver. 14. Only unto the Tribe of Levi he gave no Inheritance.] For the Tythes of the whole Country were instead of their Portion in Land, Deut. xviii. 2. And this is set down here by Joshua, as formerly by Moses, to shew that they had as indisputable a Right to the Tythes, as their Brethren had to the Land.

The Sacrifices of the LORD God of Israel, made by Fire, are their Inheritance.] That is, the Inheritance of the Priests; for the whole Tribe of Levi had nothing to do with them. See Numb. xviii. where the Portion of the Priests and of the Levites is exactly set down. And see Ver. 33. of this Chapter, and xiv. 3. xviii. 7.

As he said unto them.] See Numb. xviii. 20, 21. where this is distinctly said, both with respect to the Priests and to the Levites.

Ver. 15. And Moses gave unto the Tribe of the Children of Reuben, Inheritance, according to their Families.] Having said in general what Moses gave to the two Tribes and an half, he proceeds to set down in particular, what Share each of them had in this Country: That so, they might no more quarrel among themselves about their Portion, than the nine Tribes and half quarrel with them all. And first, he mentions what Part of the Land was given to Reuben; which was divided into as many Portions, as they had Families.

Ver. 16. Their Coast was from Aroer, that is on the Bank of Arnon, &c.] See ver. 9. Aroer itself was in the Tribe of Gad, Numb. xxxii. 34. unto which the Portion of the Reubenites reached.

Ver. 17. Heshbon, and all the Cities that are in the Plain.] He means the Plain before mentioned, ver. 9.

Dibon.] It is said plainly in Numb. xxxii. 34. that it belonged to the Gadites; for it was, as Masius well judges, in the Confines of both Tribes; and so was inhabited by both. Which is to be said also of Heshbon, here ascribed to the Reubenites; but in xxi. 39. is said to be a City of the Levites in the Tribe of Gad. And so we read also in 1 Chron. vi. ult. And this is still more evident; for Heshbon, which in this Verse is reckoned to the Reubenites, in the 26th Verse of this very Chapter, is said to be given to the Tribe of Gad; which is a Demonstration they had it between them.

Bamoth-baal, and Beth-baal-meon.] We read of Bamoth not far from this Country, Numb. xxi. 19. but no where else of Bamoth-baal; which, it is probable, was some high Place where Baal was worshipped; for we read of high Places in this Country, Numb. xxi. 28. We find mention of Baal-meon in many Places, particularly Numb. xxxii. 38. where it is said to be given to this Tribe. And the Addition of Beth to it, signifies there was some House, that is, Temple of Baal in this Place.

Ver. 18. And Jahaza.] Here they fought with Sihon. See Numb. xxi. 23.

And Kedemoth.] From whence Moses sent friendly Messengers to Sihon, to desire a peaceable Passage thro' his Country, Deut. iii. 26.

And Mephaath.] This, with the two foregoing, were Levitical Cities in the Tribe of Reuben, xxi. 36, 37. 1 Chron. vi. 78, 79.

Ver. 19. And Kirjathaim and Sibmah.] These two are mentioned in Numb. xxxii. 37, 38. as given to the Reubenites.

And Zareth-shahar.] We do not read of this City any where else.

In the Mount of the Valley.] In the Mount which overlooked the great Plain before-mentioned; which may be supposed to be one of the Mountains of Abarim, where this City, and perhaps the two former, were seated.

Ver. 20. And Baal-Peor.] It seems to have had its Name from the filthy Idol which was there worshipped by the Moabites, Numb. xxv. 3, 5. See Deut. xxxiv. 6.

And Ashdod-Pisgah and Beth-Jeshimoth.] See xii. 3.

Ver. 21. And all the Cities of the Plain.] As well as those mentioned in the Mountain which overlooked it, Ver. 19.

And all the Kingdom of Sihon King of the Amorites.] That is, all the fore-mentioned Places belonged to the Kingdom of Sihon. But they had not all his Kingdom given them; for it was shared between them and the Gadites, as appears from Ver. 27.

Whom Moses smote with the Princes of Midian.] Not in the War with Sihon, mentioned Numb. xxi. but in another War after that, undertaken by a particular Command of God, Numb. xxxi.

Evi, and Rekem, and Zur, and Hur, and Reba.] Who are mentioned as killed in that War, Numb. xxxi. 8.

Which were Dukes of Sihon.] This is the Reason why they are here mentioned, because, tho' they lived in Midian, yet they were Tributaries to Sihon; and, it is likely, assisted him in his War with Israel, in which tho' they then escaped, yet afterward they were slain by them.

Dwelling in the Country.] It is uncertain whether he meant that Sihon had given them some Place in his Country to dwell in, (that they might be ready on all Occasions to assist him with their Forces) or, that they were settled in the Country of Midian; whereas some of that People were unsettled, and moved from Place to Place, like to the ancient Nomades. However it was, they were such great Men in Midian, that they are called Kings, Numb. xxxi. 8. as here they are called Princes; but much inferior to Sihon, whom they served only as great Commanders under him. So our Tranſlators, I ſuppoſe, underſtood it, which made them render the Hebrew Word Neſichi by the Engliſh Word Dukes; which we elſewhere tranſlate Nobles, in Pſal. lxxxiii. 13.

Ver. 22. Balaam alſo the Son of Beor the Sooth-ſayer.] He had been a Prophet, but degenerated into a Sooth-ſayer, or Diviner, (ſee Numb. xxii. 5, 6, 7, 8.) and became a Prophet again for the ſake of Iſrael.

Did the Children of Iſrael ſlay with a Sword, among them that were ſlain by them.] It is hard to give an Account why he is here mentioned; unleſs we ſuppoſe him to have been an Adviſer of Sihon, and thoſe Dukes that joined with him to undertake the War; as it is certain he was of the Midianites to draw in the Iſraelites to commit Idolatry, Numb. xxv. 17.

Ver. 23. And the Border of the Children of Reuben, was Jordan, and the Border thereof, &c.] This River was the Bounds of their Country Weſtward.

Ver. 24. And Moſes gave Inheritance unto the Tribe of Gad, &c.] As he had done to the Reubenites, Ver. 15. See there.

Ver. 25. And their Coaſt was Jazer.] See Numb. xxi. 32. and xxxii. 35.

And all the Cities of Gilead.] That lay next to Jazer: For half of Gilead was given to the Children of Manaſſeh, Ver. 31.

And half of the Land of the Children of Ammon.] The Children of Iſrael took nothing from them, but were expreſly forbidden to meddle with their Country, Deut. ii. 19. He ſpeaks therefore of that Part of their Country which Sihon had taken from them (as he did Part of the Moabites Country, Numb. xxi. 26.) and the Iſraelites, having vanquiſhed Sihon, juſtly poſſeſſed from Arnon to Jabbok; as Jepthah repreſents to the Ammonites, when they demanded this Land as belonging to them; when the Iſraelites had enjoyed it near three hundred Years, Judg. xi. 13, 22, &c.

Unto Aroer.] This was the Bounds of that Country taken from the Ammonites by Sihon, from Aroer unto Jabbok; for Aroer was ſeated upon Arnon before-mentioned, Judg. xi. 13.

That is before Rabbah.] Over againſt Rabbah, the chief City of the Ammonites Country; which was in the North Part of it, as Aroer in the South.

Ver. 26. And from Heſhbon.] See Ver. 17.

Unto Ramath-mizpeh.] The ſame with Ramath-Gilead, of which we read xx. 8. and many other Places. It ſeems to be the ſame Place which is called Mizaeh of Gilead, where Jephthah the Gileadite lived, Judg. xi. 29, 34.

And Betonim.] We know no more of this Place, than that it was, in all likelihood, a City in the North Part of this Tribe, as Ramath-Gilead was; and Heſhbon in the South.

And from Mahanaim.] This was a City built in that Place where Jacob ſaw the Camps of Angels, Gen. xxxii. 1, 2. It was not far from the River Jabbok, as appears from that Chapter, Ver. 22. This City was very conſiderable in After-times; Iſhboſheth, who reigned over Iſrael after Saul, having his Reſidence here; and David making ſome Stay here when he fled from Abſalom, 2 Sam. ii. 8, 12. xvii. 27. It was one of the Levitical Cities, xxi. 37.

Unto Debir.] There was another City of this Name in the Tribe of Judah, xv. 15, 49. But this was (as S. Hierom and Euſebius tell us) a City of the Ammonites upon Jordan.

Ver. 27. And in the Valley Beth-aram, and Beth-nimrah.] Having mentioned the Frontier Places, he comes to ſpeak of thoſe Cities which were in the midſt of the Country. And theſe two are mentioned, Numb. xxxii. 36. The latter of which, here called Beth-nimrah (Domus Pardorum, as Bochart interprets it) is ſimply called Nimra in the third Verſe of that Chapter. And the Waters of Nimrim (Iſa. xv. 6.) ſeem to have been in the ſame Place; which Moſes and Joſhua ſay belonged to the Gadites; but Iſaiah and Jeremiah call it a City of the Moabites. Who in the Days of thoſe Prophets, after the Ten Tribes were carried captive, recovered thoſe Places. See Bochartus in his Hierozoicon, P. 1. Lib. 3. Cap. 7.

And Succoth.] Which was the Place where Jacob fixed, after he had paſſed over Jabbok, in his Return from Padan-Aram, Gen. xxxiii. 17.

And Zaphon.] A Place which S. Hierom ſaith lay upon the River Jordan.

The reſt of the Kingdon of Sihon King of Heſhbon.] That is, all but that which was given to the Reubenites.

Jordan and his Border.] For Inſtance, the Country bordering upon Jordan.

Even unto the Edge of the Sea of Cinneroth, on the other Side Jordan Eaſtward.] To the extreme Part of the Lake, in After-times called Geneſareth; where the River Jordan came out of it on the South-Eaſt.

Ver. 28. This is the Inheritance of the Children of Gad, after their Families, the Cities, and their Villages.] Which are not all named, but they were in the Region here deſcribed.

Ver. 29. And Moſes gave Inheritance unto the Half Tribe of Manaſſeh, &c.] The Country which they conquered on the other Side Jordan, being too large for the Reubenites and Gadites alone, Moſes beſtowed what follows upon the Half Tribe of Manaſſeh; who did not deſire it, as far as I can find, (ſee Numb. xxxii. 1, 2.) but were thought fit to be joined with the other two Tribes, becauſe they were very numerous, (Numb. xxvi. 34.) and, it is likely, had great Store of Cattle, as the other had.

Ver. 30. And their Coaſt was from Mahanaim.] Mentioned before, Ver. 26.

All Baſhan, all the Kingdom of Og King of Baſhan.] This Kingdom conſiſted of three Parts, (Deut. iii. 13.) half of Gilead, Baſhan, and the Region of Argob: All which ſometimes are comprehended under the Name of Baſhan, becauſe it was the principal Part of this Kingdom.

And all the Towns of Jair, which are in Baſhan.] This is an Explication of what went before; for theſe Towns were in the fore-named Kingdon of Baſhan, and not diſtinct from it. Why they are called the Towns of Jair, Moſes gives an Account, Numb xxxii. 41.

Threeſcore Cities.] Which were in the Region of Argob, as we read Deut. iii. 4, 14.

Ver. 13. And half Gilead.] The other half, that was not given to the Gadites, ver. 25. This alſo is but an Explication of what he ſaid at the firſt; for Gilead was not diſtinct from the Kingdom of Og King of Baſhan; but a Part of it.

And Aſtaroth and Edrei, Cities of the Kingdom of Og in Baſhan.] Royal Cities, as is commonly thought, from xii. 4.

Were pertaining unto the Children of Machir, the Son of Manaſſeh.] All the Poſterity of Manaſſeh came from Machir; for he had no other Son beſide him, Numb. xxxii. 29. unto whoſe Children, that is, to one half of them, (as it is explained in the following Words) he gave this Part of that Kingdom, Deut. iii. 15.

Even to the one half of the Children of Machir, by their Families.] Among whom Jair and his Poſterity had the Honour to be reckoned, tho' he was of the Tribe of Judah; becauſe he was his Grandchild by his Daughter, and ſo inſtrumental in conquering this Country, that he had his Inheritance given him here, 1 Chron. ii. 21. &c. Numb. xxxiv. 41, 42.

Ver. 32. Theſe are the Countries which Moſes did diſtribute for Inheritance in the Plains of Moab, on the other Side Jordan by Jericho Eaſtward.] Which Countries, with their Bounds and Limits, are thus particularly deſcribed, that every Tribe might reſt ſatisfied with God's Appointment, and not invade their Brethrens Territories.

Ver. 33. But unto the Tribe of Levi, Moſes gave not any Inheritance: The LORD God of Iſrael was their Inheritance, as he ſaid unto them.] This had been noted before in this very Chapter, ver, 14. and is again noted, xiv. 3, 4. and again xviii. 7. Which frequent Repetition was for the Honour of this Tribe; and that the People might have the greater Regard to them, and Care of them.

CHAP. XIV.

Ver. 1. AND theſe are the Countries.] Viz. Thoſe mentioned in the fifteenth, ſixteenth, and following Chapters; for this Chapter is but a kind of Preface to the Diviſion of the Land.

Which the Children of Iſrael inherited in the Land of Canaan.] Which was now conquered by Joſhua; as that of Sihon and Og had been by Moſes.

Which Eleazar the Prieſt, and Joſhua the Son of Nun, and the Heads of the Fathers of the Tribes of the Children of Iſrael diſtributed for Inheritance unto them.] According to the Command given by God to Moſes, Numb. xxxiv. 17, 18. Where the Names of the twelve Heads of the Tribes, or the Princes (as they are there called) are ſet down, ver, 19, 20, &c.

Ver. 2. By Lot was their Inheritance.] To take away all Occaſion of Controverſy, the Matter being determined by God.

As the LORD commanded by the Hand of Moſes.] Numb. xxvi. 55, 56. xxxiii. 54.

For the Nine Tribes, and for the Half Tribe.] Who were to be provided for in the Land of Canaan, as the other, it here follows, had been on the other Side Jordan.

Ver. 3. For Moſes had given the Inheritance of two Tribes and an Half, on the other Side Jordan.] This ſeems to argue a ſtrong Faith, which the nine Tribes and Half had in the Promiſe of God; that they were contented to ſee their Brethren put in actual Poſſeſſion of their Inheritance; when they were only in Hope of their Portion.

But unto the Levites gave he no Inheritance among them.] Neither on this Side Jordan, nor on the other; as was ſaid before, xiii. 33. and mentioned here again for the Reaſon following.

Ver. 4. For the Children of Joſeph were two Tribes, Maneſſeh and Ephraim.] The Privilege of the Firſt-born, was transferred from Reuben's to Joſeph (1 Chron. v. 1, 2.) from whoſe two Sons ſprung two Tribes: So that there were ſtill twelve Tribes, without reckoning Levi for one, Gen. xlviii. 5, 6.

Therefore they gave no Part to the Levites in the Land.] Becauſe the Children of Joſeph ſucceeded in their room as the Vulgar Latin tranſlates the foregoing Words; that is, to make up the Number of Twelve Tribes.

Save Cities to dwell in.] Not for a Poſſeſſion, as Conrad Pellicanus obſerves, but only for an Habitation: For they could not ſell them, as their Brethren might their Poſſeſſions.

With their Suburbs for their Cattle, and for their Subſtance.] See Numb. xxxv. 2, 3, &c.

Ver. 5. As the LORD commanded Moſes, ſo the Children of Iſrael did.] That is aſſigned them Cities and Suburbs, xxi. 1, 2, &c.

And they divided the Land.] That is, when Eleazar, Joſhua, and the Princes had divided it.

Ver. 6. Then the Children of Judah.] Before they went to caſt Lots for the Diviſion of the Land, ſome of the Children of Judah interpoſed in the behalf of Caleb; coming along with him, I ſuppoſe, as Witneſſes to the Truth of what he alledged.

Came unto Joſhua in Gilgal.] Where the Tabernacle as yet was; for Joſhua had not removed his Camp from thence; and accordingly, here the Diviſion of the Land began to be made; tho' it was finiſhed at Shiloh, as we read ch. xviii.

And Caleb, the Son of Jephunneh the Kenezite, ſaid unto him.] This ſhews that he was the principal Perſon concerned in this Addreſs to Joſhua; tho' the reſt perhaps, who came along with him, were not only Witneſſes to the Truth of his Pretenſions, but came to deſire Joſhua to begin the Diviſion of the Land; the Tribe of Judah, now that the Reubenites were provided for, being the eldeſt of thoſe that wanted their Portion. Among whom, Caleb was not only a conſiderable Perſon, but one of thoſe Princes who were appointed by God to aſſiſt in the Diviſion of the Land, Numb. xxxiv. 19. and therefore would not be a Judge in his own Caſe, but have it ſettled before by Joſhua, the ſupreme Governour of God's People. Why he is called the Kenezite, is not eaſy to reſolve; nor is it certain, whether Caleb or Jephunneh be called the Kenezite. But it comes to the ſame, whether the one or the other be ſo called, and the Hebrew Words will be either Conſtruction; yet St. Hierom and the LXX. take it to belong to Caleb, ſome of whoſe Anceſtors were called Kenez; which was certainly a Name very common in their Family. See xv. 17. and Judg. i. 13. And there is no Improbability in it, that Kenez was the Family of Jephunneh, from whence both he and his Son were called Kenezites.

Thou knoweſt the Thing that the LORD ſaid unto Moſes, the Man of God.] He gives him this Title, that what he order'd might be thought of greater Authority, i. e. a Divine Command.

Concerning me and thee, in Kadeſh-Barnea.] Which he was confident Joſhua could not but remember, being concerned at it as well as himſelf. See Numb. xiv. 24, 30, 38.

Ver. 7. Forty Years old was I when Moſes the Servant of the LORD ſent me from Kadeſh-Barnea, to ſpy out the Land.] He mentions this, partly to ſhew that Moſes took care to ſend Perſons of ſome Experience, able to make Obſervations, and judge aright; as well as in their full Strength of Body, able to travel and take Pains. Such, it is probable, were all the reſt, as well as he; Men grown up every way to Maturity, both of Judgment and bodily Vigour.

And I brought him Word again, as it was in my Heart.] Delivered my true Opinion freely and ſincerely, without either Fear or Flattery, Numb. xiii. 30.

Ver. 8. Nevertheleſs, my Brethren that went with me, made the Heart of the People melt.] Numb. xiii. 31, 32. xiv. 1, &c. which did not diſcourage him at all from ſpeaking the Truth.

But I wholly followed the LORD my God.] This Teſtimony GOD himſelf gave him, Numb. xiv. 24. which he might therefore mention without any Breach of Modeſty, it being the Ground of his preſent Petition.

Ver. 9. And Moſes ſware on that Day, ſaying, Surely the Land whereon thy Feet have trodden, ſhall be thine Inheritance, and thy Childrens for ever, becauſe thou haſt wholly followed the LORD my God.] See Deut. i. 34, 35, 36. This was firſt pronounced by GOD himſelf, and that with an Oath, Numb. xiv. 21, 24. See my Notes there. Some think his treading on it with his Feet, was his taking Poſſeſſion, and being admitted the Owner of that Land; according to the preſent Notion of Civil Lawyers, who will have poſſeſſio to be as much as pedis poſitio. But this is only a modern Conceit.

Ver. 10. And now, behold, the LORD hath kept me alive, as he ſaid, theſe forty and five Years.] Thus far had he fulfilled his Words, in preſerving him alive till the Country was conquer'd, wherein he promis'd him a certain Portion; ſo that he wanted only actual Poſſeſſion of it.

Even ſince the LORD ſpake this Word unto Moſes while the Children of Iſrael wandered in the Wilderneſs.] Which was thirty and eight Years.

And now, lo, I am this Day fourſcore and five Years old.] It ſeems then that ſeven Years were paſs'd ſince they came into Canaan, before they began to divide the Land; which was not till a Year after the War was ended. See xi. 18. As for the Time that followed between the complete Diviſion of the Land, and the Death of Joſhua, it is not ſet down in this Book; nor have we Words in it, from whence to make a probable Conjecture about it, but only thoſe xxiii. 1. where it is ſaid, A long time after God had given them Reſt, Joſhua waxed old, &c. Which ſhews it is not to be reſtrain'd to ſo ſhort a Time as ſeven, or ten Years, but may rather be thought twenty, as Du Pin computes it.

Ver. 11. As yet I am as ſtrong this Day, as I was in the Day that Moſes ſent me.] As able, both in Body and Mind, to undertake, and to diſpatch any Buſineſs, as he was forty and five Years ago: Which was a wonderful Bleſſing of God; and an Argument his Petition ſhould be granted; becauſe he wanted neither Courage nor Strength, to aſſault and take the Place he deſired, if it were ſtill in the Canaanites Hands; or to defend and preſerve it, if it were already conquer'd.

As my Strength was then, even ſo is my Strength now, for War, both to go out and to come in.] This is a Repetition of what he affirm'd; as is uſual, when a Thing is certain and undoubted. Concerning this Phraſe, go out and come in, ſee Numb. xxvii. 17. And this ſhews the Force and Efficacy of GOD's Promiſe, confirm'd by an Oath; which (as Dr. Jackſon well obſerves) was as remarkable in preſerving his Life and Strength, as in bringing Mortality on others, who he ſware ſhould not enter into Canaan.

Ver. 12. Now therefore give me this Mountain, whereof the LORD ſpake in that Day.] The mountainous Country where Hebron lay, xi. 21. which was the Place promis'd to him, as I obſerv'd upon Numb. xiv. 24.

For thou heareſt in that Day.] The LXX. and the Vulgar Latin refer this to what goes before, and make the Senſe to be, as if he had ſaid, in thy Hearing, GOD promiſed this Country to me.

How the Anakims were there, and that the Cities were great and ſtrong.] The Vulgar makes the Senſe to be, where the Anakims are, &c. See Numb. xiii. 28, 32, 33. He mentions Cities in the Plural Number; for we read of two other, beſide Hebron, which they poſſeſs'd. xi. 21.

If ſo be the LORD will be with me.] Theſe are not Words of doubting; but a pious Acknowledgment that nothing could be ſucceſsfully enterprized, without GOD's gracious Aſſiſtance; of which, no queſtion, he was very confident. The Targum hath it, If ſo be the Word of the LORD will be my Helper: Which is the conſtant Language of that Paraphraſt in all this Book, upon ſuch Occaſions. See i. 9, 17. vi. 27. x. 42. xxiii. 3, 10.

Then I ſhall be able to drive them out, as the LORD ſaid.] Which whether it was done now, or before, when Joſhua conquer'd the Country, is a Diſpute. See x. 37.

Ver. 13. And Joshua bleſſed him.] Acknowledg'd his Deſerts, and beſeech'd God to proſper him in his Undertaking, and gave his Conſent that he ſhould have this Country: For then God is ſaid to bleſs a Man, when he beſtows his Benefits upon him; and we do not bleſs others to purpoſe, unleſs we do what they deſire. Accordingly it here follows:

And gave unto Caleb the Son of Jephunneh, Hebron for an Inheritance.] That is, the Country about it: For Hebron itſelf was a City of the Prieſts, xxi. 11, 13. where it is expreſly ſaid ver. 12. the Fields and the Villages of it were given to Caleb.

Ver. 14 Hebron therefore became the Inheritance of Caleb unto this Day, becauſe he wholly followed the LORD God of Iſrael.] God rewarded his Fidelity by this ſingular Gift, which he beſtowed upon him before the Land was divided by Lot.

Ver. 15. And the Name of Hebron before was Kirjath- Arba.] See upon Gen. xxiii. 2.

Which Arba was a great Man among the Anakims.] Of great Authority, as well as Strength. So the Word Gadol is uſed, Gen. xxiv. 35. and ſo we call Men at this Day, who are of great Power, by the Name of Magnates. He was the Father of Anak, xv. 13. and xxi. 11. who either built this City, or fortify'd it, or made it his Royal Seat (being a kind of Prince among them) and perhaps was here bury'd; which made it be call'd his City. See upon Numb. xiii. 33.

And the Land had Reſt from War.] Which gave them Liberty to divide the Land. This was ſaid before, xi. ult. and now repeated, perhaps to ſhew that what is here reported concerning Caleb, was done ſome time ago, at the End of the War; and now mention'd to ſhew that he held this Portion of Land by a Divine Donation, before the Country was divided by Lot.

CHAP. XV.

Ver. 1. THIS then was the Lot of the Tribe of the Children of Judah.] The firſt Lot that came up was for the Tribe of Judah; in Honour of it, and that the Prophecy of Jacob might be fulfill'd concerning his Pre-eminence among his Brethren. The Manner of drawing theſe Lots, ſee upon Numb. xxvi. 55, 56. Which it is apparent could not be done, without a precedent Survey of the whole Country. A Deſcription of which being laid before Joſhua, he, and Eleazer, and the Princes, divided it into nine Shares and a half, as equal as they could; conſidering not merely the Quantity of Ground, but the Quality alſo, and Goodneſs of the Soil. This Survey is not mention'd here; but it is afterward, xviii. 4. and therefore is to be ſuppoſed when they began to divide the Land.

By their Families.] The Lot was only of ſo much Land (bound as follows) for the whole Tribe. Unto every Family of which a Portion was aſſign'd by Joſhua, and the reſt, who were appointed to ſee that none were neglected, and that they had every one a juſt Proportion. Therefore the Lot for each Tribe was not ſo unalterably fix'd and determin'd, but that it might be enlarged or diminiſh'd; by taking from that Tribe which had too much, and giving it to that which had too little. See xix. 9.

Even to the Border of Edom, the Wilderneſs of Zin, Southward, was the uttermoſt Part of the South Coaſt.] See Numb. xxxiv. 2. Edom lay upon the Wilderneſs of Zin; and the Lot of Judah extended as far as that; which was the South Part of the Land. And indeed the Tribe of Judah (as Conr. Pellicanus obſerves) had half of the South Part of the whole Land of Canaan for their Portion; as the Tribes of Joſeph (Ephraim and Manaſſeh) had the North Part; with whom the reſt of the Tribes were intermix'd, viz. Simeon, Benjamin, and Dan, with the Tribe of Judah; and Iſſachar, Zabulon, Aſher, and Naphtali with the Portion of Joſeph.

Ver. 2. And their South Border was from the Shore of the Salt Sea.] The foregoing Verſe was a ſhort Deſcription of the Length of Judah's Country: Now he deſcribes the Bounds of it on all Quarters: And here ſaith, that the Salt, or Dead Sea was the Bounds of it on the South-Eaſt. For ſo it was, as here follows:

From the Bay that looketh Southward] In the Hebrew from the Tongue; which ſignifies either a Creek or a Promontory, as ſome underſtand it, pointing to the South-Eaſt. See Numb. xxxiv. 3.

Ver. 3. And it went out to the South-ſide of Maalehacrabbim.] There was a Mountain ſo call'd, from the Multitude of Scorpions that were there. It lay at the End of this Lake, Numb. xxxiv. 4. From whence the Country of Acrabatene had its name, as Bochart thinks, (ſee Hierozoicon, P. 2. Lib. 5. Cap. 29.) which lay near the Country of Edom, 1 Maccab. v. 3.

And paſſed along to Zin, and aſcended upon the South Side unto Kadeſh-barnea.] This is the very Deſcription of the Southern Bounds of the promis'd Land, Numb. xxxiv. 4.

And paſſed along to Hezron.] There is nothing ſaid of this Place in the Book of Numbers; but it appears to have been a City from the 25th Verſe of this Chapter.

And went up to Adar.] This Place is mention'd in the forenamed Numb. xxxiv. 4. and call'd Hazaradar. So that Hezron lay between Kadeſh barnea and this Town.

And fetch'd a Compaſs to Karkaa.] This Place is not mention'd in Numbers, or any where elſe; but lay beyond Adar, not in a right Line, but bending towards the Weſt.

Ver. 4. And from thence it paſſed towards Azmon.] This is mention'd in the fore-named Place, Numb. xxxiv. 4.

And went out unto the River of Egypt; and the going out of that Coaſt was at the Sea.] That is, the Mediterranean Sea. See Numb. xxxiv. 5.

This ſhall be your South Coaſt.] From the Tongue of the Salt Sea to the Mediterranean.

Ver.

Ver. 5. And the East Border was the Salt Sea, even unto the End of Jordan.] Having described the Southern Limits, he sets down the Eastern; which beginning where the Southern did, at the Tongue of the Salt Sea, reached to the other End of it, where Jordan falls into this Sea. So that the whole Length of this Sea, from one End of it to the other, was the Eastern Bounds of Judah's Country.

And their Border at the North Quarter, was from the Bay of the Sea, at the uppermost Part of Jordan.] It had its Beginning where the Eastern Border ended, viz. at the Mouth of Jordan, where it runs into the Salt Sea.

Ver. 6. And the Border went up to Beth-hoglah.] A City in the Tribe of Benjamin, xviii. 21.

And passed along by the North of Beth-arabah.] Another City in the same Tribe, xviii. 21. though there was one in this Tribe of the same Name, (ver. 61. of this Chapter) which some take to be the same City, which lay in the Frontier of both Tribes.

And the Border.] That is, this Northern Border.

Went up to the Stone of Bohan, the Son of Reuben.] We find mention made of this Stone again in xviii. 17. where he speaks of the Bounds of the Tribe of Benjamin It was but lately laid here, since the Israelites came into this Country; but by whom, or of what it was a Monument, is not known. It is certain Bohan did not dwell here; for the Reubenites had their Portion on the other Side of Jordan; but perhaps he performed some famous Exploit in this Place, or died and was buried here; being one of those that came over Jordan to assist their Brethren in the Conquest of Canaan.

Ver. 7. And the Border went up towards Debir.] Which is mentioned in no other Place: For it is not the same with that Debir in ver. 15. which was in the South near Hebron; but this in the Northern Parts.

From the Valley of Achor.] Mentioned, vii. 24, 26.

And so Northward looking towards Gilgal.] Having Gilgal on the North of it. Which is to be understood, not of that Gilgal near Jericho, but of that Place called Geliloth, xviii. 17. which was distant from thence, as appears by what follows.

That is before the going up to Adummim.] A Place which stood upon a rising Ground; which some think was in the Tribe of Judah, others of Benjamin.

Which was on the South Side of the River.] Or of the Brook; which some take to be the Brook Cedron.

And the Border passed toward the Waters of En-shemesh, and the Goings-out thereof were at En-rogel.] This Place, it is evident (1 Kings i. 9.) was near Jerusalem; which shews that Gilgal before mentioned, was not the Place where they were now encamped.

Ver. 8. And the Border went up.] For it was an Ascent from the Salt Sea to this Country; especially when they came nigh to this Place.

By the Valley of the Son of Hinnom.] A famous Place on the East Side of Jerusalem; and so delightfully shady, that it invited them to idolatrous Worship in this Valley, whereby it became infamous, 2 Kings xxiii. 10. Jerem. vii. 32. Hinnom, in all Probability, was some eminent Person, in ancient Times, who was the Owner of this Valley: For it is sometimes called the Valley of the Children of Hinnom; which shews his Posterity were planted here. After it was polluted by Idolatry, it became a Place where they threw all their Filth, and Excrements, and dead Carcasses; and where there was a continual Fire, the Jews say, to burn Bones, and such sordid Things, as were thrown here; from whence, they think, it became the Name for Hell-Fire.

Unto the South Side of the Jebusite.] i. e. The City of the Jebusites.

The same is Jerusalem.] Which is called Jebusi, in the last Verse of the eighteenth Chapter, and Jebus Judg. xix. 10. Especially that Part of it fortified by the Jebusites, which was called Mount Sion, and lay on the South of Jerusalem.

And the Border went up to the Top of the Mountain.] Which is thought to be Mount Moriah.

That lieth before the Valley of Hinnom Westward.] It was Westward to the Valley of Hinnom; and so had that Valley on the East of it.

Which is at the End of the Valley of the Giants Northward.] Which Mountain had on the North-part the Valley of Rephaim (as the Word is in the Hebrew) which was in the Tribe of Judah, extending itself from Mount Moriah, as far as Bethlehem, as Josephus tells us.

Ver. 9. And the Border was drawn from the Top of the Hill to the Fountain of the Water Nephtoah.] Where this Fountain, or Well of Water was, cannot be known; for it is no where mentioned but here, and in xviii. 15

And went out to the Cities of Mount Ephron.] This Place also is unknown; for it cannot be that in the Tribe of Ephraim, mentioned 1 Chron xiii. 19.

And the Border was drawn to Baalah, which is Kirjath-jearim.] Called ver. 60. and xviii. 14. Kirjath-baal; there being, it is likely, a Temple of Baal in this Place, whose Name the Israelites changed into Kirjath-jearim; which signifies, urbs sylvarum, because of the goodly Trees hereabouts, which made it the fitter for idolatrous Uses.

Ver. 10. And the Border compassed from Baalah Westward.] Not in a direct Line, but bending toward the West.

Unto Mount Seir.] Not that Mount belonging to the Edomites, but another of that Name.

And passed along unto the Side of Mount Jearim, which is Chesalon on the North Side.] This was a woody Country, as appears from the Name of this Mountain, and from Mount Seir also; which signifies as much as hairy.

And went down to Beth-shemesh.] A known Place in the Tribe of Judah, and a City of the Priests, xxi. 16.

And passed on to Timnah.] Another City in the same Tribe, ver. 17. but afterward given to the Tribe of Dan, xix. 43.

Ver. 11. And the Border went out to the Side of Ekron Northward.] This City belonged to the Philiſtines; but fell to the Lot of Judah, as did alſo Aſhdod and Gaza, Ver. 45, 46, 47. But afterward Ekron was given to the Danites, as the forenamed Place tells us, xix. 43.

And the Border was drawn to Shicron, and paſſed along to Mount Baalah, and went out unto Jabneel.] It cannot now be known where theſe three Places were; only it appears by what follows, that they were not far from the Coaſt of the Philiſtines.

And the Goings-out of the Border were at the Sea.] That is, the Northern Border ended at the Mediterranean Sea; where there was a City called Jamnia; which ſome think the ſame with Jabneel.

Ver. 12. And the Weſt Border was to the great Sea, and the Coaſt thereof.] All along that Coaſt of the Mediterranean, unto the River of Egypt; where the Weſt Border met with the Southern, Ver. 4.

This is the Coaſt of the Children of Judah round about, according to their Families.] That is, thus their Lot was bounded on all Sides, in the firſt Draught of it. Which being afterward found too large, it was contracted into a narrower Compaſs, that more Room might be made for the Tribe of Simeon, who had Part of this Lot given them; as ſome other Places were added out of it, to the Tribes of Benjamin and Dan; as will appear afterwards.

Ver. 13. And unto Caleb the Son of Jephunneh, he gave a Part among the Children of Judah.] Or rather, he (that is, Joſhua) had given him a Part in this Country, which by Lot fell to the Tribe of Judah. See the foregoing Chapter, xiv. 6, 7, &c. where we read how Caleb petitioned for it, and founded his Petition upon a Grant made to him of it, long ago, by GOD himſelf.

According to the Commandment of the LORD to Joſhua.] GOD promiſed it by Moſes; and it appears from theſe Words, that Joſhua had an Order from GOD to make it good.

Even the City of Arba the Father of Anak, which is Hebron.] See xiv. 15. This is here again particularly remembred, and an Addition made to it, for this Reaſon; that Joſhua having deſcribed the Bounds of the Country of Judah, and intending to ſet down the particular Cities which were included in it, and diſtributed among them (as he had juſt before ſaid, Ver. 12.) according to their Families; it might be remembred, that there were two Cities, or rather the Territories about them, given to two Families, antecedent to this Diſtribution made by him, Eleazar and the Princes. Which being a Matter fit to remain for ever upon Record, and to be known to all Poſterity, he inſerts it here at large, in this Deſcription of the Portion of Judah; of which, it is likely, every Family of that Tribe had a Map in their Houſes; that they knowing their Limits, might both preſerve them, and keep within them.

Ver. 14. And Caleb drove thence.] Not by his own Power alone, but by the Confederate Army of the Tribe of Judah and Simeon, (Judg. i. 3, 9, &c.) in which, it is probable, he had a principal Command; and led on that Party, which aſſaulted this City. See x. 36, 37. xi. 21.

The three Sons of Anak, Sheſhai, and Ahiman, and Talmai, the Children of Anak.] Whom he had ſeen five and forty Years ago, and was not at all affrighted at them. See Numb. xiii. 22. and Judg. i. 10, &c.

Ver. 15. And he went up thence to the Inhabitants of Debir.] See x. 38, 39.

And the Name of Debir before was Kirjath-Sepher.] See Judg. i. 11, 12. It is called alſo Kirjath-Sanna, Ver. 49. of this Chapter; which hath the ſame Signification: For Sunna (as Bochart obſerves, Lib. 2. Canaan, Cap. 17.) in the Arabick Language, is Learning, or the Law. The Chaldee there calls it Kirjath-arche; which he tranſlates urbs archivorum, the City where the ancient Records of theſe Nations were kept. All which ſhews the Conjecture of ſome very learned Men is not improbable, who think this City in thoſe Times was the Seat of Learning, as Athens was among the Greeks in future Ages: Inſomuch, that Grotius takes this City to be the ſame with that which Xenophon calls Φοινίκων γυμνάσιον, the School of the Phœnicians. But, as the Word γυμνάσιον in Xenophon's Days did not ſignify a School of Learning, but a Place deſigned for Exerciſes of the Body; ſo we do not read of any famous Place in that Country, to which Men reſorted in his Time for Study.

Ver. 16. And Caleb ſaid.] Made Proclamation, I ſuppoſe, throughout the Army, which he led againſt Debir.

He that ſmiteth Kirjath-Sepher, and taketh it.] Aſſaults this Fortreſs, and poſſeſſeth himſelf of it.

To him will I give Achſah my Daughter to Wife.] With this Place, I ſuppoſe, for her Dowry.

Ver. 17. And Othniel the Son of Kenaz, the Brother of Caleb, took it.] He was ſtirred up by the Spirit of GOD, it is probable, (as he was when he was made Judge of Iſrael, Judg. iii. 9, 10.) to attack this Place with an extraordinary Courage; in which the Providence of GOD appeared (as Caleb hoped it would) in beſtowing his Daughter upon a worthy Perſon, and keeping the Inheritance in his own Tribe.

And he gave him Achſah his Daughter to Wife.] Some think this was not lawful, becauſe he was her Uncle: But this is a Miſtake, for Othniel was not Caleb's Brother, but Kenaz, who was Othniel's Father. For Caleb is conſtantly called the Son of Jephunneh, and Othniel the Son of Kenaz. Therefore they had not the ſame Father, but were very near of Kin; which is all the Word Brother ſignifies in many Places.

Ver. 18. And it came to paſs, as ſhe came unto him.] As ſhe was brought from her Father's Houſe to her Huſband's; according to the accuſtomed manner. See Selden, in his Uxor. Hebr. L. 2. Cap. 11.

That ſhe moved him to aſk of her Father a Field.] Deſired her Huſband, unto whom ſhe thought her Father at this time would deny nothing, nothing, to beſtow a Field upon her. Or, perhaps, ſhe moved him to give her Leave to aſk it of her Father; as ſhe did, either by his Permiſſion, or by his Deſire; who might tell her, it was more proper for her to aſk it, than himſelf.

And ſhe lighted off her Aſs.] Upon Which they rode then in thoſe Countries; having no Horſes, nor Mules, till After-times. And her lighting down, was in Reverence to her Father; unto whom ſhe addreſſed herſelf in an humble Poſture.

And Caleb ſaid to her, What wouldeſt thou?] He ſeems to have prevented her Requeſt; knowing, by her Poſture, ſhe had ſomething to deſire of him. But Ludov. de Dieu takes it quite otherwiſe; that when ſhe came to her Huſband's Houſe, ſhe did not alight from her Aſs, but continued ſtill ſitting upon it. Which her Father obſerving, and aſking her the Reaſon, why ſhe did not come down and go to her Huſband; ſhe told him, ſhe had firſt a thing to beg of him. And thus both the LXX. and the Vulgar tranſlate it, as if ſhe did not alight, but ſighed and cried, ἐκ τῦ ὄνυ, from the Aſs on which ſhe ſat.

Ver. 19. Who anſwered, Give me a Bleſſing.] Beſtow a Gift upon me, as the Word Bleſſing is uſed, Gen. xxxiii. 11. or, make my Happineſs compleat.

For thou haſt given me a South Land.] A dry Country; being both mountainous, and towards the South; that is, towards the Deſarts of Arabia, from whence very hot and ſcorching Winds were wont to blow.

Give me alſo Springs of Water.] A Field hard by, wherein were Springs of Water: For it was not merely the Springs ſhe begged, but the Ground in which they were; as appears from the foregoing Verſe, where ſhe moved her Huſband to aſk a Field.

And he gave her the upper Springs, and the nether Springs.] Whereby that dry Ground might be watered, and made fruitful. He ſeems to have given her more than ſhe deſired; not only thoſe Springs that were in the Mountain, but thoſe which were below alſo. That ſo neither the riſing Ground, nor the Plain, might want Water; as Arias Montanus expounds it.

Ver. 20. This is the Inheritance of the Tribe of the Children of Judah, according to their Families.] Now follows an Account of the Cities within the Lot of this Tribe; which were aſſigned to their ſeveral Families, after Hebron, which was the principal of them (for here David reigned over the Tribe of Judah alone, ſeven Years) was given to Caleb. Which the Jews generally think he did not get into his Poſſeſſion till after the Death of Joſhua; as is related in the Book of Judges. See there, i. 11, 12, 13, &c.

Ver. 21. And the uttermoſt Cities of the Tribe of the Children of Judah.] Thoſe that were in the Confines: for he doth not ſeem to number all that were in the Heart of the Country. So the Jews think; tho' the Truth is, as will appear in the following Part of the Chapter, he only begins with the outmoſt Cities, but afterwards proceeds to thoſe that were in the midſt of the Country.

Towards the Coaſt of Edom Southward.] He begins with thoſe that lay on the South Side of the Country; which was the Border he firſt deſcribed, Ver. 1, 2.

Kabzeel.] Where that valiant Perſon Benajah was born, who ſmote two Lion-like Men of Moab, 1 Chron. xi. 22.

And Eder.] Which Euſebius calls Ἐδραί. But he hath no more to ſay of it; nor of Jagur, and the reſt that follow, but that they were in the Tribe of Judah: Nor ſhall I go about to enquire further after every particular City mentioned; the Number of which is ſummed up, Ver. 32.

Ver. 32. All the Cities are twenty and nine, with their Villages.] If the foregoing Places be told, there are no leſs than thirty and eight of them. But there were only twenty and nine of them (as ſome ſolve the Difficulty) that could be called Cities; the other being only Villages. Or, the Meaning is (as the Jews generally think) that twenty and nine only belonged to the Tribe of Judah; the reſt being afterward given to the Tribe of Simeon, as we find in the nineteenth Chapter. Where nine of theſe very Cities here mentioned, are ſaid to be in that Tribe, viz. Beer-ſheba, Moladah, Hazar-ſhual, Baalah, Azem, Hormah, Zigleg, Ain, and Rimmon. Which nine, with the twenty and nine here ſet down as the Sum Total, make juſt thirty and eight. And this ſeems to be the truer Account, becauſe the Villages of other Cities are mentioned, Ver. 36. and 41. and yet none of them ſet down by Name, as is ſuppoſed in the firſt Interpretation of theſe Words.

Ver. 33. And in their Valley.] Or in the Plain, below the Mountains: But which way, I ſhall not examine; becauſe the Geography of this Country will be done, I hope, by a better Hand.

Ver. 36. Fourteen Cities, with the Villages.] There are fifteen in all, if we take the two laſt for diſtinct Cities. But, in all Probability, there might be one, called indifferently Gedera, or (as we tranſlate it in the Margin) Gederothaim. Perhaps there might be a double City, the Old and the New: Or, Gederothaim was an Appendix to Gederah, as the Borough of Southwark is to the City of London.

Ver. 37. Zenan, and Hadaſhah, &c.] I ſuppoſe theſe Cities, and all that follow to the forty-firſt Verſe, lay alſo in the Valley, or Plain.

Ver. 41. Sixteen Cities with their Villages.] There are exactly that Number, among which Mizpeth, Lachiſh, Beth-dagon, Eglon, and Makkedah, were the chief. They ſeem to have been in the Weſtern Part of this Country, near the Tribe of Dan; for the two firſt in the former Diviſion (Eſhtaol and Zoreah, Ver. 33.) were afterwards given to the Danites, xix. 41.

Ver. 42. Libnah and Ether, &c.] Theſe two Cities, and thoſe that follow unto Ver. 45. were in another Diviſion of the plain Country: Among which, Lebnah, Keilah, Achzib, and Mareſhah, were the moſt noble.

Ver. 44. Nine Cities, with their Villages.] But Ether and Aſhan were afterwards given to the Tribe of Simeon, xix. 7. which may ſeem a Prejudice to the Interpretation which the Jews give of ver. 32. Unleſs we ſuppoſe theſe two Places to be different from them, tho' called by the ſame Name: As here is Mention made of Aſhnah (ver. 43) and there is one of the ſame Name in the former Diviſion, ver. 33.

Ver. 45. Ekron, with her Towns, and her Villages.] The Hebrew Word for Towns ſignifies Daughters; by which ſeem to be meant leſſer Cities, depending on Ekron, with their Villages belonging to them. Gath and Askalon, perhaps, were ſuch at this Time; tho', in future Times, they grew up to be of more Conſideration; which may be the Reaſon they are not here mentioned. For this, and the two following Verſes, deſcribe the Lot of Judah in the Weſt, upon the Mediterranean Sea; which comprehended all from Ekron to the River of Egypt.

Ver. 48. And in the Mountains.] From the Plain he goes to the Mountains; and diſtributes the Cities there into five Diviſions.

Shamir and Jattir, &c.] In this Diviſion there were eleven Cities; among which was Kirjath-Sanna (ver. 49.) which had three Names. See ver. 15.

Ver. 52. Arab and Dumah, &c.] In this Diviſion there were nine Cities, ver. 54 Which were in the Mountainous Country, in the Middle of Judæa; as thoſe mentioned before and thoſe that follow were. And therefore, it is not true which the Jews ſay, that he reckons up only the Cities in the Skirts of the Country; with which indeed he began. See ver. 21.

Ver. 55. Maon Carmel, &c.] This, and the two following Verſes, contain an Account of Ten Cities and their Villages, in another Diviſion, two of which were near together; for Nabal dwelt in Maon, and had great Poſſeſſions in Carmel, 1 Sam. xxv. 2. There was another Maon in the Deſarts of Jeſhimon, 1 Sam. xxiii. 1. as there was another among the Moabites, called Beth-Maon, the Houſe or Dwelling of Maon. The People of which, called Maonites and, as ſome think, Mehunims (Judg. x. 10, 12. 2 Chron. xxvi. 7.) were very powerful, and ſome time oppreſſed the Iſraelites. And there was likewiſe another Carmel; for this is not the Place where Elijah built an Altar and offered Sacrifices, when he ſlew the Prophets of Baal (1 Kings xviii.) but a Place far diſtant from it; where Saul made himſelf a Place when he returned from the Conqueſt of the Amalekites, (1 Sam. xv. 12.) that is, encamped, as ſome will have it, and divided the Spoil, or built a triumphant Arch, as St. Hierom interprets: And where Nabal kept ſo many Sheep, as are mentioned in the Place fore-named; and is the Place the Prophets mean (as Bochart conjectures) when they ſpeak of the Paſtures of Carmel Jer. l. 19. Amos i. 2. Mic. vii. 14. See Hierozoicon, P. 1. Lib. 2. Cap. 48.

Ver. 57. Cain, Gibeah, and Timnah, &c.] The firſt of theſe Cities, Conradus Pellicanus thinks, hath the ſame Name with that called Kinah, ver. 22. tho' it be in a different Place. And indeed, in this Diviſion, conſiſting of Ten Cities, there are two whoſe Names we had before, when he ſpeaks of thoſe in the Skirts of the Country, viz. Ziph and Zanoah. See ver. 24, 34. Which ſhews there were many Cities in the ſame Country of the ſame Name.

Gibeah and Timnah.] Are known Places. See Gen. xxxviii. 12.

Ver. 58. Halhul, Beth-zur, &c.] In this and in the following Verſe, are contained a ſmall Diviſion of ſix Cities; the moſt eminent of which was Beth-zur which lay in the Road from Hieruſalem to Hebron, about twenty Miles from it, as St Hierom tells us.

Ver. 60. Kirjath-baal, &c.] Here are only two Cities in this Diviſion, the firſt of which was called Kirjath-jearim, as we read xviii. 14. and Baala, and Baal-Judah, 2 Sam. vii. 2. 1 Chron. xiii. 6.

Ver. 61. In the Wilderneſs.] So the Hebrews call thoſe Parts of the Country, which were but thinly inhabited; as this was, wherein there were but ſix Cities. Of this Wilderneſs of Judah, we read frequently in the following Books of Scripture; ſeveral Parts of which are mentioned in the Hiſtory of David, when he fled for fear of Saul, and lurked in this Country: Particularly in the Wilderneſs of Ziph, 1 Sam. xxiii. 14. and of Maon, ver. 24, 25. and of Engeddi, one of the Places here mentioned, 1 Sam. xxiv. 1. and there was a Part of the Wilderneſs not far from Carmel, before-mentioned, 1 Sam. xxv. 14.

Ver. 62. The City of Salt.] Some take this to be Zoar, the little City unto which Lot was permitted to flee, at the Deſtruction of Sodom: Which is called the City of Salt; either becauſe it ſtood near the Salt-Sea, or becauſe Lot's Wife was hereabouts turned into a Pillar of Salt.

Ver. 63. As for the Jebuſites, the Inhabitants of Jeruſalem, the Children of Judah could not drive them out.] This ſuppoſes that Jeruſalem belonged to the Children of Judah; and ſo it did in part, tho' not the whole; for ſome of it was in the Tribe of Benjamin, as ſhall be obſerved in its proper Place. The King of this City Joſhua had vanquiſhed, together with other four Kings of the Amorites who joined in Battle with him, Joſh. x. 5, 23. and in the Concluſion of that Chapter, he is ſaid (ver. 42.) to have taken all theſe Kings and their Land at one time. But if Jeruſalem was then taken, as well as the Land about it, the Strong-hold of Zion remained ſtill in the Hands of the Jebuſites. And the Iſraelites not being able preſently to people all the Cities they had taken, the Jebuſites recovered the City of Jeruſalem, and got Poſſeſſion of it again; from whence the Children of Judah expelled them after the Death of Joſhua, Judg. i. 8. But ſtill Mount Zion continued in their Hands, until the Reign of David.

But the Jebuſites dwelt with the Children of Judah, at Jeruſalem, unto this Day.] That is in the Fort of Zion, which was a Part of it; where they were ſo conſiderable, that the City was called the City of the Jebuſites, and its Name Jebus, Judg. xix. 10, 11. There can be no doubt, I think, that theſe Jebuſites were of the the Seed of Canaan, they being conſtantly numbered among the ſeven Nations devoted to Deſtruction. Yet ſome of the Jews have a Conceit that the People here mentioned were derived from Abimelech, King of the Philiſtines; with whom their Forefather Iſaac made a ſolemn League; and therefore the Children of Judah did not expel them. So Kimchi. But this, it is evident, is a fooliſh Imagination: For why did they expel them at the laſt, as they did, if they were to be kind to them upon this Account?

CHAP. XVI.

Ver. 1. THE Lot of the Children of Joſeph.] That is, of Ephraim, and that half of the Tribe of Manaſſeh, which was not yet provided for. See ver. 4. One cannot but obſerve the Providence of God, in bringing up their Lot next to Judah's. For as he had the Prerogative of being made the Chief of all Jacob's Children, Gen. xlix. 10. ſo Joſeph had the Privilege of the Firſt-born transferred to his Family. And therefore they are conſidered before any of the other Tribes, except Judah.

Fell from Jordan by Jericho.] In the Hebrew, went forth from Jordan, by the City of Jericho. Which was in the Tribe of Benjamin; which Tribe lay between the Tribe of Judah, and the Tribe of Ephraim.

Unto the Water of Jericho, on the Eaſt.] This is juſtly thought to be the Water mentioned 2 Kings ii. 19, 20, 21. whoſe Spring Eliſha healed, by which the Plain of Jericho was watered. See Joſephus, Lib. 5. de Bello Jud. Cap. 4.

To the Wilderneſs that goeth up from Jericho throughout Mount Beth-el.] It appears from xviii. 12, 13. that this was the Wilderneſs of Beth-aven.

Ver. 2. And goeth up from Beth-el to Luz.] Beth-el was a Place ſo called, becauſe Jacob there had the famous Divine Viſion, mentioned Gen. xvii. It was nigh to the City Luz, as appears from the 19th Verſe of that Chapter; but was diſtinct from the City itſelf, being in the neighbouring Fields, where Jacob lay all Night; tho' being ſo near, it is likely afterward they became one City. But they who would hence infer, that this Book could not be written by Joſhua, becauſe Luz was built after his Death in the Land of the Hittites (Judg. i. 26.) do merely trifle: For it is plain he doth not ſpeak here of that Luz, but of the old one: For the Country of the Hittites belonged to Hebron and Beerſheba, and the neighbouring Places in the Land of Judah; unto which the Author of this Book could have no Reſpect here in the Deſcription of the Land of Ephraim. Therefore, when Luz and Beth-el are ſaid to be the ſame, (xviii. 13. and Judg. i. 23.) the Meaning can be no more, but that in Length of Time they were united; the Inhabitants of Luz going into Beth-el. And of ſuch Coalitions of two Cities into one, there are ſix hundred Examples, as Huetius ſpeaks in his Demonſtr. Evang. Propoſ. 4. and therefore, I think Dupin well tranſlates this whole Verſe in this manner, From Beth-el-Luz the Border paſſeth along to Archi-ataroth.

And paſſeth along unto the Borders of Archi to Ataroth.] Or rather, the Borders of Archi-ataroth, as both the LXX and the Vulgar tranſlate it; and as the Words are in the Hebrew; this being the ſame City which is afterward called Ataroth, ver. 7. it being uſual to cut off the former Part of the Names of Cities; as Bochartus obſerves in abundance of Inſtances; and gives this for one, in his Phaleg. Lib. 2. Cap. 24.

Ver. 3. And goeth down Weſtward to the Coaſt of Japhtali.] It is not known where this Place was, being no where elſe mentioned; but it was in the Weſtern Part of the Land, toward the Mediterranean.

Unto the Coaſt of Beth-horon the nether.] See x. 10.

And to Gezer.] This was one of the Levitical Cities in this Tribe of Ephraim, Joſh. xxi. 21. And, as Iſ. Caſaubon hath proved at large, it was, in all probability, the City which Joſephus and the Author of the Book of the Maccabees call Gazara; and is mentioned as a neighbouring City to Joppa, Azotus, and Jamnia. See his Annot. upon Lib. 16. Strabonis. P. 261, 262.

And the Goings-out thereof are at the Sea.] The Vulgar hath it, at the Great Sea: Which is certainly here meant; this being a ſhort Deſcription of the Lot of this Tribe from Jordan on the Eaſt, to the Mediterranean on the Weſt.

Ver. 4. So the Children of Joſeph, Manaſſeh, and Ephraim, took their Inheritance.] According to the following Meaſures. Which give a more particular Account of what is before ſaid in general.

Ver. 5. And the Border of the Children of Ephraim, according to their Families] And firſt, he ſhews what was given to Ephraim; reſerving the Deſcription of Manaſſeh's Portion to the next Chapter.

Even the Border of their Inheritance on the Eaſt Side.] The North-Eaſt. For he deſcribes, tho' groſly, only the Breadth of this Lot from South to North.

Was Ataroth-Addar, unto Beth-horon the upper.] The firſt of thoſe was in the South, and the latter in the North.

Ver. 6. And the Border went out toward the Sea.] From Beth-horon the upper, this Northern Border went on one Side Weſtward, toward the Mediterranean.

To Michmethah on the North Side.] And on the other Side Eaſtward, towards Jordan. This is very obſcurely expreſſed; but it appears, from what follows, it muſt be thus interpreted.

And the Border went about Eaſtward unto Tannah-Shiloh.] Still proceeded further Eaſtward, unto this Place; the Name of which only is now known.

And paſſed by it on the Eaſt to Janohah.] Another Place Eaſterly, of which we are now ignorant. For there are no Records left to make us underſtand whereabouts in the Eaſt it was ſituated; which was perfectly underſtood when this Country was inhabited by the Ephraimites.

Ver. 7. And it went down from Janohah to Ataroth, and Naarath, and came to Jericho.] Not to the very City, for that belonged to Benjamin; but to the Country adjoining.

And went out at Jordan.] Which was the Eastern Bounds of this Country.

Ver. 8. And the Border went out from Tappuah Westward, unto the River Kanah.] He returns to describe the Length of it from East to West; if the River or Brook Kanah, be the same with the Brook Cerith, mentioned 1 Kings xvii. 3. And so not only Adricomius understands it, but that great Man Bochartus; who observes it was called the Brook Cherith, from the Hebrew Word Cara, which signifies to eat or feed, because here GOD commanded the Ravens to feed Elijah; and it was called Kana, from the Multitude of Reeds which grew there (and so the Vulgar here translate it, the Valley of Reeds) in which it may be supposed Elijah lay hid. Hierozoicon, P. 2. L. 2. C. 14. But there is so much to be objected against this Situation of the Brook Kana, that I must leave it in Suspense whether it were in the East, or in the West; and confess, with Conradus Pellicanus, that as none of the Hebrews or Latins have given a satisfactory Account of these four last Verses, so I do not pretend to it.

And the Goings-out thereof were at the Sea.] Where Sea alone is mentioned, it is commonly understood to signify the Mediterranean; which quite overthrows the Opinion, which makes Kana the same with Cherith. But the Vulgar here took it for the Salt-Sea, (adding the Word Salsissimum) which favours the fore-named Opinion.

This is the Inheritance of the Tribe of Ephraim by their Families.] A gross Description of it.

Ver. 9. And the separate Cities for the Children of Ephraim, were among the Inheritance of the Children of Manasseh, &c.] What these separate Cities were, cannot now be known, because we have not a particular Account given of all the Cities of this Tribe (as we had of Judah) but only of those, which were the Limits of their Country. But they seem to have been some Cities in the Tribe of Manasseh, which were inhabited by the Children of Ephraim, tho' the Territories about them belonged to the Manassites, and were occupied by them. See xvii. 8, 9.

Ver. 10. And they drave not out the Canaanites that dwelt in Gezer, but the Canaanites dwell among the Ephraimites unto this Day.] The Inhabitants of Gezer were properly Canaanites; who dwelt unto the Sea-Coast, where Gezer was situated. See Ver. 3. This is mentioned also Judg. i. 29.

And serve under Tribute.] They so far subdued them, as to make them Tributaries; and, some fancy, imposed on them the Precepts of the Sons of Noah. But they ought to have destroyed them, and were forbidden to make Peace with them upon any Conditions. See Judg. ii. 1, 2, 3. Unless Grotius his Conjecture be true, that the Inhabitants of Gezer submitted and accepted the Terms of Peace, which Joshua was bound to offer them, before he began the War; as the Gergasites, he thinks, also did; who remained even in our Saviour's Time: For they delivered up themselves at the first Summons to surrender; which is the Reason, he imagines, that they are omitted in the Enumeration of their Enemies, both in xi. 1. and in Deut. xx. 17. See his Annot. on his 13th Chapter of the second Book de Jure Belli & Pacis, Sect. 4.

This City, and the People of it, were destroyed in Solomon's Time by Pharoah King of Egypt; who made a Present of it to his Daughter, Solomon's Wife; who thereupon rebuilt it, 1 Kings ix. 16, 17. Till then the Canaanites lived in it; from whence Spinoza would have it concluded, that this Book was not written by Joshua, because we find the same thing recorded in the Book of Judges, (i. 29.) which is of a later Date. But this is a very frivolous Cavil; for, as Huetius well observes, if an Historian should have said in the Life of Tiberius, the Germans were not destroyed, the same might in like manner have been said in the Life of Vespasian; and just so, when Joshua saith the Gazerites were not cut off by the Ephraimites, it did not hinder him that wrote in the following Age from saying the same; because they still remained in the Possession of their antient Habitation.

CHAP. XVII.

Ver. 1. There was also a Lot for the Tribe of Manasseh.] That half of it, which had no Portion on the other side Jordan.

(For he was the First-born of Joseph.)] I cannot make any Sense of this; and therefore think the Particle ki should be translated tho', not for. And then the Meaning is plain enough, that the Lot of Manasseh came up after that of Ephraim (not before it) tho' he was the First-born of Joseph; for Jacob had preferred Ephraim before him, Gen. xlviii. 19, 20.

For Machir, the First-born of Manasseh.] And his only Son, from whom sprung such a Multitude, that there was no Room for them all, on the other side Jordan; but Part of them were to be disposed of here.

The Father of Gilead.] Numb. xxvi. 29.

Because he was a Man of War.] This is generally thought to relate to Machir; who had done some famous Exploits in the Skirmishes they had with some neighbouring People, while they were in Egypt, (see 1 Chron. vii. 21, 22.) for he was not alive to fight when they came to Canaan.

Therefore he had Gilead and Bashan.] A Share in this Country; for some of it was given to the Reubenites and Gadites, xiii. 25. but the Gileadites were also planted here, (Ver. 31.) for inheriting the Valour of their Progenitor, they were fit to defend this Frontier-Country.

Ver. 2. And there was also a Lot for the rest of the Children of Manasseh, by their Families.] A great Part of the Manassites being disposed of before they passed over Jordan, now follows the Lot which fell to the rest, whose several Families he names.

and for the Children of Shechem, and for the Children of Hepher, and for the Children of Shemidah.] These six Families descended from Gilead, as we read Numb. xxvi. 30, &c. Where the first of them, who is here called Abiezer, is there called Jeazer.

These are the Male Children of Manasseh, the Son of Joseph, by their Families.] He uses the Expression of Male Children, to introduce what follows concerning the Females. And they are called the Children of Manasseh, because they inherited in his Right; being Families descended from him. See Selden de Successionibus, Cap. 22.

Ver. 3. But Zelophehad the Son of Hepher, the Son of Gilead, the Son of Machir, the Son of Manasseh.] Here he recites their Pedigreee from the Son of Joseph.

Had no Sons, but Daughters.] And so could not make a Family in Manasseh; and consequently have no Share in the Land.

And these are the Names of his Daughters, Mahlah, and Noah, &c.] See Numb. xxvi. 33.

Ver. 4. And they came near before Eleazar the Priest, and before Joshua the Son of Nun, and before the Princes.] To whom God had committed the Care of dividing the several Lots, xiv. 1. Numb. xxxiv. 17, 18.

Saying, the LORD commanded Moses to give us an Inheritance among our Brethren.] See Numb. xxvii. 6, 7.

Therefore, according to the Commandment of the LORD, he gave them an Inheritance among the Brethren of their Father.] Or, an Inheritance was given them, according to this Commandment of God to Moses, by Eleazar and Joshua, and the rest who were appointed to divide the Land. For after the Lot had determined what Land every Tribe should have, Eleazar, Joshua, and the Princes, considered how many Families there were in the Tribe, and how large they were; and accordingly, divided it among them. So Numb. xxvi. 55, 56. imports.

Ver. 5. And there fell ten Portions to Manasseh.] For there were six Portions given to six Sons: But the Portion of Hepher, the last of them, being divided into five Parts among his five Daughters, there were ten Portions in all. See Selden de Succession. Cap. 23. Which ten Portions being assigned to so many Families, Eleazar, Joshua, and the Princes, were not concerned any further in dividing these ten Portions into lesser, among several Households; but that, I suppose, they agreed among themselves.

Beside the Land of Gilead and Bashan, which were on the other side Jordan.] Mentioned before, Ver. 1.

Ver. 6. Because the Daughters of Manasseh.] That is, of Zelophehad, descended from Manasseh.

Had an Inheritance among his Sons.] Being considered as Heirs to their Father.

And the rest of Manasseh's Sons.] Which were not of the six Families before-mentioned.

Had the Land of Gilead.] On the other side Jordan, as hath been often said; and is again repeated, to prevent all Contentions that might arise about their Portions.

Ver. 7. And the Coast of Manasseh was from Asher to Michmethah, that lived before Shechem.] This was the South Border, which went from a City called Asher, to another called Michmethah; which was over-against a City in the Tribe of Ephraim called Shechem.

And the Border went along on the Right Hand unto the Inhabitants of Entappuah.] And so to those that lived in the Land of Tappuah, leaving Tappuah itself on the Right Hand.

Ver. 8. Now Manasseh had the Land of Tappuah.] All the Territory adjoining to this City, belonged to the Tribe of Manasseh.

But Tappuah on the Border of Manasseh belonged to the Children of Ephraim.] But the City itself, which lay on the Confines of their Country, was one of those separated Cities spoken of in the foregoing Chapter, (Ver. 9.) in which the Children of Ephraim dwelt.

Ver. 9. And the Coast descended unto the River Kanah, Southward of the River.] Concerning this Place, see Ver. 8. of the foregoing Chapter.

These Cities of Ephraim are among the Cities of Manasseh.] That is, the Cities on the Coast before-mentioned were inhabited by the Ephraimites, as well as Tappuah; tho' they were in the Tribe of Manasseh. For these two Tribes were nearer of Kin than any other; and so greater Friendship was intended to be established between them.

The Coast also of Manasseh was on the North Side of the River.] By the Coast of Manasseh, is meant the Cities inhabited by the Manassites; which were all on the North Side of this River. As all those on the South Side of it, tho' belonging to the Manassites, were inhabited by the Children of Ephraim.

And the Goings-out of it were at the Sea.] The Coast mentioned in the Beginning of the Verse, ended at the Mediterranean Sea.

Ver. 10. Southward it was Ephraim's, and Northward it was Manasseh's, and the Sea is his Border.] These Words express how these two Tribes lay, with respect to each other: Ephraim on the South, and Manasseh on the North; and both bounded on the West by the Mediterranean.

And they met together in Asher on the North, and in Issachar on the East.] Tho' on the South the Tribe of Manasseh was wholly joined to the Tribe of Ephraim, yet on the North-West, towards the great Sea, it had the Tribe of Asher on the Confines of it; and on the East, (towards Jordan and the Sea of Tiberias) the Tribe of Issachar. So Conradus Pellicanus rightly explains these Words. For both the Tribes of Ephraim and Manasseh could not touch these other Tribes.

Ver. 11. And Manasseh had in Issachar and in Asher.] As Ephraim had some Towns in the Tribe of Manasseh, so Manasseh had some in the Tribes of Issachar and Asher, unto whom, in the North-West, and the East, they were near Neighbours.

Beth-shean and her Towns.] This was a Place not far from the Sea of Tiberias before-mentioned, and near Jordan.

And Ibleam and her Towns.] It appears by 2 Kings ix. 27. that it was not far from Megiddo, mentioned in the latter End of this Verse.

The Inhabitants of Dor and her Towns.] Concerning Dor, see xi. 2. whose Inhabitants (as also those of the other Cities following) are here mentioned; because, it seems, they possessed the People (whom they ought to have destroyed) as well as their Cities and Towns, making them their Slaves.

And the Inhabitants of Endor, and her Towns.] The City whither Saul went to consult with the Witch. It was not far from Mount Tabor; which was in the Confines of the Tribe of Issachar.

And the Inhabitants of Tanach, and her Towns.] This City lay not far from the other; and was one of those given to the Levites, xxi. 25.

And the Inhabitants of Megiddo, and her Towns.] This was near the former; not far from the Brook Kishon, Judg. v. 19.

Even three Countries.] Or rather, three Parts of those Countries before-mentioned.

Ver. 12. Yet the Children of Manasseh could not drive out the Inhabitants of those Cities.] Thro' Want of Faith in God, and of Zeal to perform his Commands; which made them slack in their Attempts to expel the Inhabitants of this Country.

But the Canaanites would dwell in that Land.] Finding themselves strong enough to maintain it, against such feeble Endeavours, as they used to conquer it.

Ver. 13. Yet it came to pass, when the Children of Israel were waxen strong, that they put the Canaanites to Tribute.] When they were more numerous and expert in War, not only the Manassites, but they of other Tribes also brought the Canaanites to be Tributaries to them.

But did not utterly drive them out.] In which they grievously offended against God's Command, Deut. xx. 16, 17, 18.

Ver. 14. And the Children of Joseph spake unto Joshua.] Both they of Ephraim, and they of Manasseh, Ver. 17.

Saying, Why hast thou given me but one Lot and one Portion to inherit, seeing I am a great People.] They were discontented with their Lot, which they thought too strait for them; because they were so very numerous, that the Country which was assigned them, was little enough for one of them.

Forasmuch as the LORD hath blessed me hitherto.] Multiplied them exceedingly, as appears from Numb. xxvi. 34, 37.

Ver. 15. And Joshua answered them, If thou be a great People.] Tho' he was their Flesh and Blood, yet Joshua would not humour them; but returns their Argument upon them, that since they were so great a People, they should do as here follows.

Then get thee up to the Wood Country.] Which was in the Highlands, Ver. 18. which is full of Trees; For Aba, as Bochart observes, signifies very thick Woods, Lib. 2. Canaan, Cap. 9.

And cut down for thy self there.] Make it habitable.

In the Land of the Perizzites.] Who were a rough uncivilized People, living in these mountainous Forests; as Bochart gathers from this Place; and thinks they had their Name from thence. Because they did not live in Cities and Towns, but in those Pagi that were in the Woods; which the Hebrews call Pherazoth; from whence the Pagani, the People who lived in those Places, were called Pherazim, Lib. 4. Phaleg. Cap. 36.

And of the Giants.] There were some of the Rephaim (as the Hebrew Word is) still remaining here; or it was a Place where they had been wont to dwell.

If Mount Ephraim be too narrow for thee.] If that noble Mount which was given them for their Portion, with the rest of the Land before-mentioned (which is included in the Name of Mount Ephraim, the principal Part being put for the whole) did not afford them Room enough, he exhorts them to enlarge their Bounds, by taking in these Wood-lands before-mentioned.

Ver. 16. And the Children of Joseph said, The Hill is not enough for us.] They still insisted, that if they could get Possession of the woody Mountain, and destroy all the Inhabitants, and cut down all the Trees, it would not be sufficient to contain them.

And all the Canaanites that dwelt in the Land of the Valley.] But if it would, they further alledge, they had no Hope to conquer it; because, before they could come at it, they must encounter those that lived in the Valley below it, who were too strong for them.

Have Chariots of Iron.] Before which they were not able to stand: For he doth not mean Chariots made of Iron, but armed with Iron; which the Ancients called currus falcati, in Greek δρεπανοφόρα· having a kind of Scythes of two Cubits fastned to long Axle-Trees on both Wheels; which being driven swiftly thro' a Body of Men, made great Slaughter, mowing them down like Grass or Corn. Xenophon gives a Description of them in his Cyro-Pædia, Lib. 6. and Quintus Curtius, Lib. 4. Cap. 9. Vegetius also, de Re Militari, Lib. 3. Cap. 24. Bonfrerius hath heaped up abundance on this Subject; and so hath Joh. Cunradus Dietericus in his Antiq. Biblicæ, P. 329, &c. where he observes Xenophon imagined Cyrus to have been the Inventor of these Chariots; which had been in use among the Canaanites eight hundred Years before.

Both they who are of Beth-shean and her Towns, and they who are in the Valley of Jezreel.] Which Cities, it seems, lay near to this Mountain, unto which Joshua directed them, and both of them possessed by the Canaanites.

Ver. 17. And Joshua spake unto the House of Joseph, even unto Ephraim and Manasseh.] He was not moved, by their Objections, from his Resolution; but told them.

Thou art a great People, and hast great Power.] That, by their own Confession, they were very numerous; and consequently, of great Power.

Thou shalt not have one Lot only.] And therefore need not be straitned in their Habitation; which they said was not sufficient for one Tribe.

Ver.

Ver. 18. But the Mountain ſhall be thine.] For they ſhould have the Mountain added to their Portion; which he could not enlarge any other way, it being ſettled by a divine Decree.

For it is a Wood, and thou ſhalt cut it down.] Or, tho' it be a Wood, yet they could cut it down, and grub it up; and then it would afford a commodious Habitation.

And the Goings-out of it ſhall be thine.] They ſhould have the Product of it: Or, all the Country below in the Valley (Ver. 16.) ſhould be theirs alſo.

And thou ſhalt drive out the Canaanites, tho' they have Iron Chariots, and tho' they be ſtrong.] He anſwers all their Objections (Ver. 16.) with an Aſſurance that they ſhould be able, with GOD's Help, to diſpoſſeſs the preſent Inhabitants, notwithſtanding their great Force and Power: For ſo GOD had commanded them to believe, and not to be afraid of their Chariots, which now ſeemed ſo terrible to them. See Deut. xx. 1.

CHAP. XVIII.

Ver. 1. AND the whole Congregation of the Children of Iſrael.] All their Elders and Heads of their Tribes, who repreſented the People of Iſrael; and are ſometimes meant by the whole Congregation, as Corn. Bertram hath ſhewed in many Inſtances, particularly in 1 Chr. xiii. 1, 2, &c. See L. de Repub. Judaica, in the latter End of Cap. 6. and Cap. 11. But here it may well ſignify the whole Body of the People, who accompanied the Ark to ſettle it in a new Place.

Aſſembled together at Shiloh.] A Place in the Tribe of Ephraim, not far from Jeruſalem; and, as the great Primate of Ireland thinks, the ſame with Salem. But I do not find any Ground for that Opinion.

And ſet up the Tabernacle of the Congregation there.] Which had hitherto remained in Gilgal; but now, by GOD's Order, no doubt, (for he was to chooſe the Place of his own Reſidence, Deut. xii. 5, 11, 14. &c. was removed hither; together with the Camp of Iſrael, which tarried ſo long in Gilgal, merely becauſe the Tabernacle was there. If it be enquired, what Token GOD gave of his Choice of this Place, Mr. Mede anſwers (Diſcourſe XLV. Book 1.) perhaps it was by giving ſome extraordinary Token of his Approbation, by accepting their Sacrifices; or, it may be, they conſulted him in this Caſe by the Oracle of Urim and Thummim. For when he made Choice of Mount Sion, an Angel bad the Prophet Gad tell David he ſhould ſet up an Altar in the Threſhing-floor of Ornan; and there GOD anſwered him by Fire, &c. See 1 Chron. xxi. 18, 26. Now the Reaſon of its being tranſlated to Shiloh, it is likely, was becauſe it would have been too far, after the Diviſion of the Land, for all the Tribes of Iſrael to go to Gilgal, to perform all that the Law required to be done at the Tabernacle. Which was now indiſpenſibly to be performed, tho' while they lived in the Wilderneſs, they did not live by theſe Rules, (Deut. xii. 8, 9, 10.) and perhaps while they continued unſettled in Canaan, could not exactly obſerve them. This Place alſo was very convenient for all the Tribes to reſort unto; and likewiſe very ſafe, being guarded by the two powerful Tribes of Judah and Ephraim. And it was, as I ſaid, in the Lot of the latter; for it was fit it ſhould be where Joſhua was; who, being of this Tribe, lived among them. Here it is thought the Tabernacle continued for the Space of three hundred and fifty Years, till the Days of Samuel; but our Primate before-mentioned reckons no more than three hundred and twenty-eight Years.

And the Land was ſubdued before them.] Or rather, for the Land was ſubdued, &c. that is, continued quiet, without any Oppoſition from the old Inhabitants, ſince the Conqueſt mentioned, xi. 23.

Ver. 2. And there remained among the Children of Iſrael ſeven Tribes, which had not yet received their Inheritance.] For whom no Lot had been drawn at Gilgal. The Reaſon of which, was, perhaps, becauſe the laſt-mentioned Tribes, of the Houſe of Joſeph, were not ſatisfied with the Diviſion which was begun to be made there. And therefore Joſhua ſtopp'd his Proceedings till he had made a new Survey of the whole Country. In order to which, GOD commanded him to remove hither; from whence, being in the middle of the Country, they might do it more eaſily; and alſo give the Children of Joſeph greater Content, by ſettling GOD's Houſe among them.

Ver. 3. And Joſhua ſaid unto the Children of Iſrael.] Unto the Congregation before-mentioned, Ver. 1.

How long are you ſlack to go and poſſeſs the Land, which the LORD God of your Fathers hath given you?] He doth not blame them for not taking Poſſeſſion of the Land which was conquered, without GOD's Direction, by a Lot (for that was expreſly commanded) but for their being ſo ſlow to conſider of, and propound, ſome Means of making ſuch an equal Diviſion, as they deſired; that they might take Poſſeſſion of the Land, where their Lot ſhould fall.

Ver. 4. Give out from among you three Men for each Tribe. He therefore himſelf propounds a Method for their Satisfaction; and ſuch an one as they could not diſlike, viz. that they ſhould chuſe three Men (for he would not appoint them, but only give them Orders what to do) out of each of the ſeven remaining Tribes that were not provided for; or rather, out of the nine Tribes and an half; that they who had already received their Portion, might be willing to reſign up ſome Part of it, if they found, upon the Survey, there was not ſufficient left for their Brethren.

And I will ſend them, and they ſhall riſe, and go thro' the Land.] Give them Orders to go immediately thro' the whole Country; both that which was divided, and that which was not.

And deſcribe it.] Set down not only the Dimenſions of it, but its Condition and Quality; whether barren or fruitful, mountainous or plain, &c.

According to the Inheritance of them.] Making ſo many Parts in the Deſcription, as there remain Tribes that want their Inheritance. Thus the next Verſe teaches us to explain it.

And they ſhall come again to me.] Make their Report to him, when they had done, that he might judge of it.

Ver. 5. And they ſhall divide it into ſeven Parts.] Of equal Extent, with a juſt Reſpect, as Joſephus obſerves, not merely to the Quantity of Ground, but the Goodneſs of the Soil. But there was no Reſpect to the greater or leſſer Number of Perſons in each Tribe; for then theſe Men had given each Tribe their Portion, and there had been no need of a Lot. Their Buſineſs was to divide the Country into ſeven equal Portions and leave God to appoint which Portion ſhall fall to each Tribe: Who would have no Reaſon to complain, when the Diviſion was made by themſelves.

Judah ſhall abide in their Coaſt on the South, and the Houſe of Joſeph ſhall abide in their Coaſts on the North.] But the Lot of Judah, which was Southerly, and the Lot of Ephraim and Manaſſeh, which, with reſpect to the former were Northerly, were not to be altered. But theſe Tribes were to remain undiſturbed in their Poſſeſſions, unleſs it ſhould be found, that they had more than they needed, and others had leſs. For this was the very Reaſon of Making a new and more exact Survey of the Country, than had been made before the firſt Diviſion; that there might be an Allotment made more to every one's Satisfaction; when they had a more perfect Account of all the Land. Accordingly it is evident, that the Tribe of Judah (by common Conſent, no doubt) parted with ſome of their Portion to the Simeonites, and the Danites. whoſe Lot appeared to be too ſcanty, xix. 29, 41.

Ver. 6. Ye ſhall therefore deſcribe the Land into ſeven Parts, and bring the Deſcription hither to me.] When the Men, who were appointed to meaſure the Country, had divided it into ſeven Parts, he orders that the Deſcription, thus divided, ſhould be laid before him.

That I may caſt Lots for you here before the LORD.] Whereby their Poſſeſſions were ſettled and eſtabliſhed by a Divine Authority. For the Lots being drawn before the Sanctuary, God was deſired to declare what Portion every Tribe ſhould have. Accordingly, it was their Duty to look upon it as a ſacred Appointment, and to be contented with it; for it was done at the very Door of the Tabernacle, as we read, xix. ult.

Ver. 7. But the Levites have no Part among you for the Prieſthood of the LORD is their Inheritance.] He declared, what had been often ſaid before, that in this Diviſion of the Land, the Prieſts and Levites were to have no Share; God having otherwiſe provided for them. See xiii. 14, 32. xiv. 3.

And Gad and Reuben, and half the Tribe of Manaſſeh, have received their Inheritance beyond Jordan, &c.] And as for the reſt, no Care was to be taken of them in this Diviſion; becauſe Moſes had provided for them before they came over Jordan.

Ver. 8. And the Men aroſe, and went away.] Being choſen by their Brethren (as Joſhua directed ver. 4.) to act in their Name.

And Joſhua charged them that went to deſcribe the Land, ſaying, Go, and walk through the Land, and deſcribe it, &c.] Before they went, Joſhua gave them a Charge to do the Buſineſs they went about, with Care and Fidelity; uſing their beſt Diligence to be truly and fully informed: And at their Return, give him an Account; that he might put an End to all Diſputes, by deſiring God to aſſign every Tribe their Portion.

That I may here caſt Lots for you before the LORD in Shiloh.] Theſe Words ſound as if he gave this Charge to them in the Preſence of God, before the Sanctuary; that they might be excited to execute his Orders with greater Diligence.

Ver. 9. And the Men went and paſſed thro' the Land.] Thro' the whole Country, which they had conquered.

And deſcribed it by Cities.] Set down the Name of every City, and its Villages, and the Territory about it, with its Situation. For ſo, I ſuppoſe, Joſhua charged them.

Into ſeven Parts in a Book.] In which were ſeven Maps, as we now call them; which made a Chorographical Deſcription of all the Cities, Towns, Mountains, Plains, Woods, and all other Conditions of the Soil.

And came again to Joſhua to the Hoſt at Shiloh.] For the Tabernacle being removed hither, the Camp followed it, as I obſerved, ver. 1. And here it remained till the Land was divided among the ſeven Tribes. Which could not be done in a ſhort time; for Joſephus ſaith they were ſeven Months in taking this Survey, and making the forenamed Deſcription.

Ver. 10. And Joſhua.] With the Aſſiſtance of Eleazer and the Princes, xiv. 1.

Caſt Lots for them in Shiloh before the LORD.] As he told them he would, ver. 6. The Manner of it, ſee upon Numb. xxvi. 55, 56.

And there Joſhua divided the Land unto the Children of Iſrael according to their Diviſions.] That is, according to the Diviſions made by the Surveyors; which were ſo juſt and equal, that all conſented the Lot ſhould determine what Part ſhould belong to them.

Ver. 11. And the Lot of the Tribe of Benjamin came up.] The Providence of God ſo ordered it, that his Children ſhould have the firſt Lot of theſe ſeven, next to the Children of Joſeph; they two being the only Sons of Rachel, Jacob's beloved Wife.

According to their Families.] To be divided according to their Families.

And the Coaſt of their Lot came forth between the Children of Judah.] Who lay on the South of them.

And the Children of Joſeph.] For the Ephraimites lay on the North of them. And it is obſervable, that in the Bleſſing of Moſes, Benjamin is placed between Judah and Joſeph (Levi having no Inheritance among them) which Prophecy of Moſes by this Lot, was exactly fulfilled concerning him, Deut. xxxiii. 12.

Ver. 12. And their Border on the North Side was from Jordan, and the Border went up to the Side of Jericho, on the North Side.] Juſt thus the South Border of Ephraim proceeded from Jordan by Jericho, which was in the Tribe of Benjamin. See xvi. 1, 7.

And went up thro' the Mountain Weſtward.] Thro' the mountainous Country, which lay on the North of Jericho, it went up to the Weſtern Part of the Country.

And the Goings-out thereof were at the Wilderneſs of Bethaven.] A Place near Beth-el; which in After-times (when they committed foul Idolatry there) was called Beth-aven, an Houſe or Place of Iniquity, Hoſea iv. 15. x. 8.

Ver. 13. And the Border went out from thence towards Luz, to the Side of Luz (which is Beth-el) Southward.] On the South Side of that City. See xvi. 2. The Jews think there were two Beth-els; one here named in the Confines of Benjamin and Joſeph, where Jacob had the Viſion of the Ladder reaching up to Heaven; and the other Beth-el near to Ai, viii. 6, 17.

And the Border deſcended to Ataroth-adar.] Called in the Place forenamed, xvi. 2. Archi-ataroth.

Near the Hill that lieth on the South Side of the nether Beth-horon.] A City in the Tribe of Ephraim, xvi. 3. called the nether, becauſe there was an higher hard by it, in the Mountain adjoining. Tho' others will have the two Beth-horons to have been at a great Diſtance, one in the Mountains of Ephraim, the other in the Valley near Jordan.

Ver. 14. And the Border was drawn thence.] In a Line bending Weſtward, as appears by what follows in the End of the Verſe; which tells us the Weſtern Border began from Beth-horon the nether.

And compaſſeth the Corner of the Sea Southward, from the Hill that lieth before Beth-horon.] I cannot give any Account of this Border, according to our Tranſlation: For, it is certain, it did not compaſs any Corner of the Mediterranean (and no other Sea can be here meant) nor came near unto it. Therefore, by Peath, which we tranſlate Corner, muſt be underſtood the Side of the Sea. As if he had ſaid, it ran along in a parallel Line to the Sea. So the Vulgar hath it, over-againſt the Sea; and the LXX to the ſame Purpoſe. And the Word Southward is joined by Vulgar, not to the Sea, but to the next Words, Southward from the Hill that lieth before Beth-horon.

Southward.] That is, the Hill was to the South of Beth-horon, as we read in the Verſe before.

And the Goings out thereof were at Kirjath-baal (which is Kirjath-jearim a City of Judah.] See xv. 60.

This was the Weſt Quarter.] Here the Peath before-mentioned (for it is the ſame Word we before tranſlate Corner) the Weſt Side, or Quarter, ended: For that is meant by its Goings out.

Ver. 15. And the South Quarter.] The ſame Word again in the Hebrew, viz. Peath.

Was from the End of Kirjath-jearim, and the Border went out on the Weſt.] Did not go directly South, but bordered ſomething towards the Sea till it came to the Well of Waters of Nephtoah, as this Verſe concludes. See xv. 9. By conſidering of which, and the foregoing and following Verſes, it will be unneceſſary to ſay much of this South Border of Benjamin; it being the ſame with the North Border of Judah. For the very ſame Places are named here, that are there, and in the ſame Order; with this Difference only, that in deſcribing this Border, he proceeds from the Weſt toward the Eaſt; but in deſcribing that of Judah from the Eaſt toward the Weſt. So that Kirjath-jearim is there the North Limits of Judah; as it is here the South Limits of Benjamin.

Ver. 16. And the Border came down to the End of the Mountain that lieth before the Valley of the Son of Hinnom, &c.] See xv. 8.

And deſcended to En-rogel.] See xv. 7.

Ver. 17. And was drawn from the North, and went forth to En-ſhemeſh, and went forth towards Geliloth.] See there; where this Place is called Gilgal.

Which is over-againſt the going up to Adummim, and deſcended to the Stone of Bohan, the Son of Reuben.] See there, and ver. 6.

Ver. 18. And paſſed along towards the Side of Arabah Northward: and went down unto Arabah.] Called Beth-arabah, xv. 6. and ſo the LXX have it here in this Verſe.

Ver. 19. And the Border paſſed along to the Side of Beth-hoglah Northward.] Leaving Beth-hoglah on the North of it, ſee xv. 6.

And the Out-goings of the Border were at the North Bay of the Salt Sea.] Its utmoſt Progreſs was to the Tongue or Bay of the Salt Sea, which is on the North Part of it.

At the South End of Jordan.] Where Jordan ends towards the South; being ſwallowed up by the Salt Sea.

This was the South Coaſt.] That is, hither it reached, and here it ended.

Ver. 20. And Jordan was the Border of it on the Eaſt Side.] Till, near Jericho, it met with the Bounds of the Tribe of Ephraim and Manaſſeh.

This was the Inheritance of the Children of Benjamin, by the Coaſts thereof round about.] That is, a Deſcription of its Bounds, on all Sides.

According to their Families.] Which was divided among as many Families, as were in that Tribe.

Ver. 21. Now the Cities of the Tribe of the Children of Benjamin, according to their Families, were Jericho.] Having given a Deſcription of the Bounds of the Country, he ſets down the principal Cities in it. The firſt of which was well known, viz. Jericho; the Territory of which remained, tho' the City itſelf was deſtroyed. And perhaps there were ſome Houſes there, tho' without Walls or Gates; which ſeem to be the only Things which Joſhua commanded ſhould not be built, vi. 26.

And Beth-hoglah.] A City nigh to Jericho; not far from the River Jordan.

And the Valley of Keziz.] Rather, Emer-Keziz; for he ſpeaks of a City, not of a Valley. Or, it may be interpreted, Keziz in the Valley; that is, in the Plain of Jericho.

Ver. 22. And Beth-arabath.] This City is reckoned to Judah, xv. 61. being, it ſeems, in the Confines of both Tribes. It ſtood alſo in the Plain of Jericho, ſignifying as much as Domus Campeſtris, an Habitation in the Fields: For there were large Fields about it, as Bochartus ſuppoſes; from whence a Place in Aſſyria, for this Reaſon, was called Oraba, as he ſhews, Lib. 4. Phaleg. Cap. 21.

And Zemaraim.] A City, it is probable, built by Zemari, the tenth Son of Canaan, Gen. x. 18. There was a Mountain alſo called by this Name; from this City, it is likely. For tho' it is ſaid to be in Mount Ephraim, 2 Chron. xiii. 14. It might alſo, in part, belong to Benjamin; as Betharaba and the next Cities did belong to two Tribes.

And Beth-el.] A City in the Confines of the Tribe of Ephraim and of Benjamin; which ſeems to have belonged to both.

Ver. 23. And Avim, and Parah, and Ophrah.] We know no more of theſe Cities but their Names.

Ver. 24. And Cephar-haamonai, and Ophni.] Theſe alſo are unknown Cities.

And Gaba.] This is often named in Scripture, and called Gibeah; being that Place where the foul Fact was committed, which almoſt ruined this Tribe, Judg. xix. And is called Gibeah of Saul; becauſe it was his native Country; where he made his Reſidence, after he was King, 1 Sam. x. 26. And it was one of the Cities of the Prieſts, Joſh. xxi. 17.

Twelve Cities, with their Villages.] Which ſeem to have been in the Eaſtern Part of their Country.

Ver. 25. Gibeon, and Ramah, and Beeroth.] The firſt of theſe is well known from the Story of its ancient Inhabitants, related in the ninth Chapter of this Book. It was alſo a City of the Prieſts, xxi. 17. and ſeated on a Hill, as its very Name imports. Ramah alſo was an eminent City on the North Side of Jeruſalem, as Bethlehem was on the South. So that Jeruſalem was in the Road from the one to the other; as appears from the Man that went from Bethlehem-Judah to Ramah, Judg. xix. 2, 11, 13.

Beeroth alſo is notorious upon this Account, that it was one of the Cities which cunningly joined with Gibeon to deceive Joſhua and procure a Peace with them, ix. 17.

Ver. 26. And Mizpeh.] There were ſeveral Cities of this Name, as I have noted before, xv. 38. and this was in the Confines of the Tribe of Judah; ſo that it ſeems to have belonged both to them, and to Benjamin, as ſeveral others did.

And Cephirah.] Another of the Cities depending upon Gibeon, ix. 17.

And Mozah.] An unknown City.

Ver. 27. And Rekem.] This is a City mentioned both by Euſebius and St. Hierom; but they do not ſay where it was, nor ſo much as name the two next, Irpeel and Taralah.

Ver. 28. And Zelah, Eleph.] Two Cities, of which no more than the Names are remaining. Euſebius and St. Hierom mention the former as in the Tribe of Benjamin, but ſay no more.

And Jebuſi, which is Jeruſalem.] See xv. 63. where it is reckoned to the Tribe of Judah; for both that Tribe and Benjamin had an Intereſt in it. The old City belonged to the Tribe of Benjamin; unto which an Addition being made, it belonged to Judah, (as ſome make account) that is, the North Part, with Mount Moriah, was in the Portion of Benjamin; but the South Part, wherein Mount Sion was, belonged to Judah.

Gibeah.] This was a diſtinct City from Gaba, Ver. 24. and I ſuppoſe near to Jeruſalem.

And Kirjath. The very Name imports a City: Which, Euſebius and St. Hierom ſay, was under the Metropolis of Gibeath, fore-mentioned. Πόλις ὑπὸ Μητρόπολιν Λαβαθά.

Fourteen Cities, with their Villages.] Which were in the Weſtern Part of this Tribe.

This is the Inheritance of the Children of Benjamin.] Which was one of the ſmalleſt, with reſpect to the Quantity of Ground which they poſſeſſed; but the Soil was the richeſt of all other Tribes, as Joſephus informs us.

According to their Families.] All the Families of the Benjamites were diſpoſed of into theſe great Cities, and the Territories belonging to them; in which, it is probable, there were leſſer Cities, not here named. For we find two Cities of the Prieſts in this Tribe, which are not among thoſe here ſet down, viz. Anathoth, and Almon, xxi. 18.

CHAP. XIX.

Ver. 1. AND the ſecond Lot came forth to Simeon, even for the Tribe of the Children of Simeon.] Both the LXX. and the Vulgar leave out the latter Part of theſe Words, as if they were ſuperfluous; and only ſay, the ſecond Lot came forth from Simeon. But I ſuppoſe the Words following in the Hebrew, are intended to ſhew, that tho' their Inheritance was within that of the Tribe of Judah (as the next Word tells us) yet thoſe Cities were not all that were given to this Tribe, but they had another Share by Lot that fell to them: And God diſpoſed it ſo, that the very next Lot to Benjamin came up for them; Simeon being the eldeſt Son of Jacob that was unprovided.

According to their Families.] Which was divided by Eleazar, Joſhua, and the Princes among their ſeveral Families.

And their Inheritance was within the Inheritance of the Tribe of Judah.] So we well tranſlate it; for tho' the Word in the Hebrew be betoch (in the midſt) of the Inheritance of Judah; yet it ſignifies no more than within. For the Lot of Simeon did not lie in the very Heart (as we ſpeak) but in the Skirts of the Country of Judah: From whoſe Northern and Weſtern Border ſome Part was cut off, and given to the Simeonites; for the Reaſon mentioned, Ver. 9.

Ver. 2. And they had in their Inheritance Beer-ſheba, and Sheba.] Or rather, Beer-ſheba, which is Sheba: For they were one and the ſame Place; ſometimes called at length Beerſheba, and ſometimes contracted in Sheba: Nothing being more common than to cut off the Beginning of the Names of Towns, and Places, as Bochartus hath ſhewn in many Inſtances, in his Phaleg. Lib. 2. Cap. 24. which he repeats in his Hierozoicon, P. 1. Lib. 2. Cap. 15. And certainly it is ſo here; for otherwiſe it would not have been ſaid, Ver. 6. there were Thirteen Cities in all, but Fourteen; for there are ſo many if Sheba be diſtinct from Beer-ſheba. Which was the laſt City in the South belonging to the Land of Iſrael. From whence the common Saying, from Dan to Beer-ſheba, to expreſs the whole Length of the Country; from Dan in the North, to Beer-ſheba in the South.

And Moladah.] This is mentioned before, in the Account we had of the Lot of Judah, xv. 26.

Ver. 3. And Hazar-ſhual.] A Place where there was abundance of Foxes.

And Balah.] The ſame that is mentioned in the South of Judah, xv. 29.

And Azem.] It ſignifies in Hebrew great Strength. We read of it no where elſe but in this Place, and 1 Chron. iv. 29. where it is called Ezem.

Ver. 4. And El-tolad.] Called there Tolad; the firſt Syllable being cut off, as I ſaid Ver. 2. it often is.

And Bethul.] Called there Bethuel. Which ſome will have to be the ſame with Bethulia, where Judith dwelt; becauſe ſhe was of the Tribe of Simeon. But that is a Miſtake; for this was in the South of Judah, and that a City in Galilee.

And Hormah.] Which is mentioned in the ſame Place, 1 Chron. iv. 30. and was one of the Cities, to whom David ſent Part of the Spoil he took from the Amalekites, 1 Sam. xxx. 30.

Ver. 5. And Ziglag.] A neighbouring City, as appears from both the forementioned Places.

And Beth-marcaboth, and Hazar-ſuſah.] It is a very probable Conjecture of Bochartus, that theſe were two of the Cities, where Solomon kept his Chariots and Horſes, 1 Kings x. 26. For the former of theſe ſignifies the Houſe of Chariots; and the other, the Village of Horſes. For it is called Hazar-Suſin, in the Plural Number, 1 Chron. iv. 31. See Hierozoicon, P. 1. L. 2. C. 9.

Ver. 6. And Beth-lebaoth, ana Sharuhen.] They ſeem to be the ſame Cities, called in After-times Beth-birei, and Shaaraim, 1 Chron. iv. 31.

Thirteen Cities, and their Villages.] See Ver. 1.

Ver. 7. Aain, Remmon, and Ether, and Aſhan.] One of theſe Towns is otherwiſe called in 1 Chr. iv. 32. viz. Etam, not Ether; and a fifth is added. Which ſhews all the Cities and Towns belonging to Simeon, are not here mentioned; no more than all thoſe belonging to Benjamin; as I obſerved on Ver. 28. of the foregoing Chapter. Aſhan alſo is thought by Bochart (in the Place before-named) to be the ſame with Chor-aſhan in 1 Sam. xxx. 30. by cutting off the firſt Syllable.

Four Cities, and their Villages.] Which are mentioned ſeparate from the reſt; either becauſe they were in another Part of the Country; or becauſe they were not properly Cities, but only Chatſerim (large Villages) as they are expreſly called, 1 Chron. iv. 32. that is, Towns which were without Walls. Here indeed they are called Cities; but that muſt be underſtood largely, to make it agree with the Chronicles, for Towns of more than ordinary Bigneſs.

Ver. 8. And all the Villages that were round about theſe Cities.] Here the Word Chatſerim (Villages) is oppoſed to Cities; and ſignifies all the Towns great and ſmall, that lay about all the Cities before-mentioned.

To Baalah-beer Ramath.] This is the Name but of one City, called ſimply Baal in 1 Chron. iv. 33. and is that City in the Tribe of Judah, mentioned xv. Ver. 24. or Ver. 29. As far as which City the Bounds of the Tribe of Simeon reached. Some think this is the City which Solomon built, i. e. repaired, and made larger and ſtronger, 1 Kings ix. 18.

On the South.] This doth not relate to the Situation of the City before-mentioned; but of the Inheritance of this Tribe; which was on the South of Judah.

Ver. 9. Out of the Portion of the Children of Judah was the Inheritance of Simeon.] For which Reaſon the Bounds of this Tribe on all Sides are not deſcribed, as of the foregoing; becauſe that was ſufficiently done in the Deſcription of the Poſſeſſion of Judah; out of which the Inheritance of this Tribe was taken.

For the Part of the Children of Judah was too much for them.] They who were ſent to make a new Survey of the whole Land, found that the former Surveyors had not meaſured it exactly; but left one Diviſion too big in Proportion to the reſt; which fell to the Tribe of Judah: Who had now, therefore, a large Slice cut from them; becauſe they had too much, and others too little.

Therefore the Children of Simeon had their Inheritance, within the Inheritance of them.] Within that Lot, which was at firſt given to the Tribe of Judah: Yet not abſolutely given, but ſo that if it appeared there was not ſufficient for the reſt of their Brethren, and they had more than enough; that Error ſhould be corrected, by taking ſomething from them, and giving it to another Tribe; as it was now in this new Allotment.

Ver. 10. And the third Lot came up for Zebulun, according to their Families.] He was not the next Brother; for Iſſachar was born before him. But he is mentioned before Iſſachar, both in the Bleſſing of Jacob, Gen. xlix. 13. and of Moſes, Deut. xxxiii. 18.

And the Border of their Inheritance was to Sarid.] No more is ſaid of this Place by Euſebius, but that it was ὅριον Ζαβυλὼν the Bound or Limit of Zebulun; and St. Hierom ſaith the ſame. And, by what follows, it ſeems to have been the South-Weſt Border.

Ver. 11. And their Border went up toward the Sea.] That is, the Mediterranean, which was in the Weſt.

And Maralah, and reacheth to Dabbaſheth.] Theſe were Cities in the Weſtern Borders, as appears by the following Words.

And reacheth to the River that is before Jokneam.] See xii. 22.

Ver. 12. And turned from Sarid Eaſtward toward the Sun riſing.] This is the Deſcription of the South Border; which went from Sarid in the Weſt, unto Jordan in the Eaſt.

Unto the Border of Chiſloth-tabor.] A City near Mount Tabor in the Tribe of Iſſachar, ver. 18. For, as on the Weſt the Zebulonites were contiguous to the Tribe of Manaſſeh; ſo, toward the Eaſt, they were to the Tribe of Iſſachar.

And then goeth out to Deborah.] A City alſo in the Tribe of Iſſachar, xxi. 28.

And goeth up to Japhia.] It is uncertain where this City was, tho' ſome think it to be the ſtrong City which Joſephus called Japha (L. 2. de Bello Jud. Cap. 25.) and places it in Galilee near Jotapata.

Ver. 13. And from thence paſſeth on along on the Eaſt to Gittah-hepher.] This ſeems to be a Deſcription of the Eaſtern Border. We read of the Land of Hepher, 1 Kings iv. 10. which was near the Sea of Galilee. There this City was, in which Jonah the Prophet was born, 2 Kings xiv. 25.

And Ittah Cazin.] This City, it is likely, was upon the ſame Sea of Galilee, called Geneſaret; which the Vulgar calls Thacaſin.

And goeth out to Remmon-methoar, to Neah.] Here the Eaſtern Border ended (for that is meant by the Phraſe goeth out) at the Sea of Geneſaret. So Joſephus expreſly affirms. See Gen. xlix. 13.

Ver. 14. And the Border compaſſeth it on the North Side to Hannathon.] Here begins the Deſcription of the Northern Border; which from the laſt named Place, went in a bending Line towards Hannathon; a City, it is ſuppoſed, in this Tribe.

And the Out-goings thereof are in the Valley of Jiphthah-el.] Here the Northern Border ended. But we know no more of this Valley of Jiphthah-el, than that it was in the Tribe of Aſher in the Confines of this Tribe, ver. 27.

Ver. 15. And Kattath, and Naballal, and Shimron, and Idalah, and Beth-lehem.] It is not certain whether theſe Cities belonged to Zebulon, or are ſet down as Places upon which this Tribe bordered. Of the two firſt, I can give no Account; but we read of Shimron as a principal City, which had a King in it conquered by Joſhua. See xii. 20. And Idalah is mentioned by St. Hierom (de locis Hebraicis) and called Jadela; as if it were compounded of Jad (which ſignifies a Place, Deut. xxv. 12.) and Ela (a Goddeſs) being the Place where Venus was worſhipped, as Bochartus conjectures, Lib. 1. Canaan, Cap. 3. As for Beth-lehem, we are not to take it for the Place where our Saviour was born; which is called Bethlehem-Judah, to diſtinguiſh it from this, which was far from it.

Twelve Cities, with their Villages.] Here are more Cities than twelve; therefore ſome of them are mentioned only as the Boundaries of this Country. There is no doubt but thoſe mentioned ver. 13. were in this Tribe; and many think thoſe five here mentioned in this, were ſo alſo. Jokneam likewiſe belonged to it; but which were the reſt to make up the Number twelve, cannot be determined.

Ver. 16. This is the Inheritance of the Children of Zebulon, according to their Families, theſe Cities, with their Villages.] That is, theſe were the Bounds of it; but all the Cities belonging to it are not here ſet down: For we read of two, Kartah, and Dimnah (xxi. 34, 35.) which are not here named. And indeed twelve Cities do not ſeem ſufficient for ſixty thouſand Men, (Numb. xxvi. 27.) therefore they were only the principal; and all, perhaps, that the Meaſurers of the Land had noted in their Book.

Ver. 17. And the fourth Lot came out for Iſſachar, for the Children of Iſſachar, according to their Familes.] Thus far there is ſome Kind of Order obſerved in theſe Lots: Iſſachar being Brother to Zebulon by the ſame Mother.

Ver. 18. And their Border was towards Jezreel.] This was one of the Royal Seats of the Kings of Iſrael in After-times, 1 Kings xxi. 1. which Euſebius and St. Hierom place in the Tribe of Manaſſeh; but ought to be accounted belonging to this Tribe, as the next Place is agreed to be. There was another in the Tribe of Judah, xv. 56.

And Cheſulloth.] Mentioned ver. 12. which both the forementioned Authors place in the Tribe of Iſſachar, under the Name of Acheſeloth.

And Shunem.] Where that noble Lady lived who entertained Eliſha at her Houſe, 2. Kings iv. 8, 12. And where Abiſhag, the Wife of David, in his old Age, was born, 1 Kings i. 3.

Ver. 19. Hapharaim, and Shihon, and Anaharath.] He doth not deſcribe the Borders on all Sides of this Tribe; but only ſets down ſome principal Cities; for it lying between Manaſſeh and Zebulon, the Stuation of it was ſufficiently known. And they do but gueſs, who ſay theſe ſix Cities named in the foregoing Verſe and in this, were in the Southern Border.

Ver. 20. And Rabbith, and Kiſhion, and Abez.] Theſe three Cities, and the two next that follow (ver. 21.) they will have to conſtitute the Weſtern Border.

Ver. 21. And Remeth and En-gannim.] Here, as I ſaid, they imagine the Weſtern Border ended.

En-haddah, and Beth-Pazzez.] Theſe two, and the three next, ver. 22. they will have to be the Northern Border.

Ver. 22. And the Coaſt reacheth to Tabor.] That is, this Northern Border; for Mount Tabor was in the North; and this City was hard by it, and received its Name from the Mount, or gave its Name to it.

And Shahazimah, and Beth-ſhemeſh.] Here ended the Northern Border. There was another Beth-ſhemeſh in the Tribe of Naphtali, ver. 38. and another in the Tribe of Judah, xxi. 16.

And the Out-goings of their Border were at Jordan.] This makes it probable, the former Account of its other Borders is not true; becauſe it leaves no City for the Eaſtern Border near Jordan; nor any for the Middle of the Country.

Sixteen Cities, with their Villages.] This ſhews that Tabor was a City; otherwiſe there would be but fifteen.

Ver. 23. This is the Inheritance of the Tribe of the Children of Iſſachar, according to their Families, the Cities and Village.] Theſe were their principal Cities; but it is likely there were others: For we read of two not here mentioned, xxi. 28 and 29. Deborah and Jarmuth; yet there are thoſe who think Jarmuth is but another Name for Remeth, here mentioned, ver. 2. which to me doth not ſeem probable,

Ver. 24. And the fifth Lot came out for the Tribe of the Children of Aſher, acording to their Families.] No Reaſon can be given for this Order; unleſs it be, that God was pleaſed to place this Tribe, being deſcended from the Handmaid of Leah, not far from Zebulon, one of Leah's Sons. As for Gad, the elder Brother of Aſher, he was provided for before, on the other Side of Jordan.

Ver. 24. And their Border was Helkath, and Hali, and Beten, and Achſhaph.] We know no more of the three firſt of theſe Cities, than their Names. But the laſt of them was very conſiderable; Mention being made of the King of Achſhaph, xi. 1. xii. 20. The firſt of them alſo we find was a Levitical City, xxi. 31. called Hukock, in 1 Chron. vi. 75. It appears likewiſe, by the Mention of Carmel in the next Verſe, unto which this Border reached, that theſe Cities lay in the Weſt near the Mediterranean Sea.

Ver. 26. And Alammalech, and Amad, and Miſhael, and reacheth to Carmel Weſtward.] Or, by the Sea, not far from Ptolemais; to diſtinguiſh it from the other Carmel, in the Tribe of Judah, near Hebron. See xv. 55. Here the great Prophet Elijah ſometimes dwelt, and confuted the Baalites by a ſtupendous Miracle. But we are as ignorant of the three Cities mentioned in this Verſe, as we are of the other in the foregoing.

And to Shihor-Libnath.] Whether this was a City (ſome fancy Ptolemais) or a Promontory, or a muddy River, (for there are thoſe different Opinions about it) I cannot determine.

Ver. 27. And turneth toward the Sun-riſing.] It turned from the Sea toward the Eaſt; and ſo Northward, bending toward the Weſt again. For there are no Borders or Sides of this Tribe deſcribed: But from the South Part of the Sea it turned Eaſtward, and then Northward, in the Form of a Bow, toward the North Part of the ſame Sea, where Zidon was, ver. 28.

To Beth-dagon.] There was a Place of this Name mentioned before in the Tribe of Judah, xv. 41. where it is thought there was a famous Temple of Dagon, the God of the Philiſtines.

And reacheth to Zebulon, and to the Valley Jiphthah-el.] And ſo touched upon the North Border of the Tribe of Zebulon; in which the Valley of Jiphthah-el lay. See ver. 14.

Toward the North Side of Beth-emek, and Neiel.] Where theſe were, is not known. Only Euſebius and St. Hierom ſay, Beth-emek lay in a Valley, or low Place in this Tribe; as the Word ſeems to import.

And goeth out to Cabul on the Left-Hand.] On the North Side (called the Left-Hand) of this City, which lay in the Tribe of Aſher, this Border ended. Some have been ſo frivolous as from hence to argue, that this Book was written long after Joſhua's Time; becauſe the Land of Cabul (1 Kings ix. 13.) was not known till the Days of Solomon, when Hiram gave this Name to the Land, which Solomon preſented him withal. As if there were no Difference between the Land, and the City of Cabul: When one of them was a little Region, containing twenty Towns, and the other a ſmall Place in the Confines of Ptolemais; both of them in the Tribe of Aſher. They are plainly diſtinguiſhed by Joſephus, who calls one of them γῆν Χαβαλὼν, the Land of Cabul; and the other κώμην, the Village of Cabul as Huetius hath obſerved, Propoſ. 4. Demonſtr. Evang. P. 186.

Ver. 28. And Hebron.] Called Elbon by the LXX, and by the Vulgar Abran; to diſtinguiſh it, I ſuppoſe, from that Hebron in the Land of Judah.

And Rehob.] There were two Cities of this Name in this Tribe. See ver. 30. One of them was a Levitical City, xxi. 31. and the Canaanites kept Poſſeſſion either of that, or the other, Judg. i. 31.

And Hammon.] There was a Levitical City of this Name in the Tribe of Napthali, 1 Chr. vi. 76. called Hammothdor in xxi. 32. of this Book.

And Kana.] There were two Cities of this Name; one in the Upper Galilee, which was Kana the Greater; and the other in the Lower Galilee, called Kana the Leſs. He ſpeaks here of the Greater, which was near to Sidon. The Leſſer was that wherein our Saviour turned Water into Wine, and of which Nathanael and the Syrophœnician Woman were.

Even unto Great Sidon.] See before concerning this City, xi. 8.

Ver. 29. And then the Coaſt turneth to Ramah.] Another City on the Northern Part of the Mediterranean Sea.

And to the ſtrong City Tyre.] This Tranſlation is queſtionable: For we never read one Word of the City Tyre (unleſs it be here) until the Days of David; tho' we often read of Sidon in the Books of Moſes; even in the Prophecy of Jacob. And, as Bochartus obſerves, Homer himſelf, who ſpeaks frequently of Sidon and the Sidonians, never names Tyre, Lib. 4. Phaleg. Cap. 85. Therefore, it is highly probable, ſome other Place is meant by Tzor (as our Margin notes the Word is in the Hebrew) which was a fenced City, as we render the Word here tranſlated Strong, ver. 35. And there were ſeveral Cities, perhaps, called by this Name of Tzor or Tyre, beſides that famous one in future Times; particularly Palætyrus; as much much as to say old Tyre. And it is no improbable Conjecture of Campegius Vitringa, that into these two Places, Sidon and Tzor, many of the People of Canaan fled, to secure themselves when Joshua invaded them: For Tzor, signifies not only a Rock, but any strong fortified Place; from whence it is possible, the Latin Word Turris, and then our English, Tower, is derived. Certain it is, that these two were famous Cities, ἐνδοξικοὶ λαμπροὶ, as Strabo calls them, Lib. 16. where he saith, they were so anciently, and not only in his Time; insomuch, that it was uncertain which was the Metropolis of the Phœnicians. But it is certain he speaks of the New Tyre, which was built in an Island; but the Old one was one of the Continent. See his Observationes Sacræ, Lib. 1. Cap. 1.

And the Coast turneth to Hosah.] Declined a little towards a City of this Name.

And the out-goings of it are at the Sea, from the Coast of Achzib.] It ended at the Country which belonged to Achzib; for so Hebel (which we here translate Coast) signifies. In proper speaking, it signifies a Cord, whereby Ground was measured; and thence was used to signify the Portion of Ground itself, which was measured by that Cord, or Line. Thus we read of Hebel Argob, the Region of Argob, Deut. iii. 13. and Hebel Hajam, the Region of the Sea, Zeph. ii. 5. Achzib, according to St. Hierom, is that Place, which by Pliny and others, was called in After-times Ecdippa.

Ver. 30. Ummah also, and Aphek, and Rehob.] It is probable, these were three Ciries in the Heart of the Country of Asher.

Twenty-two Cities, with their Villages.] There are more than this Number here mentioned, tho' we do not reckon Carmel, nor Jiphthah-el; one of which was a Mountain, the other a Valley. Therefore some of them were only the Boundaries of this Tribe, but did not belong to their possession.

Ver. 31. This is the Inheritance of the Tribe of the Children of Asher, according tt their Families, these Cities, with their Villages.] That is, these were the most eminent Cities; tho' it be probable there were some other. For we read of one called Abdon, xxi. 30. not here mentioned.

Ver. 32. And the sixth Lot came out for the Children of Naphtali, even for the Children of Naphtali, according to their Families.] Here the younger Son of Bilhah, the Handmaid of Rachel, is preferred before the Elder, who was Dan, (Gen. xxx. 6, 8.) as Zebulon was before Issachar. Such was the Method of divine Providence in that Nation; to shew them that they ought not to value themselves too highly, as they were prone to do, upon their external Privileges.

Ver. 33. And their Coast was from Heleph, from Allon to Zaanannim, and Adami, Nekeb, and Jabneel, unto Lakum.] He doth not say what Coast this was; but by what follows, it appears to be the Northern Border, where these Cities were situated, near Lebanon and Sidon, and the rest of the Northern Part of Asher's Country: For Naphtali comprehended the Upper Galilee.

And the Out-goings thereof were at Jordan.] This Border ended at this River; and at the very Fountain of it, which was at the Foot of Libanus.

Ver. 34. And then the Coast turneth Westward to Aznoth-tabor, and goeth out from thence to Hukkok.] The Southern Border began at the former of these Cities; and ended at the latter.

And reacheth to Zebulon on the South Side.] Touched on the Confines of the Tribe of Zebulon: so that the North Side of Zebulon was the South Side of Naphtali.

And reacheth to Asher on the West Side.] This is a short Account of their Western Border, which went as far as to the Borders of the Tribe of Asher.

And to Judah upon Jordan toward the Sunrising.] It was not near Judah, there being several Tribes between them. Therefore, the Meaning is, this Tribe had Communication with that of Judah by the River Jordan. So the Word upon in our Translation must be interpreted, (tho' there be no Proposition at all in the Hebrew before Jordan) which River afforded them Convenience of carrying Merchandizes to Judah, or bringing them from thence. And thus some think the Prophecy of Moses was fulfilled, Deut. xxxiii. 23. Possess thou the West and the South. Which doth not signify that they had any Land in the South; but that they trafficked with it, by the Means of Jordan.

Ver. 35. And the fenced Cities are Ziddim, Zer, and Hammath, Rakkath, and Cinnereth.] These were Northern Cities, it appears by that mentioned in the Midst, Hammath; or Hamath, which was the utmost Bounds of the Land of Israel Northward. See Numb. xiii. 21. xxxiv. 8. 1 Kings viii. 65. It seems to have had its Name from the youngest Son of Canaan, who, it is likely, built it, as his eldest Son did Sidon, Gen. x. 18. It continued a famous City a long time; for in the Days of David, we read how the King of it cunningly made his Peace with him, by a great Present, 2 Sam. viii. 9, &c.

Rakkath.] Which follows that, is, in the Opinion of some of the Jews, the same with Tiberias. So the Author of the Book de Cippis Hebraicis, set forth by Hottinger. Whence the Talmudists, as he observes, say, Rakath is Zipporia; which was called Rakath, because it was seated upon the Bank of a River. It was also called Mæsia, and at last Tiberias; tho' other Jewish Authors make Rakkath different from that City.

Cinnereth.] A Place upon this Sea of Tiberias; in which there were fine Gardens, and a kind of Paradise. Whence it was called Geneser; as much as to say, the Gardens of Princes (Gannoth-Sarim.) And it had the Name of Cinnereth, from its Sweetness and Pleasures, as the Jews say (Cod. Megill.) Kinnereth, is Ginser And why is it called Cinnereth? because its Fruits are as sweet to the Taste, as the Sound of an Harp is to the Ear. See Hottinger in his Annot. on the forenamed Book, P. 36.

As for the two first Cities, Ziddim and Zor, I can say nothing of them.

Ver. 36. And Adamah, and Ramah, and Hazor.] We may gueſs where theſe Cities were, by the laſt of them, Hazor, to which they were Neighbours. See concerning it, xi. 1.

Ver. 37. And Kedeſh, and Edrei, and Enhazor.] The firſt of theſe was a Levitical City, xxi. 32. in which that famous Captain Barak was born, Judg. iv. 6. where it is called Kedith-Naphtali, to diſtinguiſh it from thoſe of that Name in other Tribes. Of the other two Cities we know nothing.

Ver. 38. And Iron, and Migdal-el, and Horem, and Beth-anath and Beth-ſhemeſh.] Every one knows there was another Beth-ſhemeſh in the Tribe of Judah; and that this City and Beth-anath, the Children of Naphtali could not conquer, Judg. i. 33. But we know no more of them, nor of the reſt; ſave only that Euſebius ſays there ways a large Village, called Magdal-el, between Dora and Ptolomais.

Nineteen Cities, with their Villages.] Six of which were fenced Cities, certainly belonging to this Tribe, and there are as many more mentioned, as make up twenty-three. Some of which therefore muſt be accounted as bordering Cities; or only large Villages, and not properly Cities.

Ver. 39. This is the Inheritance of the Tribe of the Children of Naphtali, according to their Families, the Cities, and their Villages.] This muſt be underſtood (as in the Account of the fore-mentioned Tribes) of the principal Cities; for there were more beſides theſe, as appears from xxi. 32. Where Hammoth-der, and Kartan, are numbred among the Levitical Cities in this Tribe, which are not mentioned here.

Ver. 40. And the ſeventh Lot came out for the Tribe of the Children of Dan, according to their Families.] They were the only remaining Tribe, that was to be provided for.

Ver. 41. And the Coaſt of their Inheritance was Zorah, and Eſhtaol, and Ir-ſhemeſh.] He doth not deſcribe their Lot by its Borders; but mentions the Cities that were in it. Some of which at firſt were given to Judah; out of whoſe Share, it being too large, ſome Cities were taken for the Danites, as others were for the Simeonites. And it is certain the two firſt of theſe fell to Judah, in the firſt Diviſion of the Land, xv. 33. Both very eminent Places, for the Birth and Burial, and mighty Motions of Sampſon: For at Zorah he was born, Judg. xiii. 2. between Zorah and Eſhtaol he was buried, Judg. xvi. ult. and here the Spirit of God began to move him at certain Times, xiii. 25. It is probable alſo, that Ir-ſhemeſh was in the Tribe of Judah at the firſt; it being of the ſame Signification with Beth-ſhemeſh: For one ſignifies the City of the Sun; the other, the Houſe, or Place of the Sun.

Ver. 42. And Shaalabbin.] Which the Amorites kept in their Poſſeſſion, Judg. i. 35. where, by a ſmall Change of Letters, it is called Shaalbin; and in ſome Copies of the LXX tranſlated ἐν ᾧ ἠ αἱ ἀλώπεκες, and in others ἐν Θίλαβιν. And in our preſent LXX both theſe are retained. For a Fox in the Arabian Language is called Thalab, and in the Phœnician (which is half Arabick) Saalab; as Bochartus obſerves in his Hierozoicon, P. 1. Lib. 3. Cap. 13. and in his Canaan, Lib. 1. Cap. 34. P. 684.

And Ajalon.] Another City which the Amorites kept from them, as we find in the ſame Place, Judg. i. 35. And was one of the Levitical Cities, xxi. 23. and that famous Place mentioned x. 13.

And Jethlah.] We know no more of it, than that it was a City in this Tribe.

Ver. 43. And Elon, and Thimnathah, and Ekron.] It is certain, that the laſt of theſe three Cities was at firſt given to Judah, xv. 45. But Thimnathah was not the ſame with Timnath in the ſame Tribe, (xv. 10. 57.) but quite different from it; as Gibeath, I obſerved in the foregoing Chapter, was from Geba. For Sampſon went down to this City Timnath, Judg. xiv. 5. which ſhews it was in a Valley; whereas Judah went up to Timnath to ſhear his Sheep, (Gen. xxxviii. 11, 13.) which ſhews it was upon an Hill. Concerning Elon, I can ſay nothing; unleſs it be the ſame with Holon, in the Tribe of Judah, xv. 51.

Ver. 44. And Eltekeh, and Gibbethon, and Baalah.] Some think that the firſt of theſe is the ſame with that City, in the Tribe of Judah, called Eltekon, xv. 59. and the laſt the ſame with that called there Baalah, ver. 39. As for Gibbethon, the Danites ſeem not to have got Poſſeſſion of it, or to have loſt it again; for it was in the Hands of the Philiſtines after the Days of David, 1 Kings xv. 27. xvi. 15. and yet appointed one of the Levitical Cities, Joſh. xvi. 21, 23.

Ver. 45. And Jehud, and Bene-berak, and Gath-rimmon.] Where Jehud was, I find not; but Βαραχαὶ is mentioned by Euſebius as a Village near Azotus (or Aſhdod) and St. Hierom ſaith in his Time was called Bernea. Which may incline us to his Opinion, that Gith-rimmon was no other than the City of Gath ſo often mentioned in Scripture as one of the principal Cities of the Philiſtines, It is reckoned among the Levitical Cities, xxi. 24. as Gibbethon was (ver. 44.) tho' in the Hands of the Philiſtines.

Ver. 46. And Mejarkon, and Rakkon.] It is not certain where theſe Places were; but very likely near to the Place next mentioned.

With the Border before Japho.] This Place was afterward called Joppa, being the principal Port-Town in all Judæa (mentioned by Pompon. Mela, Strabo, and Pliny) and continues ſo to this Day; retaining the Name of Japha, which in Hebrew ſignifies fair, or beautiful. It is not certain that it was a Part of the Tribe of Dan, tho' Euſebius calls it a Sea-Town of the Lot of Dan; for theſe Words may ſignify no more, but that their Portion comprehended the Border which lay before this Place.

Ver. 47. And the Coaſt of the Children of Dan went out too little for them.] Theſe Words, too little, are not in the Hebrew; where there is nothing anſwering to them. But the Words run thus, the Coaſt of the Children of Dan went out from them; that is, they were diſpoſſeſſed of it in ſome Parts by their powerful Neighbours, the Amorites; who forced them into the Mountains, and would not let them dwell in the Valley

Judg. i. 34. This put them to ſuch Straits, that they were conſtrained to enlarge their Border ſome other Way; which they did by the Means following. I ſhall only further note, that this is no ſtrange Phraſe; for in the Year of Jubilee Lands are ſaid to go out, when they returned to their firſt Owners, from the preſent Poſſeſſors, Levit. xxv. 28, 30, 31, 33.

Therefore the Children of Dan went up to fight againſt Leſhem.] A City not far from Jordan, called Laiſh in the Book of Judges, before it was taken by the Danites. In After-times, when it fell into the Hands of the Romans, it was called Paneas; and made the Metropolis of Iturea and Trachonitis. And from Philip alſo Son of Herod the Great, who very much enlarged and adorned it, it was called Cæſarea Philippi, in Honour of Tiberius Cæſar.

And took it, and ſmote it with the Edge of the Sword, and poſſeſſed it, and dwelt therein.] Were not diſturbed in their Poſſeſſion.

And called Leſham-Dan, after the Name of Dan their Father.] Thus Conquerors were wont to change the Names of Places, which they ſubdued. This was done after Joſhua's Death; and is related more largely in the Book of Judges, Chap. xviii. where there is an Account of the whole Expedition. From whence ſome argue this Book was not written by Joſhua; whereas no more can be inferred from it than this, that in After-times, Ezra, or ſome other, thought good to put in this Verſe here, to compleat the Account of the Danites Poſſeſſions. But any one may ſee, as Huetius obſerves, that if this Verſe were taken away, all that is ſaid of this Tribe coheres perfectly; and there is no Breach at all in the Context of the foregoing with the following Verſe after this. Which is an Argument, that this ſhort Account of their taking Leſhem, were not the Words of the Writer of this Book, but inſerted afterward by ſome other Perſon. For if they were taken away, this Relation of the Danites Lot would be more like the Account of the Lot of all the reſt

Ver. 48. This is the Inheritance of the Tribe of the Children of Dan according to their Families, theſe Cities, with their Villages.] The Number of them is not ſet down, as in the foregoing Tribes; of which it is to no Purpoſe to enquire the Reaſon.

Ver. 49. When they had made an End of dividing the Land for Inheritance, by their Coaſts.] That is, after every Tribe had their Portion aſſigned to them.

The Children of Iſrael gave an Inheritance to Joſhua the Son of Nun, among them.] We cannot but obſerve the wonderful Modeſty of this great Man, who received his Portion laſt of all; and then, not by Lot, but by their Gift; who were already poſſeſſed of the whole Land.

Ver. 50. According to the Word of the LORD, they gave him the City which he aſked.] God indeed had ordered that he ſhould have a Portion, and that he ſhould chuſe it; but he was content to ſtay for it till every body elſe was ſerved. We do not expreſly read of this Command; but many Things were ſaid and done, which are not recorded. And he being as faithful and upright as Caleb (and beſides, choſen to be the Captain of God's People) we cannot but think, that when God ordered what Caleb ſhould have, he gave the ſame Direction about Joſhua. And ſo much is implied in thoſe Words of Caleb himſelf, when he demanded his Portion of Joſhua, xiv. 6. Thou knoweſt the thing the LORD ſaid unto Moſes the Man of GOD concerning me and thee in Kadeſh-barnea.

Even in Timnah-Serah in Mount Ephraim.] He did not chuſe the beſt Place in all the Country, but a convenient Place in his own Tribe; which was ſeated on the North Side of a Hill called Gaaſh; as we read in the latter End of this Book.

And he built the City, and dwelt therein.] Repaired it, I ſuppoſe (for in all likelihood there was a City there before) and made a convenient Habitation for his Family and Kindred. But we read nothing of them; for as he did not affect to make himſelf King of Canaan, ſo he contented himſelf with a little, and made no large Proviſion for his Poſterity. We have no Mention made of his Sons or Daughters; but (as Conrad. Pellicanus ſpeaks) all the Iſraelites were his Children.

Ver. 51. Theſe are the Inheritances, which Eleazar the Prieſt, and Joſhua the Son of Nun, and the Heads of the Fathers of the Tribes of the Children of Iſrael, divided for an Inheritance by Lot, in Shiloh, before the LORD, at the Door of the Tabernacle of the Congregation.] It is uſual, after ſo long an Account, to recapitulate in brief what they had done, and by what Authority; which he doth in this Verſe.

So they made an end of dividing the Country.] Every Tribe had the Place of their Settlement appointed to their Satisfaction; ſo that there was no further Diviſion made of the Land.

CHAP. XX.

Ver. 1. AND the LORD ſpake unto Joſhua, ſaying.] From the Tabernacle, at the Door of which he and Eleazar, and the Princes had been making a Diviſion of the Land; as the laſt Verſe of the foregoing Chapter tells us.

Ver. 2. Speak unto the Children of Iſrael, ſaying, Appoint out for you Cities of Refuge.] This was the proper Time for it; when they were all met together to receive their ſeveral Portions of Land; after an exact Survey of the Country.

Whereof I ſpake to you by my Servant Moſes.] In Numb. xxxv. 9, 10, 11, &c. where he treats of them at large; and repeats it again, Deut. xix. 1, 2, &c.

Ver. 3. That the Slayer that killeth any Perſon unawares, and unwittingly, may flee thither.] Such Places every Body knows, there were among the Heathen; but commonly they were their Temples, and their Altars; as many have obſerved. Particularly Joh. Gentius lately, in his Book de Victimis Humanis, Pars 2. Cap. 21. P. 483, &c. But there were alſo ſome Cities, that had this Privilege, as Dilherrus (who thinks thinks herein the Gentiles imitated the Jews) obſerves out of Tacitus, L. 3. Annal. where he ſaith the principal Cities of Greece contended before Tiberius about this Matter, de Jure Aſylorum. See Diſſert. de Cacozelia Gentilium, Cap. 3.

And they ſhall be your Refuge from the Avenger of Blood.] Protect ſuch Perſons from him who ſtudied to avenge the Blood of the Slain. Concerning whom, ſee Numb. xxxv. 12.

Ver. 4. And when he that doth flee unto one of thoſe Cities, ſhall ſtand at the Entrance of the Gate of the City.] Deſiring to be admitted and protected there.

And ſhall declare his Cauſe in the Ears of the Elders of that City.] That is, the Judges, who ſat in the Gate before-mentioned, Deut. xvi. 18.

They ſhall take him into the City unto them.] Being ſatisfied he was ſuch a Perſon as he pretended.

And gave him a Place that he may dwell among them.] Aſſign a convenient Habitation for him; theſe Cities being appointed by GOD for that Purpoſe, and given unto thoſe who inhabited them, on this Condition, that they ſhould entertain ſuch Perſons when they fled to them.

Ver. 5. And if the Avenger of Blood purſue after him.] Deſiring he might be delivered up into his Hand,

Then they ſhall not deliver the Slayer up into his Hands.] But defend him from his Aſſaults.

Becauſe he ſmote his Nieghbours unwittingly, and hated him not before-time.] It was a caſual Slaughter, without any Deſign of doing him Hurt, as far as appeared to them. If the Avenger purſued the Slayer ſo cloſely, that they had not Time to examine the Matter at the Gate of the City, they were not to let him ſtand there; but take him in (and afterward hear his Cauſe, and judge it) leſt the Avenger ſhould kill him before he was admitted into their City.

Ver. 6. And he ſhall dwell in that City, until he ſtand before the Congregation for Judgment.] The Avenger might bring him before another Tribunal, to be tried whether he killed the Man by Chance or not. See Numb. xxxv. 24, 25.

And until the Death of the High Prieſt, that ſhall be in thoſe Days.] If that Court found him not guilty of wilful Murder, he was reſtored to the City of Refuge; but confined to live there till the Death of the High-Prieſt. See in the ſame Place.

Then ſhall the Slayer return, and come unto his own City, and his own Houſe, &c.] See Numb. xxxv. 28.

Ver. 7. And they appointed Kedeſh in Galilee, in Mount Naphtali; and Shechem in Mount Ephraim, and Kirjath-arba (which is Hebron) in the Mountain of Judah.] It is commonly obſerved, that as theſe three Cities were ſeated on high and eminent Places, that they might be ſeen afar off; ſo they were at ſuch a Diſtance from each other, that all the Country might more eaſily have the Benefit of one or other of them. For Kedeſh was in the North; and Hebron in the South; and Shechem between both. Thus they fulfilled the Command of GOD, Deut. xix. 8.

Ver. 8. And on the other ſide Jordan by Jericho Eaſtward.] On the Eaſt of Jericho, in the Land of the two Tribes and half; which was almoſt as long as the Land of Canaan, tho' not ſo broad.

They aſſigned Bezer in the Wilderneſs, upon the Plain, out of the Tribe of Reuben; and Ramoth Gilead out of the Tribe of Gad; and Golin in Baſhan out of the Tribe of Manaſſeh.] Theſe Cities were aſſigned by Moſes before he died, Deut. iv. 43. but had not the Privilege till now. And it is obſervable, that if Bezer ſtood in a flat Country, the other two, Ramoth and Golan, were in the high.

Ver. 9. Theſe were the Cities that were appointed for all the Children of Iſrael, and for the Stranger that ſojourneth among them.] For the Safety of all Sorts of Perſons, as is manifeſt from Numb. xxxv. 15.

That whoſoever killeth any Perſon at unawares, might flee thither, and not die by the Hand of the Avenger of Blood, until he ſtood before the Congregation.] It is obſervable, that all theſe Cities belonged to the Levites; who, by their Authority, might defend the Man from unjuſt Uſage; and, by their Wiſdom, direct the Elders to judge aright concerning his Cauſe; and alſo give him good Inſtructions while he lived among them, untill the Death of the High Prieſt.

CHAP. XXI.

Ver. 1. THEN came near.] After the Cities of Refuge were ſettled.

The Heads of the Fathers of the Levites.] So the Princes of the ſeveral Tribes (who divided the Land together with Joſhua and Eleazar) are called, xiv. 1. and in the Concluſion of this Verſe. And therefore, the chief Perſons deſcended from Koahath, Gerſhon, and Merari, (who were the Fathers of the Levites) are here meant by the Heads of the Fathers of that Tribe.

Unto Eleazar, and unto Joſhua, and unto the Heads of the Fathers of the Tribes of the Children of Iſrael.] Appointed by GOD to ſee the Land divided, called the Princes of the Tribes, Numb. xxxiv. 18.

Ver. 2. And they ſpake unto them at Shiloh in the Land of Canaan, ſaying, The LORD commanded by the Hand of Moſes, to give us Cities to dwell in, with the Suburbs thereof, for our Cattle.] This Command is regiſter'd in Numb. xxxv. 2, &c. and is ſet down before the Mention of Cities of Refuge (which are commanded in the following Part of the Chapter) tho', it ſeems, that Command was executed before this.

Ver. 3. And the Children of Iſrael gave unto the Levites out of their Inheritance, at the Commandment of the LORD, theſe Cities, and their Suburbs.] Not only Joſhua, Eleazar, and the Princes, but all the People of Iſrael acknowledged this Obligation, which GOD had laid upon them; and accordingly, these Words import, that the People separated so many Cities as he commanded by Moses (which were to be forty and eight, Numb. xxxv. 7.) for the Habitation of the Levites.) Which Cities are here named, and distributed among them in this Chapter.

Ver. 4. And the Lot came out for the Family of the Kohathites.] After the Cities were set out, which should belong to them; then they were divided by Lot among the several Families of the Levites; as the whole Land was among the Tribes. And the first Lot came out for the noblest Family in the Tribe of Levi; for Moses and Aaron were descended from Kohath.

And the Children of Aaron the Priest, which was of the Levites.] The Family of Aaron being Priests, were the principal among the Levites; and therefore, were first and very honourably provided for.

Had by Lot out of the Tribe of Judah, and out of the Tribe of Simeon, and out of the Tribe of Benjamin, thirteen Cities.] It was by a special Providence, that the Share which fell to the Priests, was in those Tribes that were nearest to the City; which God intended should be the fixed Place of his Worship and Service in future Times; that the Priests might be ready to give their Attendance there, without much Trouble.

Ver. 5. And the rest of the Children of Kohath.] All his Descendants were not Priests, but Aaron and his Family alone; the rest were bare Levites.

Had by Lot out of the Family of the Tribe of Ephraim, and out of the Tribe of Dan, and out of the half Tribe of Manasseh, ten Cities.] These three Tribes were nearest to the three fore-mentioned so that the Kohathites were not far separated one from another.

Ver. 6. And the Children of Gershon had by Lot out of the Families of the Tribe of Issachar, and out of the Tribe of Asher, and out of the Tribe of Naphtali, and out of the half Tribe of Manasseh in Bashan, thirteen Cities.] Among the Sons of Levi, Gershon is mentioned as the eldest, (Exod. vi. 16. Numb. iii. 17.) but the Lot came up first to the Children of Kohath, the Priests being descended from him.

Ver. 7. And the Children of Merari by their Families, had out of the Tribe of Reuben, and out of the Tribe of Gad, and out of the Tribe of Zebulun, twelve Cities.] This is only a general Account of the Tribes in which their several Lots fell, and of the Number of Cities bestowed on their several Families.

Ver. 8. And the Children of Israel gave by Lot unto the Levites these Cities, with their Suburbs.] The Children of Israel, as I said before, gave them; and the Lot divided them.

As the LORD commanded by the Hand of Moses.] Who ordered both how many Cities they should have; and how large the Suburbs of them should be. See Numb. xxxiv. 3, 4.

Ver. 9. And they gave out of the Tribe of the Children of Judah, and out of the Tribe of the Children of Simeon, the Cities, which are mentioned by Name.] Here now follows a particular Account of the Names of those Cities, which were said before in general to have been given out of these two Tribes. Which are put together; because the Lot of Simeon was taken out of the Lot of Judah.

Ver. 10. Which the Children of Aaron, being of the Family of the Kohathites, &c.] One of the Families of the Kohathites, and the eldest of them; for they descended from Amram, the eldest Son of Kohath. Exod. vi. 18. Numb. iii. 19.

For theirs was the first Lot.] They had the Honour to be first provided for, as was said before, ver. 4.

Ver. 11. And they.] That is, Eleazar, Joshua, and the Princes.

Gave them the City of Arba, the Father of Anak, which is Hebron, in the Hill-Country of Judah, &c.] See of this City, xiv. 15. xv. 13.

Ver. 12. But the Fields of the City, and the Villages thereof, gave they to Caleb, the Son of Jephunneh, for his Possession.] The Priests had only the City and Suburbs; which were their Possession, as much as the Fields and Villages were Caleb's; on whom they were bestow'd before, xiv. 13, &c.

Ver. 13. Thus they gave to the Children of Aaron the Priest, Hebron with her Suburbs, to be a City of Refuge for the Slayer.] It was given them with this Condition, that they who slew a Man unawares, should be entertained here, and have a Place given them to live securely among them, xx. 4.

And Libnah, with her Suburbs.] This is to be understood to belong to them no otherwise than Hebron did; unto which they had no Right beyond the City and Suburbs: And therefore the Fields and the Villages of Libnah they had nothing to do withal; and the same is to be noted of all the following Cities of the Priests.

Ver. 14. And Jattir, with her Suburbs; and Eshtemoa with her Suburbs.] These are mentioned as belonging to Judah, xv. 48, 50.

Ver. 15. And Holon with her Suburbs.] Called Helin, 1 Chron. vi. 56.

And Debir, with her Suburbs.] See xv. 15.

Ver. 16. And Ain, with her Suburbs.] A City in the Tribe of Simeon, xix. 17. but taken out of Judah, xv. 32.

And Juttah, with her Suburbs.] xv. 55.

And Beth-shemesh, with her Suburbs.] Unto which City the Providence of God directed the Kine, which drew the Cart wherein the Philistines put the Ark, when they sent it home, there being a great many Priests in it, to receive it with due Care and Reverence, 1 Sam. vi. 12, 13.

Nine Cities out of these two Tribes.] For the Tribe of Judah was very large; and the Command of God was, that from them which had many Cities, they should give many, Numb. xxxv. 8.

Ver. 17. And out of the Tribe of Benjamin, Gibeon, with her Suburbs, Goba, with her Suburbs.] See xviii. 24, 25.

Ver. 18. Anathoth, with her Suburbs.] The City of the Prophet Jeremiah, who was a Priest, Jer. i. 1.

And Almon, with her Suburbs.] Called Alemeth, in 1 Chron. vi. 60. For there were greater Alterations than this made, by Length of Time, in the Names of Places.

Four Cities.] Which was a great many out of ſo ſmall a Tribe; but the Soil of it, as I obſerved before, was very rich.

Ver. 19. All the Cities of the Children of Aaron the Prieſt, were thirteen Cities, with their Suburbs.] As was ſaid, ver. 4.

Ver. 20. And the Families of the Children of Kohath, the Levites which remained of the Children of Kohath.] Who were mere Levites, and not Prieſts.

Even they had the Cities of their Lot out of the Tribe of Ephraim.] Part of them were planted there, and Part of them in two other Tribes, as it follows, ver. 23, &c.

Ver. 21. For they gave them Shechem, with her Suburbs, in Mount Ephraim, to be a City of Refuge for the Slayer.] See xx. 7.

And Gezer, with her Suburbs.] See xvi. 3, 10.

Ver. 22. And Kibzaim, with her Suburbs.] Which is called Jokmeam in 1 Chron. vi. 68.

And Beth-horon, with her Suburbs.] We read of both the Beth-horons in the Deſcription of this Tribe, the Upper and the Nether, xvi. 3, 5. the firſt of which ſeems to be here meant.

Ver. 24. Aijalon, with her Suburbs; Gath-rimmon, with her Suburbs, four Cities.] The four Cities mentioned in theſe two Verſes, we find before in this Tribe, xix, 41, 44, 45.

Ver. 25. And out of half of the Tribe of Manaſſeh.] That half of it which was ſettled in Canaan.

Tanach, with her Suburbs.] xvii. 11.

And Gath-rimmon, with her Suburbs.] In 1 Chron. vi. 70. theſe two Cities are called Aner, and Bileam; ſo much were Names changed in a long Tract of Time. Or, they being diſpoſſeſſed of the two Cities here mentioned, by the Invaſions of their Enemies, (who perhaps demoliſhed them) theſe two others were given in lieu of them.

Two Cities.] Which was a juſt Proportion to the other whole Tribes; who gave four.

Ver. 26. All the Cities were ten, with their Suburbs, for the Families of the Children of Kohath that remained.] Who were not of the Children of Aaron, the Prieſts, ver. 5.

Ver. 27. And unto the Children of Gerſhon, of the Family of the Levites, out of the other half Tribe of Manaſſeh.] Which had their Inheritance on the other ſide of Jordan.

Golan in Baſhan, with her Suburbs, to be a City of Refuge for the Slayer.] xx. 8. From whence the neighbouring Country was called Gaulonitis.

And Beeſhterah, with her Suburbs.] Called Aſhtaroth in 1 Chron. vi. 71. by a very light Change; only leaving out the firſt Letter.

Two Cities.] The ſame Number that was given out of the other half of this Tribe, ver. 25.

Ver. 28. Out of the Tribe of Iſſachar, Kiſhon, with her Suburbs.] xix. 20. Called Kedeſh, 1 Chron. vi. 72.

And Dabareh, with her Suburbs.] Not mentioned before in this Book, but in 1 Chron. vi. 72.

Ver. 29. And Jarmuth.] Called Ramoth, 1 Chron. vi. 73.

And Engannim.] xx. 21. Called, Anem, 1 Chron. vi. 73.

Ver. 30. And out of the Tribe of Aſher, Miſhal, with her Suburbs.] Called Miſhael, xix. 26. and Maſhal, 1 Chron. vi. 75.

And Abdon.] Mentioned in that Place in the Chronicles; but not in the nineteenth Chapter of this Book. See ver. 31. of that Chapter.

Ver. 31. Helkath, with her Suburbs.] xix. 25. Called Hukok, 1 Chron. vi. 75.

And Rehob.] Mentioned there, and Joſh. xix. 28.

Ver. 32. And out of the Tribe of Naphtali, Kedeſh in Galilee, to be a City of Refuge for the Slayer.] xx. 7.

And Hammoth-dor, with her Suburbs.] Called ſimply Hamath, xix. 35. and Hammoth, 1 Chron. vi. 76.

And Kartan, with her Suburbs.] Called Kirjathaim in 1 Chron. vi. 76.

Three Cities.] This being a ſmaller Territory, it ſeems, than the reſt of the Tribes fore-mentioned, who gave four.

Ver. 33. All the Cities of the Gerſhonites, according to their Families, were thirteen Cities, with their Suburbs.] As was ſaid before, ver. 6.

Ver. 34. And unto the Families of the Children of Merari, the reſt of the Levites.] The remaining Families of the Levites; for there were three Heads of them; Gerſhon, Kohath, and Merari.

Out of the Tribe of Zebulun, Jokneam, with her Suburbs, and Kartah, with her Suburbs.] Of the former, ſee xix. 11. and of the latter, ver. 16.

Ver. 35. Dimnah, with her Suburbs; Mahair, with her Suburbs.] See xix. 15, 16.

Four Cities.] There are but two mentioned, 1 Chron. vi. 77. with quite different Names; the other two, it ſeems, being loſt before that Time.

Ver. 36. And out of the Tribe of Reuben, Bezer, with her Suburbs.] Which was one of the Cities of Refuge, xx. 8. tho' not here mentioned, as the reſt are in the foregoing Part of this Chapter; and in ver. 38.

And Kedemoth, with her Suburbs.] Theſe, and the two Cities in the following Verſe, Kedemoth and Mephaath, are mentioned as Cities in this Tribe, xiii. 18. And ſo they are in 1 Chron. vi. 78, 79. as Levitical Cities.

Ver. 37. Kedemoth, with her Suburbs, &c.] Some have urged againſt the Integrity of the Hebrew Text, that this and the foregoing Verſe are not to be found in ſome ancient Copies of the Bible; and indeed, the Maſorites acknowledge as much. But it is evident that they are found in Copies of very great Antiquity; and the Context ſhews, that they ought to be here; as Biſhop Walton obſerves in his Conſiderator Conſidered, Chap. 6. Sect. 14. And Hottinger alſo (who anſwers this Cavil more largely) obſerves, that they are in a moſt accurate MS. of the Duke of Rohan's, written 1495. See his Theſaurus Philolog. L. 1. Cap. 2. Quæſt. 4. P. 181, &c. The Maſorites, Maſorites, who take Notice of this Omiſſion, acknowledge in the Margin of this Verſe, that it was to be found in ſeveral Copies.

Ver. 38. And out of the Tribe of Gad, Ramoth in Gilead, with her Suburbs, to be a City of Refuge for the Slayer.] xx. 1.

And Mahanaim, with her Suburbs.] This City was made by Abner the Royal Seat for Iſhboſheth, Βασίλειον ἐπίυησε, as Joſephus ſpeaks, L. 7. Antiq. Cap. 1.

Ver. 39. Heſhbon with her Suburbs; Jazer, with her Suburbs; four Cities in all.] Theſe, with the foregoing, are mentioned 1 Chron. vi. 80, 81.

Ver. 40. So all the Cities for the Children of Merari, &c. were by their Lot twelve Cities.] As was ſaid in general before, ver. 7.

Ver. 41. All the Cities of the Levites within the Poſſeſſion of the Children of Iſrael, were forty and eight Cities, with their Suburbs.] So God ordered by Moſes, Numb. xxxv. 7. And it is a Demonſtration that Moſes was divinely inſpired, to make ſuch an Appointment; before they knew whether, without ſtraitning the other Tribes, they could afford ſo many Cities to the Levites. For when Joſhua and Caleb went up to ſearch the Land (with the reſt, mentioned Numb. xiii.) they could have no Opportunity to take the Dimenſions of the Country; whereby Moſes might know there would be Room enough to allow the Levites ſo large a Proportion as this; but he was directed to it by a Divine Foreknowledge.

Ver. 42. Theſe Cities were every one of them, with their Suburbs round about them.] Viz. Two thouſand Cubits on every Side, round the City, as is ordered Numb. xxxv. 5. Which muſt be owned to be a great Proportion for this Tribe; which was the ſmalleſt of them all. But God would have an ample Proviſion made for his Miniſters; and they had none of the Land belonging to theſe Cities, as was before obſerved, but only Room for themſelves, and for their Cattle.

Thus were all theſe Cities.] Diſpoſed and ſettled according to the Divine Commandment. Six of which were Cities of Refuge; and the other Forty-two had the ſame Privileges, if the Inhabitants pleaſed, and at the Coſt of thoſe that fled thither for Safety. See upon Numb. xxxv. 6.

Ver. 43. And God gave unto Iſrael all the Land, which he ſware to give unto their Fathers.] He gave them a Right to the whole Country, (which was diſtributed among them, as he appointed, by a Lot which he ordered and directed) and he gave them the actual Poſſeſſion and Enjoyment of the greateſt Part of it; and he gave them Power to ſubdue the reſt (if they continued obedient to him) as ſoon as it was convenient. Which was exactly according to his Promiſe and Oath made to them; for they not being numerous enough to people the whole Country, at their firſt coming into it, he never intended to expel all the old Inhabitants at once, but by degrees; as we read expreſly, Exod. xxiii. 29, 30.

And they poſſeſſed it, and dwelt therein.] Went every Man to his Lot, and peopled the Country, as far as at preſent they were able.

Ver. 44. And the LORD gave them Reſt round about, according to all that he ſware unto their Fathers.] None moleſted them in their Poſſeſſions; but they ploughed, and ſowed, and reaped, &c. without any Diſturbance.

And there ſtood not a Man of all their Enemies before them.] For whoſoever had oppoſed them, were overthrown and deſtroyed by them; and, as it follows,

The LORD delivered all their Enemies into their Hand.] Which is not to be underſtood, as if all the People of Canaan were abſolutely under their Power; but that, as long as Joſhua lived, not a Man appeared to fight with them, but was delivered up unto them.

Ver. 45. There failed not ought of any good Thing which the LORD had ſpoken unto the Houſe of Iſrael; all came to paſs.] Which they themſelves (he tells them afterward, xxiii. 14.) knew very well, and could not but confeſs. But it muſt be underſtood according to the Explication of ver. 43. For the Time of fulfilling ſome Part of his Promiſe, was not come; and the Completing of what was begun, depended upon their Obedience to him. But (as Conradus Pellicanus here admoniſhes) we are taught by this the Truth of the Divine Promiſes; and it ought to eſtabliſh the Belief of the Faithful, that it do not fluctuate; tho' the Promiſes of God ſeem to us to be fulfilled very ſlowly.

CHAP. XXII.

Ver. 1. AND Joſhua called the Reubenites, and Gadites, and the half Tribe of Manaſſeh.] Who came as Auxiliaries to their Brethren when they paſſed over Jordan; as they had engaged to do, when they received their Inheritance on the other ſide of it, i. 12, 13, 14, &c.

Ver. 5. And ſaid unto them, Ye have kept all that Moſes the Servant of the LORD commanded you: and have obeyed my Voice in all that I commanded you.] Numb. xxxii. 20, &c. Deut. iii. 18, &c. In this and the following Verſes, he commends them for their Obedience unto God and unto him; and for their Fidelity to their Promiſes; and their Conſtancy and Patience in their Piety to God, and Love to their Brethren.

Ver. 3. Ye have not left your Brethren theſe many Days, unto this Day. Seven Years (ſome think, as many more) they had continued in their Service; as long as the War laſted with the Canaanites; yea, till they had ſeen their Brethren ſettled in the Lots fallen to them.

But have kept the Charge of the Commandment of the LORD our God.] During which Time they never refuſed what was expected from them, for the Help of their Brethren. See xi. 18. xiv. 10. This was a great Proof of their patient Obedience, in ſtaying ſo long from their Wives and Children.

Ver. 4. And now the LORD your God hath given Reſt unto your Brethren, as he promiſed them.] Which he had done for them before, i. 13.

Now therefore return to your Tents.] So he calls their Houſes, becauſe this was the common Word uſed for a long Time in the Wilderneſs, to ſignify an Habitation.

And unto the Land of your Poſſeſſion, which Moſes the Servant of the LORD gave you on the other ſide Jordan.] It was but reaſonable and juſt, that they ſhould go and enjoy what God had given them; now their Brethren were in a quiet Poſſeſſion of their Portion; and that their Fidelity in performing their Promiſe, ſhould be rewarded with the like, in diſmiſſing them, when they had done their Buſineſs. For they engaged to ſerve no longer, than till they had driven the Canaanites out of their Country, Numb. xxxii. 21.

Ver. 5. But take diligent heed to do the Commandment of the Law, which Moſes the Servant of the LORD charged you.] That is, to obſerve all his Precepts, (as they had done this of aiding their Brethren) and for that End, preſerve in Mind all that God had done for them. See Deut. iv. 9.

To love the LORD your God, and to walk in all his Ways, and to keep his Commandments, and to cleave unto him, and to ſerve him with all your Heart, and with all your Soul.] Eſpecially to worſhip the LORD alone, with ſincere Affection; which Moſes inculcated above all Things, before he left them, Deut. vi. 5, 13, 14. x. 12. xi. 13, 22. xx. 9. xxx. 6, 20.

Ver. 6. So Joſhua bleſſed them, and ſent them away.] He not only praiſed and commended them; but diſmiſſed them with a ſolemn Prayer to God for his Bleſſing upon them. And he ſeems firſt to have diſmiſſed with his Bleſſing the Reubenites and Gadites; and then to have bleſſed the Manaſſites by themſelves.

And they went unto their Tent.] In order to pack up their Goods, and make themſelves ready for their Departure.

Ver. 7. Now to the one half of the Tribe of Manaſſeh, Moſes had given Poſſeſſion in Baſhan; but unto the other half thereof, gave Joſhua among their Brethren on this ſide Jordan Weſtward.] This is repeated to ſhew why he mentioned only half the Tribe of Manaſſeh, ver. 1. and to introduce what follows.

And when Joſhua had ſent them away alſo unto their Tents.] As he had done the Reubenites and Gadites.

Then he bleſſed them.] This ſeems to ſignify that he gave a peculiar Bleſſing to the Manaſſites; that is, rewarded their Services, by ſome Preſent which he made them: For ſo the Word Bleſſing (I obſerved before) ſometimes ſignifies, 2 Kings v. 15. And he did this the rather, becauſe the Manaſſites were near of Kin to the Children of Ephraim, (of which Tribe he himſelf was) and were now to be ſeparated from the reſt of their Brethren in Canaan.

Ver. 8. And he ſpake unto them, ſaying.] This Speech ſeems to be directed to the Reubenites and Gadites, as well as to the Manaſſites; tho' they had a peculiar Concern in it.

Return with much Riches unto your Tents, and with very much Cattle, and with Silver, and with Gold, &c.] As much as to ſay, Part with your Brethren contentedly and well pleaſed; laden with the Spoils which you have got in the Wars againſt the People of Canaan. For they had their Share in the Prey, as well as the other ſeven Tribes and half; and carried it away to their own Country.

Divide the Spoil of your Enemies with your Brethren.] He orders them, when they came home, to let thoſe that ſtaid on the other ſide Jordan, to defend their Wives, Children, and Cattle, to have a Share in the Spoil which they had gotten. For this was thought an equal thing by God himſelf in the War they had with the Midianites, before they came over Jordan; when twelve thouſand went out to fight; who had one half of the Spoil; the other half being divided among all the Congregation, that ſtaid at home, Numb. xxxi. 27. And it is very reaſonable to think that now the ſame Proportion was obſerved; the forty thouſand who went to help their Brethren in the War, having one half of the Spoil; and their Brethren who ſtaid to guard their Poſſeſſion, the other half: So that the Warriors had the far greater Share, as there was Reaſon; becauſe they had hazarded their Lives in the Enterprize. But in David's Time, it was made a Law, that they who went to fight, and they that ſtaid to guard the Stuff, ſhould have an equal Share in the Prey, 1 Sam. xxx. 24, 25. See Gen. xiv. ult.

Ver. 9. And the Children of Reuben, and the Children of Gad, and the half Tribe of Manaſſeh, returned and departed from the Children of Iſrael out of Shiloh, which is in the Land of Canaan, to go into the Country of Gilead, &c.] This ſhews that he gave them all his Bleſſing in Shiloh, where the Sanctuary was; and ſent them from thence, under the divine Protection, to their own Country: Which is here called the Country of Gilead; becauſe that was an eminent Part of their Country, divided between the Children of Gad and Manaſſeh; and here comprehends all the reſt of the Land, where the Reubenites lived.

Ver. 10. And when they came to the Borders of Jordan.] Or, they came (for the Word when is not in the Hebrew) unto the Banks of that River.

Which are in the Land of Canaan.] This ſeems to import that they built the Altar, mentioned in the End of the Verſe, before they went over Jordan, in the Land of Canaan. Which is not at all likely; for it would not have anſwered their Intention; which was to ſhew, that Jordan did not make ſuch a Separation between them and their Brethren, but that they were one People with thoſe in Canaan; where the Altar of God was in Shiloh. Therefore I take this to be a ſhort manner of Speech; ſignifying, that they came to the Borders of Jordan in the Land of Canaan; and paſſed over into their own Country on the other ſide of the River. And ſo the Hebrew Word Geliloth (which we tranſlate Borders) ſeems to ſignifiy, a certain Place near Jordan, to which they came. The Vulgar Latin tranſlates tranſlates it Heaps; the LXX. in the Vatican Copy, retains the Word Γαλααὸδ (or Γαλιλωὸθ, as other Copies more truly have it) taking it for ſome noted Place, which was near to their Paſſage over Jordan.

The Children of Reuben, and the Children of Gad, and the half Tribe of Manaſſeh, built there an Altar by Jordan.] The Word there hath made it thought, that they built this Altar in the Land of Canaan before mention'd: But the Particle Sham relates to Time, as well as Place, and may be tranſlated then, as well as there. Examples of which there are in Judg. v. 21. Prov. viii. 27. compared with ver. 30. Eccleſ. iii. 17. and moſt plainly Iſa. xlviii. 16. And thus it is to be here interpreted, that before they went any farther, they ſtaid by Jordan, till they had built this Altar, on the Borders of their own Country: For ſo the next Verſe teaches us to expound it, and will admit of no other Senſe; where it is ſaid, they had built an Altar over againſt the Land of Canaan.

A great Altar to ſee to.] Which made a great Show, being very high and conſpicuous, that it might be ſeen afar off. For being built, not by a private Perſon, but by the whole Body of a great People, they thought they could not make it too ſtately and magnificent. And herein it differ'd ſo much from the Altar made by Moſes, that they thought perhaps it would adminiſter the leſs Occaſion to their Brethren, to ſuſpect it was intended for Sacrifice.

Ver. 11. And the Children of Iſrael.] That were in the Land of Canaan. This is an Inſtance of ſuch a ſhort Manner of Speech, as I take that in the foregoing Verſe to be; which muſt be made out by ſome ſuch Supplement as is there mention'd. For the Reubenites, Gadites, &c. were the Children of Iſrael, as well as thoſe ſettled in the Land of Canaan.

Heard ſay.] This is an Argument the Altar was not built on their ſide of Jordan; for then they would have ſeen what they were doing, and hinder'd the Building; whereas they heard nothing of it till it was built.

Behold, the Children of Reuben, and the Children of Gad, and the half Tribe of Manaſſeh, have built an Altar.] By a common Conſent.

Over-againſt the Land of Canaan, in the Borders of Jordan, at the Paſſage of the Children of Iſrael.] Either there where they now paſs'd over Jordan, or where they all paſs'd over when they enter'd Canaan, or at the uſual Place where every body was wont to paſs over, that they might take the more Notice of it. And here alſo were the Geliloth before mention'd, like thoſe on the other ſide; which ſeem to have been great Banks caſt up, to keep Jordan from overflowing too far.

Ver. 12. And when the Children of Iſrael heard of it, the whole Congregation of the Children of Iſrael.] Not all the People of the Land but their Elders, and Heads of their Tribes, who, in the foregoing Books, are often call'd by the Name of Colledath (all the Congregation.) See Numb. xxvii. 2. xxxii. 2. and Chap. xviii. of this Book, ver. 1.

Gathered themſelves together at Shiloh.] It ſeems they had been ſeparated, being gone to ſettle in their ſeveral Cities.

To go to War againſt them.] To conſult about it. For they imagin'd them to be Apoſtates from their Religion, which, as it required them to worſhip the LORD alone, and no other God, ſo at no other Place but that which he himſelf had choſen. Where he allow'd but one Altar, as there was but one God. See Deut. xii. 5, 6, 11, 13, 18, 26, 27. xiii. 12, &c. That Altar alſo, where he commanded Sacrifices to be offer'd, was to be but three Cubits high, (Exod. xxvii. 1.) ſo that they went not up to it by Steps, (Exod. xx. 26.) whereas this was an high Altar, like thoſe among the Heathens, who lov'd to ſacrifice on high Places, (i. e. Mountains) and alſo upon high and lofty Altars, which advanced their Sacrifices nearer Heaven. And this, perhaps, was one Thing that incenſed the Congregation now aſſembled, and made them think their Brethren were lapſed to Idolatry; either intending to worſhip other Gods, or the God of Iſrael in an unlawful Place and Manner.

Ver. 13. And the Children of Iſrael ſent unto the Children of Reuben, and to the Children of Gad, and to the half Tribe of Manaſſeh into the Land of Gilead.] Their Zeal did not ſo tranſport them, but that they prudently conſider'd, it was fit firſt to be rightly inform'd of the Matter of Fact; and, if any thing was amiſs, to endeavour to ſet it right by Counſel and Arguments, before they betook themſelves to Arms: In order to which, they ſent the Embaſſy here mention'd.

Phineas the Son of Eleazar the Prieſt.] A Perſon of very eminent Authority among them, and more likely to be receiv'd with due Regard, Numb. xxxi. 6.

Ver. 14. And with him ten Princes, of each chief Houſe a Prince, throughout all the Tribes of Iſrael.] Which were nine and an half; ſo that a Prince was choſen out of the half Tribe of Manaſſeh, as well as out of the other Nine.

And each one was an Head of the Houſe of their Fathers, among the Thouſands of Iſrael.] That is, they were Chiliarchs, as the LXX calls them, and the Chief among ſuch Rulers of Thouſands in the ſeveral Tribes, Exod. xviii. 21.

Ver. 15. And they came unto the Children of Reuben, and to the Children of Gad, and to the half Tribe of Manaſſeh.] Who hearing of their coming, held a Congregation, it is likely, of the chief Perſons among them, to receive their Meſſage.

Into the Land of Gilead.] So he calls here, and ver. 13. the Country of the two Tribes and half; by the Name of an eminent Part of it, which is put for the Whole, as I obſerv'd upon ver. 9.

And they ſpake unto them, ſaying.] Made the following Speech in the Aſſembly of the two Tribes and half, by the Mouth of Phineas.

Ver. 16. Thus ſaith the whole Congregation of the LORD.] The Repreſentatives of the whole People of Iſrael, in whoſe Name this Embaſſy was ſent.

What Treſpaſs is this that you have committed againſt the LORD God of Iſrael.] They were not able to expreſs the Heinouſneſs of it.

To turn away this Day from following the LORD.] So ſoon after they had ſeen his wonderful Works, and receiv'd ſuch a Charge from Joſhua, as he gave them at their Departure from Canaan, ver. 5.

In that you have built you an Altar.] which they ſuppoſed was for Sacrifice.

That you might rebel this Day againſt the LORD?] Which was direct Oppoſition to his expreſs Command, immediately after he gave them the Law from Mount Sinai, Exod. xx. 24. And ſee the Places before named, upon ver. 12.

Ver. 17. Is the Iniquity of Peor too little for us, from which we are not cleanſed to this Day.] He inſtances in this, being himſelf an Actor in the Puniſhment of it, tho' it deſerv'd ſtill greater Puniſhment. For that's the Meaning of we are not cleanſed; have not ſufficiently ſuffer'd for that Sin; there being ſome remaining (he feared) that were infected with thoſe Idolatrous Inclinatious, whom God might juſtly cut off.

Although there was a Plague in the Congregation of the LORD.] Which deſtroyed Twenty and four Thouſand, Numb. xxv. 9.

Ver. 18. But that you muſt turn away this Day from following the LORD?] Commit more Sins of that Nature. For whether they intended to worſhip other Gods, or to worſhip the God of Iſrael in a Manner he did not allow, it was, in his Eſteem, Idolatry.

And it will be, ſeeing you rebel to day againſt the Lord.] It muſt be acknowledg'd, that they were a little too haſty in concluding their Brethren to be Rebels, before they had ask'd them for what Purpoſe they had erected this Altar, which ſhould properly have been the firſt Queſtion; but their pious Fear, leſt God ſhould be offended, made them immediately fall into this vehement Expoſtulation.

That to Morrow.] That is, quickly, or ſpeedily.

He will be wroth with the whole Congregation of Iſrael.] With you for committing this Sin, and with us for not puniſhing it.

Ver. 19. Notwithſtanding.] Or rather, and now, as the LXX tranſlate the Hebrew Particle Veac.

If the Land of your Poſſeſſion be unclean.] They imagin'd the Reubenites, and Gadites, and Manaſſites, might take their Land to be leſs Holy, for want of an Altar, and ſuch a Token of the Divine Preſence, as there was in the Tabernacle. This appears to be the Senſe, by what follows: Which our Mr. Mede carries ſomething further, in his Obſervations concerning the Appropriation of ſome Place for the Worſhip of God: Which ſo univerſally prevail'd from the Beginning, that it was believ'd, in thoſe elder Times, that thoſe Countries and Territories, wherein no place was ſet apart for God's Worſhip, were unhallow'd and unclean This, he thinks, may be rightly gather'd from theſe Words. See Book II. upon Eccleſ. v. 1. p. 433.

Then paſs ye over to the Land of the Poſſeſſion of the LORD, wherein the LORD's Tabernacle dwelleth, and take Poſſeſſion among us.] This expreſſes a wonderful Zeal for God, and the common Good, wherewith they were at preſent poſſeſs'd; which made them deſire rather to give up ſome of their own Land to them, than have them fall from their Religion.

But rebel not againſt the LORD, nor rebel againſt us.] They deſire them not to break the common Bond that ty'd them to each other, as well as unto God, which was the ſame Religion.

In building an Altar, beſide the Altar of the LORD our God.] Which was, in effect, to forſake the LORD.

Ver. 20. Did not Achan the Son of Zerah.] Deſcended from Zerah, vii. 17, 18.

Commit a Treſpaſs in an accurſed Thing.] This was a freſher Inſtance than that of Baal-Peor, ver. 17.

And Wrath fell upon all the Congregation of Iſrael? And that Man periſhed not alone in his Iniquity.] vii. 1, 2, &c. In this he explains what he ſaid, ver. 18. that the whole Congregation was in danger to fall under the Divine Diſpleaſure by their Apoſtacy.

Ver. 21. Then the Children of Reuben, and the Children of Gad, and the half Tribe of Manaſſeh, anſwered and ſaid unto the Heads of the Thouſands of Iſrael.] Some of the Heads of their Tribes made the following Reply, in the Name of all the reſt.

Ver. 22. The LORD God of Gods, the LORD God of Gods.] In the Hebrew, the God of Gods, the LORD; the God of Gods, the LORD. Where there are three Names of God, El, Eloim, and Jehovah; ſignifying that they own'd no other God, but him whom their Fore-fathers worſhip'd, by what Name ſoever he was call'd: That God, who is infinitely above all Creatures; the Fountain of all other Beings: And they double the Expreſſion of their Devotion to him, that they might ſignify their Earneſtneſs and Vehemency to purge themſelves from the Crime objected to them.

Some of the ancient Jews thought a great Myſtery is contain'd in theſe Words: For the Midraſch Tillim upon the Fiftieth Pſalm, (quoted by Mart. à Raymund, in Pugio Fidei, P. III. Diſtinct. 1. Cap. 4.) thus diſcourſes, "What did they ſee, that they mention theſe "Words twice, El, Elohim, Jehovah; El, Elo- "him, Jehovah? They ſaid, God, God, Jehovah, "the firſt Time, becauſe by theſe the World "was created; and they ſaid God, God, Jehovah, "the ſecond Time, becauſe by theſe the Law "was given." Where he plainly inſinuates a Plurality of Perſons, ſaying, Behen, (by theſe) the World was created, &c. and refers to the firſt Words of Geneſis, where it is ſaid, Elohim created in the Beginning the Heaven and the Earth. No wonder then that Chriſtians have been of the ſame Opinion, and thought theſe three Names denoted the Father, Son, and Holy Ghoſt: As the Author of the old Nitzacon (Three hundred Years before that of R. Lipman's) man's) acknowledges, p. 59. Unto which he gives no Anſwer, but only this, That theſe three belong to one God; which we alſo acknowledge.

He knoweth.] They appeal to him who ſearcheth the Hearts of Men, and their moſt ſecret Deſigns.

And Iſrael they ſhall know.] By ſeeing their Conſtancy in the Religion of their Anceſtors.

If it be in Rebellion, or if in Tranſgreſſion againſt the LORD, (ſave us not this Day).] They turn their Speech on a ſudden (as is uſual in great Paſſion) unto God himſelf; deſiring they may not live, but be immediately deſtroy'd by him, if they intended either to throw off his Worſhip and Service; or to worſhip him any other Way, than according to his Appointment.

Ver. 23. That we have built us an Altar to turn from following the LORD, or if to offer Burnt-Offerings thereon, or Meat-Offerings, or if to offer Peace-offerings thereon, let the LORD himſelf require it.] That is, they deſire God to puniſh it, (for ſo the Phraſe requite it ſignifies, Deut. xviii. 19.) if they intended to offer any Sort of Sacrifice whatſoever, upon this Altar; which they acknowledge had been to turn from their Religion.

Ver. 24. And if we have not rather done it for fear of this Thing.] The Hebrew Word Deaga (which we tranſlate Fear) ſignifies ſuch Anxiety in their Mind, as gave them much Trouble; till they thought of this way to give themſelves Eaſe.

Saying, In time to come your Children might ſpeak unto our Children, ſaying, What have you to do with the LORD God of Iſrael?] They were afraid a Time might come, when they ſhould be look'd upon as Aliens, who had no Right to come to the Tabernacle, and the Altar, to offer Sacrifice there. The Targum hath it, What have you to do with the WORD of the LORD God of Iſrael?

Ver. 25. For the LORD hath made Jordan a Border between us and you, ye Children of Reuben, &c.] Divided us from you by the River Jordan.

Ye have not Part in the LORD; ſo ſhall your Children make our Children ceaſe from fearing the LORD.] Make them loſe their Religion (which is call'd the Fear of God) by pretending they are none of the LORD's People. It was not likely, one would think, ſuch a Thing ſhould happen; but they did not know what Length of Time, and their Diſtance from them, might do, to make them forget their Relation unto them, and unto God; their Country being no Part of the Land of Promiſe, as Canaan was. Here again the Targum hath it; Ye have no Part in the Word of the LORD.

Ver. 26. Therefore we ſaid, Let us now prepare to build us an Altar, not for Burnt-offering, or for Sacrifice.] They again diſclaim that, before they give the true Reaſon of what they had done.

Ver. 27. But it may be a Witneſs between us and you, and our Generations after us.] For it had been an ancient Way of preſerving the Remembrance of Things, by raiſing ſuch Structures to teſtify to them, Gen. xxx. 48. and uſed afterwards by Joſhua himſelf, xxxiv. 27.

That we might do the Service of the LORD before him, with our Burnt-offerings, &c.] Have the Privilege to come and Worſhip God at the Tabernacle, by offering ſuch Sacrifices as the reſt of the Iſraelites did.

That your Children may not ſay unto our Children, in time to come, Ye have no Part in the LORD.] That they might not be thruſt away from the Altar when they brought their Sacrifices, under a Pretence that they were none of God's People, becauſe they did not live in the Land which he promis'd to their Fathers. Here the Targum uſes the ſame Language again, No Part in the WORD of the LORD.

Ver. 28. Therefore ſaid we, That it ſhall be, when they ſhall ſo ſay to us, or to our Generations in time to come, that we may ſay again.] Have a Reply ready, if ſuch a thing as we fear ſhould happen.

Behold the Pattern of the Altar of the LORD which our Fathers made.] Which they could not have exactly imitated, if they had not been acquainted with it, and worſhipp'd God there with their Brethren.

Not for Burnt-offering, nor for Sacrifice.] They thought this could not be too often repeated, that they might not be miſunderſtood.

But it is a Witneſs between us and you.] A publick Teſtimony that we ought not to be excluded from the Worſhip of God among you, being of the ſame Communion with you.

Ver. 29. God forbid that we ſhould rebel againſt the LORD, and turn this Day from following the LORD, to build an Altar for Burnt-offerings, &c.] They utterly renounce all ſuch Intentions, as they were ſuſpected to have; proteſting again moſt ſolemnly, they meant not to rebel againſt the WORD of the LORD, as the Targum again expreſſes it.

Ver. 30. And when Phineas the Prieſt, and the Princes of the Congregation, and Heads of the Thouſands of Iſrael which were with him, heard the Words that the Children of Reuben, &c. ſpake, it pleaſed them.] They not only acquieſced in their Anſwer, but were very glad to hear it.

Ver. 31. And Phineas the Son of Eleazar the Prieſt, ſaid unto the Children of Reuben, &c.] He ſpake to them in the Name of all his Company.

This Day we perceive that the LORD is among us, becauſe ye have not committed this Treſpaſs againſt the LORD.] He thankfully acknowledges the gracious Preſence of God with them, in preſerving the Reubenites, &c. from ſo great a Sin, as they fear'd they had committed; and all the People of Iſrael from ſuch heavy Judgments, as it would have deſerv'd.

Now you have delivered the Children of Iſrael out of the Hand of the LORD.] Who would have puniſhed them for this Schiſm, if they had been guilty of it, and not cenſur'd for it. This whole Verſe runs thus in the Targum; This Day we perceive that the SCHECHINAH (or Divine Majeſty) is among us, becauſe ye have not committed this Treſpaſs againſt the WORD of the LORD; whereby you have delivered the Children of Iſrael out of the Hand of the WORD of the LORD.

Ver. 32. And Phineas the Son of Eleazar the Prieſt, and the Princes, returned from the Children of Reuben and from the Children of Gad, out of the Land of Gilead, &c.] Under Reuben and Gad, the half Tribe of Manaſſeh is included, both here, and ver. 25, 32, 33. as under the Land of Gilead is included the whole Country of theſe Tribes. The LXX. thought good to add here (and in all thoſe Verſes) expreſly, and the half Tribe of Manaſſeh; tho' not in the Hebrew.

And brought them Word again.] Inform'd them how they found things among their Brethren.

Ver. 33. And the Thing pleaſed the Children of Iſrael.] They were ſatisfy'd in the Account they gave them; and approved of what their Brethren had done.

And they bleſſed God.] As Phinehas had done, that their Brethren had not offended the Divine Majeſty, as they ſuſpected.

And did not intend to go up againſt them in Battle.] Laid aſide that Intention, (which was in their Mind, ver. 12.) and purſu'd it no further.

To deſtroy the Land wherein the Children of Reuben, and the Children of Gad dwelt.] For ſo they thought they were Bound to do by the Command, Deut. xiii. 12, &c. which extended to a whole Country, as well as a City.

Ver. 34. And the Children of Reuben, and the Children of Gad, called the Altar ED.] That is, a Witneſs; for the Reaſon following.

For it ſhall be a Witneſs between us that the LORD is God.] That we own no other God but JEHOVAH; and him only will we worſhip, as he hath commanded. So the LXX ὅτι Κύριος ὁ Θεὸς αὐτῶν ἐστι, that the LORD is their God.

In all this whole Relation from ver. 10. to the End of the Chapter, there being no Mention of Joſhua, who is not once nam'd, either as ſending theſe Embaſſadors, or receiving the Report which they brought back, ſome have thence entertain'd a Conceit, that Joſhua was dead before this happen'd; and conſequently that he could not be the Author of this Book. But it is manifeſt ſuch Perſons have a great Deſire to weaken the Authority of theſe Holy Books, or elſe they would not draw ſuch Conſequences from ſuch frivolous Obſervations. For it is evident, that all this came to paſs not long after Joſhua had diſmiſs'd theſe Tribes, with good Counſel, and with his Bleſſing: For they returning immediately after this to their own Country, went no further than Jordan before they erected this Altar; upon which thoſe great Perſons went to expoſtulate with them, and heard their Apology, and came back, and reported it. All this is told in one continu'd and coherent Hiſtory, (as it were with one Breath) without the leaſt Signification of any conſiderable Time that paſs'd between one Part of it and the other. And the LXX were ſo well ſatisfy'd of this, that they took the Anſwer of the Reubenites, Gadites, and Manaſſites to have been brought to Joſhua; for they ſay he impoſed the Name of ED upon the Altar. So their words are in the Vatican Edition, which is moſt common among us, Καὶ ἐπωνόμασεν ὁ Ἰησοῦς τ Βωμὸν, &c.

CHAP. XXIII.

Ver. 1. AND it came to paſs, a long time after that the LORD had given Reſt to Iſrael from all their Enemies round about.] Some take it to have been fourteen Years after their Conqueſt of the Country, xi. 23. and ſeven Years after the Diviſion of it. See xiv. 10.

That Joſhua waxed old and ſtricken in Age.] This was ſaid of him before the Land was divided, (xiii. 1.) and a Portion thereof given unto him: Where he built a City; which took up ſo much Time, that probably he was now in the laſt Year of his Life.

Ver. 2. And Joſhua called for all Iſrael.] Sent out a Summons to them, to come to him at Timnah-Serah, where he liv'd, as the Jews will have it; but rather to Shiloh, where they might appear before God, as well as before him, and have the greater Regard to his Words.

And for their Elders, &c.] The Word and is not in the Hebrew Text, and therefore theſe Words are an Explication of what he means by all Iſrael: Not all the People, (who could not, without great Inconvenience, come thither, and could not all hear him if they did) but their Elders; that is, the great Sanhedrim, as they were call'd in future Times; and for their Heads, that is of their Tribes and Families, and for their Judges, who were ſettled in all the leſſer Cities; and for their Officers, who attended upon the Judges to execute their Sentence.

And ſaid unto them, I am old and ſtricken in Age.] He would make them ſenſible, that this might be the laſt Time he ſhould be able to ſpeak of them, which might move them to give greater Attention unto what he ſaid.

Ver. 3. And ye have ſeen.] Or rather, behold ye have ſeen; for ſo the Particle ve (which we tranſlate and) ſometimes ſignifies, Gen. xxiv. 31. Behold, I have prepared the Houſe, &c.

All that the LORD hath done unto all theſe Nations, becauſe of you.] For your Sake; that he might make Room for you in their Country, by expelling them out of it.

For the LORD your God is he that hath fought for you.] See i. 9. xi. 8, 10. 42. xi. 6. The Targum here ſaith (as in x. 42). The LORD your God, his WORD fought for you. See xiv. 12.

Ver. 4. Behold, I have divided unto you by Lot, theſe Nations that remain, to be an Inheritance for your Tribes, from Jordan, with all the Nations that I have cut off, even unto the great Sea Weſtward.] The Meaning is, he had divided among them the whole Land of Canaan, from Jordan in the Eaſt, to the Mediterranean in the the West; as well that Part of the Land which remain'd still unconquer'd, as that out of which they had expell'd the ancient Inhabitants.

Ver. 5. And the LORD your God he shall expel them from before you, and drive them from out of your Sight, &c.] This relates unto those who remained unsubdu'd (mention'd in the Beginning of the foregoing Verse) whom they should undoubtedly conquer, and possess their Country, if they adhered to God in faithful Obedience; as he exhorts them in the following Part of this Chapter.

Ver. 6. Be ye therefore very couragious, to keep, and to do.] Or, (as it may be translated) by observing and doing.

All that is written in the Book of the Law of Moses.] Which was the Condition upon which God promis'd to continue them in the Possession of this Land. By this it is evident, that the Book of the Law of Moses was extant in those Days, and that the People read it.

That ye turn not aside therefrom, to the Right Hand or to the Left.] See upon Deut. v. 32.

Ver. 7. That ye come not among these Nations, these that remain amongst you.] Have no Familiarity with them, especially by Marriage.

Neither make mention of the Name of their Gods.] With any Sort of Respect to them. See Exod. xxiii. 13. and Deut. xii. 3.

Nor cause to swear by them.] Not make a Gentile swear by the Name of his God; which was utterly unlawful, as Selden observes out of Maimonides in Aboda Zara. See Lib. 2. de Jure Nat. & Gent. Cap. 13. For this was to suppose they had Knowledge of Mens Thoughts, and Power to punish those that forswore themselves. And the forbidding this, was also to secure them from making Leagues and Covenants with the Gentiles, which they would not look upon as binding without an Oath.

Neither serve them.] By offering Sacrifices, or Praying, or making Vows to them, tho' never so secretly.

Nor bow yourselves to them] As all inward Reverence, so all outward Respect likewise was forbidden to be paid to them; especially open and publick Acts of Worship. Interpreters here observe a Gradation from Familiarity with them, to the most gross Idolatry, in which their Friendship with these People concluded.

Ver. 8. But cleave unto the LORD your God, as you have done unto this Day.] A remarkable Instance of which they had all lately given, when the Nine Tribes and half were so unanimously resolved to punish Idolatry, with the Extirpation of those that were guilty of it; (xxii. 33.) and the other also most zealously disclaimed all Inclinations to it, ver. 22, 29.

Ver. 9. For the LORD had driven out from before you great Nations, and strong.] The seven Nations of Canaan, who dwelt in strong Cities, and brought mighty Armies against them, with Horses and Chariots, and were some of them Gigantick Persons, xi. 4, 22.

But as for you, no Man hath been able to stand before you unto this Day.] None that gave them Battle; tho' from some of their strong Cities they had not yet driven them. See xxi. 44.

Ver. 10. One Man of you shall chase a Thousand.] He gives them Hope of a good Success for the future, as they had hitherto. Levit. xxvi. 8.

For the LORD your God is he that fighteth for you, as he hath promised you.] But he would not have them ascribe it to their own Courage, but to the Divine Power, Deut. xxxii. 30. Here again the Targum hath it the WORD of the Lord &c. as ver. 3.

Ver. 11. Take good heed therefore unto yourselves, that ye love the LORD your God.] It highly therefore concerned them to keep close to the Worship and Service of God alone, with sincere Love to him; since all their Happiness depended upon his Favour to them; for that this is meant by loving God, appears from the following Verse; and from Deut. vi. 4, 5. x. 12. xi. 22.

Ver. 12. Else if you do in any wise go back.] From God, and fall to Idolatry.

And cleave unto the Remnant of these Nations, even these that remain among you.] Embrace their Errors, as the Vulgar translates it; which they might easily do by making Friendship with them, as the Phrase properly signifies.

And shall make Marriages with them.] Which was the Effect of their Familiarity wtih them.

And go in unto them, and they to you.] The same Thing that was said before in other Words, which only signify the Consummation of Marriage; which was strictly forbidden them, Exod. xxiii. 32. xxxiv. 12, 15, 16. Deut. vii. 3.

Ver. 13. Know for a Certainty that the LORD your God will no more drive out any of these Nations from before you.] As he had hitherto done, and promised still to do, if they would be obedient, ver. 8, 9. The Targum saith the WORD of the LORD will no more drive, &c.

But they shall be Snares and Traps unto you.] Remain in the Land to inveigle and seduce them into further Impiety. See Exod. xxxiv. 12. Deut. vii. 4, 16.

And Scourges in your Sides.] Bring sore Chastisements upon them; for this alludes to the Lashes that were given Offenders upon their Sides, Ecclus. xxx. 12. xlii. 5.

And Thorns in your Eyes.] Most grievously afflict them. See Numb. xxxiii. 55.

Until ye perish from off this good Land, which the LORD your God hath given you.] For with the Love and Favour of God, they forfeited also their Inheritance which he had bestowed on them.

Ver. 14. Behold, this Day I am going the Way of all the Earth.] Shall die shortly, as all Men must one time or other; therefore hearken to the Words of a dying Man.

And ye know in all your Hearts, and in all your Souls.] Are all fully convinced.

That not one Thing hath failed, of all the good Things which the LORD your God ſpake concerning you, &c.] See upon xxi. 45. And God was as good as his Word ever after, as Solomon acknowledges, 1 Kings viii. 56.

Ver. 15. therefore it ſhall come to paſs, that as all good Things are come upon you which the LORD your God promiſed you; ſo ſhall the LORD.] When he ceaſed to be their God.

Bring upon you all evil Things, &c.] According to what Moſes had predicted at large, Levit. xxvi. and Deut. xxviii. In my Annotations upon which laſt Chapter, I have demonſtrated, that not one Thing hath failed of all the Threatnings there mentioned, but all literally fulfilled to a Tittle: For God's Faithfulneſs is no leſs viſible in fulfilling his Threatnings, than his Promiſes.

Ver. 16. When ye have tranſgreſſed the Covenant of the LORD your God which he commanded you, and have gone and ſerved other Gods, &c.] This was the principal Thing in the Covenant, that they ſhould have no other Gods but him alone; as I have obſerved from a great Number of Places in the Book of Deuteronomy.

Then ſhall the Anger of the LORD be kindled againſt you, and ye ſhall periſh quickly from off the good Land which he hath given unto you.] See Deut. xxviii. 20.

CHAP. XXIV.

Ver. 1. AND Joſhua gathered all the Tribes of Iſrael.] It is likely that Joſhua, living longer than he expected, when he made the foregoing Speech to them, called the People together once more, to give them good Advice before he died; as Moſes made a great many Speeches to them (I obſerv'd upon the Book of Deuteronomy) before his Departure from them; Or, perhaps, it was the uſual Cuſtom of Joſhua to take Occaſion often to call them together, and put them in mind of their Duty. And theſe two Exhortations, which he made to them in the latter End of his Life, he thought fit to record.

To Schechem.] Some will have this Place to be the ſame with Shiloh; call'd here Schechem becauſe it was in the Country of Schechem, and not far from it. The LXX alſo call it Σηλὼ, both here, and ver. 25. It is plain alſo, by the latter End of the Verſe, that they aſſembled there where God dwelt, which was in Shiloh: Yet all this is not ſufficient to make us think they were not ſummon'd to the City call'd Schechem: For there is no good Reaſon for calling Shiloh by this Name; it being (as St. Hierom ſaith) ten Miles from Schechem: And all other Copies of the LXX, but the Vatican, having Συχὲμ, not Σηλώ. And as for their appearing before God at this Place, I ſhall give an Account of it in the End of this Verſe; and now only ſay, that it is likely Joſhua, who was the ſupreme Governor of God's People, being old and infirm, cauſed the Ark, for this Time, to be brought to Schechem, being near to him, that he might renew the Covenant with the People in that Place where Abraham firſt ſettled, when he came into the Land of Canaan, and where he built an Altar, and God eſtabliſh'd his Covenant with him, (Gen. xii. 6, 7.) and where the Patriarchs were bury'd, (Acts vii. 15, 16.) and where he was about to lay the Bones of Joſeph, (ver. 32. of this Chapter) and where the Iſraelites, at their firſt Entrance into Canaan, renew'd their Covenant with God, Joſh. viii. 30, &c. For Ebal and Gerzim were hard by Schechem.

And called for the Elders of Iſrael, and for their Heads, and for their Judges, and for their Officers.] The ſame Perſons mention'd xxiii. 2. Which Places give us a diſtinct Account of the Perſons concern'd in the Government of the Iſraelites; as Conſt. L' Empereur obſerves, in his Annotations upon Bertram de Repub. Judaica, P. 362, 395, 396.

And they preſented themſelves before God.] At his Tabernacle; which was, as I ſaid, for the preſent brought hither. For it is plain, as Cornel. Bertram obſerves, (L. de Republ. Judaica, Cap. 15. P. 249.) the Kings or chief Rulers of Iſrael had a Power to carry the Ark from the Place of its conſtant Reſidence, when there was a great Occaſion for it, 1 Sam. iv. 3, 4. 2 Sam. xv. 24. And now at this great Aſſembly of the whole Nation by their Repreſentatives, there was a juſt Reaſon for its being brought hither, (ſeeing Joſhua could not conveniently, by reaſon of his great old Age, go to Shiloh) that it might be a more ſolemn Meeting, being held in the Preſence of God. Mr. Mede hath another Notion of this Matter; for he thinks that there was a Proſeucha, or praying Place, erected by the Iſraelites (at leaſt by the Ephraimites, in whoſe Lot Shechem was) after they had ſubdued the Country, that they might reſort hither to call upon God, when they were not able to go as far as the Tabernacle. Many ſuch Places he makes account there were; of which ſee more on ver. 26.

Ver. 2. And Joſhua ſaid unto all the People.] That were there preſent, viz. the Elders, Heads, Judges, and Officers, mention'd in the foregoing Verſe; who were to report his Words to all the People.

Thus ſaith the LORD God of Iſrael.] This is an Argument, that Joſhua ſpake all that follows by a Divine Impulſe; for he begins his Speech in the ſolemn Form uſed by the Prophets (thus ſaith the LORD) and introduces God himſelf ſpeaking in his own Perſon. From whence it may be inferr'd, he was a Prophet, as well as the Ruler of God's People.

Your Fathers dwelt on the other ſide of the Flood.] That is, of the River Euphrates.

In old Time.] A long time before they came from Ur of the Chaldees into Haran, Gen. xi. 28, 31.

Even Terah, the Father of Abraham, and the Father of Nahor.] Theſe were Terah's two eldeſt Sons, Gen. xi. 26.

And they ſerved other Gods.] All agree that Terah was an Idolater, living in that Country from whence, as many think, Idolatry firſt came, Gen. xxxi. 19. The Jews in Schalſch. Hakkabala ſay, he was a Prieſt, ſee Hottinger in his his Smegma Orientale, Cap. 8. P. 290. Others of them ſay, he was a Statuary, who made Images of ſeveral Materials, λέγων τέτες εἶναι θεὸς, ſaying, Theſe were Gods; as Suidas ſpeaks, who, together with Epiphanius, is of this Opinion. See Bochart. in his Phaleg. Lib. 2. Cap. 5. Abraham himſelf alſo, moſt agree, was bred up in the ſame Idolatry; tho' ſome few deny it; as Hottinger obſerves in the ſame Place; where he alledges the Words of Maimonides, who ſaith, he was converted to the Worſhip of the Creator of All in the 48th Year of his Age; and that his Father Terah alſo repented, and worſhipped the true and only God. See upon Gen. xi. 31.

Ver. 3. And I took your Father Abraham from the other Side of the Flood.] From that Idolatrous Country where he was born and educated. Which is mention'd as a ſingular Obligation upon the Iſraelites to adhere unto God, who ſingled out the Father of their Families, ſo many Ages ago, to be his Worſhipper. This Maimonides, having Occaſion to mention theſe Words of Joſhua, repreſents in very pathetical Expreſſions: "How great is the Benefit, ſaith "he, that we receive by theſe Precepts, which "have freed us from ſuch a grand Error in "which our Father was educated, and con-"verted us to the true Belief of God? by "teaching us that he created all Things, and "that he is to be worſhipp'd and lov'd, and "fear'd, and he only; and that there is no "great Labour required to do his Will, but "only the Love and Fear of him, in which "two all his Worſhip is perfected, &c. More Nevochim, P. 3. Cap. 29.

And led him.] From Charran, after his Father's Death.

Throughout all the Land of Canaan.] Till he came to Schechem, (where the Iſraelites now were aſſembled) and ſo to Beth-el; and ſo on ſtill toward the South of the Land of Canaan, Gen. xii. 6, 8, 9.

And multiplied his Seed, and gave him Iſaac.] In order to the fulfilling of his Promiſe, Gen. xv. 5. he beſtow'd a Son upon him, when he was an hundred Years old, Gen. xxi. 1, 2, &c.

Ver. 4. And I gave unto Iſaac, Jacob and Eſau.] Who had a very numerous Iſſue, Gen. xxv. 24, &c.

And I gave unto Eſau Mount Seir to poſſeſs it.] He and his Brother being grown ſo rich, and their Cattle ſo increas'd, that there was not Room for them both, in the Land of Canaan, where they ſojourn'd, Gen. xxxvi. 6, 7, 8.

And Jacob and his Children went down into Egypt.] Tho' Eſau left the Land of Canaan entirely to him, yet the Time was not come when God intended to plant his Poſterity in it; but they were forced to go down into Egypt, where they ſuffer'd a cruel Bondage, Gen. xlvi. 6. Exod. i. 11, &c. So the LXX explain it.

Ver. 5. I ſent Moſes alſo and Aaron.] And when they were multiply'd exceedingly, (Exod. i. 7, 14, 20.) theſe two great Perſons were ſent to deliver them from that Bondage, Exod. iii. 10. iv. 14.

And I plagued Egypt, according to that I did amongſt them.] Smote it with thoſe Signs (as the LXX explain) which are related in that Book of Exodus.

And afterward I brought you out.] By thoſe wonderful Plagues they were at laſt conſtrain'd to let the Iſraelites depart, as they deſired, Exod. xii. 31, &c.

Ver. 6. And I brought your Fathers out of Egypt, and you came unto the Sea.] When he had brought them out (as is related Exod. xii. 40.) they were led by God through the Way of the Wilderneſs of the Red Sea, Exod. xiii. 18. by which they encamp'd, and were in very great Straits, xiv. 9.

And the Egyptians purſued after your Fathers with Chariots and Horſemen into the Red Sea.] Imagining them to be in ſuch Difficulties, that they could not eſcape out of their Hand, Exod. xiv. 3.

Ver. 7. And when they cried unto the LORD, he put Darkneſs between you and the Egyptians.] So that when they had overtaken them, they could not ſee where they were, Exod. xiv. 10, 19, 20.

And brought the Sea upon them, and covered them.] Inſomuch that they march'd after them into the Sea, where they were overwhelmed, Exod. xiv. 27, 28.

And your Eyes have ſeen what I have done in Egypt.] Or, upon the Egyptians. He appeals to them for the Truth of this, who had ſeen them lie dead upon the Sea Shore, Exod. xiv. 30, 31. For their Elders, to whom he now ſpeaks, (ver. 1.) were all then there: and now not only Men of great Dignity, but (many of them at leaſt) of great Age.

And ye dwelt in the Wilderneſs a long Seaſon.] Forty Years, Numb. xiv. 33. where he gave them a Law, and fed them miraculouſly, &c.

Ver. 8. And I brought you into the Land of the Amorites, which dwelt on the other ſide Jordan.] Towards the latter End of that Time, Numb. xxi. 20, 21.

And they fought with you, and I gave them into your Hand, &c.] See there, ver. 23, 24, 33, &c.

Ver. 9. Then Balak, the Son of Zippor, King of Moab, aroſe, and warred againſt Iſrael.] He did not actually draw out his Forces and fall upon them, but he prepared them and made them ready, with an Intention to drive them from his Coaſt, if Balaam could have diſabled them by his Curſes; which ſufficiently appears from Numb. xxii. 11. David Camius therefore notes pertinently, the Deſign or Contrivance is reputed the Work itſelf.

And ſent and called Balaam the Son of Beor to curſe you.] See Numb. xxii. 5, 6, &c.

Ver. 10. But the LORD would not hearken unto Balaam.] Who had a great Inclination to do what Balak deſired; and one would think by this, begg'd of God to give him Leave to uſe his Arts to do the Iſraelites Miſchief: And when this was deny'd him; yet obtaining Licence to go to the King of Moab, he went with theſe Intentions, and with Hope he might prevail with God to ſuffer him to proſecute his Deſign, Numb. xxii. 32.

Therefore he bleſſed you ſtill: So I delivered you out of his Hand.] He all along pronounced nothing but Bleſſings on them, inſtead of Curſes, notwithſtanding all the Attempts that were made to the contrary, Numb. xxiii. and xxiv. Which was to be aſcribed to the overruling Power of God, who hinder'd him from hurting them.

Ver. 11. And ye went over Jordan.] Having vanquiſh'd the two Kings of the Amorites on the other Side of it, and got quit of all other Enemies, (the Moabites and Midianites) God in a wonderful Manner brought them into Canaan, by drying up the River Jordan to give them a Paſſage over it.

And came unto Jericho.] Which was the firſt Place they beſieged, being the neareſt City to Jordan.

And the Men of Jericho fought againſt you.] We do not read of any Sallies they made upon the Iſraelites; but they ſhutting their Gates, to defend the City againſt them, it is likely flung Stones from their Wall upon them.

The Amorites, and the Perizzites, and the Canaanites, and the Hittites, and the Gergaſhites, and the Hivites, and the Jebuſites.] After which, it appears by this Book, that they fought with all the Seven Nations of Canaan; who engaged them in ſeveral Bodies, and at ſeveral times: Which was done ſo lately, that there was no need he ſhould repeat all the Particulars mention'd in the 10th, 11th, and 12th Chapters. But by the Diviſion of their Land among the Iſraelites, it was very well known to them, that (as this Verſe concludes) God had delivered them into their Hands. It is obſervable, that the Gergaſhites are here particularly mentioned, as fighting againſt Iſrael with the reſt of the ſeven Nations; which makes Grotius his Obſervation doubtful, of their Surrender at Joſhua's firſt Summons; (ſee xvi. 10.) but if that be not true, it is manifeſt ſome of them remain'd unſubdu'd, and had a Settlement in Canaan in our Saviour's Days: When we read of the Country of the Gergeſens, the Inhabitants of which were not Jews, as appears by their breeding Swine. See Conſtant. L'Empereur in his Annotations on Bava Kama, P. 180.

Ver. 12. And I ſent the Hornet before you, which drove them out from before you.] This may ſignify either, that before the Iſraelites came into thoſe Parts, God ſent Hornets, which ſo infeſted them, that many of them were forced to leave their Country, and flee into other Places; or, that when they came to give them Battle, theſe Hornets made ſuch Aſſaults upon them, as facilitated the Victory. This God promis'd in Exod. xxiii. 27, 28. Deut. vii. 20. and here Joſhua remembers how true he was to his Word. The Book of Wiſdom calls them προδρόμους, the Forerunners of God's Hoſt; and Kimchi ſaith, they flew in the Eyes of the Canaanites, and made them ſo blind, that they could not ſee to fight.

Even the two Kings of the Amorites.] Sihon and Og, whoſe Country was firſt infeſted with them; and afterward the Kings of Canaan, and their People, felt their Fury: For this is a ſhort Expreſſion, like that which I obſerv'd xxii. 10.

But not with thy Sword, or with thy Bow.] The Swarms of Hornets, it ſeems, did greater Execution than the Armies of the Iſraelites. We do not read of their aſſaulting the Canaanites in any of the Battles that Joſhua fought with them; for he did not think fit to mention it particularly in the foregoing Account of his Victory, but now in general, when he was to ſum up all the Mercies of God to them.

Ver. 13. And I have given you a Land for which you did not labour, and Cities which ye built not, and ye dwell in them.] As Joſhua had obſerv'd before, xi. 13.

Of the Vineyards and Olive-yards which ye planted not, do ye eat.] According to his Promiſe, Deut. vi. 10, 11.

Ver. 14. Now therefore fear the LORD.] The Fear of God commonly ſignifies his Worſhip and Service, unto which he exhorts them in the following Words; which ſeem to relate to all outward Acts of Worſhip; as this to the inward Reverence they owed to him in their Minds, as the only God.

And ſerve him in Sincerity and Truth.] Worſhip no other God together with him, nor mix any Idolatrous Rites with thoſe preſcribed by him; but ſerve him conſtantly and purely according to his Law, which is the Truth, Pſalm cxix. 142.

And put away the Gods which your Fathers ſerved on the other ſide the Flood.] See ver. 2. This intimates, that there were now ſome Idolaters among them, tho' ſecretly in private, and not openly; For they had lately expreſs'd ſo unanimouſly ſuch a Zeal againſt any Appearance of Idolatry, that one cannot think there was any known Worſhipper of other Gods now in the Nation.

And in Egypt.] Where they began to be corrupted in their Religion, as is often ſuggeſted by the Prophet Ezekiel, xx. 6, 7, 8, 18. xxiii. 3, 8, 19, 21, 27.

And ſerve ye the LORD.] He repeats it again, as a Thing of the greateſt Moment, that they ſhould worſhip the LORD alone.

Ver. 15. And if it ſeem evil unto you to ſerve the LORD, chuſe you this Day whom you will ſerve.] He could not think they would turn Atheiſts, and have no God at all; and he was unwilling to ſuppoſe, that they would prefer any other God to Him, who had obliged them by ſuch Benefits as are before mention'd: Which he expreſſes in this Rhetorical Form of Speech; which is as much as if he had ſaid, If you like not the LORD's Service, tell me whom ye will ſerve? Where do you hope to find a God comparable to Him?

Whether the Gods that your Fathers ſerved, that were on the other ſide of the Flood.] That had ſome Colour for it, becauſe of its Antiquity; but was condemn'd by Abraham their Father, who forſook that Religion, and was bleſſed for it by God with the Inheritance he had now given them in the Land of Canaan.

Or the Gods of the Amorites, in whoſe Land ye dwell.] That was ſo abſurd, as to need no Confutation; for thoſe Gods could not defend their Servants that worſhipped them.

But

But as for me, I and my Houſe, we will ſerve the LORD.] He declares his firm Reſolution (let them take what Courſe they pleas'd) together with his whole Family, (as far as he could oblige them) to worſhip the LORD alone.

Ver. 16. And the People anſwered and ſaid.] All the Elders and others there preſent, and all thoſe to whom they reported what Joſhua had ſaid, made this Anſwer.

God forbid that we ſhould forſake the LORD.] The Hebrew Word Chalila (which we tranſlate God forbid) imports a great Abhorrence and Abomination of that which is mention'd with it.

To ſerve other Gods.] Which they now look'd upon as the greateſt Madneſs.

Ver. 17. For the LORD our God, he it is that brought us up and our Fathers out of the Land of Egypt, from the Houſe of Bondage, and which did thoſe great Signs in our Sight, &c.] They gave ſuch powerful Reaſons why they ſhould ſerve none but the LORD alone, that if they had always preſerv'd them as freſh in their Minds, as they were now, they could never have gone after other Gods.

Ver. 18. And the LORD drove out from before us all the People.] That is, of Canaan.

Even the Amorites which dwelt in the Land.] In the Hebrew, and the Amorites; that is, together with the two Kings of the Amorites, whom they had driven before out of the Land on the other ſide of Jordan.

Therefore will we alſo ſerve the LORD.] Follow the Example of Joſhua, their Leader, ver. 15.

For he is our God.] As they were convinced by their wonderful Deliverance out of Egypt; all the great Signs he wrought there, and after they came from thence; and the Care he took of them in the Wilderneſs, and all other Places; and now by their late Victories over moſt potent Enemies, whom he had driven out of their Country, and put the Iſraelites in Poſſeſſion of it.

Ver. 19. And Joſhua ſaid unto the People, Ye cannot ſerve the LORD.] This is far from ſignifying an utter Impoſſibiity of it; (for that would have contradicted his Exhortation, ver. 14.) but that they were ſo very prone to Idolatry, that they would not be able to perſevere ſtedfaſt in their Reſolution, unleſs they took Care conſtantly to reflect upon, and lay to Heart, what they had now acknowledg'd, (ver. 17, 18.) which he was afraid they would not do.

For he is an holy God, he is a jealous God.] Who having no Equal, (that's meant by holy) will endure no Rival; and therefore they who communicated the Worſhip proper to him, unto any other beſides him, or with him, were deem'd to deny his incomparable Sanctity, and ſaid in Scripture to prophane his Holy Name, as Mr. Mede obſerves, ſee Book I. Diſcourſe 2. It is a juſt Remark which Mr. Alix here makes, in his excellent Book (of the Judgment of the Jewiſh Church againſt the Unitarians, Chap. ix.) that here is a plain Idea of a Plurality of Perſons in the Godhead, the Words in the Hebrew being, He is the Holy God; like that Eccleſ. xii. 1. Remember thy Creators. And indeed this is a Place anciently noted by the Chriſtian Doctors, (whom the Jews call Hereticks) who aſk'd R. Samlai, as the Jews themſelves tell us, what he had to anſwer unto theſe Words, Ye cannot ſerve the LORD, Ki Elohim Kedoſhim Hu, becauſe he is the Holy Gods? Who had nothing to reply, but that Joſhua doth not ſay; They are the Holy Gods, but He is the Holy Gods. Which is the very ſame that we affirm, that he is Three in One. This is in Bereſchith Rabba, mention'd by Raymund in his Pugio Fidei, and by J. Wagenſeil in his Confutation of Lipman's Carmen Memoriale, P. 129.

He will not forgive your Tranſgreſſions, nor your Sin.] But make thoſe who aſſume any other Deity into Fellowſhip with him in Worſhip, feel how he reſents ſuch Diſhonour done to his Divine Majeſty.

Ver. 20. If you forſake the LORD, and ſerve ſtrange Gods.] Either the Gods of the Amorites, before mention'd, or thoſe that their Fathers anciently ſerv'd.

Then he will turn, and do you Hurt, and conſume you, after that he hath done you Good.] Alter the Courſe of his Providence towards you, and ſend as many Curſes upon you, as he hath done Bleſſings; according to the Prediction of Moſes in Deut. xxviii. 63.

Ver. 21. And the People ſaid unto Joſhua, Nay, but we will ſerve the LORD.] They deſire him to entertain a better Opinion of them; for they perſiſt in their well-grounded Reſolution, ver. 16, 17, 18.

Ver. 22. And Joſhua ſaid unto the People, Ye are Witneſſes againſt yourſelves, that ye have choſen the LORD to ſerve him.] This ſolemn Profeſſion, which they had thus deliberately and publickly made, he tells them, would teſtify againſt them, and condemn them, if they proved falſe to God.

And they ſaid, We are Witneſſes.] Here they renew that Choice of God for their King, which their Forefathers made when they came out of Egypt, (in the xixth and xxivth Chapters of Exodus) and acknowledg'd they ſhould be ſelf-condemn'd, if they did not make it good.

Ver. 23. Now therefore put away (ſaid he) the ſtrange Gods that are among you.] See ver. 14. This is an Argument that he was a Prophet, as I ſaid upon ver. 2. that he ſaw their inward Diſpoſition, and the Secret Affection they had to Idols. For tho' there was no publick Idol worſhipped, yet he knew, by the Spirit of Prophecy, that they had their Penates, (as the Romans call'd them) Houſhold Gods; or, rather, Gods which they worſhip'd ſecretly in their Cloſets, as our Dr. Spencer obſerves, Lib. III Diſſert. 1. Cap. 3. Theſe being the very ſame Words which Jacob uſed to his Houſhold, when he ſuſpected them of the ſame Crime, tho' there was no open Idolatry practis'd among them, Gen. xxxv. 2.

And incline your Heart unto the LORD God of Iſrael.] Settle your Affection upon the LORD alone, who you profeſs is your Sovereign, to whom the whole Nation hath infinite Obligations, ver. 16, 17, 18.

Ver. 24. And the People ſaid unto Joſhua, The LORD our God will we ſerve, and his Voice we will obey.] They repeat their profeſs'd Reſolution tion a third Time, which made it more binding; and a ſtronger Witneſs againſt them, if they forſook the LORD.

Ver. 25. So Joſhua made a Covenant with the People that Day.] Engaged them to make good this ſolemn Profeſſion, by renewing the Covenant they had formerly enter'd into, both in the Time of Moſes, and in his Time: Wherein they promiſed to worſhip him alone, and be obedient to him; and he promiſed to do for them as he had formerly done; that is, be their conſtant Protector and Benefactor. There are thoſe who think this Covenant was now eſtabliſh'd by Sacrifice, as it was when they came out of Egypt, Exod. xxiv. 4, 5. and when they came into Canaan, Joſh. viii. 31. But as there is no Mention of an Altar, or any Offering, ſo it is not likely, that Joſhua would offer any Sacrifice, but in the place which God had choſen, which was Shiloh: For tho' we ſuppoſe the Sanctuary to have been brought hither for a little Time, yet it was not the ſettled Place of the Divine Reſidence.

And ſet them a Statute and an Ordinance.] It is commonly interpreted, that he propounded to them in brief the Precepts of the Law; which are the Conditions of the Covenant: But it may be expounded, that he enacted this Covenant to have the Force of a Statute and Ordinance, or Judgment, as it in the Hebrew.

In Schechem.] So that it was call'd hereafter, the Covenant or Statute in Schechem, where they all made repeated Profeſſions of Love to God.

Ver. 26. And Joſhua wrote theſe Words.] From whence, as I obſerv'd in the Preface, the Talmudiſts gather Joſhua to have been the Author of this Book. As if theſe Words ſignify'd, that he, after the Example of Moſes, committed to Writing all that we read in this Book, and added it at the End of the five Books written by Moſes, as it is now annex'd to them. But it muſt be confeſs'd, that one cannot certainly infer more from thoſe Words, than that he wrote the Words of the foregoing Covenant; and this he did, as it here follows, in the very Book of the Law of God, that it might be preſerv'd in everlaſting Remembrance.

In the Book of the Law of God.] Which was laid up, by Moſes his Order, in the Side of the Ark, Deut. xxxi. 24, 25, 26. From whence he took it and wrote in it all that had paſs'd between him and the People, that they might look upon this as a ſacred Tranſaction, as indeed it was, and moſt carefully obſerve it: And perhaps he wrote it alſo in that Copy of the Law of God, which the Princes had for the Uſe of every Tribe. See upon Deut. xxxi. 9.

And took a great Stone and ſet it up there.] As a Monument of the Covenant now made. Which was an ancient Way of preſerving the Memory of things paſt, as appears by what Jacob did, Gen. xxviii. 18. and they themſelves had lately done, iv. 3, 20, 21, &c. Upon this Stone it is probable there was an Inſcription, ſignifying what it meant.

Under an Oak that was by the Sanctuary of the LORD.] This is one Argument Mr. Mede uſes (in the Place I mention'd upon ver. 1.) to prove that the Sanctuary, properly ſo call'd, cannot be here meant, becauſe it was unlawful to plant any Trees near it, Deut. xvi. 21, 22. and therefore he underſtands hereby a Proſeucha, or Praying-place, which, in Memory of Jacob, was here at Schechem. And he doth plainly ſhew there were both ſuch Places, and alſo Synagogues, in ſeveral Parts of the Country: the former being in the Fields, open on the Top; the latter in Cities, cover'd as our Houſes are. And I may add, that we do read of Sanctuaries, in the Plural Number, that were among them in After-times, Amos vii. 9. Yet it muſt be acknowledg'd, that the Argument he uſes from the Place I mention'd in Deuteronomy, is not cogent: For tho' they be prohibited there to plant a Grove of any Trees near God's Altar, after the Manner of the Gentiles, this did not make it unlawful to ſet up the Sanctuary under a Tree that had been planted before; eſpecially when it was done only for a ſhort Time, and not to make it the ſettled Place for its conſtant Abode.

But there are thoſe who avoid this ſeeming Difficulty, by referring theſe Words in the Sanctuary of the LORD, (as they may be tranſlated) not to the Sanctuary. And thus, it is going before, the Book of the Law of God; which was in the Sanctuary. And thus, it is certain, Words are ſometimes to be connected, not with thoſe immediately preceding, but with thoſe which are more remote. A notable Inſtance of which we have in Gen. xiii. 10. where thoſe Words in the End of the Verſe, As thou comeſt unto Zoar, cannot be join'd to the Land of Egypt, juſt before mention'd, but to the Plain of Jordan, in the very beginning of the Verſe.

Ver. 27. And Joſhua ſaid unto all the People, This Stone ſhall be a Witneſs unto us.] As Laban ſaid concerning the Heap of Stones which he and Jacob rais'd, Gen. xxxi. 48, 51, 52.

For it hath heard all the Words of the LORD which he ſpake unto us.] All thoſe Speeches which had been deliver'd by Joſhua in the Name of God, (ver. 2, 3, &c.) and all that the Iſraelites had anſwer'd to him: That is, the Covenant between God and them; which being renew'd before this Stone, it is ſaid, by an elegant Figure, to have heard what was ſpoken; becauſe it would remain to teſtify and declare to all Poſterity the Engagements that lay upon them. Thus the Prophet calls to all Creatures, Hear, O Heaven, &c.

It ſhall be therefore a Witneſs unto you, leſt ye deny your God.] To accuſe them; as much as if it had heard what they ſaid, and could ſpeak againſt them.

Ver. 28. And ſo Joſhua let the People depart, every one unto his Inheritance.] And the Sanctuary of the LORD returned to its ſettled Place, which was in Shiloh.

Ver. 29. And it came to paſs, that after theſe Things.] Not long after, in all Probability.

Joſhua the Son of Nun, the Servant of the LORD, died.] Leaving this honourable Character behind him, which Moſes alſo had, that he had ſerv'd the LORD faithfully. 1

Being an hundred and ten Years old.] Of the ſame age with Joſeph. How many of theſe Years he ſpent in Canaan, as the Chief Ruler of God's People, Mens Opinions are very widely different: For ſome ſay he lived twenty and eight Years after they came over Jordan, (which is the Opinion of the Jews in Seder Olam) tho' others will not allow ſo much as the odd eight Years, but ſay it was only ſeven There is a middle Opinion maintain'd by others, that he was their Governor ſeventeen Years. See Bonfrerius.

Ver. 30. And they buried him in the Border of his Inheritance in Timnath-Serah.] Called in Judges ii. 9. Timneth-heres; becauſe of the Image of the Sun engraven on his Sepulchre, in Memory of that famous Day, when the Sun ſtood ſtill till he had compleated his Victory. (Chap. x.) So ſeveral of the Jewiſh Authors ſay, particularly he who wrote the Book put up by Hottinger under the Title of Cippi Hebraici, P. 32. where he ſaith, his Father Nun was bury'd here, and Caleb the Son of Jephunneh. See alſo his Smegma Orientale, Cap. 8. p. 523. And thus Tully ſaith, a Sphere and a Cylinder were put upon the Tomb of Archimedes.

On the North Side of the Hill Gaaſh.] So called, as the Jews fable, becauſe it trembled and quaked, at the Burial of Joſhua, whoſe Death the People did not enough bewail. Which Fancy, it is likely, came into their Head, becauſe there is no Mention here of any Days of Mourning for him, as there were for Aaron and Moſes. In which St. Hierom and other of the Fathers think there is a Myſtery, viz. that under the Law, when the Kingdom of Heaven was not yet open'd, they had Reaſon to mourn and weep for the Death of their Friends; but under the Goſpel, wherein is reveal'd by the Lord Jeſus (of whom Joſhua was a Figure) the wonderful Love of God to Men, &c. there is no Reaſon for Mourning and Lamentation, but rather for Rejoicing.

Of this Hill ſee Conſt. L'Empereur upon Benjamin his Itinerarium, who calls Montpellier by this Name of Har-Gaaſh, the trembling Hill, p. 142, 143.

Ver. 31. And Iſrael ſerved the LORD all the Days of Joſhua.] No Idolatry appeared among them publickly while he lived, (whatſoever private Superſtition might be practis'd, ver. 14, 23.) for all that wicked Generation which came out of Egypt (except the younger Sort) were conſumed in the Wilderneſs, before Joſhua took the Conduct of them. And God kept them there ſo many Years, as waſted them alſo, for this Reaſon, among others, that they might forget the idolatrous Cuſtom of Egypt, unto which it early appear'd, by their making the Golden Calf, they were ſtrongly inclined. Thus St. Chryſoſtom diſcourſes, Lib. 1. adverſ. vitæ Monaſt. vituper. God, ſaith he, that the Children of Iſrael might unlearn the evil Cuſtoms of Egypt, brought them καλὰ μόνας ἐπὶ τῆς ἐρημίας, to lead a ſolitary Life in the Wilderneſs, forming their Minds, as in a Monaſtery, far from thoſe who had corrupted them. And he deſtroy'd there all the elder Sort, that none might enter into Palæſtine, but they who had not ſeen the ſuperſtitious Impieties of the Egyptians, ἵνᾳ μηδένα διδάσκαλον ἔχειν τῆς τοσαύτης πονηρίας, and that they might have no Maſter left among them, to teach them ſuch kind of Wickedneſs.

And all the Days of the Elders that outlived Joſhua, and which had ſeen all the Works of the LORD that he had done for Iſrael.] Theſe Elders had been choſen by Moſes, who knew them to be Men of great Piety; that had not only ſeen, but obſerv'd and kept in Mind all God's wonderful Works; and would put others in mind of them, and teach them to ſerve and obey the LORD.

From this Place the Jews labour to eſtabliſh all their Oral Traditions; which Moſes, ſay they, deliver'd to Joſhua, and he to theſe Elders, and they to the Prophets, and they to others, (ſee Maimonides in Seder Zeraim, ſet forth by our moſt learned Dr. Pocock, p. 34.) for which there is no Foundation.

Ver. 32. And the Bones of Joſeph, which the Children of Iſrael brought out of Egypt.] It is a needleſs Pains which the Jews beſtow, in reconciling thi Place with Exod. xiii. 19. where it is ſaid, Moſes took the Bones of Joſeph with him. For there is no Contradiction between theſe two Places, the Children of Iſrael doing what Moſes required them to do; who could not carry them away himſelf, but ſaw them brought out of Egypt. Yet thus they gravely diſcourſe about this Matter in the Talmud. Tit. Sota, Cap. 1. Sect. 47. When any one begins a Thing, but doth not bring it to Perfection, and another comes and finiſhes it, the Scripture ſpeaks of him who compleats it, as if he alone had done it.

Buried they in Shechem.] Which was one Reaſon, perhaps, for gathering the great Aſſembly above-mentioned, that they might the more ſolemnly depoſite the Bones of this great Man, in that Portion of Land which his Father Jacob had given him, (ſee Gen. xlviii. 22.) where it ſeems they thought it moſt agreeable to lay him, rather than in the Cave of Machpelah. It may be reaſonably thought alſo, that the Bodies of the reſt of the Sons of Jacob, from whom the Twelve Tribes deſcended, were brought into Canaan, to be there interr'd, as Joſephus relates from ancient Tradition, L. 2. Antiq. Cap. 4. And St. Stephen confirms it, Acts vii. 16. For tho' Joſeph excell'd them all in Dignity, and gave this ſpecial Charge about his Body, yet no doubt every Tribe had as great a Regard to the Head of it, and would be inclined to do the ſame for their Fathers, that Joſeph deſired for himſelf. But whether they bury'd them in the Sepulchre at Machpelah, or in ſome eminent Place in their own Tribe, as Joſeph was, there is none that gives us any Account.

In a Parcel of Ground which Jacob bought of the Sons of Hamor, the Father of Shechem, for an Hundred Pieces of Silver.] See Gen. xxxiii. 18, 19. This ſhews they did not bury him in the City of Schechem, but in a Field near it which was his own Ground: For ſo the ancient Manner was, not to bury in Cities and Towns, but in the adjacent Fields or Gardens.

And it became the Inheritance of the Children of Joſeph.] Of the Ephraimites, who gave Schechem cbem to the Levites, for a City of Refuge, xxi. 20, 21.

Ver. 33. And Eleazar the Son of Aaron died.] Who imitated Joſhua, (if we may believe the Samaritan Chronicle) in calling all the Elders and Princes of the Tribes to him before he died, charging them ſtrictly to obey all the Commands of God. After which he put off his ſacred Garments, and cloathed his Son Phineas with them. This is ſo far from being improbable, that it is likely all the Elders did the ſame as far as their Authority could reach; being very deſirous their Poſterity might continue firm and ſtedfaſt in the Worſhip of God alone.

And they buried him in an Hill that pertained to Phineas his Son.] In the Hebrew the Words are, in the Hill of Phineas; that is, a Hill called by his Name. It being the Manner, as I have noted elſewhere, to call Places by the Name of their eldeſt Son.

Which was given him in Mount Ephraim.] It is a Queſtion to whom this Hill was given: Moſt probable to Eleazar, who being the High Prieſt at the Time of the Diviſion of the Land, they thought fit to give him a peculiar Portion, diſtinct from all the Cities of the Prieſts; none of which were in the Tribe of Ephraim, but all in the Tribes of Judah, Benjamin, and Simeon, as we read xxi. 9, 17, 19. And they gave it Eleazar in this Country, that he might be near to the Tabernacle, (which was in Shiloh) and near to Joſhua, to be ready on all Occaſions to adviſe him, and conſult the Oracle for him. But againſt this there lies a great Objection, that no Levite or Prieſt was to have any Portion in the Diviſion of the Land: And therefore it is the moſt received Opinion among the Jews, that either Eleazar or Phineas had this Inheritance in the Right of his Wife. So the Gemara Babylonica on Bava Bathra, and a great many others, mentioned by Mr. Selden in his Book de Succeſſionibus ad Leges Hebr. Cap. 18. where he obſerves another Example of this Marital Succeſſion, as he calls it; that is, the Husband ſucceeding his Wife in her Eſtate after her Death, in 1 Chron. ii. 21. where the twenty-three Cities which Jair poſſeſs'd, Kimchi ſaith he had by his Wife.

Theſe five laſt Verſes, it is evident, were not written by Joſhua: But this is no Argument he did not write this Book; no more than that Moſes did not write the Pentateuch, becauſe there is the like Account given of his Death and Burial in the Concluſion of it, by ſome other Author. See Deut. xxxiv. 1. The Talmudiſts, I obſerved, ſay, in Bava Bathra, that Joſhua wrote his own Book, and the eight laſt Verſes of the Pentateuch. And they ſay in the ſame Place, (Cap. 1.) as to what is written here, ver. 29. it was done by Eleazar; and what is ſaid, ver. 33. it was wrote by Phineas: Or rather, theſe five Verſes from 29. to the End, were written by Samuel, who being a Prophet, was moved and directed by God to continue the Hiſtory of this People from the Death of Joſhua, to his own Time.

UPON THE Book of JUDGES.

THIS Book is called by the Name of SHOPHETIM, or JUDGES, becauſe it treats principally of the great Things done by thoſe illuſtrious Perſons, who were raiſed up by God, upon ſpecial Occaſions, after the Death of Joſhua, till the Time of making a King, to Judge, that is, to Rule, the People of Iſrael and to deliver them from their Oppreſſions. It conſiſts of two Parts, the one containing the Hiſtory of the Judges, from Othniel to Samſon, which Ends with the 16th Chapter, (the Hiſtory of the two laſt Judges, Eli and Samuel, being not recorded here; but in the following Book.) The other containing ſeveral memorable Actions, which were performed in or about the Time of the Judges; with which the Holy Writer would not interrupt their Hiſtory, but reſerved them to be related by themſelves in the Concluſion, viz. in the 17th, and the following Chapters, unto the End of the Book.

It is but conjectur'd who was the Writer of it. Some think Ezra; but it is more probable the Prophet Samuel, who was the laſt of the Judges; and, by the Direction of God, brought down their Hiſtory unto his own Days, when they deſired a King to be ſet over them. The Talmudiſts in Bava Bathra (Cap. 1.) are of this Opinion; which Kimchi, Abarbinel, and other great Authors follow. And indeed there is reaſon to think, that he who wrote the Concluſion of the Book of Joſhua, was the Writer of this Book alſo; in the Second Chapter of which he inſerts Part of that which is written there. And it is manifeſt it was written before the ſecond Book of Samuel; where mention is made of a Paſſage in this Book; which would not have been ſo commonly known, if it had not been publiſhed here, 2 Sam. xi. 21. out of Judg. xi. 53. David alſo, in Pſal. lxviii. 7, 8, ſeems to allude unto what we read in the Song of Deborah, v. 4. See Du Pin. Certain it is, it was written before David's Reign; for the Jebuſites were poſſeſſed of Jeruſalem when this Author lived, (ver. 21. of the firſt Chapter) who were driven out of it by David, 2 Sam. v. 6. and therefore this Book was written before that; and is of wonderful uſe, as Procopius Gazæus obſerves, to repreſent unto us the mighty Power of true Religion to make a Nation happy; and the diſmal Calamities which Impiety brings upon it. And therefore, ſaith he, St. Paul thought fit to propound a great many Examples to us out of this very Book; ſuch as Gideon, and Barak, and Samſon, and Jephthah, who did marvellous Things by the Power of Faith.

CHAP. I.

Ver. 1. NOW after the Death of Joſhua.] And of Eleazar, it is probable, (for this Book gives an Account of what follow'd after thoſe Things that are mention'd in the foregoing) but how long after cannot be certainly determin'd: But we have reaſon to think, it was not till they were multiply'd ſo much, as to be able to people more of the Country than they had yet in Poſſeſſion.

It came to paſs that the Children of Iſrael.] There was no Perſon appointed by Joſhua to ſucceed him in the Government, as he was appointed by Moſes to be his Succeſſor; but the Government was left in the Hand of the Elders. For it is a mere Fiction which we meet withal in the Samaritan Chronicle, that at the laſt Aſſembly (mentioned Joſhua xxiv.) he choſe Twelve of the chief of the Tribes, and caſt Lots which of them ſhould hold his Place when he died; and that the Lot fell upon one whoſe Name was Abel, and his Nephew; to whom he aſſign'd his Authority, and ſet a Crown upon his Head. See Hottinger in his Smegma Orientale, Cap. 8. P. 522.

Asked the LORD, ſaying.] Enquired of him by Urim and Thummim, as the Manner was in all Caſes that concern'd the whole Congregation of Iſrael. For which End, it is to be ſuppoſed, that ſome who repreſented the Body of the People (their Elders, perhaps, or Heads of their Tribes) were ſent to Shiloh, where the Sanctuary was, and deſired Phineas the High Prieſt to repreſent their Caſe to God, and beſeech his Directions. Here the Jews raiſe a Queſtion, Why we never read that Joſhua, in all his Wars, conſulted God by the Oracle, but the Elders immediately after his Death did? To this they give ſeveral Anſwers. Seee Numb. xxvii. 21.

Who ſhall go up for us againſt the Canaanites firſt to fight againſt them?] They being increas'd, as I ſaid, to ſuch a Number, that they were able to people more of the Country; and beginning to be ſtraitned for want of Room, thought of enlarging their Poſſeſſions; but would not adventure without God's Approbation and Direction to do any thing: And therefore deſired he would tell them who ſhould make the firſt Attempt; that the reſt, being encouraged by their Succeſs, (of which they did not doubt, if they had his Warrant for what they did) might make the like. For it is evident by theſe Words, go up for us, that all the Tribes on this ſide Jordan were concern'd in this Matter.

Ver. 2. And the LORD ſaid, Judah.] i. e. The Tribe of Judah, who were very populous, and no leſs valiant.

Shall go up.] And aſſault the mountainous Country, which was the Lot of this Tribe. According to the Prophecy of Jacob, Gen. xlix. 8. where, comparing Judah to a Lyon's Whelp, he ſaith, From the Prey, my Son, thou art gone up.

Behold, I have delivered the Land into his Hand.] That is, all the Land belonging to their Lot. By this it ſeems plain, that the Anſwer by Urim and Thummim was given by a Voice which utter'd theſe Words. Here Abarbinel endeavours to give Satisfaction to the Queſtion before mention'd, why Joſhua did not enquire in this Manner, tho' it be expreſly ſaid, Numb. xxvii. 21. that he ſhall ſtand before Eleazar the Prieſt, and ask Counſel of the LORD; after the Judgment of Urim. He thinks he did ſo, all the Time after that, till Moſes's Death, to ſhew he was made the Leader of God's People for none but ſuch could enquire by Urim: But after his Death, he was endued with the Spirit of Prophecy, as Moſes was, and ſo had no need to enquire in that Manner, being immediately directed by God in his Proceedings. But after his Death, there being none endued with the Prophetical Spirit, the Children of Iſrael were conſtrain'd to have reſort to this Oracle. Which is an Account very much below the Judgment of ſo great a Man; for Moſes, being a Prophet, did frequently ask Counſel of God at the Sanctuary, which was the ſame as if he had enquired by Urim. Therefore the true Anſwer is, that Joſhua did thus enquire of the LORD in the Caſe of Achan; and it is highly probable he did the ſame in the Management of his War, and other great Occaſions, tho' it be not expreſly mention'd in ſo many Words.

Ver. 3. And Judah ſaid to Simeon his Brother.] They were Brethren by the ſame Father and Mother; and alſo nearly join'd in their Situation, the Lot of the Tribe of Simeon being taken out of that of Judah, Joſh. xix. 9.

Come up with me into my Lot, that we may fight againſt the Canaanites.] Which People, with the Perizzites, (as is further declared in the next Verſe) ſtill poſſeſſed a conſiderable Part of the which fell to Judah.

And I likewiſe will go with thee into thy Lot.] To drive them out of that Part of the Country which was the Portion of Simeon.

So Simeon went with him.] They join'd their Forces together in this Expedition, under the Conduct, no doubt, of ſome eminent Leader. And who ſo fit as Caleb? who, tho' an old Man, was full of Vigour, and fit for War, (as he himſelf declared not long ago, Joſh. xiv. 10, 11.) and had not yet got Poſſeſſion (as appears by the Sequel) of the Portion which by God's Commandment was aſſigned him.

Ver. 4. And Judah went up.] They were the principal Perſons concern'd in this Expedition, and therefore only mention'd tho' the Children of Simeon alſo went up with them.

And the LORD delivered.] We meet with no ſuch Religious Expreſſion (which occurs often here in theſe Holy Books) in any Heathen Writer.

The Canaanites and Perizzites into their Hand.] Tho' moſt of the People properly called Canaanites naanites dwelt by the Mediterranean Sea, yet many of them were ſcatter'd up and down in other Parts of the Country, (as I obſerv'd upon Numb. xiv. ult.) and particularly in theſe Mountains and woody Places, where the Perrizzites dwelt. See Joſh. xvii. 15, 16.

And they ſlew of them in Bezek ten thouſand Men.] In the Country near to Bezek, which was a City in the Tribe of Judah, not far, ſome think, from Bethlehem. Here they choſe to make their Rendezvous (as we now ſpeak) of their Forces, and wait to receive the Children of Judah, that if they were worſted, they might eaſily find a ſtrong Place of Retreat.

Ver. 5. And they found Adonibezek in Bezek.] He was the King, or Lord of this Place, as his Name imports, whom they ſurprized, as the Word found ſignifies, (ſee Bochart Hieroz. P. 1. Lib. 2. Cap. 21.) by a ſudden Aſſault upon this City, whither he ſeems to have fled, when he had loſt the Field. Theodoret makes this King the ſame with Adonizedek (mention'd in Joſh. x.) but as their Names are different, ſo he was King of Jeruſalem, and this of Bezek; where he was overcome; but the former in Gibeon, who was killed alſo with the Sword, and then hanged on a Tree; but this had only his Thumbs and Toes cut off, and ſo brought to Jeruſalem, where he died.

And they fought againſt him.] Took the City wherein he thought to have defended himſelf, and the Remainder of his Army, which eſcaped hither.

And they ſlew the Canaanites and Perizzites.] Put all the People of thoſe two Nations, whom they found there, to the Sword.

Ver. 6. But Adonibezek fled.] He made his Eſcape.

And they purſued him, and caught him.] They found which Way he went, and purſued him ſo cloſe, that they overtook him before he could get to the ſtrong Fortreſs of the Jebuſites; where, it is likely, he hoped to ſecure himſelf.

And cut off his Thumbs and his great Toes.] That he might be made uncapable of War hereafter, being unable to handle Arms, by reaſon of the Loſs of his Thumbs; or to run ſwiftly (which was a noble Quality in a Warrior) by the Loſs of his great Toes. This had been his own Practice, it appears by his Confeſſion in the next verſe, which made them think it reaſonable to ſerve him in his kind.

Ver. 7. And Adonibezek ſaid, Threeſcore and ten Kings.] In thoſe Days the chief Perſon in every City had a Kingly Power; as we learn from the Hiſtory of Joſhua, who found many Kings in Canaan when he conquer'd it. And Seventy ſuch petty Princes Adonibezek had ſubdued; who were not Kings of ſo many ſeveral Cities, but ſome of them, it is likely, Kings of the ſame Place, who ſucceſſively oppoſed him, and were dethroned by him.

Having their Thumbs and great Toes cut off, gathered their Meat under my Table.] He was proud and inſolent, as well as cruel, treating thoſe Kings whom he conquer'd, as if they had been Dogs.

As I have done, ſo hath God requited me.] Juſtice was defined by the Pythagoræans to be τὸ ἀντιπεπονθὸς, to make others feel the Hurt they had done, by their ſuffering the like Puniſhment. Which Harmenopulus calls ταυτοπάθεια, ſuffering the very ſame; as Grotius notes, Lib. 2. de Jure Belli & Pacis, C. 20. N. 32. Now, Adonibezek's Acknowledgment of God's Juſtice in this Puniſhment, hath made ſome think he was a Penitent, and became a Convert to the true Religion: For he ſpeaks of God in the ſingular Number, and not of the Gods, as the Heathen Manner was; which might poſſibly be the reaſon why they ſpared his Life, and did not kill him. Certain it is, his Pride and Arrogance was very much humbled by his Puniſhment, which extorted this Confeſſion from him. For it carry'd in it (as Mr. Mede obſerves on theſe Words) the very Stamp and Print of the Sin for which it was inflicted.

And they brought him to Jeruſalem.] Which, as it follows in the next Verſe, was now in the Poſſeſſion of the Children of Judah: Tho' the Jews think they had not yet taken the City; but having begirt it, they brought him Priſoner thither, and he died in the time of the Siege.

And there he died.] After he had lived ſome time, perhaps, to perfect his Repentance.

Ver. 8. Now the Children of Judah had fought againſt Jeruſalem, and taken it.] We do not read of its being taken by Joſhua, though it ſeems to me highly probable, that when he took the King of Jeruſalem, he alſo took his City, and did to it as he did to the reſt of the Cities of thoſe Kings, mentioned Joſh. x. 3, 23. But when he was gone to conquer other Parts of the Country, it is likely the old Inhabitants returned again, and took Poſſeſſion of it: For the Land was not then divided among the Iſraelites: After which, this City falling in Part to the Share of Judah, they diſpoſſeſſed the Jebuſites, that dwelt there, of all but the ſtrong Fortreſs on the Top of Mount Sion, which held out till the Days of David. See upon Joſh. x. 1. and xv. 63.

And burnt it with Fire.] As Joſhua had done to Jericho, Ai, and Hazor: This being a City, it is probable, deeply infected with Idolatry; from which they thought fit entirely to purge it, before they rebuilt it.

Ver. 9. Afterward the Children of Judah went down.] From Jeruſalem (I ſuppoſe) which ſtood high.

To fight againſt the Canaanites that dwelt in the Mountain.] There were ſeveral Mountains round about Jeruſalem, (Pſal. cxxv. 2.) and we often read of the Mountains of Judah, which were poſſeſſed, it ſeems, by the old Inhabitants, till after the Death of Joſhua.

And the South.] Towards the Wilderneſs of Paran.

And the Valley.] Or the flat Country about thoſe Mountains, ſome of which are mentioned in the following Verſes.

Ver. 10. And Judah went up againſt the Canaanites that dwelt in Hebron.] This ſhews the old Inhabitants of the Country had returned to this Place, after it had been deſtroy'd by Joſhua, as we read it was Joſh. x. 36, 37. Who were now again expelled by the Children of Judah after his Death, this City being in their Lot.

Now the Name of Hebron before time was Kirjath-Arba.] As much as to ſay, the City of Arba, who was the Father of Anak, See Joſh. xiv. ult. xv. 13.

And they ſlew Sheſhai, Ahiman, and Talmai.] Theſe were the three Sons of Anak, as we read there, Joſh. xv. 14. where it is ſaid that Caleb drove them out from thence: For he was the Conductor of the Children of Iſrael in this Expedition, (as I obſerved upon ver. 3.) and had great Reaſon to go up againſt this City, becauſe this Part of the Country was given to him by a particular Direction of God, Joſh. xiv. 13, 14. xv. 13. But he did not conquer it till after the Death of Joſhua, as this Place ſhews us.

Ver. 11. And from thence he went againſt the Inhabitants of Debir, &c.] Another City which had been taken by Joſhua in the Beginning of the War; (Joſh. x. 38, 39.) but while he was gone to bring under other Parts of the Country, was re-inhabited by the Canaanites, who were not expelled till after Joſhua's Death: When Caleb (to whom it was given, together with Hebron, for his Portion, Joſh. xv. 15.) drove them out again, and poſſeſſed himſelf of it.

Ver. 12. And Caleb ſaid.] Hence it ſtill appears, that the Children of Judah fought under the Conduct of Caleb, as their General.

He that ſmiteth Kirjath-Sepher, and taketh it, to him will I give Achſah my Daughter to Wife.] This and the three following Verſes, 13, 14, 15. have been explain'd upon Joſh. xv. 16, &c. Where the Portion of Judah being deſcribed, there is a particular Mention of what was given to Caleb, and how he diſpoſed of it. Which Relation ſeems to have been taken out of this Book, and inſerted there, by the Authority of Ezra, for the fuller Illuſtration of all that belonged to that Tribe, whether by Lot or peculiar Donation before the Diviſion of the Land. For any one may ſee that the Deſcription of Judah's Lot is entirely coherent, (as Huetius truly obſerves) if all between the twelfth and the twentieth Verſe were left out. And that all Things here mentioned were not done till after the Death of Joſhua, is ſo evident by the Narration which is here made of all that fell out after that Time, as to leave no Doubt of it.

Ver. 16. And the Children of the Kenite, Moſes his Father-in-law.] See Numb. x. 29. where Hobab, the Son of Jethro, was invited by Moſes to accompany him into the Land of Canaan, and in all Probability accepted the Invitation, as I there obſerved.

Went up out of the City of Palm-trees.] That is, Jericho, which was in a flat Country. See Deut. xxxiv. 3. Here it ſeems they were pleaſed to ſettle themſelves at their firſt coming into Canaan, where Moſes promiſed, that whatſoever Goodneſs God ſhould ſhew to the Iſraelites, they ſhould have their Share in it: And there was no ſweeter Place in that Country, than this about Jericho; in the Territory of which they dwelt, for the City itſelf was deſtroy'd.

With the Children of Judah.] Admiring the Courage and Succeſs of this Tribe, they ſeem to have contracted a particular Friendſhip with them, and to have accompanied them in this Expedition into the high Country.

Into the Wilderneſs of Judah, which lieth in the South of Arad.] In the Southern Part of the Land of Canaan, where Arad was, Numb. xxi. 1. which, as Procopius Gazæus here obſerves, was a City of the Amorites, near to the Wilderneſs of Kadeſh, which is Paran: In his Time it was a Village four Miles from Malaathon; but twenty from Hebron.

And dwelt among the People.] They removed from the City of Palm-trees, which was in the Tribe of Benjamin, and ſettled themſelves among the People of Judah. Yet not all of them; for ſome went into the Northern Parts among the Tribe of Naphtali, as appears from iv. 10, 11. What ſhould be the Reaſon of their forſaking ſo pleaſant a Place, as that where they were firſt ſettled, is but conjectured. Some think it was the Love of Solitarineſs and Retirement; which they gather from Jerem. xxxv. 6, &c. Or, as I ſaid, out of their great Affection to the Children of Judah; under whoſe Protection they hoped for greater Safety than in other Places.

Ver. 17. And Judah went with Simeon his Brother.] Having finiſhed, as far as they were able, the Conqueſt of what belonged to the Tribe of Judah, they went to aſſiſt the Simeonites, according to their mutual Engagement, ver. 3.

And they ſlew the Canaanites that inhabited Zephath, and utterly deſtroyed it.] Some think this was the Name both of a City, and of a ſmall Region; but whereabouts it was ſituated, is not known.

And the Name of the City was called Hormah.] From the utter Deſtruction before mentioned. Some think this was the ſame Place with that mentioned Numb. xxi. 2, 3. But there he ſpeaks of more Cities that were laid waſte; here but of one.

Ver. 18. And Judah took Gaza, with the Coaſt thereof; and Askelon, with the Coaſt thereof; and Ekron, with the Coaſt thereof.] Theſe three Cities were in the Land of the Philiſtines, upon the Sea-Coaſt; which the Iſraelites did not hold long, before the Philiſtines recovered them again. For the Iſraelites contenting themſelves with taking theſe Cities, without deſtroying the People, (as they did in other Places, and ought to have done here) and only making them Tributaries, it was not hard for them to regain their Liberty.

Ver. 19. And the LORD was with Judah.] The Targum here uſes the ſame Language, which we find all along in the Book of Joſhua, when he ſpeaks of God's Preſence with him (ſee Joſh. xiv. 12.) and the WORD of the LORD helped the Houſe of Judah.

And they drave out the Inhabitants of the Mountain.] God gave them ſuch Succeſs whereſoever they went, that it ought to have encouraged them to go on with their Enterprize; which they did not, as the following Words tell us. This Mountain, it is very likely, was Mons Caſius, which was near to Gaza.

But could not drive out the Inhabitants of the Valley, becauſe they had Chariots of Iron.] Here now the Fountain of all the enſuing Evils which befel the Iſraelites, begins to be opened. In that, either through Sloth, or Covetouſneſs, or Diſtruſt of God's Power, or more Lenity than the law of Moſes allowed, they did not attempt thoſe People that were ſtronger than ordinary; or, being unfaithful to God, failed in their Attempt; or, having ſome Succeſs, only brought them under Tribute. And it is moſt likely, they were ſo affrighted at the Iron Chariots, (which were in uſe in the Plain Country, tho' not in the Mountains) that they were quite diſheartened; and did not remember what God had promiſed them, (ver. 2. of this Chapter) and how undauntedly Joſhua ſet upon thoſe that came thus dreadfully appointed, Joſh. xi. 4, 6. Concerning theſe Chariots, ſee Joſh. xvii. 16. 18. where I have obſerved they are frequently mentioned in prophane Authors. And ſee Dilherrus, Tom. 1. Diſput. Academ. P. 129.

Ver. 20. And they gave Hebron unto Caleb, as Moſes ſaid, and expelled thence the three Sons of Anak.] Thus ends the Account of the Wars of the Tribe of Judah which concludes with a Repetition of what Part in their Country was given to Caleb; becauſe he was their Leader, (as I have often ſaid) and this was his Reward, viz. the Country about Hebron; the City itſelf belonging to the Levites.

Ver. 21. And the Children of Benjamin did not drive out the Jebuſites that inhabited Jeruſalem.] This Tribe, and that of Judah, had an Intereſt in Jeruſalem: But tho' both of them joined together, they could not drive the Jebuſites out of the South Part of it, where they had a ſtrong Fortreſs upon Mount Sion. See Joſh. xv. 63. Nay of that Part of the City which belonged to Judah, they were not diſpoſſeſſed till the forenamed Expedition.

But the Jebuſites dwelt with the Children of Benjamin to this Day.] That is, they kept Poſſeſſion of that Fortreſs, from which they were not able to drive them; but they dwelt there in the Days when Samuel wrote this Book, being not expelled till the Reign of David. And they ſeem alſo to have dwelt with the Benjamites in that Part of the City belonging to them; which tho' conquer'd, yet the Inhabitants were not deſtroy'd, but only brought under Tribute. For this was very agreeable to the lazy and covetous Humour which now began to prevail in Iſrael.

Ver. 22. And the Houſe of Joſeph.] Viz. The Tribe of Ephraim, Joſh. xvi. 1.

They alſo went up againſt Beth-el.] They, following the Example of Judah, Simeon, and Benjamin, endeavoured to enlarge their Border by taking Beth-el.

And the LORD was with them.] As the Succeſs demonſtrated. The Targum hath it, (as before ver. 19.) The WORD of the LORD was their Helper.

Ver. 23. And the Houſe of Joſeph ſent to deſcry Beth-el.] They proceeded very cautiouſly; ſending Spies (as we read in the next Verſe) to view the Strength of the Place, and to diſcover how it might be beſt approached.

Now the Name of the City before was Luz.] See Gen. xxviii. 19. Joſh. xvi. 2.

Ver. 24. And the Spies ſaw a Man come forth out of the City.] Whom they apprehended, as he paſſed by the Place where they lay to make their Obſervations, and get Intelligence.

And they ſaid unto him, Shew us, we pray thee, the Entrance into the City.] Where it may be moſt eaſily entered. For they did not enquire the Way to the Gate, which was common and plain enough; but for the weakeſt Part, where the Walls were loweſt, or moſt out of Repair, or had the leaſt Guard. Or, they deſired him, perhaps, to ſhew them ſome private Way to get into it, which none knew but the Inhabitants.

And we will ſhew thee Mercy.] As they ſpake civilly and gently to him when they apprehended him, ſo they make him a Promiſe of kind Uſage, when they got into the City, by ſparing his Life, and all belonging to him, as they did Rahab and her Family: Which, it is highly probable, he begg'd of them, being fallen into their Hands; and it was not unlawful for them to grant, if he changed his Religion, or left the Country, as we find he afterwards did.

Ver. 25. And when he ſhewed them the Entrance into the City.] Notice, I ſuppoſe, was immediately ſent to the Army, which lay not far off.

They ſmote the City with the Edge of the Sword.] Came upon them on a ſudden, and aſſaulted them where they leaſt expected it; ſo that they found little Reſiſtance.

But they let go the Man, and all his Family.] Did them no Harm; but gave them their Liberty, as well as Lives, to go whither they pleaſed.

Ver. 26. And the Man went into the Land of the Hittites.] A Colony of this Nation, I ſuppoſe, had planted themſelves heretofore in ſome of the neighbouring Countries, Syria or Arabia, or ſome of thoſe that fled upon Joſhua's invading the Land, ſettled themſelves there. To whom this Man thought good to go with his Family, being perhaps of the ſame Nation.

And built a City.] Which is an Argument, that the Children of Ephraim were ſo kind as to diſmiſs him and his Family, with all their Goods and Eſtate.

And called the Name of it Luz.] To preſerve the Memory of the Place from whence he came. The Founders of Cities are mentioned with Honour by all Authors; and this ſeems to be ſo intended.

Which is the Name thereof unto this Day.] It kept this Name to the Time of the Writing of this Book, and long after. For it ſeems to be the ſame City mentioned by Joſephus in Arabia, (not far from Judæa) which he calls Λοῦσα. L. 14. Antiq. Cap. 2. And Bochartus obſerves, that this Place had its Name originally from the great Plenty of Almonds growing there; from whence alſo it may be Luſitania had its Name, Lib. 1. Canaan, Cap. 35.

Ver.

Ver. 27 Neither did Manaſſeh.] He ſpeaks of that Part of this Tribe which was ſeated on this ſide Jordan.

Drive out the Inhabitants of Beth-ſhean and her Towns, &c.] Hitherto ſeveral of the Iſraelites had ſhewed ſome Valour, and expelled ſome of the Canaanites. But now he begins to ſhew how cowardly others of them were; for theſe do not ſeem to have attempted any thing againſt the Places here mentioned, or any where elſe. Beth-ſhean was a City not far from Jordan. See Joſh. xvii. 11. where the reſt of the Cities here named in this Verſe are mentioned.

But the Canaanites would dwell in that Land.] Not only in the Cities, where they might have been ſtreightned and kept under, but in the Towns and Villages, where they had the ſame Liberties with the Iſraelites, and perhaps held ſome of the Ground belonging to them. For ſo ſome think the Word dwell ſignifies; that they enjoyed all the Benefits that any others had. And this they demanded as their Right; which the Hebrew Word Jaal imports; a ſettled Reſolution not to quit that Land. See Joſh. xvii. 12.

Ver. 28. And it came to paſs, when the Iſraelites were ſtrong, that they put the Canaanites to Tribute, and did not utterly drive them out.] Herein they acted contrary to the Law, whereby they were enjoined to deſtroy them, when they were able. And being ſtrong enough to make them Tributaries, they might, no doubt, have utterly expelled them out of the Land. But they found more Profit in making them pay Tribute; and it coſt them leſs Pains to bring them into ſome Subjection, than to deſtroy them. And this ſeems to be here noted, as the common Fault of all the Children of Iſrael, that when they grew ſtrong, they did not uſe their Power to deſtroy or expel the Canaanites: but let them live quietly under them, upon Payment of Tribute.

Ver. 29. Neither did Ephraim drive out the Canaanites that dwelt in Gezer.] Joſh. xvi. 10. It is very probable, they did not ſo much as exact a Tribute from them, (which is not here mentioned) but made a Covenant of Friendſhip with them; which was ſtill an higher Crime. And this the next Words ſeem to import.

But the Canaanites dwelt in Gezer among them.] Which is a Form of Speech not uſed in the foregoing Exceptions. And to dwell among a People, ſignifies a quiet Settlement, with the Enjoyment of all their Rights. As in 2 Kings iv. 13. when Eliſha offered the Shunamite to do her any Kindneſs at Court, ſhe expreſſes herſelf ſatisfied with her Condition, in theſe Words, I dwell among my own People.

Ver. 30. Neither did Zebulun drive out the Inhabitants of Kitron, nor the Inhabitants of Nahalol.] Which was the greater Crime, becauſe this laſt City was ἀφωρισμένη Λευίταις, one of thoſe that were ſeparated for the Levites, as Euſebius ſpeaks. See Joſh. xxi. 35. Yet they did more than the Ephraimites; for tho' they let them dwell among them, they made them pay Tribute.

But the Canaanites dwelt among them, and became Tributaries.] They troubled themſelves no further than to make them pay a Tribute to them; when they might, with a little more Pains, have expelled them. This Lazineſs, or Covetouſneſs, or whatſoever it was that made them act in this Manner, brought them into a dangerous Snare.

Ver. 31. Neither did Aſher drive out the Inhabitants of Accho.] A city near the Mediterranean Sea, called by Strabo and others Ace; and afterward Ptolemais, as Euſebius ſaith, who obſerves, that the Aſherites did not drive out the Αλλοφύλους from hence. Procopius ſaith the ſame.

Nor the Inhabitants of Sidon.] Which every one knows was another great City upon the ſame Sea.

Nor of Ahlab, nor of Achzib.] We find no Mention of the former of theſe elſewhere; but the latter is in Joſh. xix. 29. and was called in After-times Ecdippa, as Euſebius relates.

Nor Helbath, nor Aphik, nor of Rehob.] The two latter of theſe we read of in Joſh. xix. 28, 30. but nothing of the former, unleſs it be the ſame with Helkath, mentioned there, ver. 25.

Ver. 32. But the Aſherites dwelt among the Canaanites, the Inhabitants of the Land; for they did not drive them out.] They ſeem to have entered into a League of Friendſhip with the Canaanites; ſo that they were mixed with them as if they had been the ſame Nation, which was moſt ſtrictly forbidden by the Law of Moſes: For they did not ſo much as make them Tributaries; but the Aſherites ſeem to have ſubmitted to the baſeſt Condition of all the other Tribes: For it is not ſaid, as of the other Tribes, that the People dwelt among the Aſherites; but that the Aſherites dwelt among them. As if the Canaanites remained ſtill the Lords of that Country, and the Aſherites were only permitted to live among them.

Ver. 33. Neither did Naphtali drive out the Inhabitants of Beth-ſhemeſh, nor the Inhabitants of Beth-anath.] Both theſe Cities are mentioned as in the Lot of Naphtali, Joſh. xix. 38.

But they dwelt among the Canaanites, the Inhabitants of the Land.] Imitating the Aſherites, in letting the old Inhabitants live promiſcuouſly with them; or rather contenting themſelves with the Liberty to live quietly among the Canaanites.

Nevertheleſs, the Inhabitants of Beth-ſhemeſh, and Beth-anath, became Tributaries to them.] In this they were more valiant than the Aſherites, that they brought theſe two Cities under Contribution, and made them acknowledge them for their Lords.

Ver. 34. And the Amorites forced the Children of Dan into the Mountain.] The Condition of the Danites was the worſt of all the Tribes: For they could neither expel the old Inhabitants of their Country, nor make them Tributaries, nor ſo much as poſſeſs it together with them: But the Amorites diſtreſſed them ſorely, by penning them up in the Cities that were in the mountainous Parts of their Country, not ſuffering them to dwell below in the Plain.

For they would not ſuffer them to come down into the Valley.] Being very ſtrong, it is likely, in Chariots of Iron, (which were of uſe, I obſerved, obſerved in the flat Country, tho' they could do no Service in the Mountains) which the Danites ſo dreaded, that they durſt not venture to encounter them.

Ver. 35. But the Amorites would dwell in Mount Heres, in Aijalon, and Shaalbim.] And to add to their Affliction, would not let them enjoy all the mountainous Country, but poſſeſſed theſe three Cities there: Which conſtrained the Danites to ſeek for larger Quarters in other Parts; and ſeems to have been the Occaſion of that Expedition mentioned Joſh. xix. 47. where, ver. 41. we read of the two laſt mentioned Cities. See my Notes there.

Yet the Hand of the Houſe of Joſeph.] That is, the Ephraimites, who were next Neighbours to the Danites, in one Part of their Country.

Prevailed.] Againſt the Amorites, as the LXX expound it, Ἐβαρύνθη ἡ χεὶρ οἴκου Ἰωσὴφ ἐπὶ τὸν Ἀμορῥαῖον, The Hand of the Houſe of Joſeph was heavy upon the Amorite; for they came to the Aſſiſtance of their Brethren, when they were grievouſly diſtreſſed.

So that they became Tributaries.] They brought the Amorites ſo much under, that they made thoſe three Cities before mentioned pay Tribute to the Danites, if not all the low Countries which they inhabited; for he ſaith in general, They became Tributaries, ſpeaking of all the Amorites thereabouts.

Ver. 36. And the Coaſt of the Amorites, was from the going up to Akrabbim, from the Rock, and upward.] We find mention of the going up to Akrabbim in Joſh. xv. 3. See my Notes there. And the Vulgar by the Rock (in Hebrew, Selah) underſtand the City called Petra, which was upon the Borders of Edom, and by Amaziah called Jockteel, in 2 Kings xiv. 7. Some take theſe Words to ſignify the large Extent of the Country which the Amorites inhabited; but I take them rather to denote, that the Children of Ephraim gave ſuch a Check to their Inſolence, that they were confined to this Country, which reached from Akrabbim and Selah, to the Mountains here mentioned. By this it appears, the Iſraelites let ſo many of the old Inhabitants remain in Canaan, that they ſettled themſelves among them; inſomuch, that in the Days of Solomon, we read of a Remnant of the Amorites, Hittites, Perizzites, Hivites, and Jebuſites, 1 Kings ix. 20, 21. and in far latter Ages, as I have often obſerved, the Gergeſens remained in the Days of our Saviour, Math. viii. 28. tho' it is likely they were all become Proſelytes ſo far as to worſhip the God of Iſrael, tho' not entirely of their Religion.

CHAP. II.

Ver. 1. AND an Angel of the LORD.] The Jews by an Angel here underſtand a Prophet, who was ſent by God as his Meſſenger; which the word Angel imports: And they commonly take it to have been Phineas, who was employed on this Meſſage. But I ſee no Reaſon to depart from the natural Signification of the Word, when there is no Abſurdity in it, and it is not uſual to ſpeak in this Metaphorical Style: For there can no Inſtance be given, that I remember, of a Prophet, called an Angel of the LORD; which I take to ſignify more than an Angel, which appeared from Heaven on this Occaſion; that is, the Angel of the Covenant.

Came up from Gilgal.] Angels are not commonly ſaid to come up, but to come down; which is one Reaſon, I ſuppoſe, why this Angel hath been taken for a Prophet. But if we conſider whence he was ſeen to come, and why from Gilgal, this Phraſe will appear to be moſt proper; of which I ſhall give an Account preſently.

To Bochim.] This was not the Name of the Place before, but was given it on this Occaſion, ver. 5. In all Probability it was Shiloh; for there was no other Place where all the People of Iſrael were wont to aſſemble, as they were now when this Angel appeared to them, ver. 4.

And ſaid, I made you to go out of Egypt.] Theſe Words evidently ſhew, this was not a created Angel, but an uncreated; even that very Perſon who appeared to Joſhua hard-by Jericho, Joſh. v. 13, 14. which I have ſhewn there was God himſelf: For who but God could ſpeak in this Style, I made you to go out of Egypt? No Prophet, nor any created Angel, durſt have been ſo bold; but would have prefaced to this Speech in ſome ſuch Words as theſe, Thus ſaith the LORD, I have made you to go, &c. Suppoſing then this Angel to be the ſame with him that then appeared, it was fit for him to appear now as coming from Gilgal, to put them in mind of that illuſtrious Appearance of God near that Place, and the Aſſurance he then gave them of his Preſence with them in the Conqueſt of the Land, and the ſolemn Covenant they made with him, by the renewing of Circumciſion in that Place: Which upbraided them with their baſe Ingratitude to God, and their Sloth in not endeavouring to expel the Canaanites.

And have brought you into the Land which I ſware to your Fathers.] Of which he had given them Poſſeſſion.

And I ſaid, I will never break my covenant with you.] If they proved not falſe to him, he aſſured them they ſhould always find him preſent with them, to make good his Promiſes to them. This Joſhua told them they knew very well, that not one good Thing had failed which he promiſed; and bad them be confident he would ſtill continue the ſame faithful God. See Joſh. xxi. 45. xxiii. 14.

Ver. 2. And ye ſhall make no League with the Inhabitants of this Land.] Or rather, but ye ſhall make no League, &c. For this was the Condition of the Covenant on their part, Deut. vii. 2. and long before that, Exod. xxiii. 32. xxxiv. 12. and again more lately, Joſh. xxiii. 12.

Ye ſhall throw down their Altars.] Exod. xxxiv. 13. Deut. vii. 5. xii. 3.

But ye have not obeyed my Voice, Why have you done this?] That is, you can give no Account of your Diſobedience, to ſuch plain, and expreſs, and repeated Commands.

Ver

Ver. 3. Wherefore I alſo ſaid, I will not drive them out from before you.] God therefore reſolved to make good the Threatnings pronounced in his Covenant; as hitherto he had performed his Promiſe. See Joſh. xxiii. 13.

But they ſhall be Thorns in your Sides.] To vex and gall them, as Joſhua there told them.

And their Gods ſhall be a ſnare unto you.] As Moſes had foretold them, Exod. xxiii. 33. xxxiv. 12. For they were taken, by their Converſation with Idolaters, as Beaſts are in a Toil; and drawn to the Worſhip of their Gods, which was their Ruin.

Ver. 4. And it came to paſs, when the Angel of the LORD ſpake all theſe Words unto all the Children of Iſrael.] By this it appears they were all met at ſome ſolemn Feſtival, as they were bound to do three times every Year, (for otherwiſe it cannot be conceived what ſhould occaſion ſuch an Aſſembly of the whole Congregation) and conſequently, the Place where the Words were ſpoken to them, was Shiloh.

That the People lift up their Voice, and wept.] They made doleful Lamentations; ſome, it is likely, when they reflected on their Sin; others, when they thought of their Danger.

Ver. 5. And they called the Name of that Place Bochim.] Which ſignifies Weepers. It's poſſible the Place where the Angel, or where they ſtood, was called by this Name, in Memory of this great Goodneſs of God; which, for the preſent, mightily wrought upon their Hearts, as appears by what follows.

And they ſacrificed there unto the LORD.] This ſhews it was the Place of publick Worſhip where they now were, and offered upon this Occaſion whole Burnt-offerings unto God, by Way of Supplication and Prayer to him, with Thankſgiving for his Goodneſs in calling them to Repentance. Some think indeed, that they offered expiatory Sacrifices to make Atonement for their Sin: But they would not have been called ſimply Sacrifices, which commonly are meant of whole Burnt-offerings, or Peace-offerings, by which they acknowledged him to be the LORD, and promiſed to ſerve no other God.

Ver. 6. And when Joſhua had let the People go.] Or, now when Joſhua had broke up that laſt great Aſſembly which he held before his Death, xxiv. 28; ſo ſome expound it. But the next Words ſeem to direct us rather to underſtand it of his Diſmiſſion of them, after he had caſt Lots, and divided the Land among them, Joſh. xix. 15. xxi. 43.

The Children of Iſrael went every Man unto his Inheritance, to poſſeſs the Land.] To take Poſſeſſion of that Land which fell to their Share, and ſettle themſelves in it. And they went with a Reſolution, no doubt, to ſerve the LORD only; as, we cannot but think, he exhorted them before they parted: For the Lots were caſt in Shiloh before the LORD, as we are often told in the Book of Joſhua, xviii. 6, 8, 10. xix. 51. From whence they going to take Poſſeſſion of their Lot, it is reaſonable to think he did not diſmiſs them without his Bleſſing, and with a ſolemn Charge to obſerve the Laws of God, ſuch as he gave to the two Tribes and half, xxii. 5, &c. And this is the Reaſon why the Author of this Book repeats this out of the Book of Joſhua, to ſhew when their Apoſtacy began, and how it came about: For tho' they went to their Poſſeſſions well diſpoſed, yet their Love of the World, and Study of their own private Advantages, ſo increaſed, that they made them forget the publick Good, and take little Care of their Religion.

Ver. 7. And the People ſerved the LORD all the Days of Joſhua.] According to his Exhortation, and their ſolemn Promiſes a little before he died, Joſh. xxiv. 14, 15, 16, &c.

And all the Days of the Elders that out-lived Joſhua.] Such as Eleazar, and the reſt mentioned, Joſh. xix. 51. who were Men of great Authority, as well as Piety: and often, no doubt, admoniſhed them of their Duty, and put them in Mind of their Promiſes made to Joſhua in Shechem, where he made a Covenant between God and them, and wrote it in the Book of the Law of God, xxiv. 25, 26, &c.

Who had ſeen all the great Works of the LORD that he did for Iſrael.] Both among the Egyptians, and in the Wilderneſs, and in Canaan; which Joſhua had repreſented to them as a Motive to fear the LORD, and ſerve him in Sincerity, Joſh. xxiv. 5, 6, &c. 14, 15. Of theſe Things the Elders, we may reaſonably ſuppoſe, frequently reminded them, and thereby kept them ſtedfaſt in their Religion. See Joſh. xxiv. 21. For whatſoever bad Inclinations they had in them, they were reſtrained, by the Reverence they bare to theſe great Men, from breaking looſe from God while they lived.

Ver. 8. And Joſhua the Son of Nun, the Servant of the LORD, died, &c.] After he had made that excellent Speech to them before-mentioned, and engaged them in a ſolemn Covenant to be God's People. See Joſh. xxiv. 29.

Ver. 9. And they buried him in the Border of his Inheritance in Timnath-Heres, &c.] This is mentioned only to ſhew that they honoured him after his Death, by attending his Funeral, as they had done in his Life. See Joſh. xxiv. 30.

Ver. 10. And alſo all that Generation were gathered unto their Fathers.] I ſuppoſe he means, not only all thoſe who had ſeen the Works of God in Egypt, and the Wilderneſs, but thoſe alſo who had ſeen Jordan dried up, the Walls of Jericho fall down, and the Sun ſtand ſtill at Joſhua's Word, and their Enemies ſmitten down with Hailſtones, &c. Which had made ſuch Impreſſions on their Hearts, that they generally continued in the Service of God while they lived; and kept others in Obedience to him.

And there aroſe another Generation after them, which knew not the LORD.] But the next Generation did not regard the LORD, nor mind their Religion; but only ſtudied to ſettle themſelves, on any Terms, in their Poſſeſſions, by making Peace with the Canaanites, whom they ſhould have driven out.

Nor yet the Works which he had done for Iſrael.] Which they did not keep in Mind, as they ought to have done; being wholly intent to their earthly Concerns, in building Houſes, planting Vineyards, and improving their Lands.

Unto which they were invited by the Peace they enjoyed; by which Mens Minds are wont to be corrupted; as the Greeks and Romans were in future Ages. According to thoſe known Words of the Roman Satyriſt,

Nunc patimur longæ pacis mala.——

Ver. 11. And the Children of Iſrael did Evil in the Sight of the LORD.] By this Forgetfulneſs of God, and of his Works, and by their Familiarity with the People of Canaan, they ſoon learned to do as they did, and that openly and publickly, not fearing the dreadful Sentence of God againſt ſuch Evil-Doers, who were moſt odious to him, whatſoever Excuſes Men make for them. So that Phraſe, in the Sight of the LORD, may be interpreted.

And ſerved Baalim.] The Gods of the Nations whoſe Land they poſſeſſed, who were called by this general Name, which ſignifies Lords. For among the Heathen, as St. Paul obſerves, there were Gods many, and Lords many. In Hebrew he would have ſaid many Baalim, who were their deified great Men, as Mr. Mede hath ſhewn. (P. 776. of his Works) For Baal (in Chaldee, Bel) the King of Babel next after Nimrod, was the firſt that was deified, and reputed a God after his Death; from whence they called all other Dæmons by the Name of Baalim; as from the firſt Roman Emperor who was called Cæſar, all that followed him were ſtiled Cæſars. Baalim therefore being the general Name of the Gods of Syria, Palæſtine, and the neighbouring Countries, there was as many Baals as there were Nations: For Example, Baal of the Sidonians, and Baal of the Amorites, of the Moabites, and Ammonites, and the reſt of the People thereabouts, who had their Baalim. See alſo Selden, de Diis Syris. Syntagm. 2. C. 1.

Ver. 12. And they forſook the LORD God of their Fathers, which brought them out of the Land of Egypt, and followed other Gods of the People that were round about them.] By other Gods may be meant the Gods of the People of Canaan; which did not content them, but they worſhipped alſo the Gods of other neighbouring Nations; none of which had beſtowed any Benefit upon them. This was a very high Aggravation of their Sin; that when all other Nations made to themſelves ſuch Gods as they thought had done them good, or could be helpful to them, they forſook the greateſt Benefactor to their Nation, who had made them a free People, and worſhipped ſuch Gods as had done nothing for them, nor had been able to preſerve thoſe that worſhipped them from Deſtruction.

And bowed themſelves unto them.] They did not only own them for Gods, but publickly adored them.

And provoked the LORD to Anger.] Who had told them he was a jealous God, and could not bear any Rival, Exod. xx. 1, 2. It is not eaſy to give an Account what moved them to forſake their God, after ſuch wonderful Things as he had done for them, and their moſt ſolemn Engagements to him. It is not unlikely that one Reaſon was, the unuſual Rites preſcribed in his Divine Service, much different from all other Nations; and ſeveral Laws that made them unlike all the reſt of the World, who hated them upon this Account. This they could not bear, deſiring to be conformable to other People, and gain their Friendſhip. For Hoſea ſaith, viii. 12. they looked upon the great Things of the Law as a ſtrange Thing.

Ver. 13. And they forſook the LORD, and ſerved Baal and Aſhtaroth.] Eſpecially they worſhipped the Sun, and the Moon, or Venus; which ſome underſtand by Aſtarte. In the next Chapter it is ſaid they worſhipped Baalim and the Groves, iii. 7. For in thoſe Groves ſeveral Goddeſſes, under the Name of Aſhtaroth, were worſhipped, as Mr. Selden conjectures in his Syntag. 2. de Diis Syris, Cap. 2. where he ſhews there were many Aſtartes among the Heathen, as there were Baals; and therefore the Scripture ſpeaks of them in the Plural Number, (as the LXX here doth ταῖς Ἀσταρταις) becauſe of the Multitude of Images repreſenting Juno, or Venus or Diana, which had the Name of Aſhtaroth, ſignifying (as ſome think) as much as Beata's, bleſſed.

Ver. 14. And the Anger of the LORD was hot againſt Iſrael.] Brake out in very dreadful Effects upon them.

And he delivered them into the Hands of the Spoilers that ſpoiled them.] Carried away their Cattle and their Goods.

And he ſold them into the Hands of their Enemies round about.] Who carried away their Perſons, as well as their Goods, and made them Slaves. For that ſeems to be the Meaning of ſelling them, which is a Phraſe often uſed in this Book, iii. 8. iv. 2. and other Places, Deut. xxxii. 30. Pſal. xliv, 12, &c. This was a juſt Puniſhment of God upon them, that as they ſerved the Gods of the People round about them, ver. 12. ſo they ſhould be Slaves to all thoſe Nations round about them.

So that they could not any longer ſtand before their Enemies.] Being ſo far from being able to make any further Conqueſts, that they could not defend themſelves.

Ver. 15. Whitherſoever they went out, the Hand of the LORD was againſt them for Evil.] They had ill Succeſs in all their Affairs, whether private or publick Buſineſs.

As the LORD had ſaid, and as the LORD had ſworn unto them.] Deut. xxviii. xxx. 17, 18. xxxi. 16, 17. and many other Places.

And they were greatly diſtreſſed.] As ſoon as they ſlackned their Endeavours to drive out the Canaanites, and made Leagues with them, (as we read in the foregoing Part of this Chapter) God began to withdraw himſelf from them, and would not drive out their Enemies from before them, ver. 3. But when by this means they were enſnared to worſhip their Gods, (as he foreſaw they would, ver. 4.) then he gave them up into the Hands of thoſe Enemies, with whom they had made Friendſhip, and ſuffered them to tyrannize over them, and uſe them cruelly.

Ver. 16. Nevertheleſs, the LORD raiſed up Judges, &c.] Extraordinary Rulers and Governors, whoſe Authority, I take to have been chiefly in the time of War; they being raiſed up (by a particular Inſpiration and Excitation from God) as it here follows, to deliver them out of the Hands of thoſe that ſpoiled them. So that commonly, when they had wrought Deliverance for the People, and their Army was diſmiſſed, they became private Men again; as appears by the Story of Jephthah, who would not undertake to lead them againſt the Ammonites, unleſs he might be their Governor when the War was done, Judg. xi. 9. and of Gideon, who refuſed to rule over them, when they offered the Government to him, after the Conqueſt of the Midianites, viii. 22, 23. Their Buſineſs therefore principally was to preſerve the People's Liberties, to reſtore them, together with God's true Religion, and to preſcribe what was to be done in ſuch Caſes; being a kind of Dictators, whoſe Power continued as long as there was Occaſion for it. Yet it muſt be acknowledged that ſome of them had an eſtabliſhed Authority for their Life over thoſe whom they had reſcued from Slavery, (not over the whole Commonwealth of Iſrael, part of which was ſome time in Peace, when another Part was oppreſſed) and managed Political Matters, when they were too hard for the ordinary Judges to divide them. (See Deut. xvii. 9.) Thus we read that Deborah a Propheteſs, judged Iſrael, and that the People came to her for Judgment, before ſhe excited Barak to vindicate their Liberties: But commonly they ſeem to have contented themſelves with this, not minding Judgment; as Samuel, the laſt of them, chiefly exerciſed his Authority in Matters of Juſtice, 1 Sam. vii. 15, &c. where he is ſaid in his Houſe at Ramah to have judged Iſrael, and ended their Controverſies, and done Right to every Man: And when, by reaſon of Age, he could do this no longer, he committed it to his Sons. See Corn. Bertram. de Repub. Judaica, Cap. 9. P. 109, &c.

Ver. 17. And yet they would not hearken to their Judges.] Not conſtantly; but revolted again, ver. 18, 19.

But they went a Whoring after other Gods, and bowed themſelves unto them.] Worſhipped them publickly; which is commonly called going a Whoring from God, who had eſpouſed them to himſelf.

They turned quickly out of the Way.] As ſoon as the Judge was dead, who had wrought Deliverance for them.

Which their Fathers walked in, obeying the Commandments of the LORD.] In the Days of Joſhua, and the Elders which ſurvived him, ver. 7.

But they did not ſo.] Whom the next Generation would not imitate.

Ver. 18. And when the LORD raiſed them up Judges.] This is the conſtant Phraſe wherein he ſpeaks of theſe great Men, whoſe Spirit was ſtirred up by an extrordinary Motion from God, to undertake Things beyond the Reach of human Wiſdom or Power.

Then the LORD was with the Judge.] Endued him with Heroical Courage, and gave him wonderful Succeſs. Here the Targum continues the ſame Language, The WORD of the LORD was the Helper of the Judge. See Chap. i. 19, 22.

And delivered them out of the Hand of their Enemies all the Days of the Judge.] As long as he ruled over them, and kept them in Obedience to him. This ſignifies, that if they did not exerciſe their Authority, yet the Effects of it remained all the Days of their Life.

For it repented the LORD becauſe of their Groanings, by reaſon of them that oppreſſed and vexed them.] He altered the Courſe of his Providence, when they not only ſighed and groaned under their Oppreſſions, but cried unto him for Help, and promiſed Amendment, as we find they did, iii. 9, 15. vi. 7, 8, &c.

Ver. 19. And it came to paſs, when the Judge was dead they returned.] To their former Idolatry.

And corrupted themſelves more than their Fathers.] Who lived in the former Judge his Time, and had ſorely ſmarted for this Sin, till God, upon their Repentance, ſent them Deliverance.

In following other Gods to ſerve them, and bow down to them.] They either multiplied more ſtrange Gods, or deviſed ſtill new Rites of Worſhip contrary to God's Law. The common Service they paid to every one of them, was building Temples to their Honour, ſetting up Altars, planting Groves, burning Incenſe, and ſacrificing Beaſts.

They ceaſed not from their evil doings.] In the Hebrew, Would not let fall their own Inventions; but retained them, notwithſtanding all that God had done, to bring them off from their Idolatry.

Nor form their ſtubborn Way.] But obſtinately perſiſted in their evil Courſes, as if nothing had been done to reclaim them.

Ver. 20. And the Anger of the LORD was hot againſt Iſrael.] This highly incenſed the Divine Diſpleaſure, and provoked him to puniſh them more grievouſly.

And he ſaid, Becauſe the People hath tranſgreſſed my Covenant which I commanded their Fathers, &c.] By making Leagues with the Canaanites, and not throwing down their Altars, &c. Arias Montanus very well obſerves, that this Verſe expreſſes what great Reaſon there was for God's being exceeding angry with them. Firſt, Becauſe they had forſaken him, to whom they owed their being a Nation. Secondly, Becauſe they had violated that Covenant, which was not a new or obſcure Thing, but made long ago with their Fathers, who, it was very well known, had reaped the Benefit thereof. And, Thirdly, Becauſe (as this Verſe concludes) they had not hearkned unto God's Voice, i. e. tho' he had often admoniſhed them, by his Prophets, of their Duty, and chidden and threatned them; yet they would not mind what he ſaid, but in a moſt rebellious manner gave themſelves up to the Impieties of other Nations.

Ver. 21. I alſo will not henceforth drive out any from before them.] That is, not preſently, or ſo ſoon as he intended, if they had pleaſed him. See ver. 23.

Of the Nations which Joſhua left when he died.] For God never intended they ſhould be all rooted out at once, as hath been often noted from Exod. xxiii. 29, 30. yet their Expulſion had been more ſpeedy, if they had obeyed him, than now he reſolved it ſhould be. Nor could it well be otherwiſe; for by being delivered into their Enemies Hands, to ſpoil and to enſlave them, their Increaſe was hereby hindred; ſo that they were not able to people all the Land, ſo ſoon as they might have done, if they had been obedient: For then God promiſed to multiply them exceedingly, Deut. vii. 13, 14, &c.

Ver. 22. That by them I may prove Iſrael, whether they will keep the Way of the LORD to walk therein, as their Fathers did keep it, or not.] That it might appear whether they would continue firm, as their Fathers reſolved in the Service of God, (Joſh. xxiv. 16, 24.) or revolt from him to ſerve other Gods.

Ver. 23. Therefore the LORD left theſe Nations, without driving them out haſtily, neither delivered he them into the Hand of Joſhua.] This was one Reaſon they were not all caſt out at once, by the victorious Hand of Joſhua; for if none of them had been left remaining, there would have been no Temptation to worſhip their Gods; which would have been all aboliſhed with them. Another Reaſon is given of this, in the Place before mentioned, Exod. xxiii. 29, 30. and Deut. vii. 22.

CHAP. III.

Ver. 1. NOW theſe are the Nations which the LORD left, to prove Iſrael by them.] Having ſaid in general, that God thought fit not to drive out all the Canaanites, that he might try the Care and Fidelity of his People in his Service, (ii. 22.) he now names the particular Nations, that remained unſubdued.

Even as many of Iſrael as had not known all the Wars of Canaan.] Such as were born ſince the War was ended; and had ſeen none of the wonderful Works of God in the Conqueſt of the Land; God intended to prove them, whether they would worſhip him, when they ſaw what they muſt expect, if they did not; viz. that he would let the Canaanites, their mortal Enemies, looſe upon them.

Ver. 2. Only that the Generation of the Children of Iſrael might know to teach them War.] There was another Reaſon why they were left remaining, as was obſerved before in the laſt Verſe of the foregoing Chapter: But this had been ſufficient, if there had been no other; that the Iſraelites might not grow ſluggiſh for want of ſome to awaken and exerciſe their Courage and keep up Martial Diſcipline among them; and that they might, by having powerful Enemies ſo near them, betake themſelves to God conſtantly, and depend upon his Help and Succour, by whoſe Power their Fathers had brought them under.

At the leaſt ſuch as before knew nothing thereof.] If this was not needful for all, it was at leaſt for ſuch as had never handled Arms; that they might be trained up to be ready upon Occaſion to fight with their Enemies. For they being wholly bred to Husbandry, and feeding of Cattle, would have had no Military Diſcipline among them, if they had not had the Canaanites ſo near to them.

Or this may be the Meaning of this Verſe, They ſhall know what it is to be left to themſelves: For their Fathers fought by a Divine Power, but now they ſhall learn what it is to fight like other Men, without God to go along with them.

Ver. 3. Namely, the five Lords of the Philiſtines.] See upon Joſh. xiii. 2, 3. and Judg. i. 18. where it appears, that three of them had been, in ſome meaſure, conquered; but it ſeems had recovered their Country again, by the Sloth of the Iſraelites.

And all the Canaanites.] Theſe were a particular People of that Country, (as hath been often ſaid) near to the Mid-land Sea, many of which ſtill remained ſcattered up and down the Land.

And the Sidonians.] Who lived in the Territory belonging to the famous City of Sidon; who was one of the Sons of Canaan, Gen. x. 15.]

And the Hivites that dwelt in Mount Lebanon.] A famous Mountain in the North Part of Canaan.

From Baal-Hermon, unto the entring in of Hamath.] See in Joſh. xi. 3. xiii. 5.

Ver. 4. And they were to prove Iſrael by them, to know whether they would hearken to the commandments of the LORD, &c.] That their Vertue might appear, if they did not imitate theſe People: or their Baſeneſs, if they did.

Ver. 5. And the Children of Iſrael dwelt among the Canaanites, Hittites, and Amorites, and Perizzites, and Hivites, and Jebuſites.] The Iſraelites ſoon diſcovered their bad Diſpoſition, in ſuffering all Sorts of the wicked People of this Land to remain and dwell with them; as if they were ſtill the Poſſeſſors of this Country, and the Children of Iſaael but Intruders among them.

Ver. 6. And they took their Daughters to be their Wives, and gave their Daughters to their Sons.] Which was not only directly contrary to the Law of God, (Deut. vii. 3.) but an higher Breach of their Covenant with him, than the mere making Leagues with them.

And ſerved their Gods.] As Moſes, in the ſame Place, foretold they would, (Deut. vii. 4.) if they contracted ſuch Marriages with them.

Ver. 7. And the Children of Iſrael did Evil in the Sight of the LORD, and forgat the LORD their God.] They grew in time ſo very wicked, that they not only worſhipped other Gods, together with the LORD; but quite forgot him, and worſhipped them alone.

And ſerved Baalim and the Groves.] Some here take Groves, literally, for the Trees themſelves that compoſed thoſe ſhady Places, which were anciently conſecrated to Heroes; being, ſome time, the Place of their Sepulchre; where their Manes were ſuppoſed to haunt. For Baalim were the ſame with Heroes; and Trees were accounted ſacred Things by the ancient Heathen, who conſecrated them to this or that Deity, and trimmed them up with Ribbands, and adorned them with Lights, and made Vows to them, and hung the Spoils of their Enemies upon them. Insomuch that Travellers were wont to stop when they were to pass by them, as if they had been the Habitation of some God. But Mr. Selden thinks, that by Groves are to be here understood the Images of their Gods in the Groves; as it is certain they must signify in some Places. See upon Chap. vi. 25. And he probably conjectures, that there were several Goddesses, under the Name of Ashtaroth, worshipped in them. See the Place mentioned above, in his De Diis Syris. Syntag. 2. cap. 2.

And it is evident, that these Deities, whatsoever they were, were different from Baalim; for the Prophets of Baal, and the Prophets of the Groves, were distinct Persons, in 1 Kings xviii. 19.

Ver. 8. Therefore the Anger of the LORD was hot against Israel.] This Expression we had twice before. See Chap. ii. 14, 20.

And he sold them.] See in the same Place.

Into the Hand of Cushan-rishathaim King of Mesopotamia.] Of that Country, which lay between the two great Rivers of Euphrates and Tigris. So the first Enemy that oppressed them were the Syrians; who either out of Hatred, or Desire to enlarge their Dominions, came over Euphrates and invaded them.

And the Children of Israel served Cushan-rishathaim eight Years.] He forced them to buy their Peace upon hard Terms, and brought them under Tribute to him; but did not impose Garrisons upon them; so that they more easily recovered their Liberty, when one appeared to head them. When these eight Years began, (that is, how long after the Death of Joshua) is variously disputed; but it is certain it was in the next Age (which in Scripture signifies about Three and Thirty Years) after Joshua and the Elders that survived him (during whose Time they served God, and lived in Freedom.) For Caleb's younger Brother, as it here follows, was the first Judge whom God raised up to them.

Ver. 9. And when the Children of Israel cried unto the LORD.] Returned to him, and acknowledged him to be their only God, of whom they earnestly begged Pardon, and implored Help with fervent Prayer; beseeching him to deliver them from this cruel Servitude; as he did Jacob their Fore-father, from the Bondage of Laban the Syrian.

He raised a Deliverer to the Children of Israel, who delivered them.] All the Judges are called by the Name of Saviours, or Deliverers, in Nehemiah ix. 27. because they rescued them from the Oppression of their Enemies, when they could not help themselves.

Even Othniel the Son of Kenez, Caleb's younger Brother.] So he is called, i. 13. concerning which, see Josh. xv. 17.

Ver. 10. And the Spirit of the LORD came upon him.] He had an extraordinary Motion from God to take upon him the Government of the People; which none durst presume to do but such as were appointed by God, who was their King. Josephus thinks that God appeared to them, or some way revealed his Will to them in these Matters; so that they were sure they acted by his authority. The Chaldee Paraphrast seems to favour the latter Opinion, who calls this Spirit The Spirit of Prophecy. Certain it is, that they had not only an inward Incitement to undertake the Deliverance of God's People; but were endowed with extraordinary Courage and Conduct; and it is likely with a singular Gift of Divine Eloquence, to persuade the People to forsake their Idolatry, and vindicate their Liberty.

And he judged Israel, and went out to War.] This was the first Part of the Office of a Judge, to plead their Cause, and avenge them of their Oppressors; as this Phrase of Judging is used, Deut. xxxii. 35, 36. and other Places. Tho' here being set before going to War, it may be thought that he first rectified what was amiss among them, and especially reduced them to the Worship of the LORD alone; and then went to fight against their Enemies.

And the LORD delivered Cushan-rishathaim, King of Mesopotamia, into his Hand.] They overthrew and entirely routed all his Forces, and, as the Words seem to import, took or slew the King himself.

And his Hand prevailed against Cushan-rishathaim.] So that he could not recover his Strength to oppress them any more.

Ver. 11. And the Land had Rest forty Years.] It doth not suit with my Design to enter into Chronological Disputes; and therefore I remit the learned Reader to the Canon Chronicus of Sir J. Marsham, Lib. 2. where he supposes the idolatrous Generation to have risen in the Thirty-fourth Year after the Death of Joshua; who lost their Liberty, and fell under the Oppression of Cushan, for the Space of Eight Years, and after their Deliverance from it, lived happily Forty Years. Which will appear in the Sequel to be more reasonable, than to interpret these Words as if they signified, The Land rested in the Fortieth Year, after Joshua first settled them in Peace and Quiet. So our great Primate of Ireland: Vide A. M. 2599.

And Othniel the Son of Kenez died.] It is not certain in what Part of these Forty Years of Rest he died; nor is it material whether in the Beginning, Middle, or End of it.

Ver. 12. And the Children of Israel did Evil again in the Sight of the LORD.] Fell into the Sin of Idolatry, after Othniel was dead.

And the LORD strengthned Eglon the King of Moab against them, because they had done Evil in the Sight of the LORD.] As he raised up Deliverers to Israel, when they were penitent; so he stirred up Enemies to them, and gave them Power also to oppress them, when they revolted from him. And the next Enemy to the Syrians were the Moabites; for since they worshipped the Gods of the People round about them, (Chap. ii. 12.) it was fit they should be punished by those very People.

Ver. 13. And he gathered unto him the Children of Ammon and Amalek.] Persuaded these two Nations, who were his near Neighbours, (Moab lying between them) to associate themselves with him in this War. Unto which they were were eaſily inclined; eſpecially Amalek, who had an old Grudge to the Iſraelites.

And went and ſmote Iſrael.] Either by a ſudden Invaſion, or in a pitched Battle.

And poſſeſſed themſelves of the City of Palm-Trees.] That is, Jericho, as appears from Deut. xxxiv. 3. Judg. i. 16. Which tho' it was deſtroyed by Joſhua, yet the Place where it ſtood remaining, it is likely they made Fortifications, and placed a ſtrong Garriſon there, that they might the better keep the whole Country in Subjection. For, as the Country thereabouts was very fertile (of which they deprived the Iſraelites, and ſent the Riches of it to their own Country, which was not far off) ſo they hindered all Communication between thoſe on this ſide Jordan, and thoſe on the other ſide, but what they pleaſed to allow; and maintained a Correſpondence with their own People, from whom they could receive more Forces, if there were need, by having the Command of the Paſſages over Jordan. By which means alſo they thought to ſecure their Retreat, if there ſhould be Occaſion, to their own Country.

Ver. 14. So the Children of Iſreal ſerved Eglon the King of Moab eighteen Years.] He ruled all this time as an abſolute Maſter over them, and impoſed what Burdens he pleaſed upon them; of which, it is likely, the Ammonites and Amalekites had a Share, as a Reward of their Help and Aſſiſtance.

Ver. 15. But when the Children of Iſrael cried unto the LORD.] Humbled themſelves before him, acknowledged their Offence, begged his Pardon, and beſeeched his Help; as before, ver. 9.

The LORD raiſed them up a Deliverer.] As he had done before. See ver. 9.

Ehud the Son of Gera, a Benjamite.] Which Tribe was the moſt immediately oppreſſed, (the Country of Jericho being in it) and therefore one of them was very proper to be their Deliverer.

A Man left-handed.] The Hebrew Words itter jad jemini are very obſcure, being uſed no where elſe but here, and xx. 16. In both Places the LXX tranſlate them ἀμφοτεροδέξιος, whom the Vulgar follows, qui utraque manu pro dextra utebatur, who could uſe both Hands, as we do our Right. This the Hebrew Phraſe will bear, which literally ſignifies, as we tranſlate it in the Margin, ſhut of his Right Hand, i. e. who did nothing with it, but uſed his Left though he could uſe both alike: Or, as Joſephus will have it, τῶν χειρῶν τὴν ἀριστερὰν, ἀμείνων, who of the two could uſe his Left Hand beſt.

And by him the Children of Iſrael ſent a Preſent unto Eglon King of Moab.] Some underſtand by this the Tribute that was laid upon them; but it rather ſignifies a voluntary Preſent, above their ordinary Payments; whereby they hoped to mollify him, and make him favourable to his loving Subjects: For Mincha is uſed for ſuch Offerings as were preſented to God to obtain his Favours.

Ver. 16. But Ehud made him a Dagger.] Privately prepared this Weapon, intending to make uſe of this Opportunity for their Deliverance.

Which had two Edges, of a Cubit Length.] Therefore Joſephus calls it ξιφίδιον, a little Sword; which was long enough to do Execution, but ſo ſhort as to be eaſily concealed.

And he did gird it under his Raiment.] Which the LXX and the Vulgar take to have been a Military Garment; but the Hebrew Word Mad ſignifies any Sort of Raiment.

Upon his Right Thigh.] To avoid all Suſpicion, (for Men uſe to wear their Swords on their left Side) and that he might more readily draw it out, and uſe it with his Left Hand, when he ſhould find Occaſion.

Ver. 17. And he brought the Preſent to Eglon King of Moab.] Was admitted into his Preſence and delivered the Preſent with his Right Hand, as Men uſually do; which he could uſe, I ſuppoſe, as well as his Left, though not, perhaps, with ſo much Strength.

And Eglon was a very fat Man.] Which made him unwieldy, and leſs able and ready to riſe up, and avoid or defend himſelf from a ſudden Stroke. The LXX tranſlate it ἀνὴρ ἀστεῖος σφόδρα, an exceeding civil or courteous Man; which made it the more eaſy for Ehud to give the Blow when he embraced him perhaps, or ſtooped, when he roſe out of his Seat to receive his Meſſage in an obliging manner.

Ver. 18. And when he had made an end to offer the Preſent.] Which was done (as appears by this) with ſuch Ceremony as was in uſe in thoſe Days.

He ſent away the People that bare the Preſent.] It was brought by ſome of his Retinue, (conſiſting, it is likely, of ſeveral things) who being all withdrawn, and gone ſome part of their Way homeward with him, he bad them go forward, and leave him to diſpatch ſome private Buſineſs which he pretended: For ſuch Deſigns, as he had in his Mind, ſeldom ſucceed where many are engaged in them.

Ver. 19. And he himſelf turned again.] As if he had forgotten ſomething, or had met with ſome new Inſtructions by the Way.

From the Quarries that were by Gilgal.] Some underſtand by the Word we tranſlate Quarries, a Place where they digged or hewed Stones; others, the Twelve Stones which Joſhua placed in Gilgal. But the LXX, and the Vulgar take it for Graven Images; for ſo indeed the Word Peſil commonly ſignifies in Scripture; and ſo we tranſlate it in the Margin of our Bible: Which when Ehud beheld, his Spirit was mightily ſtirred within him, (as Conradus Pellicanus explains this Paſſage) and he proceeded no further in his Return home, but went back with a Reſolution to revenge this Affront to God, as well as the Oppreſſion of his People. For it is to be ſuppoſed, the Moabites had ſet up theſe Graven Images in this Place, rather than any other; which had been famous for the Preſence of God for a long time in it.

And ſaid, I have a ſecret Errand unto thee, O King.] Being admitted again into the King's Preſence, he deſired a private Audience of him.

Who ſaid keep Silence.] He bad Ehud ſay no more till all his Attendants were withdrawn, whom he would not have to hear the Meſſage.

And

And all that ſtood by him went out from him.] It may ſeem ſtrange, that a Prince ſhould truſt himſelf alone with one of that Nation, who he knew groaned under his Yoke; but his Mind was blinded by the Preſent, and by the Compliments wherewith it was delivered; and God deprived him, at this Time, of his wonted Prudence. For, as Solomon obſerves, There is no Wiſdom, nor Underſtanding, nor Counſel againſt the LORD: Who intended he ſhould be deſtroyed, Prov. xxi. 30.

Ver. 20. And Ehud came unto him.] Approached nearer to his Perſon.

And he was ſitting in a Summer Parlour.] In a cool Room, (as the Hebrew Word imports) where he was defended from the Heat of the Sun, and enjoyed the freſh Air.

Which he had made for himſelf alone.] Where he was wont to retire from all Company, when he had a mind to ſleep, perhaps in the Heat of the Day, or to diſpatch Buſineſs with which he entruſted no body.

And Ehud ſaid, I have a Meſſage from God unto thee.] Which in ſome Senſe was true, but not in that wherein the King underſtood it; who thought he had met with ſome Divine Apparition in the Way, or been at ſome Oracle; for he doth not ſay he had a Meſſage from Jehovah the God of Iſrael, (whom he would have deſpiſed, perhaps, as Pharoah did) but from Elohim, which was a common Name to all Gods, xxiv. 2, 15.

And he roſe out of his Seat.] Out of Reverence as to God, whoſe Words, he ſuppoſed, he was to hear. A remarkable Inſtance of the ancient Veneration Men paid to whatſoever carried the Name and Authority of God in it, and reproaches thoſe who now behave themſelves irreverently, even in his Worſhip and Service. See Numb. xxiii. 18. 2 Kings xxiii. 3.

Ver. 21. And Ehud put forth his Left Hand, and took the Dagger from his Right Thigh.] If the King had his Eye upon his Hands, it was upon the Right, and not the Left, ſo that he might more unobſervedly employ it as he deſigned.

And thruſt it into his Belly.] So that it pierced his Heart, (as Joſephus underſtands it) or ſome other Vital Part; upon which he immediately died, without ſpeaking a Word, or making a Noiſe to alarm his Servants who were without. Nothing can juſtify this Fact, but an Order from the LORD, which he not only pretended, but really had. See ver. 26.

Ver. 22. And the Haft alſo went in after the Blade.] The Thruſt he made was ſo violent, that not only the Blade of the Dagger, but the Handle alſo, went into his Bowels.

And the Fat cloſed up the Blade.] And the Haft, ſo that they could not be ſeen.

So that he could not draw the Dagger out of his Belly.] But left it there, becauſe he could take no hold of it.

And the Dirt came out.] All agree that the Word Parſchedona, which is no where found but here, ſignifies the Dung or Excrements; which came not out at the Wound, (for that was cloſed) but at the uſual Place; it being common for Bodies to purge after they are dead, eſpecially ſuch corpulent ones as his was, in whoſe Bowels, no doubt, there were violent Convulſions made by this ſudden Stroke.

Ver. 23. And Ehud went forth through the Porch.] It is very uncertain what the Hebrew Wrod Miſredona ſignifies, which we tranſlate Porch. Some take it for the Guard Chamber, (as the LXX ſeem to underſtand it) or a Place where the King's Servants ſat; through which he paſſed boldly, that he might give no Suſpicion of any Miſchief he had done; Or, as Kimchi explains it, the Place where the People ſat, who waited for Audience.

And ſhut the Doors of the Parlour upon him and locked them.] As he came out of the Parlour, he not only ſhut the Doors after him, and locked them; but, it is likely, took the Key away with him. There ſeem to have been double Doors, an inward and an outward, as is uſual.

Ver. 24. And when he was gone out, his Servants came.] Seeing Ehud was gone from the King, his Attendants came into the Antichamber, (as we ſpeak) to be ready at the King's Call, to wait his Pleaſure.

And when they ſaw, that behold the Doors of the Parlour were locked, they ſaid, Surely he covereth his Feet in the Summer Parlour.] They concluded he was eaſing Nature, as this Phraſe is commonly underſtood here, and in 1 Sam. xxiv. 3. for when they were about that Buſineſs, the long Garments which they wore in thoſe Countries were ſo diſpoſed as to cover their Feet. See Gataker in his Cinnus, Lib. 2. Cap. 3. But it may be underſtood, I think, of laying himſelf down to ſleep, which they were wont to do in thoſe Countries in the Heat of the Day, (2 Sam. iv. 5.) and then lying down in their Cloaths, it was neceſſary to cover their Feet for Decency's Sake, to keep their Garments from ſlipping up, and expoſing thoſe Parts which ſhould not be ſeen. And this ſuits better with the Story than the other; for they thought fit to wait a great while before they entred the Chamber, that they might not diſturb his Reſt; whereas the other Buſineſs being ſoon diſpatched, would not have occaſioned their waiting ſo long. See the Arabic and Syriac Verſion, both here and upon 1 Sam. xxiv. 3.

Ver. 25. And they tarried.] Waiting in the Anti-chamber.

Till they were aſhamed.] Till they were in a great Confuſion, not knowing what to think ſhould be the Cauſe that he ſlept longer than ordinary.

And behold, he opened not the Door of the Parlour.] At which it is likely, after tedious Expectation, they knocked, and had no Anſwer.

Therefore they took a Key and opened them.] For in King's Courts, there were more than one who had Keys to the ſame Room.

And behold, their Lord was fallen down dead on the Earth.] Perhaps they did not at firſt perceive that he was killed; which might ſomething retard their Purſuit of Ehud.

Ver. 26. And Ehud eſcaped while they tarried.] Their long Expectance of the King's awaking out of Sleep, gave him the Advantage of making his Eſcape.

And passed beyond the Quarries.] From whence he returned to do this Exploit, ver. 19. which had been Murder, if he had not had a Divine Warrant for what he did: Unto which none can pretend now, without blaspheming God as the Author of Sin; but then was evident by the wonderful Gifts of Wisdom, and Courage, and Might, wherewith such Men were divinely inspired. See Grotius de Jure Belli & Pacis, Lib. 1. Cap. 4. Sect. 19. N. 4.

And escaped unto Seirath.] Gilgal was so near to the Garrison which the Moabites had in those Territories, that he did not think himself safe till he was got out of the Tribe of Benjamin into the mountainous Country of Ephraim, where this Town was, upon the Confines of the Tribe of Benjamin.

Ver. 27. And it came to pass, when he was come.] To Seirath.

That he blew a Trumpet in the Mountain of Ephraim.] To summon those who were dispos'd to recover their Liberties, to take Arms and follow him.

And the Children of Israel went down with him from the Mount.] A considerabe Body of Men, no doubt, presently met together, (being before prepared, it is likely, by his Emissaries) and marched after him into the Country of Benjamin, where the Moabites were settled.

And he before them.] He led them on as their Captain; and had many more, in all Probability, joined him as he marched further into the Country.

Ver. 28. And he said unto them, Follow after me.] Be not afraid to venture your Lives, as I will do, for the Liberty of your Country.

For the LORD hath delivered your Enemies the Moabites into your Hand.] He was assured that God, who had succeeded his Enterpize, and deprived the Moabites of their supreme Head (whereby no doubt they were in great Confusion) would accomplish what he had begun, and give them a perfect Deliverance: With this Belief he endeavoured to possess their Souls, as if the thing was already done, which he knew would inspire them with such Courage as could not be withstood.

And they went down after him, and took the Fords of Jordan.] He proceeded prudently, as well as courageously; and therefore led them directly to the Fords of Jordan, of which they possessed themselves; that the Moabites who had settled themselves in that Part of Judæa (ver. 13.) might not be able to save themselves by retreating into their own Country, nor they in Moab be able to come to their Assistance.

And suffered not a Man to pass over.] To carry or bring any Intelligence.

Ver. 29. And they slew of the Moabites at that Time about ten thousand Men.] Who had taken Possession of the City of Palm-trees, (ver. 13.) and posted themselves thereabouts, to keep the Israelites in Subjection.

All lusty Men.] In the Hebrew it is, all fat Men; that is, (as some understand it) Men of Estates, or very wealthy Persons: Men of Quality, or of the better Sort, (as others expound it) who chose to transplant themselves hither, because of the Richness and Deliciousness of this Country; but it may be interpreted strong Men, as our Translation imports, who were called out from among the Moabites, to keep the Israelites in greater Awe.

And all Men of Valour.] Who had given Proof of their undaunted Spirit in War.

And there escaped not a Man.] But they were all cut off, either by those that guarded the Fords, and intercepted their Passage into their own Country; or by the other Part of the Army of Israel who fell upon them, and drove them thither.

Ver. 30. So Moab was subdued that Day under the Hand of Israel.] This doth not signify that they brought the Country of Moab under their Subjection, as the Moabites had brought theirs, but that they freed themselves from the Yoke they had laid upon them, and served them no longer. See ver. 14.

And the Land had Rest fourscore Years.] Which the same great Man, mentioned in the foregoing Chapter, thus interprets, ad A. M. 2679. Et quievit terra anno octuagesimo, post quietem priorem ab Othniele restitutam. And the Land had Rest in the Eightieth Year, after the former restored to it by Othniel: But there is another Way which some learned Writers among the Jews suggest, of bringing the Years of Servitude and of Peace, mentioned in this Book, into such a Compass, as may agree with what is said in 1 Kings vi. 2. concerning the Number of Years that passed from the Deliverance out of Egypt to the Building of Solomon's Temple: For they suppose that there was scarce any of the Judges who ruled over the whole Country of Israel, but some in one Part, and some in another; so that at the same time there were several Judges in several Parts of the Land; and Peace in one Part, when there was War in another. Accordingly our learned Chronologer Sir J. Marsham (who follows this Opinion) understands here by the Land which had Rest fourscore Years, not the Whole Land of Israel, but the Eastern Part of it, which had shaken off the Yoke of Moab; but in the mean time the Philistines invaded the Western Parts, as it here follows, and were repulsed by Shamgar, while the Eastern Countries enjoyed perfect Peace. This I take to be the clearest Account of these Words, the Land had Rest forty Years; that is, the Eastern Part of the Country, which had shaken off the Yoke of Moab, not the whole Land of Israel: For as the Philistines invaded the Western Parts, so Jabin afflicted the Northern (as it follows in the next Chapter) while the Oriental Tribes remained in Peace.

Ver. 31. And after him was Shamgar the Son of Anath.] It is not said of what Tribe he was, and it is in vain to enquire about it; but it is probable he was one of those Tribes that bordered upon the Philistines; because what he did was against them, and those were Judah, Dan, and Ephraim: Nor is there the least Signification how long he judged them; but he succeeding Ehud, his Government was in some Part of the fourscore Years before mentioned: And perhaps it was not long before that time wherein Jabin oppressed Israel in the Northern nern Parts, as may be probably gathered n ver. 6.

Which ſlew of the Philiſtines ſix hundred Men.] Now ſome of the People of Canaan made an Attempt upon the Iſraelites in the Weſtern Parts, to bring them under their Power. And theſe Words ſound as if Shamgar alone made Oppoſition to them, and ſlew the Number mentioned; being excited by the mighty Power of God, which gave him unwonted Courage and Strength; for he was raiſed up as the two foregoing great Men had been, by a Divine Inſpiration, to be their Judge, as appears by the laſt Words of this Verſe.

With an Ox-goad.] The Vulgar takes the Hebrew Word Malmad for a Plough-ſhare, and the LXX favour this Interpretation: But if we may judge by the Derivation of the Word, our Tranſlation is more probable; wherein we follow Kimchi, and other learned Jews, who take it for the Inſtrument whereby Oxen are provoked (and, as it were, put in Mind of their Duty) when they draw the Plough lazily. And thus Lycurgus is ſaid to have overthrown the Forces of Bacchus, without any other Arms but Βαπλῆγι, an Ox-goad. So Homer deſcribes the Bacchæ as put to flight ἀνδροφόνοιο Λυκόργε Βαπλῆγι. See Bochartus, L. 1. Canaan, Cap. 18.

And he alſo delivered Iſrael.] From hence it appears, that he was a Judge as well as the two former, though ſome both ancient and modern have queſtioned it; for this is the very Phraſe whereby they are deſcribed, ii. 9, 15. And the firſt Words of this Verſe ſignify as much; which ſay, that after him (i. e. Ehud) was Shamgar, who ſucceeded him; that is, in the Office of a Judge, as the Words naturally ſignify: And the great Slaughter he made of the Philiſtines argues the ſame; for it manifeſtly was an heroical Act, like that of Samſon, who ſlew a Thouſand with the Jaw-bone of an Aſs: Neither of which could have been performed, but by a Divine Power wherewith they were poſſeſſed. It is not ſaid here indeed how long he continued to judge them, nor from what Oppreſſions he delivered them; but he is a Deliverer who preſerves a Nation from being oppreſſed, as well as he who reſcues them from Oppreſſion when they groan under it: And that it is likely was the Caſe of Shamgar, who, when the Philiſtines came to invade his Country, gave them a Repulſe with the Loſs of ſix hundred of their Men; which, it is probable, diſcouraged them from further Attempts. And this being done without any Weapon but an Ox-goad, it is likely he was at Plough when the Philiſtines made this Inroad to plunder and ſpoil the Country; feeling a ſtrong Impulſe upon him to oppoſe them, though he had no other Arms, nor any to aſſiſt him, but ſuch of his Servants as were perhaps at Plough with him. Thus ſome great Men among the ancient Romans were called from the Plough to be their Dictators. But I will only add a ſtrange Paſſage out of the Midraſh upon Levit. xvii. 3. who mentioning theſe Words, and he alſo delivered Iſrael, ſaith, Thus he ſaved them by the Hand of other Judges who being but Fleſh and Blood, yet fell into Slavery again; but in the Age to come, (i. e. of the Meſſiah) I in my own Subſtance will redeem you, and ye ſhall not be reduced into Servitude any more. According to what Iſaiah ſaith, xlv. 17. But Iſrael ſhall be ſaved by the LORD with an everlaſting Salvation, &c. See Raymund in his Pugio Fidei, P. 510.

CHAP. IV.

Ver. 1. AND the Children of Iſrael again did Evil in the Sight of the LORD.] See iii. 12.

After the Death of Ehud.] And of Shamgar. Concerning whom there is no further Mention made, becauſe he did nothing more than this one memorable Act; Religion being reformed by Ehud, who left it ſo at the time of his Death; when, it is likely, the Philiſtines ſeeing their Chieftain gone, made the forenamed Inroad upon the Iſraelites; but they being not yet openly fallen into Idolatry, God was pleaſed to raiſe up Shamgar to give them a Repulſe, before they could poſſeſs themſelves of any Part of the Country, as the Moabites had done. After which Blow given them by this ſingle Champion, it was a long time before we read of any Diſturbance they gave them; though Shamgar, it is probable, lived but a ſhort time after this noble Atchievement. And then, when Ehud and he had been ſome time dead, the Iſraelites forgot the wonderful Works of God, and returned to their old Sin: For ſo the Words in the Hebrew are to be underſtood, which run thus, and Ehud was dead: For that Particle ve, which we tranſlate and, oft-times ſignifies becauſe; and here makes theſe Words the Reaſon of their Relapſe, becauſe Ehud was dead, who had been the great Inſtrument of bringing them back to God, and keeping them, while he lived, in his Service.

Ver. 2. And the LORD ſold them.] Delivered them up to be made Slaves. See iii. 8.

Into the Hands of Jabin King of Canaan.] Of that Part of the Country, where the People properly called Canaanites now dwelt under his Government.

Who reigned in Hazor.] In the Region belonging unto Hazor; for the City itſelf was burnt by Joſhua, Joſh. xi. 10. and the King of it alſo ſlain, as we read there, xii. 9. whoſe Name alſo was Jabin, Joſh. xi. 1. of whoſe Poſterity it is probable this Jabin was; whoſe Name was common to all the Kings of that Country, as Pharaoh was to the Kings of Egypt. It is poſſible, indeed, that Hazor might be rebuilt, as ſome other Cities were, and poſſeſſed by the ancient Inhabitants; but there is no need to ſuppoſe that; for he might reign in Hazor, juſt as the Moabites poſſeſſed Jericho; that is, the Region appertaining to it. And, according to the Opinion I mentioned in the foregoing Chapter, ver. 30. Jabin is ſuppoſed to have invaded and brought under only the Northern Tribes; thoſe in the Eaſt remaining at the ſame time in Peace, after the Expulſion of the Moabites: Twenty Years after which (Sir John Marſham makes account) Jabin's Dominion minion over the Northern Tribes began. The Text indeed makes no ſuch Diſtinction, the Children of Iſrael in general being repreſented as ſold under Jabin for their Sins; yet it is ſaid, Ver. 10. that Barak gathered his Army out of the Tribes of Zebulun and Napthali, which are the Tribes ſuppoſed to be alone oppreſſed by Jabin. Other Tribes indeed joined with them, and they that did not, are very much blamed for it by Deborah in her Song, (even the Reubenites, and they beyond Jordan, Ver. 14, 15, 16.) for it might very well be expected, that they who lived in Peace and Eaſe, ſhould be ready to aſſiſt their Brethren, who were heavily oppreſſed.

The Captain of whoſe Hoſt was Siſera, who dwelt in Haroſheth of the Gentiles.] If we ſuppoſe that Hazor lay in its Ruins, then Haroſheth was the Royal City wherein Jabin dwelt, as well as Siſera. Which is called Haroſheth of the Gentiles, becauſe People of ſeveral Nations fled hither under his Protection, when they heard that he had poſſeſſed himſelf of that Country, and kept the Iſraelites out of it.

Ver. 3. And the Children of Iſrael cried unto the LORD; for he had nine hundred Chariots of Iron.] His Power was ſo increaſed, that they had no Hope to redeem their Liberty, but by the Help of the LORD. It may ſeem ſtrange that in this petty Kingdom, they ſhould be ſo ſtrong in Chariots; when Mithridates had but an hundred in his Army, and Darius no more than two hundred, as good Authors inform us. See Bochartus in his Hierozoicon, P. I. Lib. II. Cap. 9. p. 156. I ſuppoſe they placed their chiefeſt Strength in theſe; being not able to ſet out a great Number of Horſemen.

And twenty Years they mightily oppreſſed the Children of Iſrael.] Who groaned under a long Servitude; during which time, Jabin ſqueezed them, I ſuppoſe, by heavy Exactions; which enabled him to raiſe greater Forces than he had at firſt, when he brought them under his Power. For GOD's Anger increaſed by their frequent Revolts from him; and he puniſhed them more ſeverely than he had done before by the Moabites; the Canaanites being the old Inhabitants of the Land, who hated them mortally, and kept them under a ſorer as well as a longer Oppreſſion, than the Moabites had done.

Ver. 4. And Deborah the Propheteſs.] Such an one as Miriam, endued with divine Gifts of Wiſdom to inſtruct, direct, and govern others. For ſhe was not only inſtructed with the Knowledge of divine Things; but alſo was excited by the holy Spirit (as Kimchi here notes) to declare the Will of GOD to the People (which was the proper Office of a Prophet) as appears by the following Part of this Hiſtory. Her Name in Hebrew ſignifies a Bee; which hath been given (as learned Men have obſerved) by other Nations, to illuſtrious Women. As among the Greeks, the Nymph ſaid to be the Nurſe of Jove, is called Meliſſa; and the Wife of Periander King of Corinth, had the ſame Name.

The Wife of Lapidoth.] Or, as others tranſlate it, a Woman of Lapidoth; taking this Word to ſignify a Place, not a Perſon. But our Tranſlation ſeems the moſt natural, and is to be preferred to that of R. Solomon and others, who tranſlate it a Woman of Splendors; that is, an illuſtrious Woman.

She judged Iſrael at that time.] Had the Supreme Authority over them; being ſo well known to be divinely inſpired, that it procured her univerſal Reverence, and Submiſſion to her Judgment.

Ver. 5. And ſhe dwelt under the Palm-Tree of Deborah.] Or, as the LXX, and the Vulgar underſtand it, ſhe ſat under the Palm-Tree, when ſhe adminiſtred Judgment. Whence the Tree was called by her Name; becauſe it was the Place where all reſorted to her.

Between Ramah and Beth-el.] That is, in the Confines of the Tribes of Benjamin and Ephraim. For Ramah was a City in the Tribe of Benjamin, and Beth-el in the Tribe of Ephraim.

In Mount Ephraim.] In one of the Mountains in the Borders of that Country; for tho' the Tree was near both Tribes, yet it ſtood in the Tribe of Ephraim. The Jews (as appears by the Chaldee Paraphraſe) from hence conclude, ſhe was a very great Woman, who had noble Plantations in Jericho, Ramah, Beth-el, and other Places; that is, of Palms, ſaith R. Solomon, in Jericho, of Vineyards in Ramah, and of Oliveyards in the Plain of Beth-el. And from her dwelling in a Mount, and being a Propheteſs, and a Governeſs, and other Things, ſome learned Men image the Story of the Theban Sphinx was invented by the Greeks. See Bochartus, Lib. I. Canaan, Cap. 16.

And the Children of Iſrael came up to her for Judgment.] For Direction and the Ending of Differences, by deciding Cauſes; which none could do with ſuch Satisfaction as ſhe did. By which it appears, that tho' Jabin oppreſſed them ſorely, yet it was rather by rigorous Taxations, than infringing all their Laws; the Courſe of which he did not ſtop, but ſuffered to be adminiſtred by their own Officers. And he took the leſs Notice of it, perhaps, becauſe the Supreme Judicature was exerciſed by a Woman; from whoſe Power and Authority he thought there was no Reaſon to apprehend any Danger. It may be probably hence gathered, that there was no ſuch Sanhedrim in theſe Days, as the Jews conceive there always was in the moſt early Times: For why ſhould they go to her for Judgment, if there were a Court of LXX eminent Perſons then ſitting at Shiloh?

Ver. 6. And ſhe ſent and called.] A plain Act of Authority, which was owned by the whole Nation.

Barak the Son of Abinoam.] Concerning whom we know no more (for that he was Deborah's Huſband, or, as others ſay, her Son, are ungrounded Conceits of ſome of the Jews) but that he was born or dwelt in a famous City in the Tribe of Napthali, as it follows in the next Words.

Out of Kedeſh Napthali.] There were ſeveral Cities of this Name. One in the Tribe of Iſſachar, 1 Chron. vi. 72. another in the Tribe of Judah, Joſh. xv. 23. and therefore for Diſtinction ſake, this is called Kedeſh Napthali; which was a City of great Note, in the upper Galilee, belonging to the Levites, and a City of Refuge.

And ſaid unto him, Hath not the LORD GOD of Iſrael commanded, ſaying.] She could not think he doubted of the Commiſſion ſhe now gave him from GOD; which he received as an Oracle.

Go, and draw.] The Vulgar take the Word draw to ſignify gathering Forces together: But the LXX take it to be of the ſame Import with the foregoing Word; ſignifying that he ſhould go till he drew near to Mount Tabor.

Towards Mount Tabor.] A noble Mountain in Galilee, not far from Kedeſh, in the Tribe of Zebulun; and in the Confines of Iſſachar and Manaſſeh: Which had a very large Plain at the Top of it (as Joſephus tells us, who calls it Staburium, L. 4. de Bello Jud. C. 2.) where he might draw up an Army, and exerciſe them very conveniently.

And take with thee ten thouſand Men.] Who were moved to liſt themſelves under him, by the Proclamation of this Commiſſion, which he brought with him from GOD.

Of the Children of Napthali, and of the Children of Zebulun.] She thought he need go no further than theſe two Tribes, which were neareſt to him; but others alſo offered their Service out of Manaſſeh and Iſſachar, as appears from ver. 14, 15.

Ver. 7. And I will draw unto thee.] Theſe are the Words of GOD, (which Deborah pronounced in his Name) ſignifying, as Arias Montanus underſtands the Word draw, that he would, by his ſecret Providence, incline Siſera to come within his Power to deſtroy him; as Hunters (unto whom Warriors are compared) entice wild Beaſts to fall into their Toils.

To the River Kiſhon.] Which was near Mount Tabor; having its Beginning at the Foot of it.

Siſera the Captain of Jabin's Army, with his Chariots and his Multitude.] Wherewith he intended to encompaſs this Mountain; and block up Barak till he forced him to yield up himſelf unto him.

And I will deliver him into thine Hand.] This ſhews Deborah to have been endued with the higheſt Gift of Prophecy; which was to foretel certainly Things to come.

Ver. 8. And Barak ſaid unto her, If thou wilt go with me, then will I go; but if thou wilt not go with me, then I will not go.] He is commended for his Faith in GOD by the Apoſtle, Heb. xi. 32. as well as other great Worthies in antient Time; tho' it was ſo weak and imperfect, that he made Conditions with GOD's Meſſenger, and abſolutely refuſed to obey, unleſs they were granted. He had great Reaſon, he thought, for it; becauſe he might want her Advice in doubtful Matters, and her Authority alſo, both to gather Soldiers, and to keep them together in good Order, and to inſpire them with Courage. The LXX here add a great many Words, which make this the Reaſon of his Backwardneſs; that without her he ſhould not be able to know the beſt Time of giving Siſera Battle.

Ver. 9. And ſhe ſaid, I will ſurely go with thee.] She ſaw he had Faith enough to undertake the Enterprize, and therefore conſented to his Propoſal.

Notwithſtanding the Journey that thou takeſt.] In the Hebrew it is, the Way that thou takeſt. Which may ſignify the Courſe which he had reſolved upon, not to go without her.

Shall not be for thine Honour.] Tho' his Faith was accepted; yet the Weakneſs of it ſomething eclipſed his Glory.

For the LORD ſhall ſell Siſera into the Hand of a Woman.] It is a great Part of the Glory of a Conqueror, to take the General of the Enemy's Army, or to kill him with his own Hand; which ſhe tells him ſhould be denied him, as a ſmall Puniſhment of his Backwardneſs to do as he was bidden; and as he would not go without a Woman, ſo a Woman ſhould take away this Honour from him.

And Deborah aroſe and went with Barak to Kedeſh.] She made no Delay, but immediately accompanied him to his own City; where he began, I ſuppoſe, his Levy of Men.

Ver. 10. And Barak called Zebulun and Napthali to Kedeſh.] He cauſed Proclamation to be made of God's Command, and his own Intentions, in theſe two Tribes; who reſorted to him in great Numbers.

And went up with ten thouſand Men.] He picked, I ſuppoſe, Ten thouſand Men out of thoſe who flocked to him; and went up with them to Mount Tabor.

At his Feet.] That is, they followed him as their Leader. Tho' it may ſignify that they were all Footmen; there being no Horſes in Judæa, which they brought out of other Countries. This made the Victory the more glorious, by the Overthrow of a great many Chariots and Horſes, in the oppoſite Army.

And Deborah went up with him.] To encourage him and his Forces, now they were gathered.

Ver. 11. Now Heber the Kenite, who was of the Children of Hobab, the Father-in-Law of Moſes.] See Numb. x. 29. This is interpoſed to explain what follows, concerning Jael who was Heber's Wife.

Had ſevered themſelves from the Kenites.] Who went along with the Children of Judah, to ſettle among them, Judg. i. 16. What the Reaſon was of Heber's leaving them, as they all left the Plain of Jericho, is not known; but there was a ſpecial Providence of GOD in it.

And pitched his Tent.] The Kenites lived after the Manner of the Midianites (from whom they deſcended) in Tents, not in Houſes.

Unto the Plain of Zainaim.] A Place in the Tribe of Napthali, Joſh. xix. 33. Where there was a Plain, or (as the LXX expounds the Hebrew Word Alon) a Grove of Oaks, under the Shadow of which their Tents were pitched.

Which was by Kedeſh.] Tho' they loved to live in the open Fields, yet not far from a City.

Ver. 12. And they ſhewed Siſera, that Barak the Son of Abinoam was gone up to Mount Tabor.] They could not want Intelligence of a Thing done ſo publickly as this was; and the Words ſeem to import, that Siſera had many who informed him of all that paſſed.

Ver. 13. And Siſera gathered together all his Chariots, even nine hundred Chariots of Iron.] In which (as I ſaid, Ver. 3.) their main Strength conſiſted. But they being unfit for Service in mountainous Countries, as I have often obſerved; it is probable they placed them ſo below the Mountain, as to coop up Barak there; by ſeizing all the Avenues, and hindring all Proviſions from being brought to him.

And all the People that were with him.] As great a Number of Footmen, as came to him upon the Summons he ſent forth, to require them to appear on this Occaſion. For ſo the Word gathered together ſignifies in the Hebrew (as we obſerve in the Margin of our Bibles) gathered by Cry or Proclamation.

From Haroſheth of the Gentiles, unto the River Kiſhon.] With whom he marched from that City to this River; which deſcended, as I ſaid, from the Foot of Mount Tabor.

Ver. 14. And Deborah ſaid unto Barak, Up.] Make no Delay.

For this is the Day in which the LORD hath delivered Siſera into thine Hand.] She ſpeaks of the Victory as already gained, that ſhe might work in him a full Aſſurance thereof. This doth not contradict what was ſaid Ver. 9. that GOD would ſell Siſera into the Hand of a Woman: For both were true; he and his Army were delivered into the Hand of Barak, to be routed by him; but he, in his Flight, fell into Jael's Hands to be killed. How long this was after Siſera encamped at the River Kiſhon, we have no Means to know; but it was upon ſome Day, when Deborah knew the Army of Siſera lay ſecure in their Quarters, or were about fortifying the Paſſages more ſtrongly; or were to be joined with greater Forces; or ſome other Way might be taken at Advantage.

Is not the LORD gone out before thee?] As a General doth before his Army; to animate, and raiſe their Courage.

So Barak went down from Mount Tabor, and ten thouſand Men after him.] It is not ſaid that Deborah went with him any further than to Mount Tabor: Where it is likely, his Faith was grown ſo ſtrong, that he durſt undertake any thing, without her Preſence with him.

Ver. 15. And the LORD.] Who conducted Barak, as he did his Army, Ver. 14.

Diſcomfited Siſera, and all his Chariots, and all his Hoſt.] They did not expect ſuch a bold Salley as this, which ſtruck ſuch a ſudden Terror into them; for he fell upon them, it is likely, before they were aware, which put them into the greater Confuſion. The LORD alſo ſtruck a Terror into them (as the Word Hamam imports) by a Noiſe of Thunder and Lightning; as the Word is uſed 1 Sam. vii. 10. and alſo in Joſh. x. 10. where we read the Canaanites were diſcomfited by great Hail-ſtones falling down upon them: Or he made a terrible Sound of Horſes and Chariots rattling in their Ears, by the Miniſtry of his Angels, in the Clouds; as he did in the Days of Eliſha, 2 Kings vii. 6. which ſeems to be acknowledged by Deborah, in her Song in the next Chapter, Ver. 20.

With the Edge of the Sword.] This Terror and Confuſion wherein they were, expoſed them to be ſlain eaſily.

So that Siſera lighted down off his Chariot.] Which he thought did not make Haſte enough to carry him out of Danger; and, beſides, made it known where he was.

And fled away on his Feet.] As a common Soldier, that he might not be diſcovered; and that he might likewiſe ſecure himſelf, by his ſpeedy running: For antiently valiant Men were wonderful ſwift of Foot, as it is noted of Aſahel, 2 Sam. ii. 18. and every one knows it was the Character of the famous Achilles among the Greeks.

Ver. 16. But Barak purſued after the Chariots, and after the Hoſt, unto Haroſheth of the Gentiles.] He reſolved to follow his Blow, to the very Gates of their own City.

And all the Hoſt of Siſera fell upon the Edge of the Sword.] In the purſuit, he and his Men cut off all they overtook.

And there was not one of them left.] Which was their whole Army; not one eſcaping to carry the News of their Defeat to Jabin. Or, there was not one Man to be ſeen, in the Way to Haroſheth; but they were all ſcattered to ſhift where they could for themſelves.

Ver. 17. Howbeit Siſera fled away on his Feet to the Tent of Jael, Wife of Heber the Kenite.] Only Siſera, by his ſwift running, got, as he thought, into a Place of Safety, in the Tent of Jael; her Huſband, perhaps, being abroad in the Field, and ſhe only at Home. Women alſo had their Apartments by themſelves, in a Tent of their own, as appears by Gen. xxiv. 67. (ſee there and Gen. xxxi. 33.) where he imagined no Search would be made for him.

And there was Peace between Jabin King of Hazor, and the Houſe of Heber the Kenite.] It ſeems Heber was a conſiderable Perſon, who had a great Family, and many Dependants; like that of Abraham, Gen. xiv. 14. How he came to eſcape the ſore Oppreſſion under which the Iſraelites groaned (being incorporated into their Nation and Religion) and to live at Eaſe in a Time of great Diſtreſs, we can but conjecture. Perhaps their Manner of Life, retired from Towns and Company, made Jabin not fear any Danger from them; and if they ſtill kept cloſe to their Religion, when the Iſraelites were Apoſtates, GOD inclined the Heart of Jabin to be favourable to them, and give no Moleſtation to his harmleſs Neighbours; who, perhaps, purchaſed their Freedom from Vexation, by their frequent Incurſions.

Ver. 18. And Jael went out to meet Siſera.] She watched, it is likely, to hear the Event of Siſera's Expedition; and ſeeing him come with great Speed towards her Houſe, went out, to invite him there to repoſe himſelf.

And ſaid unto him, Turn in, my Lord, turn in, fear not.] She aſſured him there was no Body in the Tent to do him any Hurt. Which was true; and it is not certain that ſhe now intended to do, what afterward ſhe did.

And when he had turned in unto her into the Tent, ſhe covered him with a Mantle.] Being weary, he deſired to take ſome Reſt; when it was proper to throw a Covering over him, to preſerve him, being very hot, from taking Cold. What kind of Covering this was, which the Hebrews call Semicha, (and we tranſlate Mantle) is not very material. They ſay it was a thick Covering, which hath Flocks of Wool on both Sides; ſuch as our double Rugs. See Bochart, Lib. I. Canaan, Cap. 42.

Ver. 19. And he ſaid unto her, give me, I pray thee, a little Water to drink, for I am thirſty.] By the Heat of the Fight, and his long Running.

And ſhe opened a Bottle of Milk.] Out of Reſpect to him, ſhe brought him the beſt Liquor ſhe had, and of the beſt Sort; for it appears by Ver. 25. of the next Chapter, that the Cream was not taken off from it. It is poſſible alſo ſhe might deſign, by this Draught, to throw him into a ſounder Sleep; for Milk, when largely drank, flies up into the Head, and cauſes Drowſineſs. But however that be, it is certain Milk was antiently accounted the moſt agreeable Nouriſhment, which Hippocrates calls ἀδελφὸν ϰ, συγγενὲς to human Bodies. And therefore the moſt warlike Nations lived upon it, more than any other Food; as Hermannus Conringius hath ſhewn at large in his Book de Habitus Germanorum Corporum cauſis.

And gave him Drink, and covered him.] He roſe up to drink; and then lying down again, ſhe covered him as before.

Ver. 20. Again he ſaid unto her, Stand in the Door of the Tent.] Becauſe he doth not ſay, Stand I pray thee, (as he did before when he aſked for Drink) ſome fancy (particularly Arias Montanus) that he ſpake this imperiouſly; laying his Commands upon her, as a Confederate of his Maſter: But I ſee no ground to think, that, when he was in ſuch Need of her Friendſhip, he would take upon him ſo much as to give her a Charge to do any thing, but rather intreat it of her.

And it ſhall be when any Man doth come, and enquire of thee, and ſay, Is there any Man here?] Who was not of their own Family.

That thou ſhalt ſay, No.] They imagined there was no Harm in telling an officious Lye, to deceive an Enemy; that they might preſerve a Friend or Ally, as he was.

Ver. 21. Then Jael Heber's Wife took a Nail of the Tent.] Or one of the great Pins wherewith the Tent was faſtened to the Ground. For ſhe had no better Inſtrument at Hand (Sword, or ſuch like Weapon, being not uſually kept in Womens Tents) and this ſhe knew how to uſe more readily than any other; being accuſtomed, it is likely, when they removed from one Place to another, to take up her Tent, and to faſten it again by ſtriking ſuch Nails into the Earth.

And took an Hammer in her Hand, and went ſoftly unto him, and ſmote the Nail into his Temples.] Where it would moſt eaſily enter (being the thinneſt Part of the Skull) and moſt ſpeedily diſpatch him.

And faſtened it into the Ground.] Upon which he lay (not on a Bed) with a Carpet, or ſome ſuch Thing under him; as the Manner was in thoſe Countries.

For he was faſt aſleep and weary.] His Wearineſs made him ſleep ſoundly.

So he died.] She might as well have let him lie in his profound Sleep, till Barak came, and took him; if ſhe had not felt a divine Power moving her to this, that the Prophecy of Deborah might be fulfilled. Nothing but this Authority from GOD, of which ſhe was certain, could warrant ſuch a Fact as this. Which ſeemed a Breach of Hoſpitality, and to be attended with ſeveral other Crimes; but was not ſo, when GOD, the LORD of all Mens Lives, ordered her to execute his Sentence upon him.

Ver. 22. And behold, as Barak purſued Siſera, Jael came out to meet him.] As ſhe had done Siſera, Ver. 18.

And ſaid unto him, Come, and I will ſhew thee the Man whom thou ſeekeſt.] Before he made any Enquiry, ſhe knew he was deſirous, above all Men, to take Siſera; and, perhaps, ſhe knew, by an Inſpiration, that he was in Queſt of him.

And when he came into the Tent, behold, Siſera lay dead, and the Nail was in his Temples.] He lay in the Place and Poſture wherein he was killed, that Barak might ſee the Prophecy of Deborah made good.

Ver. 23. So GOD ſubdued on that Day Jabin the King of Canaan, before the Children of Iſrael.] So that he was not able to oppreſs them any longer, but they were reſtored to perfect Liberty.

Ver. 24. And the Hand of the Children of Iſrael proſpered and prevailed againſt Jabin King of Canaan.] They proſecuted this Day's Victory, with new Succeſſes; wherein his Forces were overthrown in other Battles, and his Cities taken.

Until they had deſtroyed Jabin King of Canaan.] To the utter Ruin of this Kingdom of the Canaanites in Hazor: For Jabin himſelf, as Arias Montanus thinks, was ſlain at the Brook Kiſhon, Pſalm lxxxiii. 9. (tho' it muſt be confeſſed, that may be meant only of his Forces) ſo that we hear of none of his Name, in future Times. And herein the Iſraelites ſeem to me to have begun to be ſenſible of their Duty; which was to extirpate the People of Canaan, and not merely to bring them under Tribute, Deut. vii. 2, 3, 4.

CHAP. V.

Verſe 1. THEN ſang Deborah, and Barak the Son of Abinoam, in that Day, this Song.] It was compoſed by Deborah (Ver. 7.) being a Propheteſs, one of whoſe ſpecial Gifts was to ſing GOD's Praiſes (1 Chron. xxv. 1, 2, 3) and commanded to be ſung by the Authority of Barak; who was now, I ſuppoſe, become a Judge, upon this great Deliverance GOD had wrought by him. For it is not to be thought, that theſe two Perſons alone ſang this Song; but all the Elders of the People were called together in one Aſſembly, to ſing it with them; and they afterward delivered it to all the People. It was likely it was compoſed and ſung after they had completed their Victory by the Deſtruction of Jabin's Kingdom. For the Prophets were taught ſuch Sublimity of Thought and Speech, as are uſed in their Songs, by theſe Admiration of ſuch wonderful Events as they obſerved.

as

Ver. 2. Praiſe the LORD for the avenging of Iſrael, when the People willingly offered themſelves.] It is evident to all, that this Hymn is expreſſed in another kind of Language, than the hiſtorical Part of this Book; and in a Language ſo majeſtick, in ſuch Variety of elegant Figures, and ſuch native Expreſſions of thoſe Affections which the Occaſion required, that none of the ancient Greek or Latin Poets have equalled; at leaſt it appears, there was a moſt excellent Spirit of Poetry among the Hebrews, eſpecially ſuch of them as were divinely moved, when the Greeks lay in dark Ignorance.

And firſt ſhe excites all the People to give Thanks unto GOD, and acknowledge his Wiſdom and Power, in taking Vengeance of their Oppreſſors, and in moving the Hearts of ſo many eſpecially in Napthali and Zebulun, voluntarily to liſt themſelves to fight againſt the LORD's Enemies: Where it is to be noted, that ſhe very wiſely excites them ſo to aſcribe the Victory unto GOD, as not to forget the Inſtruments he uſed to obtain it; for that ſhe knew would be a great Encouragement to others in time to come, to engage themſelves in ſuch Enterprizes, when they ſaw theſe Men ſo highly praiſed, and looked upon as employed by GOD in his Service.

Ver. 3. Hear, O ye Kings, give Ear, O ye Princes.] Next, ſhe calls upon all the neighbouring Potentates, to give attentive Heed unto her Song; whereby they might underſtand what GOD had done for Iſrael, and learn from thence not to oppreſs them, when it was in their Power; for fear of the ſame Vengeance which GOD had taken upon Jabin.

I, even I, will ſing unto LORD, I will ſing Praiſes to the LORD GOD of Iſrael.] Who ſhe would have the World know, was ſuperior to all in Power, and would defend his People, while they depended on him alone.

Ver. 4. LORD, when thou wenteſt out of Seir, when thou marchedſt out of Edom.] This is but a Repetition of the ſame Thing; Edom and Seir ſignifying the Country where the Poſterity of Eſau dwelt, who refuſed to give Iſrael a Paſſage through their Land, as the LORD led them into Canaan; and therefore he conducted them from thence another Way, and made them encompaſs that Land: (Numb. xxi. 4. Deut. ii. 1.) And when they had left it behind them (which is here called marching out of Edom) then he wrought for them aſtoniſhing Things, as it follows in the next Words.

The Earth trembled, and the Heavens dropped, the Clouds alſo dropped Water.] Theſe are poetical Phraſes, to expreſs the great Conſternation in which all thoſe Countries were, when they ſaw Sihon King of the Amorites, and Og the King of Baſhan, overthrown on a ſudden by the Iſraelites, and utterly deſtroyed. See Numb. xxi. 21, &c.

Ver. 5. The Mountains melted from before the LORD.] All the Inhabitants of thoſe Mountains. Even that Sinai, from before the LORD GOD of Iſrael.] Juſt as Sinai trembled and quaked at the giving of the Law.

In theſe two Verſes ſhe turns her Speech unto GOD, and commemorates his wonderful Acts in former times, with which ſhe compares the glorious Deliverance he had given them now: As much as to ſay, his Power was not at all decayed, but he was as terrible to his Enemies in her Days, as he had been in former times.

Ver. 6. In the Day of Shamgar the Son of Anath, in the Days of Jael.] The Senſe of this Verſe will be very plain, if we tranſlate theſe Words, as I think the Hebrew will bear, from the Days of Shamgar, &c. After his Death they fell into Sin and great Miſery. And Jael is here mentioned, not as a Judge, (as Raſi and Ralbag fancy) but as a great Woman of a maſculine and valiant Spirit, who yet could do nothing to hinder thoſe Spoils that were committed.

The Highways were unoccupied.] The People being corrupted in their Religion, broke out into all Manner of Violence, and turned Highway Robbers; ſo that Men durſt not travel in the common Road upon their Occaſions, but were fain to ſeek for By-Paths, becauſe the Highways were infeſted by Thieves: Or this may be meant of Robberies, which Jabin's Soldiers committed, after he had brought them in Subjection to him; who took no Care to protect the Iſraelites, but ſuffered their Country to be ravaged by his Troops.

The Travellers walked through By-Ways.] In the Hebrew (as in the Margin of our Bibles is obſerved) the Words are the Walkers of Paths: By which we may underſtand Men accuſtomed to travel, who, tho' they went in great Companies together, yet durſt not venture in the direct Road, but went about through crooked Ways, (as the Hebrew Word ſignifies, which we tranſlate By-Ways) by which means Commerce was very much obſtructed.

Ver. 7. The Inhabitants of the Villages ceaſed, they ceaſed in Iſrael.] Men were not ſafe in their own Houſes; which were broken open, if they lived in Villages, and therefore they forſook them, and fled to walled Towns, and fortified Places.

Until that I Deborah aroſe.] This ſome of the Jews take to be a proud and arrogant Expreſſion, for which the holy Spirit was taken from her: But Raſi (who reports this Conceit) ſoberly acknowledges, that they are not Words of Boaſting, but of Joy and Gladneſs.

That I aroſe a Mother in Iſrael.] A Judge or Ruler of GOD's People. For as Men that governed were called Fathers of their Country, ſo it was proper for her, being a Woman, to call herſelf a Mother in Iſrael; among whom ſhe did ſuch great Things, and governed with ſo much Prudence, that it made her famous in other Countries. For very learned Men think, as I noted above, that the Story of Sphinx among the Greeks was made out of the Hiſtory of Deborah, ſhe being a Judge among the Bœotians, as Deborah was in Iſrael. See Bochart in the Book before named; and Hermannus Witzius zius more lately, in his Miſcellanea Sacra, Lib. I. Cap. 23.

Ver. 8. They choſe new Gods.] That is, the Iſraelites, after the Death of Ehud, forſook the LORD, and ſerved Baalim and Aſhtaroth, (as they had done formerly, ii. 13. iii. 7.) or perhaps they introduced the Worſhip of ſome other Gods, whom they had not ſerved before, fancying they might be more powerful than their former had proved.

Then was War in the Gates.] This was the Fountain of their Calamities; for GOD immediately delivered them into the Hand of ſome Enemy or other, who poſſeſſed themſelves of their Cities and ſtrong Holds, for that's the Meaning of War in the Gates. Their Enemies ſeized on their Cities and Fortreſſes; for their Strength was in their Gates; where ſat alſo the Courts of Juſtice.

Was there Spear or Shield ſeen among forty thouſand in Iſrael?] They were generally diſarmed, for the ſecuring their Subjection to the Canaanites; as afterwards the Philiſtines took the ſame Courſe with them, 1 Sam. xiii. 19. Here the Targum makes a ſtrange Excurſion in muſtering up the many thouſand Commanders, and Sword-men, and Spear-men, and Archers, &c. that were in the Army of Siſera.

Ver. 9. My Heart is towards the Governors of Iſrael, that offered themſelves willingly among the People.] It ſeems there were ſome of the greateſt Men in the Tribes of Naphtali and Zebulun, who, of their own accord, hazarded their Lives, among the common People, in this Service: Towards whom ſhe expreſſes a ſingular Affection; and with the Praiſes of God, mixes the Commendation of thoſe who were his Inſtruments in this Deliverance.

Bleſs ye the LORD.] This is added like a Propheteſs, who, when ſhe commends the moſt deſerving Men, carries their Thoughts up to GOD, who gave them that Courage and good Succeſs. Abarbinel had a Conceit came into his Head, as he tells us, when he was commenting on theſe Words, that by Chokkee Iſrael (which Kimchi interprets as we do, the great Men of Iſrael) are meant the Scribes, whoſe Office it was to regiſter all notable Paſſages, particularly the Cauſes of Wars, and their Events; whom Deborah exhorts to bleſs the LORD, and when they wrote the Hiſtory of this War, to aſcribe the Succeſs to the divine Favour. But it is not likely they had ſuch Scribes in theſe Ages, as it's likely they had in future Times; much leſs ſuch Plenty of them now in theſe confuſed Days, that Deborah ſhould make a particular Addreſs to them to do their Duty.

Ver. 10. Speak.] i. e. Give Thanks to GOD.

Ye that ride on white Aſſes.] She calls upon ſuch Men as the Governors before mentioned, to proclaim aloud the Praiſes of GOD. There were no Horſes in Judæa, but what were brought out of other Countries, ſo that the greateſt Perſons rode on Aſſes, as appears by the Scripture Story; but in this Country they were commonly of a red Colour, (whence an Aſs hath the Name of Chamor, as Bochart obſerves, Lib. II. Hieroz. Cap. 12.) and therefore white Aſſes, (or, as he tranſlates this Word, whitiſh, or that were of a Colour inclining to white) were highly eſteemed for their Rarity, and uſed only by honourable Perſons; who could not appear in any Splendor during their Servitude under Jabin, but now were reſtored to their Dignity; for which ſhe would have them praiſe the LORD.

Ye that ſit in Judgment.] With whom ſhe exhorts the Judges to join, who now ſat in the Gates, as they were wont to do, which were not poſſeſſed by their Enemies, Ver. 8. Or perhaps this belongs to the foregoing Clauſe, it being probable that theſe Judges rode about the Country on white Aſſes to do Juſtice. See upon x. 4.

And walked by the Way.] All the Merchants, who now travelled ſafely about their Buſineſs, which they durſt not do before this Deliverance, Ver. 6. for which therefore they were bound to praiſe the LORD.

Ver. 11. They that are delivered from the Noiſe of Archers in the Places of drawing Water.] Together with the Princes, Judges, and Merchants, ſhe would have the Shepherds praiſe the LORD, every time they came to water their Flocks; remembering how they were diſturbed formerly by the Archers, that lurked in Woods or Thickets, and ſhot whole Quivers of Arrows at them and at their Cattle, which now they brought ſafely to the Springs of Water.

There ſhall they rehearſe the righteous Acts of the LORD.] Who had taken a juſt Vengeance on their Oppreſſors, and moſt graciouſly delivered them from their Tyranny; for Righteouſneſs frequently ſignifies the great Goodneſs of GOD.

Even the righteous Acts towards the Inhabitants of his Villages in Iſrael.] She would have the meaneſt Peaſants (as we ſpeak) bear them Company in the Praiſes of GOD; for now they lived as quietly in their open Villages, as if they had been in the ſtrongeſt Cities.

Then ſhall the People of the LORD go down to the Gates.] She ſums up all in theſe Words; that the whole Country was bound to praiſe the LORD, who had given the Law its free Courſe; every Man having Liberty to go down ſafely to the Gate of his own City, where Judgment was adminiſtred.

Ver. 12. Awake, awake, Deborah; awake, awake, utter a Song.] Having called upon all others to praiſe the LORD, ſhe now excites herſelf, with the moſt earneſt and zealous Affection (expreſſed by the Repetition of the ſame Thing four Times) to celebrate his wonderful Works, by compoſing a Song in his Praiſe.

Ariſe, Barak, and lead thy Captivity captive, thou Son of Abinoam.] She calls upon Barak to go in Triumph, carrying (as the Manner was in antient Times) his principal Captives and Spoils along with him unto the Houſe of GOD: For one cannot think ſhe meant merely a ſecular pompous Show; ſince the Romans themſelves in their Triumphs marched to the Capitol, and there offered Sacrifice to Jupiter. Some aſk what Captives he had to lead, when the whole Army of Siſera was cut off? iv. 16. To which the Anſwer is eaſy, That when Barak, after he had had routed their Army, purſued his Victory as far as Haroſheth, he brought ſeveral Perſons, and perhaps of the beſt Quality, Captive with him, out of that Country.

Ver. 13. Then he made him that remaineth have Dominion over the Nobles among the People.] Or, then he ſhall make him that remaineth, &c. that is, when Barak triumphed, that ſmall Remnant of Iſrael (as the beſt of the Jews interpret him that remaineth) who were not utterly diſpirited by the Oppreſſion of Jabin, who had ſome Courage left in them, triumphed together with him over the Nobles of Canaan.

The LORD made me have Dominion over the Mighty.] She, who was but a weak Woman, triumphed alſo over the moſt powerful Enemies.

Ver. 14. Out of Ephraim was there a Root of them againſt Amalek.] Now ſhe makes a Catalogue of thoſe who any way aſſiſted in this War, as Homer doth of thoſe People who equipped Ships for the War againſt Troy: And I find no Senſe of theſe Words ſo plain, as this; that the Amalekites coming to aſſiſt Siſera, as they had done the Moabites, (iii. 13.) a ſmall Party of the Ephraimites (called here a Root) oppoſed their Paſſage, and hindered them from joining their Forces with the Canaanites. Peter Martyr by a Root underſtands a great Captain among them, as in Iſa. xi. 10. the Word is thought to be uſed. But a moſt learned Friend of mine, Dr. Alix, admoniſhes me, that Amalek doth not only ſignify the People deſcended from Amalek, but a Mountain in the Tribe of Ephraim, mentioned xii. 15. And if we underſtand it ſo in this Place, it makes this clear Senſe far eaſier and more natural than the other, out of Ephraim was their Beginning, (ſo the Word Root may be interpreted) about Amalek. That is, the Ephraimites, who came to the Aſſiſtance of Barak, began their Liſting of Men near to this Mountain. And ſo the Particle beth (I obſerved upon Joſh. x. 10.) ſignifies as well near or about, as in or againſt.

After thee, Benjamin, among thy People.] Following the Example of the Tribe of Benjamin; who ſeem to have all of them engaged in this Quarrel, with whom a few of the Ephraimites joined.

Out of Machir.] An eminent Family in Manaſſeh; which is put here for all that Tribe on the other ſide Jordan, where Machir was ſettled, Numb. xxxii. 39. Joſh. xiii. 31. Which made their Zeal the more remarkable, in coming ſo far to the Aid of their Brethren; when they heard they were engaged in this Enterprize.

Came down Governors.] Some of the principal Perſons of that Country; who, no doubt, had their Followers, that accompanied them in this Expedition.

And out of Zebulun they that handle the Pen of the ready Writer.] They were nearer to Mount Tabor, than any of the forenamed; but are therefore highly commended, that tho' they were better ſkilled in Books than in Arms, yet offered their Service to Barak on this Occaſion: For Scribes in Scripture ſignify Men of Letters, that ſtudied the Law, and expounded it.

Ver. 15. And the Princes of Iſſachar were with Deborah.] Came and offered their Service, when they heard that Barak, by her Order, had ſummoned their Neighbours Zebulun and Naphtali to come to him, iv. 10.

Even Iſſachar.] And the People of that Tribe followed the Example of their Princes.

And alſo Barak.] The Hebrew chen (tranſlated here and alſo) ſignifies, as, or like unto; that is, they were as forward as Barak to march into the Field, tho' they had no Summons.

He was ſent on Foot into the Valley.] That is, when he was ſent down from Mount Tabor, by the Order of Deborah (iv. 14.) to fall upon Siſera in the Valley; whither he went on Foot, againſt his Chariots and Horſemen: Or, he went with his Footmen (as the LXX tranſlate it) and engaged that vaſt Number of Chariots, which were of greateſt Uſe in the Valley.

For the Diviſions of Reuben there were great Thoughts of Heart.] But the Reubenites were ſo divided in their Counſels, that they ſtaid at home (as if they were ſeparated from their Brethren in their Affections, as they were in their Situation, beyond Jordan) which begat many ſad Thoughts in the Hearts of the reſt of the Iſraelites; who could not underſtand the Reaſon of it.

Ver. 16. Why abodeſt thou among the Sheep-folds, to hear the Bleatings of the Flocks?] It was a ſhameful and an unaccountable Thing, that they ſhould wholly mind their private Buſineſs (which was feeding Cattle, Numb. xxxii. 1.) and neglect the Publick Good.

For the Diviſions of Reuben, there were great Searchings of Hearts.] And therefore ſhe could not ſufficiently bewail it; which ſhe doth, by repeating what a great Trouble it was to all their Brethren; who were not able to diſcover the Reaſon, and give any Account of their being no more concerned than their Beaſts, for their common Religion and Liberties.

Ver. 17. Gilead abode beyond Jordan.] She complains alſo of the Gileadites, who were Men of Valour; and notwithſtanding ſat ſtill, and would not ſtep over Jordan to help their Brethren. Under the Name of Gilead, are comprehended the Gadites, who had half of Gilead (Joſh. xiii.) as the other half was given to the Children of Machir. Who did come to the Aid of their Brethren; at leaſt their Governors engaged with them, ver. 14. Which hath moved ſome to read theſe Words interrogatively, Did Gilead abide beyond Jordan? as if ſhe ſtill upbraided the Reubenites; who had not this to alledge for themſelves, that they were far off, beyond Jordan; for ſo were the Gileadites (that is, thoſe deſcended from Machir) who they ſuppoſe comprehend the reſt; and yet the beſt and moſt worthy of them, came to join with their Brethren, in the common Cauſe of the Nation.

And why did Dan remain in Ships?] She reproves this Tribe, which was near the Sea, (the famous Port of Joppa belonging to it) that they minded nothing but their Merchandize; while their Brethren hazarded their Lives in the Field.

Aſher

Aſher continued on the Sea-ſhore.] This Tribe alſo bordered upon the Mediterranean; Tyre and Sydon being Part of their Portion. Which they did not poſſeſs, yet no doubt they held ſeveral other leſſer Places upon that Sea; from which they would not ſtir in this common Danger.

And abode in his Breaches.] Or, in his Creeks, as it is in the Margin; and as the LXX take it, who expound the Hebrew Word Miphratſim (Fractures) by διεξόδοις Out-lets, or ſmall Havens; where Veſſels lay, to go out to Sea. Some take the Words to ſignify, that they were buſy in repairing the Breaches made in their walled Towns, by Length of Time, or other ways.

Ver. 18. Zebulun and Napthali were a People that jeoparded their Lives unto the Death.] They were the only People (which was much for their Honour) who unanimouſly deſpiſed Life, in Compariſon with the Liberty of their Country and Religion. For the Hebrew Word Charaph doth not ſignify meerly to expoſe one's ſelf to Danger; but to expoſe one's ſelf to Reproach, as we obſerve in the Margin of our Bibles: And here denotes that they made no Account of their Lives, &c.

In the High Places of the Field.] They went down from Mount Tabor (where they were drawn up in a large Plain, as I obſerved on iv. 6.) with a Reſolution to conquer or die.

It is obſervable, that in this Narration, there is not a Word ſaid of Judah, or Simeon, or Gad, (unleſs comprehended under Gilead, as I ſaid before) and that as Reuben, Dan, and Aſher are taxed for their cowardly Careleſneſs in this Caſe, ſo Ephraim, Benjamin, Part of Manaſſeh, and Iſſachar did afford ſome Aſſiſtance; but nothing comparable to what Zebulun and Napthali did; who, as one Man, engaged to hazard their Lives and Fortunes (as we now ſpeak) for the Regaining of their Liberty; which was the more highly commendable, becauſe they were but an Handful of Men, when they firſt engaged, in Compariſon with the vaſt Army which they undertook to aſſault.

Ver. 19. The Kings came and fought.] When the Iſraelites conquered Canaan, Hazor had ſeveral Kingdoms ſubject to it, or depending on it, Joſh. xi. 10. And now, it is likely, there were divers Kings, who were, at leaſt, Jabin's Confederates; and came to join their Forces with his, to reduce the Iſraelites to his Obedience.

Then fought the Kings of Canaan in Taanach by the Waters of Megiddo.] Theſe were two Cities belonging to the Manaſſites; but in the Tribe of Iſſachar, Joſh. xvii. 11. Between which, as Raſi underſtands it, the Army of Siſera lay; reaching from Taanach to Megiddo; by which the River Kiſhon ran.

They took no Gain of Money.] The ſimple Senſe ſeems to be, that they were Kings of ſuch Bravery, as fought not for Money, but for Glory and Dominion; ſo Raſi and Ralbag among the Jews underſtand it: They fought not for Pay, but came gratis (as we ſpeak) to the Aſſiſtance of Jabin. But the Vulgar takes it otherwiſe; they got nothing but Blows, no Spoil or Prey at all, as they expected. And Kimchi ſtill much differently (which the Words will bear) they came ſo enraged againſt the Iſraelites, that they would have ſpared no Man's Life, tho' he offered great Sums of Money for his Redemption; becauſe they thirſted only after their Blood.

Ver. 20. They fought from Heaven.] But, on the other ſide, God fought for the Iſraelites, by ſending Thunder and Lightning, and Hail-ſtones from Heaven upon the Canaanites (as he did in the Days of Joſhua) and, perhaps, as P. Martyr conjectures, raiſing a great Duſt, which a ſtormy Wind blew ſo violently into their Eyes, that they could not ſee. As Livy ſaith it fell out to the Romans, in the great Battle at Cannæ.

The Stars in their Courſes fought againſt Siſera.] Some take theſe Words literally, and render the Words, not in their Courſes, but in their Exaltations, i. e. with all their Power and ſtrongeſt Influences: Whence the Saying of Raſi, on this Place, the Head, or Beginning of the Stars is in Heaven; but the Feet, or the End of them is upon the Earth. That is, hither they ſend their Influences. But others think theſe Words ſignify, that all this was done by the Miniſtry of Angels, who are here called Stars (as in the Book of Job xxxvii. 7.) becauſe he is ſpeaking of Heaven; from whence they came to raiſe this terrible Tempeſt, and by other Means, which we are ignorant of, to trouble the Hoſt of Jabin, as they did that of Pharaoh in the Red-Sea: And this they did in ſuch Rank and Order, as is obſerved in that Heavenly Hoſt.

It may be alſo thought, that this Fight laſting till Night, the Stars may be ſaid to fight againſt Siſera; becauſe they ſhone brightly to give Light to the Iſraelites, to purſue their Victory.

Ver. 21. The River Kiſhon ſwept them away.] It ſo ſwelled at this Time, that tho' otherwiſe it was very ſhallow, many of them were drowned in it; being carried away with a rapid Stream; for ſo the Word Jerapham ſignifies, which we tranſlate ſwept them away. It is no where elſe found; but frequent among Arabick Authors, among whom it is commonly uſed in this Senſe; as Bochart ſhews, Lib. I. Canaan, Cap. 16, and 42. It is likely there was a great Flood, which was made by that ſudden violent Rain, which fell in the forenamed Tempeſt.

That antient River, the River Kiſhon.] It is an Elegancy uſed by Orators themſelves (as we find in Cicero) to repeat the ſame Words, when there is great Occaſion. And here ſhe makes an Addition to the ſame Word; by calling Kiſhon, that antient River; becauſe of ſome other great Exploit performed there in antient Time; the Memory of which is now loſt. But Kedumim ſome take to be a proper Name, and another Name of the ſame River Kiſhon.

O my Soul, thou haſt trodden down Strength.] This is an elegant Apoſtrophe (or turning of her Speech) to herſelf; whoſe Happineſs ſhe applauds, in beholding the moſt powerful Enemies quite vanquiſhed, by her Commiſſion which ſhe gave from God, and by her Prayers to him: For none can doubt, that ſhe implored

Help from Heaven, while Barak fought with Sisera.

Ver. 22. Then were the Horse Hoofs broken.] They could not save themselves by Flight, their Horse Hoofs being broken in stony Places, when they ran away as fast as they were able.

By the means of their Prancings.] The more Haste they made, the worse Speed, (as the common Saying is) for the running full gallop, (so the Jews interpret the Hebrew Word Dabar [Prancings] to signify the swiftest Course) they trod the harder on the Ground, and were in the more Danger to break their Hoofs.

The Prancings.] The Hebrews wanting a Superlative Degree in their Language, are wont to double a Word, (as Peter Martyr here observes) and therefore Prancings, Prancings, he thinks, are not here an Ornament of Speech, but signify the most vehement Motion, when a Horse is in his full Speed.

Of the mighty ones.] Of their best and strongest Horses: For the Word Abbirim in Hebrew, as Bochart observes, signifies not only strong Bulls, but Horses also. See Hierozoicon, P. I. Lib. II. Cap. 6.

Ver. 23. Curse ye Meroz.] Most Interpreters, both Jewish and Christian, understand by Meroz, a City not far from the Place where the Fight was. Which seems to be proved by the following Words, where he speaks of the Inhabitants thereof. But R. Sol. Jarchi thinks Meroz signifies a potent Person in those Parts, who being able to give great Assistance to Barak, and living near Mount Tabor, refused to do any thing. And this is the Opinion of the Talmudists, (whom Jarchi is wont to follow) as Mr. Selden shews out of the Gemara Babylon, Lib. I. de Synedriis, Cap. 6. p. 123, &c. where they fancy that this great Man was excommunicated by Deborah, with all his Adherents; and hence they fetch the Ground and Original of the Excommunication in use among them: Which is an idle Conceit; there being no such thing as Excommunication practised among them, till they had quite lost their Civil Government, and it was in the Hands of the Heathen.

Saith the Angel of the LORD.] She would not have it thought that this Curse proceeded from her Anger, but from the Authority of GOD, who, by his Angel, which spake to her, denounced it against Meroz. And who should this Angel be, but the Captain of the LORD's Host, mentioned Josh. v. 14. See there.

Curse ye bitterly the Inhabitants thereof.] They that take Meroz for a Person, by Inhabitants understand those that dwelt near him, and were his Dependants or Associates; which is very forced.

Because they came not to the Help of the LORD.] The Battle was the LORD's, as the Scripture elsewhere speaks, and therefore they that refused to engage in it, refused to maintain his Cause: And the People of this Place are so heavily cursed, when all others that came not in to help their Brethren, are only discommended; because they lived so near, that they might easily have joined their Forces with them, whereas some others lived a great Way off, which might something excuse them.

To the Help of the LORD against the Mighty.] According to this Translation of the last Word, she means their most powerful Enemies; but the Hebrew may as well be translated with the Mighty; that is, with other valiant Men, who freely offered their Service in this Enterprize. This aggravated their Guilt, that when they had such noble Examples of Zeal from others, who were less able to help, they would afford no Assistance.

Ver. 24. Blessed above Women shall Jael the Wife of Heber the Kenite be.] On the other side she desires Jael may be ever praised; or rather, foretells she shall always continue famous, and her Husband too, in future Generations.

Blessed shall she be above Women in the Tent.] This is thought to be a wishing, or promising her all Happiness in her Domestick Affairs. But P. Martyr thinks it may be interpreted, Blessed shall she be for what she did in her Tent. Which was no less glorious, than what others did in the Field.

Ver. 25. He asked Water, and she brought him Milk.] Her Prudence is first commended, in treating him with great Respect, that he might entertain no Suspicion of Danger.

She brought forth Butter.] Milk from which the Cream (of which Butter is made) was not separated.

In a lordly Dish.] The Hebrew Word Sephel (which we translate Dish) is no where else found, but in the Story of Gideon in the next Chapter, vi. 38. where we translate it a Bowl. From whence Bochart rightly concludes, it signifies a large and wide Vessel, (P. I. Hieroz. Lib. II. Cap. 49.) which explains the Word Lordly or Princely; which doth not signify that she had any Gold or Silver Vessel in her Tent, (which was not agreeable to their Manner of living) but that she brought him Milk in the best Vessel she had, and that very capacious: For out of such great Men were wont to drink, as Peter Martyr observes out of Cicero against M. Antony.

Ver. 26. She put her Hand to the Nail.] Next her Courage and Fortitude is celebrated: And by Hand is to be understood her Left, wherewith she held the Nail, as with her Right Hand the Hammer.

And her Right Hand to the Workman's Hammer.] A lively Description how she went about this Work; just as if she had been fastening her Tent.

And with her Hammer she smote Sisera.] The Hebrew Word halam, which we translate smote, signifies such a Blow as makes a Contusion.

She smote off his Head.] The Word Machak, which is commonly translated cut off, cannot have that Signification here; because there is not the least Indication in this Story of her cutting off his Head from the Body, but only of striking it through, as here it must be understood.

When she had pierced and stricken through his Temples.] Here are two Words more, Machatz and Chalaph, signifying penetrating and boring quite through. And the Place is specified where his Head was perforated, which was in his Temples, the ſofteſt Part of it, which gave the eaſieſt Entrance to the Nail.

Ver. 27. At her Feet he bowed, he fell, he lay down.] In the Hebrew, between her Feet, &c. which ſome of the Talmudiſts have abuſed to a lewd Senſe; juſtly cenſured by Kimchi: Who obſerves, that this is according to the Style of the Hebrew Language, which reduplicates Words, that they may more ſtrongly affirm what is ſaid; and theſe Words, he bowed, he fell, ſignify (he thinks) ſuch a Fall that he never roſe up again. But taking all theſe Expreſſions together, (he bowed, he fell, he lay down) they ſeem to me to import, that at the firſt Stroke, he ſtarted and lifted up his Body; but being very much ſtunned, he ſoon laid down again.

At her Feet he bowed, he fell.] Then I ſuppoſe ſhe repeated her Stroke, which perfectly diſabled him to move.

Where he bowed, there he fell down dead.] And at the third Stroke, it is likely, ſhe faſtened his Head to the Ground. But this Repetition doth not certainly argue that ſhe gave ſo many Blows; (tho' it may paſs for a probable Conjecture) for it is an uſual Elegancy in ſuch Compoſures, wherein ſhe intended to ſet out this Fact of Jael's with the higheſt Encomiums. Some may fancy indeed, that it deſerved Reprehenſion, rather than Commendation, upon many Accounts; being a Breach of the Laws of Hoſpitality, and of the Peace which was between her Family and Jabin, &c. But this Fact is not to be meaſured by the common Rules which are to govern us, it being an extraordinary, heroick, and divine Work, unto which ſhe was excited by GOD; whoſe People Jabin oppreſſed with a cruel Servitude, from which GOD ordered Barak to be their Deliverer; who, having defeated all his Forces in a miraculous Manner, Jael underſtood there was a Divine Hand in this Victory, and was moved by the ſame Spirit which ſtirred up Deborah and Barak, to help, by this Act, to compleat their ſhameful Overthrow. For nothing could be more diſhonourable, than for a great Captain to fall thus by the Hand of a Woman.

Ver. 28. The Mother of Siſera looked out at a Window.] Was in earneſt Longings and Expectations to ſee him return victorious.

And cried through the Latteſs.] Either Fear of ſome Miſcarriage, or impatient Deſire, made her cry out with a lamentable Voice; as the Word Jabab in the Hebrew ſignifies.

Why is his Chariot ſo long in coming? Why tarry the Wheels of his Chariot?] Having ſuch numerous Forces, they promiſed themſelves an eaſy and ſpeedy Victory over a Handful of the Iſraelites; and therefore wondered what retarded his coming back, with all his Chariots, in Triumph.

Ver. 29. Her wiſe Ladies anſwered her.] The Vulgar takes the Hebrew Words to ſignify, one of the wiſeſt of his Wives (who was not ſo apt to deſpair as his Mother) replied to her. For it is well obſerved by Terence, in his Adelphi, (as Pet. Martyr here notes) Multò ſatius eſt, ea evenire nobis quæ de abſentibus ſuſpicantur uxores, quàm ea quæ parentes. It is much better that thoſe Things ſhould happen to their abſent Huſbands, which their Wives ſuſpect, than thoſe which their Parents fear. But I ſee no Reaſon to depart from our Tranſlation, which is the ſame with the LXX, αἱ σοφαὶ ἄρχουσαι, the prudent noble Women that attended her, &c.

Yea, ſhe returned Anſwer to herſelf.] Upon better Conſideration, her Hopes exceeded her Fears.

Ver. 30. Have they not ſped?] She did not think it poſſible they ſhould miſcarry.

Have they not divided the Prey?] She was willing to be confident they had got the Victory; and therefore imputed their Stay to the Time that muſt needs be taken up in making an equal Diviſion of the Spoil. For thoſe Days were not like to ours, wherein every Man keeps to himſelf what he can lay his Hands upon; but after the Battle, they were obliged to bring all that they had gotten to the General of the Army; who conſidered every Man's Quality and Deſert, and accordingly diſtributed the Prey among them.

To every Man a Damſel or two.] Young Virgins are by all Hiſtorians and Poets, reckoned as a principal Part of the Soldiers Prey. And ſhe puts here an unuſual Word for a Damſel, which is Racham; for it properly ſignifies a Womb, and ſeems here to be ſpoken by Way of Contempt, as if they were good for nothing but to ſerve their filthy Appetites.

To Siſera a Prey of divers Colours, a Prey of divers Colours of Needlework, of divers Colours of Needlework on both Sides.] Theſe were the richeſt Part of the Spoil, being highly eſteemed by all People, as Pliny obſerves, Lib. VIII. Cap. 48. where he mentions great Variety of them both in his own, and in antient Time: For he takes Notice, that Homer mentions Pictas Veſtes, as he calls them, Painted Garments, which ſhined with Flowers and Trees in beautiful Colours; which the Phrygians afterwards wrought with Needles; and Attalus invented the interweaving Gold in them: But for divers coloured Garments, Babylon was above all Places famous; from whence they had the Name of Babyloniſh Garments, which were much valued even in thoſe early Times, as appears by the Story of Achan, Joſh. vii. 21. and they were of ſuch account in After-times, that every one was not permitted to wear them, but only the greater Sort of Perſons, (as Pet. Martyr obſerves out of the Roman Laws) which may be the Reaſon that here they are appropriated to Siſera, as his Part of the Spoil.

Meet for the Necks of them that take the Spoil.] That is, of the chief Commanders, to whom the Spoil, as I ſaid, was brought to be divided. In the Hebrew the Words are, for the Necks of the Spoil; which Kimchi expounds, the Head of the Prey. As if ſhe had ſaid, Theſe are to be put in the Head of the Prey; and therefore fit to be given only to the General of the Army.

Ver. 31. So let all thy Enemies periſh, O LORD.] From hence ſhe takes Occaſion to convert convert her Speech to God, beſeeching him, that all his Enemies may be thus diſappointed of their vain Hopes.

But let all them that love him, be as the Sun when he goeth forth in his Might.] Increaſe in Power and Force, as the Sun doth from the Time of its Riſing, till it come to its Meridian Height.

And the Land had Reſt forty Years.] Theſe forty Years are to be computed from the Time of Ehud, as our great Primate thinks, who thus tranſlates theſe Words, The Land reſted in the fortieth Year, after the former Reſt which was reſtored to it by Ehud. See him ad M. A. 2719. But it is far more reaſonable to compute them from the Conqueſt of Jabin by the Northern Tribes; after which, the whole Country lived in Peace for the Space of forty Years, till the Midianites, as it follows, ſorely oppreſſed them.

I conclude this Chapter, as Conradus Pellicanus doth; Let ſome Homer or Virgil go now, and compare his Poetry, if he be able, with the Song of this Woman. And if there be any one that excels in Eloquence and Learning, and hath more Leiſure than I, celebrate the Praiſes and Learning of this Panegyrick more copiouſly.

CHAP. VI.

Ver. 1. AND the Children of Iſrael did Evil in the Sight of the Lord.] After the Death of Deborah and Barak (who kept them, I ſuppoſe, in the true Religon) they relapſed to Idolatry.

And the Lord delivered them into the Hand of Midian ſeven Years.] Becauſe it is not ſaid, That the Anger of the Lord was hot againſt Iſrael, (as in Chap. ii. 14. iii. 8, &c.) nor that he ſold them into the Hand of Midian, (which is the Expreſſion, iv. 2. and other Places) Peter Martyr thinks they were not altogether ſo bad as they had been formerly; and therefore God was pleaſed to ſhorten the Tyranny of the Midianites over them; who being their old Enemies, as they came through the Wilderneſs, and having been, in a Manner, utterly deſtroyed by the Iſraelites, (Numb. xxxi.) were very much diſpoſed to take a ſharp Revenge: For that thoſe Midianites who were Neighbours to Moab, are here meant, is evident from their Situation, which was beyond Jordan, (vii. 24, 25. viii. 4.) and by the People that joined with them, who were the Children of the Eaſt, Ver. 3. whereas the other Midianites, where Jethro lived, were in the South, near the Red Sea. Some fancy, indeed, that the Midianites, Neighbours to Moab, being cut off by Moſes, there was no ſuch Nation. But it muſt be conſidered, that ſome of them ſaved themſelves by Flight into other Countries, and, after the Iſraelites were ſettled in Canaan, returned again; and, in near two hundred Years time, may well be thought to have repeopled their Country, eſpecially by the Help of other People, who came, it is likely, and planted among them; and being ſeated in the ſame Country, are all called Midianites.

Ver. 2. And the Hand of Midian prevailed againſt Iſrael.] They brought the Iſraelites in Subjection to them, and were the fourth Nation that oppreſſed them, after the Meſopotamians, Moabites, and Canaanites.

And becauſe of the Midianites, the Children of Iſrael made them Dens that are in the Mountains, and Caves, and ſtrong Holds.] They betook themſelves to theſe Places for Safety; for, I ſuppoſe, they did not now make them, but made them their Retreat. And by the firſt Word Minhareth, is meant thoſe hollow Places in the Rocks upon the Mountains, where Men might hide themſelves, and make them their Habitation; there being Cracks and Holes in them here and there, to let in Light, as the Hebrew Word ſignifies. And the ſecond Word Maharoth denotes ſuch Caves as were in the Fields, made either by Nature, or by Art and Labour; which being dark, were fit only to hide their Goods and Proviſion in them. And the third Word Mitzaroth ſignifies ſuch Fortreſſes, as ſecured themſelves, and Families, and Cattle, and all they could carry thither. But this ſhews their Condition was very lamentable, in that they were driven from their Houſes in the Villages, and Cities too; at leaſt the Richeſt of them durſt not truſt themſelves there, but fled to ſtrong Holds for Safety.

Ver. 3. And ſo it was, that when Iſrael had ſown.] They did not diſturb them in Seed-time, but let them be quiet till they had ploughed and ſowed their Land.

Then the Midianites came up, and the Amalekites, and the Children of the Eaſt.] This ſhews, that ſome of the ſame People joined with the Midianites, that did formerly with the Moabites, when they oppreſſed Iſrael, iii. 13. For by the Children of the Eaſt, are meant, ſome of the People of Arabia, as Procopius notes, who obſerves Joſephus to be of the ſame Mind: For Arabia lay Eaſt of Egypt, where the Iſraelites learnt to ſpeak in this Manner.

Even they came up againſt them.] Entered the Land of Iſrael with ſuch Armies as might deſtroy the Fruits of the Earth; as it follows in the next Verſe.

Ver. 4. And they encamped againſt them.] The Vulgar tranſlate it, They pitched their Tents among them; which ſignifies them to have been an Arabian People, or ſuch as lived after their Manner.

And deſtroyed the Increaſe of the Earth.] Having formed a Camp, they ſent out Parties from thence well armed, to deſtroy all the Corn, and the reſt of the Fruits of the Earth.

Until thou come unto Gaza.] That is, they made an univerſal Devaſtation from one End of the Country to the other; for they came from the Eaſt, and deſtroyed all till they came to the Weſtern Coaſt, where Gaza was.

And left no Suſtenance for Iſrael.] Whom they intended to famiſh.

Neither Sheep, nor Ox, nor Aſs.] Their Camels, and other Cattle, which they brought along with them, having eaten up all; for they were ſo numerous, as we are told in the following Verſe, that they overſpread the whole Country.

Ver. 5. For they came up with their Cattle.] Not merely an Army of Men, but of Cattle of all Sorts, came on purpoſe to make this Deſtruction.

And their Tents.] With their whole Families, that they might be able to conſume the more.

And they came up as Graſhoppers for Multitude.] Or, as Locuſts, (as the Word Arba is commonly tranſlated) which have their very Name from the vaſt Numbers wherein they were wont to come, and were moſt devouring Creatures.

For both they and their Camels were without Number.] No Country more abounded with Camels than Midian (as I obſerved before out of Bochart his Hierozoicon, P. I. Lib. II. Cap. 2.) and they are only peculiarly mentioned, becauſe the Midianites were more famous for them, than for Horſes, or other Beaſts.

And they entered into the Land to deſtroy it.] Their very Deſign was to depopulate the Country by this Means.

Ver. 6. And Iſrael was greatly impoveriſhed becauſe of the Midianites.] For the Fruits of their Land being thus deſtroyed, their Money was drained from them to purchaſe Corn from other Countries.

And the Children of Iſrael cried unto the LORD.] Who never failed to help them, when they truly turned to him.

Ver. 7. And it came to paſs, when the Children of Iſrael cried unto the LORD, becauſe of the Midianites.] Though the Poverty which pinched them, was that which moved them to cry unto GOD for Relief, yet he was ſo gracious as to ſend one to make them ſenſible of their Sin.

Ver. 8. That the LORD ſent a Prophet unto the Children of Iſrael.] Whom the Jews fancy to have been Phineas, which is not probable, Men not commonly then living to the Age of two hundred Years, which he muſt be of, and more, if he were the Prophet now ſent to them. It is far more likely, that GOD ſtill continued other Prophets among them, beſide the High-Prieſt, to put them in mind of their Duty, and to call them to Repentance when they forſook him. And it appears by the foregoing Story, that there was a Woman who had the Spirit of Prophecy; which ſhews that, at leaſt, upon ſpecial Occaſions, he raiſed up ſuch Perſons among them.

Which ſaid unto them.] At ſome great Feſtival, it is likely, when they were all aſſembled.

Thus ſaith the LORD GOD of Iſrael.] This is the Style in which the Prophets commonly ſpake.

I brought you up from Egypt, and brought you forth out of the Houſe of Bondage.] All the Prophets put them in Mind of this, as the greateſt Obligation upon them, to be entirely devoted to GOD's Service. See Exod. xix. 4, 5, 6. where GOD himſelf tells them for what Purpoſe he had delivered them from that Bondage. And ſee Joſh. xxiv. 5, 6.

Ver. 9. And I delivered you out of the Hand of the Egyptians.] Who, when they purſued them, to bring them back into Slavery, were all drowned in the Red Sea.

And out of the Hand of all that oppreſſed you.] That endeavoured to oppreſs them; ſuch as the Amalekites, Sihon, and Og, who oppoſed their Paſſage to Canaan.

And drave them out from before you, and gave you their Land.] By the Hand of Joſhua, who ſettled them in the Land which GOD promiſed to them. All this is ſaid, to put them in mind how faithfully GOD had performed his Covenant with them, and to upbraid them with their own Infidelity.

Ver. 10. And I ſaid unto you, I am the LORD your GOD.] Exod. xx. 1. Deut. v. 6. vi. 4.

Fear not the Gods of the Amorites, in whoſe Land ye dwell.] Do not worſhip them, nor imagine they can do you any Harm, Deut. vii. 12, 13, 14. Joſh. xxiv. 14, 15.

But ye have not obeyed my Voice.] Which was the Cauſe of all the Evil that had befallen them, and would ſtill continue, if they did not now hearken unto him, as they deſired him to hear their Cry. This, no doubt, the Prophet preſſed upon them, in more Words than are here ſet down, theſe being only the Heads of his Speech.

Ver. 11. And there came an Angel of the LORD.] The Iſraelites laid the Application of the Prophet's Speech to their Heart (it is to be ſuppoſed) and began to reform their Ways, which moved him to ſend an Angel to appoint them a Deliverer; for he is called, An Angel of the LORD, both here and Verſe 12, 20, 21, 22.

And ſat under an Oak.] In a Grove of Trees (as Arias Montanus underſtands it) where there was one great well-ſpread Oak, in which there was a Seat.

Which was in Ophrah.] The City where Gideon was born and lived, viii. 27.

That pertained unto Joaſh the Abiezrite.] This is added to ſhew what Ophrah he means; for there was another in the Tribe of Benjamin, Joſh. xviii. 23. whereas the Family of Abiezer belonging to the Tribe of Manaſſeh, Joſh. xvii. 2.

And his Son Gideon threſhed Wheat.] The Hebrew Chabat, in this Place, ſignifies to threſh out with a Stick or Rock, as Kimchi here obſerves. And ſo the LXX. ῥαβδίζων. But the common Way of threſhing Corn out of the Ear, was by treading it with Oxen, which they called Daſh, 1 Chron. xxi. 20. This Gideon did not uſe, partly for Privacy, but chiefly becauſe he had but a little to beat out.

By the Wine Preſs.] Where none would ſuſpect his threſhing of Corn.

To hide it from the Midianites.] Who watched narrowly all the Threſhing-floors of the Iſraelites, who might have bought Sheaves of their Neighbours, or, perhaps, ſown and reaped a little Corn, in ſome private fenced Places, where the Cattle of the Midianites did not come to eat it up.

Ver. 12. And the Angel of the LORD appeared unto him.] Gideon, I ſuppoſe, turning his Face that Way, beheld him ſitting under the Oak.

And ſaid unto him, The LORD is with thee.] He did not take him to be one of the Midianites, Midianites, by his Poſture, and Manner of Appearance, and was made more certain of it by this Salutation. Wherein he doth not pray GOD to be with him, but declares him to be with him (as appears by Gideon's Anſwer) that is, to aſſiſt him to be the Deliverance of his People. The Targum here tranſlates it, The WORD of the LORD is thy Help. Whereby it appears, the antient Jews did not look upon this Angel merely as an heavenly Meſſenger ſent from GOD, but as the LORD himſelf, as he is called, Ver. 14, 16, 23, 24, 25, 27. Which is confirmed by the following Verſe, as the ſame Targum tranſlates it.

Thou mighty Man of Valour.] He was naturally couragious, but made more ſo, by a divine Inſpiration, and yet did not diſdain to mind Huſbandry, as the greateſt Perſons did in antient Time. Inſomuch that Pliny ſaith, The Earth brought forth its Fruit more happily and abundantly, cum Imperatorum clariſſimorum manibus tractaretur, when it was cultivated by the Hands of the moſt famous Commanders: For they had more Skill and Induſtry in their Management, than the ordinary People.

Ver. 13. And Gideon ſaid unto him, O my Lord.] The Hebrew Word bi (which we tranſlate, O, or, I beſeech thee) may literally be tranſlated, with me; by way of Interrogation: As much as to ſay, How can that be? It appears by the Word Adonai (Lord) which is uſed to all great Men, that he did not yet think him to be an Angel, but ſome Perſon of extraordinary Quality, who wiſhed well to the Iſraelites.

If the LORD be with us, Why then is all this befaln us? And where are all the Miracles which our Fathers told us of, ſaying, Did not the LORD bring us up from Egypt? &c.] He thought their preſent Condition ſufficiently ſhewed, that their whole Nation was forſaken by GOD; who had thrown them into that Slavery, out of which he delivered their Fathers, and did not appear, by any miraculous Works, to be preſent among them as he was in Egypt, but left them to be devoured by the Midianites.

Here the Targum makes Gideon's Anſwer to have been this, Is the SCHECHINAH of the LORD our Help? Whence then hath all this happened unto us? Which Paraphraſe ſhews that they took the WORD of the LORD to be the ſame with the SCHECHINAH of the LORD, who had moſt glorioufly appeared for their Help. See Ver. 16. and Joſh. xiv. 12.

Ver. 14. And the LORD looked upon him.] This ſhews it was not a mere Angel, but the ſame Jehovah, who appeared to Joſhua (v. 13, 14.) in the Likeneſs of an Angel, and now caſt a gracious Aſpect upon him: For to have Reſpect unto a Man, or unto his Sacrifice, is graciouſly to accept him, and to be favourable to him; as the LORD now declared he was, by his very Countenance, which had great Kindneſs in it.

And ſaid, Go in this thy Might.] This ſeems to intimate that Gideon was immediately inſpired with a great Courage, by that gracious Aſpect of the LORD upon him.

And thou ſhalt ſave Iſrael from the Hand of the Midianites.] See theſe Wonders renewed, which appeared in the Deliverance of their Fathers out of Egypt, of which Gideon ſaid there was no Token, Ver. 13.

Have not I ſent thee?] Is not this a ſufficient Authority, that thou haſt a Commiſſion from GOD? Great Care is taken throughout all this Book, to ſhew that the Judges all acted by a divine Warrant.

Ver. 15. And he ſaid unto him, O my LORD.] Still he took him to be only ſome extraordinary Man.

Wherewith ſhall I ſave Iſrael?] He doth not reject the Commiſſion, but modeſtly declines it (as Theodoret obſerves) conſidering his own Meanneſs, in Compariſon with many others.

Behold, my Family is poor in Manaſſeh.] And conſequently of little Power to raiſe Forces, to oppoſe ſo potent an Enemy: The Word we tranſlate, my Family, is in Hebrew, my Thouſand: For the Iſraelites were diſtributed, by Jethro's Advice, into Hundreds and Thouſands; and the Thouſand to which Gideon belonged, was the meaneſt of all the reſt in that Tribe. The Jews will have it, that Gideon was the Chiliarch, or chief Commander of this Thouſand; others ſay, his Father Joaſh, who, it appears by the Story, was a conſiderable Perſon; but it is uncertain whether he had ſuch a Government.

And I am the leaſt in my Father's Houſe.] This ſhews that Gideon had no ſuch Command as the Jews imagine.

Ver. 16. And the LORD ſaid unto him, Surely I will be with thee.] Do not conſider thy Poverty, but the Power of GOD, which ſhall accompany thee: Here the Targum thus paraphraſes, My Word ſhall be thy Help; who was the ſame that appeared to Joſhua, with a Sword in his Hand.

And thou ſhalt ſmite the Midianites as one Man.] Defeat them as eaſily, as if he had but one Man to deal withal.

Ver. 17. And he ſaid, If now I have found Grace in thy Sight.] Am ſo highly favoured, as to have this Honour.

Then ſhew me a Sign.] He doth not ſo much as make a Doubt, but deſire to be confirmed in his Belief.

That thou talkeſt with me.] That thou haſt brought this Commiſſion from GOD, and that I ſhall be able to deſtroy the Midianites. He ſaid this (as Conr. Pellicanus thinks) not becauſe his Faith wanted Confirmation, but that he might make others believe, who would require a Sign before they joined with him.

Ver. 18. Depart not hence, I pray thee, until I come unto thee.] Stay here till I go home, and return.

And bring forth my Preſent.) So we rightly interpret the Hebrew Word Mincha; which tho' it ſignify a Meat Offering (as we obſerve in the Margin) yet there was nothing of a Sacrifice intended here, nor was Gideon a Prieſt, or this a Place of Sacrifice.

And ſet it before thee.] He intended to entertain him, by making a Feaſt for him.

And

And he ſaid, I will tarry till thou come again.] It was a great Thing he was to undertake, and ſo God graciouſly condeſcended to give him all manner of Satisfaction about it.

Ver. 19. And Gideon went in, and made ready a Kid, and unleavened Cakes of an Ephah of Flour.] For Expedition ſake he made ſuch Cakes, they being ſooneſt prepared: For it is a mere Fancy of the Jews, that this was done about the Paſſover in the Days of Unleavened Bread.

The Fleſh he put in a Baſket, and he put the Broth in a Pot; and brought it unto him under the Oak, and preſented it.] Set it before him on a Table, and deſired he would be pleaſed to eat: In which he followed the Example of Abraham and Lot, and ſeems to have entertained him nobly, according to the Way of Feaſting in thoſe Days; for a whole Kid (Part of which was boiled, and the other Part, perhaps, otherwiſe prepared) and ſo many Cakes, as an Ephah of Flour would make, was enough for ſeveral Gueſts; and therefore ſo much ſet before one Man, was to ſhew his great Reſpect to him.

Ver. 20. And the Angel of the Lord ſaid unto him, Take the Fleſh, and the unleavened Cakes.] He did not taſte of them, intending to turn them into a Sacrifice unto God.

And lay them upon this Rock.] Which was near the Grove of Oaks, in the higher Part of the City of Ophrah, as Bertram conjectures, in his Book de Repub. Judaica, Chap. xv.

And pour out the Broth.] As Elijah, in after-times, bad them pour Water upon his Sacrifice.

And he did ſo.] He obeyed him; though it is likely he thought it ſtrange he ſhould command him thus to diſpoſe of the good Cheer he had prepared for him.

Ver. 21. Then the Angel of the Lord put forth the End of the Staff that was in his Hand.] For he appeared, I ſuppoſe, in the Form of a Traveller, who were wont to walk with a Staff in their Hand.

And touched the Fleſh, and the unleavened Cakes, and there roſe up Fire out of the Rock.] He did not ſmite the Rock with his Staff, (by which Stroke the Fire might have been thought to be ſtirred up) but only gently touched the Fleſh and the Cakes with it.

And conſumed the Fleſh and the unleavened Cakes.] Together with the Broth, that was poured on them; which was as great a Miracle (if not greater) as if Fire had come down from Heaven, as in the Sacrifices which Moſes, and Elijah, and others offered: By which the Faith of Gideon was mightily ſtrengthned, that the Miracles done in ancient Times (which he enquired after, Ver. 13.) were not ceaſed, and that God would be as good as his Word to him, for this was a Token of God's Acceptance of him.

And the Angel of the Lord departed out of his Sight.] Went up into Heaven, as the Chaldee Paraphraſe interprets it.

Ver. 22. And when Gideon perceived that he was an Angel of the Lord.] He was convinced, by this Wonder, that he was not a mere Prophet that appeared to him.

Alas, O Lord God, for becauſe I have ſeen an Angel of the Lord Face to Face.] He ſpeaks as a Man in a Fright, and cuts off Part of his Words; for his Meaning was, I ſhall die: Such was the Opinion of good Men in thoſe Days, that if they ſaw apparently an Inhabitant of the other World, he came to call them away from this: As appears more fully in the Story of Manoah and his Wife, in the thirteenth Chapter of this Book: And this Opinion was very ancient, as may be gathered from the Words of Jacob, Gen. xxxii. 30. and they were confirmed in it, perhaps by the Words of God to Moſes, Exod. xxxiii. 20.

Ver. 23. And the Lord ſaid unto him.] Tho' the Angel diſappeared, and nothing was to be ſeen, yet the Lord, who appeared in that Form to him, made him know he was ſtill preſent with him, by ſpeaking the following Words, in an audible Voice.

Peace be unto thee, fear not; thou ſhalt not die.] He bids him fear no Harm, but, quite contrary, expect all manner of Good, (which is comprehended in the Word Peace) and that in this World, where he ſhould ſtill continue, to work that Deliverance which he promiſed by him: From ſuch Places as this the ancient Chriſtians rightly gathered, that the Son of God appeared, upon ſome great Occaſions, in old Time; which is not incredible, but a Matter of eaſy Belief, if we be perſuaded that he did really appear in our Fleſh, which he took of the Virgin Mary, and dwelt among us for a long Time, and then aſcended in it to Heaven, where he lives for ever: For why ſhould we think it ſtrange, if, for a ſhort Time, he appeared ſometimes in Human Shape, as a Prælude to what he intended in the Fulneſs of Time? Fuit ſane id majus quod nobis præſtitit, &c. (as Peter Martyr ſpeaks.) It was indeed a greater thing which he did for us at laſt; but he that did the greater, may well be granted to have done the leſs, and there is no Reaſon to doubt of it.

Ver. 24. And Gideon built an Altar there unto the Lord.] Not for Sacrifice, (which had been directly contrary to the Law of God) but as a Monument of that heavenly Viſion, and of the Mercy promiſed to him, in that Place where he built the Altar, viz. Where the Angel ſtood and touched the Fleſh and unleavened Cakes, and conſumed them: Such an Altar the Reubenites made, Joſh. xxii. 10, &c.

And called it Jehovah-Shalom.] That is, The Lord here pronounced Peace to me, Ver. 23. or (as we underſtand it, in the Margin) The Lord grant Peace: Which he had the greateſt Reaſon to expect, when God had declared it, at that very Time, when he looked for Death.

Until this Day it is yet in Ophrah of the Abiezrites.] It was remaining when Samuel wrote this Book.

Ver. 25. And it came to paſs the ſame Night.] After the Angel's Appearance.

That the Lord ſaid unto him.] In a Dream, it is moſt likely, becauſe it was in the Night.

Take

Take thy Father's young Bullock.] In the Hebrew the Words are two, Par, Shor, ſignifying a Bullock full grown; which his Father, it is probable, had fatted up for a Sacrifice to Baal.

Even the ſecond Bullock.] Our Tranſlation ſuppoſes there was but one Bullock, which he was ordered to take (becauſe we read in the next Verſe, that this alone was ſacrificed); but in the Hebrew, and the LXX, and the Vulgar, (and our Margin alſo) the Words are, and the ſecond Bullock; which was next to the firſt in Age.

Of ſeven years old.] Which was calved, as Arias Montanus obſerves, when their Oppreſſion under the Midianites began; and was now ordered to be ſacrificed, in Token that it ſhould end with this Bullock's Death.

And throw down the Altar of Baal that thy Father hath.] Which was in his Ground, and built, perhaps, at his Charge; but was for publick Uſe, as appears from Ver. 28.

And cut down the Grove that is by it.] Or, rather, upon it; for ſo the Hebrew Word alau ſignifies; and ſo the LXX tranſlate it ἐπ' αὐτῷ, upon the Altar before mentioned. And therefore by Aſhereh, which we tranſlate Grove, muſt be meant the Image in the Grove, which ſtood upon the Altar. And ſo the Word is uſed in other Places, 1 Kings xxiii. 6. Which Mr. Selden probably conjectures was the Image of Aſhtaroth, or Aſtarte; for ſhe was worſhipped together with Baal, ii. 13. where they are ſaid to have worſhipped Baal and Aſhtaroth (for there was more than one Aſtarte's) which is the ſame with iii. 7. where it is ſaid they worſhipped Baalim and the Groves. See Syntag. 2. de Diis Syris, Cap. 2. There could be no Hope of Deliverance till Religion was reformed; with which therefore God orders him to begin.

Ver. 26. And build an Altar unto the Lord thy God, upon the Top of this Rock.] Where the Angel appeared to him; from whence Bertram thinks the Iſraelites learnt to ſacrifice in High Places; if it were not rather a Cuſtom derived from the Gentiles.

On the Top of this Rock there was a Fortreſs, as I take it; which it is likely had been built to ſecure them from the Midianites. For the Word for Rock is not the ordinary one, viz. tzor, or ſela, but mahoz; which ſignifies a ſtrong Hold.

In the ordered Place.] Which St. Hierom took to be the Place where the Fleſh and unleavened Cakes were laid in Order upon the Rock, Ver. 20. but it may ſignify, as we tranſlate it in the Margin, in an orderly Manner.

And take the ſecond Bullock, and offer a burnt Sacrifice.] If there were two Bullocks which he took, it is hard to ſay what became of the firſt. Arias Montanus ſuppoſes it was offered for himſelf, and for his Family; but this ſecond is only mentioned, becauſe it was the Sacrifice that was offered for the whole Nation, to implore God's Mercy to them; for Sacrifices were a kind of Prayer and Supplication. Gideon was no Prieſt, but by God's ſpecial Order, was required to do this; which otherwiſe would have been a preſumptuous Sin.

With the Wood of the Grove which thou ſhalt cut down.] This was alſo an extraordinary Command, whereby Things employed to Idolatry, were converted to a ſacred Uſe. Otherwiſe, God had ordered them all to be utterly deſtroyed, Deut. vii. 5. xii. 3.

Ver. 27. Then Gideon took ten Men of his Servants.] In whom he could confide; and this Number was as many as was neceſſary, to make a Congregation for publick Worſhip; and was ſufficient alſo to execute what God had commanded.

And did as the Lord had ſaid unto him.] Broke down the Altar of Baal, cut down the Grove, and built an Altar unto the Lord, and offered the Burnt-Sacrifice.

And ſo it was, becauſe he feared his Father's Houſhold, and the Men of the City, that he could not do it by Day.] Without endangering a Tumult, which might have ended in a Fray.

That he did it by Night.] When he was likely to meet with no Oppoſition. In this he gave an early Proof of his Faith in God, for it was a bold Undertaking: But Prudence is not excluded in the Execution of the Divine Commands: Yet the greater Speed Men make, the more acceptable it is; and ſome think his Zeal moved him to do this, the very ſame Night wherein God appeared to him.

Ver. 28. And when the Men of the City roſe early in the Morning.] And came to worſhip Baal, before they went about their Buſineſs.

Behold the Altar of Baal was caſt down, and the Grove cut down that was by it.] They were very much ſurprized to ſee ſuch an Alteration.

And the ſecond Bullock was offered.] Which they knew was deſigned for a Sacrifice to Baal.

Upon the Altar that was built.] Not upon the Altar of Baal, which was thrown down, but on a new one, which was built in another Place; upon which the Fleſh of the ſecond Bullock was ſtill flaming, being not quite conſumed, when they came thither.

Ver. 29. And they ſaid one to another, Who hath done this Thing?] Their Superſtition made them very ſolicitous to find out the Author of this Impiety, as they accounted it.

And when they enquired and aſked.] Here are two Words in the Hebrew, importing that they made a diligent Inquiſition; examining many Perſons what they knew of it.

They ſaid, Gideon the Son of Joaſh hath done this Thing.] Who gave this Information, we are not told; nor how the Diſcovery was made: Perhaps, ſome had ſeen him that Morning ſtand by the Sacrifice; which it is likely he would not forſake, as long as he durſt attend it. Or ſome of his Servants might let fall ſuch Words as gave Suſpicion: Or, the Altar and Image ſtanding in Joaſh his Ground, and his Bullock being offered, they thought that none, without the Knowledge of his Family, could come to attempt it: And, beſides, it is probable that Gideon was known to be no zealous Servant of Baal; and when all were ſo very much concerned for the demoliſhing of his Altar, he expreſſing preſſing no Concern at all, they confidently charged him with the Fact.

Ver. 30. Then the Men of the City ſaid to Joaſh, Bring out thy Son, that he may die, becauſe he, &c.] It ſeems they were all zealous Idolaters; and thought him worthy of Death who diſhonoured thoſe who were accounted Gods.

Ver. 31. And Joaſh ſaid unto all that ſtood againſt him.] That is, againſt his Son; demanding to have him produced, and puniſhed.

Will ye plead for Baal? Will ye ſave him?] i. e. Will you take upon you to avenge his Quarrel, and to be his Patrons? Doth it belong to you to be his Defenders and Deliverers? It ſeems to have been a popular Tumult, which he endeavours to repreſs; by repreſenting to them, that ſuch Crimes were not to be puniſhed by them, but by the Magiſtrates of the City; and that they would bring themſelves in Danger of what they intended to do to Gideon, if they did not deſiſt; as it follows in the next Words.

He that will plead for him, let him be put to Death.] That is, Let me tell you, he that thus moves Sedition in this Cauſe, by my Conſent, ſhould be put to Death himſelf. And, it is likely, Joaſh was a Magiſtrate in the City; who terrified them by declaring what his Opinion would be, if they came to be tried for this Riot.

While it is yet Morning.] That is, immediately. For it was early in the Morning (Ver. 28.) when they came in this Manner to Joaſh.

If he be a God, let him plead for himſelf, becauſe he hath caſt down his Altar.] If the Magiſtrates neglected to puniſh the pretended Crime, Baal, he tells them, in caſe he were a real God, would take Care to do himſelf Right; and therefore they need not be ſo much concerned about it: And ſo ſome underſtand the latter Part of this Verſe, He deſerves to die preſently, who is an Adverſary to Baal: But let the Execution be done then by Baal himſelf. For if he be a God, he will take Care of his own Honour; and you need not trouble yourſelves about it. It is likely Joaſh had been convinced by his Son, that God had given him a Commiſſion to deliver his People; and to begin it with this Reformation. Which made him appear thus boldly in his Son's Cauſe; becauſe he knew it was the Cauſe of God.

Ver. 32. Therefore on that Day he called him Jerubbaal.] In the 2 Sam. xi. 21. he is called Jerubbeſheth; for ſo ſome called Baal, in Contempt, by the Name of Beſheth, that is Shame and Confuſion; which well expreſſes the Nature of ſuch Idols.

Saying, Let Baal plead againſt him, becauſe he hath thrown down his Altar.] This is the Reaſon why he gave him this Name; which is as much as to ſay, the Adverſary of Baal; or, him whom Baal hath a Quarrel withal; upon the Account of the Affront put upon him, in throwing down his Altar. The Phœnicians called him Jerombalus, as appears by Sanchuniathon, whom Euſebius often quotes, as he is tranſlated by Philo Byblius into Greek: And Porphyry ſaith, he received certain Commentaries from Jerombalus, the Prieſt of the God Jevo. Which can be nothing but the Books of Moſes, which contain the Laws delivered by Jehovah; as Huetius juſtly obſerves in his Demonſtr. Evangel. Propoſ. 4. Cap. 2. for the Remains which we have of his Writings, plainly taſte of the Doctrine of Moſes.

Ver. 33. Then all the Midianites, and the Amalekites, and the Children of the Eaſt were gathered together.] As they were wont to do every Year, to waſte the Country, Ver. 3, 4, 5.

And went over.] The River Jordan.

And pitched in the Valley of Jezreel.] Which alarmed Gideon, and gave him Occaſion to execute his Commiſſion; it being not far from Ophrah; for Jezreel in the Tribe of Judah is not here meant, (mentioned Joſh. xv. 36.) but Jezreel in the Tribe of Manaſſeh, or Iſſachar, which is frequently ſpoken of in the Book of the Kings, being one of the Royal Seats of the Kings of Iſrael; where there was a noble Valley, running from the Eaſt to the Weſt, mentioned Joſh. xvii. 16. Hoſea i. 5.

Ver. 34. But the Spirit of the LORD came upon Gideon.] Or, (as the Words are in the Hebrew, and as the LXX tranſlate it) cloathed Gideon: Which is a Phraſe St. Paul uſes to ſignify a Man is repleniſhed with that wherewith he is ſaid to be cloathed; or that he is fully poſſeſſed of it. So was Gideon with Courage, and all other Qualities neceſſary in a great Commander.

And he blew a Trumpet, and Abiezer was gathered unto him.] Came and offered their Service to fight under his Banner. This was a wonderful Change, if the City of Ophrah, who were lately ſo incenſed againſt him, that they would have killed him for deſtroying their Idol, now not only ſubmitted to him, but were ready to join with him againſt all his Enemies: But though this be not incredible, that they were converted from the Idolatrous Worſhip of Baal, when they ſaw no Hurt befal Gideon for throwing down his Altar, &c. yet this may be meant only of the reſt of the Abiezrites, and eſpecially thoſe of his own Kindred and Family.

Ver. 35. And he ſent Meſſengers throughout all Manaſſeh, who alſo were gathered after him.] That is, the reſt of his Tribe; whoſe Hearts God moved to reſort unto him.

And he ſent Meſſengers unto Aſher, and unto Zebulun, and unto Naphtali.] After his own Tribe was come in, he invited theſe three who bordered upon the Tribe of Manaſſeh Northward, to come to his Aſſiſtance: But he did not ſend unto the Tribe of Ephraim, who were Neighbours to the Manaſſites on the South; which afterward begat a Quarrel, as we read Chap. viii.

And they came to meet them.] One of the Copies of the LXX refers this to Gideon, that he went up to meet thoſe of the three Tribes before mentioned; but others refer it to them who came up to meet Gideon; and ſo the Hebrew Words ſeem to import. But which way ſoever we take it, they all joined their Forces together; and from hence Sir J. Marſham infers, that the Oppreſſion fell only on this Part of the Country; tho' the whole Story repreſents all the Iſraelites as in a miſerable Condition, and as ſubmitting to his Government, after he had delivered them.

Ver. 36. And Gideon ſaid unto God.] In a Prayer, which, I ſuppoſe, he made unto him.

If thou wilt ſave Iſrael by my Hand, as thou haſt ſaid.] He did not doubt of God's Intentions, who had promiſed to be with him: For in Purſuit of his Commands he had done one great thing already, in throwing down Baal's Altar; and had alſo blown a Trumpet and liſted Soldiers; and had likewiſe ſeen wonderful Effects of God's Power, in conſuming the Fleſh and the Cakes that were laid upon the Rock, by Fire coming out of it: Therefore he deſired only a Confirmation of his Faith; and that, perhaps, for the Sake of thoſe who were to go with him, who might poſſibly be timorous: Or he might deſire by ſome Sign to know, whether at this time he would make him victorious over the Midianites, or he was to wait for ſome other Opportunity.

Ver. 37. Behold, I will put a Fleece of Wool in the Floor.] Where they were wont to threſh Corn; which was done in the open Air, not in Barns, as we do now.

And if the Dew be on the Fleece only, and it be dry upon all the Earth beſide, then ſhall I know that thou wilt ſave Iſrael by my Hand, as thou haſt ſaid.] He ſuppoſed that the Dew which diſtilled from Heaven was a divine Gift, (as the Scripture often teſtifies, particularly Gen. xxviii. 28.) which he deſires might be ſo governed by God, that though it commonly fall every where, it might now, by his extraordinary Providence, water only his Fleece.

Ver. 38. And it was ſo; for he roſe up early in the Morning, and thruſt the Fleece together, and wringed the Dew out of the Fleece, a Bowl full of Water.] When there was not a Drop upon the Earth round about it. The Word Sephel, which here we tranſlate Bowl, was uſed in the foregoing Chapter, Ver. 25. Which ſee.

Ver. 39. And Gideon ſaid unto God, Let not thine Anger be hot againſt me, and I will ſpeak but this once.] Though God did not chide him for his former Deſire, nor charge him with any Diſtruſt of his Power and Will to do what he promiſed; yet Gideon was afraid leſt he ſhould be very angry at his renewing the ſame Requeſt, becauſe it looked like a Diffidence in God's Word. But if we conſider, that it was for the further and fuller Satisfaction of thoſe that were to go with him, it may be excuſed; and as he promiſes that he will aſk no more Signs, ſo we do not find that the Lord took it ill of him that he aſked this.

Let me prove thee, I pray thee, with the Fleece.] This is a bad Word, when it denotes Men's Infidelity, that no Sign will be given them; but a good one, when it ſignifies an humble Deſire to have ſuch a Sign granted them, as here it doth.

Let it be dry now only upon the Fleece, and upon all the Ground let there be Dew.] Upon theſe Words Ralbag hath this Obſervation, The former Miracle was not ſufficient for his Conviction, becauſe it is in the very Nature of Wool to draw Moiſture to it; and therefore he deſires this ſecond Miracle, which is contrary to the firſt.

Ver. 40. And God did ſo that Night.] For ſome Dew drops in the Morning, other in the Night. And here God was pleaſed not in the Morning, but in that very Night when he aſked this Sign, to ſprinkle all the Floor with Dew, and let none fall upon the Fleece. So ready, ſaith Bochartus, is God to hear our Prayers; which his Benefits do not ſo much follow, as go before them, or immediately accompany them.

For it was dry upon the Fleece only, and there was Dew on all the Ground.] Not upon all the Country of Iſrael, but upon all the Floor, or the Land thereabout. By theſe quite contrary Signs, his Faith was fully confirmed; and perhaps there was ſome need of it, when he ſaw the Number of his Followers reduced to a ſmall Handful of three hundred Men, vii. 10. There are thoſe, who think he choſe a Fleece of Wool for this Purpoſe, not only becauſe it was ready at hand, but the better to expreſs how the Earth was ſhorn by the Midianites, as the Sheep had been by him; and when he begged the Dew (a Sign of the divine Favour) might fall upon the Fleece, it was to repreſent the Kindneſs of God to him; and when he begged it might fall upon the whole Ground, it repreſented his Favour to all the People: And, laſtly, that theſe two Miracles, oppoſite one to the other, do notably ſet forth the State of that Nation, who were moiſtened with the Dew of Heaven (the Knowledge of God) when the reſt of the World were dry; and now are dry, when the reſt of the Earth are filled with the Knowledge of the Lord, as the Waters cover the Sea.

CHAP. VII.

Ver. 1. THEN Jerubbaal, (who is Gideon) and all the People that were with him, roſe up early.] The very next Morning, I ſuppoſe, after the laſt Miracle.

And pitched beſide the Well of Harod.] It is but conjectured where this Well was, viz. not far from Mount Gilboa.

So that the Hoſt of the Midianites were on the North Side of them, by the Hill of Moreh.] The Vulgar takes the Word Moreh to ſignify high; and then this high Hill can be no other than the forenamed Gilboa. Here Pellicanus obſerves, that Prudence and diligent Forecaſt is to be uſed, even when we are under the divine Conduct; for he thinks Gideon acted like a ſkilful Commander, when he quartered his Army ſo, as to have the Enemy on the North of him, rather than the Eaſt or the South.

In the Valley.] Of Jezreel, as was ſaid before, vi. 33. which had Hermon on the North, and Gilboa on the South of it.

Ver. 2. And the Lord ſaid unto Gideon, The People that are with thee, are too many for me to give the Midianites into their Hand.] They were but thirty-two thouſand, againſt an innumerable Army of the Enemies, Ver. 3, 12. which was a vaſt Diſproportion; and yet God would not uſe the Service of ſuch a Company, leſt it ſhould obſcure his Glory; as it follows in the next Words.

Leſt Iſrael vaunt themſelves againſt me, ſaying, Mine own Hand hath ſaved me.] He knew their Humour, and foreſaw they might be ſo vain, as to aſcribe the Victory to their own Power and Proweſs, and not to him who intended to ſhew to all the World it was his miraculous Work.

Ver. 3. Now therefore go to, proclaim in the Ears of the People.] According to the Command of Moſes, Deut. xx. 8.

Whoſoever is fearful and afraid.] The Word which we tranſlate afraid, is in the Hebrew Harod: From whence ſome have conjectured the Well where they pitched (Ver. 1.) was called by the Name of Harod, becauſe here a great Fear came upon moſt of Gideon's Army.

Let him return and depart early.] As ſoon as he can: Or, as a great many underſtand it, make what haſte he can to his Home; it being a Metaphor, they think, from the flying of a Bird.

From Mount Gilead.] Not that Mountain which is ſo often mentioned in Scripture; for that was on the other Side of Jordan, and in the moſt Eaſtern Part of their Country, (as appears from the Story of Jacob, when he returned from Padan Aram) but another Mountain on the Weſt Side of Jordan, in the Tribe of Manaſſeh: The Name of whoſe Grandſon Gilead (from whom all the Tribes deſcended) was given, it is probable, in Memory of him, to ſome Mountain in this Country; which was called Mount Gilead; juſt as another Mountain in the Tribe of Ephraim, was called Mount Ephraim. This ſeems to me a far more rational Account of theſe Words, than theirs who tranſlate them towards Mount Gilead, or about it; or deviſe ſome other ſuch like Explication of the Particle Min, (which we rightly tranſlate from) as may conſiſt with their Opinion, that the Mount on the other Side Jordan is here intended. Gataker hath collected many Interpretations of this Kind in his Cinnus, Lib. 2. Cap. 18.

And there returned of the People twenty and two thouſand.] As God thought there was too many, ſo they thought there were too few, to fight with ſuch an Hoſt as came againſt them: And therefore, though they were at the firſt forward to liſt themſelves under Gideon, yet when they ſaw no greater Number come in, as they expected, their Hearts failed them; for they truſted not in God, but in their own Strength.

And there remained ten thouſand.] Who had more Courage, and were reſolved to venture their Lives in the Cauſe. Ralbag thinks the greater Number that went away were Men of bad Lives, whoſe Conſciences made them afraid; and that theſe who remained were better Men, which made them valiant and undaunted. And they were juſt the ſame Number that went down with Barak from Mount Tabor, in their laſt Deliverance, iv. 10.

Ver. 4. And the Lord ſaid unto Gideon, The People are yet too many.] The more valiant they were, the more they might be apt to aſcribe to themſelves.

Bring them down unto the Water.] Which, it is likely, ran from the Well or Fountain of Harod, and made a Brook.

And I will try them for thee there.] Give thee a Proof who are fit for the Service. The Hebrew Word Tzaraph ſignifies to ſcour, purge, and purify; as Fullers do Cloth from its Filthineſs, or as Refiners do Gold and Silver from their Droſs. So God intended to purge Gideon's Army, from all ſuch Perſons as he judged unmeet for the Undertaking.

And it ſhall be, that of whom I ſay unto thee, This ſhall go with thee, the ſame ſhall go with thee; and of whomſoever I ſay unto thee, This ſhall not go with thee, the ſame ſhall not go.] He intended by ſuch a Voice as now ſpake unto him, to declare who ſhould go with him, and who ſhould not.

Ver. 5. So he brought down the People unto the Water.] Where it was proper to purge them.

And the Lord ſaid unto Gideon, Every one that lappeth of the Water with his Tongue, as a Dog lappeth, him ſhalt thou ſet by himſelf; likewiſe every one that boweth down upon his Knees to drink.] They were thirſty, we may well ſuppoſe, by the Heat of the Weather, and by their March, which made them greedily betake themſelves to the Water: Where he bid Gideon obſerve the different Poſtures which they uſed in quenching of their Thirſt. The LXX here tranſlate it πᾶς ὃς ἂν λάψῃ τῇ γλώσσῃ αὐτοῦ, Whoever licketh upon the Water with his Tongue. Which is the very Word the great Philoſopher uſes in his Hiſtory of Animals, Lib. 8. Cap. 6. where he ſaith, Thoſe Creatures whoſe Teeth are continued cloſe together, ſup up Water as Horſes and Oxen do; but ſuch as he calls καρχαροδόντα, that have Teeth like a Saw, do λάπτειν, which is of the ſame Signification with our Engliſh Word lap, and the French laper, as Bochart obſerves.

Ver. 6. And the Number of them that lapped, putting their Hand to their Mouth, were three hundred Men; but all the reſt of the People bowed down upon their Knees to drink Water.] Some aſcribe it to the Sloth and Lazineſs of theſe three hundred Men, that they would not ſtoop down to drink, as the reſt did; others, to their Timorouſneſs, and the great Fear they were in of being ſuddenly ſurprized by their Enemies, which is the Opinion of Joſephus and Theodoret; both which great Authors think, that God choſe theſe three hundred Men, on purpoſe becauſe they were poor-ſpirited, that the Victory might be acknowledged to be entirely owing to himſelf: And Grotius is of this Mind, who thinks they lapped, juſt as the Dogs do at the River Nile, as they run, for fear of the Crocodiles. See Sixtiri Amama his Antibarbarus, Lib. 3. P. 385. But it is evident that all the fearful Perſons were diſmiſſed before; and it is not likely that courageous Men were lazy; therefore I take it, as others do, (particularly Procopius Gazæus) to be a Token of their Temperance, and of the Nobleneſs of their Spirit, which made them ſo deſirous to engage the Enemy

Enemy, that they would not ſtay to drink; but though they were very thirſty, contented themſelves to moiſten their Mouth with a little Water; whereas the reſt indulged themſelves ſo far, as to drink their Belly full. And it is the Opinion of Ralbag, among the Jews, that their lapping ſtanding, was a Sign of their Alacrity and Fortitude. R. Solomon, and Kimchi, alſo think, that the reſt had been Worſhippers of Baal, and by bowing their Knees to drink, were diſcovered, which is a far-fetched Conceit.

Ver. 7. And the LORD ſaid unto Gideon, By the Three hundred Men that lapped, will I ſave you, and deliver the Midianites into thine Hand.] It was ſufficient to let all the World ſee, GOD ſaved them, and not Men, that he employed only three hundred Perſons in this Service, yet it was neceſſary theſe three hundred ſhould be Men of extraordinary Faith and Courage (ſuch as Gideon had) to embolden them to this Enterprize.

And let all the other People go every Man unto his Place.] He had ſent away above two Thirds of his Army before, and now of that third Part, he keeps only the thirtieth.

Ver. 8. And the People took Victuals in their Hands.] They that returned Home, left ſo much Proviſion, as would ſerve to maintain three hundred Men for ſome time.

And their Trumpets.] If we ſuppoſe every thouſand Men to have ten Trumpeters belonging to them, it was eaſy to furniſh three hundred Men with every one a Trumpet, which we read (Ver. 16.) they had, that they might, when they ſounded, make a Noiſe, as if they were a greater Number than really they were. It is hard to ſay, how Joſephus came to ſay, that they carried in their Hand, ἀριᾶ κέρας a Ram's Horn, which they uſed ἀντὶ σάλπιγγος inſtead of a Trumpet (Lib. V. Antiq. Cap. 8.) for Rams Horns are not hollow: And the LXX only call them κερατίνας, not ſaying of what they were made. It may be ſuppoſed, indeed, that Rams Horns were made hollow for this Uſe, as the Jews make them at this Day.

And he ſent all the reſt of Iſrael, every Man unto his Tent.] Who, it is probable, did not go ſo far, but that they were ready to join with thoſe who purſued the Midianites after their Defeat, Ver. 23, 24.

And retained thoſe three hundred Men.] Kept no more with him than this Number whom GOD had choſen to accompliſh his Promiſe.

And the Hoſt of Midian was beneath him in the Valley.] It ſeems his ſmall Handful of Men lay encamped upon an Hill, where the Midianites thought it not ſafe to aſſault them, not knowing what Number they were, nor how intrenched, and therefore they lay ſtill in the Valley of Jezreel.

Ver. 9. And it came to paſs the ſame Night.] After he had reduced his Forces to this ſmall Number.

That the LORD ſaid unto him, Ariſe, get thee down unto the Hoſt of the Midianites.] Who lay in the Valley below him.

For I have delivered it into thy Hand.] There, he means, he ſhould underſtand, and be fully ſatisfied by what he ſhould hear, that his Victory over them was as ſure, as if he had already obtained it.

Ver. 10. But if thou fear to go down.] As he had ſome Reaſon, having now ſuch a ſlender Company with him.

Go thou with Phurah thy Servant down to the Hoſt.] Every Man is more afraid alone, than when he hath a truſty Companion with him; yet it was not fit to carry more than one, whoſe Fidelity was known to him; for ſecret Deſigns are not to be committed to many.

Ver. 11. And thou ſhalt hear what they ſay.] Hear the Diſcourſe that ſome of them would have with one another.

And afterward ſhall thine Hand be ſtrengthened to go down unto the Hoſt.] Whereby he ſhould be encouraged to attack that great Army, with ſo ſmall a Number as he had remaining with him. This ſhews how exceeding acceptable his Faith and Obedience was to GOD, in ſending away as many of his Army, as he bad him diſmiſs; for now he gives him a further Confirmation of his Faith, without aſking.

Then went he down with Phurah his Servant. Faith had quite expelled all his Fear.

Unto the Outſide of the armed Men that were in the Hoſt.] To the Out-guards, as we now ſpeak, who ſeem to have conſiſted of fifty Men, as the LXX think the Hebrew Word Chamuſchim ſignifies; for they tranſlate it τῶν πενηκονλα.

Ver. 12. And the Midianites and Amalekites, and all the Children of the Earth.] who joined with them in this Invaſion.

Lay long in the Valley.] Of Jezreel before mentioned, into which Gideon now went down.

Like Graſhoppers for Multitude.] See vi. 5.

And their Camels were without Number.] Both Midian and Amalek, and the Countries about them, abounded with Camels, which were ſerviceable to them in their Wars, as well as in carrying Burdens. See Bochart, in his Hierozoicon, P. I. Lib. II. Cap. 2. And in them they placed their principal Riches, as he obſerves out of Leo Africanus, who ſaith, That when the Arabians would expreſs the great Wealth of their Prince, they do not ſay, he hath ſo many thouſand Pounds of Gold or Silver, but ſo many thouſand Camels.

As the Sand by the Sea Side for Multitude.] So the Hebrews are wont to expreſs a vaſtly great Number. The certain Knowledge of their Number, it is likely, never came to the Knowledge of the Iſraelites; but we read of an hundred and twenty thouſand Men that were ſlain, and fifteen thouſand that eſcaped, with their two Princes, viii. 10. And how many were taken Captive, is not recorded.

Ver. 13. And when Gideon was come, behold, there was a Man that told a Dream unto his Fellow.] Which troubled his Thoughts, I ſuppoſe, when he was awake, as the Dream of Pharaoh, and his Butler and Baker, and of Nebuchadnezzar, in After-times, diſturbed them.

And ſaid, Behold, I dreamed a Dream, and lo a Cake of Barley Bread.] Or, as the Vulgar tranſlate it, A Loaf baked in the Aſhes, which was the meaneſt of all other Bread, and haſtily prepared.

Tumbled.] Came tumbling down like a Bowl from the Mountain.

Into the Hoſt of Midian.] Through all the Guards, into the very Middle of the Army, which was a Sign that Gideon ſhould break thro' all Oppoſition.

And came unto a Tent.] The principal Tent, which was pitched for their Kings, or their General, in the midſt of the Hoſt.

And ſmote it, that it fell.] This ſeemed ſtrange to the Man, that ſo ſmall a Thing as a Cake, or a Loaf of Bread, ſhould throw down a Tent, which was not ſhaken by a ſtrong Wind.

And overturned it, that the Tent lay along.] It not only fell, but was ſo ſhattered that it could not be reared up again; which was a lively Emblem of the utter Overthrow of the Midianites, and their numerous Hoſt, by Gideon, and his ſmall Company, as his Fellow-Soldier interpreted it.

Ver. 14. And his Fellow anſwered and ſaid.] It appears by the Example before mentioned, that GOD ſometimes ſent Dreams into the Minds of Pagan People, who were much concerned to find an Interpreter of them: But here, by a ſingular Providence, one of his Comrades was inſpired to tell the Meaning immediately.

This is nothing elſe, ſave the Sword of Gideon, the Son of Joaſh.] The Barley Cake was a fit Emblem of Gideon and his Soldiers, who were a ſmall Number, as a Cake is made of a little Flower kneaded together; and was mean alſo, and contemptible, in Compariſon with the Midianites, as a Barley Cake is in Compariſon with Wheaten Bread: But the Man could not have underſtood this, unleſs GOD had ſuggeſted it to him, for the Confirmation of Gideon's Faith and Reſolution.

A Man of Iſrael.] i. e. A great Commander; for ſo the Hebrews truly interpret the Word Iſch, who (as L'Empereur obſerves out of R. Schamaja) called the Governor, or chief Commander of thoſe who guarded the Temple, Iſch har habeth, The Man of the Mountain of the Temple. Cod. Middoth, Cap. 1.

For into his Hand hath GOD delivered Midian, and all the Hoſt.] All their Confederates. Nothing is more vain, than our common Dreams, yet GOD hath ſometimes admoniſhed Men that Way of future Things, as many of the Heathens themſelves acknowledge, (and thoſe, the wiſeſt of them, ſuch as Hippocrates.) But that a common Soldier ſhould give ſuch an exact Interpretation of another Soldier's Dream, and that againſt themſelves, and their own Nation, is very extraordinary.

Ver. 15. And it was ſo, when Gideon heard the Telling of the Dream, and the Interpretation thereof.] He underſtood the Midianitiſh Language, it is likely, having been long a Subject to that Nation; or, perhaps, it did not differ much from the Hebrew.

That he worſhipped.] Gave humble Thanks to GOD for his Goodneſs, in giving him new Encouragement to proceed in his Undertaking.

And returned to the Hoſt of Iſrael.] So he calls it, (though it ſcarce deſerved that Name) becauſe GOD intended to do the ſame by this ſmall Number, as if they had been a great Hoſt.

And ſaid, Ariſe, for the LORD hath delivered into your Hand, the Hoſt of Midian.] He bids them make no Doubt, nor Delay, for GOD had given freſh Aſſurance of Succeſs.

Ver. 16. And he divided the three hundred Men into three Companies.] Under three Commanders in Chief, as the Hebrew Raſchim imports, which ſignifies Heads.

And he put a Trumpet into every Man's Hand.] That they might make a Sound of a great Army.

With empty Pitchers.] Earthen Pitchers, which had no Water in them; wherein they hid their Lamps, till they ſhould think fit to light them.

And Lamps within their Pitchers.] Or, rather, Torches; for, no doubt, they were made of Pitch, or Wax, or Roſin, and ſuch like things as would burn long, and not be blown out by the Wind, as Lamps made of Oil only are apt to be.

Ver. 17. And he ſaid unto them, Look on me, and do likewiſe.] Follow my Example.

And behold, when I come to the Outſide of the Camp.] Where he began the Aſſault.

It ſhall be, that as I do, ſo ſhall ye do.] I ſuppoſe he told them what he would do, viz. After they heard him blow the Trumpet, (as it follows in the next Verſe) they ſhould do the ſame, and then break their Pitchers, and light their Torches, &c.

Ver. 18. When I blow with a Trumpet, I, and all that are with me.] It is likely he commanded one of the three Troops, with whom he began the Attack, as the next Verſe imports.

Then blow ye the Trumpet alſo, on every Side of all the Camp.] By this it appears, that they did not fall upon them all in one Place, but ſome on one Part of their Camp, ſome on another, that they might ſtrike the greater Terror into them, and put them into Confuſion.

And ſay, the Sword of the LORD, and of Gideon.] The Word Sword is not here in the Hebrew, where theſe Words run thus, For the LORD, and for Gideon: But there being mention of the Sword, Ver. 20. it moved our Tranſlators to add it here alſo: And it is not to be thought contrary to the Deſign of GOD, (who would have the Victory aſcribed to himſelf, Ver. 2.) that Gideon here joins his own Name, with GOD's, when they went to fight; for, as he puts GOD in the firſt place, and names himſelf only as his Miniſter; ſo, it is likely, he had Directions from GOD for it; who knew the Name of Gideon, of whoſe extraordinary Courage, no doubt, the Midianites had heard, would be very formidable to them.

Ver. 19. So Gideon and the hundred Men that were with him.] The Vulgar took an hundred to be put for the whole Hoſt of Gideon, and therefore ſaith, The three hundred Men that were with him: But the LXX expreſly follows the Hebrew; and it is moſt probable that he led only an hundred Men himſelf, the reſt being commanded by ſome other valiant Captains.

And came to the Outside of the Camp.] It is not said on what Quarter; but it is probable on the East Part of their Camp, as the Second Troop set upon them on the North-East Part, and the Third on the South-East: For this Way they knew they would bend their Flight when they were routed, and endeavoured to escape; their own Country, and the Fords of Jordan lying on the East: And if they ran Westward, there were Israelites enough to pursue them, and cut them off.

In the Beginning of the middle Watch, and they had but newly set the Watch.] That is, a little after Midnight: For there were three Watches among the Hebrews and the rest of the Eastern Nations, as Bochart observes out of Kimchi, and R. Solomon, and others; the Night being divided into three Parts: And when the first third Part was ended, they that had watched went to sleep, and another Company succeeded them, till the Morning Watch. The Romans afterward divided the Night into four Parts, from whence we read, in the Gospel, of the fourth Watch.

And they blew the Trumpets, and brake the Pitchers that were in their Hands.] Tho' Gideon placed his Hope in God alone, yet he did not neglect such prudent Stratagems as are used in War, but made an Appearance of a greater Number of Men than he had with him: For hearing three hundred Trumpets sound, the Midianites could not but apprehend a great Army was come to assault them: The breaking of the Pitchers also made a clattering Noise, and the Torches then, on a sudden, flaring in their Eyes, was very amazing, especially when they heard them shout, for the LORD, and for Gideon: He chose also to make his Attack at Midnight, when they were in a dead Sleep, and expected no Disturbance.

Ver. 20. And the three Companies.] The former Words were concerning Gideon and his Men, who began the Attack; whose Example the rest of the three Companies followed, as he required, Ver. 17, 18.

Blew the Trumpets, and break the Pitchers, and held the Lamps in their left Hand, and the Trumpets in their Right Hand to blow withal.] So that they made no use of their Swords, in the first Onset; both Hands being full of something else.

And they cried, The Sword of the LORD, and of Gideon.] But this Stratagem had been of no Efficacy, if GOD had not struck such a Terror into them, when they heard these Words, as quite confounded them: And yet these Words do not import, as I said before, that the Victory was divided between the LORD and Gideon; for it is most likely (as Pet. Martyr observes) that GOD suggested even this Stratagem to Gideon, and made it successful.

Ver. 21. And they stood every Man in his Place round about the Camp.] Not one of the Three Hundred Men stirred a Foot from his Place, but stood there without striking a Stroke; as if they had been only Torch-bearers, to give Light to their Army, to see their Way to the Camp, and to do Execution.

And all the Host ran and cried, and fled.] They did not stand in their Ranks to repel the Israelites; but brake up their Camp, (as the Hebrew Word Jaratz may be translated) and cried out with a lamentable Voice, fleeing as fast as they could to their own Country.

Ver. 22. And the three hundred Men blew the Trumpets.] That is, continued to blow them without ceasing.

And the LORD set every Man's Sword against his Fellow, even throughout all the Host.] Being suddenly awaked out of their Sleep in the Middle of the Night, and hearing such a Noise, as if a vast Multitude were falling upon them, they were in such Disorder, (which was increased by the Clattering of the Pitchers, and the Blaze of the Torches) that they could not distinguish their Friends from their Enemies, but killed one another; every Man falling upon him that was next to him, whom he fancied to be one of Gideon's Army. Thus the Philistines were defeated by Jonathan, 1 Sam. xiv. 16, 20. and the Ammonites, Moabites, and Edomites, in the Days of Jehoshaphat, 2 Chron. xx. 22, 23.

And the Host fled to Beth-shittah, in Zererath, and to the Border of Abel-Meholah, unto Tabbath.] We find none of these Places mentioned elsewhere in Scripture, but only Abel-Meholah, in 1 Kings iv. 12. xix. 16. which being in the Tribe of Manasseh, not far from the River Jordan, may support a Conjecture, that the rest of the Places were in the Way thither.

Ver. 23. And the Men of Israel gathered themselves together out of Napthali, and out of Asher.] He had sent to these Tribes at the first raising of his Army, and also to Zebulun, who, being Neighbours, came to join him, vi. 35.

And out of all Manasseh.] Who were the forwardest in this Enterprize, being his own Tribe.

And pursued after the Midianites.] Tho' they had been lately disbanded by God's Order, yet it is likely they lay ready, if there should be Occasion, to help to compleat the Victory.

Ver. 24. And Gideon sent Messengers throughout all Mount Ephraim.] He was desirous that others should have some Share with him, in finishing this Work; though he alone, with some few, began it, and were exposed to all the Danger. Would to God (saith P. Martyr on this Occasion) that we were of this Spirit in the Church of Christ, that when any noble Work is begun, we would call in all to help to perfect it: But alas! such are our Sins, we oft-times do all we are able, to hinder one another.

Saying, Come down against the Midianites.] He invites them to come to his Assistance against the common Enemy; which his small Handful of Men were not sufficient to destroy, though they had entirely routed them.

And take before them the Waters.] He would have them make such haste, as to possess themselves of the Fords, before the Midianites could get to them.

Unto Beth-barah, and Jordan.] It is very probable, that Beth-barah is the same Place with Beth-abara in St. John's Gospel, i. 28.

being

being the Place, where the Iſraelites paſſed over Jordan, when they firſt entered Canaan: And then by Jordan muſt be meant all the Fords upon this River, from Beth-barah to the Lake of Geneſaret.

Then all the Men of Ephraim gathered themſelves together, and took the Waters unto Beth-barah and Jordan.] Poſted themſelves all along the River, from the Lake before-mentioned, unto Beth-barah.

Ver. 25. And they took two Princes of the Midianites.] Two great Commanders, as the Word Sarim ſignifies, which we tranſlate Princes.

Oreb and Zeeb.] From hence ſome gather that the Midianitiſh Language did not much differ from the Hebrew: In which Oreb ſignifies a Crow, and Zeeb a Wolf; from which Creatures, and ſuch like, it ſeems very anciently great Men thought fit to take the Names of their Families: As the Romans did afterwards (among whom we read of the Corvini, and Gracchi, and Aquilini, &c.) either as Omens, or as Monuments of their undaunted Courage and Dexterity in Military Achievements.

And they ſlew Oreb upon the Rock Oreb.] It is likely that there he was taken hidden in ſome Hole; and from his Slaughter there, the Rock had its Name in future Times.

And Zeeb they ſlew at the Wine-preſs of Zeeb.] Where he alſo in like manner being taken and ſlain, gave Name to this Place.

And purſued Midian.] Did not content themſelves with this, but purſued them to the other Side of Jordan; whither ſome of them had eſcaped, before they would obey Gideon's Summons.

And brought the Heads of Oreb and Zeeb to Gideon.] As the manner was in After-times, when they would gratify a great Conqueror, with a welcome Spectacle: For thus Pompey's Head was offered to Cæſar, and Cicero's to Mark Anthony.

On the other Side Jordan.] Over which we read (viii. 4.) Gideon paſſed, in the Purſuit of the Enemy.

CHAP. VIII.

Ver. 1. AND the Men of Ephraim ſaid unto him.] When they preſented the Heads of the two Princes unto him.

Why haſt thou ſerved us thus?] They thought themſelves ſlighted by their Brethren of the Tribe of Manaſſeh; which they took the more heinouſly, becauſe they looked upon themſelves to be every way ſuperior to them, by the Bleſſing of Jacob.

That thou calledſt us not, when thou wenteſt to fight with the Midianites.] As he had done other meaner Tribes, (vi. 35.) who were not ſo able to aſſiſt him as themſelves.

And they did chide with him ſharply.] Spake very angry Words, as if they would have come to Blows.

Ver. 2. And he ſaid, what have I done now in Compariſon with you?] Proud Men love to be praiſed; and therefore he magnifies their Service as far ſurpaſſing his own.

Is not the Gleaning of the Grapes of Ephraim, better than the Vintage of Abiezer?] A common Proverb, I ſuppoſe, in thoſe Days, whereby they were wont to commend the ſmalleſt Action of one, as ſuperior to the greateſt of another: And here it is moſt fitly applied; for it is as if he had ſaid, Theſe ſcattered Parties that you have gleaned and picked up (as we now ſpeak) at the Fords of Jordan, are far more than thoſe which I and my whole Hoſt (as it is called, vii. 15.) have deſtroyed.

Ver. 3. GOD hath delivered into your Hands the Princes of Midian, Oreb and Zeeb.] Which he was content they ſhould think more conſiderable than all the common Men that he had vanquiſhed.

And what was I able to do in Compariſon with you?] To yield unto others the Glory which they affect, wonderfully appeaſes their higheſt Diſpleaſure.

Then their Anger was abated towards him, when he had ſaid that.] According to that of Solomon, Prov. xv. 1. This is an Argument of the ſingular Modeſty and Prudence of Gideon, and no leſs conſpicuous in him than his Courage; which is a Mixture that rarely meets together, but is abſolutely neceſſary to make a truly great Man; who never appears ſo great, as when he treats inſolent Men with Humility, and angry Men with Meekneſs.

Ver. 4. And Gideon came to Jordan, and paſſed over.] Or rather, had paſſed over; for he was gone over Jordan before Oreb and Zeeb were taken; but it is not related till now, that what concerned the Ephraimites might be told all together, without Interruption.

He and the three hundred Men that were with him.] Not one of which was loſt.

Faint, yet purſuing them.] Tired with a long March, and eager Purſuit; which notwithſtanding they continued, being more ſolicitous for the publick Safety than their own.

Ver. 5. And he ſaid unto the Men of Succoth.] A City in the Tribe of Gad, mentioned in Gen. xxxiii. 17. and other Places.

Give, I pray you, Loaves of Bread unto the People that follow me.] A ſmall Requeſt, conſidering their great Merits.

For they be faint, and I am purſuing after Zebah and Zalmunna.] He gives two Reaſons for his Requeſt; becauſe his Men were faint with a whole Night's Labour for the publick Safety, and he had not made his Victory ſo compleat as he hoped to do, if his Men were refreſhed and enabled to purſue the Enemy.

Kings of Midian.] It is no Wonder we read of more Kings than one in this Country, there being Five in Moſes's Time, (Numb. xxxi. 8.) and more than Five times Five in Canaan, which was divided into many petty Kingdoms: And therefore if we take Oreb and Zeeb alſo to have been Kings, there is no Improbability in it.

Ver. 6. And the Princes of Succoth ſaid.] The Rulers and Governors of the City, who had the chief Authority among them; as Oreb and Zeeb

Zeeb had in the Army of Midian, for it is the very ſame Word in the Hebrew.

Are the Hands of Zebah and Zalmunna now in thy Hand, that we ſhould give Bread unto thy Army?] They bid him firſt take thoſe Kings Captives, and bring them thither with their Hands bound behind them, before he made any Demands of them. It is a bitter ſort of Taunt or Deriſion, ariſing from Irreligion; which made them think there was nothing of GOD in this Victory, and that he would not be able to perfect it.

Ver. 7. And Gideon ſaid, Therefore when the LORD hath delivered Zebah and Zalmunna into my Hand.] As he was confident he would.

Then will I tear your Fleſh with the Thorns of the Wilderneſs, and with Briers.] This City was near to a Wilderneſs, in which there were plenty of Thorns and Briers; with which he threatens to threſh their Fleſh, as the Word is in the Hebrew: Which ſome think ſignifies, that laying Briers and Thorns upon their naked Bodies, he intended to bring the Cart-wheel over them (as the Manner was of threſhing out their Corn) to faſten them deep in their Fleſh, and then cruſh them to Death: Such a Kind of Puniſhment David inflicted on the Ammonites, 2 Sam. xii. ult.

Ver. 8. And he went up from thence.] He would not ſtay to avenge this Repulſe at preſent, but ſacrificed his private Reſentment to the Publick Service, and therefore went on after the Enemy.

Unto Penuel.] Another City in the Tribe of Gad, not far from Succoth; unto both which Jacob gave their Name, Gen. xxxii. 30. xxxiii. 17.

And ſpake unto them likewiſe.] Deſired ſome Proviſion of them, for the ſame Reaſon.

And the Men of Penuel.] i. e. The principal Perſons of the City.

Anſwered him as the Men of Succoth had anſwered him.] It is very likely they were Idolaters; and therefore hated Gideon, who began to reform Religion: And, truſting to the Strength of their Tower, deſpiſed the ſmall Forces he had with him.

Ver. 9. And he ſpake unto the Men of Penuel, ſaying, When I come again in Peace, I will break down this Tower.] In which they confided; and perhaps pointed to it, when they gave him their rude Anſwer.

Ver. 10. Now Zebah and Zalmunna were in Karkor.] We read of this Place no where elſe; and therefore it is but a Conjecture that it was in the Confines of the Tribe of Gad, S. Hierom ſaith, There was a Caſtle in his Time called Carcaria, about a Day's Journey from the City Petra, and Euſebius ſaith the ſame.

And all the Hoſt with them.] That is, all the Troops or Regiments, as we now ſpeak, that fled with them.

About Fifteen Thouſand Men, all that were left of all the Hoſts of the Children of the Eaſt.] This moved thoſe of Succoth and Penuel to mock at Gideon; that he ſhould think with Three Hundred Men, and they fatigued, (as we now ſpeak) to vanquiſh Fifteen Thouſand, and that he ſhould make Demands to them, as if he had his Enemies already in his Power.

For there fell an Hundred and Twenty Thouſand Men that drew Sword.] Beſides all the People that attended their Baggage.

Ver. 11. And Gideon went up by the Way of them that dwelt in Tents.] He fetched a Compaſs, by the Country of the Arabians called Scenitæ, becauſe they dwelt in Tents: And ſo he came upon the Back of Zebah and Zalmunna; where they ſuſpected no Danger.

On the Eaſt of Nobah and Jogbehah.] Two Cities, the laſt of which is expreſly ſaid to be in the Tribe of Gad, Numb. xxxii. 35. and the former in the Tribe of Manaſſeh, on the Borders of Gad, as may be gathered from this Place.

And ſmote the Hoſt, for the Hoſt was ſecure.] He fell upon them, it is very probable, in the Night, as he had done upon their main Army at the firſt: And they having fled as faſt as they could the Day, and Part of the Night before, were gone to take their Reſt; ſuppoſing they had been out of all Danger of Diſturbance, now they were got ſo far from the Place of Battle.

Ver. 12. And when Zebah and Zalmunna fled, he purſued after them.] We read of no Refreſhment that he and his Men had all this time; but either they met with ſome by the Way, or GOD miraculouſly ſupported them.

And took the two Kings of Midian, Zebah and Zalmunna, and diſcomfited all the Hoſt.] Having routed their Army, the two Kings could make little Reſiſtance.

Ver. 13. And Gideon the Son of Joaſh returned from the Battle before the Sun was up.] The Hebrew Words Milmahaleh Hacheres are ſo variouſly tranſlated by very learned Men, that it hath made it uncertain whether he returned after Sunriſe, or a little before it ſet, (as Kimchi among the Jews, and Mercer among Chriſtians underſtand it) or, as our Tranſlation, before Sunriſe: So the Vulgar, with Junius and Tremellius, and others. And then it ſhews, both that Gideon had ſmote the Army in the Night, and that he made ſuch Haſte to return, that he came to Succoth before they were aware, by break of Day.

Ver. 14. And caught a young Man of the Men of Succoth, and enquired of him.] Surprized him in the Field, and examined him who were the principal Men of the City.

And he deſcribed to him the Princes of Succoth, and the Elders thereof, even threeſcore and ſeventeen Men.] He wrote down (as the Hebrew Word for deſcribe ſignifies) the Names, and, perhaps, the Dwellings of the great Men of the City, and of the Judges; who were the Perſons that derided him, and whom alone he intended to puniſh; not all the People, who were not in the Guilt.

Ver. 15. And he came unto the Men of Succoth.] Got into the City very early; and called thoſe Men before him, who had put the late Affront upon him.

And

And ſaid, Behold Zebah and Zalmunna, with whom you upbraided me.] He kept theſe two Kings alive on purpoſe that the Princes of Succoth might ſee the LORD had delivered them into his Hand; and made their Jeers turn to their own Shame.

Saying, Are the Hands of Zebah and Zalmunna in thy Hand, that we ſhould give Bread unto thy Men that are weary?] He repeats their own Words to them (Ver. 6.) that he might reproach them with their inhuman Uſage of him; when he was in Diſtreſs, and had done ſuch Wonders for their Preſervation.

Ver. 16. And he took the Elders of the City.] Under this Name of Elders, all their great Men are comprehended.

And Thorns of the Wilderneſs and Briers.] Which he had ready at Hand.

And with them he taught the Men of Succoth.] He threſhed or tare them (as he threatened, Ver. 7. and as ſome Copies here have it) and by this ſevere Correction, taught them better Manners, and more Wiſdom. It is not ſaid that he tormented them till they expired, (as ſome think he did, ſee Ver. 7.) for then it would have been as plainly ſaid, as it is in the next Verſe of the Men of Penuel.

Ver. 17. And he beat down the Tower of Penuel, and ſlew the Men of the City.] It is not ſaid the Princes and Elders, and therefore this looks as if the whole City had been guilty of the Affront put upon him, and conſequently puniſhed by him. But the Men of the City in this Story hath ſignified only the principal Perſons in it, as I interpreted Ver. 8. See Ver. 15, 16. and therefore it is probable no other Men are here meant, who fled into the Tower, perhaps, for Safety, (knowing their own Guilt, and the Danger they were in of ſuffering for it) and were there ſlain.

Ver. 18. Then ſaid he unto Zebah and Zalmunna, What manner of Men were they, whom ye ſlew at Tabor?] Where Gideon brought them before him to be judged, is uncertain: And when it was that they ſlew ſome Iſraelites at Tabor, we can but gueſs. It is probable he brought them out to receive their Sentence, after he came Home: And that ſome who hid themſelves in Dens and Caves which were in the Mountains, (vi. 2.) being found out, were ſlain by the Midianites. And Gideon's Brethren being miſſing, he deſired to find out, whether they were the Perſons whom they ſlew.

And they anſwered, As thou art, ſo were they.] They were very like him, and perhaps reſembled him in their Countenance; as Brethren frequently do one another.

Every one reſembled the Children of a King.] By this it appears, that Gideon was of a goodly Preſence; carrying Greatneſs and Majeſty in his Aſpect: And that Kings took Care in thoſe Days to match only with graceful Perſons; by whom they might hope to have Children like to themſelves.

Ver. 19. And he ſaid, They were my Brethren, even the Sons of my Mother.] Though, perhaps, not by the ſame Father.

As the LORD liveth, if he had ſpared them alive.] As generous Men are wont to do comely and graceful Perſons; who look like Men of Quality, as we now ſpeak.

I would not ſlay you.] For not being of the Race of Canaan, he was not bound by the Law to cut them off.

Ver. 20. And he ſaid unto Jether his Firſt-born, Up and ſlay them.] It was not unuſual for great Perſons to do Execution upon Offenders in antient Times; no more than it unbecame them to ſentence them Death: And therefore they had not, as now, ſuch as the Romans called Carnifices, publick Executioners; but Saul had ſuch as waited on him kill the Prieſts; and Doeg, one of his great Officers, did it, 1 Sam. xxii. 17, 18. And Samuel himſelf is ſaid to have hewed Agag to pieces in Gilgal; and Benaiah, the General of the Army, to have fallen upon Joab at the Horns of the Altar. Accordingly Gideon would have had his Son do this Execution, that he might be early animated againſt the Enemies of Iſrael; as Hannibal is reported, when he was a Boy, to have been incenſed againſt the Romans.

But the Youth drew not his Sword; for he feared, becauſe he was yet a Youth.] They were Men, it is likely, of great Stature, and of a fierce and ſtern Countenance, who (as appears by the Story) feared not Death; which made the Youth afraid even to look upon them.

Ver. 21. Then Zebah and Zalmunna ſaid, Ariſe thou, and fall upon us, for as the Man is, ſo is his Strength.] They thought it more honourable to die by the Hand of Gideon, who was a Man of as great Strength, as Dignity; and would ſooner diſpatch them, than a Strippling could do.

And Gideon aroſe, and ſlew Zebah and Zalmunna, and took away the Ornaments that were about their Camels Necks.] As well as all the Ornaments, which they wore themſelves. The Word Saharonim, is found no where but here, and Ver. 26. and in Iſaiah iii. 18. where we tranſlate it round Tires like the Moon. So our Margin alſo in this Place, Ornaments like the Moon; following the LXX, who tranſlate it μηνίσκους, little Moons. So antient was this Cuſtom of wearing Ornaments of this Figure; which was ſpread afterward over many Nations. Huetius thinks it came originally from the Phœnicians, who were the Worſhippers of Aſtarte, i. e. the Moon, and went from them to the Arabians, who were very antiently devoted to the Moon, who propagated it to the Turks; and the Brachmans alſo are wont to adorn their Heads in the ſame Figure; as he obſerves in his Demonſtr. Evangel. Propoſ. iv. p. 197.

Ver. 22. Then the Men of Iſrael ſaid unto Gideon, Rule thou over us, both thou and thy Son, and thy Son's Son alſo.] They would have made his Dominion over them, Hereditary.

For thou haſt delivered us from the Hand of Midian.] They pretended to make this Offer, out of Gratitude to him; but in Truth, they were diſpoſed now (as their Poſterity were afterward) to throw off the Divine Government; being deſirous to ſet a King over themſelves, like the reſt of the Nations round about them. And now they thought was a fit Opportunity; when ſuch an extraordinary Judge was raiſed up, as had done Wonders beyond all his Predeceſſors; and might, they thought, be ambitious enough to eſtabliſh the ſupreme Authority in his Family.

Ver. 23. But Gideon ſaid, I will not rule over you, neither ſhall my Son rule over you.] He abſolutely rejected their Offer; becauſe he looked upon GOD as their King, who appointed what Deputy he pleaſed to rule them: And therefore he accounted this to be an Attempt to alter the Government of GOD, without aſking his Conſent.

The LORD ſhall rule over you.] As he hath done hitherto. This ſhews, that theſe two could not conſiſt together; a ſucceſſive Dominion of Kings, and ſuch Governors as they now had by the divine Appointment. Such a one was Gideon, raiſed up by GOD when they needed a Deliverer; and therefore he durſt not accept of the Authority they offered him, becauſe it was a thing ſacred, and proper only to the divine Majeſty to order who ſhould govern: Whence it is, that the Judgment which was adminiſtred among that People, was called GOD's Judgment, Deut. i. 17. and Solomon is ſaid to ſit upon the Throne of the LORD, 1 Chron. xxix. 23. and the Kingdom of his Poſterity is called the Kingdom of the LORD, 2 Chron. xiii. 8. becauſe, before Kings were ſettled in Iſrael, the LORD was their King; from whom the Government was derived to the Houſe of David by a ſpecial Act of God.

Ver. 24. And Gideon ſaid unto them, I would deſire a Requeſt of you.] Which he thought, after ſuch a great Offer from them, they would not deny him.

That ye would give me every Man the Ear-rings of his Prey.] He doth not aſk all the Ear-rings they had got; but from every Man one, or as many as he pleaſed.

For they had golden Ear-rings, becauſe they were Iſhmaelites.] The Chaldee Paraphraſt well expreſſes it, becauſe they were Arabians, who are called the Children of the Eaſt, vi. 3. and generally wore ſuch Ornaments, as I obſerved upon Exod. xxxii. 2. Iſhmaelites alſo, and Midianites were ſo near Neighbours, and ſo mixed together, that the Scripture ſpeaks of them as one People. See upon Gen. xxxvii. 28.

Ver. 25. And they anſwered, We will willingly give them; and they ſpread a Garment, and did caſt therein every Man the Ear-rings of his Prey.] They made no difficulty to grant his Requeſt; but, as we ſpeak, no ſooner ſaid than done.

Ver. 26. And the Weight of the Golden Ear-rings that he requeſted, was a thouſand and ſeven hundred Shekels of Gold.] It is eaſy to compute what this makes of our Money, by conſidering the Value of a Shekel, and the Proportion that Silver holds to Gold. Of which ſee the very learned Treatiſe of the Biſhop of Peterborough, concerning Scripture Weights and Meaſures, Chap. 4.

Beſide Ornaments.] Of which ſee above, Ver. 21.

And the Collars.] The Hebrew Word Hanetiphoth, is thought to ſignify little Pots of precious Ointments. For Neteph ſignifies a Drop or a Tear; the moſt precious of which is Balſam. Among the Spoils of Darius (as Arias Montanus obſerves) Hiſtorians mention Boxes of Ointments ſet with precious Stones, and curiouſly wrought with elegant Art.

And Purple Raiment that was on the Kings of Midian.] Who were diſtinguiſhed from other Men, as Kings are now, by Robes peculiar to them.

And beſide the Chains that were upon their Camels Necks.] All theſe, I take it, fell to Gideon's Share, by the Cuſtom of War, without aſking. For it was the ancient Manner, as Grotius obſerves, to give the Commander in Chief the beſt of the Spoils they had taken.

Ver. 27. And Gideon made an Ephod thereof.] He would not have them think that he requeſted the Ear-rings, for his own private Gain; but to employ them religiouſly in the Service of GOD, by making a Monument of his Victory, as obtained ſolely by the miraculous Mercy of GOD, for the reſtoring of his true Religion among them. It is commonly ſaid, That ſo much Gold could not be laid out upon an Ephod, and therefore ſome take this for a ſhort Expreſſion, to ſignify the Breaſt-Plate, with the Urim and Thummim; that he (being now ſupreme Governor) might conſult GOD at his own Houſe, in ſuch Difficulties as might occur: And they think it probable that he made alſo a private Tabernacle with Cherubims: For how elſe could he employ ſuch a Quantity of Gold? An Ephod being only fine Linnen embroidered with it, &c. which would not coſt much. See Exod. xxviii. 6. Theodoret and St. Auſtin ſeem to incline to this Opinion; for which I refer the Reader to our Dr. Spencer in his moſt learned Work, de Leg. & Rit. Hebr. P. 881. But I do not ſee how Gideon can be excuſed from Apoſtacy from GOD, if he ſet up an Oracle in his own Houſe; nor was there any need of it, Shiloh being not far from him, in the Tribe of Ephraim, which adjoined to this of Manaſſeh. Therefore I take this Ephod to have been only a Monument of his Victory, and of GOD's great Mercy, which Conquerors were wont to erect: But he would not follow the common Cuſtom in erecting a Pillar, and hanging up Trophies, or any thing of that Nature; but choſe to make an Ephod, as a Token that he aſcribed his Victory only to GOD, and triumphed in nothing, but only in the Reſtoration of the true Religion by his means. As for the Gold that was laid out upon it, the Reader may obſerve, that it is ſaid he made an Ephod thereof, that is, out of this Offering; but not that it was all ſpent in this.

And put it in his City, even in Ophrah.] This is to be well noted; becauſe I think it ſhews that Gideon did not make this, that he might have reſort to GOD thereby on all Occaſions at home; for he went and dwelt at another Place, Ver. 29. It was kept here therefore as a Monument of GOD's appearing to him, and of the Sacrifice the Angel here offered, and of all the Wonders that followed, by the Power of GOD who dwelt in the Sanctuary. There are thoſe who think, that becauſe GOD bad Gideon build an Altar, and offer his Father's ſecond Bullock in Ophrah, vi. 26. he thence concluded, he might take upon him to have Prieſtly Garments made, and the High Prieſt came to miniſter at Ophrah upon extraordinary Occaſions. But he underſtood Religion better than to make ſuch Concluſions, unleſs he had received a divine Command for this, as he did for the building of an Altar.

And all Iſrael went thither a whoring after it.] This, I ſuppoſe, was after his Death, when the People began to return to Idolatry; and had this Fancy, among others, that GOD would anſwer them here where this Ephod was, as well as at his Tabernacle in Shiloh, where he dwelt.

Which Thing became a Snare unto Gideon and his Houſe.] Occaſioned the Ruin of him, and of his Family. For tho' they periſhed after his Death, yet he may be ſaid to have ſuffered with them, becauſe his Name and Memory, which is preſerved in Mens Poſterity, was in a manner extinct in Iſrael.

Ver. 28. Thus was Midian ſubdued before the Children of Iſrael, ſo that they lifted up their Heads no more.] To oppreſs the Iſraelites; or, perhaps, to diſturb any of their Neighbours.

And the Country was in Quietneſs forty Years, in the Days of Gideon.] The Country was in Quiet in the fortieth Year after the former Reſt reſtored to it by Deborah and Barak, as our Primate Uſher underſtands it, in his Annals ad A. M. 2759. and in his Chronologia Sacra, Pars 1. Cap. xiii. where, in more Words, he thus interprets it: In the fortieth Year after the Reſt reſtored by Deborah and Barak, the Land began to reſt again in the Days of Gideon, after he had ſubdued the Midianites, who had oppreſſed them ſeven Years. But the plaineſt Account is, that after ſeven Years Oppreſſion by the Midianites, the Country was in Peace forty Years in the Days of Gideon, who was their Deliverer; and died, as we read Ver. 32. in a good old Age.

Ver. 29. And Jerubbaal the Son of Joaſh went and dwelt in his own Houſe.] Having refuſed to be a King, and diſmiſſed his Army, he went from Ophrah, (as I underſtand it) and lived not ſo publickly as he had done, but in a private Houſe of his own in the Country.

Ver. 30. And Gideon had threeſcore and ten Sons, of his Body begotten.] Theſe laſt Words are added to ſhew, that they were none of them adopted Sons.

For he had many Wives.] According to the Manner of thoſe Times. And this is ſaid to leſſen the Wonder of having ſo many Children; many Women bringing two or three at a Birth, and one Woman having had above twenty Children by one Man.

Ver. 31. And his Concubine.] The Difference between a Wife and a Concubine hath been often noted. Their Wives adminiſtred the Affairs of the Family, the Concubines meddled not with them; but, as the Word ſignifies, were only admitted to their Beds: And their Children did not inherit, though they were married to them; for they were not Harlots, but a ſecondary Sort of Wives.

That was in Shechem.] A famous City in the Tribe of Ephraim, adjoining to that of Manaſſeh; where going frequently to judge the People, he took a Wife of this Sort, who lived conſtantly with her Father in this City, and not in Gideon's Family.

She alſo bare him a Son.] Beſides the Seventy before-mentioned, as Joſephus underſtands it.

Whoſe Name was Abimelech.] His Name is here ſet down, when nothing is ſaid of the Names of the reſt, becauſe the following Story depends upon it. And perhaps his Mother gave him this Name (ſignifying, My Father a King) out of Pride and Arrogance; that ſhe might be looked upon as the Wife of one who was thought to deſerve a Kingdom, tho' he did not accept it: Which afterwards, it's likely, inflamed the Mind of this Son to affect the Royal Dignity.

Ver. 32. And Gideon the Son of Joaſh died in a good old Age.] This is a Phraſe often uſed in Scripture, to ſignify that ſuch Perſons lived long, and in great Proſperity and Happineſs.

And was buried in the Sepulchre of Joaſh his Father, in Ophrah of the Abiezrites.] Which was accounted a great Bleſſing in thoſe Days.

Ver. 33. And it came to paſs, as ſoon as Gideon was dead, that the Children of Iſrael turned again.] He preſerved them, it ſeems, in the true Religion while he lived; but they had no great Affection to it, it appears, by their revolting from it as ſoon as he was dead.

And went a whoring after Baalim.] This ſeems to have been a general Name of all the Gods which they worſhipped; particularly of Dæmons; which were all called Baalim from the firſt Dæmon, or deified King in the World, Belus or Baal, as Mr. Mede thinks, Book 3. P. 777.

And made Baal-berith their God.] They worſhipped a new God, which was not known to them before, nor ever mentioned but here, and in the next Chapter: Who was reputed, as ſome think, the God that puniſhed thoſe who broke their Covenants and Contracts; or, as others, was ſo called, becauſe his Servants covenanted to maintain his Worſhip and Service. But Bochartus, by a more probable Conjecture, interprets it, Baal of Berith, i. e. of Berytus. That Baal which was worſhipped in that famous City, which had its Name from Beroe, the Daughter of Venus and Adonis, who was there worſhiped, as Nonnus tells us. This he takes to be the Baal here mentioned; for Baal is of the Feminine Gender, as well as of the Maſculine, as appears from St. Paul, Rom. xi. 4. and many Places of the LXX, which Bochartus mentions Lib. 2. Canaan, Cap. 17.

Ver. 34. And the Children of Iſrael remembred not the LORD their GOD, who had delivered them out of the Hands of all their Enemies on every Side.] Out of the Hand of the King of Meſopotamia, and then of the Moabites, and after that of the Canaanites, and now lately of the Midianites, and the Children of the Eaſt.

Ver. 35. Neither ſhewed they Kindneſs to the Houſe of Jerubbaal, namely Gideon.] No wonder they were ſo ungrateful to his Family, when they were ſo forgetful of God: The Fear of whom is the Foundation of all Virtue.

According to all the Goodneſs which he had ſhewn unto Iſrael.] In hazarding his Life freely, and working for them a glorious Deliverance; and in leaving them in their Liberty, by refuſing the deſpotick Power, which they offered to put into his Hands; in governing them ſo prudently many Years, that he left them in Peace, and in the Poſſeſſion of God's true Religion, when he died.

CHAP. IX.

Ver. 1. AND Abimelech the Son of Jerubbaal went.] From his Father's Houſe, where it is likely he was educated.

Unto Shechem.] The Place of his Nativity.

Unto his Mother's Brethren.] Tho' the Word Brethren have many times a large Signification, yet it is reaſonable here to underſtand it properly, of his Uncles by the Mother's Side; for his other near Kindred are mentioned in the Words following.

And communed with them, and with all the Family of the Houſe of his Mother's Father, ſaying.] Diſcourſed with them, and with all the reſt of his Couſins, and his near Kinſmen, deſcended from his Grandfather.

Ver. 2. Speak I pray you in the Ears of all the Men of Shechem.] By the Men of this City are to be underſtood, the chief Perſons of Authority in it, as in the foregoing Chapter the Men of Succoth ſignify the Princes and Elders of that Place.

Whether is better for you, either that all the Sons of Jerubbaal (which are threeſcore and ten Perſons) reign over you, or that one reign over you?] He wickedly ſuppoſed that the Sons of Jerubbaal were ambitious of the Kingdom which their Father refuſed; and therefore prays them to conſider, what horrible Diviſions and Confuſion it would make, if ſo many were permitted to pretend to the Government; and how much better it would be to chuſe one of them from among the reſt; pointing then (in the next Words) to himſelf. He uſes the Argument of Homer, mentioned by Ariſtotle, ἐχ' ἀγαθὸν πολυκοιρανίη, &c. It is better to be ſubject to the Rule of one Man, than of many.

Remember alſo that I am your Bone, and your Fleſh.] Since there muſt be a King, he repreſents himſelf, as the moſt deſirable to them of all other ſingle Perſons, he being of the ſame Tribe, and their Fellow Citizen.

Ver. 3. And his Mother's Brethren ſpake of him in the Ears of the Men of Shechem, all theſe Words.] They were ready enough to promote his Deſign, hoping for Preferment under him. But neither he nor they conſidered, that it did not belong to them to ſet a Judge over the People, much leſs a King, which was to ſhake off the Government of God.

And their Hearts inclined to follow Abimelech, for they ſaid, He is our Brother.] This Conſideration of their Intereſt in him, prevailed with them againſt the cleareſt Reaſon. For if it had been in any Perſon's Power to appoint a King, but GOD alone, the Men of Shechem had it not in them, but all the Men of Iſrael ought to have been conſulted.

Ver. 4. And they gave him threeſcore and ten Pieces of Silver out of the Houſe of Baal-berith.] Out of the publick Treaſury, which was in this Temple. It is uncertain what is meant by Pieces of Silver; but, in all Probability, more than Shekels; for they would have been but a ſmall Preſent to make a Man a Prince. Therefore the Vulgar tranſlate it ſo many Pound Weight of Silver, which learned Men approve of, particularly Staniſlaus Grepſius, in his Book de Siclo & Talento. For ſeventy Shekels was too little for his Occaſions; and ſo many Talents too much for them to give. And thus Joſephus interprets Gen. xxxvii. 28. where it is ſaid, Joſeph was ſold to the Iſhmaelites for twenty Pieces of Silver; that is, for ſo many Pound Weight of it.

Wherewith Abimelech hired vain and light Perſons.] The Hebrew Word Rekim, which we tranſlate vain, ſignifies empty; that is, poor and needy Perſons: And the other Word Pochazim, idle, vagabond Fellows, that could ſettle to no Buſineſs, but wandred about the Country; who being commonly Men of looſe Lives, were fitteſt for his Purpoſe. Therefore Kimchi underſtands by them, light-headed Perſons, (as we ſpeak) who have no ſettled Principles, but are diſpoſed to do any thing, tho' never ſo wicked. Such Zephaniah ſaith the Prophets in his Time were, iii. 4. light and treacherous.

Which followed him.] As a conſtant Guard to him.

Ver. 5. And he went into his Father's Houſe at Ophrah.] With this wicked Crew to attend him; who, I ſuppoſe, beſet the Houſe, that none might eſcape out of it. I ſuppoſed that he had a Houſe in the Country, viii. 29. for I could not ſee with what Propriety he could be ſaid to go and dwell in his Houſe at Ophrah, in which he had always lived. But this was the Houſe of the Family, where all his Children lived.

And ſlew his Brethren the Sons of Jerubbaal, being threeſcore and ten Perſons.] All of them, except Jotham. Thus Romulus ſlew his Brother Remus, as Tully obſerves, (Lib. 3. de Officiis) Specie quadam utilitatis, under the ſpecious Pretence of the publick Good; that the Kingdom would be governed more happily by one, than by two Perſons.

Upon one Stone.] Some underſtand this, as if he intended to make them a great Victim to Baal; for a Stone was ſometimes uſed for an Altar, 1 Sam. vi. 14, 15. And ſo they take this to have been done in Revenge of the Sacrifice of the Bullock prepared for Baal upon the Rock, (vi. 25, 26.) which Crime of Gideon, as theſe Idolaters accounted it, they deſigned to expiate by the Sacrifice of all his Sons that they could lay hold on. For that the Men of Shechem joined in this impious Slaughter, is manifeſt from Ver. 18. and 24. of this Chapter.

Notwithſtanding, yet Jotham, the youngeſt Son of Jerubbaal, was left; for he hid himſelf.]

Either he had ſome Notice of their Intention, and ſaved himſelf by Flight, or when they came to ſeize them, got into ſome ſecret Place in the Houſe, where they could not find him; or, by ſome that pitied his Youth, he was preſerved from falling into their Hands. So the LXX. and the Vulgar tranſlate it, He was hid.

Ver. 6. And all the Men of Shechem gathered themſelves together, and all the Houſe of Millo.] None ſeem to have underſtood theſe Words better than Corn. Bertram, in his little Book de Republ. Jud. Cap. 9. Where by Col-baale Shechem, he underſtands all the principal Men or Lords of that City; Principes Civitatis, the Princes of the City, by whom it was governed: And by Col-beth Millo, All the Citizens, who in a full Aſſembly (for Millo ſignifies Fulneſs) agreed upon what follows: And ſo we read in the next Chapter, x. 18. that the People and Princes of Gilead conſulted together, who ſhould fight for them; that is, All the Citizens met together, with their Elders, (as theſe Princes are called, xi. 5.) to adviſe about this Matter: For when the Canaanites, and other People, ruled over the Iſraelites and oppreſſed them, they contented themſelves with ſetting ſuch a Power over them, as ſhould make them pay what Tribute they impoſed, and other Taxes; but left them to their own Government and Laws, as appears from viii. 14. where we read of the Elders of Succoth in the Time of the Midianites.

And went.] To the Place where they were wont to meet for publick Buſineſs.

And made Abimelech King.] Voted him their King in full Senate.

In the Plain of the Pillar that was in Shechem.] Or the Oak (as St. Hierom commonly tranſlates this Word Elon) where Joſhua ſet up a Pillar as a Token of the Covenant between God and them, Joſh. xxiv. 26. That is, in a very remarkable Place, as the Manner was to do ſuch Things: But here, I ſuppoſe, they proclaimed him King, after they had choſen him in the common Hall of the City: And ſome think they intended hereby to declare, that they would not forſake the Worſhip of God, to which they were engaged, but only to join the Worſhip of Baal with him: But ſee what I have noted of this Pillar, Deut. xxvii. 13. And after all it muſt be confeſſed, that the Hebrew Word Mutzab doth not certainly ſignify a Pillar; for I cannot find it ſo uſed in any other Place of Scripture: And therefore St. Hierom tranſlates this Paſſage thus, By the Oak which ſtood in Shechem, and the LXX. ἐν βαλάνῳ τῆς ϛάσεως, which ſeems to ſignify as if it was the Place where they had their Stations, or ſolemn Aſſemblies. See Mr. Mede's Diſcourſe xviii.

Ver. 7. And when they told it Jotham.] Who had ſome Friends among them, that took care to inform him of what paſſed: But it is an amazing thing, that in all Iſrael there ſhould none be found, to revenge the Murder of this noble Family: Of which no Account can be given, but that, with the Senſe of God and Religion, they had loſt all Goodneſs and Virtue. See viii. 34, 35.

He went.] From the Place where he lay hid.

And ſtood on the Top of Mount Gerezim.] Which overlooked the City of Shechem. See Deut. xxvii. 12, 13.

And lift up his Voice, and cried and ſaid unto them.] This was not on the ſame Day that Abimelech was inaugurated, but ſome Time after; when he, it is probable, was abſent, and all the People met (as Joſephus ſaith) at a publick Feſtival; which was a fair Opportunity for him to declare his Mind to them.

Hearken unto me, ye Men of Shechem, that God may hearken unto you.] It is a Form of Adjuration, whereby he not only intreats, but obliges them to be as attentive to him, as they deſired God would be to their Requeſts.

Ver. 8. The Trees went forth on a Time.] By this it appears, that ſuch Fictions as theſe, wherein the moſt ſerious Truths are repreſented, were in uſe among the Jews (as they are ſtill in the Eaſtern Countries) long before the Time of Æſop, or any other Author that we know of. And they made Choice of them for two Reaſons; becauſe Men would ſuffer themſelves to be reprehended this Way, when they would not endure plain Words; and they heard them alſo with Delight and Pleaſure, and more eaſily remembred them than a rational Diſcourſe. So A. Gellius obſerves of Æſop's Fables, that they ſlid into the Mind and Affections of Men, cum audiendi quadam illecebra, with a certain Enticement to hear them, Lib. 2. Cap. 29.

To anoint a King over them.] This was two hundred Years (as Mr. Selden obſerves in his Titles of Honour) before the firſt Kings of Iſrael (Saul and David) were anointed. Which ſhews the great Antiquity of this Cuſtom; and that it was the ſame to anoint a Perſon, and to declare him King.

And they ſaid unto the Olive Tree, Reign thou over us.] By this they would eaſily apprehend he meant his Father Gideon; to whom all the Iſraelites had offered the Kingdom, when he was in a moſt flouriſhing Condition, and had newly triumphed over their Enemies.

Ver. 9. But the Olive Tree ſaid unto them.] In this Reply he repreſents his Refuſal of the Offer, and the Reaſon of it.

Shall I leave my Fatneſs, wherewith by me they honour God and Man.] He makes the Trees ſpeak after the Manner of Men; who, when they are in a plentiful Condition, and live at Eaſe, are not willing to take upon themſelves a great deal of Care and Trouble, eſpecially when they think themſelves to have Honour enough already; as Gideon had, in being ſuch a glorious Conqueror over mighty Enemies. God and Man are ſaid to be honoured by Oil, becauſe it was offered in Sacrifice to God, and fed the Lamps of his Houſe; and Prieſts were wont to be anointed with it among Men. See Levit. ii. 1, 4. Numb. xv. 4, 6, &c.

And go to be promoted among the Trees?] This is a moſt lively Repreſentation of the Duty of a good Man; who, for the publick Good, denies his own Quiet and Tranquillity. For the Hebrew Word we tranſlate promote, ſignifies (as is noted in the Margin) Action and Agitation to and fro; ſhewing how a Man muſt beſtir himſelf who executes the Kingly Office; and what Solicitude and continual Carefulneſs is the Concomitant of Authority, when it is duly adminiſtred.

Ver. 10. And the Trees ſaid unto the Fig-Tree, Come thou, and reign over us.] He intends to repreſent the ſame Mind to be in all Gideon's Sons, that was in their Father: For as Gideon refuſed the Kingdom himſelf, ſo he did for his Poſterity, ſaying, I will not rule over you, neither ſhall my Son, or my Son's Son (i. e. any of mine) rule over you, viii. 23. Therefore Abimelech had moſt vilely ſlandered them, in ſuggeſting, that they affected a Regal Power over the People.

Ver. 11. But the Fig-Tree ſaid unto them, Shall I forſake my Sweetneſs, and my good Fruit, and go to be promoted over the Trees?] No Fruit is more luſcious than a Fig, which makes this an apt Repreſentation of the ſweet Content, or rather full Pleaſure, that may be enjoyed in a private Life; which it would be Folly to exchange for the Troubles and Cares which Men meet withal in the Managery of publick Affairs, if they be not drawn to it purely out of Love to the publick Good.

Ver. 12. Then ſaid the Trees unto the Vine, Come thou, and reign over us.] All theſe are noble Trees; ſetting forth the ſame thing, that better Men than Abimelech had refuſed that of which he was ambitious.

Ver. 13. And the Vine ſaid unto them, Shall I leave my Wine, which cheareth God and Man, and go to be promoted over the Trees?] The ſame Thing is repeated, for the fuller Illuſtration of the Thing intended, according to the Manner of all ſuch Ways of Speech: For A. Gellius, in the Place before named, makes the Birds among the Corn, when it was to be reaped, ſay the ſame Thing more than once to their Dam, before ſhe bad them be gone. As for Wine chearing God and Man, it is a Form of Speech imitated by the Heathen, particularly by Virgil, Lib. II. Georg. Ver. 101. where ſpeaking of noble Vines, or Wine, he ſaith, they were——— Menſis & Diis accepta ſecundis. For Wine, as the Hebrew Doctors note, was not only uſed in their Sacrifices, as it was alſo among the Heathen; but Jarchi ſaith, Till the Drink Offering was poured out, they did not begin the Hymn that was then ſung to God. See upon Numb. xv. 5.

Ver. 14. Then ſaid all the Trees unto the Bramble, &c.] The meaneſt of all Trees, good for nothing but to be burnt, aptly repreſenting Abimelech, from whom they could receive no Benefit, but much Trouble and Vexation from his ambitious Cruelty.

Ver. 15. And the Bramble ſaid unto them, If in Truth ye anoint me King over you.] This well ſets forth Abimelech's Diſtruſt of the Sincerity of the Shechemites; for which he had great Reaſon, having no Title to the Kingdom, but the great Atchievements of his Father, and he the baſeſt of all his Sons.

Then come and put your Truſt in my Shadow.] Be aſſured of my Protection, if you live quietly under my Government. This repreſents how ridiculous Abimelech was, in imagining, that he ſhould be able to maintain the Authority of a King; for a Bramble doth not ſpread itſelf ſo as to afford any Shelter or Shadow, it being a kind of a Thorn, which the Hebrews call Atad. From whence, as Avenarius obſerves, came the Word Aphris among the Greeks, and Dioſcorides, the Word ἀτραδίμ. And from hence he thinks was derived the Word ἀτάω, and ἀτάζω, which ſignify to wound, as a Thorn doth when it pricks.

And if not, let Fire come out of the Bramble.] It is a Wood that eaſily catches Fire, as Forſterus obſerves out of Joſephus, Lib. V. Antiq. Cap. 11.

And devour the Cedars of Lebanon.] This repreſents the Vengeance Abimelech would take of the greateſt of them, if they proved unfaithful to him.

Ver. 16. Now therefore.] Here follows Jotham's Application of this Apologue, as the Greeks call it, unto his Purpoſe.

If ye have done truly and ſincerely in that ye have made Abimelech King.] If his Preferment was a righteous Act.

And ye have dealt well with Jerubbaal and his Houſe, and have done unto him according to the deſerving of his Hand.] And if they had requited Gideon and his Family, according to his Merits, which were exceeding great.

Ver. 17. For my Father fought for you, and adventured his Life far.] Put it in great Hazard.

And delivered you out of the Hand of Midian.] When they were ſorely oppreſſed by them, and could not help themſelves.

Ver. 18. And ye are riſen up againſt my Father's Houſe this Day.] This ſhews, the Men of Shechem conſented to the Murder, and aſſiſted Abimelech in it.

And have ſlain his Sons, Threeſcore and Ten Perſons.] For they intended the Slaughter of Jotham, as much as of the reſt, if he could have been found.

Upon one Stone, and have made Abimelech, the Son of his Maid Servant.] For Concubines were often put to do the Work of the Houſe.

King over the Men of Shechem:] who could not pretend to make him King over all Iſrael: No, nor over the whole Tribe of Ephraim, but only of their City and Territory.

Becauſe he is your Brother.] Without any Title to it, but becauſe he was a Native of their City.

Ver. 19. If you have done truly and ſincerely.] Like honeſt and upright Men.

With Jerubbaal and his Houſe this Day, then rejoice ye in Abimelech, and let him rejoice in you.] He wiſhes they may be happy in one another.

Ver. 20. But if not, let Fire come from Abimelech, and devour the Men of Shechem, and the Houſe of Millo.] This is not a Prediction, but but an Execration or Curſe, as appears from the Oppoſition to the foregoing Wiſh, and from Ver. 57. where it is called Jotham's Curſe. Which was not cauſeleſs, but like that of Joſhua's (Joſh. vi. 26.) which was fulfilled, as this was. Not by Fire properly ſo called, breaking forth from Abimelech, but by his Rage and furious Revenge, which is fitly compared to Fire, in Alluſion to what is ſaid of the Bramble, Ver. 15.

And let Fire come out from the Men of Shechem, and from the Houſe of Millo, and devour Abimelech.] He wiſhes they may mutually deſtroy each other, which came to paſs by the righteous Judgment of GOD, who hears the Cries of the Oppreſſed.

Ver. 21. And Jotham ran away and fled.] As he might eaſily do, I have ſhewn upon Deut. xxvii. 13. The firſt Word ſignifies, he made what Haſte he could away, as ſoon as he had done ſpeaking; and the ſecond, that he ſtopped not, till he had got to a Place of Safety.

And went to Beer, and dwelt there, for fear of Abimelech his Brother.] It is not certain where this Place was, whether in the Land of Iſrael, or out of it. It is probable, that it was in the Tribe of Judah, about eight Miles from Eleutheropolis, as both Euſebius and S. Hierom affirm.

Ver. 22. When Abimelech had reigned Three Years over Iſrael.] It is not ſaid, Over all Iſrael, who, it cannot be thought, would ſubmit to the ambitious Tyranny of ſo cruel a Man as Abimelech was. And if Beer was in the Tribe of Judah, we may be ſure they did not own him for their King; for then Jotham could not have dwelt in Safety there. The Meaning therefore is, That he called himſelf King of Iſrael, and reigned over a great Part of them, who were ſo deſirous of a King (it appears by their Offer made to Gideon) that they were content with him, rather than have none at all.

Ver. 23. And GOD ſent an evil Spirit between Abimelech, and the Men of Shechem.] At the three Years End, I ſuppoſe, GOD ordered Things ſo in his Providence, that they grew jealous and diſtruſtful one of another, and fell into Diſſenſions and Diſcords.

And the Men of Shechem dealt treacherouſly with Abimelech.] Conſpired againſt him. So true is the Obſervation of Grotius upon theſe Words, that nothing is more unſtable than the popular Breath, which is won by evil Arts, and that Men hate the Wickedneſs which hath done them Service.

Ver. 24. That the Cruelty done to the Three-ſcore and Ten Sons of Jerubbaal might come, and their Blood be laid upon their Brother Abimelech, which ſlew them.] By this means GOD intended to puniſh Abimelech for the cruel Murder of his Brethren, whoſe Blood cried for Vengeance on him.

And upon the Men of Shechem, which aided him in the killing of his Brethren.] And to puniſh the Men of Shechem, who enabled him to commit that Wickedneſs, and helped him in it.

Ver. 25. And the Men of Shechem ſet Liers in wait for him, on the Top of the Mountains.] They were not yet broken out into open Hoſtility againſt him; but there being a Miſunderſtanding between them, Abimelech, I ſuppoſe, left the City in Anger; but they thought he would return again, and thereupon ſet Men to lie ſecretly on the Top of the Mountains over which he was to paſs, to ſeize his Perſon.

And they robbed all that came that Way by them.] That the Report coming to Abimelech his Ears (as Arias Montanus underſtands) how inſecure his Subjects were, who paſſed that Road, he might make the more Speed, as Kings are bound to do, to clear the Way from thoſe Thieves which infeſted it, and thereby give them an Opportunity to ſeize him.

And it was told Abimelech.] What Robberies were committed, and, perhaps, that they lay in wait for him.

Ver. 26. And Gael the Son of Ebed.] We have no Means to know who this Gael was, nor whence he came. R. Solomon thinks he was a Gentile, and not one of the Jewiſh Nation.

Came with his Brethren.] He paſſed accidentally that Way (as P. Martyr thinks) with his Brethren, and his Attendants, about ſome Buſineſs they had in that Country: But the common Opinion is, That he was a known Enemy of Abimelech's, who hearing the Men of Shechem were at Defiance with him, came to offer them his Service againſt him.

And the Men of Shechem put their Confidence in him.] That is, put themſelves under his Protection.

Ver. 27. And they went out into the Fields, and gathered their Vineyards, and trod the Grapes.] Their firſt Action under this new Commander, was to go out of their City, into the Vineyards, which were in the Fields, and gather their Grapes, and preſs them, which they durſt not do before, though the Vintage was ripe, for fear of Abimelech; who being told how things ſtood there, had raiſed Forces, I ſuppoſe, againſt them, but durſt not now diſturb them in their Buſineſs, they being defended by Gael.

And made merry.] As they were wont to do in Time of Vintage, and now eſpecially, when they were full of Joy, in hope to be rid of Abimelech's Tyranny. The LXX of the Vatican Edition, retain the Hebrew Word, and tranſlate it they made Ἐλελήλμ, whereby ſome underſtand Songs, as others Dances: Both are expreſſed by the Vulgar, and other Copies of the LXX have Χόρους; for their Merriment conſiſted very much in Dances, with Muſick and Songs; which, as Max. Tyrius obſerves, were among the Greeks firſt uſed, and in Honour of Bacchus, when they preſſed out their Grapes. See Dr. Spencer, Lib. III. Diſſert. 1. Cap. 9.

And went into the Houſe of their God.] It is moſt likely into the Temple of Baal-berith; there to offer their Firſt-fruits, or ſuch other Sacrifices as were cuſtomary at that Feſtival.

And did eat and drink.] Upon that Part the Sacrifices which fell to the Share of the People, who, perhaps, engaged in a Covenant againſt Abimelech.

And curſed Abimelech.] Some think they only ſcoffed at him with Taunts and Reproaches, as Men uſed to do in their Cups: But the LXX tranſlate it κατηρέσαντο, which ſignifies curſing, as we tranſlate it; that is, they wiſhed their God would confound him. And ſo we tranſlate this Word Levit. xx. 9. Prov. xx. 20. A marvellous Change, that they who lately gave him a great Sum of Money to advance him to the Throne, ſhould, in that very Houſe from whence they took it, reproach him with Imprecations of the divine Vengeance upon him.

Ver. 28. And Gael the Son of Ebed ſaid.] In the midſt of this Jollity, Gael (being elevated, I ſuppoſe, with Wine) burſt forth into this inſulting Language.

Who is Abimelech?] That is, he is but the Son of a Maid-Servant, Ver. 18.

And who is Shechem?] Some think he means, the City of Shechem is as noble as he is baſe: Why therefore ſhould they be ſubject to him? But it ſeems, by what follows, to be rather the ſame thing repeated, Who, I ſay, is the Shechemite?

That we ſhould ſerve him?] Suffer him to rule over us, and uſe us as he pleaſes.

Is he not the Son of Jerubbaal?] Who threw down the Altar of that God, whom you worſhip.

And Zebul his Officer.] Hath he not ſet one of his Servants over you, to be your Governor?

Serve the Men of Hamor the Father of Shechem.] If we muſt be Servants, let us reſtore the Dominion of the old Lords of this City, and ſubject ourſelves to thoſe who are deſcended from the antient Stock of Hamor; who was the Father, as it were, of the Shechemites.

For why ſhould we ſerve him?] But what Reaſon can be given for our Subjection to this Upſtart; who is famed for nothing, but his Ambition and Cruelty to his own Brethren? This ſhews pretty plainly, that R. Solomon's Opinion is true, that Gael was a Gentile; who would have been glad to ſee the Authority of the Canaanites reſtored. For tho' he ſuggeſts it only as comparatively more deſirable than Abimelech's Rule over them, yet, it is likely, he thought they might as well receive their Government, as they had done their Religion.

Ver. 29. And would to God this People were under my Hand.] He wiſhes they would make him their King, at leaſt their Commander in Chief: Which it ſeems, they had not yet reſolved upon; ſome being ſtill for Abimelech, and others not truſting to a Stranger.

Then would I remove Abimelech.] That he ſhould trouble them no more; but flee the Country, as he was driven out of their City.

And he ſaid to Abimelech, Increaſe thine Army, and come out.] Some take this to be only a vapouring Speech, (as if Abimelech was preſent) when he knew he might boaſt and inſult without Danger, becauſe he did not hear him: But it may as well be thought that he bid Abimelech's Friends go and tell him what he ſaid; That he wiſhed him to reinfore his Army, and come out (of the Intrenchments wherein perhaps he was) and give him Battle: For he pretended to ſcorn to ſet upon him by Surprize, but deſired to decide the Quarrel in open Field.

Ver. 30. And when Zebul the Ruler of the City heard the Words of Gael the Son of Ebed, his Anger was kindled.] It is likely he had carried fair (as we ſpeak) with Gael hitherto; thinking it vain to oppoſe a popular Commotion, till their Fury was a little calmed; but he could not bear theſe inſolent Thraſonical Words of Gael, which perhaps were not ſpoken in his Preſence, but brought to him by ſome that heard them.

Ver. 31. And he ſent Meſſengers unto Abimelech privily, ſaying.] He had ſome Wit in his Anger, and did not openly declare his Reſentments; but gave ſecret Intelligence to Abimelech how Matters ſtood, with his Advice how to proceed againſt Gael.

Behold, Gael the Son of Ebed, and his Brethren, be come to Shechem.] Where, no doubt, he informed him what Entertainment he had found, and in what reviling Terms he had ſpoken of him.

And behold, he fortified the City againſt thee.] This was no Sign that Gael deſired, as he boaſted, to meet Abimelech in a pitched Battle; but that he rather provided for his own Defence, in caſe he ſhould be aſſaulted.

Ver. 32. Now therefore, up by Night, thou, and the People that is with thee, and lie in wait in the Fields.] His Advice is, That for fear of Diſcovery, he ſhould march with all his Forces in the Night, toward Shechem; and lurk in the Fields till Morning Light.

Ver. 33. And it ſhall be, that in the Morning, as ſoon as the Sun is up, thou ſhalt riſe up early, and ſet upon the City.] Surprize them, before they were better provided.

And behold, when he and the People that are with him come out againſt thee.] As Gael had boaſted he would do.

Then thou mayeſt do to them, as thou ſhalt find Occaſion.] He could give him no farther Advice; but that then he ſhould diſpoſe his Forces to the beſt Advantage againſt him.

Ver. 34. And Abimelech roſe up, and all the People that were with him by Night, and they laid wait againſt Shechem in four Companies.] He divided his Army into four Battalions, (as they now ſpeak) and diſpoſed them in four Places, as the Vulgar underſtands it: Perhaps on the Eaſt, Weſt, North and South Sides of the City.

Ver. 35. And Gael the Son of Ebed went out,] Of his Houſe.

And ſtood in the Entring of the Gate of the City.] To ſee, it is likely, if his Soldiers were upon their Guard.

And Abimelech roſe up, and the People that were with him, from lying in wait.] Out of their lurking Places, where they had lain undiſcovered all Night.

Ver. 36. And when Gael ſaw the People, he ſaid to Zebul.] Who, it ſeems, accompanied him, or, as Governor of the City, was there to ſee every one do their Duty.

Behold,

Behold, there come People down from the Top of the Mountains.] Which were adjoining to the City, viz. Mount Gerezim and Mount Ebal.

And Zebul ſaid, Thou ſeeſt the Shadow of the Mountains, as if they were Men.] It being early in the Morning, the Trees, and all Things elſe, caſt long Shadows, which being moved by the Breath of Air, which commonly accompanies the Sun-riſing, Zebul perſuaded him he took for Men marching down from the Top of the Mountains. Some think he ſpake this in Mockery, that he was afraid of Shadows; but delivered it in ſuch a ſerious Tone, that Gael believed he ſpake in Earneſt; by which it is plain that Zebul notably diſſembled his Reſentments, and behaved himſelf as if he was on Gael's Side; who was ſtrangely infatuated, to truſt one that was Servant to Abimelech, and placed by him as Governor of the City, whoſe Pretences of Friendſhip were reaſonably to be ſuſpected.

Ver. 37. And Gael ſpake again and ſaid, See.] Obſerve attentively.

There come down People by the Middle of the Land.] Now it was viſible they were Men; for they were come down to the Middle of the Mountains.

And another Company come along by the Plain of Meonenim.] It is likely the other two Companies of the Four, into which his Forces were divided, appeared in other Places, the more to diſtract the Thoughts of Gael: And it is probable that Abimelech had ſeized the Ambuſh, which they had laid for him on the Top of the Mountains (Ver. 25.) that they could carry no Tidings of his Coming. We read of this Place no where elſe, and ſo I can give no Account of it: But the Vulgar takes Elon to ſignify not the Plain, but an Oak; and tranſlates theſe Words, By the Way which looks towards the Oak; which, in ſome Copies of the LXX, are rendered, The Oak of thoſe that look towards, or that regard Times, as we have it in the Margin of our Bibles; as if it were like the Oak at Dodona, among the Greeks, where they made Divinations.

Ver. 38. Then ſaid Zebul unto him, Where is now thy Mouth, wherewith thou ſaidſt, Who is Abimelech, that we ſhould ſerve him?] Now Zebul pulls off his Maſk, and puts him in mind of the Brags which he made, Ver. 28.

Is not this the People that thou haſt deſpiſed?] But now, he ſuppoſes, was afraid to encounter.

Go out, I pray thee, and fight with them.] He upbraids him with Cowardiſe, unleſs he now ſhewed himſelf a Man with his Sword, as the other Day with his Tongue.

Ver. 39. And Gael went out.] It may ſeem ſtrange that he did not firſt leave Zebul dead upon the Spot behind him: But he was afraid of him, he ving, as appeared afterward, a ſtrong Party in the City; and it was dangerous to have two Enemies to deal withal, one without, and another within.

Before the Men of Shechem, and fought with Abimelech.] As unprovided as he was, he would not decline the Fight, and was followed by the principal Perſons in Shechem.

Ver. 40. And Abimelech chaſed him, and he fled before him.] Toward the City.

And many were overthrown and wounded.] Some were killed, and others wounded.

Even unto the Entring of the Gate.] Where the reſt, and Gael himſelf, got into the City, and there ſecured themſelves: So the Vulgar, for Explication ſake, He purſued him and drove him into the City.

Ver. 41. And Abimelech dwelt at Arumah.] It appears, by the next Verſe, this Place was not far from Shechem; whither Abimelech thought fit to retreat, and there watch for an Opportunity to be revenged of the Shechemites.

And Zebul thruſt out Gael and his Brethren, that they ſhould not dwell in Shechem.] Becauſe they were not able to defend it againſt Abimelech. Zebul had the ſtronger Party on his Side, otherwiſe he could not have expelled him; but Gael had ſo many Adherents, that they durſt not put him to Death, for his ill Management, as no doubt they called it, in the late Fight.

Ver. 42. And it came to paſs, on the Morrow, that the People went out into the Field.] Finding that Abimelech was retreated, as not ſtrong enough, they imagined, to aſſault their City, they went about their Buſineſs into the Field; which, at that Time of the Year, after the Vintage, was to Plough and Sow their Lands, and Dreſs their Vines, and other Trees: Some will have it, that they went out to fight Abimelech again, which is not probable.

And they told Abimelech.] He wanted not ſome to carry him Intelligence of it.

Ver. 43. And he took the People.] His Forces, which lay in and about Arumah.

And divided them into three Companies.] One of which (the next Verſe informs us) he commanded himſelf, and committed the other two to the Conduct of their Commanders.

And laid wait in the Field.] With that Company which he commanded, whom he ordered to lie cloſe, and not diſcover themſelves.

And looked, and behold, the People were come forth out of the City.] He ſet ſome to ſpy when the People were come out, and ſet about their Buſineſs.

And he roſe up againſt them, and ſmote them.] His Men came, on a ſudden, out of their Ambuſh, and killed many of them.

Ver. 44. And Abimelech, and the Company which was with him, ruſhed forward, and ſtood in the Entring of the Gate of the City.] Made all the Haſte they could to get between them and home: And accordingly they poſted themſelves at the Entring of the Gate of the City; whereby they hindered thoſe in the Field from getting into it, and likewiſe thoſe in the City from coming out to their Relief: So that they were diſperſed about the Fields, where the other two Companies picked them up, as it here follows.

And the two Companies ran upon all the People that were in the Fields, and ſlew them.] Which was a great diſheartening, no doubt, to thoſe in the City to ſee ſo many of their Fellow-Citizens cut off.

Ver. 45. And Abimelech fought againſt the City all that Day.] Having deſtroyed ſo many of the Citizens in the Morning, he made his Battery againſt the City itſelf, the reſt of the Day.

And took it.] In the Evening, I ſuppoſe, either by an Aſſault, or by Surrender.

And ſlew the People that were therein.] It is not ſaid what became of Zebul, who, it is likely, went over to him, and directed him in his Attack upon the City; leaving his own Party, in whom he put no Confidence, to periſh with the reſt.

And he beat down the City.] Laid the Houſes and Walls level with the Ground.

And ſowed it with Salt.] Salt makes Land barren, and therefore Ralbag refers this to the Ground about it or in it; that was wont to be employed for ſowing any ſort of Grain, or planting Vineyards, &c. for as Pliny obſerves, Omnis locus in quo reperitur ſal, ſterilis eſt & nihil gignit. Lib. 31. Cap. 7. All Places in which Salt is found, are barren, and bring fourth nothing. Therefore Abimelech endeavoured to make this City a perpetual Deſolation. See Bochart. Hierozoicon, Pag. 1. Lib. 3. Cap. xvi. But unleſs the Soil had been ſalt of itſelf, his ſowing Salt there would not have made it barren; but it would have ſoon recovered its Fruitfulneſs: Therefore all he intended was to ſhew his Hatred of them, by wiſhing their City might lie waſte, and be a perpetual Deſolation.

Ver. 46. And when all the Men of the Tower of Shechem heard that.] By theſe laſt Words, it is plain this Tower was not in the City, but at ſome Diſtance from it: For otherwiſe, it would not have been ſaid that they heard of the Deſtruction of Shechem, but that they ſaw it with their Eyes; yet it is likely, that this Tower of Shechem was kept by a Garriſon of the Shechemites.

They entred into an Hold of the Houſe of the God Berith.] They durſt not truſt to the Strength of the Tower, but took Sanctuary rather in a ſtrong Fortreſs of the Temple of the God mentioned Ver. 4. which was built, in all likelihood, (according to the common Cuſtom of the World) upon one of the Mountains hard by, and had near it this fortified ſtrong Hold; wherein they kept their Treaſure, Ver. 4. It may be compared to the Roman Capitol, and to the Temple of Jeruſalem, in After-times; which Joſephus deſcribes as an impregnable Place.

Ver. 47. And it was told Abimelech, that all the Men of the Tower of Shechem were gathered together.] In the forenamed Fortreſs.

Ver. 48. And Abimelech got him up to Mount Zalmon, he and all the People that were with him.] Some think this to be the ſame Mountain which the Pſalmiſt mentions lxviii. 15. and take it to have been near to Shechem, which had many Mountains about it, Ver. 36.

And Abimelech took an Ax in his Hand, and cut down a Bough from the Trees.] Which grew there in great abundance, for Zalmon ſeems to have had its Name from the Shadineſs of the Place.

And took it and laid it on his Shoulders, and ſaid unto the People that were with him, What ye have ſeen me do, make haſte and do as I have done.] He, in ſome meaſure, imitates his Father's Speech to his three hundred Men, before he went to fight, vii. 17.

Ver. 49. And the People likewiſe cut down every Man his Bough, and followed Abimelech, and put them to the Hold, and ſet the Hold on Fire upon them.] Which was done with ſuch Expedition, (as he ordered in the foregoing Verſe) that they within had no Time to provide againſt it.

So that all the Men of the Tower of Shechem died alſo, about a Thouſand Men and Women.] Who periſhed in the Fire and Smoak, as the Vulgar here adds: But the Hebrew and LXX ſay nothing of Smoak, but only of Fire; yet it is highly probable that many were choaked by the Smoak, which was very great and ſmothering, the Wood being green: Here the Prediction, or rather Imprecation of Jotham, Ver. 20. was exactly fulfilled.

Ver. 50. Then went Abimelech unto Thebez, and encamped againſt Thebez, and took it.] This was a City, which, as Kimchi obſerves, had revolted from Abimelech; but it is uncertain whereabout it lay, though moſt think it in the Territory near Shechem.

Ver. 51. But there was a ſtrong Tower within the City, and thither fled all the Men and Women, and all they of the City.] It was a Place ſo large, that it could contain not only all the Men of the City and their Wives, but their Servants alſo: Who all betook themſelves hither, as a Place not eaſy to be taken, though the City could make little Reſiſtance.

And ſhut it to them.] Shut to the Gate, and, I ſuppoſe, blocked it up ſo that it could not be opened.

And gat them up to the Top of the Tower.] Which was flat, as their Houſes were, with Battlements round about it: Here the Beſieged thought fit to ſtand in great Numbers, that they might do what they could to beat him off, if Abimelech attempted to burn them, as he had done others in a neighbouring Tower.

Ver. 52. And Abimelech came into the Tower and fought againſt it.] His Rage was inſatiable; for, not content to have overthrown the Shechemites, and beat down their City, and burnt their ſtrong Hold, and taken Thebez, he beſet their Tower alſo; where, if he had not periſhed, none can tell how far his Revenge would have proceeded.

And went hard unto the Door of the Tower to burn it with Fire.] Being fluſhed with great Succeſs, he was ſo bold and hardy, as himſelf to make this dangerous Attempt.

Ver. 53. And a certain Woman caſt a Piece of a Milſtone.] Which they had carried up among other Stones and Logs, and whatſoever they thought might offend the Enemy: The Hebrew Word Rechab properly ſignifies the upper Milſtone, which moves (and, as it were, rides) upon the Lower.

Upon Abimelech's Head.] Being directed, no doubt, by a ſpecial Providence of God, as the Stone was out of the Sling that killed Goliah, and the Arrow wherewith Ahab was ſhot.

And all to break his Scull.] Made ſuch a Fracture in it, that he concluded it to be mortal. Thus Plutarch relates that Pyrrhus, at the Siege of Thebes, was killed by a Woman, who threw a Tile upon his Head: But Abimelech's Death by a Stone is the more remarkable, becauſe it carried ſome Stamp of his Sin upon it; for he ſlew all his Brethren on one Stone.

Ver. 54. Then he called haſtily.] Fearing he ſhould immediately expire.

Unto the young Man his Armour-bearer, and ſaid unto him, Draw thy Sword and ſlay me, that Men ſay not of me, a Woman ſlew him.] Tho' he knew ſhe had given him his Death's Wound, yet he would have Poſterity think otherwiſe; for he thought it diſhonourable to die by the Hand of a Woman: A fooliſh Piece of Vainglory, wherewith he concluded his Life, as he had led it; for ſhe had given him a mortal Blow.

And his young Man thruſt him through, and he died.] Juſt when he imagined he was upon the point of conquering all Oppoſition to him.

Ver. 55. And when the Men of Iſrael.] That is, all that were in his Army.

Saw that Abimelech was dead, they departed every Man unto his Place.] Diſbanded themſelves, having none to head them.

Ver. 56. Thus God rendered the Wickedneſs of Abimelech which he did unto his Father in ſlaying his Seventy Brethren.] Which was as much as in him lay, to root out the Memory of his Father, unleſs it ſurvived in himſelf, who took a Courſe to make his Name infamous.

Ver. 57. And all the Evil of the Men of Shechem did God render upon their Heads, and upon them came the Curſe of Jotham the Son of Jerubbaal.] Theſe two Verſes conclude this Story with a Divine Admonition, That no Man ſhould think that ſuch Things came to paſs by Chance, but God, the Judge of all, puniſhed both Abimelech and the Men of Shechem according to their Deſerts, and made them the Inſtruments of each other's Deſtruction: And it is remarkable that this Puniſhment overtook them ſpeedily, within leſs than four Years after their Crime was committed.

It was not the Buſineſs of this Holy Writer to tell us what became of Jotham, no more than what became of Gael and Zebul: But only to ſhew, that as Men have done, ſo God requites them; with which he ends this Part of his Hiſtory.

CHAP. X.

Ver. 1. AND after Abimelech.] Who was not a Judge, much leſs appointed by God, but an Uſurper, who took upon him to alter the Divine Government, and made himſelf a King.

There roſe up.] It is not ſaid that God ſtirred him up, as he did the foregoing Judges; but it is ſo underſtood, becauſe God would not have ſaved Iſrael by one that took upon him this high Office, without his Order: And therefore, as Peter Martyr well obſerves, in the Concluſion of the foregoing Chapter, that as after many good Judges God had given them, he ſuffered the cruel Tyrant Abimelech to interpoſe himſelf, that their Virtues might ſhine more illuſtriouſly by his Wickedneſs; ſo after he was gone, God was pleaſed to raiſe up to them good Judges again, who learnt Moderation by the Puniſhment of his vain Ambition: And in all likelihood, the dreadful End of Abimelech, and his Partakers, who made him King, affrighted the Iſraelites from preſuming to make another, of their own Heads.

To defend Iſrael.] Or, to ſave, as it is in the Margin: For this was the great Office of a Judge, to deliver the People from the Oppreſſion of their Enemies: We do not find indeed from what Enemies they were delivered by this Judge; but they may be ſaid to ſave and deliver, who preſerve Mens Liberties from being invaded, as well as they that vindicate and reſtore them, when they are loſt: And therefore we well tranſlate it, To defend Iſrael. He may be thought alſo to have delivered them from thoſe Confuſions and Diſorders they were in, by the Diſagreement between Abimelech and thoſe that made him King: For both Sides had many Partakers, which made great Diviſions, and dangerous Combinations among the People; but were all happily ended by the prudent Management of this Governor. Serrarius alſo adds, That he might be ſaid to ſave or deliver them, becauſe he reſtored the Purity of their Religion, by aboliſhing the Worſhip of Idols: For we read, That after the Death of Gideon they went a whoring after Baalim, and made Baal-berith their God, viii. 33. which they continued in the Reign of Abimelech; but were now brought back to the Worſhip of the true God, and remained in it, in the Days of this and the following Judges; otherwiſe there would not have been Occaſion to ſay (Ver. 6.) that after the Death of Jair, the Children of Iſrael did Evil again in the Sight of the Lord: But how far this is true, will appear upon Ver. 8.

Tolah the Son of Puah, the Son of Dodo.] So the Chaldee Paraphraſt underſtands the Word Dodo, to be the proper Name of his Grandfather, as Puah was of his Father: But there are thoſe that by Dodo underſtand his Uncle, viz. Abimelech fore-mentioned: Which ſeems to me unreaſonable; for he was of another Tribe, and his Relation to ſuch a Man no good Qualification, one would think, for this great Truſt.

A Man of Iſſachar.] A mean Tribe; which did not hinder his Advancement by God to the higheſt Dignity: And by this Expreſſion, a Man of Iſſachar, he ſeems to have been of no great Family, in that Tribe.

And he dwelt in Shamir in Mount Ephraim.] After he was made a Judge, he ſettled in this Place, for the Convenience of the People; it being in the midſt of the Land.

Ver. 2. And he judged Iſrael twenty and three Years, and died and was buried in Shamir.] There are no memorable Acts of his recorded; for the principal Intention of the Holy Writer of this Book, was to ſhew what great Calamities befel the Iſraelites when they forſook God's Worſhip, and how graciouſly he delivered them in a marvellous manner, when they returned to it: As I ſuppoſe they did, in the Beginning of this Man's Government, and continued ſtedfaſt therein; ſo that they were not infeſted by their Enemies.

Ver. 3. And after him aroſe Jair a Gileadite, and judged Iſrael twenty and two Years.] This is the firſt Judge that was raiſed up from among thoſe that lived beyond Jordan.

Ver. 4. And he had thirty Sons that rode on thirty Aſſes Colts.] For the nobleſt Perſons rode on theſe Beaſts (ſee Ver. 10.) and that not only in Judæa, but in Arabia, and in other Countries, even among the Romans, as Bochartus hath at large obſerved in his Hierozoicon, Pag. 1. Lib. II. Cap. 13. And it is highly probable, that this is here mentioned, becauſe theſe Perſons were ordered by their Father to ride Circuit up and down the Country, to miniſter Juſtice according to the Law; as Samuel did when he judged Iſrael, 1 Sam. vii. 16. For the Courts of Judicature appointed by the Law (Deut. xvi. 18.) were not yet ſettled; nor, in all Likelihood, ſettled in every City, till the Days of Jehoſhaphat, as Mr. Thorndike obſerves in his Rights of the Church, Chap. iv. Pag. 226.

And they had thirty Cities.] Of which they were the Governors, as the Vulgar underſtands it.

Which are called Havoth-Jair unto this Day.] This Jair, as our moſt learned Primate of Ireland obſerves in his Annals, (ad A. M. 3504.) was of the Poſterity of that Jair who called the Cities which he took in Argob, by his own Name Havoth-Jair, the Towns or Villages of Jair (Numb. xxxii. 41. Deut. iii. 14.) After whoſe Example theſe thirty Sons of this younger Jair (who to diſtinguiſh him from the Elder, ſeems to be called Bedan, 1 Sam. xii. 11. 1 Chron. vii. 17.) called theſe Cities which they poſſeſſed, by the very ſame Name.

Which are in the Land of Gilead.] In the ſame Country, where the other Cities antiently called by this Name lay: From which, it is likely, they were diſtinguiſhed by ſome ſuch Addition as this, The new Havoth-Jair.

Ver. 5. And Jair died, and was buried in Camon.] Which, it was probable, was the Place where he dwelt, while he judged Iſrael.

Ver. 6. And the Children of Iſrael did Evil again in the Sight of the LORD.] Or, as the forenamed Primate thinks it muſt be interpreted, Had done Evil again, &c. as was ſaid viii. 33. and now is repeated to ſhew the Cauſe, why God delivered them up into the Hands of their Enemies: For he ſuppoſes this was before the Death of Jair, as I ſhall note on Ver. 8.

And ſerved Baalim and Aſhtaroth.] As they had frequently done in former Times, ii. 13. iii. 7, &c.

And the Gods of Syria.] They added to their former Idolatries, the Worſhip of new Gods; particularly thoſe of Syria, which were, as Mr. Selden obſerves, (in his Prolegomena to his Book de Diis Syris) beſide Bel, or Baal, and Aſtarte, Dagon, Moloch, and Thammuz.

And the Gods of Zidon.] Their ſupreme Gods were Baal and Aſhtoreth, as the ſame great Man obſerves, (in his 2. Syntagma de Diis Syris, Cap. 2.) But it is likely they had more, ſuch as Aſaroth, Aſarim, and Aſarah; being the very ſame with Aſhtoreth.

And the Gods of Moab.] The principal of which was Chemoſh, 1 Kings xi. 7.

And the Gods of the Children of Ammon.] The Chief of which was Milcom, 1 Kings xi. 5. where Aſhtoreth is mentioned as the Goddeſs of the Zidonians.

And the Gods of the Philiſtines.] They had more, it ſeems, beſide Dagon; whoſe Names are not mentioned in Scripture.

And forſook the LORD, and ſerved not him.] Their Hearts were poſſeſſed with the Love of ſo many Gods, that they quite forgot the LORD, and did not worſhip him at all; though they were wont formerly only to worſhip other Gods together with him. This was ſuch a ſtrange Apoſtaſy, that one cannot but enquire into the Reaſon of it, and (beſides what I have noted upon ii. 12.) one Reaſon may poſſibly have been, That the ſolemn Reading of the Law to all the People, once in Seven Years, was neglected: For we do not read that it was publickly done from the Time of Joſhua to the Reign of Jehoſhaphat, which was above Five Hundred Years: It doth not follow indeed that it was not done, becauſe it is not recorded; but if we conſider how prone they were to return to Idolatry, after the Death of every Judge, and how ſoon after the Death of David (even in the Reign of his Son Solomon) it began to appear among them, it may incline one to think there was not ſufficient Care taken about this Matter.

Ver. 7. And the Anger of the LORD was hot againſt Iſrael, and he ſold them into the Hands of the Philiſtines, and into the Hands of the Children of Ammon.] Two of thoſe Nations, whoſe Gods they choſe to ſerve.

Ver. 8. And that Year they vexed and oppreſſed the Children of Iſrael.] That is the Ammonites vexed them in the Eaſt, (as we are told in the Concluſion of the Verſe) while the Philiſtines vexed them in the Weſt: For their Idolatry being ſtrangely increaſed, ſo was their Puniſhment, by the Invaſion of their Enemies on both Sides, as the foregoing Verſe tells us; which is a Preface to the following Hiſtories of their Oppreſſion by the Philiſtines and the Ammonites, both at the ſame Time; but, to avoid Confuſion, he firſt relates the Story of the Ammonites, who are at laſt named in the foregoing Verſe.

Eighteen Years.] Their Invaſion began in the ſame Year, but they did not end at the ſame Time, for the Ammonites domineered over them only Eighteen Years; but the Philiſtines Forty, xiii. 1. I muſt not here omit the Conſtruction ſtruction which our Primate Uſher makes of theſe Words, which run thus in the Hebrew, and he tranſlates in this manner, They vexed and oppreſſed the Children of Iſrael that Year, (viz.) the eighteenth Year. For the Oppreſſion, he thinks, began the Fifth Year of Jair, and continued till the Twenty-ſecond, which was his laſt. See his Chronol. Sacra, Pag. 1. Cap. 13. But this is ſaid only to ſalve a Difficulty, which is, that if we ſuppoſe this Oppreſſion to have begun after the Death of Jair, and to have laſted Eighteen Years (as our Tranſlation imports) it will be impoſſible to make the Years of the Government of the Judges agree with what we read 1 Kings vi. 1. That Solomon began to build the Temple at Jeruſalem, in the Four Hundred and Eightieth Year after they came out of Egypt: But there is a more eaſy Way of accounting for this Difficulty, by ſuppoſing that ſeveral of the Judges were Contemporaries, as will be apparent in this very Hiſtory, (ſee upon xi. 25.) and if we do not take theſe Words Eighteen Years to ſignify the Continuance of the Ammoniti∫h Oppreſſion, it is no where mentioned any where elſe; as the Duration of all other Oppreſſions is.

All the Children of Iſrael that were on the other Side Jordan in the Land of the Amorites.] Which belonged to the Amorites, till Moſes diſpoſſeſſed them, (Numb. xxi.) and gave the Land to the two Tribes of Reuben and Gad, and half the Tribe of Manaſſeh.

Which is in Gilead.] The principal Part of which was Gilead; out of which Jair ſprang, being of the Tribe of Manaſſeh: Who, like a good Man, uſed all his Endeavours to purge the Iſraelites from Idolatry; as Tola, I ſuppoſe, had done before: But they being, after the Death of Gideon, fallen from God, and continuing in their Idolatry all the Reign of Abimelech, our fore-named Primate ſuppoſes theſe Judges were not able to reform them; but they rather grew worſe, as is related, Ver. 6. And therefore God permitted the Ammonites and Philiſtines to begin to afflict them, as was ſaid before in the Fifth Year of Jair; but not ſo as to make them ſubject to their Power: For Jair held the Government Eighteen Years after they began their Inroads, but then their Vexations and Oppreſſions grew intolerable, and they not only afflicted his own Country Gilead, but endeavoured to make their Brethren, on the other Side Jordan, to feel the Weight of their Power, as it follows in the next Verſe. This is ſaid very plauſibly, but cannot be admitted without ſome Violence to the natural Senſe of the Beginning of the Verſe; and alſo to the Courſe of this Hiſtory, which doth not mention their Departure from God, and theſe Oppreſſions of their Enemies, on both Sides, till after the Death of Jair.

Ver. 9. Moreover the Children of Ammon paſſed over Jordan to fight againſt Judah, and againſt Benjamin, and againſt the Houſe of Ephraim.] Who were the Tribes that lay next to Jordan.

So that Iſrael was ſore diſtreſſed.] For while the Ammonites afflicted thoſe Countries in the Eaſtern Part of Canaan, the Philiſtines made Ravages in the Countries of Zebulun, and Aſher, and the reſt of the Tribes that lay on the Weſtern Coaſt: For ſo the LXX explain thoſe Words in the foregoing Verſe, In that Year, ἐν τῷ καιρῷ ἐκείνῳ, in that ſame Year, the Philiſtines in the Weſt, and the Ammonites in the Eaſt, vexed and oppreſſed the Children of Iſrael.

Ver. 10. And the Children of Iſrael cried unto the Lord, ſaying, We have ſinned againſt thee, both becauſe we have forſaken our God, and alſo ſerved Baalim.] All the reſt of the Gods mentioned Ver. 6. are comprehended under the Name of Baalim: Which were ſo many and various, that they had quite drawn their Affection from their own God; as they now ſorrowfully acknowledge.

Ver. 11. And the Lord ſaid unto the Children of Iſrael.] By ſome Prophet, I ſuppoſe.

Did not I deliver you from the Egyptians?] Exod. xii.

And from the Amorites.] Who would have hindered their Paſſage to the Land of Canaan, Numb. xxi.

And from the Children of Ammon.] Who were confederate with the Moabites to oppreſs them, Judg. iii. 13.

And from the Philiſtines.] In the Days of Shamgar, iii. ult.

Ver. 12. The Zidonians alſo.] We never read of any Invaſion they made upon the Iſraelites; but only in general, That God left them, among other People, unſubdued, to prove the Children of Iſrael, iii. 3. who took their Opportunities, in all likelihood, to afflict them.

And the Amalekites.] Who joined both with the Moabites, and the Midianites, to oppreſs them, iii. 13. vi. 3.

And the Maonites did oppreſs you.] Maon is the Name of a Nation; the Plural of which, Meunim, occurs in many Places, particularly in 2 Chron. xxvi. 6, 7. where they are called in Greek Μινναῖοι. A People of Arabia, both in that which we call Felix, and in that called Deſerta. Which latter was not far from the Moabites and the Ammonites; with whom Interpreters are wont to confound the Meunites, as if by a Tranſpoſition of Letters, they were the ſame with the Ammonites: Which hath miſled us in our Tranſlation of thoſe Words 2 Chron. xx. 1. And with them from the Ammonites, which make no Senſe; but if we read with them from Menuim (as it is in Greek ἐκ Μινναίων) all runs clearly, and makes perfect Senſe: And thus we ought to tranſlate that Place, 1 Chron. iv. 41. where we take Meunim to ſignify Dwellings, and render the Words thus, The Habitations which were found there; as if where there were Tents (which are mentioned before) there were not Habitations, which are the ſame: Therefore Meunim is the Name of a People (as the LXX underſtood it) who dwelt in Tents, being Arabians: Who being Neighbours (as I ſaid to the Moabites and Ammonites) joined with them in their Invaſion of the Land of Iſrael, and helped to oppreſs them: But they are plainly distinguished from the Ammonites in the Place first mentioned, and 2 Chron. xxvi. 6, 7, 8.

And ye cried to me, and I delivered you out of their Hand.] When they were utterly unable to help themselves.

Ver. 13. Yet ye have forsaken me, and served other Gods.] But all these Deliverances proved ineffectual to keep them stedfast in the Worship of GOD.

Wherefore I will deliver you no more.] He threatens therefore to leave them under the Power of their Enemies, which now sorely distressed them, as they justly deserved; but it was an Intention to awaken them to a more serious and hearty Repentance, otherwise he resolved not to deliver them.

Ver. 14. Go and cry unto the Gods you have chosen, let them deliver you in the Time of your Tribulation.] A bitter Reflection, both upon them, and upon their Gods, like to that in the Song of Moses, Deut. xxxii. 37, 38.

Ver. 15. And the Children of Israel said unto the LORD, We have sinned.] In worshipping such Gods as could not save them.

Do thou unto us, as seemeth good unto thee.] They submit to such Punishment, as he thought fit to inflict, confessing, they deserved no Favour; which shews, their Hearts were, for the present, very sensible of the Folly wherewith they were reproached in the foregoing Verse.

Deliver us only, we pray thee, this Day.] They acknowledged, that they deserved the severest Punishment, but beseech him to have so much Pity on them, as not to punish them this Way, by letting these cruel Enemies insult over them any longer.

Ver. 16. And they put away the strange Gods from among them.] Gave open Proof of their Repentance, by renouncing all Idolatry.

And served the LORD.] And returned to the Worship of the LORD, and of him alone, which is the most remarkable Repentance and Reformation, that we read of hitherto in this History of the Judges; and it seems to have been so serious, that for a long time they did not relapse; for we read nothing of their Idolatry, in the Time of those three Judges that followed Jephthah.

And his Soul was grieved for the Misery of Israel.] Nor do we read before, of such an Expression of the divine Compassion towards them. Every one knows the divine Nature is not capable of Grief, properly so called; but the Meaning is, he quite altered his former Intentions, and in much Mercy resolved, upon their Repentance, to deliver them. So Maimonides observes, that the Word Nephesh, which we translate Soul, signifies his Will, Jer. xv. 1. Though Moses and Samuel stood before me, my Soul could not be towards this People; that is, it could not be his Will to save them. And so here, his Soul was grieved; that is, saith he, his Will ceased from afflicting Israel any longer; for it was said before, that GOD's Providence had deserted them, and he refused to relieve them, till they called upon him, and seriously repented; and then, their Miseries being very great, by the sore Oppressions of their Enemies, he took pity on them, and willed their cruel Afflictions should not continue. See More Nevochim, Pars 1. Cap. 41.

Ver. 17. Then the Children of Ammon were gathered together.] In the Hebrew, were cried together; that is, A Proclamation went out, requiring all their dispersed Troops, which were ravaging the Countries of Judah, Benjamin, and Ephraim, to return back to their Camp, on the other Side of Jordan.

And encamped in Gilead.] Or, Against Gilead; for both Arias Montanus, and Peter Martyr, think that they laid Siege to Gilead, the chief City in those Parts: By taking which, they hoped to be Masters of all that Country; and then, with greater Forces, go over Jordan again, and conquer the other Tribes before-mentioned.

And the Children of Israel assembled themselves together, and encamped in Mizpeh.] There were two Mizpeh's on the other Side Jordan, one in the Tribe of Gad, the other in the Half Tribe of Manasseh, as I observed upon Josh. xi. 3. the latter of which may be probably thought to be the Place where they now assembled, Jephthah, who was afterward chosen their Captain, being one of this Tribe. How many of the Israelites here encamped, and whether any of those in the Land of Canaan, or only those of the two Tribes and a half, cannot now be known; but upon their Repentance, they seem to have recovered their ancient Courage, and to have taken a Resolution to drive the Ammonites out of their Country, insomuch that thereupon the Ammonites seem to have left the Siege, and to have made a Retreat into their own Land, either to recruit their Army, and raise more Forces, or for some other Reason; for thither Jephthah sent Messengers to them, after he was chosen General of the Israelites; and there he fought them, when they would not yield to his convincing Arguments, that they unjustly invaded the Israelites, as appears in the following Chapter.

Ver. 18. And the People and Princes of Gilead.] Who were most nearly concerned in this Matter, their Country lying nearest to the Ammonites.

Said one to another.] Entered into a Consultation, in a grand Assembly of all the People, and their Rulers. See ix. 6.

What Man is he that will begin to fight against the Children of Ammon?] Will be our Leader. It seems to me a probable Conjecture of Peter Martyr, that they consulted GOD also about this Matter, who directed them, perhaps, to go to Jephthah.

He shall be Head over all the Inhabitants of Gilead.] They resolved, whatsoever the Mind of the rest of the Tribes should be, that he should command all the Gadites and Manassites that inhabited the Land of Gilead.

CHAP.

CHAP. XI.

Ver. 1. NOW Jephthah the Gileadite.] A Man of the ſame Country with Jair, their laſt Judge.

Was a mighty Man of Valour.] A warlike Perſon, of great Courage and Conduct.

And he was the Son of an Harlot.] Or, But he was, &c. Some, by the Hebrew Word Zonah, underſtand a Concubine, but it never ſignifies ſo in Scripture; but, as we tranſlate it, an Harlot; and ſometimes one that kept a Publick Houſe; for ſuch People were wont to make their Bodies as common as their Houſes, to all Comers. See Joſh. ii. 1. But ſeveral of the Hebrew Doctors think that this Word may ſignify either one of another Tribe, or a Stranger, one of another Nation: And ſo Joſephus himſelf here underſtands it, that he was ξένος πρὸς τὴν μητέρα, A Stranger by his Mother's Side. And Saidas Batricides ſaith, his Mother was an Iſhmaelite, as Mr. Selden obſerves, Lib. de Succeſſionibus, Cap. 3. Now ſuch were called νόθοι by the Greeks, as Grotius obſerves, who were born of a Wife that was not a Citizen. But among the Jews, if ſuch Perſons embraced the Law, their Children were not ſtained, but capable to inherit among the reſt of their Brethren; and therefore Jephthah complains of his Expulſion, Ver. 7. looking upon himſelf as unjuſtly dealt withal, which could not have been ſaid, had he been a Baſtard.

And Gilead begat Jephthah.] One of the Poſterity of Gilead, the Son of Manaſſeh, was his Father, who was called after the Name of his great Anceſtor.

Ver. 2. And Gilead's Wife bare him Sons.] He took a Wife alſo of the Jewiſh Nation, who bare him ſeveral Sons.

And his Wife's Sons grew up, and they thruſt out Jephthah.] When his Father was dead; for till then, the Inheritance was not to be divided; and, if he had been alive, he would not have ſuffered them to be ſo injurious to Jephthah, who was the Son of a Wife whom he loved extremely, as Joſephus relates, Lib. 5. Antiq. Cap. 9.

And ſaid unto him, Thou ſhalt not inherit in our Father's Houſe.] Have no Share of his Eſtate.

For thou art the Son of a ſtrange Woman.] This explains the Word Zonah, to be the ſame with a Woman of another Country; for there is no reaſon to think, that by another Woman (as the Words are in the Hebrew) he means a Woman of another Tribe, as the Chaldee Paraphraſt, R. Bechai, and others, expound it. See Selden in the Place before named, and Buxtorf, de Sponſal. & Divortiis, P. 61.

Ver. 3. Then Jephthah fled from his Brethren.] When they were ſo unkind as to drive him from his Father's Houſe, he did not think fit to ſtay in their Country.

And dwelt in the Land of Tob.] We read no where elſe of this Country, which, it is likely, was not far from Gilead, upon the Borders of the Ammonites, in the Entrance of Arabia deſerta; or, perhaps, it is the ſame with the Country called Iſh-tob (2 Sam. viii. 6, 8.) which was in Syria, and ſo near the Ammonites, that they hired Forces from thence, as well as from other Syrians, to fight with King David. We find ſome Foot-ſteps of this Land, it is very probable, in the ſecond Book of Maccabees, Chap. xii. 17. where we read of Τυβιηνοὶ Ἰουδαῖοι, i. e. Jews who dwelt in the Land of Tob.

And there were gathered vain Men to Jephthah.] Or, Empty Men; for the Word Rekim ſignifies poor and needy Perſons, Men of no Eſtates; ſuch as reſorted to David when he fled from Saul, 1 Sam. xxii. 2. So I ſuppoſe it to be here underſtood, (not that they were profligate Perſons) for the Word Pochazim, light Men, is not here added, as it is in the Story of thoſe who followed Abimelech, ix. 4. Therefore Grotius doth not ſeem rightly to have repreſented Jephthah, when he ſaith, He was one of thoſe who ex prædonum Ducibus juſti Duces facti ſunt. Lib. 3. de Jure Belli & Pacis, Cap. 3. Sect. 3. For theſe were not Highway-Men, as we call them, that lived by Prey; but only Men of ſmall or no Fortune, who were glad of an Occaſion to join themſelves to ſo gallant a Man as Jephthah was. And ſo the Word we tranſlate gathered, imports, that they liſted themſelves under him of their own Accord, being invited to it by the great Fame of his Humanity and Valour. But Grotius herein follows the Vulgar, who adds the Word Latrocinates, without any Authority, either from the Hebrew, Chaldee, or LXX.

And went out with him.] Made Excurſions upon the Enemies of the Iſraelites thereabouts, and got what Booty they could from them, for their Subſiſtence, juſt as David did when he was forced to flee into the Land of the Philiſtines, 1 Sam. xxvii. 8, 9, 10, 11.

Ver. 4. And it came to paſs in Proceſs of Time.] In the Hebrew it is, after Days, i. e. as Primate Uſher underſtands it (in the Place above-named) after thoſe Years mentioned, x. 8. viz. Eighteen Years, in the Concluſion of which, when Jair was dead, the Ammonites took the following Reſolution; but there is no good Ground, as I have ſhewn there, for this Interpretation: Therefore by after Days, I underſtand, ſome Time after their Retreat into their own Country, which I mentioned x. 17.

That the Children of Ammon made War againſt Iſrael.] They only came in Parties before, to rob and ſpoil them; but now finding the Iſraelites began to take Courage, and had formed a Camp in Gilead, x. 17. they raiſed an Army, intending to conquer them, and poſſeſs themſelves of their Country.

Ver. 5. And it came to paſs, when the Children of Ammon made War againſt Iſrael.] The Vulgar interprets it, Preſſed hard upon them.

The Elders of Gilead.] Who are called Princes, x. 18.

Went to fetch Jephthah out of the Land of Tob.] Some of the principal Perſons of the Country, were ſent in the Name of all the Inhabitants of Gilead, in an Embaſſy to him, to invite him to return to them.

Ver.

Ver. 6. And they ſaid unto Jephthah, Come and be our Captain, that we may fight with the Children of Ammon.] They did not pretend to make him their King, (remembering, perhaps, what had befallen the Men of Shechem and Abimelech) but only the Leader of their Army.

Ver. 7. And Jephthah ſaid unto the Elders of Gilead, Did ye not hate me, and expel me out of my Father's Houſe?] This ſignifies, that his Brethren ejected him, by the Aſſiſtance of the publick Authority (unleſs we ſuppoſe that they were of the Number of Elders, that were ſent to him;) or the Elders, who ſaw the Wrong his Brethren did him, connived at it, and did not interpoſe, according to their Office, to do him Right, whereby they made his Expulſion their own Act.

And why are ye come unto me now, when you are in Diſtreſs?] As much as to ſay, What Reaſon have you to expect that I ſhould hearken to you, ſince I know it is only your Diſtreſs, which moves you to recal me?

Ver. 8. And the Elders of Gilead ſaid unto Jephthah, Therefore we turn again to thee now.] This may relate either to what immediately goes before, and then the Senſe is, We confeſs we are in Diſtreſs, and therefore implore thy Help, (which, if thou wilt afford us, thou ſhalt command us all for ever;) or to the Beginning of the foregoing Verſe, and the Meaning is, We are ſenſible of the Injury that was done thee, and therefore are come to repair it, by inviting thee to be our Head; for that is meant by their turning again to him: They had altered their Mind, and not only revoked that unjuſt Act, but offered him a Recompence.

That thou mayeſt go with us, and fight againſt the Children of Ammon, and be our Head over all the Inhabitants of Gilead.] Of the Tribes on their Side Jordan; for they could promiſe nothing for the Tribes in the Land of Canaan, ſome of which were oppreſſed now by the Philiſtines, as they were by the Ammonites.

Ver. 9. And Jephthah ſaid unto the Elders of Gilead, If ye bring me home again, to fight againſt the Children of Ammon, and the LORD deliver them before me, ſhall I be your Head?] He offers to be the General of their Army, if, after he had vanquiſhed their Enemies, they would, in good Earneſt, make him their Governor in Chief, and not throw him off, when they had no further Need of him. In which Agreement, he ſuppoſed, the Conſent and Appointment of GOD, by whoſe Aid alone he hoped to be victorious.

Ver. 10. And the Elders of Gilead ſaid unto Jephthah, The LORD be Witneſs between us, if we do not according to thy Word.] They ſolemnly call GOD to witneſs their Sincerity, confirming what was agreed by an Oath, and wiſhing GOD to revenge it, if they did not perform what they promiſed.

Ver. 11. Then Jephthah went with the Elders of Gilead.] Unto his own Country.

And the People made him Head and Captain over them.] In a full Aſſembly of the People, with the Princes, ix. 6. x. 18. he was made General of their Army; with an Aſſurance, he ſhould be their Head, after the War was ſucceſsfully ended.

And Jephthah uttered all his Words before the LORD.] The People had done their Part, but Jephthah would undertake nothing, without GOD's Approbation, before whom, in a ſolemn Prayer, he laid all that he had ſaid unto them; and, it is likely, that GOD anſwered him by ſome Prophet, and authorized him to undertake the Conduct and Government of the People, (See x. 11.) for if he had done it without a divine Warrant, the Spirit of the LORD would not have come upon him, as we read it did, Ver. 29.

In Mizpeh.] Where the Children of Iſrael had gathered themſelves together to oppoſe the Ammonites, x. 17. and where Jephthah choſe to fix his Habitation, after the Conqueſt of them, Ver. 34. of this Chapter; for that Mizpeh where all the Tribes, we often read, met before the LORD, was on this Side Jordan, not far from Jeruſalem, either in the Tribe of Judah, or of Benjamin. It is thought probable, by ſome learned Men, that there was ſome Proſeucha, a Praying-Place, or Place of divine Worſhip, here at Mizpah (See Joſh. xxiv. 26.) where Jephthah uttered his Words; which otherwiſe, they think, could not be ſaid to be done before the LORD: But this is not a ſufficient Ground for ſuch an Opinion; for the divine Preſence (as Raſi here obſerves) was in that Place where all the People aſſembled upon a publick Concern. See 1 Sam. xi. 15. Kimchi obſerves the ſame upon the twentieth Chapter of this Book, Ver. 1. where his Words are, In every Place, in which Iſrael, or a great Part of it, is aſſembled, the divine Preſence dwells. See my Notes there.

Ver. 12. And Jephthah ſent Meſſengers to the King of the Children of Ammon.] Now he plainly acts as a Chief Governor, in appointing an Embaſſy to go from him to the King of the Ammonites; which Power he would not have aſſumed, if it had not been given him by GOD.

Saying, What haſt thou to do with me.] That is, What is the Ground of thy Quarrel? Or, For what Reaſon is this Invaſion made?

That thou art come to fight againſt me in my Land?] This is the Language of the ſupreme Governor of the Country, unto whom all were ſubject, as their Lord; and demonſtrates him to have been a moſt pious Prince, that would firſt debate Matters fairly, before he came to Blows, according to the Senſe of a Number of great Men in future Times, mentioned by Grotius at large, Lib. II. de Jure Belli & Pacis, Cap. 23. Sect. 7. Unto which he was not bound, having taken Arms only in his own Defence; yet to prevent the Effuſion of Blood, he argues the Caſe with the King of the Ammonites, who ought rather, if he thought himſelf injured by the Iſraelites, to have ſent, before he took Arms, to require Satisfaction.

Ver. 13. And the King of the Children of Ammon anſwered to the Meſſengers of Jephthah, Becauſe Iſrael took away my Land, when they came out of Egypt.] This is a mere Colour and Pretence, the Land being none of theirs, when the the Iſraelites conquered it, but the Land of Sihon, King of the Amorites: For as to the Country of the Ammonites, God expreſly charged the Iſraelites not to meddle with it, (Deut. i. 19.) for he would give them none of it. It is true, this Land, which they now claimed, had formerly belonged to the Moabites, but Sihon had made a Conqueſt of it, and driven them out of it, as we read Numb. xxi. 26. The King of Ammon therefore could not call it his Land, unleſs he was alſo King of Moab at this Time, which is not improbable: Whence it is, that in the following Diſpute between him and Jephthah, there is a promiſcuous Mention of the Moabites together with the Ammonites, as if they were but one People, Ver. 15, 17, 18. and Chemoſh, which was the God of the Moabites, is called, Ver. 24. the God of the King of Ammon: Unto which may be added, that the Land which Sihon conquered, did not entirely belong to the Moabites, but ſome of it to the Children of Ammon, as is expreſly ſaid Joſh. xiii. 25. where we read, that to the Gadites was given half of the Land of the Children of Ammon; therefore ſome Part of Sihon's Kingdom (where the Gadites were ſettled) had formerly belonged to the Ammonites.

From Arnon even unto Jabbok, and to Jordan.] Theſe are the Bounds of the Country to which they laid a Claim; the River Arnon on the South, and the Brook Jabbok on the North, (which we may call the Length of the Country) and Jordan on the Weſt; upon which afterward is added the Eaſtern Bounds, when it is ſaid, Ver. 22. from the Wilderneſs unto Jordan; which is the Wilderneſs through which the Iſraelites entered into the Territories of Sihon.

Now therefore reſtore theſe Lands.] Which belonged to the Moabites and Ammonites.

Again peaceably.] The Meſſengers of Jephthah had declared that he deſired not War, but Peace; which the King of Ammon tells him he muſt not expect, unleſs he reſigned theſe Countries to him.

Ver. 14. And Jephthah ſent Meſſengers again to the King of the Children of Ammon.] This is an Argument of a very peaceable Diſpoſition, and an high Commendation of a warlike Spirit, that he was ſtill deſirous to end this Controverſy by Reaſon, and not by the Sword.

Ver. 15. And ſaith unto him, Thus ſaith Jephthah.] This is his Reply; which ſeems to be delivered as from a Man in Authority.

Iſrael took not away the Land of Moab, nor the Land of the Children of Ammon.] He denies the Matter of Fact, upon which they grounded the War: For the Iſraelites found this Country in the Poſſeſſion of Sihon.

Ver. 16. But when Iſrael came out of Egypt.] He proves the Truth of what he affirmed, by a ſhort Hiſtory of what paſſed after they came out of Egypt; when the King of Ammon ſaid, Ver. 13. they took this Land from him.

And walked through the Wilderneſs, unto the Red Sea, and came to Kadeſh.] This is not to be underſtood of Kadeſh-barnea, but of that Kadeſh mentioned Numb. xx. 1, 14. which was in the Borders of Edom; unto which they came directly from the Red Sea: Nor of their coming to the Red Sea, in the firſt Year after they paſſed through it, mentioned Numb. xxxiii. 10. but of their laſt coming to it, in that Station they made at Ezion-geber, (after many Stations in other Places) which was upon the Shore of the Red Sea; from whence they immediately marched to this Kadeſh, Numb. xxxiii. 35, 36.

Ver. 17. Then Iſrael ſent Meſſengers to the King of Edom, ſaying, Let me, I pray thee, paſs through thy Land.] This ſhews, they were ſo far from invading any Body's Country, that they humbly begged Leave to paſs through Edom, engaging to do no Violence, but to pay for every Thing they wanted. See Numb. xx. 14, &c.

But the King of Edom would not hearken thereto.] Notwithſtanding which, they were not provoked by their Inhumanity to quarrel with them.

And in like manner they ſent to the King of Moab, but he would not conſent.] We do not read of ſuch a Meſſage ſent to the Moabites: But when they came from Ezion-geber into the Wilderneſs of Moab, we find a Command of God to them not to diſtreſs the Moabites, nor to contend with them in Battle: Which intimates there was ſome Occaſion for it; which was their Refuſal to grant them a common Civility.

And Iſrael abode in Kadeſh.] Put up all theſe Affronts, and abſtained from all Violence, continuing quiet in the Place where they had pitched their Tents.

Ver. 18. Then they went along through the Wilderneſs, and encompaſſed the Land of Edom, and the Land of Moab.] When they were denied a Paſſage the direct Way, they choſe rather to fetch a great Compaſs, and travel many Miles with great Labour and Toil, (ſee Numb. xxi. 4.) than give others the leaſt Diſturbance.

And came by the Eaſt Side of the Land of Moab, and pitched upon the other Side of Arnon.] See Numb. xxi. 13.

But came not within the Border of Moab; for Arnon was the Border of Moab.] This is a Demonſtration that they did no Injury to the Moabites, into whoſe Country they did not enter. For they went no further than Arnon, which divided their Country from the Ammonites.

Ver. 19. And Iſrael ſent Meſſengers unto Sihon King of the Amorites, the King of Heſhbon.] Where his Royal Palace was. See Numb. xxi. 25, 26.

And Iſrael ſaid unto him, Let us paſs, we pray thee, through thy Land, unto my Place.] Being denied Paſſage through Edom and Moab, they ſent a friendly Meſſage unto him, craving the Favour of being permitted to go through his Country unto Canaan, Numb. xxi. 21, 22.

Ver. 20. But Sihon truſted not Iſrael to paſs through his Coaſt.] Was jealous they would ſeize on his Country.

But Sihon gathered all his People together, and pitched in Jahaz, and fought againſt Iſrael.] He contented not himſelf to refuſe (as his Neighbours had done) to grant a Paſſage through his Country,

Country, which they could not demand, but raiſed all his Forces, and proudly marched to drive them away from his Borders, Numb. xxi. 23, 24.

Ver. 21. And the LORD GOD of Iſrael delivered Sihon, and all his People, into the Hand of Iſrael, and they ſmote them.] It was plainly an Act of GOD to give the Iſraelites the Victory; for they were unprepared for War, and tired with a long March about the Land of Edom and Moab.

So Iſrael poſſeſſed all the Land of the Amorites, the Inhabitants of that Country.] They did not diſpoſſeſs the Moabites, but the Amorites, who then inhabited that Country, which became the Poſſeſſion of the Iſraelites, by the Right of a juſt War, in their own Defence.

Ver. 22. And they poſſeſſed all the Coaſts of the Ammorites, from Arnon even unto Jabbok, and from the Wilderneſs even unto Jordan.] This is a Deſcription of the Length and Breadth of the Land, from South to North, and from Eaſt to Weſt: (See above, Ver. 13.) None of which was then in the Poſſeſſion of the Moabites or Ammonites; who could not therefore charge the Iſraelites with taking any of their Land from them.

Ver. 23. And ſo now the LORD GOD of Iſrael hath diſpoſſeſſed the Amorites from before his People Iſrael.] This is a new Title to this Land; which they not only took in a juſt War, but was alſo given them by GOD, who made them victorious, and then beſtowed it upon them.

And ſhouldſt thou poſſeſs it?] It was abſurd to think, that they ſhould take the Pains to conquer it, and GOD ſhould give it to them, that they might put the Moabites again in the Poſſeſſion of it, with whom they had no Alliance; but, quite contrary, they had denied them the common Right of Mankind.

Ver. 24. Wilt not thou poſſeſs that which Chemoſh thy GOD giveth thee to poſſeſs?] He doth not call Chemoſh a GOD; but only argues from the Opinion that they had of him, which all Nations had of their Gods, that they owed their Conqueſts to them, to whom therefore they gave Thanks for all their Victories. Now he appeals to them, whether they would not keep what their GOD had given them, and look upon it as rightfully poſſeſſed by them.

So whomſoever the LORD our GOD ſhall drive out from before us, them will we poſſeſs.] By the very ſame Title, whereby the Moabites poſſeſſed the Country wherein they now lived; from whence they drove out the ancient Inhabitants, Deut. ii. 10, 11.

Ver. 25. And now art thou any thing better than Balak, the Son if Zippor, King of Moab?] This is a third Argument, that when this Conqueſt was newly made by the Iſraelites, the then King of Moab (as potent as the preſent) laid no Claim to this Country, nor demanded to have it reſtored to him; but only was afraid they ſhould invade the Land he ſtill poſſeſſed.

Did he ever ſtrive againſt Iſrael.] Diſpute their Title with them.

Or did he ever fight againſt Iſrael.] Endeavour by Force of Arms to recover this Country, as not belonging to them, but to him.

Ver. 26. While Iſrael dwelt in Heſhbon, and her Towns, and in Aroer, and her Towns, and in all the Cities that be along by the Coaſt of Arnon three hundred Years? &c.] In the laſt place he pleads Preſcription, and that for three hundred Years; in which long Space of Time none of the Kings of Moab pretended a Right to this Country, much leſs conteſted it with them; which Argument was irrefragable. For if ſuch a long indiſputed Poſſeſſion cannot make a Right to a Country, it is impoſſible there ſhould be any End of Wars between Kings and Princes. But all Mankind look upon thoſe Wars as unjuſt, which are made for Recovery of Countries wherein People have ſettled quietly for many Ages; tho', perhaps, in the firſt Acquiſition of them, their Title was not good. Therefore it is not neceſſary to examine, whether Sihon had a juſt Cauſe of War when he conquered this Country; nor is it of Importance, with reſpect to this, to examine whether the Iſraelites had held this Conqueſt juſt three hundred Years; for if a few be wanting, it is not material: But with reſpect to ſomething elſe it is of great Conſequence, for the explaining of what we read 1 Kings vi. 2. that Solomon began to build the Temple in the four hundred and eightieth Year after they came out of Egypt. Which Space is divided by theſe Words of Jephthah into two Intervals: The firſt of which contained three hundred and forty Years; for they had poſſeſſed this Country three hundred Years, and they came out of Egypt forty Years before its Conqueſt: During which Time, they had been Slaves to the Meſopotamians, Moabites, Canaanites, and Midianites. Now, if the Years wherein they were oppreſſed by theſe four Nations, and the Years of Peace and Quiet which they enjoyed, be put together, from the firſt Year of Cuſhan-Riſhothaim, to the laſt Year of Jair, they produce a little more than three hundred Years; ſo that no Time is left for Joſhua's Conqueſt of Canaan, and his Life after it, and for the Generation that out-lived him. But by ſuppoſing that ſome of theſe Things fell out in the very ſame Time, (as for Example, during the fourſcore Years Reſt in the Eaſtern Parts of the Land after Eglon's Death, they were oppreſſed twenty Years in the North by Jabin) this Difficulty is removed, and all comes right; as Sir John Marſham hath demonſtrated in his Canon Chronicus: Where he ſhews, that from the Death of Moſes to this Invaſion of the Ammonites, there were three hundred Years; allowing five and twenty Years (as Joſephus computes) for Joſhua's Government after they came into Canaan, and thirty-five Years to the following Generation that ſurvived him. See Seculum 11. Æra Exodi. And concerning the other Interval, ſee here xii. 14.

Why therefore did ye not recover them within that Time?] This Queſtion could not be anſwered, that in ſo long a Time they ſhould hear nothing of their Claim till now.

Ver. 27. Wherefore I have not ſinned againſt thee, but thou doſt me wrong to war againſt me.] Upon all theſe Reaſons he concludes, the Ammonites monites had no Cauſe to make this War; but were injurious in it to the Iſraelites.

The LORD, the Judge, be Judge this Day between the Children of Iſrael, and the Children of Ammon.] The Meaning is, that if they were not moved by theſe Reaſons, but the Controverſy muſt be decided by Arms, he committed his Cauſe to GOD, the righteous Judge of the whole World, who, he doubted not, would do him right. By this Day he doth not mean that GOD would determine the Right, by giving him the Victory then, when he ſpake theſe Words, (for he was not yet ready to give them Battle) but that GOD would judge of the Juſtice of his preſent Plea, and accordingly give Sentence, when the Matter came to be tried in a Battle.

Ver. 28. Howbeit the King of the Children of Ammon hearkened not to the Words of Jephthah, which he ſent him.] He would not yield to Arguments, being obſtinately reſolved to fight it out.

Ver. 29. Then the Spirit of the LORD came upon Jephthah.] The People had choſen him for their Leader, and promiſed to continue him their chief Governor, as they had already made him; and now GOD publickly declares his Approbation of their Choice; and made him their Judge, as he had done others before, (iii. 10.) by endowing him with an extraordinary Meaſure of Courage and Wiſdom, and all other Qualities neceſſary to render him fit to be the Ruler of his People.

And he paſſed over Gilead and Manaſſeh.] Went through the whole Country of Reuben and Gad, (which are comprehended in Gilead) and likewiſe the half Tribe of Manaſſeh, and levied what Men he could among them.

And paſſed over Mizpeh of Gilead.] Went to the extreme Part of the Country Northward, where Mizpeh was, towards Mount Lebanon and Hermon.

And from Mizpeh of Gilead he paſſed over unto the Children of Ammon.] He marched from thence, with ſuch Forces as he had gathered, toward the Enemies Country.

Ver. 30. And Jephthah vowed a Vow unto the LORD, and ſaid, If thou ſhalt without fail deliver the Children of Ammon into my Hand.] He did not make a Doubt of it, but thought he might be more aſſured of Victory, if he made a religious Vow before-hand, of being very grateful to GOD for it. Which was the Cuſtom of the ancient Romans, as we find in Livy; who frequently tells us, that their Generals were wont to vow to Jupiter, or Apollo, or others, Part of the Spoil they ſhould take in War; or to build Temples in their Honour. And thus the Iſraelites, when King Arad came againſt them, as they were going towards Canaan, (a little before the Conqueſt of this Country now in Controverſy) vowed to make his Country a Cherem, if GOD would deliver it into their Hands. See Numb. xxi. 2.

Ver. 31. That it ſhall be, that whatſoever.] This comprehends all Sorts of Creatures, as the Hebrew Doctors commonly obſerve.

Cometh forth of the Doors of my Houſe to meet me.] The Vulgar adds the Word firſt, which muſt be underſtood; otherwiſe, he would have been obliged to devote many Things to the LORD, which might poſſibly come out of his Houſe.

When I return in Peace from the Children of Ammon.] Come back victorious.

Shall ſurely be the LORD's, and I will offer it up for a Burnt-offering.] If it was a Thing fit to be offered; for if a Dog or a Swine ſhould have happened to come out firſt to meet him, that was not lawful to be offered. But the great Queſtion is, Whether it was not as unlawful to offer his Daughter, who ſeems to be comprehended in this Vow? And it is ſaid afterwards, Ver. 39. that he did unto her according to it. Joſephus, and the Chaldee Paraphraſt, and ſeveral famous Rabbins, think that he did offer her, being deceived by a Miſtake of the Senſe of that Law, Levit. xxvii. 28. And tho' he might have been abſolved from his Vow by the High Prieſt, yet they tell an idle Story, that they ſtood ſo much upon a Punctilio of their Dignity, that he would neither go to Phineas, nor Phineas vouchſafe to wait upon him. Which is a Tale not to be found in the Talmud, but in ſome leſſer Writer, as Mr. Selden obſerves, Lib. 4. de Jure Nat. & Gent. Cap. 11. where he ſhews, that the two Kimchi's, Father and Son, with R. Levi ben Gerſom, and others, interpret theſe Words quite otherwiſe; and take the Particle (which we tranſlate and) to be a disjunctive; that is, as much as or. So Kimchi his Words are, It ſhall be conſecrated to the LORD, if it be not fit for a Burnt-offering; or it ſhall be offered for a Burnt-offering, if it be fit for it. And ſo they think ſhe was devoted to GOD, and ſeparate from all Secular Affairs, that ſhe might give herſelf continually to Prayer and holy Exerciſes. Which Opinion hath ſeveral Difficulties in it, as he there obſerves; and it muſt be confeſſed, the Stream of Interpreters runs the quite contrary Way: For tho' they call this votum temerarium, as Tertullian doth, a raſh Vow, or a fooliſh incautious Vow, as Theodoret, St. Auſtin, and others; yet very great Numbers (and indeed moſt of the antient Chriſtian Writers) think that he did really offer her: Tho' it cannot be denied, that there are great Difficulties in this Interpretation alſo; no ſuch thing having ever been done in Iſrael; but ſuch Sacrifices declared abominable unto GOD: Which it is a Wonder he ſhould not know, nor the People neither; who, one would have expected, ſhould have hindered ſuch a barbarous Sacrifice. All that can be ſaid in Anſwer to this, is, that they having been long accuſtomed to Idolatrous Worſhip, and he having lived out of his own Country, and being a Soldier, had forgotten their Law, or retained but a very imperfect Knowledge of it. But they that would ſee this Matter largely diſcuſſed, may conſult Ludovicus Capellus, who hath a long Diſſertation on purpoſe about it; and I ſhall ſay ſomething more of it upon the latter End of this Chapter.

Ver. 32. So Jephthah paſſed over unto the Children of Ammon, to fight againſt them.] He was not far from them before, Ver. 29. but now he drew his Army up to them, and engaged them.

And

And the LORD delivered them into his Hand.] And thereby declared the Ammonites were in the wrong, Ver. 27.

Ver. 33. And he ſmote them from Aroer.] Which was a City upon the Banks of the River Arnon; or rather in the River, being encompaſſed with it.

Till thou come to Minnith.] Another City up in the Country.

Even twenty Cities, and unto the Plain of the Vineyards.] They chaſed them a great Way, and deſtroyed their Cities as they went along, till they came to the Plain here mentioned. Or, as it is in the Margin, unto Abel; a City perhaps which was very ſtrong, called Abel-Keramim, as the LXX underſtand it.

With a great Slaughter.] Both in the Field, and in the Cities.

Thus the Children of Ammon were ſubdued before the Children of Iſrael.] So that they infeſted their Country no more.

Ver. 34. And Jephthah came to Mizpeh, unto his Houſe.] From which he went forth when he began this Expedition, Ver. 29.

And behold, his Daughter came out to meet him, with Timbrels and Dances.] She was the firſt Perſon of his Family whom he ſaw at his Return, who came, accompanied with ſome of her Neighbours, to welcome him home, and congratulate his Victory with Muſick and Dancing. So the old Manner had been, Exod. xv. 20. and continued afterwards, 1 Sam. xviii. 6.

And ſhe was his only Child; beſide her he had neither Son nor Daughter.] In the Hebrew the Words are, he had not from himſelf either Son or Daughter; intimating, perhaps, that tho' his Wife had Children by another Huſband, or he had adopted Children, yet he had none deſcended from his own Body but this only Daughter, which made her the dearer to him.

Ver. 35. And it came to paſs, that when he ſaw her, he rent his Clothes.] As the Manner was when any great Calamity befel them. See Levit. x. 6.

And ſaid, Alas! my Daughter, thou haſt brought me very low.] Quite ſpoiled my Triumph.

And thou art one of them that trouble me.] Which was the more afflictive, becauſe he expected from her the greateſt Comfort and Pleaſure.

For I have opened my Mouth unto the LORD, and I cannot go back.] That is, made a Vow, which he could not retract. It is likely he told her what it was, tho' that be not here expreſſed; or by his deep Sorrow at the firſt Sight of her, ſhe underſtood it was upon her Account: But in this he was groſly miſtaken, which way ſoever we interpret this Vow; whether of ſeparating her from Company, or of offering her for a Burnt-offering; for he was bound to neither, yea, he was bound not to offer her in Sacrifice, which was a Thing abominable. As for the other, there was no ſuch Power by their Law granted to Parents, to ſhut up their Children, and ſeparate them from all Society with Men, as Mr. Selden obſerves, there being not the leaſt Footſtep of any ſuch Thing in the whole Body of their Talmud, or in their Lawyers.

Ver. 36. And ſhe ſaid unto him, My Father, if thou haſt opened thy Mouth unto the LORD, do to me according to that which hath proceeded out of thy Mouth; foraſmuch as the LORD hath taken Vengeance for thee of thine Enemies, even of the Children of Ammon.] A rare Inſtance of Religion, Courage, Obedience to her Parents, and Love to her Country.

Ver. 37. And ſhe ſaid unto her Father, Let this Thing be done for me.] Grant me only one Requeſt; which was not inconſiſtent, ſhe thought, with his Vow; for he did not ſay he would execute it immediately.

Let me alone two Months.] Leave me at Liberberty ſo long.

That I may go up and down upon the Mountains.] Which were fit Places for her Purpoſe, being ſolitary, and far from Company.

To bewail my Virginity.] For it was accounted a great Infelicity in that Nation to die without Iſſue.

I and my Fellows.] Other Virgins, her Companions. This ſome take for an Argument, that ſhe was not to be ſacrificed; for then ſhe would have bewailed her Death, rather than her Want of Poſterity. But this it no concluding Argument; for ſhe might poſſibly look upon it as an Honour to be a Sacrifice unto GOD.

Ver. 38. And he ſaid, Go; and he ſent her away for two Months, and ſhe went with her Companions, and bewailed her Virginity upon the Mountains.] They that think ſhe knew ſhe was to be offered, infer from hence, that ſhe looked upon it as a greater Calamity to die without Iſſue, than merely to die.

Ver. 39. And it came to paſs, at the End of two Months ſhe returned to her Father.] Having had time to bring her Mind unto a perfect Reſignation to her Father; or rather, to confirm herſelf in the Reſolution ſhe had at firſt, chearfully to ſubmit unto whatſoever he had vowed.

Who did with her according to his Vow, which he had vowed.] That is, ſaith Kimchi, he made her an Houſe, and brought her into it, and there left her ſecluded from the Company of all Men, and from all ſecular Affairs. That's the Meaning, he thinks, of the firſt Part of his Vow, It ſhall ſurely be the LORD'S. And ſo Ralbag, a little more fully, ſhe was ſeparated from the Company of Men; for if ſhe had had a Huſband, ſhe could not have ſerved the LORD alone, but muſt have ſerved her Huſband alſo, as all Wives are bound to do. Selden indeed ſaith, that he doth not ſee what Law gave him this Power to keep her from Marriage; there being nothing of it in all their Books, as was ſaid before. But there is ſomething like it in 2 Sam. xx. 3. where David ſhut up his Concubines, and made them live in Widowhood till their Death. And he might take the Liberty to do this, (though no Law gave him ſuch Power) rather than take away the Life of his Daughter, which was againſt Law; for it condemned ſuch Sacrifices. But the Truth is, there was no Neceſſity of doing either, if he had underſtood, or conſidered the Law; for he might have paid a Price for her to the Prieſt, which the Law preſcribed, when a Son or Daughter was conſecrated to GOD, Levit. xxvii. 2, 3, &c. Nay, they who conſecrated themſelves, might redeem themſelves: And about this very Caſe of Jephthah there was anciently a Diſpute between two famous Doctors, Simeon ben Lakiſh, and R. Johanan; the former of which maintained, that he ought to have paid the Price or Value of her, according to the Law; but the other maintained, he was not bound to do ſo much as that, becauſe the Vow was to offer a Burnt offering, in which his Daughter could not be comprehended. For other Animals only were capable of being offered in Sacrifice. As for thoſe Words, Levit. xxvii. 28, 29. upon which Lud. Capellus hath founded his Opinion that ſhe might be ſacrificed, Maimonides hath better reſtrained them to the Sons and Daughters of the Canaanites, devoted by GOD to Deſtruction. But who can think that GOD would have the Hebrew Children ſo devoted as thoſe Slaves were, upon whom a Curſe was denounced before they entered into Canaan? Beſide, if Jephthah was bound to offer his Daughter, who ſhould be employed in that Work? Should the Prieſts? But their Buſineſs was rather to perſuade and deter him from what he had imprudently vowed. Should the Magiſtrates? But they could not be ignorant that GOD had forbidden ſuch Sacrifices. Should Jephthah himſelf? But this would have argued him as void of common Senſe, as of natural Affection. And who can think (as Theodoricus Hackſpan goes on) that ſince GOD allowed Cities of Refuge, whither a Man-ſlayer might flee, and be ſafe, when he had unwittingly killed a Man, that the ſame Privilege might not have been allowed to a Son or a Daughter, who was perfectly innocent, (as this Virgin was) viz. to ſave their Lives by Flight, or by paying a Ranſom?

The Jews are very doubtful in this Matter; for ſome ſay Phineas loſt his Prieſthood, and it was tranſlated to the Family of Ithamar, becauſe he did not abſolve Jephthah from this Vow: But others of the Eaſtern Writers ſay, he was forbid to releaſe him by the Spirit of Prophecy. And Jephthah, when he was admoniſhed by his Friends to go and adviſe with him how to ſave his Daughter, was forbid by an Angel to go. See Selden, Lib. 1. de Succeſſion. ad Pontificatum, Cap. 2. Fol. 117, &c. But the Targum upon this Verſe blames Jephthah for not conſulting Phineas; for if he had he would have redeemed her for a Sum of Money.

And ſhe knew no Man.] This is looked upon, by thoſe who think ſhe was only conſecrated to the LORD, as an Argument of it; that after the Performance of his Vow, it is ſaid, She knew no Man; that is, as long as ſhe lived, ſhe continued a Virgin.

And it was a Cuſtom in Iſrael.] They that think ſhe was ſacrificed, take theſe Words as ſeparate from thoſe that follow, and interpret them, Upon this a Sanction was made, that none ſhould hereafter, by the like Error offer human Sacrifices. So the Targum. See Selden in the Place forenamed. But there was no need of this Statute; nor is it likely that the Fable among the Greeks, concerning the Sacrifice of Iphigenia by Agamemnon, was deviſed out of this ſacred Story, as Lud. Capellus conjectures; who fancies alſo this Jephtigenia, that is, the Daughter of Jephthah, (from whence might come Iphigenia) was not ſacrificed upon the Altar, but only ſlain; though the Vow was, he would offer a Burnt-offering. But we refer theſe Words to what follows in the next Verſe.

Ver. 40. That the Daughters of Iſrael.] They of that Country.

Went yearly to lament the Daughter of Jephthah the Gileadite.] Some interpret the Hebrew Word Thannoth to ſignify they went to diſcourſe with her, or to comfort her; though the moſt ancient Interpreters (as Bochartus obſerves in his Hierozoicon, P. 1. Lib. 1. Cap. 9.) tranſlate it as we do θρηνεῖν, as the LXX have it, to make Lamentation. But quite contrary the learned Lud. de Dieu, different from the reſt, (except Sixtinus Amama, who hath the ſame Notion) interprets it to praiſe her. Which Signification he plainly derives out of the Arabick Language; and beſide, we ourſelves in this very Book (Ver. 11.) ſeem to follow it, by tranſlating it rehearſe. And thus that excellent Man explains this whole Matter. She was not ſlain; but as appears ſufficiently from the foregoing Words, was devoted to perpetual Virginity; in which ſhe deſerved greater Commendation than her Father. For he, as ſoon as he ſaw her come to meet him, repented of the Vow he had raſhly made, and tore his Clothes, lamenting the miſerable Condition into which he had brought himſelf and her: But ſhe moſt courageouſly comforted her Father, and congratulating his Victory, deſired him not to be troubled about her, for ſhe was ready to ſubmit to what he had vowed. Upon the Account of which heroick Virtue, whereby ſhe obliged the whole Country, they could do no leſs than celebrate her Praiſe every Year.

Four Days in the Year.] One Day in every Quarter of the Year, they went to celebrate her Fame with Verſes compoſed in her Praiſe, as Grotius ſuppoſes. But whether they went to the Place where ſhe was retired, and there ſang them before her, or in ſome other publick Place; and whether while ſhe lived, or after her Death, is uncertain, as de Dieu obſerves.

CHAP. XII.

Ver. 1. AND the Men of Ephraim gathered themſelves.] In the Hebrew, were called, by a publick Cry, or Proclamation, to arm themſelves.

And went Northward.] To the Country of Manaſſeh, on the other Side Jordan. For this ſufficiently ſhews, that Mizpeh was in that Country, and in the Northern Part of it, towards Lebanon and Hermon, as I obſerved before, xi. 29. Pet. Martyr thinks they did not march orderly thither, being not gathered together (as far as appears) by the Authority of the the Magiſtrate, but in a tumultuous Manner, as ſeditious People are wont to do.

And ſaid unto Jephthah.] By this, and by what follows, it appears they came to Mizpeh, where Jephthah dwelt.

Wherefore paſſedſt thou over.] They do not mean over Jordan, for there he was already; but from hence to the Coaſt of the Ammonites. See xi. 30, 32.

To fight againſt the Children of Ammon, and didſt not call us to go with thee?] Their Pride made them take it ill, that they had not a Share in the Glory of the late Victory. Juſt as formerly they quarrelled with Gideon upon the like Occaſion, viii. 1. which ſhews they were an haughty Tribe.

We will burn thine Houſe upon thee with Fire.] Their Pride put them into ſuch a ſtrange Rage, that they ſeem to threaten to burn him, as well as his Houſe.

Ver. 2. And Jephthah ſaid unto them, I and my People were at great Strife with the Children of Ammon.] He anſwers their furious Language with great Mildneſs; and firſt tells them, that he did not undertake this War till he was forced to it by the Ammonites, who ſorely diſtreſſed them, x. 9.

And when I called you, ye delivered me not out of their Hands.] In the ſecond place he denies their Charge, and affirms the contrary, that he had begged their Aſſiſtance, but they refuſed to give it him: Yea (as the Word we tranſlate called ſignifies) he had cried aloud to them, with earneſt Importunities, to help them in their Diſtreſs.

Ver. 3. And when I ſaw that you delivered me not.] That there was no Hope of your Help to preſerve us from Ruin.

I put my Life in my Hand.] Expoſed myſelf to the utmoſt Hazard; for he had but a ſmall Part of the People of Iſrael with him, to fight with their powerful Oppreſſors. This Phraſe ſeems peculiar to the Hebrews, and the Eaſtern Writers; for among all the Greek and Roman Writers, Iſaac Caſaubon ſaith he never met with it but once in Xenarchus; whom Athenæus alledges, introducing in one of his Plays a Man full of Fear and Trembling——ἐν τῇ χειρὶ τὴν ψυχὴν ἔχοντα.

And paſſed over againſt the Children of Ammon.] With ſuch Forces alone as he could get on his Side Jordan, xi. 29, 30.

And the LORD delivered them into my Hand.] GOD approved his Undertaking, by giving him a great Victory.

Wherefore then are ye come up unto me this Day to fight againſt me?] Who had defended and preſerved them. For if the Ammonites had vanquiſhed Jephthah, they would ſoon have paſſed over Jordan, and fallen upon the Ephraimites; as they had before attempted, x. 9.

Ver. 4. Then Jephthah gathered all the Men of Gilead, and fought with Ephraim.] When he ſaw they were not pacified by this fair and peaceable Apology, but ſtill continued their Menaces, he betook himſelf to Arms, and raiſed as many Men as he could to oppoſe them.

And the Men of Gilead ſmote them.] Put them to flight, and made a great Slaughter of them.

Becauſe they ſaid, Ye Gileadites are Fugitives of Ephraim.] That which provoked them to kill ſo many of them, was their ſcoffing Language (added to their Threats) whereby they reproached the Men of Gilead (who were the chief Managers of the late War, xi. 29.) as if they were but the Scum and Dregs of the Tribe of Ephraim, i. e. of thoſe deſcended from Joſeph, among whom they were the principal.

Among the Ephraimites, and among the Manaſſites.] That is, that dwelt in the Land of Canaan: Who looked upon the Gileadites, and the reſt of the Manaſſites, on the other Side Jordan, and in the moſt Northerly Part of it, as the Refuſe of their Nation. But it muſt be acknowledged that the Words in the Hebrew are capable of another Senſe, and may be thus tranſlated: Therefore (ſo the Particle Ki is often tranſlated) they ſaid, Fugitives of Ephraim are ye; That is, having ſmote them, the Gileadites called the Ephraimites Run-aways. And the Truth is, thus they (not the Gileadites) are called in the next Verſe: And then the following Words may be thus tranſlated, Gilead got between the Ephraimites and the Manaſſites. It is very probable that the Manaſſites in Canaan joined with the Ephraimites, in this preſumptuous Attempt upon the Gileadites; who being well acquainted with their own Country, got between them and the River Jordan, to intercept their Paſſage over it, as we read in the following Verſe.

Ver. 5. And the Gileadites took the Paſſages of Jordan before the Ephraimites.] So that none could paſs over at theſe Fords, without their Leave.

And it was ſo, that when the Ephraimites who were eſcaped.] They are the very ſame Words in the Hebrew, which are uſed in the foregoing Verſe, The Fugitives of Ephraim.

Said, Let me go over; that the Men of Gilead.] Who were ſet to guard the Paſſages.

Said, Art thou an Ephraimite.] They examined him what Countryman he was; whether a Reubenite, Gadite, Manaſſite, on their Side Jordan, or one of the Ephraimites on the other.

If he ſaid, Nay.] For Fear would make him deny it.

Ver. 6. Then ſaid they unto him, ſay now Shibboleth.] To find the Truth, they put him to this Teſt; whether his Pronunciation of ſome Words was like that of the Gileadites: For People of the ſame Nation, who ſpeak the ſame Language, differ very much in their Pronunciation of it, in ſeveral Parts of the Country: As in Greece, all ſpake Greek; but the Ionians, Atticks, Dorians, and Æolians ſpake it very differently. And ſo they did among the Romans; for at Prænesſte, which was not far from Rome, (as Pet. Martyr obſerves out of Plautus) inſtead of Ciconia, they ſaid Konia. And ſo the Ephraimites ſaid Sibboleth, but could not pronounce Shibboleth. There were many other Words like this, which they could not not frame their Mouths to ſpeak, as the Gileadites did; but this was choſen, it is likely, becauſe it was very fit for the Purpoſe; Shibboleth ſignifying not only an Ear of Corn, but alſo Floods of Water, (Pſal. lxix. 2.) ſo that the Teſt they put them unto was this, to bid them ſay, Let me paſs over the Water.

And he ſaid Sibboleth; for he could not frame his Mouth to pronounce it right.] If he was an Ephraimite, he preſently diſcovered himſelf; for he could not pronounce the Letter Shin; which proceeded, I ſuppoſe, from the long Uſe and Cuſtom of that People to pronounce otherwiſe, ſo that they could not frame the Organs of Speech to pronounce as the Gileadites did: Which we ſee at this Day among all Nations; who in different Provinces, very much differ in their Speech, tho' they uſe the very ſame Language.

Then they took him, and ſlew him in the Paſſages of Jordan.] Otherwiſe they let him go; for they uſed this Mark of Diſtinction on purpoſe, leſt they ſhould kill any of another Tribe.

And there fell at that Time of the Ephraimites, Forty and Two Thouſand.] In the Fight, and at the Paſſages of Jordan, this Number periſhed: Which was a juſt Puniſhment to take down their Pride and Inſolence, in deſpiſing ſo great a Man as Jephthah, and threatning to deſtroy his Houſe, after ſo glorious a Victory, whereby he had ſaved all the People of Iſrael; and reproaching their Brethren alſo, whom they invaded without any Cauſe, and ſeem to have intended to drive them out of their Country.

Ver. 7. And Jephthah judged Iſrael ſix Years.] After this Humiliation of the Ephraimites, all the Tribes, whom the Ammonites had oppreſſed, (on the other Side Jordan, perhaps, in the Land of Canaan, as well as the Gileadites, and the reſt on their Side) ſubmitted themſelves unto him, as their Judge; and he continued ſix Years in the Government.

Then died Jephthah the Gileadite, and was buried in one of the Cities of Gilead.] The Jews have ſeveral fooliſh Conceits concerning his Death and Burial; becauſe it is ſaid, He was buried in the Cities of Gilead, as the Words are in the Hebrew: Which they would have underſtood, as if he rotted (as a Puniſhment for offering his Daughter) and one Piece of him, when it dropt off, was buried in one City, and another in the next City, &c. when the plain Meaning is expreſſed in our Tranſlation, That he was buried in one of the Cities, that is, in Mizpeh where he lived. See Gen. xix. 29. And ſo Aben-Ezra and Ralbag interpret it: Tho' the latter of theſe Rabbins could not forbear to incline to one of their Talmudical Fables; that he having no Iſſue to propagate his Name, ordered his Body to be cut into ſeveral Pieces, and buried in ſo many Cities of Gilead; that every one might preſerve his Memory. Other fancies there are, in which Men indulge themſelves, and Peter Martyr hath thought fit to interpoſe his Conjecture, that the Word Iram, which we tranſlate Cities, may poſſibly be a proper Name of a City in Gilead, wherein he was buried.

Ver. 8. And after him Ibzan of Bethlehem judged Iſrael.] It is not ſaid upon what Occaſion he was made Judge; for, perhaps, he was raiſed up by God immediately after Jephthah's Death, only to preſerve them in the true Religion, which was in ſome meaſure reſtored. Some of the Jews fancy him to have been the ſame with Boaz, who married Ruth the Moabiteſs; but without any Ground at all that I can find.

Ver. 9. And he had Thirty Sons and Thirty Daughters.] A numerous Iſſue was accounted a great Bleſſing in thoſe Days: And tho' we read of no memorable Act that this Judge did, yet this is ſet down to ſhew, that he was a Perſon eminently favoured by God.

Whom he ſent abroad.] The Vulgar refers this to his Daughters, for whom he provided Huſbands, and ſent his Daughters to their Houſes, as the Manner was, Gen. xxiv. 67. xxxi. 50.

And he took in Thirty Daughters from abroad for his Sons.] This compleated the Bleſſing of God in the Gift of ſo many Children; who all lived to the State of Men and Women, and were all diſpoſed by him in Marriage; for that was in the Power of Parents. See Gen. xxiv.

And he judged Iſrael Seven Years.] Not all the Iſraelites, but thoſe that Jephthah had judged; and none diſputed his Authority, but he ruled over them thus long.

Ver. 10. Then died Ibzan, and was buried at Bethlehem.] There were two Bethlehems, one in the Tribe of Zebulun, and the other in the Tribe of Judah; the latter of which, it is generally thought, is here meant, where he was born and buried.

Ver. 11. And after him Elon a Zebulonite judged Iſrael, and he judged Iſrael Ten Years.] It is obſerved by many, that Euſebius, in his Chronicon, paſſes by this Judge, becauſe he ſaith the LXX do not mention him; tho' the Hebrew Text doth: But as all our preſent Copies of the LXX now mention him; ſo did thoſe whom a very antient Writer uſed, viz. Theophilus Antioch. Lib. 1. ad Autolicum; and which is more to be wondered at, thoſe Copies alſo which Euſebius himſelf followed in his Tenth Book, de Præpar. Evang. Cap. xiv. as our Primate Uſher hath obſerved in his Chronologia Sacra, Pars I. Cap. ult.

Ver. 12. And Elon the Zebulonite died, and was buried in Aijalon in the Country of Zebulon.] Theſe laſt Words were added to diſtinguiſh this Aijalon here mentioned, from another in the Tribe of Dan. i. 35.

Ver. 13. And after him Abdon the Son of Hillel, a Pirathonite, judged Iſrael.] The Place where he was born, ſhews that he was of the Tribe of Ephraim; whom God at laſt honoured with a Judge of their own Country, after their Pride had been humbled by Jephthah: For Pirathon is expreſly ſaid, Ver. 15. to be in the Land of Ephraim.

Ver. 14. And he had Forty Sons, and Thirty Nephews.] That is, Grandſons.

That rode on Threeſcore and Ten Aſſes Colts.] See Ver. 10. This is ſaid, to ſhew that God bleſſed him not only with a numerous Poſterity, but let them all grow up to be Men. See x. 4.

And he judged Iſrael Eight Years.] The Intention of this Book is chiefly to ſhew how God puniſhed them for their Sins, and delivered them upon their Repentance: But nothing remarkable of this Kind falling out in the Time of theſe Three laſt mentioned Judges, he omits to relate their other Acts, which was beſide his Purpoſe.

Here it may be fit to note, that the other Interval of the two mentioned upon xi. 26. conſiſting of an Hundred and Forty Years, (which added to Three Hundred and Forty, in the foregoing Interval, make up the 480 Years mentioned 1 Kings vi. 2.) it is evident that the latter Part of them, viz. Eighty Four Years, were made up by the Reigns of Saul and David, who each reigned Forty Years, (2 Sam. v. 4. Acts xiii. 21.) and the four firſt Years of Solomon: Therefore the remaining Fifty ſix Years are made up of Part of the Eighteen Years wherein the Ammonites oppreſſed Iſrael after the Death of Jair, and the Years wherein theſe four laſt named Perſons and Samuel judged Iſrael.

Ver. 15. And Abdon the Son of Hillel the Pirathonite died, and was buried in Pirathon in the Land of Ephraim, in the Mount of the Amalekites.] Some think this Mount retained the Name of Mount Amalek (as the Words are in the Hebrew) from ancient Times; the Amalekites having poſſeſſed it heretofore, when the Canaanites were the Inhabitants of this Country: But it may as well be thought (ſince all that is ſaid, is but Conjecture) that it was ſo called from ſome famous Overthrow, which the Children of Ephraim gave the Amalekites in this Place: For in the Time of the Judges they more than once joined with others againſt the Iſraelites. See iii. 13. vi. 3. but eſpecially ſee what I have noted upon v. 14.

CHAP. XIII.

Ver. 1. AND the Children of Iſrael did Evil again in the Sight of the Lord.] As he complained before, x. 6. when he began to ſpeak of what befel them thereupon.

And the Lord delivered them into the Hand of the Philiſtines Forty Years.] This is the ſixth Oppreſſion, and the longeſt that they ever lay under: Which is thought, by a great Man I have often mentioned, to have ended ſeven Months after the Death of Eli, when the Ark was brought back out of the Land of the Philiſtines; and, by the ſame Reaſon, it began ſo many Months after he entered upon the Government, after the Death of Abdon. See Uſſherii Annales, ad A. D. 2848. and his Chronologica Sacra, Pag. 1. Cap. 12, 13. But, I think, Sir John Marſham hath ſince that more rightly judged, That this Oppreſſion by the Philiſtines is not different from that mentioned x. 7, 8. but one and the ſame; they vexing and oppreſſing the Iſraelites in the Weſt, when the Ammonites oppreſſed them in the Eaſt: For tho' the Oppreſſion of the Philiſtines laſted longer, yet it began at the very ſame Time with the other; which made their Diſtreſs the greater: And therefore that Preface (x. 7.) belongs not only to what immediately there follows, concerning the Ammonites and Jephthah; but to what is here related concerning the Philiſtines and Sampſon: Which the holy Writer could not ſpeak of both together without Confuſion; and therefore firſt relates the Iſſue of the War with the Ammonites, and then relates the other Part of the Hiſtory concerning the Philiſtines, which he here begins: And by this Synchroniſm all Difficulties may be ſolved, and the Years, which ſeemed redundant, brought within their true Compaſs. See his Canon Chronicus, Sect. 11. Pag. 293.

Ver. 2. And there was a certain Man of Zorah.] See Joſh. xix. 40, 41.

Of the Family of the Danites.] Sometimes the Word Family is uſed for a Tribe. See Joſh. vii. 17. Or, the Meaning may be of a Family among the Danites: From among whom it was very proper to have a Deliverer raiſed up to them, for the Danites were near Neighbours to the Philiſtines, who oppreſſed them.

Whoſe name was Manoah, and his Wife was barren and bare not.] Was not likely to have any Children.

Ver. 3. And the Angel of the Lord appeared unto the Woman.] As he did to Gideon, vi. 12. in Human Shape; as the Relation ſhews in the following Verſes, 5, 8, &c.

And ſaid unto her, Behold now thou art barren and beareth not; but thou ſhalt conceive and bear a Son.] The greateſt Men of this Nation were born of barren Women; as Iſaac was antiently, and Samuel and John the Baptiſt in future Times.

Ver. 4. Now therefore beware, I pray thee, and drink not Wine nor ſtrong Drink.] She was to live as the Nazarites did, (Numb. vi. 2, 3.) while ſhe carried him in her Womb, and perhaps while ſhe nurſed him; becauſe, as it follows in the next Verſe, he was to be a perpetual Nazarite unto God, from his Conception to his Death (Ver. 7.) which he could not have been, if ſhe had drank Wine or ſtrong Drink; becauſe a Child in the Womb and its Mother live by the ſame Nouriſhment.

And eat not any unclean Thing.] It is likely they were too negligent in thoſe Days, in obſerving the Precepts about Meats; otherwiſe there would have been no need to mention this.

Ver. 5. For lo, thou ſhalt conceive and bear a Son, and no Raſor ſhall come on his Head; for the Child ſhall be a Nazarite unto God from the Womb.] See upon Numb. vi. 4.

And he ſhall begin to deliver Iſrael out of the Hands of the Philiſtines.] He did not perfectly deliver the Iſraelites from the Yoke of the Philiſtines, but it was done after his Death by Samuel; who put an End to this Forty Years Tyranny, by this famous Victory at Eben Ezer, 1 Sam. vii. 13. as the ſame Sir J. Marſham obſerves: Who ſuppoſes Eli to have died in the midſt of this Servitude, that is, twenty Years before before this Victory. Sampſon therefore only ſorely galled the Philiſtines, but they ſtill continued to oppreſs the Iſraelites, as they did when he was born; for it appears by theſe Words, that when the Angel ſpake to them, they were under the Hand, that is, the Power of the Philiſtines, and ſo continued all his Days: For it is ſaid, xv. 20. that he judged Iſrael Twenty Years, in the Days of the Philiſtines; that is, while they tyrannized over Iſrael: From which Tyranny he was ſo far from being a compleat Deliverer, that he himſelf was taken and bound by them; nor had he ever any Command over the Iſraelites.

Ver. 6. And the Woman came and told her Huſband.] The Angel ſeems to have appeared to her in the Field, and ſhe acquainted her Huſband with it when ſhe came home.

Saying, A Man of God came unto me.] So they called Prophets.

And his Countenance was like the Countenance of an Angel of God, very terrible.] That is, venerable, or full of Majeſty; for ſo the Men of God, I ſuppoſe, ſometimes appeared; as may be gathered from the Story of St. Stephen, who being full of the Holy Ghoſt, when he ſtood before the Council of Jeruſalem, his Face ſhone as if it had been the Face of an Angel, Acts vi. 15.

And I aſked him not whence he was, neither told he me his Name.] The Luſtre of his Countenance ſtruck ſuch an Awe into her, that ſhe made no Enquiry who he was, nor whence he came, and he was not pleaſed to tell her. Tho' the Vulgar (againſt both the Hebrew Text, the Chaldee, and the LXX) hath it, She aſked him who he was, and whence he came, and what was his Name, but he would not tell her.

Ver. 7. And he ſaid unto me, Behold, thou ſhalt conceive and bear a Son, and now drink no Wine, nor ſtrong Drink, &c.] She recites the Words of the Angel unto her Huſband; who, as Joſephus fancies, hearing her highly commend the Perſon who appeared to her, for his Beauty and Majeſty, began to ſuſpect her Chaſtity, which is a Conceit for which there is no Ground, but much againſt it.

Ver. 8. Then Manoah intreated the Lord, and ſaid, O my Lord, Let the Man of God, whom thou didſt ſend, come again unto us.] To make good the forenamed Conceit, Joſephus makes this to be the Prayer of his Wife, that he might ſatisfy the Jealouſy of her Huſband; directly contrary to what is here expreſly ſaid, that Manoah made this Requeſt. See Lib. 5. Antiq. Cap. 10.

And teach us what we ſhall do unto the Child which ſhall be born.] He did not in the leaſt queſtion his Wife's Chaſtity; no, nor blame her Credulity, but deſired himſelf to ſee the Perſon (if God pleaſed) who had brought this good News to them, and to be informed, how they ſhould educate the Child.

Ver. 9. And God hearkned to the Voice of Manoah.] Who appears by this, deſired only further Satisfaction, in that which he already believed.

And the Angel of God came again unto the Woman, as ſhe ſat in the Field.] Where, I ſuppoſe, Ver. 6. he appeared to her before: And, I think, all Interpreters agree, that it was on the very ſame Day.

And Manoah her Husband was not with her.] This is no Sign of his Jealouſy, but rather quite contrary, that he had a great Opinion of her Virtue.

Ver. 10. And the Woman made haſte and ran, and ſhewed her Husband, ſaying, Behold, the Man hath appeared unto me, that came unto me the other Day.] The Word other is not in the Hebrew; but it may be tranſlated, To Day. And, perhaps, he appeared to her at the firſt in the Morning, and now in the Evening.

Ver. 11. And Manoah aroſe, and went after his Wife.] Who led him the Way, to ſhew him where the Man was.

And came to the Man.] Whom his Wife had deſired to ſtay a while, till ſhe called her Huſband to him, as Joſephus probably enough conjectures: But I cannot imagine how he came to add, That when her Huſband ſaw him, ὁ δ' ὅτως ἐπαύετο τῆς ὑπονοίας, he was not inſtantly rid of his Suſpicion; for there is nothing like it in the following Words.

He ſaid unto him, Art thou the Man that ſpakeſt unto the Woman?] And told her, She ſhould have a Son.

And he ſaid, I am.] The ſame Jewiſh Writer adds, That Manoah prayed him to tell him what he had ſaid to his Wife; but the Angel replied, it was enough that he had told it her.

Ver. 12. And Manoah ſaid, Now let thy Words come to paſs.] Theſe Words may be no more than a Wiſh, that what he foretold might prove true; tho' ſome look upon them as a Prayer to God, to make them good.

How ſhall we order the Child, and how ſhall we do unto him?] The Hebrew Word Miſchpat, which we tranſlate Order, ſignifies here, the Rule whereby he ſhould live.

Ver. 13. And the Angel ſaid unto Manoah, Of all that I ſaid unto the Woman, let her beware.] This general Anſwer might have been ſufficient; but that they might be the more careful, he adds in the next Verſe, all the Particulars he had mentioned to his Wife, Ver. 4. and ſomething more largely.

Ver. 14. She may not eat of any thing that cometh of the Vine.] i. e. Neither Grapes nor Raiſins.

Neither let her drink Wine, nor ſtrong Drink, nor eat any unclean Thing.] This ſeems to lay a Charge upon him, as well as her, to ſee this Abſtinence obſerved.

All that I commanded her, let her obſerve.] Breed him up a Nazarite all the Days of his Life.

Ver. 15. And Manoah ſaid to the Angel of the Lord, I pray thee let us detain thee until we have made ready a Kid for thee.] He deſired him to ſtay and accept an Entertainment from them, which was antiently given to Strangers, eſpecially when they appeared like more than ordinary Perſons, Gen. xviii. 3, 4, &c. and was continued to theſe Days, Judg. vi. 18. Some think he intended to offer a Sacrifice of Peace-Offerings, and feaſt the Man of God with that Part which belongs to him that brought it to be offered.

Ver. 16. And the Angel of the LORD ſaid unto Manoah, Though thou detain me, I will not eat of thy Bread.] He was perſuaded to ſtay, but not to taſte of his Meat; for the Word Bread comprehends all Proviſion of Food.

And if thou wilt offer a Burnt-Offering, thou muſt offer it unto the LORD.] Or, But if thou hatt a mind to expreſs thy Thankfulneſs, offer a Burnt-Offering, which muſt be wholly ſacrificed unto the LORD. A Prophet (as Manoah took this to be) might warrant Men to ſacrifice, tho' they were not Prieſts, nor at the Tabernacle, as Elijah did at Mount Carmel.

For Manoah knew that he was an Angel of the LORD.] As he did, ſhortly after, when he appeared to be more than an Angel.

Ver. 17. And Manoah ſaid unto the Angel of the LORD, What is thy Name, that when thy Sayings come to paſs, we may do thee Honour?] He deſired they might ſhew themſelves grateful to him, by making him ſome Preſent, which they could not do, unleſs they knew his Name, and where he dwelt. So Joſephus interprets doing him Honour, ἵνα χάριν αὐτῷ ἢ δωρεὰν παρέχωσι, that they might give him Thanks, and beſtow ſome Gift upon him.

Ver. 18. And the Angel of the LORD ſaid unto him, Why aſkeſt thou after my Name, ſeeing it is ſecret?] Or rather (as it is in the Margin) it is wonderful; ſo the LXX θαυμαστὸν, admirable. Whoſe Eſſence (for that is meant by Name in Scripture) is to be admired, but cannot be comprehended. This ſhews it was the LORD himſelf; that is, the WORD of the LORD, who was to be the Meſſiah; unto whom the Prophet Iſaiah gives the ſame Name of Pele the Wonderful, Iſa. ix. 6.

Ver. 19. And Manoah took a Kid, with a Meat Offering.] Which uſually attended the Burnt Offering, as we read in the Book of Leviticus.

And offered it upon the Rock unto the LORD.] He did not offer it, properly ſpeaking, but laid it upon the Rock, as on an Altar, to be offered unto the LORD. And ſo the LXX προσήνεγκε, he brought it to be offered; he laid τὰς ἄρτους καὶ τὰ κρέα ἐπὶ τῆς πέτρας, he laid the Bread and the Fleſh upon the Rock.

And the Angel of the LORD did wondrouſly.] The Word Angel is not in the Hebrew, and therefore this is to be referred unto Jehovah, immediately foregoing, who appeared in the Form of an Angel, and now acted ſuitable to his Name Pele wonderful; unto which the Word Maphli (did wondrouſly) plainly alludes; that is, he brought Fire, it is probable, out of the Rock, as in the Days of Gideon. So Joſephus; for we read of no Fire that Manoah brought, and yet there was a Flame, in which the Angel went up into Heaven.

And Manoah and his Wife looked on.] Which ſhews that Manoah was only a Spectator of what was done, but did not offer the Sacrifice.

Ver. 20. And it came to paſs, when the Flame went up toward Heaven from off the Altar.] So that Part of the Rock is called where the Fleſh and the Bread were laid, being, I ſuppoſe, a very great Stone, flat at the Top like an Altar.

That the Angel of the LORD aſcended in the Flame of the Altar.] In which he went up ὥσπερ ὀχήματι (as Joſephus ſpeaks) as in a Chariot.

And Manoah and his Wife looked on it, and fell on their Faces to the Ground.] Being aſtoniſhed, when they ſaw him, whom they took only for a Prophet, to be an Angel of the LORD; and, perhaps, worſhipping the Divine Majeſty, who had appeared in ſuch an illuſtrious Manner to them, and praying him to preſerve their Lives, which they thought in Danger by ſuch a Sight.

Ver. 21. But the Angel of the LORD did no more appear to Manoah and his Wife.] There being no further Occaſion for it.

Then Manoah knew that it was an Angel of the LORD.] By the wonderful Things that he did, and aſcending up to Heaven in a Flame, which demonſtrated his Cœleſtial Nature, which could not be hurt by Fire.

Ver. 22. And Manoah ſaid unto his Wife, We ſhall ſurely die, becauſe we have ſeen God.] This had been an old Opinion among the Iſraelites. See upon vi. 22.

Ver. 23. And his Wife ſaid unto him, If the LORD were pleaſed to kill us, he would not have received a Burnt-Offering, and a Meat-Offering, at our Hand.] She ſeems to have had a better Conſideration of the Thing than her Huſband. and ſtrongly argues him out of his Fears, as altogether unreaſonable: And firſt ſhe makes GOD's Acceptance of a Sacrifice from them, a plain Demonſtration of his Favour to them; and his Acceptance of it appeared by his kindling a Fire himſelf, whereby it was conſumed; and by the Aſcenſion of the Angel in the Flame, as if he went to carry the Sacrifice unto GOD, and preſent it to him in Heaven.

Neither would he have ſhewed us all theſe Things.] Concerning the Birth of a Son, and the Manner of his Education, and his beginning the Deliverance of Iſrael from their Oppreſſors, of which there was no Hope, if GOD intended to take away their Lives from whom this Son was to iſſue.

Nor would he at this Time have ſhewn us ſuch Things as theſe.] Appeared again and again unto them, to acquaint them with theſe Things, at a Time when ſuch Viſions were rare, and when they were in ſuch Diſtreſs, that GOD ſeemed to have abandoned them to the Will of their Enemies. Theſe were two unanſwerable Arguments that they had no Reaſon to think GOD would take away their Lives, but continue them, for the fulfilling his Promiſe.

Ver. 24. And the Woman bare a Son.] We have no Direction whereby to know the Time of his Birth, but only this, That the Angel ſaid before he was conceived, Ver. 5. That he ſhould begin to deliver Iſrael from the Hands of the Philiſtines. Which is a plain Indication, they were then under their Power; that is, the Forty Years Oppreſſion of the Philiſtines was begun; and, conſequently, ſince his Twenty Years Judicature was in the Days of the Philiſtines, xv. ult. that is, during their Tyranny; he was born in the Beginning of it: For we cannot well ſuppoſe, that he began to be their Deliverer verer before the Eighteenth Year of his Age, as Primate Uſher obſerves in his Annal. ad A. M. 2849.

And called his Name Samſon.] Which, Joſephus ſaith, ſignifies ἰσχυρὸν, ſtrong, or robuſt; but whence he derived it, I cannot imagine. Some think from Shemeſh, which ſignifies the Sun, which is a Body of mighty Force. So St. Hierom, who thinks Samſon is as much as their Sun; a great Light of Iſrael, as David is called.

And the Child grew, and the LORD bleſſed him.] As he grew up, there plainly appeared in him extraordinary Endowments of Body and Mind, which the LORD beſtowed on him.

Ver. 25. And the Spirit of the LORD began to move him.] To do ſome unuſual Things, beyond mere human Power, which were Specimens of an Heroical Virtue. The Targum tranſlates it, The Spirit of Fortitude or Courage, &c.

At Times.] Upon certain Occaſions, when it would be viſible to the People, that GOD intended to work Deliverance by him.

In the Camp of Dan, between Zorah and Eſhtaol.] See xvi. 31. There was no Army of the Danites encamped where Samſon diſplayed his Valour; but this is the Name of a Place called Machana-Dan (the Camp of Dan) in which, perhaps, Samſon lived. The Reaſon of this Name is given afterwards in the xviiith Chapter, Ver. 12. where there is an Hiſtory of an Expedition of the Danites; which, though placed after this, yet was really before the Times of Samſon. But this Camp, it appears by that Place, did not lie between Zorah and Eſhtaol, but in the Tribe of Judah, or in the very Borders of it: Therefore the Word and muſt be here ſupplied; in the Camp of Dan, and between Zorah and Eſhtaol, towards which that Camp lay. If this be not allowed, we muſt ſuppoſe, that the ſix hundred Men mentioned xviii. 11. made their Encampment between Zorah and Eſhtaol, before they marched out of their own Country, and gave that Place the ſame Name which the other had near Kirjath-jearim, where they encamped the firſt Night.

CHAP. XIV.

Ver. 1. AND Samſon went down to Timnath.] A City in his own Tribe, as we read Joſh. xix. 47. (ſee there) but fallen, it is probable, into the Poſſeſſion of the Philiſtines, near to whoſe Country it lay, who, at this Time, oppreſſed the Iſraelites, and made them their Tributaries, which did not hinder, but rather promote all manner of Commerce between them.

And ſaw a Woman of Timnath, of the Daughters of the Philiſtines.] That is, he fell in love with her; according to the vulgar Saying among the Greeks, ἐκ τῦ ὁρᾶν τὸ ἐρᾶν, from looking comes loving.

Ver. 2. And he came up and told his Father and his Mother.] This was a Part of the Honour they thought was owing to their Parents, to adviſe with them about their Marriage, of which they did not treat, but left it to their Parents. So it ſeems, by this, to have been in ancient Times, though their Children were of Age, (as Samſon is now ſuppoſed to be) and, according to the later Doctors among the Jews, fit to contract Marriage themſelves. See Selden, Lib. 2. Uxor. Heb. Cap. 3. And ſee above, xii. 9.

And ſaid, I have ſeen a Woman in Timnath, of the Daughters of the Philiſtines; now, therefore, get her for me to Wife.] This was when Samſon was about Twenty-two Years old, as Primate Uſher computes it, who thinks Eli judged Iſrael at this Time in Civil Affairs; but Sir J. Marſham makes account, as I obſerved, he died in the middle of this Servitude.

Ver. 3. And his Father and his Mother ſaid unto him, Is there never a Woman among the Daughters of thy Brethren.] That is, in their own Family.

Or among all thy People.] In the whole Tribe of Dan.

That thou ſhouldſt go to take a Wife of the uncircumciſed Philiſtines?] Which was againſt the Law of Moſes, in Exod. xxxiv. 16. Deut. vii. 3. For though they were none of the ſeven Nations of Canaan, yet they were under the ſame Condemnation, and their Land was given to the Iſraelites.

And Samſon ſaid unto his Father, Get her for me, for ſhe pleaſeth me well.] His Mother, ſome think, expreſſed ſuch Diſlike to the Motion, that he applied himſelf wholly to his Father, and beſeeched him to favour his Choice, becauſe he was deeply in love with her.

Ver. 4. But his Father and his Mother knew not that it was of the LORD.] He felt ſome divine Motion in him, which carried him to this Place to ſeek a Wife; but his Parents knew not of it, till he told them (as ſome think) and then readily conſented.

That he ſought an Occaſion againſt the Philiſtines.] Which he knew this Treaty of Marriage would give him, whether it ſucceeded or miſcarried.

For at that Time the Philiſtines had Dominion over Iſrael.] They were ſtill, as they had been ſeveral Years, under the Power of the Philiſtines, who treated them, it is likely, with ſuch Scorn and Contempt, as if they had been their Slaves.

Ver. 5. Then went Samſon down, and his Father, and his Mother, to Timnath.] He overcame them by his Importunity; or, perhaps, told them, as I ſaid before, what a Motion he felt from GOD, to deſire this Match.

And came to the Vineyards of Timnath.] Unto which he turned aſide, upon ſome Occaſion not here mentioned.

And behold a young Lion roared againſt him.] Came with full Mouth (as we ſpeak) to devour him. By this, and many other Places, it appears, there were Lions in Judæa, from whence ſeveral Places had their Names, as Lebaoth, Joſh. xv. 32. and Beth-lebaoth, xix. 6. Every one alſo knows, that a young Lion, come to his full Strength, was the fierceſt of all other. And ſo Cephir (Kimchi obſerves) is uſed for a Lion grown bigger than Gur, which ſignifies a Lion's Whelp.

Ver. 6. And the Spirit of the LORD came mightily upon him.] The ſame Spirit, mentioned in the laſt Verſe of the foregoing Chapter; which endued him with extraordinary Courage, and Undauntedneſs of Mind, together with a ſupernatural Strength of Body.

And he rent him, as he would have rent a Kid.] That is, as eaſily and ſpeedily. The Hebrew Word certainly ſignifies to tear in Pieces, and therefore, if it be true which Joſephus ſaith, (Lib. 5. Antiq. Cap. 10.) That he throttled him with his Hand, (ἄγχει ταῖς χερσὶ) the Meaning is, that after he had ſtrangled him, he rent him in Pieces.

And he had nothing in his Hand.] If he had encountred him being armed with ſome Weapon, it had been a bold Action; but when he was naked, to receive his Aſſault, was a miraculous Reſolution: By which he was encouraged to undertake greater things; as David was by the ſame Power given him.

But he told not his Father, nor his Mother, what he had done.] Being afraid perhaps that this Action might come to the Ears of the Philiſtines; which might make them jealous of him.

Ver. 7. And he went down and talked with the Woman.] Diſcourſed with her about Marriage; which he propounded to her.

And ſhe pleaſed Samſon well.] All things were agreed, and ſhe was eſpouſed to him: But before the Eſpouſals ſhe was converted to the Jewiſh Religion, and made an entire Proſelyte, as R. Levi ben Gerſom, and Moſes Mikotzi, and other Hebrew Doctors ſay; and then it was not unlawful to marry a Stranger, as Joſhua, they ſay, did Rahab. See Selden, Lib. V. de Jure Nat. & Gent. Cap. 15. and Buxtorf, De Sponſalibus & Divortiis, Sect. 31.

Ver. 8. And after a time.] In the Hebrew it is, after Days; a Year, as that Phraſe often ſignifies, and is ſo tranſlated by us, Exod. xiii. 10. where Mijamim jamim is rightly tranſlated, from Year to Year. See alſo Gen. iv. 3. and Chap. xi. of this Book, Ver. 4.

He returned to take her.] To compleat his Marriage; which was not wont to be celebrated between a Man and a young Virgin, till twelve Months after the Eſpouſals, (as the Hebrew Doctors ſay) that ſhe might have ſo much Time to adorn herſelf, and make herſelf every way fit for Marriage. See Selden, Lib. 2. de Uxor. Hebr. Cap. viii. But if in that twelve Months time ſhe lay with any other Man, it was accounted Adultery, and puniſhed with Death; becauſe ſhe was really his Wife.

And he turned aſide to ſee the Carcaſs of the Lion.] Which was now a mere Skeleton, the Fleſh being all conſumed: And ſo the Syriac Interpreter here renders it.

And behold, there was a Swarm of Bees, and Honey in the Carcaſs of the Lion.] Bees are obſerved by Ariſtotle, and others, to abhor ſtinking Smells, and to abſtain from Fleſh; which hath made ſome think it ſtrange that a Swarm of Bees ſhould breed in the Carcaſs of a Lion: But they did not conſider, that Time had conſumed the Fleſh, or it was eaten up by Birds and Beaſts, and nothing but the bare Bones remained; in which the Bees did not breed, but ſettled themſelves when they ſwarmed, as they have done ſometimes in dead Mens Sculls, and in their Tombs. See Bochart in his Hierozoicon, Pag. 2. Lib. 4. Cap. x. and Voſſius de Orig. & Progreſſu Idolol. Lib. 4. Cap. 72.

Ver. 9. And he took thereof in his Hand.] Or, as the Syriac tranſlates it, It dropped into his Hands, from the Combs, that is, which they had made either in the Belly, as St. Ambroſe thinks, or in the Breaſt, as Joſephus, or (which Voſſius rather thinks) in the Head, or in the Mouth of the Lion, as the LXX and Vulgar underſtand it: Though Bochartus thinks that inſtead of ἐν ϛόμαλι in the Mouth, it ſhould be read in the LXX ἐν σώμαλι λέονλος, in the Body of the Lion.

And went on eating.] Which was not unlawful, in caſe of Hunger, though it was found in a Carcaſs; becauſe ſuch Ceremonial Laws as forbid ſuch Things, were not obſerved in Caſes of Neceſſity: As appears by David's eating the Shew-Bread, and Elijah's eating Food brought him by Ravens.

And came to his Father and Mother.] From whom he had turned aſide for a while, as he did when they firſt went to Timnath, Ver. 5.

And he gave them, and they did eat.] Wild Honey being delicious Food in that Country, as many Places ſhew, Deut. xxxii. 13. and Pſal. lxxxi. 16.

But he told them not that he had taken the Honey out of the Carcaſs of the Lion.] For then perhaps they would not have eaten it.

Ver. 10. So his Father went down unto the Woman.] (Together with his Wife and his Son) to demand her, who was eſpouſed to Samſon, to conſummate the Marriage.

And Samſon made there a Feaſt, for ſo uſed the young Men to do.] According to the Cuſtom of all Countries: Which Feaſt was called by the Jews, The Nuptial Joy, with which no other was to be intermixed; and all Labour ceaſed, as long as it laſted. See Selden, Lib. 2. Uxor. Hebr. Cap. xi. Pag. 172.

Ver. 11. And it came to paſs, when they ſaw him.] What a goodly Perſon he was.

That they brought Thirty Companions to be with him.] Her Friends, out of Reſpect to him, brought this great Number of Bridemen, to honour his Nuptials: But ſome of the Jews think they had a further End in it, that they might ſerve as a Guard to him, if he ſhould attempt any Diſturbance; of which, they fancy, the Philiſtines were afraid, when they ſaw he was a Man of Might.

Ver. 12. And Samſon ſaid unto them, I will now put forth a Riddle unto you.] This ſhews how ancient the Cuſtom was (which we find afterward among the Greeks) of propoſing Queſtions to be reſolved in their Compotations and Feaſts; that they might not be ſpent merely in dull eating and drinking, but there might be ſomething to exerciſe and whet the Wits of the Company: And they called ſuch Riddles as theſe, which were contrived to puzzle Mens Thoughts, by the Name of γρίφος, which the Scholiaſt upon Ariſtophanes defines to be παροίνιον ζήτημα, a Queſtion put among their Cups.

Cups. Athenæus diſcourſes largely of ſuch Problems, as they alſo called them, in his Deipnoſophiſts. See Bochart in his Hierozoicon, Pag. 2. Lib. 4. Cap. 12.

If you can certainly declare it, within the Seven Days of the Feaſt.] So long the Nuptial Solemnity was wont to continue in ancient Times, Gen. xxix. 27. They could not ſhorten the Days, as the Jewiſh Doctors tell us, but they might lengthen them; as they did at Tobit's Marriage, when the Solemnity continued fourteen Days, though according to Cuſtom they were bound to keep but three, ſhe being a Widow, as Selden obſerves in the forenamed Book, Pag. 185. and Buxtorf in his Synagoga Judaica, Cap. 35.

And find it out, then I will give you Thirty Sheets, and Thirty Change of Garments.] The Greeks followed this Example, and gave Rewards to him who reſolved the Queſtion propoſed, but ſet a Mulct on thoſe that could not.

Ver. 13. But if you cannot declare it, then you ſhall give me Thirty Sheets, and Thirty Change of Garments.] Moſt take Sidinim (from whence the Word Sindon ſeems to come) for ſuch Linen Cloths, as the whole Body may be wrapped in; and therefore properly tranſlated Sheets: And Change of Garments ſignifies new Robes, which they might change for the old: But of the Word Sindon, ſee Braunius de Veſtitu Sacerd. Hebr. Lib. 1. Cap. 7. N. 7.

And they ſaid unto him, Put forth thy Riddle, that we may hear it.] They agreed to the Conditions, and bad him propound it.

Ver. 14. And he ſaid unto them, Out of the Eater came forth Meat; and out of the Strong came forth Sweetneſs.] The Oppoſition is manifeſt in the firſt Part of the Riddle, but not in the ſecond; for Weakneſs is oppoſed to Strength, not Sweetneſs, whoſe Oppoſite is Bitterneſs, or Sharpneſs: But Bochartus hath ingeniouſly obſerved, that theſe two Words are ſometimes confounded; for in the Arabick Language, the Word Mirra, which ſignifies Strength, comes from Marra, which ſignifies to be bitter: And ſo it is among the Latins, where Acer a ſharp Man, is as much as a valiant Man, who eagerly (as we ſpeak) engaged his Enemies: And this very Word (as he and others have noted) is uſed of Lions, whom Ovid in his Faſti calls ——Genus acre leonum.

And therefore the Riddle is truly this: Food came from the Devourer, and Sweetneſs from that which is eager and ſharp, i. e. Fierce.

And they could not in Three Days expound the Riddle.] Whereupon (it appears by what follows) they applied themſelves to his Wife, and deſired her (with good Words, it is likely, at firſt) to try what ſhe could do by her Careſſes, to perſuade him to unriddle it to her.

Ver. 15. And it came to paſs, that on the Seventh Day.] Which was the laſt Day of the Feaſt; when they were in Danger to loſe their Wager.

They ſaid unto Samſon's Wife, Entice thy Huſband, that he may declare to us the Riddle.] By letting her know it; who they expected would tell it them.

Leſt we burn thee and thy Father's Houſe with Fire.] From Intreaties, they now betake themſelves to Threatenings, and thoſe very terrible; which they concluded would make her as preſſing upon them, as they were upon her.

Have ye called us.] This ſignifies that they were invited by her Friends to the Feaſt.

To take what we have?] To make us pay very dear for our good Cheer.

Is it not ſo?] Will not your Kindneſs conclude in Rudeneſs, by ſtripping us of our Raiment?

Ver. 16. And Samſon's Wife wept before him.] She added Tears to her Intreaties.

And ſaid, Thou doſt but hate me, and loveſt me not; Thou haſt put forth a Riddle unto the Children of my People, and haſt not told it me.] This was prudent enough, to pretend to doubt of his Affection, becauſe he concealed this Secret from her; for a new married Couple are uſually ſo kind, as freely to unboſom themſelves one to another.

And he ſaid unto her, Behold, I have not told it my Father, and my Mother.] With whom he had been long acquainted.

And ſhall I tell it thee?] Whom he did not yet ſo well know, as to be ſure ſhe could keep a Secret.

Ver. 17. And ſhe wept before him the Seven Days while the Feaſt laſted.] That is, the reſt of the Seven Days of the Feaſt, which remained after the third, ſhe importuned him continually with Tears; and upbraided him, I ſuppoſe, with Want of Kindneſs to her, as the foregoing Verſe imports.

And it came to paſs on the Seventh Day, that he told, becauſe ſhe lay ſore upon him.] Made him very uneaſy by her Importunity; which he could not reſiſt, though he had conquered the Lion.

And ſhe told the Riddle to the Children of her People.] For whom ſhe had more Affection than for her Huſband; or feared their Diſpleaſure more than his.

Ver. 18. And the Men of the City ſaid unto him on the Seventh Day, before the Sun went down.] Juſt before the Time was expired, which was prefixed for the Solution of the Riddle.

What is ſweeter than Honey? and what is ſtronger than a Lion?] This is a compendious Anſwer to the latter Part of the Queſtion, which ſufficiently comprehends the firſt: And St. Ambroſe thinks, that as ſoon as this Anſwer was out of their Mouth, Samſon immediately interpoſed and ſaid, What is more perfidious than a Woman? Which he had out of Joſephus, who ſaith the ſame; and ſomething like it follows in the next Words.

And he ſaid unto them, If ye had not plowed with my Heifer, ye had not found out my Riddle.] The Meaning is, That without the Aſſiſtance of his Wife, (whom he compares to a young Heifer, which is not yet ſubdued to the Yoke of Obedience), they had continued ſtill as ignorant as they had been all the Time of the Feaſt.

Feaſt. Ralbag indeed, and ſome others, take the Word plowed in a laſcivious Senſe; as if he meant that they had lain with his Wife, or otherwiſe they had not got the Secret out of her. But the Words will not bear this Interpretation; for he doth not ſay, if ye had not plowed my Heifer, (which might have been ſo interpreted) but if ye had not plowed with my Heifer; which plainly implies uſing her Help, to find out what they deſired. See Bochart. P. 1. Hierozoicon, Lib. 2. Cap. 41.

Ver. 19. And the Spirit of the LORD came upon him.] Which he had not always; but at ſpecial Seaſons it moved him, and gave him Power to do extraordinary Things, which otherwiſe had not been warrantable. See Ver. 6. and xiii. ult.

And he went down to Aſkelon.] A City of the Philiſtines.

And ſlew thirty Men of them.] As they were making merry, it is probable, either in the Field, or the City, at ſome publick Solemnity, when great Companies uſed to be gathered together, and to appear in their beſt Apparel.

And took their Spoil.] Whatſoever they had about them; and perhaps they that fled left a great many Things behind them.

And gave Change of Garments unto them that expounded the Riddle.] Together with the Sheets he promiſed; which he purchaſed, perhaps, with the Spoil.

And his Anger was kindled.] Againſt his Wife for betraying him, and againſt his Companions for their underhand Dealing.

And he went up to his Father's Houſe.] Left his Wife with her own Relations, and went to live at home with his Father. It is plain by the whole Story, that Timnath lay low, there being a Deſcent from his Father's Houſe to it, unto which they went up from thence, Ver. 1, 2, 5, 7, 10.

Ver. 20. And Samſon's Wife was given to his Companion.] She it ſeems was as angry as he; and looking upon herſelf as forſaken, was eaſily perſuaded to marry one of his Bridemen.

Whom he uſed as his Friend.] With whom he was more familiar, and treated him with greater Kindneſs, than he did the reſt that honoured him with their Company. For he, I ſuppoſe, was the principal Brideman, who was called by the Name of the Friend of the Bridegroom, as we read in the Goſpel of St. John iii. 29. See Selden, Lib. 2. Uxor. Hebr. Cap. 16. P. 200, &c. This Uſage, no doubt, incenſed Samſon the more afterward againſt them; for he ſaw there was no Faith in any of them.

CHAP. XV.

Ver. 1. AND it came to paſs within a while after.] In the Hebrew the Word is Mijamim; which in other Places, ſignifies after a Year, (ſee xiv. 8.) when his Anger was appeaſed.

In the Time of Wheat Harveſt.] Which was about the Feaſt of Pentecoſt; a Time of great Joy.

That Samſon viſited his Wife with a Kid.] Which was no contemptible Preſent, as appears by the Story of Judah and Tamar, Gen. xxxviii. 17. For it was a delicious Food, not only in Judæa, but in other Countries, as Bochartus hath ſhewn in his Hierozoicon, P. 1. Lib. 2. Cap. 2.

And he ſaid, I will go in unto my Wife, into the Chamber.] He attempted with the uſual Freedom which Huſbands have with their Wives, to go into her Apartment, and enjoy her Company.

But her Father would not ſuffer him to go in.] For the Reaſon following in the next Verſe.

Ver. 2. And her Father ſaid, I verily thought that thou hadſt utterly hated her.] He thought he had good Grounds to conclude he would never come near her more, having not heard from him a whole Twelvemonth.

Therefore I gave her to thy Companion.] Whom it is likely ſhe loved, having contracted an Acquaintance with him, by the Friendſhip he had with her Huſband, xiv. ult. For tho' ſhe was (as the Hebrew Doctors ſuppoſe) a Proſelyte to the Jewiſh Religion, yet ſhe was not ſo well inſtructed as to know, that it was not lawful, by their Law, to marry another, till Samſon had given her a Bill of Divorce; which he had not done, intending to return again to her.

Is not her younger Siſter fairer than ſhe? take her, I pray thee, inſtead of her.] He had no mind to quarrel with Samſon; and therefore endeavoured to aſſuage his Anger with the Offer of his other Daughter, who was more beautiful than her who had forſaken him. This indeed was contrary to the Law of Moſes; but the Philiſtines it ſeems continued their old abominable Cuſtoms, which GOD intended, by giving his Law, to aboliſh, Levit. xviii. 24, 27, 30.

Ver. 3. And Samſon ſaid concerning them, Now ſhall I be more blameleſs than the Philiſtines, tho' I do them a Diſpleaſure.] He ſeems to have turned away in Scorn and Indignation, without making a Reply to his Father-in-Law; but told the next Perſons he met, that he would be revenged of the Philiſtines for the Wrong that had been done him; and that they might blame themſelves for the Miſchief he intended them. By which it appears, that the People of that Place approved of this Marriage, and perhaps honoured it by their Preſence; whom Samſon reſolved therefore to chaſtiſe, not as a private Perſon, but as appointed by GOD to vindicate the Oppreſſion of the Iſraelites. Which Grotius thinks he did ex naturali jure, as a Piece of natural Juſtice. See Lib. 2. de Jure Belli & Pacis, Cap. 20. Sect. 8. N. 3.

Ver. 4. And Samſon went and caught three hundred Foxes.] Some make a Difficulty to believe this, becauſe Foxes are ſubtle Creatures, and not eaſily caught: But they ſhould conſider ſuch Things as theſe, which Bochartus hath repreſented, that this Country abounded with Foxes, from whence ſeveral Places had their Names, particularly one in the Tribe of Dan, (ſee Chap. i. 35. and Joſh. xix. 42.) and that under this Name of Foxes may be comprehended a Creature very like a Fox, called Thoes, which which go together in Herds; ſo that two hundred (as good Authors report) have been ſeen in a Company together. And next, it is not ſaid he caught theſe at one Time, or in a Day and a Night; but there might be a Week or a Month's Time allowed for the Accompliſhment of his Deſign; in which his Servants, and Neighbours, and Friends, no doubt, aſſiſted him, if he deſired it; ſo that ſuch a Number might be caught in a ſhort Time: For they were not caught, as ſome imagine, only by hunting, but in Snares and Nets, as he demonſtrates in his Hierozoicon, Lib. 3. Cap. 13. Where, in anſwer to ſuch as aſk why he choſe Foxes, rather than Dogs, or ſome other Creatures, he thinks it is ſufficient to ſay, that he brought about two Ends; by the ſame means freeing the Country from a great many noxious Animals, by which he did much Hurt unto their Enemies.

And took Fire-brands, and turned Tail to Tail.] Which he tied together with a Cord; yet not cloſe, but at a Diſtance, that they might run the better.

And put a Fire-brand in the midſt between two Tails.] Which he ſo faſtened, that it ſhould not fall off by their Motion.

Ver. 5. And when he had ſet the Brands on fire, he let them go into the ſtanding Corn of the Philiſtines.] Near unto which he let them looſe; and they naturally ran into it to hide themſelves from the Fire; of which they are obſerved to be afraid. Beſide, being coupled, they could not run into their Holes.

And burnt up both the Shocks, and alſo the ſtanding Corn.] By this it appears, that it was in the midſt of Wheat-harveſt when this was done; ſome Corn being cut, and others ſtill ſtanding; but all conſumed. For the Fire being once begun, the Foxes were the more affrighted, and deſiring to run from it, this ſtill carried it to another Place, where there was Corn left, till they had burnt it quite up: Beſide it is obſerved by the ſame Author, that Foxes do not run ſtraight forward, but they make many Turnings, by which means they deſtroyed the more.

With the Vineyards and Olives.] Foxes are obſerved to love Grapes, and Solomon ſpeaks of them as noxious to Vineyards, Cant. ii. 15. whither they ran to ſatiate their Hunger, after they had been long kept up by Samſon. Some think, that as Part of the three hundred Foxes were ſent among the Corn, ſo the other Part among the Vines and Olives: Or, perhaps, being all let into the Corn, and finding the Flame increaſing there, they went to ſeek Shelter in the Vineyards, whither they carried the Fire.

Bochartus obſerves a very famous Monument of this Fact of Samſon's, in Ovid's fourth Book of his Faſti; where he ſaith, the Romans were wont every Year in the Middle of April, to let looſe ſome Foxes in the Circus, with burning Torches faſtened unto their Backs. The Original of which Cuſtom, he juſtly thinks, could not be from ſo ſmall an Occaſion, as Ovid mentions, from the Report of an old Man he met withal. But that it was derived from hence, may well be queſtioned; becauſe, tho' it fell out at the ſame Time of the Year that Samſon did this Thing, yet one can give no Reaſon why the Phœnicians (from whom the Romans muſt be ſuppoſed to borrow it) ſhould celebrate the Memory of this Miſchief which Samſon did them, in ſuch a Repreſentation of it. See him, in the Place before-mentioned, P. 856, 857, &c.

Ver. 6. Then the Philiſtines ſaid, Who hath done this?] The Owners of the Corn, or perhaps the Country in general, made an Enquiry after the Author of this Miſchief.

And they anſwered, Samſon the Son-in-law of the Timnite, becauſe he had taken his Wife, and given her to his Companion.] Some of thoſe who heard Samſon's threatning Words, (Ver. 3.) it is likely, gave this Information.

And the Philiſtines came up, and burnt her and her Father with Fire.] I ſuppoſe they burnt their Houſe, and them in it. Whereby that very Calamity came upon her, which ſhe ſought to avoid by betraying her Huſband, xiv. 15.

Ver. 7. And Samſon ſaid, Though you have done this.] The Words in the Hebrew are a conciſe Form of Speech, If ye had done after this manner; that is, puniſhed them ſooner for the Injury done him, it might have ſeemed Love of Juſtice; but now they did it only out of Love to themſelves.

Yet will I be avenged of you.] Or, but I will ſurely take a further Revenge of you. Unto which, no doubt, he was moved not by his own private Spirit, but by that Spirit which raiſed him up to deliver GOD's People from their Oppreſſors.

And then I will ceaſe.] That is, unleſs they gave him further Occaſion, there ſhould be an End of this Quarrel.

Ver. 8. And he ſmote them Hip and Thigh.] It is hard to underſtand the Meaning of this; of which Joſephus only ſaith, that he ſlew many of them, ἐν πεδίῳ τῶν Παλαιςινῶν, in a Field of the Philiſtines; but ſaith not a Word concerning the Import of Hip and Thigh. But the Chaldee Paraphraſt interprets it, he ſmote both Footmen and Horſemen, the one reſting on their Legs, (as the Hebrew Word Schock ſignifies) and the other on their Thighs, as they ſat cloſe to their Horſes. They that think this to be forced, take the Meaning to be, that he ſmote them both on their Legs and their Thighs, as they fled away, ſo as to diſable them from any Service, tho' he did not kill them. I omit other Interpretations.

With a great Slaughter.] The Word is, with a great Stroke, and ſo the LXX tranſlate it, which agrees well with the laſt Interpretation, that he ſorely wounded them.

And he went down.] With reſpect to the Country of the Philiſtines, he went up (as appears by the next Verſe) but from the mountainous Part of Judæa, where he was, he firſt went down.

And dwelt in the Top of the Rock Eſham.] A ſtrong Place in the Tribe of Judah, (as Joſephus relates) to the Top of which, no more than one Man could come abreaſt, as we ſpeak. By all this, and by what follows in the reſt of his Hiſtory, it is plain that Samſon had no Commiſſion from GOD, nor was moved by him to raiſe raiſe an Army, and make open War (as Gideon, and Jephthah, and others did) for the Deliverance of Iſrael from the Yoke of the Philiſtines, but only to weaken them, and to keep them in Awe, that, out of dread of him, they might be leſs cruel in their Oppreſſion. And this, no doubt, he underſtood to be all that God intended to do by him, from the Words of the Angel, xiii. 5. He ſhall begin to deliver Iſrael.

Ver. 9. Then the Philiſtines went up and pitched in Judah.] With a great Number of Men, as if they intended an abſolute Conqueſt of their Country.

And ſpread themſelves in Lehi.] A Place ſo called afterwards, from the Jaw-bone wherewith Samſon ſmote them.

Ver. 10. And the Men of Judah ſaid, Why are ye come up againſt us?] Since they paid their Tribute, (as Joſephus obſerves) and had committed no Offence againſt them, not having taken part with Samſon in any thing he had done, they might well expoſtulate with them about this Invaſion.

And they anſwered, To bind Samſon are we come up.] They ſoon ſatisfied them, that they had no Quarrel with them, but only with Samſon, whom, if they would deliver up bound to them, they would withdraw their Army.

To do to him, as he hath done to us.] Puniſh him for the Injuries he had done them; or rather, put him to Death, as he had killed many of them.

Ver. 11. Then Three thouſand of the Men of Judah went to the Top of the Rock Etham.] In the Hebrew it is went down, i. e. into the Cave where he was in the Top of the Rock: For it is ſaid, Ver. 13. That they brought him up to the Philiſtines, whereas from the Top of the Rock, it was down.

And ſaid unto Samſon, Knoweſt thou not, that the Philiſtines are Rulers over us?] And therefore not to be offended by us.

What is it that thou haſt done unto us?] To provoke them to come againſt Judah.

And he ſaid unto them, As they did unto me, ſo have I done unto them.] He ſaith nothing of any Motion he had from God to do what he had done, but only tells them, that he had merely requited the Wrong he had received from the Philiſtines.

Ver. 12. And they ſaid unto him, We are come down to bind thee, that we may deliver thee into the Hands of the Philiſtines.] They came with a little Army, to ſhew they could by Force take him; but they rather deſired he would quietly reſign himſelf to them, that they might deliver him bound to the Philiſtines.

And Samſon ſaid unto them, Swear unto me, that ye will not fall upon me yourſelves.] He doth not upbraid them with their baſe Cowardiſe, in coming ſo many againſt one Man, and that to give up their Deliverer into their Enemies Hands, but conſents to their Deſire, on Condition that they would ſolemnly engage to do him no Hurt themſelves; for he was unwilling to ſhed the Blood of his Brethren, as he might have done, if they had attempted any thing againſt him.

Ver. 13. And they ſpake unto him, ſaying, No, but we will bind thee faſt, and deliver thee into their Hands; but ſurely we will not kill thee.] They promiſed to do as he deſired, if he would ſubmit to be bound and delivered unto the Philiſtines, who would not be otherwiſe ſatisfied.

And they bound him with two new Cords, and brought him up from the Rock.] To put him abſolutely into the Power of the Philiſtines: For two Cords, and thoſe freſh and new, wherewith they bound him, were ſufficient to ſhew their real Deſire to comply with their Demands.

Ver. 14. And when they came unto Lehi.] Where the Philiſtines had ſpread themſelves, Ver. 9.

The Philiſtines ſhouted againſt him.] As Soldiers uſed to do, when they had gotten a great Victory, their miſchievous Enemy being fallen into their Hand.

And the Spirit of the Lord came mightily upon him.] Or, But the Spirit of the Lord, &c. Their Joy was inſtantly quaſht; for by the mighty Power of God, the Cords immediately ſnapped in ſunder.

The Cords that were upon his Arms became as Flax, that was burnt with Fire.] Which is conſumed in a Moment.

And his Bands looſed from his Hands.] The Hebrew, to expreſs how ſpeedily and eaſily they were looſed, ſaith, they melted, or were diſſolved, as Wax is by the Fire.

Ver. 15. And he found a new Jaw-bone of an Aſs.] Of an Aſs that had not been long dead. So the Word Terijah ſignifies, which Kimchi here ſaith is an Arabick Word, ſignifying moiſt and freſh, and therefore not ſo brittle as one that is dry, and hath laid long in the Air and the Sun. See Bochart. in his Hierozoicon, P. 1. Lib. 2. Cap. 15.

And put forth his Hand and took it.] The Providence of God laid it in his Way, that he might not be wholly unarmed, when he had a numerous Company of Enemies to deal withal.

And ſlew a thouſand Men therewith.] The Philiſtines, no doubt, were ſtrangely amazed, to ſee the Cords fall ſo eaſily, and ſuddenly, from his Hands, and to ſee him come boldly, or rather furiouſly, towards them, which put them in a Confuſion, and gave him ſuch Advantage againſt them, that he made this great Slaughter among them; wherein was fulfilled the Promiſe of Moſes, Levit. xxvi. 8. which was repeated by Joſhua, xxiii. 10. where he ſaith expreſly, One Man of you ſhall chaſe a Thouſand. It is not unlikely alſo, that the Philiſtines might fear, the Men of Judah, on this Occaſion, would join with him, which made them turn their Backs, and expoſe themſelves to Slaughter. But it was by a wonderful Strength which God infuſed into him, that he was able to purſue them ſo long, till he had done ſuch Execution, which is incredible only to thoſe who do not conſider the Power of God, who can raiſe our Powers to what Degree he pleaſes, and enfeeble the Spirits of thoſe who oppoſe his Deſigns: So that they ſhall have no Power to help themſelves. It may not be amiſs alſo here to note, that there are Inſtances of Men,

Men, who, by their natural Courage, have made great Havock among their Enemies: For Flavius Vopiſcus reports, That Aurelian, in the Sarmatick War, ſlew Forty-eight Men with his own Hands, in one Day; and in divers Days, Nine hundred and Fifty: Upon which the Boys made a Song, and ſhouted in their Dances after a military Manner, Mille, Mille, Mille, Mille, Mille, Mille, decollavimus. Unus homo, Mille, Mille, &c. Mille, Mille, vivat, qui Mille, Mille occidit. And upon another Occaſion, another little Song was made of him, which Salmaſius found thus diſpoſed in antient MS.

Mille Sarmatas, Mille Francos
Semel & Semel occidimus
Mille Perſas quærimus.

Ver. 16. And Samſon ſaid.] Then he compoſed a triumphant Song.

With the Jaw-bone of an Aſs, Heaps upon Heaps; with the Jaw-bone of an Aſs, have I ſlain a Thouſand Men.] This ſeems to have been the Beginning, and, perhaps, the End of the Song. In which Words, Belehi hachamor chamorcha morathaim, every one may obſerve a graceful Alluſion, Chamor ſignifying, both an Aſs, and alſo an Heap.

Ver. 17. And it came to paſs, that when he had made an end of ſpeaking.] Of reciting the Song before mentioned, which contained more than theſe few Words, as this Phraſe ſeems to import.

That he caſt the Jaw-bone out of his Hand.] Which he held there, while he was ſpeaking.

And called that Place Ramath-lehi.] That is, the Projection, or caſting away of the Jaw-bone, as the Chaldee and Kimchi interpret it; for ſo the Word Rama ſignifies, to throw any thing from one. It is called, Ver. 9. and 14. ſimply Lehi, it being uſual to leave out the Beginning of Names, as I have often obſerved, Salem being put for Jeruſalem, and Shittim, for Abel-Shittim, &c.

Ver. 18. And he was ſore athirſt.] By his great Toil in the Fight, and by his ſpeaking ſo long, and ſo earneſtly, as it is likely he did afterwards.

And he called on the LORD, and ſaid, Thou haſt given this great Deliverance into the Hand of thy Servant.] This is an expreſs Confutation of the Fancy of Joſephus, that GOD ſent this Thirſt upon him, as a Puniſhment for not giving him the Glory of his Victory, but aſcribing it to his own Strength; for which I can ſee no Colour: For though GOD be not mentioned in his Song, but only the Jaw-bone, yet that was in itſelf ſo weak an Inſtrument, that his acknowledging twice it was the only thing wherewith he ſlew ſo many, was a ſufficient Signification, that he aſcribed not the Victory to human Power, but to the Power of GOD, whoſe Spirit he felt come mightily upon him, when he ſet upon them: But what is there tacitly inſinuated, is here in ſo many Words expreſſed.

And now ſhall I die for Thirſt, and fall into the Hands of the Uncircumciſed?] It ſeems he was very faint, for want of ſome Refreſhment, which made him ſo earneſtly implore Relief from GOD, who, he knew, would not fail to ſupply him in ſo great a Neceſſity: For the Remembrance of former Benefits, when we thankfully acknowledge them, is a mighty Support to Faith, in the Expectance of future; beſide, he repreſents himſelf to GOD, as a Servant of his, who had taken all this Pains, not to ſatisfy his own Revenge, but by his Inſtigation, and for the Deliverance of his People.

Ver. 19. And GOD clave an hollow Place that was in the Jaw.] The Hebrew Word Maktes, properly ſignifies the Socket in which the great Teeth in the Jaw are faſtened (as Bochartus evidently proves, P. 1. Hieroz. Lib. 2. Cap. 16.) one of which Teeth he made to drop out, and then cauſed Water to come forth out of that hollow Place: But our great Primate follows thoſe who think GOD made a Clift in ſome Part of the Earth, in that Place called Lehi, from whence he made a Fountain of Water to ſpring up. And ſo Joſephus ſaith, He brought it, κατὰ τινὸς πέτρας, out of a certain Rock.

And there came Water thereout.] From this Cavity he cauſed Water to iſſue, (whereas Blood is wont to flow when a Tooth is plucked out) juſt as he brought Water out of a Rock in the Wilderneſs, and made the Meal and the Oil to multiply in the Widow of Sarepta's Veſſels.

And when he had drunk.] It is probable, he took up the Jaw, when he ſaw the Water bubble out of it, and let it run into his Mouth, till he had quenched his Thirſt.

His Spirit came again and he revived.] He was ſo ſpent, it ſeems, that he was ready to die, till GOD ſent him this Water, unto which his Power gave ſuch a Spirit, that it was as reviving as a Draught of Wine.

Wherefore he called the Name thereof, Enhakkore, which is in Lehi.] Or, as Bochart, I think, more truly renders it, Enhakkore-aſher belehi; that is, the Fountain of him that called, which is in the Jaw. See him in the above mentioned Place, P. 205.

Unto this Day.] Some have imagined, that the Fountain continued in Lehi, unto the time that this Book was written: But Bochart there obſerves, that theſe Words, Unto this Day, are not to be joined with thoſe next before; for they are ſeparated by an Accent which divides them; and therefore the Meaning is, that it is called to this Day, by the Name forementioned.

Ver. 20. And he judged Iſrael in the Days of the Philiſtines, Twenty Years.] All his Time, they remained under the Power of the Philiſtines, who, they confeſs, Ver. 11. were their Rulers, as they continued to be for Forty Years together, xiii. 1. of which theſe Twenty were a Part. In which he was not able to perfect their Deliverance, but only began it by ſeveral Damages he did them: But, after all, he left the Iſraelites under their Dominion; nor was there any Deliverer aroſe till Samuel, who, I obſerved before, compleated what Samſon began, 1 Sam. vii. 13.

CHAP. XVI.

Ver. 1. THEN went Samſon to Gaza.] His late Victory made him deſpiſe the Philiſtines, as Joſephus thinks, (καταφρονῶν τῶν Παλαιστινῶν) and adventure to go, in a Bravery, into one of their principal Cities, which lay in the South part of their Country, towards Egypt. But it ſeems to me more likely, that he went thither ſecretly and unobſervedly, in the Duſk of the Evening, or in a Diſguiſe; that he might the better ſpy in what Poſture they were, and what Advantage he might poſſibly have of them.

And ſaw there an Harlot.] Who kept, it is likely, a Publick Houſe to entertain Strangers; but was as publick herſelf; which had been the Condition of Rahab. So Joſephus ἐν τινὶ τῶν καταγωγίων διετριβε, he took up his Lodging in one of the Publick Inns of the City.

And went in unto her.] Was enſnared by her Beauty, to lie with her.

Ver. 2. And it was told the Gazites.] The Magiſtrates of the City.

Saying, Samſon is come hither.] By this it appears, his coming thither was not publickly known; but by ſome Means or other diſcovered: Perhaps, by the Woman herſelf into whoſe Houſe he went, who gave private Information of his being there.

And they compaſſed him in.] The Meaning is not that they beſet the Houſe; for the next Words ſhew the contrary; That they intended to ſeize him, as he went out of the City.

And laid wait for him all Night, at the Gate of the City.] Eſpecially in that Gate which led to his own Country.

And were quiet all Night.] Made no Noiſe, for fear he ſhould be alarmed, and contrive ſome Way of Eſcape; or deſperately ſet upon them, and break through the Guards.

Saying, In the Morning, when it is Day, we ſhall kill him.] He would fall into their Hands, they imagined; having no Apprehenſion of Danger.

Ver. 3. And Samſon lay till Midnight.] When he was admoniſhed, perhaps by a Dream, to be gone; or had ſome Intelligence from his Servants (whom he had ſet to watch) that they lay in wait for him.

And aroſe at Midnight.] In the dead time of the Night, when no body was ſtirring; and the Soldiers themſelves, perhaps, aſleep: Imagining he would lie till Morning.

And took the Doors of the Gate of the City, and the two Poſts, and went away with them, Bar and all.] He did not ſtay to break them open, but plucked up the Poſts out of the Ground, with the Doors hanging upon them, faſt barred; which ſo aſtoniſhed the Guards, that they had no Heart to follow him.

And put them upon his Shoulders.] He ſeems to have carried them a little Way in his Hands; and then lifted them up to his Shoulders, and carried them before their Faces in Triumph. Which argued a mighty Strength; and no leſs Confidence in GOD.

And carried them up to the Top of an Hill, that is before Hebron.] Some take this Hill to have been near Hebron; which was twenty Miles from this Place. But it is more probable (as Peter Martyr conjectures) it lay between Gaza and Hebron; within the View of both: That the Inhabitants of the one City might behold them to their Confuſion; and they of the other to their Encouragement to hope for Deliverance.

Ver. 4. And it came to paſs afterward.] How long after is not known.

That he loved a Woman in the Valley of Sorek, whoſe Name was Delilah.] It is certain that Sorek was a Place in the Land of Judæa; famous for choice Vines (as Bochart obſerves, from Gen. xlix. 11. Iſa. v. 2. Jer. ii. 21.) and not above a Mile and a half from Eſchol; whence the Spies brought a Bunch of Grapes, for a Sample of the Fruitfulneſs of the Country. Unto this Place Samſon retired to refreſh himſelf, perhaps, after his Labours, with the Delights of it; and there ſaw a Woman, with whom he fell in Love. But whether ſhe was a Woman of Iſrael, or one of the Daughters of the Philiſtines (who now were Rulers of the Country of Judah, xv. 11.) and whether he loved her as his Wife, or kept Company with her as an Harlot, is not here ſignified. St. Chryſoſtom, and others are of Opinion, that he was married to her. But then one would think there ſhould have been ſome brief Mention of their Wedding Solemnities; or of his bringing her home to his own Houſe. And the Philiſtines would not have been ſo bold, as to attempt to draw her into their Party, and bribe her to betray him into their Hands. Which argues ſhe had not the Affection of a Wife to him; but was a mercenary Woman, that would do any thing to get Money. And ſo Joſephus underſtands it, Παρέβαινε ἤδη τὰ πάτρια, &c. He forſook the Inſtitutions of his Country, and followed the degenerate Manners of ſtrange People, ἐρασθεὶς γυναικὸς ἑταιριζομένης, being enamoured with an Harlot among the Philiſtines: Which was the beginning of all the Evils that befel him. For he did not keep her Company for a Night; but dwelt with her, and gave up himſelf ſo entirely to her, that he doted on her.

Ver. 5. And the Lords of the Philiſtines came up unto her.] There were five of them in all (as we read iii. 3.) who, it is likely, all joined together to make a Purſe (as we ſpeak) wherewith to corrupt her; and ſent their Agents to make large Offers to her, if ſhe would come into their Intereſts.

And ſaid unto her, Entice him, and ſee wherein his great Strength lieth, and by what Means we may prevail againſt him.] It is probable, that he had often declared, that the Source of his Strength was a Secret, known only to himſelf; which they hoped he might, with her Blandiſhments, entice him to reveal unto her.

That we may bind him, and afflict him.] That ſhe might not ſtartle at the Propoſal, they tell her, they had no Intention to kill him; but only to keep him faſt in Chains, and afflict him; ſo as to make him humble, and bring him low, that he might not be able to do them more Miſchief.

And we will give thee every one of us, Eleven hundred Pieces of Silver.] By which is commonly underſtood ſo many Shekels; which made in all five thouſand five hundred, which make almoſt two Hebrew Talents. For the Jews make it a Rule, that where Pieces of Silver are mentioned, the Meaning is Shekels. See Gen. xxiii. 15.

Ver. 6. And Delilah ſaid unto Samſon, Tell me, I pray thee, where thy great Strength lieth.] She did not bluntly aſk him this Queſtion, but, as Joſephus very probably tells the Story, the next time they were eating and drinking together, and he was careſſing her, ſhe fell into an Admiration of all his wonderful Deeds, and highly extolled them; deſiring him to tell her, how he came ſo much to excel all other Men in Strength.

And wherewith thou mighteſt be bound to afflict thee.] So that he ſhould not be able to help himſelf.

Ver. 7. And Samſon ſaid unto her, If they bind me with ſeven great Withs, that were never dried; then ſhall I be weak, and be as another Man.] Her laſt Words, perhaps, made him ſuſpect ſomething. However, ἔτι φρονεῖν ἰσχυρὸς ἦν, (as Joſephus ſpeaks) he was yet ſtrong in his Underſtanding, and not perfectly beſotted on her; and therefore did not truſt her with this important Secret, but anſwered her deceitfully. Which cannot be excuſed from being a downright Lye; unleſs we ſuppoſe he only jeſted with her, not believing ſhe would take ſuch an improbable thing for a Truth.

Ver. 8. Then the Lords of the Philiſtines brought up to her ſeven green Withs, which had not been dried.] It ſeems they lurked ſomewhere thereabout, that they might be informed ſpeedily of what paſſed. And they took care to provide the Withs themſelves, that there might be no Defect in them.

And ſhe bound him with them.] Καθεύδοντα μεθύοντα, &c. She bound him hard with the Withs, when he was aſleep, and full of Drink, as Joſephus ſpeaks.

Ver. 9. Now there were Men lying in wait, abiding with her in the Chamber.] In another Room of the Houſe, near to that where Samſon ſlept, ſhe had placed a Band of Soldiers, (as Joſephus alſo interprets it) who were ready, upon Notice, to ſeize him. This is an Argument that Delilah was not his Wife; for in his own Houſe, where he had his Servants about him, it had not been poſſible for her to have placed Soldiers ſecretly in any Room, without their Knowledge.

And ſhe ſaid unto him, The Philiſtines be upon thee, Samſon.] One would think, they might have ſet upon him when he was in a deep Sleep. But the Plot was otherwiſe laid between them and Delilah; and they thought it not ſafe to come near a ſleeping Lion, for fear he ſhould chance to awake, and tear them in pieces.

And he brake the Withs as a Thread of Tow is broken, when it toucheth the Fire: So his Strength was not known.] They found he was as ſubtle, as he was ſtrong; having deluded both her and them.

Ver. 10. And Delilah ſaid unto Samſon, Behold, thou haſt mocked me, and told me Lyes: Now tell me, I pray thee, wherewith thou mighteſt be bound.] So as not to be able to free himſelf. The Hebrew Writers rightly obſerve, that ſhe did not ſay this to him immediately after the other; but at the next Opportunity, ſhe took Occaſion to complain of his want of Kindneſs, in not acquainting her with what ſhe deſired to know; as if ſhe was not able to keep the Secret of a Friend, which was not fit for any body elſe to underſtand; as Joſephus expreſſes it.

Ver. 11. If they bind me faſt with new Ropes, that were never occupied, then ſhall I be weak, and be as another Man.] He perſiſts in his Reſolution to delude her.

Ver. 12. Delilah therefore took new Ropes, and bound him therewith.] This looked more like Truth than the former, and ſhe took care, no doubt, to have the ſtrongeſt Ropes that they could get. And then made him a new Entertainment, where he eat and drank till he was heavy with Sleep; and then ſhe took the Opportunity to bind him, as ſhe had done before.

And ſaid unto him, The Philiſtines be upon thee, Samſon, (and there were Liers-in-wait in the Chamber.)] In the Inner Room, where they were formerly diſpoſed ſo ſecretly, that Samſon knew not of it; for if he had, he would have diſcovered her Treachery.

And he broke them from off his Arms like a Thread.] Which deterred them from breaking out upon him.

Ver. 13. And Delilah ſaid unto Samſon, Hitherto thou haſt mocked, and told me Lyes; tell me wherewith thou mighteſt be bound.] She prays him now to deal ſincerely with her; for ſhe perſiſted as reſolutely in her Attemps to draw the Secret from him, as he did in concealing it: Which he ſtill continued to do.

And he ſaid unto her, If thou weaveſt the Locks of my Head.] The Nazarites being bound never to cut their Hair, did not, I ſuppoſe, let it hang looſe, but curled it up in Locks, or plaited and broidered it after the manner of a Chain: And Samſon's Hair was diſtributed into Seven of theſe plaited Locks. See Dr. Spencer concerning this, L. 3. Cap. 6. Diſſert. 1. P. 585.

With the Web.] He ſeems to direct her to wrap theſe ſeven Locks about a Weaver's Beam (as the Chaldee underſtands it) or to weave them one within another, ſo that they ſhould be but one Lock; and then he ſhould be like another Man; which is here to be underſtood. And in this he comes a little nearer to the Truth; but ſtill deceives.

Ver. 14. And ſhe faſtened it with a Pin.] That they might keep tight, and not be unlooſed.

And ſaid, The Philiſtines be upon thee, Samſon; and he awaked out of his Sleep.] This ſhews that ſhe had taken the former Advantages of him in his Sleep.

And he went away with the Pin of the Beam, and with the Web.] And thereby appeared as ſtrong as ever he was. For, as the Vulgar underſtands it, ſhe fixed this Pin in the Earth; or as the LXX, in the Wall. But there is nothing like it in the Hebrew Text.

Ver. 15. And ſhe ſaid, How canſt thou ſay, I love thee, when thy Heart is not with me? Thou haſt mocked me theſe three times, and haſt not told me wherein thy great Strength lieth.] She now uſes her utmoſt Art to overcome him; by telling him, I ſuppoſe, ſhe would caſt him off, becauſe he did but pretend to love her; as appeared by his not truſting her: But notwithſtanding her importunate Deſire to be gratified in a ſmall Requeſt, he had no leſs than three times put a Cheat upon her.

Ver. 16. And it came to paſs, when ſhe preſſed him daily with her Words, and urged him.] Repeated this often from Day to Day, moſt earneſtly preſſing him to give her a Proof of his real Affection, by diſcloſing this Secret.

So that his Soul was vexed unto Death.] He was upon ſuch a Rack by two contrary Paſſions ſtruggling in him; Love to her, and Care not to loſe his Strength; that he was weary of Life; that is, very melancholy, and unconcerned what became of him.

Ver. 17. That he told her all his Heart.] God having forſaken him, becauſe he had abandoned himſelf to ſenſual Pleaſure; his Love of the Harlot prevailed over his Care of himſelf.

And ſaid unto her, There hath not come a Razor upon my Head; but I have been a Nazarite from my Mother's Womb.] Theſe Words were ſpoken with a greater Serioufneſs than any of the former; which made her conclude he had given her a true Account. For thus Joſephus paraphraſes, I am under the Care of God; by whoſe Providence being born, I nouriſh my Hair; for God forbad that I ſhould ever have it cut off. All my Strength lying in the Increaſe and Continuance of this Hair, Lib. 5. Antiq. Cap. 10.

If I be ſhaven, then will my Strength go from me, and I ſhall become weak, and be like any other Man.] There have been Men of wonderful Strength, whoſe Memory is preſerved in Hiſtory; particularly by Pliny, Lib. 12. Natural. Hiſtor. Cap. 20. and more are collected by Caſpar Schottus, in his Mirabilia Naturæ & Artis, Lib. 3. Cap. 36. And now at my preſent Writing of this, there is more than one Perſon in this City, of extraordinary Strength. But there is a Demonſtration that Samſon's Strength wholly depended upon the Power of God, and was not inherent in himſelf; but came upon him when there was need, as long as he preſerved himſelf conſecrated unto God, by not ſhaving his Head, and obſerving all other Things belonging to the Vow of a Nazarite. Which was a Thing ſo notorious, that the Heathens were not ignorant of it; but from hence deviſed (as learned Men have obſerved) the Fable of Niſus, the King of Megara; upon whoſe Hair the Fortune of his Kingdom depended. See Huetius in his Quæſtiones Alnecanæ, Lib. 2. Cap. 12. Sect. 28. and our Dr. Jackſon, in his firſt Book on the Creed, Chap. 15. Paragr. 3.

Ver. 18. And when Delilah ſaw that he had told her all his Heart.] Which ſhe perceived, as I ſaid, by the Manner of his ſpeaking.

She ſent and called the Lords of the Philiſtines.] Who ſtill, it ſeems, waited thereabouts, to ſee what would be the Succeſs of their Deſign; which ſhe gave them Hopes ſhe ſhould at laſt accompliſh. This could not but have been diſcovered by ſome of Samſon's Servants, if he had had a Family there, as he would if he had been married. I look upon this therefore, as a Proof, that this Woman was not his Wife.

Saying, Come up this once; for he hath ſhewn me all his Heart.] She was afraid they would not have hearkened to her any more, having been ſo often deluded; which made her give them this full Aſſurance.

Then the Lords of the Philiſtines came up unto her, and brought Money in their Hands.] Which they never did before; but now ſhewed her the Reward was ready, if ſhe performed her Work.

Ver. 19. And ſhe made him ſleep.] Having given him, as Delrio thinks, a ſleeping Potion. Others think ſhe had drawn him in to drink Wine (which Joſephus ſuppoſes ſhe had done in former Entertainments) unto which he not being accuſtomed, he was intoxicated with it. And having broken the Law of the Nazarites in this Point, was juſtly delivered up by God to ſuffer all that followed.

Upon her Knees.] Reſting his Head, I ſuppoſe, upon her Knees. Or perhaps, ſhe ſet him upon her Knees, and with her Arms about his Neck, expreſſed the greateſt Affection to him, and Care of him.

And ſhe called for a Man, and ſhe cauſed him to ſhave off the ſeven Locks of his Head.] Which he did ſo gently, being a Man of Art, as not to awake him.

And ſhe began to afflict him.] Not by any ſenſible Pain; but by weakning him, and bringing him low (as the Hebrew Word is often interpreted.) For as ſoon as the Razor touched his Head, his Strength began to be diminiſhed.

And his Strength went from him.] When all the Locks were ſhaved off, his Strength quite failed him.

Ver. 20. And ſhe ſaid, The Philiſtines be upon thee, Samſon. And he awoke out of his Sleep.] She cried ſo loud, and alſo ſhook him ſo much (out of pretended Kindneſs to him, that he might eſcape the Danger) that ſhe rouzed him out of his Sleep.

And he ſaid, I will go as at other times before, and ſhake myſelf.] She had ſo often ſaid thoſe Words, that he was in no Fear; but thought to do as he had done before, that is, prepare himſelf to fall upon them.

And he wiſt not that the Lord was departed from him.] Being newly awakened out of a profound Sleep, and ſcarce come to himſelf, he did not miſs his Hair; and ſo had no Apprehenſion that God had deſerted him.

Ver. 21. But the Philiſtines took him.] But he ſoon found he had no Power at all left to reſiſt his Enemies; who laid hold on him, and took him Priſoner.

And put out his Eyes.] By a juſt Judgment of God, [as the Miſchna obſerves in the Title Sota, Cap. 8. where they ſay, he followed the Delight of his Eyes, and ſo he was puniſhed with the Loſs of them. Which the Jews are wont to call, Meaſure for Meaſure. They did not put him to Death, much leſs cut him in Pieces, as their Hatred and Fury might have provoked them to do; for they had promiſed Delilah they would only bind him, and afflict or humble him, Ver. 5. and in thoſe Days all Men made ſome Conſcience of keeping their Word.

And brought him down to Gaza.] To be expoſed there to Scorn, where he had expoſed them to Shame, by carrying away the Gates of their City. It was a Place alſo of great Strength, where he would be kept ſecure; and it was remote alſo from his own Country.

And bound him with Fetters of Braſs.] Put very ſtrong, and heavy Fetters upon his Legs.

And he did grind in the Priſon-houſe.] As Slaves were wont to do. See upon Exod. xi. 5. and St. Hierom, Iſa. xlvii. 2. where this is turned to another Senſe, according to the Conceit of many of the Jewiſh Doctors; but without any Ground, for it is threatened there as a Puniſhment to Babylon, and ſo it was inflicted here as a Piece of Drudgery, unto which Samſon, as other Priſoners, was condemned.

Ver. 22. Howbeit the Hair of his Head began to grow again, after he was ſhaven.] Or (according to the Marginal Tranſlation) As when he was ſhaven. That is, grew in Time to the ſame Length it was of before Delilah cut it off: So that though his Nazariteſhip was interrupted by the ſhaving of his Head, yet it was renewed, by letting his Hair grow, and obſerving all other Rules belonging to it. He could not offer Sacrifice indeed for his Expiation, (as the Law was in caſe of an Interruption) but repented, no doubt, of his Folly, and began his Nazariteſhip again, with Prayer to GOD for a Pardon of his former Violation of it: And in this State of Penitence he continued ſome Time; for his Hair would be a good while in growing again to its former Length: When, being reſtored to the Condition wherein he was before he loſt the Favour of GOD, together with his Hair, the Divine Majeſty was reconciled to him, and reſtored his former Strength; which grew and increaſed, as his Hair did.

Ver. 23. Then the Lords of the Philiſtines gathered themſelves together.] Not immediately after the taking of Samſon; but after he had been ſome Time in Priſon, as appears by the Verſe foregoing: For it is likely they made great Preparation for the Solemnity mentioned in the next Words.

For to offer a great Sacrifice to Dagon their God, and to rejoice.] To give Thanks to their God at a Feſtival, which they appointed, I ſuppoſe, on purpoſe to expreſs their Joy for their taking Samſon Priſoner: Or, as Joſephus thinks, ἑορτὴν ἄγοντες τοῖς Παλαιστινοῖς δημοτελῆ, there being a publick Feſtival kept among the Philiſtines (which all Nations had at certain Seaſons) they made it more famous, by greater Sacrifices than ordinary, and by greater Feaſting and Rejoycing, which were Expreſſions of their Thankfulneſs to their God; who is called Dagon, becauſe, as R. Solomon, and many others think, he was in the Form of a Fiſh, (for Dag ſignifies a Fiſh) from the Navel downward, and upward in an Human Shape. Certain it is, this God had an Human Shape in the upper Parts, for we read 1 Sam. ver. 4. of his Head, and the Palms of his Hands, though nothing is there ſaid of his Feet. It is certain alſo, that the Syrians abſtained from Fiſh, as Porphyry notes; at leaſt from the Fiſh of that Lake hard by which the Temple of the famous Goddeſs Derceto ſtood, not far from Askelon: In which, as Lucian ſaith, in his Dea Syria, ἰχθύες ἱεροὶ τρέφονται, ſacred Fiſhes were bred. This Derceto was the ſame with Venus, as many learned Men think, whom the Sidonians called Atarge, and others Artaga; but moſt commonly Aſtarte, which, in the Scripture, is Aſhtaroth, the Goddeſs of the Sidonians, 1 Kings xi. 5, 33. 2 Kings xxiii. 13. and of the Philiſtines alſo, 1 Sam. xxxi. 10. whom the Iſraelites imitated, 1 Sam. vii. 3, 4. And worſhipping the Gods of thoſe who ruled over them, no wonder they followed their wicked Manners, and gave themſelves over to Fornication: Which is the beſt Account that can be given of Samſon's living in this Sin, without Reprehenſion; the Nation being depraved, and having loſt their antient Diſcipline, which corrected this Vice; for their Law permitted no Harlot to be in Iſrael.

For they ſaid, Our God hath delivered Samſon, our Enemy, into our Hands.] All Nations had this Senſe, that they owed all they enjoyed unto GOD: And eſpecially made their Acknowledgments to ſuch Gods as they worſhipped, for the Victories they got over their Enemies.

Ver. 24. And when the People ſaw him.] For he was publickly expoſed to all Mens View, in his Fetters, I ſuppoſe, and grinding in the Priſon.

They praiſed their God.] Some Hymns, perhaps, were compoſed on this Occaſion; which they ſang in praiſe of Dagon.

And ſaid, Our God hath delivered into our Hand, the Deſtroyer of our Country, which ſlew many of us.] This was Part of their Song, which the Greeks call Pæan: And they give the very ſame Epithet to Samſon, that Homer doth to Hector, whom he frequently calls ἀνδροφόνον, The Slayer of Men.

Ver. 25. And it came to paſs, when their Hearts were merry.] As they uſed to be with good Cheer, Muſick, and ſuch like Entertainments, at their Feſtivals.

That they ſaid, Call for Samſon.] The Lords of the Philiſtines ordered him to be ſent for.

That he may make us Sport.] It is uncertain whether they meant, that they would make themſelves Sport with him, by Flouts and Jeers; or that they would have him make them Sport, by ridiculous Geſtures and Speeches: Joſephus takes it in the firſt Senſe.

And they called for Samſon out of the Priſon-houſe, and he made them Sport.] Perhaps they made him dance in his Chains, or play'd with him at ſome ſuch Sport as we call Blind-Man's-buff: But it is hard to believe that ſuch a generous Spirit as his, would ſubmit to do any thing that ſhould make them laugh; therefore they made themthemſelves all the Sport they could, by their Abuſes of him, which he was forced to ſuffer.

And they ſet him between the Pillars.] That he might be the more viſible to every one in the Place.

Ver. 26. And Samſon ſaid unto the Lad, that held him by the Hand.] And led him about, as he was directed.

Suffer me that I may feel the Pillars upon which the Houſe ſtandeth.] Which ſupported the Roof of it, as appears from Ver. 29.

That I may lean upon them.] To reſt himſelf, pretending he was weary, as Joſephus expounds it.

Ver. 27. Now the Houſe was full of Men and Women, and the Lords of the Philiſtines were there.] Some think this Houſe was one of their Temples, wherein they met to praiſe their God, and then to feaſt, as the Manner was, upon the Sacrifices which were offered on ſuch Occaſions. (See ix. 27.) And indeed no private Houſe can be thought to have had a Room wide enough to contain ſuch a Number of People: But their Temples were, in many Places, large enough, and made ſo on purpoſe that a vaſt Number might aſſemble in them; particularly that of Diana at Epheſus is celebrated for its Greatneſs, as well as for its Beauty and Riches; (ſee Pliny, Lib. 35. Nat. Hiſt. Cap. 14.) all the People round about, from all Parts, running thither at ſeveral Solemnities, as many have noted: But others think it was ſome Theatre, like thoſe in After-times, built by the Romans, ſome of which were of a prodigious Bigneſs: See Pliny, in the ſame Book, Chap. 15. where he mentions two Theatres built by C. Curio, who was killed in the Civil Wars, on Cæſar's Side. They were made of Wood, ſo ample as to contain all the Roman People, (as he ſpeaks) and contrived with ſuch Art, that each of them depended upon one Hinge: Which moved Pliny to admire at the Madneſs of the People of Rome, who would venture into a Place, for their Pleaſure, where they ſat tam infida inſtabilique ſede, in ſuch an uncertain and unſtable Seat; for if that Hinge had ſlipt, there had been a greater Slaughter, than at the Battle of Cannæ. This I mention, to ſilence the Cavils of thoſe who fancy no ſuch capacious Building could be made, as relied only on two Pillars; which is not ſo ſtrange as this admirable Fabrick of Curio.

And there was upon the Roof about Three Thouſand Men and Women, that beheld while Samſon made Sport.] Every one knows that the Roof of their Houſes and Temples were flat, ſo that Men might ſtand or walk there: But how they ſhould ſee Samſon from thence, we cannot conceive, unleſs we ſuppoſe there were Windows to open upon Occaſion, whereby to look into the Houſe; or perhaps there were Battlements at the Top, in the Inſide (as in our Cathedrals) where this great Company of Men and Women ſtood: By whom we are to underſtand the Vulgar Sort; for the Lords of the Philiſtines, and Perſons of Quality, were in the Body of the Houſe.

Ver. 28. And Samſon called unto the LORD, and ſaid, O LORD GOD, remember me, I pray thee, and ſtrengthen me, I pray thee, only this once, O GOD.] A moſt ardent Prayer, proceeding from the Anguiſh of his Soul, as Joſephus obſerves; nothing being more grievous than to be mocked, and expoſed to publick Scorn, which he calls δεινότερον τῶν κακῶν, the worſt of all Evils! But whether he ſpake theſe Words within himſelf, or, as ſome think, with an audible Voice, cannot be determined.

That I may be at once avenged of the Philiſtines, for the Loſs of my two Eyes.] If this had proceeded from a Spirit of private Revenge, GOD would not have heard his Prayer, (for he doth not love to gratify Mens Paſſions) but that is a Proof that this Deſire proceeded from GOD, (as St. Auſtin underſtands it, Lib. 1. de Civ. Dei, Cap. 21.) who intended to puniſh the Philiſtines for oppreſſing Iſrael, as well as abuſing Samſon, and depriving him of his Eyes.

Ver. 29. And Samſon took hold of the two middle Pillars, upon which the Houſe ſtood, and on which it was born up, &c.] On which the Weight of the Roof relied.

Ver. 30. And Samſon ſaid, Let me die with the Philiſtines.] He is not to be thought properly a Self-Murderer; for he was moved by an heroical Spirit from GOD himſelf, to make himſelf a Sacrifice (as I may call it) for the Good of his Country: And it is no more than great Soldiers do, who are content to loſe their Lives, in Defence of a Poſt where they are placed, for the Preſervation of the Army to which they belong. See Grotius, in his Book de Jure Belli & Pacis, Lib. 2. Cap. 19. Sect. 5. N. 4.

And he bowed himſelf with all his Might, and the Houſe fell upon the Lords, and all the People that were therein.] But it was not by his Might, but by a miraculous Power of GOD, that this Houſe was ſubverted, whereby all their Mirth and Jollity was extinguiſhed in a Moment.

So the Dead which he ſlew at his Death, were more than they which he ſlew in his Life.] This laſt Act was the greateſt of his whole Life: For he not only ſlew more, but Perſons of greater Note, (their principal Rulers and Governors) and deſtroyed one of their Temples, (as moſt Authors take this Houſe to have been) together with their GOD: Which muſt needs put thoſe that ſurvived into the greateſt Conſternation and Confuſion.

This was a Thing known to the Heathen; for it is a very probable Conjecture of ſome great Men, that hence the Greeks framed the Fable of their Hercules; who lived about his Time, and whoſe Name is the ſame with Samſon's, if it be derived from Schemeſh the Sun: For Hercules is as much as Or-chol, that which enlightens all, i. e. the Sun. Of him it is reported, by Herodotus, That being bound in Egypt, he was brought in a pompous manner to be ſacrificed to Jupiter; and reſting a while, till he could be placed on the Altar, he broke out and ſlew all that were preſent.

Ver. 31. Then his Brethren, and all the Houſe of his Father.] By Brethren are commonly meant in Scripture, the neareſt Kindred; and by the Houſe of his Father is meant, all the reſt of his Relations: Or, perhaps, after the Birth of this Child, GOD beſtowed the Bleſſing of other Children upon Manoah and his Wife; as he did upon Hannah, after the Birth of Samuel.

Came down and took him.] By the Permiſſion of the Philiſtines, who had ſo much Humanity (as all Nations anciently had) as not to prohibit Enemies from burying their Dead: But the Iſraelites were now in Subjection to the Philiſtines, and did not join with Samſon in any of his Enterprizes; which he performed ſolely by himſelf: And beſide, the Philiſtines were much humbled and mollified, no doubt, by this late Diſaſter.

And brought him up.] With ſome Pomp, or Solemnity, it is likely; he being a very great Man, and famous for his wonderful Exploits.

And buried him between Zorah and Eſhtaol.] Theſe were two Cities in the Tribe of Dan, (Joſh. xv. 33.) but on the Frontiers of the Tribe of Judah, as ſome gather from Nehem. xi. 29.

In the Burying-Place of Manoah his Father.] To be buried in the Sepulchres of their Anceſtors, was accounted a great Bleſſing by all Nations, as Ezekiel Spanhemius notes upon Callimachus his Hymn to Diana, Ver. 131, 132. And we have Examples of it in Scripture, Gen. xlvii. 29, 30. Nehem. ii. 3, 5. as the contrary was accounted a Curſe, 1 Kings xiii. 22.

And he judged Iſrael Twenty Years.] This was ſaid before, xv. 20. and here mentioned again to ſhew that he continued to judge Iſrael (that is to vindicate them from their Oppreſſors, for we read of no other Act of a Judge) till he died. When he did as great an Act, as any he had done all the Time of his Judicature (or rather greater) for the humbling of the Philiſtines, who domineered over the Iſraelites, and reſtoring them to their Liberty: Which though he could not effect, yet he did ſo much towards it, by the many Miſchiefs he did them, that not many Years after his Death, they had the Courage to betake themſelves to their Arms, and fight the Philiſtines; whom they overthrew, and ſubdued, ſo that they came no more to moleſt the Iſraelites all the Days of Samuel; under whoſe Government, as I obſerved before, they recovered their Liberty from the long Oppreſſion of this People, 1 Sam. vii. 10, 13.

CHAP. XVII.

HERE begins the Second Part of this Book; which gives an Account of ſeveral memorable Tranſactions, in or about the Time of the Judges: Whoſe Hiſtory the Author would not interrupt by intermixing theſe Matters with it; but reſerved them to be related apart by themſelves, in the five following Chapters: Wherein he firſt gives an Account how Idolatry crept into the Tribe of Ephraim; which he doth in this Chapter: And then, Secondly, How it was propagated among the Danites, in an Expedition they made, wherein they ſacked Laiſh, Chap. xviii. And then, Thirdly, He relates a moſt foul Adultery committed in the Tribe of Benjamin, Chap. xix. After which follows the Deſtruction of that Tribe, for countenancing that Fact, Chap. xx. And Laſtly, The Reſtauration of it, Chap. xxi.

Ver. 1. AND there was a Man of Mount Ephraim, whoſe Name was Micah.] When this Man lived, and did what follows, we may with ſome Certainty gather from Ver. 6. which tells us, there was no King in Iſrael at this Time; that is, no ſupreme Governor, with a Power to keep the People to their Duty. Which Anarchy happened (as Primate Uſher and other great Men obſerve) between the Death of thoſe Elders, who ſurvived Joſhua, and the firſt Oppreſſion of Iſrael by Cuſhan: In which Space of Time, it is manifeſt, the Iſraelites firſt fell from the Worſhip of GOD, and polluted themſelves with Idolatry, ii. 13. iii 7. where we read the Children of Iſrael forſook the LORD, and did Evil in his Sight, i. e. committed Idolatry: The Beginning of which Defection from GOD, is deſcribed briefly in this Chapter.

Ver. 2. And he ſaid unto his Mother.] Who ſeems to have been a rich Widow, that lived with her Son Micah.

The Eleven Hundred Shekels of Silver.] There is no mention of Shekels in the Hebrew; but our Interpreters followed the Rule I mentioned, that where Pieces of Silver, or Silverlings, are ſpoken of, the Meaning is Shekels.

That were taken from thee.] Of which ſhe was robbed: Or, as the Vulgar underſtands it, which ſhe had ſeparated, or ſet apart; that is, devoted and conſecrated to an holy Uſe, but ſome body had ſtolen and perverted to their own Uſe.

About which thou curſedſt.] Adjured all her Family to diſcover the Money; with ſome ſort of Curſe upon them, if they knew where it was, and concealed it. See Dr. Hammond upon St. Matth. xxvi. Annot. 1.

And ſpakeſt of alſo in my Ears.] He was preſent, when ſhe made this ſolemn Adjuration.

Behold, the Silver is with me, I took it.] He confeſſed the Truth, for fear the Curſe ſhould light upon him.

And his Mother ſaid, Bleſſed be thou of the LORD, my Son.] She prayed the Curſe might be turned into a Bleſſing upon him, for his ingenuous Confeſſion.

Ver. 3. And when he had reſtored the Eleven Hundred Shekels of Silver to his Mother, his Mother ſaid, I had wholly dedicated the Silver unto the LORD.] This, ſome think, is the Meaning of her curſing before mentioned. She confirmed, with an Oath, the Conſecration of the Money to GOD, after the Manner of thoſe, who vowed any thing unto him, Levit. xxvii. 28.

From my Hand.] Reſolving not to keep it for my own Uſe: Or, thou ſhalt have it as a Gift from me.

For my Son to make a graven Image, and a molten Image.] For the Convenience of Micah and his Family; that he might make ſome Reſemblance of GOD, whereby to worſhip him at home, without the Trouble of going, upon all Occaſions, to the Tabernacle of Shiloh. For it appears by the Name Jehovah, to whom ſhe conſecrated the Silver, that ſhe did not intend to forſake the LORD GOD of Iſrael, but only to worſhip him by an Image; unto which the Iſraelites had very early inclined, (Exod. xxxii.) and afterward generally relapſed into it in the Days of Jeroboam.

Some are of Opinion that her Meaning was, her Son might make either a graven or a molten Image, which he pleaſed; but it is manifeſt he made both, from xviii. 18. where they are evidently mentioned as diſtinct. But that theſe were a Repreſentation of the two Cherubins, which covered the Ark, I dare not affirm; for they being of different Kinds, one a graven, the other a molten Image, ſeems to import the contrary; for the Cherubims were both alike. But ſee our moſt learned Dr. Spencer, L. 3. Cap. 3. Diſſert. 7. Sect. 4.

Now therefore I will reſtore it unto thee.] She reſolved to return it into his Hands, for the Uſe before named.

Ver. 4. Yet he reſtored the Money to his Mother.] Theſe Words ſeem to ſignify, that at the firſt he only brought the Money to her, offering to reſtore it; but ſhe bid him keep it; which he refuſed to do; but would have her take it again into her Hands, which ſhe did.

And his Mother took two hundred Shekels of Silver.] Some think ſhe reſerved the reſt for her own private Uſe, contrary to her Vow: But it is more probable, that ſhe gave them to her Son, to make the Ephod and Teraphim, and other Things belonging to that divine Service, which they intended to ſet up in their Houſe.

And gave them to the Founder, who made thereof a graven Image, and a molten Image.] It is not certain whether this Silver was melted, and then the Images made of it; or that for this Sum of Money, the Founder ſold theſe Images to him, made perhaps of Braſs, ſilvered over. And this is moſt probable, becauſe they would have been very ſmall, if they had been made only of two hundred Shekels of Silver.

And they were in the Houſe of Micah.] Placed in ſome Room of his Houſe, where he intended to worſhip, as it follows in the next Verſe.

Ver. 5. And the Man Micah.] This ſeems to import, that hereupon he looked upon himſelf, and was accounted a very conſiderable Perſon.

Had an Houſe of Gods.] The Hebrew Words Beth Elohim may well be tranſlated an Houſe of GOD; as Peter Martyr here underſtands it. And ſo the Phraſe is uſed in other Places, Gen. xxviii. 22. and in the next Chapter of this Book, Ver. 31. For his Intention was to make an Imitation of the Houſe of GOD at Shiloh at his own home; which may alſo be truly called an Houſe of Gods, (as we tranſlate it) becauſe, whatſoever his Intention was, to worſhip GOD by Images, was accounted by him the Worſhipping of other Gods.

And made an Ephod.] That the divine Service of his Houſe might be performed with a greater Reſemblance of what was done at the Tabernacle of Shiloh, he made Prieſtly Garments, as Peter Martyr underſtands it: Who takes the Ephod to comprehend not only the Breaſt-Plate adjoining to it, but the reſt of the Veſtments uſed by the High Prieſt; for he intended, it appears by the next Words, to ſet up an Oracle in his own Houſe. But whatſoever Reſemblance this Ephod had in its Shape and Form to the Ephod of the High Prieſt, it had none of that rich Work in it which the High Prieſt's Ephod had, nor no Girdle or Breaſt-Plate belonging to it; being no more ſuch a Garment as that Golden Ephod, than his Levite was a Prieſt; or his Teraphim, an Urim and Thummim.

And Teraphim.] Of this Word I have ſaid enough, upon Gen. xxxi. 19. where I have ſhewn, they were Images whereby the Eaſtern People conſulted GOD, and hoped to receive Anſwers from him. And therefore I take Micah's Meaning to have been, to ſet up an Holy Oracle in his Houſe, where the Prieſt wearing an Ephod, and other ſacred Habiliments, ſhould conſult GOD by theſe Teraphim. But, as Mr. Selden well obſerves, (in his Syntagma, 1 de Diis Syris, Cap. 2.) the Worſhip of the true GOD, and of Idols, were here blended together by him. For the Ephod and the Levite (whom he afterward provided) were intended, no doubt, for the Service of the true GOD; but the graven and molten Image, and the Teraphim, belonging unto Dæmons, (as he ſpeaks) by which the Children of Dan, in the next Chapter, deſire the Levite to enquire of GOD for them; for they neither truſted to the Ephod alone, which related to GOD, nor to their Teraphim alone, which were an Invention of their own; but thought it neceſſary to join both together in divine Worſhip. And thus began Idolatry in Iſrael, by the Superſtition of an old Woman, who puts this into her Son's Head. Many of the Jews fancy ſhe was Delilah; who having got ſo much Money of every one of the Lords of the Philiſtines, thought it was fit to employ ſome of it to expreſs her Devotion. But this is an idle Conceit, which hath no Ground, but only her being named in the foregoing Chapter; which relates an Hiſtory of Things long after Micah's Time.

And conſecrated one of his Sons, who became his Prieſt.] In the Hebrew it is, filled the Hand of one of his Sons; that is, as many think, the eldeſt Son of his Family, into whoſe Hands he put Sacrifices to be offered unto GOD? For that was the Rite of initiating Prieſts, as we find Exod. xxxi. 24. Levit. viii. 27.

Ver. 6. In thoſe Days there was no King in Iſrael.] That is, this was before the Time of the Judges, when theſe Things fell out; in whom there was a Sovereign Power to correct Abuſes, and eſpecially to ſuppreſs Idolatry; latry; which Power being now wanting, it was the Reaſon Micah took upon him to make himſelf a private Temple in his own Houſe; becauſe the Ways (as Grotius conjectures) were dangerous when there was no ſupreme Governor, being infeſted with Thieves, or not kept in good Repair, which made Travellers uneaſy. This laſt is more probable than that Robbers infeſted the Country; for it was now a Time of Peace, when the Levite travelled from one Part of the Land to the other ſecurely enough; and the Danites ſent Spies a long way to ſearch out the Country of Laiſh without Danger; and afterwards marched with a great Body to ſeek a new Settlement; which, one would think, ſhould rather have been employed in clearing their Country where they were, from ſuch peſtilent Cut-throats, as ſome ſuppoſe to have infeſted it.

As for the Name of King, it was given to the Judges; juſt as it was to Moſes, who was their ſupreme Governor; but was not properly a King, as Hermannus Conringius obſerves, in his Book de Rep. Hebr. Sect. 49. &c.

But every Man did that which was right in his own Eyes.] And there can be no worſe State of Things (as Peter Martyr here obſerves) than for every one to be left unto his own Will and Pleaſure; as they were now, when they left the LORD their GOD: For being without the true GOD, they were alſo without a teaching Prieſt, and without Law, as the Prophet Azariah his Words are, 2 Chron. xv. 3. where he ſeems, in that and the following Verſes, to deſcribe the lamentable State of Things in theſe Times, after the Death of Joſhua, and the Elders that out-lived him, to the Days of Samuel.

Ver. 7. And there was a young Man came out of Bethlehem-Judah.] There was another Bethlehem in the Tribe of Zebulun, Joſh. xix. 15. and therefore this is called Bethlehem-Judah, to diſtinguiſh it from that.

Of the Family of Judah, who was a Levite.] By his Mother's Side he was of the Tribe of Judah. Which is the moſt eaſy Explication, notwithſtanding what Kimchi ſaith to ſhew that Genealogies are not derived from the Mother. For here is no Account of his Genealogy, which is mentioned afterward, xviii. 30. from his Father; but it is noted that his Mother was of the Tribe of Judah, to ſhew how he came to live at Bethlehem, which was no Levitical City.

And he ſojourned there.] Lived there as a Stranger, (for ſo the Word Gour ſignifies in the next Verſe) not as a Citizen, and Inhabitant of the Place.

Ver. 8. And the Man departed out of the City from Bethlehem-Judah, to ſojourn where he could find a Place.] By this it appears he was a kind of Vagabond, who rambled about from Place to Place to find a Subſiſtence; for though there was ſufficient Proviſion made for the Levites, by the Tythes of the Land; yet we may well think they were not duly paid in a Time of ſuch Confuſion, that every Man did what he liſt; there being no Judge to ſee them do their Duty.

And he came to Mount Ephraim, to the Houſe of Micah, as he ſojourned.] As he travelled about the Country, he came hither, to beg an Alms perhaps, or, at beſt, to ſeek for ſome Employment.

Ver. 9. And Micah ſaid unto him, Whence comeſt thou?] He examined him, as the Manner was, unto what Country he belonged, and what was his Buſineſs.

And he ſaid unto him, I am a Levite of Bethlehem-Judah, and I go to ſojourn where I may find a Place.] He was looking out for a Maintenance ſomewhere or other, to ſupport him in his neceſſitous Condition.

Ver. 10. And Micah ſaid unto him, Dwell with me.] He deſires him to ſeek no further, but ſtay there, and ſettle with him in his Houſe.

And be unto me a Father and a Prieſt.] The Prophets, and other great Men, were called antiently by the Name of Father, as Eliſha calls Elijah, 2 Kings ii. 12. and the King of Iſrael calls Eliſha, 2 Kings vi. 21. and the King of Syria is repreſented as ſpeaking to him in the ſame Language, 2 Kings viii. 9. and King Joaſh, xiii. 14. Therefore Micah's Meaning is, he would make him the Director and Governor of his Family, and reverence him accordingly, if he would undertake to perform all ſacred Offices among them.

And I will give thee ten Shekels of Silver by the Year.] Next to Honour, he promiſes him Money, and all Things needful for his Support.

And a Suit of Apparel.] Or, as it is in the Margin, a double Suit. For ſo the LXX and the Vulgar, ζεῦγος ἱματίων, a Couple of Garments. And there being ſomething of Order ſignified in the Word Herech, which we tranſlate Suit, many underſtand hereby a Winter and a Summer Suit of Clothes: And de Dieu hath juſtified this Interpretation of a double Garment out of the Ethiopick Language, where this Word ſignifies a Companion; whence it may be probably concluded, that here is intended not one Suit only, but two at leaſt. With whom agrees Hottinger in his Smegma Orientale, Cap. 5. P. 88. where he obſerves, that all, in a Manner, are of Opinion, that more Suits of Apparel than one are ſignified by this Word; but whence to fetch that Signification is not to be found, but in the Ethiopick Language, where it ſignifies a Companion, a Friend, another Self, as his Words are.

And thy Victuals.] His conſtant Diet at his Table.

And the Levite went in.] Accepted of his Offer, ſo far as to go into his Houſe, and ſee how he liked every thing.

Ver. 11. And the Levite was content to dwell with the Man.] After ſome time he reſolved to ſettle in his Houſe.

And the young Man was unto him as one of his Sons.] He treated him with ſuch Affection, that he was the more willing to ſtay there.

Ver. 12. And Micah conſecrated the Levite, and the young Man became his Prieſt.] A wonderful Preſumption in them both; Micah having no Authority to conſecrate, nor the Levite (who

(who was not of Aaron's Family) being capable of the Prieſtly Office. But ſuch was the Confuſion of thoſe Times, for want of a Judge, that Micah's Superſtition had no Check upon it; and the Levite's Poverty and Ambition tempted him to accept of the Preferment proffered to him: His Youth alſo made him the more ignorant.

And was in the Houſe of Micah.] Continued with him to execute the Prieſt's Office.

Ver. 13. Then ſaid Micah, Now I know that the LORD will do me good, becauſe I have a Levite for my Prieſt.] Who he thought had more Right to the Office, and would be more acceptable to God, than his own Son, whom he had conſecrated before, ver. 5.

By this it is evident, that he did not intend to forſake the LORD; but his Mind was ſo blinded, that he took one ſmall Benefit for a ſufficient Sign of his Favour, when he was guilty of ſo many heinous Offences againſt the Divine Majeſty: Firſt, in making Idols, and then in making one of his Sons a Prieſt; and after that, in drawing a poor young Man into the ſame Crime with him; and in taking upon him to conſecrate a baſe Levite to be a Prieſt; of which Office he was not capable, if he had had Power to conſecrate one, which he had not. But both of them were Intruders into that which belonged not to them; and thereby drew upon themſelves a Curſe, rather than a Bleſſing.

CHAP. XVIII.

Ver. 1. IN thoſe Days there was no King in Iſrael.] Theſe Words ſeem to be repeated, to ſuggeſt the Reaſon of ſuch enormous Practices, as are before mentioned, and here follow in this Chapter.

And in thoſe Days.] When there was no Judge in Iſrael. That is, ſaith the Author of Tzemach David, in the Interval between the Government of Jair and Jephthah. Which is an idle Opinion; and yet he ſaith he ſhould be of it, did he not reverence his Maſters who are of another mind; which is the truer: That theſe Days were before there was a Judge in Iſrael, between the Death of Joſhua and the Elders that ſurvived him, and the Time of Othniel, who was the firſt Judge that God raiſed up unto them. So Joſephus, Lib. 5. Antiq. Cap. 2.

The Tribe of the Danites.] Or rather, a Tribe, &c. For ſo the Word Schebet is ſometimes uſed for a Family in a Tribe; as in the 20th Chapter of this Book, ver. 12. it is ſaid, the Tribes of Iſrael ſent Meſſengers to all the Tribes of Benjamin, i. e. to all the Families of the Tribe of Benjamin; and in Iſa. xix. 13. De Dieu obſerves the ſame: Who alſo truly notes, that when the whole Tribe is ſpoken of, it is not ſaid Schebet hadani, as it is here, but Schebet Dan. Therefore hadani here, and in other Places, ſignifies a Family derived from that Tribe.

Sought them an Inheritance to dwell in.] Some of that Tribe which was very much ſtraitned by the old Inhabitants of the Land (who pent them up in a narrow Compaſs, which was not ſufficient for them) enquired where they might find a commodious Settlement in ſome other Place.

For unto that Day all their Inheritance had not fallen unto them among the Tribes of Iſrael.] They had an Inheritance allotted them, as well as the reſt of the Tribes, Joſh. xix. 40, &c. but by their Sloth, and for want of that brotherly Aſſiſtance which other Tribes ſhould have afforded them, they could not get Poſſeſſion of a conſiderable Part of it; but were forced by the Amorites to content themſelves with the mountainous Part of their Country, leaving them none of the Champain, (as Joſephus obſerves) nor all the Mountains neither. See the 1ſt Chapter of this Book, ver. 34, 35. Wanting room therefore for all their People and Cattle, and being unable to deal with the Amorites, they ſent ſome, as it here follows, to ſeek for a Dwelling ſomewhere elſe.

Ver. 2. And the Children of Dan ſent of their Family five Men from their Coaſts.] It is no improbable Conjecture of Arias Montanus, that there were five Families of the Danites; out of each of which one Man was choſen to make the following Diſcovery.

Men of Valour.] Who could not be daunted if they were taken for Spies. Some think alſo Men of Quality; ſuch as thoſe whom Moſes ſent to ſpy out the Land of Canaan.

From Zorah and from Eſhtaol.] Which Places are the firſt named in the Account of the Lot of their Inheritance, Joſh. xix. 41.

To ſpy out the Land.] They were ſent εἰς μεσόγειον, (as Joſephus ſpeaks) into the Midland Country, (for the Danites were ſeated near the Philiſtines towards the Sea-Coaſt) to ſee if they could find out a convenient Place for them.

And to ſearch it.] To enquire into the Condition of it, and of the Inhabitants.

And they ſaid unto them, Go, ſearch the Land.] They had a Commiſſion from their Elders to go whither they directed them, in the plain Country wherein Laiſh ſtood, ver. 14.

And when they came to Mount Ephraim.] Theſe two Tribes joined, as I obſerved upon i. 35.

To the Houſe of Micah.] To the Place where his Houſe ſtood.

They lodged there.] Not in Micah's Houſe, but in ſome Place of Mount Ephraim, not far from it; as we may gueſs by the next Verſe.

Ver. 3. And when they were by the Houſe of Micah.] Near to which, it is probable, there was a publick Inn, for the Entertainment of ſuch as came from the neighbouring Parts to worſhip, or to ask Counſel of the Oracle at Micah's Houſe.

They knew the Voice of the young Man, the Levite.] Having been acquainted with him heretofore, when, it is probable, he was in their Country; for he had led a wandering Life.

And they turned in thither.] Went into Micah's Houſe, at his Invitation, or to ſalute him, and enquire of his Welfare.

And ſaid unto him, Who brought thee hither?] Far from that City of the Levites, I ſuppoſe, to which he belonged.

And what makeſt thou here?] What Buſineſs haſt thou in this Place?

And what haſt thou here?] How doſt thou live and maintain thyſelf? For they knew he had been poor.

Ver. 4. And he ſaid unto them, Thus and thus dealeth Micah with me, and hath hired me, and I am his Prieſt.] He told them the Agreement between Micah and him, mentioned in the foregoing Chapter.

Ver. 5. And they ſaid unto him, Ask Counſel, we pray thee, of God, that we may know whether our Way we go ſhall be proſperous.] They were as ignorant, it ſeems, as he; and thought God would give an Anſwer there, as well as at his own Houſe.

Ver. 6. And the Prieſt ſaid unto them, Go in Peace.] Whether he had any Anſwer from the Teraphim, or feigned it out of his own Head, is not certain; but he encouraged them to proceed in their Deſign.

Before the LORD is your Way, wherein you go.] He pretended to have this Anſwer from the LORD, who, he aſſures them, would direct, guide, and protect them in their Proceedings; for that is the Meaning of their Way before the LORD: Under his Eye; that is, his Care and Providence, who would diſpoſe all Things for their good Succeſs. Now if the Levite did not deviſe this Anſwer, which he thought would pleaſe them, but heard a real Voice from the Teraphim, which promiſed them Proſperity, then it was permitted by God, to ſerve the Ends of his Providence, juſt as Nebuchadnezzar was encouraged by his Diviners, to undertake the Siege of Jeruſalem, Ezek. xxi. 21, 22.

Ver. 7. Then the Five Men departed, and came to Laiſh.] Called Leſhem in Joſh. xix. 47. where this Story is briefly told, by way of Anticipation: See my Notes there. It was a City which lay at the Foot of Libanus, near the Fountain of Jordan, as Joſephus ſaith in the Place above named.

And ſaw the People that were therein, how they dwelt careleſs, after the Manner of the Zidonians.] Had no Fear of any Enemy, no more than the Zidonians, who were a powerful People, in a ſtrong City; whoſe Cuſtoms, I ſuppoſe, they imitated.

Quiet and ſecure.] Becauſe they knew nobody of whom they had any Fear.

And there was no Magiſtrate in the Land, that put them to ſhame in any thing.] To puniſh them for any thing they did, which made them live as they pleaſed. There are very various Interpretations of theſe Words, of which De Dieu hath given the beſt Account.

And they were far from the Zidonians.] Who might have otherwiſe come to their Aſſiſtance, upon any ſudden Invaſion, they following the Manners and Cuſtoms of that People; but they were a Day's Journey from them, as Joſephus there ſaith.

And had no Buſineſs with any Man.] No Traffick or Commerce with any of their Neighbours, nor they with them. This Diſpoſition laid them open to be a Prey to any reſolute Invader.

Ver. 8. And they came unto their Brethren in Zorah and Eſhtaol.] From whence they were ſent, ver. 2.

And their Brethren ſaid unto them, What ſay ye?] They asked them what Account they brought of their Journey.

Ver. 9. And they ſaid, Ariſe, that we may go up againſt them. This ſhews, that they were particularly directed to make a Diſcovery of Laiſh.

For we have ſeen the Land, and behold, it is very good.] Γῆν ἀγαθὴν καὶ πάμφορον, as Joſephus expreſſes it, a goodly Country, and very fertile.

And are ye ſtill?] Their Brethren did not ſeem at firſt to believe them, which makes them ſtir them up by this Queſtion, and the following Exhortation.

Be not ſlothful to go, and to enter to poſſeſs the Land.] They ſpeak as if they had no more to do, but to march thither, and take poſſeſſion of the Country.

Ver. 10. When ye go, ye ſhall come unto a People ſecure, and to a large Land.] They uſe two Arguments to excite them to the Enterprize; that it was eaſy, and would be very advantageous.

And God hath given it into your Hand.] They add the Encouragement the Prieſt had given them, ver. 6. which was the greateſt of all.

A Place where there is no Want of any thing that is in the Earth.] This magnifies the Goodneſs of God to them, in diſcovering a Country to them abounding with all manner of good things, which they very much wanted in the Mountains wherein they were pent up. See ver. 1.

Ver. 11. And there went from thence of the Family of the Danites, out of Zorah and Eſhtaol.] Either Family is here put for a Tribe, or the Singular Number for the Plural; there going out of ſome of the Families of the Danites, the following Number.

Six hundred Men, appointed with Weapons of War.] Carrying their Wives, and Children, and Houſhold-Stuff with them; for they nothing doubted of making a Settlement there. See ver. 21.

Ver. 12. And they went up and pitched in Kirjath-jearim, in Judah.] Not in the City itſelf, but in the Fields belonging to it, as appears from the laſt Words of this Verſe. See concerning this Place Joſh. xv. 9, 60. which lay in the North Part of the Tribe of Judah, and ſo lay in the Road to Laiſh.

Wherefore they called the Place Mahaneh-Dan, unto this Day.] See xiii. ult.

Behold, it is behind Kirjath-jearim.] On the Weſt of it, towards the Mediterranean Sea, which is called the Hindermoſt Sea, Deut. xi. 24. as on the contrary, the Eaſt is called Kedem, which imports as much as before. Here the Danites encamped the firſt Night after they came from Zorah and Eſhtaol.

Ver. 13. And they paſſed thence unto Mount Ephraim.] The ſecond Day's March was to this Place, ſtill more Northward.

And

And they came to the Houſe of Micah.] Unto the Town or Village where Micah lived; for they did not yet come to his Houſe, but afterward, ver. 15.

Ver. 14. Then anſwered the five Men that went to ſpy out the Country of Laiſh.] In the Hebrew Language he is ſaid oft-times to anſwer, who ſpeaks firſt, as in 1 Kings i. 28. and many other Places.

And ſaid unto their Brethren.] Who knew, perhaps, that they called at this Place by the way, and aſked them, who dwelt there?

Do ye know that there is in theſe Houſes.] i. e. In that Town or Village, viz. in Micah's Houſe, which was the chief in the Town. See ver. 12.

An Ephod and Teraphim, and a Graven Image, and a Molten Image?] Which the Levite had ſhewn them, or told them were in the Houſe.

Now therefore conſider what ye have to do.] Whether it might not be expedient to carry thoſe ſacred Things along with them, which they fancied would be an Aſſurance of the divine Preſence with them: For from thence they had received an Anſwer of Peace, when they went to ſpy the Country whither they were now going, ver. 6.

Ver. 15. And they turned thitherward, and came to the Houſe of the young Man the Levite, even unto the Houſe of Micah.] To that Part of the Houſe where the Levite had his Apartment, not to the ſacred Place where the fore-named Idols were.

And ſaluted him.] Or, aſked him of his Health and Welfare, as the Hebrew Phraſe ſignifies, Asked him of Peace.

Ver. 16. And the Six hundred Men appointed, with their Weapons of War, which were of the Children of Dan, ſtood by the Entering of the Gate.] Whither the Five Men brought the Levite out to them, or he, hearing there was ſuch a Company there, came out to view them, after the Salutation was over.

Ver. 17. And the Five Men that went to ſpy out the Land, went up, and came in thither.] Having brought him out, they returned back to the Place where they knew the Images, &c. were.

And took the Graven Image, and the Ephod, and the Teraphim, and the Molten Image; and the Prieſt ſtood in the Entering of the Gate with the Six hundred Men, &c.] That is, while the Levite was diſcourſing with them, and wiſhing them, perhaps, good Succeſs, they robbed the Chapel, and took away all the Furniture of it. Some think Micah alſo was with him at the Gate, entertaining them with Meat and Drink. But that is confuted by what follows.

Ver. 18. And theſe went into Micah's Houſe, and fetched the carved Image, the Ephod, and the Teraphim, and the Molten Image.] They not only took them, as is ſaid before, but brought them out openly before the Levite's Eyes, who ſaw them in their Hands, and thereupon expoſtulated with them.

Then ſaid the Prieſt unto them, What do ye?] Will you be guilty of ſuch a Sacrilege; Or, will you thus requite me, who have been very kind to you?

Ver. 19. And they ſaid unto him, Hold thy peace, lay thine Hand upon thy Mouth.] Keep Silence, and make no Noiſe. So this Phraſe is uſed thrice in the Book of Job (xxi. 5. xxix. 9. xxxix. 37.) and in the Book of Proverbs, xxx. 32. and the Prophet Micah, vii. 16.

And go with us, and be unto us a Father and a Prieſt.] They invite him to ſerve them in the ſame Quality as he did Micah, promiſing him the ſame Authority, Reverence, and Affection, that he had from him: And moreover, they repreſent to him, in the next Words, how much more advantageous it would be to miniſter unto ſo great a Part of a Tribe, than to one private Perſon.

Is it better for thee to be a Prieſt unto the Houſe of one Man, or that thou be a Prieſt unto a Tribe, and a Family in Iſrael?] They were not a Tribe, but only a Part of it; yet ſo conſiderable a Part being a great Family, they are called a Tribe, and a Family; that is, a whole Family in that Tribe.

Ver. 20. And the Prieſt's Heart was glad.] To think he ſhould ſo very much mend his Condition; for the ſame Arguments which prevailed with him to dwell with Micah, were far ſtronger now (viz. Covetouſneſs and Ambition) to move him to go along with them.

And he took the Ephod, and the Teraphim, and the Graven Image.] Under which is comprehended alſo, the Molten Image, which the Five Men brought out of the Houſe with the other, ver. 17, 18.

And went in the midſt of the People.] Who undertook to guard him from any Aſſault that might be made on any Side, to bring him back: Or, he went perhaps, with thoſe ſacred Things (as they accounted them) in the midſt of the People, in imitation of the Ark, which was ſo placed when the Camp of Iſrael marched, Numb. x. 21.

Ver. 21. And ſo they turned and departed.] From his Houſe.

And put the Little-ones, and the Cattle, and the Carriage, before them.] Both for Safety, if any ſhould purſue them, and that they might march no faſter than they were able to bear it.

Ver. 22. And when they were a good way from the Houſe of Micah.] Who did not immediately miſs the Levite, and his Idols, and ſpent ſome Time in aſſembling his Neighbours.

The Men that were in the Houſes near to Micah's Houſe.] If there was not a Town there before, it is likely, the Place of Worſhip which Micah ſet up, made many reſort thither, and ſettle their Habitation there.

Gathered together, and overtook the Children of Dan.] Hoping to recover what they had taken away.

Ver. 23. And they cried to the Children of Dan.] Deſiring them to ſtop their March, till they had ſpoken with them.

And they turned their Faces, and ſaid unto Micah, What aileth thee, that thou comeſt with ſuch a Company?] Accordingly they made a Stand, and faced about, aſking him, what he would have, and what he meant to bring a little Army with him, as if he intended an Aſſault.

Ver. 24. And he ſaid, Ye have taken away my Gods which I made, and the Prieſt, and ye are gone away.] By Gods he means the Symbols of the divine Preſence; for he was not ſo ſottiſh as to believe, that he could make his God, he being a Worſhipper of Jehovah, xvii. 3, 13.

And what have I more? and what is this that ye ſay unto me, What aileth thee?] He thought it a ſtrange Queſtion to aſk what he ailed, when they had taken away that which he valued above all Things in the World.

Ver. 25. And the Children of Dan ſaid unto him, Let not thy Voice be heard among us.] They that were next to him, adviſed him not to ſay a Word more, leſt, if the whole Army ſhould hear his Reproaches, miſchief might follow.

Leſt angry Fellows run upon thee, and thou loſe thy Life, and the Life of thy Houſhold.] There are always ſuch fierce and furious Men among Soldiers, who are incenſed to bloody Executions upon the leaſt Provocation; and theſe being Men going to make their Fortune (as we ſpeak) it is likely were generally of ſuch a violent Temper.

Ver. 26. And the Children of Dan went their way.] Turned about again, and purſued their March, with Neglect and Scorn of Micah.

And when Micah ſaw that they were too ſtrong for him, he turned and went back to his Houſe.] His Zeal was not ſo great for his Gods, but he loved his Life better.

Ver. 27. And they took the Things which Micah had made, and the Prieſt which he had.] i.e. They kept them, and carried them along with them.

And came unto Laiſh.] They ſeem to have made three Days March in this Expedition, encamping firſt at Kirjath-jearim, and the next Night at Micah's Houſe, and coming the next Day to Laiſh.

Unto a People that were at quiet and ſecure.] Whom they found in the Poſture the Spies had deſcribed them, ver. 10. having no Scouts abroad, to bring them Notice of any approaching Danger, nor any Guards of the Paſſes to their City, or at its Gates; ſo that they were eaſily ſurprized.

And they ſmote them with the Edge of the Sword, and burnt the City with Fire.] Killed the People of the Country and City, unto which they ſet fire, when they had taken, I ſuppoſe, the Spoil of it. Thus was fulfilled the Prophecy of Moſes concerning this Tribe, Deut. xxxiii. 22. See there.

Ver. 28. And there was no Deliverer, becauſe it was far from Zidon.] See ver. 7.

And they had no Buſineſs with any Man.] Which deprived them of all Intelligence.

And it was in the Valley that lieth by Beth-rehob.] A City near to Hamath, in the moſt northerly Part of the Country. See Numb. xiii. 21.

And they built a City, and dwelt therein.] Larger, perhaps, than the former; which being not big enough to contain them, they thought fit to burn it, and build a better.

Ver. 29. And they called the Name of the City Dan, after the Name of their Father Dan, who was born unto Iſrael.] They gave it this Name, that it might be remembered they belonged to the People of Iſrael, tho' they lived at a great diſtance from their own Tribe, in the very Extremity of the North of Judæa, (whereas the Tribe of Dan had their Lot in the South-Weſt) from whence came the common Saying afterwards, when they would expreſs the whole Length of the Country, From Dan to Beer-ſheba.

Howbeit the Name of the City was Laiſh at the firſt.] This ſeems to ſignify, that they did not burn the whole City, but ſo much as might ſtrike a Terror into the Inhabitants, and make their Conqueſt more eaſy; for he ſpeaks of it as ſtill the ſame City, tho' it loſt its old Name.

Ver. 30. And the Children of Dan ſet up the Graven Image.] Together with the Molten, no doubt, and made uſe of the Ephod and Teraphim here, as Micah had done in his Houſe, fancying, I ſuppoſe, it was by a Divine Direction from this Oracle, that the five Men had ſuch good Succeſs, when they went to ſpy out this Land, ver. 5, 6.

And Jonathan.] This was the Name of the Levite who came along with them.

The Son of Gerſhon, the Son of Manaſſeh.] So not only the Hebrew, but the Chaldee, and the LXX. (both in the Roman Edition, and in that of Baſil, and in the Palatine MS. as Hottinger obſerves) which will not let us doubt it is the true Reading: Tho' the Vulgar hath put Moſes inſtead of Manaſſeh, according to an idle Conceit of ſome of the Rabbins, who ſay, the Letter Nun, in the middle of the Word, is not written even with the reſt, but ſuſpended above the reſt of the Letters, to ſhew, that tho' he was indeed the Son of Moſes, yet he ſhould rather be called the Son of Manaſſeh, becauſe he did the Works of Manaſſeh, and not of Moſes; that is, was an Idolater. So Kimchi (as the ſame Hottinger obſerves) who therein follows the Talmudiſts in Bava Bathra. See his Theſaurus Philologicus, L. 1. Cap. 2. Quæſt. 4. And Bartoloccius, in his Kirjath-Sepher, Tom. 1. P. 114. And thus they made this Jonathan to be the Grandchild of Moſes, for Gerſhom was his Son: But it is not likely he would have been left in ſo poor a Condition, if he had been ſo nearly related to their great Law-giver; nor would he have had ſo ill an Education. And, being now but a Youth, it is not probable that he was the Son of that Gerſhom, but of ſome other, who had the Name of his famous Anceſtor given him, tho' his Father's Name was Manaſſeh: But it is wholly uncertain from what Family of the Levites this Man was derived; and theſe Names, no doubt, were common to more than thoſe who firſt bare them.

He and his Sons were Prieſts of the Tribe of Dan.] Of that Part of the Tribe who ſettled here at Laiſh.

Until the Day of the Captivity of the Land.] Some Cavillers have endeavoured to frame an Argument from hence, that this Book was written in later Times, after the Ten Tribes were carried away by Salmanaſſer; or, as ſome of the Jews in Seder Olam interpret the Captivity of the Land, to ſignify that by Nebuchadnezzar:

chadnezzar : But Kimchi and Ralbag very well object againſt this, that it is altogether unlikely theſe Images ſhould have been ſuffered to continue in the Days of David ; who was a Man after God's own Heart, and ſet himſelf to advance true Religion to the utmoſt of his power, all the Country over, from Dan to Beerſheba : Therefore Kimchi, with great reaſon, concludes, That by the Captivity of the Land is meant the taking of the Ark by the Philiſtines, and carrying it Captive into the Temple of Dagon : Which is confirmed, as our famous Selden obſerves (Syntag. 1. de Diis Syris, Cap. 2.) by the next Verſe, which ſaith, That till Shiloh was deſtroyed, theſe Images remained. And this taking of the Ark the Pſalmiſt expreſly calls a Captivity, when he ſaith Pſal. lxxviii. 60, 61. He forſook the Tabernacle of Shiloh, &c. and delivered his Strength into Captivity, his Glory into the Enemy's hand. As for the Interpretation of Ralbag, who takes this Captivity to have been in the Days of Jabin King of Canaan, it is not worth confuting.

Ver. 31. And they ſet up Micah's graven Image which he made, all the Time that the Houſe of God was in Shiloh.] Which was all the Time of the Judges mentioned in this Book ; who, tho' zealous Reformers, could not, it ſeems, extend their Authority to the very Skirts of the Country, where Idolatry ſtill lurked in this Corner of the Land : For ſcarce any one of the Judges ruled over the whole Country of Iſrael ; but only over ſuch Tribes as they delivered from imminent Danger. This appears by the Armies which Barak and Gideon raiſed ; and in the double Oppreſſion they lay under, at the ſame time, in the Weſt and in the Eaſt, by the Philiſtines and the Ammonites ; when Jephthah was raiſed up againſt the latter, and Samſon againſt the former : No wonder therefore that none of them could make a general Reformation, nor aboliſh the Idolatry in this Place : But God uſed the Philiſtines as Inſtruments to put an end to it ; for when they deſtroyed Shiloh, where the true Houſe of God was, they deſtroyed this Houſe of Gods (as they eſteemed it. See xvii. 5.) being a Reſemblance of it : And perhaps, as they brought the Ark into the Field againſt the Philiſtines, ſo the Danites brought theſe Images, with the Ephod and Teraphim, and the Prieſt, who was ſlain with Hophni and Phineas ; or, as Huetius thinks, carried Captive into the Land of the Philiſtines, with a great many other Iſraelites. But this Place remained ſtill ſo famous for the Reſort of People thither to worſhip, that when Jeroboam ſet up his Golden Calves, he erected one of them here in Dan, as another in Bethel : Where there having been a real Appearance of God, in ancient Time, to Jacob, the People were eaſily made to believe there had been the like in Dan, in the Time here mentioned.

CHAP. XIX.

Ver. 1. AND it came to paſs in thoſe Days, when there was no King in Iſrael.] In the Time before mentioned, xvii. 6. xviii. 1. See there.

That there was a certain Levite ſojourning on the Side of Mount Ephraim.] He ſeems to have been a Stranger in this Country, as the other Levite was, who ſojourned in the Land of Judah, xvii. 7.

And he took him a Concubine out of Bethlehem-Judah.] That is, a Wife of the ſecondary Sort, without ſuch ſolemn Eſpouſals, or a Dowry, as thoſe called Wives had. So the Talmudiſts generally think. But Aberbinel, following Raſi, thinks, that a Concubine was taken with Eſpouſals, and only wanted a Dowry, or a Jointure (as we ſpeak.) Certain it is, ſuch Perſons were really Wives ; and it was Adultery in any other Perſon that lay with them, but he who had married them. As this Man had this Woman, for he is expreſly called her Huſband in the next Chapter, xx. 4. and her Father is called his Father-in-Law in this Chapter, ver. 47. See Selden, Lib. 5. De Jure Nat. & Gent. Cap. vii. and Buxtorf de Sponſal. & Divortiis, pag. 11, &c. where the Opinion of Abarbinel is largely repreſented.

Ver. 2. And his Concubine played the Whore againſt him.] Was falſe to his Bed, into which ſhe admitted ſome other Perſon.

And went away from him unto her Father's Houſe in Bethlehem-Judah.] To eſcape the Puniſhment unto which ſhe was liable as an Adultereſs : But there are thoſe who, by the Word Tizneh, which we tranſlate played the Whore, will have no more to be meant, but that ſhe was froward and contumaciouſly diſobedient ; ſo that ſhe could not endure his Company, but forſook him : The Chaldee plainly inclines this way ; and the LXX tranſlate it ὠργίσθη αὐτῷ, She carried herſelf like a Fury to him ; and Joſephus ἀλλοτρίως εἶχε, She behaved herſelf untowardly.

And was there Four whole Months.] Or, as others take it, A Year and Four Months. For Days in Scripture frequently ſignify a Year : But the LXX, and Joſephus take it for ſo many Days as made Four Months.

Ver. 3. And her Husband aroſe, and went after her.] His Anger was over by this time, and his Affection to her revived : Perhaps alſo he heard ſhe repented, and was become a better Woman.

To ſpeak friendly to her.] In the Hebrew, To ſpeak to her Heart ; that is, to make her ſenſible of his Kindneſs to her, notwithſtanding her Offence, and to aſſure her of his Pardon.

And to bring her again.] To his own Habitation, from whence ſhe went away.

Having a Servant with him, and a Couple of Aſſes.] And for that end came attended with a Servant, to carry her and her Baggage (as we now ſpeak) with neceſſary Proviſions.

And ſhe brought him into her Father's Houſe.] She ſeems to have been as ready as he for a Reconciliation.

And when the Father of the Damſel ſaw him, he rejoiced to ſee him.] Embraced him with great Affection and Joy.

Ver. 4. And his Father-in-Law, the Damſel's Father, retained him.] Would not let him go away, as ſoon as he deſired.

Ver.

Ver. 5. And it came to paſs on the Fourth Day, when they aroſe early in the Morning, that he roſe up to depart.] With an Intention to leave him, and return to his own Houſe.

And the Damſel's Father ſaid unto his Son-in-Law, Comfort thy Heart with a Morſel of Bread, and afterward go your Way.] Her Father had no mind to part with him ſo ſoon, hoping, by keeping him longer in his Houſe, their Conjugal Love and Affection would be more confirmed: And deviſed this Way to detain him, by deſiring him to take a ſhort Repaſt with him, before he began his Journey; for this is meant by a Morſel of Bread, under which all ſort of Proviſions are comprehended: Wherewith he deſired him to comfort, or, as the Word literally ſignifies in the Hebrew, ſupport his Heart; which in Engliſh we expreſs exactly by, ſtay his Stomach with a Morſel, &c. For, in many Authors, the Heart ſignifies the Stomach, as ſeveral have obſerved, particularly Gataker in his Cinnus, Lib. 2. Cap. xvi.

Ver. 6. And they ſat down, and did eat and drink both of them together.] He made him a great Feaſt, at which they ſat a long time.

For the Damſel's Father had ſaid unto the Man, Be content, I pray thee, and tarry all Night; and let thy Heart be merry.] For he was earneſt with him not to think of going away that Day, but to ſpend it joyfully with him and with his Daughter.

Ver. 7. And when the Man roſe up to depart, his Father-in-Law urged him; therefore he lodged there again.] He preſſed his Stay ſo hard, that when he offered to be gone, he prevail'd with him to lodge there another Night.

Ver. 8. And he aroſe early in the Morning on the Fifth Day to depart, and the Damſel's Father ſaid unto him, Comfort thy Heart, I pray thee.] Stay till after Dinner.

And they tarried till Afternoon, and they did eat both of them.] He prolonged the Entertainment, ſo that the Sun began to decline before they had done.

Ver. 9. And when the Man roſe up to depart, he and his Concubine, and his Servant.] Who had made all ready for their Journey.

His Father-in-Law, the Damſel's Father, ſaid unto him, Behold now the Day draweth towards Evening, I pray you tarry all Night; behold, the Day draweth to an End.] In the Hebrew the Words are, It is the pitching Time of the Day; that is, when Men pitch their Tents, to take their Reſt.

Lodge here, that thine Heart may be merry.] He prays him that they may rejoice together one Night more.

And to-morrow get you early on your Way, that thou mayſt go home.] He promiſes not to detain them longer than this Night, but to let them go away as early as they pleaſed next Morning, without any Entertainment.

Ver. 10. But the Man would not tarry that Night.] Suſpecting his Father would uſe ſtill the ſame kind Artifice, or ſome other, to keep him longer with him.

But he roſe up and departed, and came over againſt Jebus, (which is Jeruſalem) and there were with him two Aſſes ſaddled, and his Concubine alſo was with him.] He carried away all that he brought, (ver. 3.) and his Wife alſo, whom he went to invite again to dwell with him.

Ver. 11. And when they were by Jebus, the Day was far ſpent, and the Servant ſaid unto his Maſter, Come, I pray thee, and let us turn in unto this City of the Jebuſites, and lodge in it.] The famous City Jeruſalem (anciently called Jebus) had been taken by the Children of Judah, (i. 8.) but the Jebuſites ſtill kept the ſtrong Fort of Sion, till the Time of David, and thereby ſo commanded the lower Town, that they forced the Children of Judah and Benjamin to let them dwell with them there, (i. 21. Joſh. xv. ult.) and it appears by this Place, that they were the ruling Party, and therefore it is called this City of the Jebuſites. See Joſh. x. 1.

Ver. 12. And his Maſter ſaid unto him, We will not turn aſide hither, into the City of a Stranger, that is not of the Children of Iſrael.] This is an Argument that he was not like the other Levite, mentioned in the xviith Chapter; for he would not take up his Lodging among Idolaters: And it alſo ſhews, that the greater Part of the Inhabitants were Jebuſites, and the Children of Iſrael had little or no Power there; yea, it is poſſible that this happened ſo long before the Days of the Judges, that Jeruſalem was not yet taken by the Children of Judah.

We will paſs over to Gibeah.] Which was poſſeſſed by the Children of Iſrael, viz. the Benjamites.

Ver. 13. And he ſaid unto his Servant, Come, and let us draw near to one of theſe Places, to lodge all Night, in Gibeah, or in Ramah.] The Servant, I ſuppoſe, made ſome Objection againſt Gibeah, and therefore he put him to his Choice, either to go thither, or to Ramah; which was alſo a City belonging unto Benjamin, both of them lying Northward of Jeruſalem, and not far from it.

Ver. 14. And they paſſed on and went their Way, and the Sun went down upon them, when they were by Gibeah, which belongeth to Benjamin.] This is noted, to diſtinguiſh it from another Gibeah which belonged to Judah, Joſh. xv. 57.

Ver. 15. And they turned aſide thither, to go in, and to lodge in Gibeah.] Being unable to reach Ramah, unleſs they would have travelled in the Night, which had not been ſafe.

And when he went in, he ſat him down in a Street of the City.] There being, I ſuppoſe, no Publick Inn in the Town, unto which Strangers might reſort.

For there was no Man that took them into his Houſe to lodging.] They were grown ſo lewd in this Place, that there was no Humanity left among them; but the ancient Cuſtom of Hoſpitality, in entertaining Strangers, was quite aboliſhed: Or, if any had ſo much Goodneſs remaining as to be inclined to it, they durſt not make any Invitation of a Stranger to their Houſes, for fear of drawing Miſchief upon themſelves, from their debauched Neighbours.

Ver. 16.

Ver. 16. And behold there came an old Man from his Work out of the Field at Evening.] Before it was quite dark, which was alſo of Mount Ephraim, where this Levite dwelt, and he ſojourned in Gibeah. Being but a Sojourner himſelf, he had the more Compaſſion on a Stranger.

But the Men of the Place were Benjamites.] This was one of the Cities given to the Prieſts, Joſh. xxi. 17. But the Prieſts did not inhabit them alone, eſpecially now when they were but few, and therefore let other Perſons, who were not Prieſts, dwell there together with them.

Ver. 17. And when he had lift up his Eyes, he ſaw a wayfaring Man in the Street of the City.] Who looked as if he was at a loſs for a Lodging.

And the old Man ſaid, Whither goeſt thou? and whence comeſt thou?] Theſe were the uſual Queſtions made to Travellers.

Ver. 18. And he ſaid unto him, we are paſſing from Bethlehem-Judah, toward the Side of Mount Ephraim, from thence am I; and I went to Bethlehem-Judah.] This is a full Anſwer to one Part of his Queſtion, giving him an Account where he commonly lived; tho' his Occaſions carrying him to Bethlehem-Judah, he now immediately came from thence.

But I am now going to the Houſe of the LORD.] This is an Anſwer to the other Part of his Queſtion: For Shiloh, where the Houſe of God was ſettled, was in the Tribe of Ephraim; (Joſh. xviii. 1.) and thither, like a good Man, he intended firſt to go, and give Thanks to God for reſtoring his Wife to him; and, perhaps, to offer an Expiation for her Sin; and then to return to his own Home, on the Side of Mount Ephraim.

And there is no Man that receiveth me to Houſe.] Whereby he was in danger to lie in the Street all Night.

Ver. 19. Yet there is both Straw and Provender for our Aſſes, and there is Bread and Wine for me, and for thy Handmaid, and for the young Man which is with thy Servant.] He uſes very civil and humble Language, and alſo ſignifies he did not deſire to be chargeable to any body; being ſo well provided with all things neceſſary, that he need not be a Burden to him that would entertain him.

There is no Want of any thing.] But only of a Lodging.

Ver. 20. And the old Man ſaid, Peace be with thee.] He ſaluted him kindly, after the uſual Manner that Friends and Neighbours greeted each other.

Howſoever.] Do not ſpeak of that.

Let all thy Wants be upon me, only lodge not in the Street.] I had rather entertain thee at my Charge, than ſuffer thee to lie in the Street.

Ver. 21. So he brought him into his Houſe, and gave Provender for their Aſſes.] Took care both of them and of their Beaſts, at his own Coſts, as the Words ſeem to import.

And he waſhed their Feet.] As the Cuſtom was in thoſe Countries after Travelling.

And did eat and drink.] Sat down to Supper.

Ver. 22. And as they were making their Hearts merry.] Eating and drinking very freely.

Behold the Men of the City, certain Sons of Belial.] See Deut. xiii. 13.

Beſet the Houſe round about.] That none might go out; and beat at the Door: As if they would force their Entrance; which made the Maſter of the Houſe come to ask them what they would have.

And they ſpake to the Maſter of the Houſe, the old Man, ſaying, Bring hither the Man that came into the Houſe, that we may know him.] Theſe laſt Words are capable of a good Meaning, as if they deſired only to examine him, and know who he was, and whence he came, &c. but the old Man being acquainted with their wicked Manners, underſtood their lewd Intentions, and accordingly gave them the following Anſwer. See Gen. xix. 5.

Ver. 23. And the Man, the Maſter of the Houſe, went out unto them, and ſaid unto them, Nay, my Brethren, nay, I pray you, do not ſo wickedly, ſeeing this Man is come into my Houſe, do not this Folly.] He endeavours to divert them from their Purpoſe, with kind Words, and humble Intreaties; urging withal, the Title the Man had to his Protection by the Laws of Hoſpitality, and the Greatneſs of the Sin they were about to commit.

Ver. 24. Behold, here is my Daughter a Maiden, and his Concubine, them will I bring out now, and humble ye them, and do with them as ſeems good unto you; but unto this Man, do not ſo vile a Thing.] His earneſt Deſire to preſerve the Laws of Hoſpitality from Violation, (which was a Thing very ſacred in thoſe Days) made him forget the Care he ought to have had to preſerve his Daughter's Purity. He hoped alſo, perhaps, that they were not grown yet ſo wicked, as to offer this Injury to a Neighbour, tho' they regarded not what they did to Strangers, which made him offer them the Man's Concubine alſo, ſuppoſing it better than to let them do Violence to her Husband. He muſt be conſidered, as in a Confuſion of Thoughts (like Lot. See Gen. xix. 8.) and ſo not to have minded ſo much what was right, as what was leaſt wrong.

Ver. 25. But the Men would not hearken to him.] And the Levite alſo, I ſuppoſe, abſolutely refuſed to have the old Man's Daughter, or his Concubine, expoſed to their Luſt: Whence aroſe a Quarrel, inſomuch that they threatned, and deſigned to kill him, (as he himſelf tells the Story, xx. 5.) which, it is likely, moved the old Man to perſuade him not to be ſo obſtinate; but for the Preſervation of his Life, which was in great danger, to yield a little to them: And perſuading the Men of the City not to be ſo furious, they came at laſt to compound the Matter; and finding the Levite ſo reſolutely bent to defend himſelf, were content only to have his Concubine (whoſe Beauty they admired, as Joſephus ſaith, when they ſaw her come into their City) and to let him and the old Man's Daughter alone. Unto this they agreed, of two Evils chuſing the leaſt.

So the Man took his Concubine, and brought her forth unto them.] With her own Conſent, it is probable; for ſhe thought her Husband would loſe his Life, and ſhe not preſerve herſelf.

And they knew her, and abuſed her all Night, until the Morning, and when the Day began to ſpring, they let her go.] Leſt the Light ſhould diſcover who they were that had been ſo villainouſly wicked.

Ver. 26. Then came the Woman at the Dawning of the Day, and fell down at the Door of the Man's Houſe, where her Lord was, till it was light.] She fell down dead, ὑπὸ λύπης καὶ αἰσχύνης (as Joſephus ſpeaks) with Grief at what ſhe had ſuffered, and Shame to look upon her Husband; and it may be added, with the exceſſive Abuſe of her Body.

Ver. 27. And her Lord roſe up in the Morning.] So the Women in thoſe old Times called their Husbands, out of Reverence to them, as the Head of the Wife. See 1 Pet. iii. 5.

And opened the Door of the Houſe, and went out to go his Way.] Imagining, perhaps, that they intended to keep her, and he did not know where to find her, but muſt ſeek ſomewhere elſe by what Means to recover her.

And behold, the Woman his Concubine was fallen down at the Door of the Houſe, and her Hands were upon the Threſhold.] She being ſtretched out at length; as People are ſometimes, when they fall down with Wearineſs upon their Faces into a profound Sleep.

Ver. 28. And he ſaid, Up, and let us be going.] Suppoſing her to be only in a deep Sleep, he began to rouze her up, and to ſpeak comfortably to her (as Joſephus takes it) knowing ſhe was under a Force, and did not willingly ſubmit to their Filthineſs.

But none anſwered. Then the Man took her up upon an Aſs, and the Man roſe up, and gat him into his Place.] When he ſaw ſhe was dead, he made no Outcry; but (as Joſephus obſerves) prudently carried her away, as faſt as he could, to his own Home.

Ver. 29. And when he was come to his Houſe, he took a Knife, and laid hold upon his Concubine, and divided her, together with her Bones.] In the Hebrew the Words are, according to her Bones; that is, ſome of the Pieces were bigger, ſome leſſer, according as the Joints would ſuffer her Body to be divided.

Into Twelve Pieces.] That every Tribe might have a Limb of her, Benjamin not excepted. Among whom it was to be hoped, there were ſome who would reſent ſo foul a Fact, tho' committed by their own Brethren.

And ſent her into all the Coaſts of Iſrael.] Giving the Meſſengers a Charge (as Joſephus obſerves) to relate how ſhe had been abuſed, which was the Cauſe of her Death. He knew not what other Courſe to take, to have Juſtice done; for (as Joſephus there obſerves, Lib. 5. Antiq. Cap. 2.) there was no ſettled Court of Judicature eſtabliſhed according to the Law. Which is the Reaſon he gives (Chapter the Fifth of that Book) why Eglon attempted to ſubdue the Iſraelites, becauſe they were all in Diſorder, the Laws being not put in execution.

Ver. 30. And it was ſo, that all that ſaw it, ſaid, There was no ſuch Deed done, nor ſeen, from the Day that the Children of Iſrael came up out of the Land of Egypt.] They not only condemned the Fact, but were highly incenſed at it, as a Crime beyond all that had been heard of ſince they were a People: For it was a Mixture of Adultery and Murder, with an Attempt of Sodomy; and that upon a Levite; a Perſon conſecrated to the divine Service in ſome lower Miniſtries.

Conſider of it, take Advice, and ſpeak your Mind.] Theſe are either the Words of the Meſſenger, or rather of the People themſelves, who exhorted one another not to paſs over this Deed, only with expreſſing their Abhorrence of it; but to conſider, and conſult one with another what was to be done, and to declare their Opinion freely, how ſo heinous a Crime was to be puniſhed. And accordingly we find, in the Beginning of the next Chapter, that, by common Conſent, the whole Body of the People met together, to adviſe about this Matter.

CHAP. XX.

Ver. 1. AND all the Children of Iſrael went out of their Cities.] The principal Perſons who were appointed to repreſent the reſt.

And the Congregation was gathered together.] This Congregation conſiſted of the Captains of Thouſands and Hundreds, &c. which had been eſtabliſhed by Jethro's Advice, together with the principal Citizens, as Corn. Bertram probably thinks, whom they called to this Aſſembly.

As one Man.] Except the People of Jabeſh-Gilead, xxi. 5, 8. and they of the Tribe of Benjamin, who had no Senſe of this Wickedneſs. For there was a general Summons, no doubt, iſſued out by the Command of their Rulers, to require every one to meet at a certain Place, mentioned in the following Words, or otherwiſe to forfeit their Lives.

From Dan even to Beer-ſheba, with the Land of Gilead.] That is, all Iſrael on this ſide Jordan, and on the other, were of the ſame mind in this Matter.

Unto the LORD to Mizpeh.] There was a Place of this Name in the Land of Gilead, as we read, xi. 11. but this Mizpeh here mentioned was in the Confines of Judah and Benjamin, for which Reaſon it is ſometime aſcribed to the former, Joſh. xv. 38. and ſometime to the latter, Joſh. xviii. 26. being a Place very conveniently ſituated for a General Meeting of all the People, who often aſſembled there in future Times, 1 Sam. vii. 5, 6, 7, 16. x. 17. And it was not far from Shiloh, which made it the more convenient; becauſe from hence they might, upon any Occaſion, immediately go to conſult the divine Majeſty; which they intended to do now, when they had diſpatched the Buſineſs Buſineſs for which they met here, which was to examine the Crime of which the Benjamites were accuſed; and if there were good Proof made of it, to conſider how to puniſh it as it deſerved. Whence it is that Joſephus ſaith, this Congregation met in Shiloh, Εἰς τὴν Σιλῶν συλλεγέντες καὶ πρὸ τῆς σκηνῆς ἀθροισθέντες, as if it were the ſame with Mizpeh. And indeed, in this Hiſtory, there is a little difference made, becauſe they were ſo near one to another. See ver. 26. xxi. 2. But Mr. Mede thinks that here was a famous Place of Prayer, which is the Houſe of God mentioned in thoſe two Verſes. For ſo the Author of the Firſt Book of Maccabees ſaith, iii. 46. That when the holy City and Sanctuary lay deſolate, by the Tyranny of Antiochus Epiphanes, the People aſſembled together at Maſpah, to make their Supplications unto God, Ὅτι τόπος προσευχῆς εἰς Μάσφα τὸ πρότερον τῷ Ἰσραήλ, becauſe at Maſpah had been, in former times, a Place of Prayer for Iſrael; and therefore ſome of the Jewiſh Doctors ſay, the firſt Synagogue was built here, and make this the Original of all thoſe which were ſo frequent in After-times: For here, ſay Kimchi and Abarbinel, all the remaining Kings of Canaan aſſembled (after the Battle at Gibeon) to fight with Iſrael, Joſh. xi. 3. And here Joſhua finiſhed his Victories over the Canaanites, ver. 8. and therefore here, it is probable, he built an Altar unto the LORD, in Memory of ſo great a Deliverance. But this Conjecture is founded upon a plain Miſtake; for the Land of Mizpeh, where Joſhua compleated his Victories, was far from this, in the moſt Northern Parts of Canaan, near Lebanon, beyond the Fountains of Jordan.

Mr. Mede alſo, and Corn. Bertram think, that hither they brought the Ark upon this great Occaſion, and ſo might properly be ſaid to be gathered unto the LORD. But this ſeems to me improbable, that they ſhould remove the Ark hither, when it was ſo near them in Shiloh, to which they might as well go, as bring it to them. And as for that Phraſe, Unto the LORD, it is no Argument that either the Ark was here, or ſo much as a Place of Prayer; for where all the People of God were aſſembled in any Place, there God was in a ſpecial Manner preſent; as when they all aſſembled to make David their King, it is ſaid he made a League with them in Hebron before the LORD, though there was no Ark nor Altar there, 2 Sam. v. 3.

I ſee no reaſon therefore to believe, that the Iſraelites were now gathered to Mizpeh as a Place of Prayer, (for Shiloh was appointed for that Purpoſe, which was very near it) but as a fitting Place for ſuch a great Aſſembly to meet, and conſult what was to be done in the preſent Caſe. That was their Buſineſs here; and when they had Occaſion to enquire of God, and to Faſt, (and Pray, no doubt) they went to Shiloh, to the Houſe of God. See ver. 26. and 28.

Ver. 2. And the Chief of all the People, even of all the Tribes of Iſrael, preſented themſelves in the Aſſembly of the People of God.] The Word we tranſlate Chief, is in the Hebrew the Corners, who were the Strength and Support of the People, as the Corner-ſtones are of a Building, viz. the Heads of their Tribes, Rulers of Thouſands, and Rulers of Hundreds, Fifties, and Tens; who kept the People in ſome kind of Order, (now that they wanted a ſupreme Governor, and the Courts of Juſtice were unſettled) and, it is likely, brought them along with them to this General Aſſembly; which, in all probability, met in the open Air, as they anciently did among the Romans, Athenians, and other People, as many learned Men have obſerved. And Lycurgus, as Plutarch tells us, gave this Reaſon for it, that noble Rooms, adorned with Pictures and Statues, and ſuch like Ornaments, did not contribute εἰς εὐβουλίαν, to right Counſels, but rather did hurt, by diſtracting their Minds, and turning them from their Buſineſs: But the true Reaſon was, becauſe vaſt Multitudes met together, which no Houſe would contain, and therefore they aſſembled in the Field; as Livy tells us, when the Cauſe of Appius Claudius was heard, the People were cited to come into the Campus Martius. Lib. 6. Cap. 20.

Four hundred thouſand Footmen that drew Sword.] That is, together with ſo many of the People (for there could not be ſo many Chieftains) that came ready armed, to do as they ſhould be directed. I have often obſerved, that the Armies of the Jews were all Infantry, there being no Horſes bred in their Country. There are thoſe, who, by the Corners of the People, underſtand, not their Chiefs, but all the Tribes of Iſrael, (making the next Words the Explication of theſe) who made up this great Number of four hundred thouſand; becauſe, ſaith Coccejus, all the People, gathered together, is like an Houſe that hath Corners. But I ſhall not trouble the Reader with various Interpretations.

Ver. 3. Now the Children of Benjamin heard, that the Children of Iſrael were gone up to Mizpeh.] They could not be ignorant of ſuch an univerſal Concourſe of the whole Nation, except themſelves, nor of the Cauſe of their Meeting; but when they were told of it, would take no notice of it, being ſtupidly inſenſible of the Crime that had been committed among them, or fooliſhly confident of their own Strength; or rather, imagining their Brethren would attempt nothing by War againſt them.

Then ſaid the Children of Iſrael, Tell us, how was this Wickedneſs.] The Hebrew Word Dabru (tell) being in the Plural Number, denotes, that they ſpake to more than one; and therefore, in all Probability, not only the Levite, but the good old Man (his Hoſt) and his Servant were there, to give an Account of the Fact.

Ver. 4. And the Levite, the Husband of the Woman that was ſlain, anſwered and ſaid, I came into Gibeah, that belongeth to Benjamin, I and my Concubine to lodge.] He relates from the Beginning how it was; and they confirmed it, by their Teſtimony to the Truth of it. He being called her Huſband, it proves ſhe was his Legal Wife.

Ver. 5. And the Men of Gibeah roſe up againſt me.] A great Number of them, who were not reſtrained by the reſt; and therefore he imputes the Crime to them all.

And beſet the Houſe round about me by Night, and thought to have ſlain me.] For he reſolved to loſe his Life, as Ralbag here obſerves, rather than ſubmit to their abominable Deſires.

And my Concubine have they forced, that ſhe is dead.] But tho' he preſerved himſelf, he could not deliver her from them; but they abuſed her to Death.

Ver. 6. And I took my Concubine, and cut her in Pieces, and ſent her throughout all the Country of the Inheritance of Iſrael; for they have committed Lewdneſs and Folly in Iſrael.] Such a very heinous Crime, as he thought the whole Nation was bound to cenſure.

Ver. 7. Behold ye are all Children of Iſrael, give here your Advice and Counſel.] They all deteſted, he preſumed, ſuch foul Wickedneſs, and therefore deſires them to conſider and reſolve how to puniſh it. This could not be debated by all the Multitude; therefore ſome of the principal Perſons, I ſuppoſe, were deputed to ſit in Council, and hear the Cauſe, and then report their Opinion to the ſeveral Tribes.

Ver. 8. And all the People aroſe as one Man, ſaying, We will not any of us go to his Tent, neither will we any of us turn into his Houſe.] The Report being made from the great Council, and their Opinion declared, the People all agreed to keep in a Body till they ſaw Juſtice done, according to their Reſolution.

Ver. 9. And now this ſhall be the Thing we will do to Gibeah, we will go up by Lot againſt it.] This ſeems to be a popular Motion, who are in love with Equality, and therefore deſire, by their Officers, that it may be determined by Lots who ſhall go to War, and who ſhall ſtay at home to make Proviſion for the Army; for they did not know how long they ſhould continue abroad, and it was not eaſy to provide for ſuch a Multitude.

Ver. 10. And we will take ten Men of an hundred throughout all the Tribes of Iſrael, and an hundred out of a thouſaud, and a thouſand out of ten thouſand, to fetch Victuals for the People.] So one Man took care that nine of his Brethren wanted nothing; and ten took care of ninety, &c. In the whole, there were forty thouſand of the four hundred thouſand who went out to forage for the Army.

That they may do, when they come to Gibeah of Benjamin, according to all the Folly that they have done in Iſrael.] That the reſt might be wholly intent upon puniſhing the Inhabitants of Gibeah according to their Deſerts.

Ver. 11. So all the Men of Iſrael were gathered together againſt the City, knit together as one Man.] Nothing could contribute more to their good Succeſs, than this Unity and Concord among the Officers and Soldiers, who all agreed to put this Reſolution in execution.

Ver. 12. And the Tribes of Iſrael ſent Men through all the Tribe of Benjamin.] But firſt it was thought prudent and juſt, by the Rulers of the People, to ſend an Embaſſy to their Brethren, to deſire them to hearken unto Reaſon; and therefore there was a ſelect Number choſen out of every Tribe, who went to every City of Benjamin (it is probable) to offer ſuch Terms of Peace, as might prevent the War upon Gibeah. Or, they ſent this Meſſage to every Family in Benjamin, which were originally ten, for Benjamin had ſo many Sons; from whom ſprang ſuch a Number of People, that it made R. Solomon ſay, From Rachel were deſcended twelve Tribes: For there were two Sons of Joſeph which made two Tribes, beſides theſe ten Families of Benjamin, who were ſo powerful and valiant, that it puſt them up with Pride, and was the Cauſe of their Ruin.

Saying, What Wickedneſs is this that is done among you?] In the firſt place, they were ordered to repreſent the Greatneſs of the Crime that had been committed among them.

Ver. 13. Now therefore deliver us the Men, the Children of Belial, which are in Gibeah.] This was agreeable to the Law of Nations, by which the Philiſtines had thus demanded Samſon of the Iſraelites, who had done them miſchief, xv. 10. See Grotius, who gives a great many other Examples of it out of Pauſanias, Strabo, and other Authors. Lib. 2. de Jure Belli & Pacis, Cap. 21. Sect. 4.

That we may put them to death.] If the Benjamites themſelves would not do juſtice upon them.

And put away Evil from Iſrael.] According to the Direction Moſes had given in his Law, Deut. xiii. 5. For the Sin is taken away, when it is duly puniſhed.

But the Children of Benjamin would not hearken to the Voice of their Brethren the Children of Iſrael.] They ſeem to have been as unanimous in the Defence of this Wickedneſs, as the reſt of the Tribes were in their Endeavours to have it puniſhed. For, quite contrary to all their Brethren, who, upon the Hearing of this Crime, met together, examined into it, ſent Meſſengers to deſire the Malefactors might be delivered to be puniſhed, before they would enter upon a War, they moſt perverſely refuſed to come to their Aſſembly, or deliver up the Malefactors, or ſo much as excuſe the Fact, much leſs deny it, but prepare themſelves to protect ſuch lewd Criminals with all their Power. One can ſcarce think that there were no good Men left among them, but they were ſo few, that they had no Authority; and the Generality were ſo depraved, that they took part with the evil Doers. Perhaps they took it ill, that the other Tribes ſhould meddle with the Concerns of theirs; but if they had had any Goodneſs in them, they would have ſaved them this Labour, by calling the Offenders to an Account themſelves: Which they not doing, made the whole Tribe guilty of the Crime of a few, and provoked God juſtly to give them up to purſue their own Deſtruction.

Ver. 14. But the Children of Benjamin gathered themſelves together out of the Cities unto Gibeah, to go out to Battle againſt the Children of Iſrael.] Inſtead of hearkening to their Brethren, or giving any Reaſon of their Refuſal to ſatisfy their Deſires, they prepare themſelves to fight with them.

Ver.

Ver. 15. And the Children of Benjamin were numbred at that Time out of the Cities, twenty and ſix thouſand Men that drew Sword.] So the Chaldee expreſly mentions twenty-ſix thouſand, but the Vulgar ſaith only twenty-five thouſand, and the LXX of the Roman Edition twenty-three thouſand; but other Copies have twenty-five thouſand, as Joſephus alſo hath: Who imagined, I ſuppoſe, that the Number of twenty-ſix thouſand would not agree with the Account which follows, of twenty-five thouſand and one hundred ſlain in the laſt Battle, and in the Purſuit of them, ver. 35, 45. and ſix hundred only eſcaped, ver. 47. which make the Number of twenty-five thouſand ſeven hundred. But they ſhould have conſidered, that the two former Battles could not be fought without Loſs on the Benjamites Side, when ſo many fell of the Iſraelites, ver. 21, 25. And the other thouſand Men may well be ſuppoſed to have then periſhed, or ſome of them to have been left to defend their Cities, where they were afterward ſlain, ver. 48.

Beſide the Inhabitants of Gibeah, which were numbered ſeven hundred choſen Men.] Who were left, it is likely, (or at leaſt Part of them) to defend that City, while the reſt before-mentioned went out to Battle.

Ver. 16. Among all this People, there were ſeven hundred choſen Men left-handed.] Who could uſe their Left-hand, as well as their Right, in any Exerciſe. See iii. 13.

Every one could ſling Stones at an Hair's Breadth, and not miſs.] Such excellent Markſmen there have been in other Countries; particularly in the Iſlands called Baleares, where they were bred from Children to hit a Mark with a Stone flung out of a Sling, or elſe to loſe their Breakfaſt, as Strabo relates. See Bochartus, in his Hierozoicon, P. 1. Lib. 3. Cap. 10. This extraordinary Skill in their Arms, (for it is likely they handled other Weapons with the like Dexterity) and their natural Courage, emboldened them, with ſuch a ſmall Number, to undertake a War againſt ſuch a vaſt Multitude of their Brethren. Which warlike Diſpoſition of theirs was propheſied of by Jacob, when he ſaith, Benjamin ſhall raven as a Wolf; which is an undaunted, fearleſs Creature, Gen. xlix. 27.

Ver. 17. And the Men of Iſrael beſide Benjamin, were numbered four hundred thouſand that drew Sword, all theſe were Men of War.] This is mentioned again, to ſhew that they all perſiſted ſtedfaſt in their Reſolution, (ver. 2, 8.) to ſee Juſtice done upon the Men of Belial, before they would return to their own Home.

Ver. 18. And the Children of Iſrael aroſe, and went up to the Houſe of God.] In Shiloh, which was not far from Mizpeh, and asked Counſel of God, by Urim and Thummim, as they did i. 1. The Targum hath it, they aſked Counſel by the WORD of the LORD. Some of their principal Perſons, that is, were ſent to deſire God to direct them, as he was wont to do in all great Affairs concerning the Safety of their Commonwealth. For ſo God himſelf ordained, that the High Prieſt ſhould appear before him, with the Breaſt-Plate of Judgment, to aſk Counſel of him for them in all their weighty Concerns. See Exod. xxviii. 30. Numb. xxvii. 21.

And ſaid, Which of us ſhall go up firſt againſt the Children of Benjamin? And the LORD ſaid, Judah ſhall go up firſt.] The ſame Queſtion and Anſwer which we read in the Beginning of this Book; there being a Pre-eminence, we may obſerve all along, given to the Tribe of Judah.

Ver. 19. And the Children of Iſrael roſe up in the Morning, and encamped againſt Gibeah.] Theſe Words ſeem to tell us, that Judah was only to lead the Van, (as we now ſpeak) and ſtand in the Front of the Battle, to make the firſt Aſſault; but that all the reſt went up with them.

Ver. 20. And the Men of Iſrael went out to Battle againſt Benjamin.] When the Benjamites heard that Iſrael were encamped againſt Gibeah, they came to the Relief of it; and the Iſraelites marched out of their Camp to engage them.

And the Men of Iſrael put themſelves in Array to fight againſt them at Gibeah.] The Battle was near that City.

Ver. 21. And the Children of Benjamin came forth out of Gibeah.] Thoſe Forces which were left in Gibeah for its Defence, iſſued out upon the Iſraelites in their Rear, as their Brethren fought them in the Front.

And deſtroyed down to the Ground of the Iſraelites that Day twenty and two thouſand.] Since God bid them go up, it may ſeem ſtrange that they ſhould receive ſuch a Defeat. But it is to be obſerved, that he did not promiſe them Succeſs; of which the Jews give theſe Reaſons: Some of them ſay, that they ſought him imperfectly, and therefore he gave them an imperfect Anſwer. So D. Kimchi, They did not aſk him if he would favour their Enterprize, as they did at the laſt, when they ſaid, Shall we go up, or ſhall we deſiſt? That is, if we ſhall not ſucceed, we will ceaſe the War. And then a clear and full Anſwer is returned, Go up, for to-morrow I will deliver them into thy Hand, ver. 28. But Abarbinel thinks they did not aſk Counſel in a due Place, nor by the proper Perſon; but by ſome other than Phineas the High Prieſt, of whom there is no mention till the third time they went to conſult the Oracle, ver. 28. But a better Reaſon is given in Pirke Elieſer, where they ſay, God was angry with the Iſraelites for their Neglect of him, in ſuffering Spiritual Adultery among them, while they were very earneſt to puniſh Carnal. So they made God's Anſwer to have been, when they enquired of him the Reaſon of the Miſcarriage, Ye are zealous againſt the Adultery of the Tribe of Benjamin, but not againſt the Idol of Micah, Cap. 38. And, indeed, they fell early into Idolatry after the Death of Joſhua, and the Elders that ſurvived him, (as we read in the Second Chapter of this Book) with which, though the Benjamites were defiled as well as others, yet he uſed them as Scourges to puniſh the reſt; intending, in due time, to take a terrible Vengeance on them, both for that, and all their other Sins.

Ver. 22. And the People the Men of Iſrael, encouraged themſelves.] Exhorted one another, not to be diſheartned by their Loſs, but to renew the Fight; for they knew they had a good Cauſe, which made them the bolder to hope for Victory.

And ſet their Battle again in Array, in the Place where they put themſelves in Array the firſt Day.] They were not ſo ſuperſtitious as to imagine, the Place wherein they fought was unlucky; and that with the Change of it, they ſhould change their Fortune (as they now ſpeak) but confidently reſolved to encounter them in the ſame Spot of Ground where they were overthrown before. Though there are thoſe that think the Ground was not well choſen, and that they were the more eaſily defeated, becauſe they fought ſo near Gibeah; whoſe Name imports, that it was ſituated on high, which gave them greater Advantages to annoy the Iſraelites.

Ver. 23. And the Children of Iſrael went up, and wept before the LORD, until Even.] They ſeem to have been ſenſible that this was one Cauſe of their Loſs, that they had not more ſolemnly ſought the LORD, as they now do; but with greater Grief for their Loſs, than for their Sin.

And asked Counſel of the LORD.] The Targum here uſes again the ſame Phraſe; aſked Counſel, by the WORD of the LORD, ſaying, Shall I again go up to Battle againſt the Children of Benjamin my Brother? They ſeem to imagine that God did not approve of their going to War among themſelves, who were all Brethren.

And the LORD ſaid, Go up againſt him.] Here is a Leave to go up, but without any Promiſe of Succeſs; which they ſhould have deſired.

Ver. 24. And the Children of Iſrael came near againſt the Children of Benjamin the ſecond Day.] Near to Gibeah.

Ver. 25. And Benjamin went forth againſt them out of Gibeah the ſecond Day, and deſtroyed down to the Ground of the Children of Iſrael Eighteen thouſand Men: All theſe drew Sword.] They had now deſtroyed Forty thouſand, which was a much greater Number than the Benjamites had in their whole Army.

Ver. 26. Then all the Children of Iſrael, and all the People went up.] Not only all the Warriors, but other People.

And came unto the Houſe of God, and wept, and ſat there before the LORD.] Upon the bare Ground, as they uſed to do in very great Sorrow.

And faſted that Day before the LORD until Even.] Afflicted their Souls for their Sins, which they had not done before; at leaſt, not with ſuch Seriouſneſs as now they did.

And offered Burnt-Offerings.] This had not been done before. That is, they had not made ſuch ſolemn Supplications to God, as now they did by theſe Offerings. See upon Levit. i. 3. And in particular, it is evident, That in ancient time, Burnt-Offerings were offered as Prayers for Forgiveneſs of Sins, that ſo they might obtain God's Bleſſing, Job i. 5. And Balaam (who no doubt underſtood the ancient Rites of Religion) offered theſe Offerings to obtain Power from God to help Balak, and deſtroy the Iſraelites, Numb. xxiii. 3, 15, &c.

And Peace-Offerings before the LORD.] Theſe were offered to acknowledge Benefits received (which ought to accompany our Prayers) and ſome of them alſo were a kind of Prayer to God, for the Benefits they hoped ſtill to receive. See upon Levit. vii. 16.

Ver. 27. And the Children of Iſrael enquired of the LORD.] The ſame Expreſſion is again in the Targum, By the WORD of the LORD.

For the Ark of the Covenant of God was there in thoſe Days.] They had enquired of the LORD before, but not as they ought to have done; and therefore no mention is made till now, of the Preſence of God continuing among them. For, confiding in the Juſtice of their Cauſe, and their vaſt Forces, they ſeem to have made but ſlight and perfunctory Addreſſes to God, before they undertook the War.

Ver. 28. And Phineas the Son of Eleazar, the Son of Aaron, ſtood before it in thoſe Days.] To ſtand before it, is as much as to miniſter unto God before the Ark, where he reſided. See upon Deut. x. 8. xviii. 7. Some think this is here ſet down to direct us to the Time when this War was made, which was not long after the Death of Joſhua (as I ſaid before, xix. 1.) otherwiſe Phineas muſt have been now (if this were after the Time of the Judges) above Three hundred Years old, which is far beyond the Age to which Men then lived; for it was above ſo many Years ſince he did that noble Fact mentioned in Numb. xxv. Saidus Batricides, therefore, more juſtly makes him to have been High-Prieſt only twenty-five Years; and the Chron. Alexandr. mentions three other Prieſts between him and Eli, as Mr. Selden obſerves, Lib. 1. de Succeſſion. in Pontif. Cap. 2.

Saying, Shall I yet again go out to Battle againſt the Children of Benjamin, my Brother, or ſhall I ceaſe?] This is a plainer Quæry than either of the former, (as Pet. Martyr here obſerves) for at firſt they only aſked what Tribe ſhould firſt go up, preſuming the War was fit to be made, ver. 18. and the ſecond Time only, Whether God would have them renew the Fight, ver. 23. But now they aſk, Whether they ſhould proceed in the War, or deſiſt from any further Attempt? that is, ſaith he, They leave it wholly to God's Pleaſure; deſiring to do no more, if he did not think good to accompany them with his Bleſſing.

And the LORD ſaid, Go up, for to-morrow I will deliver them into thy Hand.] Accordingly he condeſcended to give them a gracious Anſwer, aſſuring them of a ſpeedy Victory.

Ver. 29. And Iſrael ſet Liers-in-wait round about Gibeah.] This ſeems to intimate, that in the former Onſets, they had relied too much upon their Numbers: But now, tho' they were encouraged by God himſelf, they grew more humble, and leſs audacious in their Enterprize, laying Ambuſhes ſecretly in ſeveral Places, on ſeveral Sides of the City.

Ver. 30. And the Children of Iſrael went up againſt the Children of Benjamin on the third Day, and put themſelves in Array againſt Gibeah, as at other Times.] I ſuppoſe they appeared in the ſame Place mentioned ver. 22. as if they intended intended to renew the Fight there. And this was perhaps the third Day after the laſt Battle; one having been ſpent in going to Shiloh, and another in Faſting and Prayer there. Or, by the third Day, may be meant the third Day of Battle.

Ver. 31. And the Children of Benjamin went out againſt the People, and were drawn away from the City.] The Children of Iſrael pretending to avoid fighting, and to flee from them; as we read in the next Verſe they had agreed.

And they began to ſmite of the People, and to kill, as at other Times.] In the two former Battles.

In the Highways of which one goeth up to the Houſe of God.] That is, to Shiloh.

And the other to Gibeah in the Fields.] So called, to diſtinguiſh it from this Gibeah; which, as I ſaid, ſtood upon an Hill, as the other did in lower Ground.

About thirty Men of Iſrael.] Whom they killed in the Rear of their Army, as they retreated.

Ver. 32. And the Children of Benjamin ſaid, They are ſmitten down before us, as at the firſt.] From this Flight they preſumed they ſhould get a new Victory over ſuch Cowards.

But the Children of Iſrael ſaid, Let us flee, and draw them from the City into the Highways.] But this was only a Stratagem of the Iſraelites, to draw them away from Gibeah, into a more advantageous Place of ſetting upon them.

Ver. 33. And all the Men of Iſrael.] All that were poſted in a certain Place, whither they deſigned to draw the Benjamites.

Roſe up out of their Place, and put themſelves in Array at Baal-Tamar.] The Sight of ſuch a Body of Men appearing unexpectedly ready to encounter them, muſt needs be a great Surprize to the Benjamites, who thought of nothing but purſuing thoſe that run away from them.

And the Liers-in-wait of Iſrael came forth out of their Places.] At the ſame time, they that were placed in Ambuſh behind them, roſe up to aſſault the City.

Even out of the Meadows of Gibeah.] Whether it be tranſlated the Meadows, or the Plains, or the Flat Ground, that lay before the City, it is not material; for the Senſe is the ſame. See Lud. de Dieu.

Ver. 34. And there came againſt Gibeah Ten thouſand choſen Men out of all Iſrael.] Some look upon theſe as a Detachment (as they now ſpeak) from the main Body at Baal-Tamar, who marched to aſſault the City on one ſide, while the Liers-in-wait aſſaulted it on the other.

And the Battle was ſore, for they knew not that Evil was near them.] The Benjamites fought ſtoutly; but were not ſenſible of the Danger they were in to be deſtroyed.

Ver. 35. And the LORD ſmote Benjamin before Iſrael, and the Children of Iſrael deſtroyed of the Benjamites that Day, Twenty and five thouſand, and an Hundred Men; all theſe drew the Sword.] This is a general Account of the Fight, and of the Benjamites Loſs; the Particulars of both are related in the following Verſes.

Ver. 36. So the Children of Benjamin ſaw that they were ſmitten.] There was an apparent Overthrow given them by the Iſraelites: The Manner of which is deſcribed from the Beginning of the Action of this Day, to the Concluſion, in the following Part of this Chapter.

For the Men of Iſrael gave place to the Benjamites.] Seemed to flee before them; as was before related.

Becauſe they truſted to the Liers-in-wait, which they had ſet beſide Gibeah.] Reſolving not to fight till they ſaw their Ambuſh had executed what was commanded againſt the City.

Ver. 37. And the Liers-in-wait haſted and ruſhed upon Gibeah.] Which they did with all ſpeed, as ſoon as they ſaw the Benjamites withdrawn a good way from the City; and fell upon the Inhabitants on a ſudden.

And the Liers-in-wait drew themſelves along, and ſmote all the City with the Edge of the Sword.] Having entred the City, they ſpread themſelves into the ſeveral Parts of it, and killed all they found therein.

Ver. 38. Now there was an appointed Sign between the Men of Iſrael, and the Liers-in-wait, that they ſhould make a great Flame with Smoke to riſe up out of the City.] They had agreed before-hand, that when the City was taken by the Liers-in-wait, they ſhould ſet it on fire; whereby the Iſraelites might know, when it was time to face about, and fight with the Benjamites.

Ver. 39. And when the Men of Iſrael retired in the Battle, Benjamin began to ſmite, and kill of the Men of Iſrael, about Thirty Perſons; for they ſaid, Surely they are ſmitten down before us, as in the firſt Battle.] Till that Sign was given, they retreated as if they were beaten, and loſt ſome Men; whereby the Benjamites were deceived into ſecure Hopes of a new Victory.

Ver. 40. But when the Flame began to ariſe out of the City, with a Pillar of Smoke, the Benjamites looked behind them, and behold, the Flame of the City aſcended up to Heaven.] It is likely the Iſraelites ſhouted, when they turned about to fall upon the Benjamites; which made them look back to ſee what unexpected Supplies they had received.

Ver. 41. And when the Men of Iſrael turned again, the Men of Benjamin were amazed.] At this ſudden Change, from flight to fighting.

For they ſaw that Evil was come upon them.] They being beſet by the Iſraelites, both behind and before.

Ver. 42. Therefore they turned their Backs before the Men of Iſrael.] Whom they had purſued; but now ran away from them.

Unto the Way of the Wilderneſs.] For they were beſet on all other Sides.

But the Battle overtook them.] That is, The Men of War purſued them ſo cloſely, that they could not eſcape.

And them which came out of the Cities, they deſtroyed in the Midſt of them.] Or, they that came out of the Cities, viz. of Iſrael, helped to cut them off.

Ver. 43. Thus they incloſed the Benjamites round about, and chaſed them, and trod them down with eaſe.] For they made no Reſiſtance, but only ſought where they might flee for Safety.

Over-

Over-againſt Gibeah, toward the Sun-riſing.] There is another Tranſlation of the latter Part of this Verſe, in the Margin of our Bibles, with which I ſhall not trouble the Reader, becauſe it makes no Alteration in the Senſe, which is to ſhew where the greateſt Slaughter of them was made.

Ver. 44. And there fell of Benjamin Eighteen thouſand Men.] In the Wilderneſs, Eaſtward of Gibeah.

All theſe were Men of Valour.] Stout Soldiers, as appears by the two Defeats they had given to the numerous Army of the Iſraelites.

Ver. 45. And they turned, and fled toward the Wilderneſs, unto the Rock of Rimmon.] The Remainder of the Army of Benjamin endeavoured to ſave themſelves, by flying to a ſtrong inacceſſible Place, which was in that Wilderneſs.

And they gleaned of them in the Highways Five thouſand Men.] They could not flee thither in a Body, but ſcattered up and down in the Highway; where they picked up Five thouſand more, and ſlew them.

And purſued hard after them to Gidom, and ſlew Two thouſand of them.] And following them very cloſe, as far as to a Place called Gidom, they killed Two thouſand more.

Ver. 46. So all which fell that Day of Benjamin, were Twenty and five thouſand Men that drew Sword.] For they ſlew in the firſt Conflict Eighteen thouſand; and in ſeveral Parties, as they fled toward the Rock Rimmon, Seven thouſand more, which make up this Sum. See ver. 15.

All theſe were Men of Valour.] Who would not ſurrender themſelves, but choſe rather to be killed.

Ver. 47. But Six hundred Men turned and fled to the Wilderneſs, unto the Rock Rimmon.] Theſe ſeem to have turned into ſome nearer Way unto the ſtrong Hold, than the reſt: Or, being with the Foremoſt, and more nimble than others, (for it was accounted a rare Quality in a Soldier to be ſwift of Foot) got thither before the Iſraelites could overtake them.

And abode in the Rock Rimmon four Months.] From whence they durſt not adventure to ſtir, unleſs it were to fetch Proviſions; which they might eaſily do, the Rage of the Iſraelites being in a little time ſlaked by ſo great a Deſtruction, and turned into Compaſſion.

Ver. 48. And the Men of Iſrael turned again upon the Children of Benjamin.] Left their Purſuit of them in the Wilderneſs, and turned toward the Country of Benjamin.

And ſmote them with the Edge of the Sword, as well the Men of every City, as the Beaſt.] Thoſe before-mentioned were Men that drew the Sword; that is, Soldiers. But there were a great many Huſbandmen, and Shepherds, and others; whom, in their Fury, they alſo ſlew.

And all that came to hand.] Even Women and Children. For they had devoted to Deſtruction all that came not up to Mizpeh, when they were ſummoned (xxi. 5.) which none of the Benjamites did; for which reaſon they ſlew the Men, Women and Children of Jabeſh-Gilead, xxi. 10.

Alſo they ſet on fire all the Cities that they came to.] This was as terrible an Execution, as if they had been groſs Idolaters, whom they were commanded thus to puniſh. See Deut. xiii. 15, 16.

CHAP. XXI.

Ver. 1. NOW the Men of Iſrael had ſworn in Mizpeh.] When they firſt aſſembled there, before they began the War againſt Benjamin, xx. 1, &c.

Saying, There ſhall not any of us give his Daughter unto Benjamin to Wife.] They did not think of deſtroying the whole Tribe, when they took this Oath; but only obliged themſelves not to marry with them, no more than with the Seven wicked Nations of Canaan, becauſe they refuſed to puniſh that villanous Fact which had been committed among them, and reſolved to defend the Malefactors. This made the Iſraelites to abominate them, as People with whom it was not fit to contract an Affinity.

Ver. 2. And the People came to the Houſe of God.] Went up to Shiloh.

And abode there till Even before God, and lift up their Voices, and wept ſore.] Some Days after their Fury was over, and they coolly conſidered what they had done in the Heat of War, their Joy and Triumph for their Victory was turned into Mourning and Lamentation for the Loſs of ſo many of their Brethren: For inſtead of a Feaſt, they ſeem to have kept a Faſt; as they did before the laſt Battle, xx. 26.

Ver. 3. And ſaid, O LORD God of Iſrael, why is this come to paſs in Iſrael, that there ſhould be this Day one Tribe lacking in Iſrael?] This is an uſual Way of expreſſing great Grief, wherewith they bewail the Loſs of a whole Tribe, which they ſaw no means how to repair, becauſe there were no Women left in the Tribe of Benjamin, with whom they in the Rock of Rimmon might marry; and they had ſworn that none of the other Tribes ſhould give their Daughters to them; ſo that they muſt either marry with Strange People, which was againſt the Law, or remain unmarried, whereby the Tribe would be extinct. They ſeem alſo to lament their own exceſſive Wrath; for why ſhould the Women be deſtroyed with the Men, who had no ſhare in the Management of Publick Affairs; nor could be ſuppoſed guilty of refuſing to make Satisfaction for the Injury done to the Levite's Concubine?

Ver. 4. And it came to paſs on the Morrow, that the People roſe early, and built there an Altar.] There ſeems to have been no need of this, there being one ſettled Altar at the Houſe of God, according to the Law of Moſes; and then it was unlawful to build another. But ſome think it was gone to decay in thoſe bad Times; which is very improbable, for they lately offered Sacrifices there, xx. 26. And the daily Sacrifice, no doubt, was continued in Iſrael, either to the LORD, or the other Gods they joined with him. It is more likely therefore, that they erected a new Altar, upon this preſent Occaſion, when ſuch a multitude of Sacrifices were to be offered by all the People of Iſrael, that the ordinary Altar was not ſufficient to contain them. Thus Solomon did when he dedicated the Temple, 1 Kings viii. 64. And by the Direction of God, it was frequently done in other Places; and not only at the Houſe of God, as by Samuel, 1 Sam. vii, xi, xiv. and David, 2 Sam. xxiv. and Elijah, 1 Kings xviii.

And offered Burnt-Offerings and Peace-Offerings.] As they had done before the laſt Battle. For God having made them Victorious, they thank'd him for it, and prayed him to continue his Mercy to them; particularly begging his Direction, it is probable, in the preſent Strait wherein they were, about reſtoring the Tribe of Benjamin.

Ver. 5. And the Children of Iſrael ſaid, Who is there among all the Tribes of Iſrael, that came not up with the Congregation unto the LORD.] When Summons went out to call them together, under a great Penalty upon thoſe who abſented themſelves. See xx. 1.

For they had made a great Oath concerning him that came not up to the LORD to Mizpeth, ſaying, Surely he ſhall be put to death.] This great Oath was in the Nature of a CHEREM, as the Hebrews call it; whereby it was lawful for the whole Congregation to devote thoſe to Deſtruction, who did not obey Publick Orders in time of War, or great Diſtreſs. See upon Levit. xxvii. 29.

This Oath, I take it, was made by the great Aſſembly of their Rulers (called the whole Congregation) before they ſummoned the People to Mizpeh; as the other Oath (mentioned ver. 1.) was made after the People were come thither, upon the Benjamites Refuſal to do juſtice.

Ver. 6. And the Children of Iſrael repented them for Benjamin their Brother, and ſaid, There is one Tribe cut off from Iſrael this Day.] They ſtill continued to lament their too great Severity againſt Benjamin; and begin to conſult how to repair the Breach they had made.

Ver. 7. How ſhall we do for Wives for them that remain, ſeeing we have ſworn by the LORD,] The Targum continues its uſual Style, by the WORD of the LORD.

That we will not give them of our Daughters to Wives?] This was the Queſtion debated in their Common-Council (See ver. 16.) how to bring themſelves out of this Difficulty, into which they were brought by their Oath; which being raſhly made, it might be thought ought not to be kept. But they had ſuch a Reverence to a ſolemn Oath, that they reſolved to do all that was poſſible to find a Way to keep their Oath, and yet not to let the Benjamites be without Wives.

Ver. 8. And they ſaid, What one is there of the Tribes of Iſrael, that came not up to the LORD to Mizpeh?] Some in the Council propoſed to make an Enquiry into all their Tribes, whether they could find any that had not regarded the other Oath they had made, ver. 5. And it appeared (as the next Words tells us) that, Behold, there came none to the Camp from Jabeſh-Gilead to the Aſſembly.

Ver. 9. For the People were numbered, and behold, there were none of the Inhabitants of Jabeſh-Gilead there.] A rare Inſtance of Piety, that none of the whole Congregation of Iſrael (who were now numbred) departed home, till they had been at the Houſe of God, to give Thanks for the Victory he had given them.

Ver. 10. And the Congregation ſent thither Twelve thouſand Men of the Valianteſt, and commanded them, ſaying,] This was the firſt Reſult of their Conſultations.

Go, and ſmite the Inhabitants of Jabeſh-Gilead with the Edge of the Sword.] This was a City on the other Side of Jordan in the Tribe of Manaſſeh; who were ordered to be ſlain, as publick Enemies, becauſe they had not obeyed the Order of the whole Congregation: and, by refuſing to join with them againſt the Benjamites, had made themſelves Partakers of their Crimes.

With the Women and the Children.] In this, their Anger tranſported them again beyond Reaſon; for theſe had not offended. And if it be ſaid, they were all under the CHEREM, I do not ſee how they could juſtify their ſparing all Virgins, as we find they did by a Publick Decree; unleſs we ſuppoſe, that God (before whom they now were) diſpenſed in this caſe, becauſe of the Publick Neceſſity.

Ver. 11. And this is the Thing that ye ſhall do, Ye ſhall utterly deſtroy every Male, and every Woman that hath lien by Man.] The Hebrew Doctors here raiſe a difficult Queſtion, as they account it, How they could know thoſe who had lien with Man, from thoſe that had not. D. Kimchi fancies, that all the Women were ordered to paſs before the Ark, and they who were ſtopt there, and could go no further, were taken for Virgins. Others, that they paſſed before the Crown of the High-Prieſt, and they who had known a Man, turned Yellow or Pale. But theſe are idle Conceits, and I will mention no more of them, which are ſtill more extravagant; when the plain Account is, That they ſlew ſuch as were not commonly reputed to be Virgins, and ſaved thoſe that were. See Wagenſeil, in his Confutation of Lipman's Carmen Memoriale, p. 400.

Ver. 12. And they found among the Inhabitants of Jabeſh-Gilead, Four hundred young Virgins that had not known Man, by lying with any Male; and they brought them unto the Camp to Shiloh.] Which ſhews, that the making them paſs before the Ark is a fooliſh Conceit; for they were looked upon as Virgins before they came to Shiloh, where the Ark was.

Which is in the Land of Canaan.] Which the City of Jabeſh-Gilead was not; but in the Land taken from the two Kings of the Amorites, Sihon and Og.

Ver. 13. And the whole Congregation ſent ſome to ſpeak to the Children of Benjamin that were in the Rock Rimmon, and to call peaceably to them.] To give them the Publick Faith, that they might ſafely return, and be received kindly by the Iſraelites.

Ver. 14. And Benjamin came again at that time.] All the Six hundred Men, who had ſaved themſelves in that Fortreſs.

And

Over-againſt Gibeah, toward the Sun-riſing.] There is another Tranſlation of the latter Part of this Verſe, in the Margin of our Bibles, with which I ſhall not trouble the Reader, becauſe it makes no Alteration in the Senſe, which is to ſhew where the greateſt Slaughter of them was made.

Ver. 44. And there fell of Benjamin Eighteen thouſand Men.] In the Wilderneſs, Eaſtward of Gibeah.

All theſe were Men of Valour.] Stout Soldiers, as appears by the two Defeats they had given to the numerous Army of the Iſraelites.

Ver. 45. And they turned, and fled toward the Wilderneſs, unto the Rock of Rimmon.] The Remainder of the Army of Benjamin endeavoured to ſave themſelves, by flying to a ſtrong inacceſſible Place, which was in that Wilderneſs.

And they gleaned of them in the Highways Five thouſand Men.] They could not flee thither in a Body, but ſcattered up and down in the Highway; where they picked up Five thouſand more, and ſlew them.

And purſued hard after them to Gidom, and ſlew Two thouſand of them.] And following them very cloſe, as far as to a Place called Gidom, they killed Two thouſand more.

Ver. 46. So all which fell that Day of Benjamin, were Twenty and five thouſand Men that drew Sword.] For they ſlew in the firſt Conflict Eighteen thouſand; and in ſeveral Parties, as they fled toward the Rock Rimmon, Seven thouſand more, which make up this Sum. See ver. 15.

All theſe were Men of Valour.] Who would not ſurrender themſelves, but choſe rather to be killed.

Ver. 47. But Six hundred Men turned and fled to the Wilderneſs, unto the Rock Rimmon.] Theſe ſeem to have turned into ſome nearer Way unto the ſtrong Hold, than the reſt: Or, being with the Foremoſt, and more nimble than others, (for it was accounted a rare Quality in a Soldier to be ſwift of Foot) got thither before the Iſraelites could overtake them.

And abode in the Rock Rimmon four Months.] From whence they durſt not adventure to ſtir, unleſs it were to fetch Proviſions; which they might eaſily do, the Rage of the Iſraelites being in a little time ſlaked by ſo great a Deſtruction, and turned into Compaſſion.

Ver. 48. And the Men of Iſrael turned again upon the Children of Benjamin.] Left their Purſuit of them in the Wilderneſs, and turned toward the Country of Benjamin.

And ſmote them with the Edge of the Sword, as well the Men of every City, as the Beaſt.] Thoſe before-mentioned were Men that drew the Sword; that is, Soldiers. But there were a great many Huſbandmen, and Shepherds, and others; whom, in their Fury, they alſo ſlew.

Ver. 1. NOW the Men of Iſrael had ſworn in Mizpeh.] When they firſt aſſembled there, before they began the War againſt Benjamin, xx. 1, &c.

For God having made them Victorious, they thank'd him for it, and prayed him to continue his Mercy to them; particularly begging his Direction, it is probable, in the present Strait wherein they were, about restoring the Tribe of Benjamin.

Ver. 5. And the Children of Israel said, Who is there among all the Tribes of Israel, that came not up with the Congregation unto the LORD.] When Summons went out to call them together, under a great Penalty upon those who absented themselves. See xx. 1.

For they had made a great Oath concerning him that came not up to the LORD to Mizpeth, saying, Surely he shall be put to death.] This great Oath was in the Nature of a CHEREM, as the Hebrews call it; whereby it was lawful for the whole Congregation to devote those to Destruction, who did not obey Publick Orders in time of War, or great Distress. See upon Levit. xxvii. 29.

This Oath, I take it, was made by the great Assembly of their Rulers (called the whole Congregation) before they summoned the People to Mizpeh; as the other Oath (mentioned ver. 1.) was made after the People were come thither, upon the Benjamites Refusal to do justice.

Ver. 6. And the Children of Israel repented them for Benjamin their Brother, and said, There is one Tribe cut off from Israel this Day.] They still continued to lament their too great Severity against Benjamin; and begin to consult how to repair the Breach they had made.

Ver. 7. How shall we do for Wives for them that remain, seeing we have sworn by the LORD,] The Targum continues its usual Style, by the WORD of the LORD.

That we will not give them of our Daughters to Wives?] This was the Question debated in their Common-Council (See ver. 16.) how to bring themselves out of this Difficulty, into which they were brought by their Oath; which being rashly made, it might be thought ought not to be kept. But they had such a Reverence to a solemn Oath, that they resolved to do all that was possible to find a Way to keep their Oath, and yet not to let the Benjamites be without Wives.

Ver. 8. And they said, What one is there of the Tribes of Israel, that came not up to the LORD to Mizpeh?] Some in the Council proposed to make an Enquiry into all their Tribes, whether they could find any that had not regarded the other Oath they had made, ver. 5. And it appeared (as the next Words tells us) that, Behold, there came none to the Camp from Jabesh-Gilead to the Assembly.

Ver. 9. For the People were numbered, and behold, there were none of the Inhabitants of Jabesh-Gilead there.] A rare Instance of Piety, that none of the whole Congregation of Israel (who were now numbred) departed home, till they had been at the House of God, to give Thanks for the Victory he had given them.

Ver. 10. And the Congregation sent thither Twelve thousand Men of the Valiantest, and commanded them, saying,] This was the first Result of their Consultations.

Go, and smite the Inhabitants of Jabesh-Gilead with the Edge of the Sword.] This was a City on the other Side of Jordan in the Tribe of Manasseh; who were ordered to be slain, as publick Enemies, because they had not obeyed the Order of the whole Congregation: and, by refusing to join with them against the Benjamites, had made themselves Partakers of their Crimes.

With the Women and the Children.] In this, their Anger transported them again beyond Reason; for these had not offended. And if it be said, they were all under the CHEREM, I do not see how they could justify their sparing all Virgins, as we find they did by a Publick Decree; unless we suppose, that God (before whom they now were) dispensed in this case, because of the Publick Necessity.

Ver. 11. And this is the Thing that ye shall do, Ye shall utterly destroy every Male, and every Woman that hath lien by Man.] The Hebrew Doctors here raise a difficult Question, as they account it, How they could know those who had lien with Man, from those that had not. D. Kimchi fancies, that all the Women were ordered to pass before the Ark, and they who were stopt there, and could go no further, were taken for Virgins. Others, that they passed before the Crown of the High-Priest, and they who had known a Man, turned Yellow or Pale. But these are idle Conceits, and I will mention no more of them, which are still more extravagant; when the plain Account is, That they slew such as were not commonly reputed to be Virgins, and saved those that were. See Wagenseil, in his Confutation of Lipman's Carmen Memoriale, p. 400.

Ver. 12. And they found among the Inhabitants of Jabesh-Gilead, Four hundred young Virgins that had not known Man, by lying with any Male; and they brought them unto the Camp to Shiloh.] Which shews, that the making them pass before the Ark is a foolish Conceit; for they were looked upon as Virgins before they came to Shiloh, where the Ark was.

Which is in the Land of Canaan.] Which the City of Jabesh-Gilead was not; but in the Land taken from the two Kings of the Amorites, Sihon and Og.

Ver. 13. And the whole Congregation sent some to speak to the Children of Benjamin that were in the Rock Rimmon, and to call peaceably to them.] To give them the Publick Faith, that they might safely return, and be received kindly by the Israelites.

Ver. 14. And Benjamin came again at that time.] All the Six hundred Men, who had saved themselves in that Fortress.

And

And they gave them Wives, which they had ſaved alive of the Women of Jabeſh-Gilead.] Which they thought they might lawfully do, notwithſtanding their Oath, becauſe it obliged thoſe only who were preſent in the Aſſembly where it was made, not the abſent, as they of Jabeſh-Gilead were.

And yet ſo they ſufficed them not.] For ſtill two hundred wanted Wives.

Ver. 15. And the People repented themſelves for Benjamin.] This gave Occaſion to a new Lamentation, whereby they teſtified to the Benjamites, how ſorry they were for what had been done.

Becauſe that the LORD had made a Breach in the Tribes of Iſrael.] For the Puniſhment of their Crime was approved by God, tho' they executed it with too much Severity.

Ver. 16. Then the Elders of the Congregation ſaid, How ſhall we do for Wives for them that remain, ſeeing the Women are deſtroyed out of Benjamin?] This made them enter into a new Deliberation in the Council of the Elders, how to get Wives for the two hundred Men remaining, ſince there were none in the Tribe of Benjamin, and no more to be found among themſelves, without breaking their Oath.

Ver. 17. And they ſaid, There muſt be an Inheritance for them that are eſcaped of Benjamin, that a Tribe be not deſtroyed out of Iſrael.] Theſe Words, There muſt be, are not in the Hebrew, where the Words run thus, The Inheritance of them that are eſcaped, is for Benjamin, &c. That is, the Children of Benjamin muſt have that Part of the Country which was given them by the divine Lot, for their Inheritance, and we muſt not give it to any other Perſons; for then a Tribe would be loſt in Iſrael. This was all that ſome in the Council ſaid, who propoſed no Means whereby this Tribe ſhould be reſtored, but only aſſerted, It muſt be done; leaving others to conſider how.

Ver. 18. Howbeit, we may not give them Wives of our Daughters; for the Children of Iſrael have ſworn, ſaying, Curſed be he that giveth a Wife to Benjamin.] Theſe Perſons, who ſpake next in the Council, only increaſed the Difficulty, by putting them in mind, not to think to help their Brethren, by breaking their Oath.

Ver. 19. Then they ſaid.] Then ſome roſe up in the Council, after a long Debate, and gave the following Advice.

Behold, there is a Feaſt of the LORD in Shiloh, yearly.] All the three great Feſtivals were to be obſerved in the Place where God ſettled his Habitation, which was now at Shiloh, where all the People aſſembled to praiſe God, and to feaſt one with another. And tho' ſome think the Feaſt of the Paſſover to be here meant, yet it is more commonly, and with more Reaſon, concluded, to be the Feaſt of Tabernacles, which was a Time of exceeding great Joy, becauſe they had newly gathered their Vintage; and then they dwelt in Booths, behind which the Benjamites might conveniently lurk, and watch their Opportunity to carry away the Virgins. This Feaſt of Tabernacles alſo, was the only Seaſon wherein the Jewiſh Virgins were allowed to dance.

In a Place which is on the North Side of Bethel.] This is not a Deſcription of Shiloh, whoſe Situation was better known than any other, (being the Place where all Iſrael went to worſhip;) but of the Place where they met to dance, which was not in the City, but in the Fields, where they had more Liberty, and a freer Air.

On the Eaſt Side of the Highway that goeth up from Bethel to Schechem, and on the South of Lebonah.] This Place is thus particularly deſcribed, that the Benjamites might know exactly, where they might moſt advantageouſly lie concealed, to obtain their Purpoſe.

Ver. 20. Therefore they commanded the Children of Benjamin.] They had ſome Authority, who made this Order; and Joſephus calls them the γερουσία, the Senate of the Elders, whom Bertram makes bold to call the LXX, as if the great Sanhedrim (as the Jews call them) was now ſettled: But I have ſhewn elſewhere, that is not probable, tho' it be certain, from ver. 16. that there were ſome chief Perſons in every Tribe, whom the People obeyed when there was no Judge in Iſrael, who all ſeem to have been aſſembled on this Occaſion.

Saying, Go and lie in wait in the Vineyards.] Which were nigh to the Place before mentioned, and, it is likely, encompaſſed the Place where they danced.

Ver. 21. And ſee, and behold, if the Daughters of Shiloh come out to dance in Dances.] As they ſuppoſed they would, becauſe it was the Cuſtom to expreſs their Joy in this manner: And tho' the Women were not bound to come up to theſe ſolemn Feaſts, but only the Men, yet ſome devout Women did voluntarily frequent them, as we learn from the Story of Hannah. And they that lived at Shiloh, and the Places adjacent, no doubt, obſerved ſuch Times, as the Men did, being near to the Houſe of God; tho' it muſt be confeſſed, that Parents were not wont to bring young Virgins unto theſe Feaſts.

Then come ye out of the Vineyards.] When they ſaw them ſo engaged.

And catch ye every Man his Wife of the Daughters of Shiloh.] By the Daughters of Shiloh, perhaps, are not meant only ſuch as lived in that City, but, thereabouts, who all met on this Occaſion.

And go ye to the Land of Benjamin.] Carry them away to your own Country; which they might the more eaſily do, becauſe Men and Women did not, in thoſe Days, dance together, but Women by themſelves. Thus they thought they kept their Oath, becauſe they did not give them Wives, but only ſuffered them to take them, and to keep them when they had them. The great Grotius endeavours to acquit them of violating their Oath by this Rule, That the Signification of an Oath is not to be extended, ultra receptum loquendi morem, beyond the received Manner of ſpeaking; therefore they were not perjured, who, when they had ſworn not to give Wives to the Benjamites, permitted thoſe who were ſtolen, to live with thoſe that carried them away. Aliud enim eſt dare; aliud amiſſum non repetere: For it is one thing to give, another not to demand that which is taken away to be reſtored. See Lib. 2. de Jure Belli & Pacis, Cap. 13. Sect. 5. But this ſeems to me to be far from juſtifying them in this Matter; for they did not merely permit them to take theſe Virgins, but adviſe and direct, nay, rather order and command (as the Word is in the foregoing Verſe) to take and carry them away. And therefore what Joſephus ſaith to ſalve this Buſineſs, is not true, that it was done ὑπὲ προτρεπομένων ὑτε κωλυόντων, the Iſraelites neither exhorting to it, nor prohibiting it.

Ver. 22. And it ſhall be, when their Fathers, or their Brethren.] Any of their neareſt Kindred.

Come unto us to complain.] Deſiring them to do them Right; which ſhews they were Men of Authority.

That we will ſay unto them, Be favourable unto them for our ſake.] Do not proſecute them for what they have done, becauſe it was by our Advice, who did not know otherwiſe how to provide them with Wives.

Becauſe we reſerved not to each Man his Wife in the War.] If there be any Fault, it is ours, whoſe Rage carried the Slaughter too far, and left no Women to preſerve their Tribe. They adviſe them therefore to let their Anger ceaſe now (as Joſephus ſpeaks) becauſe they had let it break out ἀμέτρως, beyond all Bounds already.

For ye did not give unto them at this Time, that ye ſhould be guilty.] They put them in mind, that if there was any Guilt, it was not in them that had kept their Oath, and did not give Wives to the Benjamites, nor could help their taking them. How Joſephus came here to add to this Speech, that they ſaid they would tell them, they ſhould have taken care to ſet a better Guard upon their Daughters, I cannot imagine; for at ſuch Time of Mirth, they always thought themſelves ſecure from Danger.

Ver. 23. And the Children of Benjamin did ſo, and took them Wives according to their Number, of them that danced, whom they caught.] That is, they carried away two hundred, for ſo many they wanted. With this is commonly compared, by Interpreters, the Rape of the Sabin Virgins by Romulus: But there was a great deal of Difference; for thoſe were Strangers, over whom Romulus had no Power, and therefore was the Cauſe of a War; but theſe were Iſraelites, ſubject to the Authority of the Elders, and was done to make Peace and Quiet. Tho' the truth is, the Elders, in adviſing this, did wrong to thoſe Parents, whoſe Children were taken away without their Conſent; but this they thought better, than directly breaking their Oath, or letting a Tittle periſh; for the Preſervation of which, they were conſtrained to do ſome hard Things: But in one Thing they did very well, that they permitted them to take Wives only according to their Number; that is, every Man a Wife, and no more. So that tho' Polygamy was tolerated, yet they did not adviſe or countenance it; no, not for the more ſpeedy Reſtitution of a Tribe. It might happen, ſome of theſe young Virgins were Heireſſes, and ſo their Eſtates would be tranſlated into another Tribe: But the Jews ſay, that Law againſt marrying into another Tribe, and inheriting Land in another Tribe, did not belong to future Ages, but only to that wherein the Diviſion of the Land was made. See our great Selden, de Succeſſ. ad Leges Hebr. Cap. 18. wherein he alledges this very Example of it, Fol. 59.

And they went and returned unto their Inheritance.] In the Land of Benjamin.

And repaired their Cities, and dwelt in them.] And tilled the Land, as Joſephus adds; ſo that in time, this Tribe was reſtored, εἰς προτέραν εὐδαιμονίαν, to its former flouriſhing Condition.

Ver. 24. And the Children of Iſrael departed thence at that time, every Man to his Tribe, and to his Family; and they went out from thence, every Man to his Inheritance.] To look after his own private Affairs, the publick Concerns being now at an end.

Ver. 25. In thoſe Days there was no King in Iſrael.] There were Elders, ver. 16. who had ſome Authority; and there was an High Prieſt, xx. 28. yet for want of a King (as our great Primate Uſher obſerves, in his Book of the Power of the Prince) all Things went to wreck, and was in great confuſion: And by a King, as Corn. Bertram obſerves (de Rep. Jud. Cap. 9.) is meant a ſupreme Governor, ſuch as Moſes and Joſhua were, and after them the Judges: So this Word is uſed Deut. xxxiii. 5. The Meaning of theſe Words therefore is, That in thoſe Days there was none who had ſo much Power over all the Iſraelites, as to keep them in order, and not only admoniſh them of their Duty, but make all their Tribes obſerve it, by puniſhing all publick Wrongs, and all Whoredoms, and Idolatries: And, conſequently, there was no great Sanhedrim, as the Jews ſpeak of in future Times, which they would fain find in all Ages foregoing.

Every Man did that which was right in his own Eyes.] For want of ſuch a ſupreme Authority, every Tribe, and every City; nay, which is more, every private Man, (as Bertram there gloſſes) committed many horrid things, which were not publickly puniſhed. This was the Cauſe of Micah's Idolatry, as was noted before, xvii. 6. and of the Benjamites Filthineſs, xix. 1. and now of theſe enormous things done by all the Iſraelites, in killing all the Benjamites without diſtinction, when the Law required the Children ſhould not ſuffer for their Parents Offence; in binding themſelves by ſuch a raſh Oath, to give them none of their Daughters to be their Wives; in killing all the Women of Jabeſh Gilead, who were not Virgins; and now in permitting, nay, ordering this Rape, rather than break a raſh Oath; which ſhould teach Men to be thankful for that Authority which is over them, to preſerve them from ſuch like Enormities: For which end (as the ſame Primate there obſerves) the Cuſtom was, among the ancient Perſians, to let the People looſe to do what they liſt, for five Days after their King died, that by the Diſorders which were then committed, they might ſee the Neceſſity of having a King to govern them; and when they had one, to be more obedient to him.

A COMMENTARY UPON THE Book of RUTH.

THIS Book is a kind of Appendix to the Book of JUDGES, and a Manuduction to the Book of SAMUEL; and therefore fitly placed between them. It hath its Title from the Perſon whoſe Story is here principally related; which indeed is wonderful. For ſhe left her own Country, Kindred and Relations, which the Jews ſay (tho' I confeſs without any good Proof of it) were not only Honourable, but Royal, out of her great Affection to her Mother-in-Law, and her Religion; to live with her in the Land of Iſrael, in a poor and mean Condition. It is very probable, the ſame Perſon who wrote the Book of Judges, was the Author of this alſo, viz. Samuel; who by adding this to the End of that Book, brought down the Hiſtory unto his own Times; and gave us withal, the Genealogy of David, from Pharez the Son of Judah, that it might evidently appear, Chriſt ſprang out of that Tribe, according to Jacob's Prophecy, Gen. xlix. 10. but by a Gentile Woman (that all Nations might hope in his Mercy) full of Faith, and of earneſt Deſire to enter into that Family; which made her deſpiſe the Pride of her own Nation, and chuſe to live deſpicably among the People of God.

CHAP. I.

Ver. 1. NOW it came to paſs in the Days when the Judges ruled.] Theſe Words direct us to the Time when the Things contained in this Book fell out, tho' we cannot certainly tell what Judge then ruled. David Ganz will have it to have been in the Days of Ibzan, mentioned Judges xii. 8. becauſe he was the only Judge born at Bethlehem; from whence he concludes him to have been the ſame with Boaz. But that is ſo weak a Reaſon, that Guil. Vorſtius, in his Annotations upon him, thinks rather it was in the Days of Deborah and Barak. I ſhall not mention his Arguments, there being a great Man of our own (the moſt Learned Uſher) who places this Hiſtory in the Times preceding; either in the Days of Ehud, when the Moabites oppreſſed Iſrael, or rather of Shamgar who ſucceeded him. Which is the Opinion likewiſe of Du Pin, who takes theſe Things to have been done about Twenty eight Years after the Death of Joſhua. See Uſſerii Chronol. Sacra. Pars 1. Cap. 12.

That there was a Famine in the Land.] This inclines me to think, theſe Things came t paſs in the Days of Gideon, for that is the only Time that we read of a Famine in the Days of the Judges; when the Midianites, Amalekites, and the Children of the East, came and deſtroyed the Increaſe of the Earth, and left no Suſtenance for Iſrael, nor for their Cattle. Judges vi. 3, 4.

And a certain Man of Bethlehem-Judah.] There were two Bethlehems, as I have often noted: one in the Land of Judah, the other in the Tribe of Zebulun (Joſh. xix. 15.) They had their Name from the great Fruitfulneſs of the Place where they were ſituated; which argues this Famine to have been very ſore, that even in theſe Places there was a Scarcity of Proviſion.

Went to ſojourn in the Land of Moab, he, and his Wife, and his two Sons.] He carried his whole Family with him into the neighbouring Country of Moab, which was near to the Land of Judah, at the End of the Salt-Sea; and it ſeems had now Plenty in it, when the Land of Iſrael was famiſhed.

Ver. 2. And the Name of the Man was Elimelech.] Who, if we may believe many of the Jewiſh Doctors, was a noble and potent Perſon in his Country.

And the Name of his Wife Naomi.] They make her alſo of a noble Extraction, ſhe being (as the Talmudiſts ſay in Baba Bathen) the Niece of Naaſſon, Prince of the Tribe of Judah, and Daughter of his Brother Salmon.

And the Name of his two Sons, Mahlon and Chilion, Ephrathites of Bethlehem-Judah.] The Name of Ephrathites is given them, becauſe they were not only born, but, I ſuppoſe, bred up, and lived in the ſame Place with their Father; which from its great Fruitfulneſs was called Ephrata, as well as Bethlehem.

And they came into the Country of Moab, and continued there.] Settled their Habitation in that Country, which had not been lawful, unleſs it had been a publick Calamity, or ſome great private Neceſſity, as Maimonides obſerves. See Guil. Schickard, in his Miſchpat Hammelech, Cap. 3. Theorem 10.

Ver. 3. And Elimelech Naomi's Husband died, and ſhe was left and her two Sons.] She a Widow, and they Fatherleſs. This, Joſephus thinks, was after he had been there Ten Years; but the moſt, if not all others, think he died a little after he came into this Country.

Ver. 4. And they took them Wives of the Women of Moab.] Which was not lawful, unleſs they had firſt become Proſelytes to the Jewiſh Religion; as Aben Ezra concludes they were, from thoſe very Words from whence others prove the contrary, ver. 15. where it is ſaid, Orpah returned unto her People, and unto her Gods. This is a Teſtimony, ſaith he, that ſhe had been converted to Judaiſm. But the Chaldee Paraphraſt is quite of another Opinion, and ſaith, they tranſgreſſed the Commandment of the LORD, by taking to them ſtrange Wives. And ſo the Midraſch upon Ruth, as Buxtorf obſerves in his Book de Sponſalibus & Divortiis, Sect. 31.

The Name of the one was Orpah, and the Name of the other Ruth.] Who do not ſeem to have been of ſuch great Quality as the Talmudiſts fancy, but of common Rank; otherwiſe they would not have been beſtowed upon Strangers.

And they dwelt there about Ten Years.] After their Marriage.

Ver. 5. And Mahlon and Chilion died alſo both of them.] For their Days were cut ſhort, ſaith the Chaldee Paraphraſt, becauſe they married ſtrange Women: and for the ſame Reaſon (if it be true) they may be thought to have died without Iſſue; for there is not the leaſt Intimation that either of them had any.

And the Woman was left of her two Sons, and her Husband.] In a very melancholy Condition, being in a Country of Strangers.

Ver. 6. Then ſhe aroſe with her Daughters-in-Law, that ſhe might return from the Country of Moab.] She packed up her Goods, and made herſelf ready to leave the Country of Moab, and her Daughters accompanied her, it being the Cuſtom to conduct thoſe whom they loved, ſome part of their Way when they went a long Journey.

For ſhe had heard in the Country of Moab, how that the LORD had viſited his People, in giving them Bread.] They were ſuch near Neighbours, that they ſoon had Intelligence in Moab what was done in the Land of Iſrael.

Ver. 7. Wherefore ſhe went forth out of the Place where ſhe was.] The Neceſſity which forced her thither no longer remaining.

And her two Daughters-in-Law with her.] Who loved her as their own Mother.

And they went on the Way to return unto the Land of Judah.] This relates unto Naomi, for her Daughters had never been there.

Ver. 8. And Naomi ſaid unto her two Daughters-in-Law.] When they were come to the Borders of the Country of Moab, ſhe ſaid the following Words.

Go, return, each to her Mother's Houſe.] She deſires them to accompany her no further, but go back to their own Home. And it ſeems it was uſual in Moab, as well as in Iſrael, for Widows to dwell with their Parents. And the Women here alſo had Apartments diſtinct from the Men, where the Daughters lived with their Mothers, as the Sons with their Father.

The LORD deal kindly with you, as you have dealt with the Dead, and with me.] She diſmiſſed them with her Bleſſing, praying God would be as good to them, as they had been good Wives to their Husbands, and good Daughters to her.

Ver. 9. And the LORD grant that ye may find Reſt, each of you, in the Houſe of her Huſband.] And that they might be happily ſettled in Houſes of their own, with good Husbands; whom ſhe wiſhes they might long enjoy in Peace and Quietneſs.

Then ſhe kiſſed them.] As was uſual, when Friends took their Leave one of another, or when they met together.

And they lift up their Voice and wept.] Were all extremely grieved to think of parting.

Ver. 10 And they ſaid unto her, Surely we will return with thee unto thy People.] They reſolved to accompany her to Bethlehem.

Ver. 11. And Naomi ſaid, Turn again, my Daughters, Why will you go with me? Are there yet yet any more Sons in my Womb, that they may be your Husbands?] This ſhews, that the Cuſtom of Mens marrying their Brother's Widow, when he left no Iſſue, (which was before the Law of Moſes, Gen. xxxviii.) was ſo ancient, that it was derived into other Countries, who were not deſcended from Abraham.

Ver. 12. Turn again, my Daughters, and go your Way, for I am too old to have an Husband; if I ſhould ſay I have Hope, if I ſhould have a Husband alſo to-night, and ſhould alſo bear Sons.

Ver. 13. Would you tarry for them till they were grown? Would you ſtay from having Huſbands?] She perſiſts in the ſame Argument, and preſſes it home, that ſhe was too old to marry, and they too young not to marry again: But ſhould ſhe marry immediately, and be ſure ſhe ſhould have Children, nay, Sons, it would be unreaſonable for them to wait till they were fit to be their Husbands.

Nay, my Daughters; for it grieveth me very much for your Sakes, that the Hand of the LORD is gone out againſt me.] She would have them by no means think of any ſuch thing; and likewiſe repreſents to them what a mean Condition God had reduced her unto, which was the more heavy, becauſe ſhe was able to do nothing for them.

Ver. 14. And they lift up their Voices and wept again.] It gave them great Trouble, whether they thought of going with her, or of parting from her.

And Orpah kiſſed her Mother-in-Law.] Took her leave of her. The Jews obſerve three ſorts of Kiſſes, which were uſual and commendable among them, all others being wanton: One in Token of Reverence to any Perſon's Dignity, 1 Sam. x. 1. A Second at the Meeting of Friends, Exod. iv. 27. A Third at their Parting, of which they give this as an Example. Unto which R. Tanchuma adds a Fourth, ſaluting of near Relations, Gen. xxix. 11. which is, in a manner, the ſame with the Second. Druſius thinks there was another, which he calls the Kiſs of Prayer, which was in uſe in the Primitive Church, and taken, he thinks, from the Jews: But Buxtorf ſaith, he can find no ſuch thing in all their Books. See Lex Talmud. in the Word Neſikah, Fol. 1408.

But Ruth clave to her.] Would not part from her, but ſtedfaſtly reſolved to go with her to her own Country.

Ver. 15. And ſhe ſaid, Behold, thy Siſter-in-Law is gone back to her People, and to her Gods.] The principal of which was Chemoſh, as we read Num. xxi. 29. 1 Kings xi. 7. By this it appears, Orpah was not made a Proſelyte to the Jewiſh Religion, but ſtill continued to worſhip the Gods of her Country. Yet this did not make ſuch a Difference in the Family (as divers Religions commonly do now) but that ſhe loved her Husband entirely, and had a great Affection to his Mother, even after his Death.

Return thou after thy Siſter-in-Law.] This may ſeem ſtrange, that ſhe ſhould, in effect, preſs her to go and worſhip Idols; but her Intention was to try her, and to perſuade her to do nothing raſhly, eſpecially not to change her Religion, without due Conſideration, and weighing well her Reaſons for it: For if ſhe had been led merely by her Affection to her, to embrace alſo her Religion, ſhe might have revolted from it when ſhe died, or when ſhe ſaw her Condition very deſolate.

Ver. 16. And Ruth ſaid, Intreat me not to return from following thee; for whither thou goeſt I will go, and where thou lodgeſt I will lodge.] Be content, that is, with any Condition, in her Company.

Thy People ſhall be my People, and thy God my God.] This is a Reſolution to embrace the Jewiſh Religion entirely, ſo as to be incorporated with the Iſraelites, as if ſhe had been a Native among them.

Ver. 17. Where thou dieſt, I will die, and there will I be buried; the LORD do ſo to me, and more alſo, if aught but Death part thee and me.] She reſolves that nothing but Death ſhall make a Separation between them, and not that neither, wholly, for ſhe would lie by her in the ſame Sepulchre: And this ſhe confirms with an Oath, or ſolemn Imprecation upon herſelf, That worſe might befal her, than any thing Naomi could ſuffer, if ſhe did not faithfully adhere to her: Which Form of Speech we find afterwards in many places, 1 Sam. iii. 17. xiv. 44. xx. 13. 2 Sam. iii. 9, 35, &c.

Ver. 18. And when ſhe ſaw that ſhe was ſtedfaſtly minded to go with her, ſhe left ſpeaking to her.] She ſaid not a Word more to her of her leaving her, when ſhe ſaw ſhe had a ſettled and well-grounded Reſolution, to become a Proſelyte to the true Religion. So the Chaldee Paraphraſt explains it, repreſenting Naomi as declaring to her at large, That there was a great Number of Precepts (no leſs than DCXIII.) to be obſerved by thoſe who would be of her Religion. In particular, the Reſt of the Sabbath, to which they were obliged, and to worſhip one God alone, &c. Unto all which ſhe anſwered, Whatſoever thy People obſerve, I will do the ſame, as if I had been one of them from the Beginning.

Ver. 19. So they two went until they came to Bethlehem.] Which ſhews they were but in a mean Condition, having no Servant to wait on them, nor an Aſs to carry them.

And it came to paſs, when they were come to Bethlehem, that all the City was moved about them, and they ſaid, Is this Naomi?] It being reported by them who knew Naomi, that ſhe was returned, all the People ran out of their Houſes to ſee her, and beholding a great Change in her Garb and Countenance, they could ſcarce believe it was ſhe. But the Arabick and Syriack Verſions take it quite otherwiſe, That all the City rejoiced, and ſaid, This is Naomi. And the LXX, whom they follow, to the ſame purpoſe, ἤχησε ἡ πόλις, The City rang with the News, and they asked if this were Naomi; for ſeveral had never ſeen her before, or did not remember her, but had only heard much of her.

Ver. 20. And ſhe ſaid unto them, Call me not Naomi, call me Mara.] She told them her old Name was not ſuitable to her preſent Condition, which required ſhe ſhould rather be called by

by a contrary; from whence ſome gather, that Naomi was not the Name given her at firſt by her Parents, but a popular Name commonly given her by her Neighbours, becauſe of her comely Preſence, and courteous Behaviour.

For the Almighty hath dealt bitterly with me.] This is the Reaſon of the new Name of Mara, whereby ſhe would be called; which ſignifies bitter. Joſephus ſaith that Naomi, in their Language, ſignifies εὐτυχίαν, Proſperity, and Mara ὀδύνην, Grief and Pain.

Ver. 21. I went out full, and the LORD hath brought me home again empty.] The Targum makes this relate unto her Husband and Children, with whom ſhe went out to the Country of Moab, which now were taken away from her; but it is reaſonable to extend it to the Eſtate they carried along with them, for their Support in a ſtrange Country, where they lived to ſpend it all.

Why then call ye me Naomi, ſeeing the LORD hath teſtified againſt me, and the Almighty hath afflicted me?] God is ſaid to teſtify againſt any Perſons, when he paſſes Sentence upon them, and judges them, by ſending Afflictions upon them; at which Naomi doth not murmur, but only humbly acknowledges God had inflicted grievous Puniſhments upon her, which ſhe thought teſtified his Diſpleaſure.

Ver. 22. So Naomi returned, and Ruth her Daughter-in-Law with her, which returned out of the Country of Moab.] As much as to ſay, This is a brief Account of Naomi's Return to her own Country, together with her Daughter-in-Law, who would accompany her.

And they came to Bethlehem in the beginning of Barley-harveſt.] The Time of their Return is alſo noted, which was about the Paſſover; for after the Offering of the Sheaf, mentioned Levit. xxiii. 10, 11. on the ſecond Day of unleavened Bread, they began to cut Barley: Whence he Chaldee Paraphraſt thus explains theſe Words, They came to Bethlehem in the Entrance of the Paſſover; and on that Day the Children of Iſrael began to mow the Sheaf that was to be waved, which was of Barley.

CHAP. II.

Ver. 1. AND Naomi had a Kinſman of her Husband's, a mighty Man of Wealth.] So Gibhor Chail is well tranſlated; for Riches make Men mighty and powerful. Tho' the Chaldee would have it ſignify a Man mighty in the Law, by which they do not mean a Man of great Wiſdom and Goodneſs, but as that Paraphraſt explains it upon 1 Chron. iv. 22, 23. after the Manner of the Jews, (whoſe Heads are full of their Academies and Sanhedrims) he was the Rab or chief Ruler of the Academy of Wiſe Men at Bethlehem.

Of the Family of Elimelech, and his Name was Boaz.] Whoſe Anceſtors are mentioned in the Concluſion of this Book, and his Deſcendants alſo, who lived at Bethlehem, as he did.

Ver. 2. And Ruth the Moabiteſs ſaid unto Naomi, Let me go into the Field, and glean Ears of Corn.] This is a great Argument of her Modeſty, and dutiful Affection to her Mother-in-Law, that ſhe would not go any whither, no, not to earn ſomething for their Support, without her leave.

After him, in whoſe Sight I ſhall find Grace.] Either ſhe did not know that poor Strangers had a Right to glean, as well as the Poor of Iſrael, Lev. xix. 9, 10. or out of her great Piety ſhe would not challenge it as a Right, but as a Favour, which ſhe would thankfully acknowledge.

And ſhe ſaid, Go, my Daughter.] This is a Sign of Naomi's low Condition, otherwiſe ſhe would not have ſuffered her to go and ſeek for a Supply of their Needs among the pooreſt ſort of People.

Ver. 3. And ſhe went, and came.] Into a Field, where ſhe ſaw ſome Reapers.

And gleaned in the Field after the Reapers.] Gathered up the ſcattered Ears of Corn which fell from them, and were left behind them.

And her Hap was to light on a Part of a Field belonging to Boaz, who was of the Kindred of Elimelech.] By the Direction of God's good Providence (not by any Man's Guidance) ſhe came into a Piece of Ground which belonged to the great Man before-mentioned.

Ver. 4. And behold, Boaz came from Bethlehem.] It is remarkable, that he followed her into the ſame Field.

And ſaid unto the Reapers, The LORD be with you; and they anſwered him, The LORD bleſs thee.] Such was the Piety of ancient Times, that they were wont to pray God to proſper the honeſt Labours of thoſe that they ſaw employed, who made a Return of the like Prayers for them, which the Gentiles themſelves practiſed, eſpecially in Harveſt-Time, which they would not begin, by putting the Sickle into the Corn, till Ceres had been invoked, as Virgil informs us in his Georgicks, Lib. 1. ver. 347, 348.

This is the firſt Time that we meet with this religious Salutation, The LORD be with you; which we afterwards find was familiar, and was continued even to our Saviour's Days, when the Angel ſaluted the Bleſſed Virgin after this manner, Luke i. 28.

Ver. 5. Then ſaid Boaz unto his Servant that was ſet over the Reapers.] To ſee them do their Work, and that they had Proviſion fit for them; and, it is likely, to pay them their Wages. Joſephus calls him ἀγροκόμον, and the Chaldee calls him Rab, the Maſter, Ruler, or Governor of the Reapers.

Whoſe Damſel is this?] Either ſhe did not appear, when all the City came to ſee Naomi; or Boaz did not take ſo much notice of her, as to know her again.

Ver. 6. And the Servant that was ſet over the Reapers, anſwered and ſaid, It is the Moabiteſs Damſel, that came back with Naomi out of the Country of Moab.] He did not know her Name perhaps, but he deſcribes her as a Stranger, that, out of love to her Mother-in-Law, and her Religion, had left her own Country, and come to dwell among the Iſraelites. So the Chaldee Paraphraſt makes him anſwer, She is become a Proſelyte.

Ver.

Ver. 7. And she said, I pray you, let me glean and gather after the Reapers among the Sheaves.] What she might have demanded by the Law as her Right, she asks as a Courtesy; which, no doubt, moved the Man to be the more obliging to such a modest and well-bred Woman.

So she came.] That is, he admitted her; for perhaps they were not bound to let the Poor come immediately into the Fields, as soon as the Reapers had cut down the Corn, and bound it up in Sheaves, but when it was carried off. They might chuse also, among the Poor, whom they thought most worthy, or most necessitous.

And hath continued even from the Morning until now.] That is, all the Day; for I suppose it was in the Afternoon, when the Heat of the Day was over, that Boaz came to visit his Reapers. So the Servant describes her as a very diligent Woman, who had not intermitted her Labour, but only for a little time, to eat, or to rest herself.

That she tarried a little in the House.] The Meaning is, she went and staid a while in the Tent which was pitched in the Field, for such as were weary to refresh themselves; or for other necessary Occasions. So Aben Ezra expounds the Word House; in which some think Boaz found her resting herself, and wondering to see a Stranger there, enquired who she was.

Ver. 8. Then said Boaz unto Ruth, Hearest thou not, my Daughter?] A Form of Speech calling for Attention to what is said.

Go not to glean in another Field, neither go from hence.] He would not have her go to glean in any other Field, nor to stir from thence to supply any of her Wants, as appears by what follows.

But abide here fast by my Maidens.] Who reaped as well as Men, (as the next Verse shews) and their Company was the fittest for her on all Accounts. Some think this was a Labour too hard for Women, and therefore they will have it, that his Maidens only came to bring Provisions for the Men, as Virgil describes Thestylis to have done, in his second Eclogue, ver. 10.

Ver. 9. Let thine Eyes be on the Field that they do reap, and go thou after them.] Observe their Motions, and follow them.

Have I not charged the young Men that they touch thee not?] Give thee no Molestation, as the Vulgar understands it. And so the Word touch sometimes signifies, to do Harm to others, Psal. cv. 15. But the Chaldee Paraphrast extends it further, that they should not come near her, but keep at a Distance from her, and consequently offer no Incivility or Rudeness to her, which was too common among Rusticks, especially when they were full of Mirth, in Harvest and Vintage-time.

And when thou art athirst, go unto the Vessels, and drink of that which the young Men have drawn.] There was excellent Water at Bethlehem, (2 Sam. xxiii. 15.) which either the Reapers, or some that attended them, had brought in Vessels into the Field, to quench their Thirst when they were dry.

Ver. 10. Then she fell on her Face, and bowed herself to the Ground.] A Posture of the greatest Reverence and Submission, either in Civil or Religious Worship, and was used when they would express their most grateful Sense of any Favour done them. See Gen. xxiii. 7, 12. xxvii. 29, &c.

And said, Why have I found Grace in thine Eyes, that thou shouldest take Knowledge of me, seeing I am a Stranger?] To take Knowledge of any Person, is to shew Kindness in the Scripture Language, and is the Effect of finding Grace, that is, Favour with any one; which was the greater in Boaz, because he had never seen her before, or was not acquainted with her.

Ver. 11. And Boaz answered and said unto her, It hath been fully shewn me all that thou hast done unto thy Mother-in-Law, since the Death of her Husband.] Naomi had related to some Friends, who had informed Boaz at large of her great Affection to her Mother.

And how thou hast left thy Father and thy Mother, and the Land of thy Nativity, and art come unto a People whom thou knewest not heretofore.] To be a Proselyte to their Religion, (as the Chaldee Paraphrast explains it) upon which account the greatest Kindness was due to her.

Ver. 12. The LORD recompence thy Work, and a full Reward be given thee.] He looked upon it as a very high Act of Faith and Vertue in her, to leave all that was dear to her in this World, to become a Member of their Church; which he prays God amply to requite. The Chaldee Paraphrast makes her say here, That she was come from a strange People, who were made unworthy to be admitted into the Congregation of the LORD: But he answers to her, Our Wise Men say, That the Men of Moab only, not the Women, are excluded from our Society, &c. See what I have noted upon Deut. xxiii. 5.

Of the LORD God of Israel, under whose Wings thou art come to trust.] To seek for Protection, and commit thyself unto his Care and good Providence; which was a pious Confidence so pleasing to God, that the Chaldee Paraphrast makes Boaz say, In this thy Righteousness thou shalt be delivered from the Judgment of Hell, and thy Portion shall be with Sarah, Rebekah, Leah and Rachel; that is, she should have an eternal Recompence. This Phrase of trusting under the Wings of the divine Majesty, is often used by the Psalmist, Psal. xvii. 8. xxxvi. 7. lvii. 1. lxi. 4. lxii. 7. xci. 4. All which Places speak of the Shadow, or the Covert of his Wings, which seem to be a Metaphor taken from the Cherubims, who spread their Wings from one Side of the holy Place unto the other, upon which the Divine Majesty sat; which Protection and Safeguard was represented in the Cloud which covered the Israelites in the Wilderness, Numb. xiv. 14.

Ver. 13. Then she said, Let me find Favour in thy sight, my Lord, for that thou hast comforted me, and for that thou hast spoken friendly unto thy Handmaid.] She humbly begs the Continuance tinuance of his good Opinion of her, (tho' ſhe acknowledges herſelf, in the next Words, to be very unworthy of it) for it had given the greateſt Conſolation to her, in her deſolate Condition.

Though I be not like to one of thy Handmaidens.] So obſcure, ſhe means, being a Stranger, and of a Country under an ill Character among them, that ſhe was not equal to one of his meaneſt Servant-Maids.

Ver. 14. And Boaz ſaid unto her, At Mealtime come thou hither.] He enlarges his Favour to her, and orders her at the Time of Repaſt to come and eat among his Servants. I cannot deviſe how the ancient Jews came to apply theſe Words to the Kingdom of the Meſſiah, and to his ſuffering Condition here in this World; but ſo it is, that the Midraſch, upon this Place, makes theſe Words, Come thou hither, to ſignify as much, as come to thy Kingdom; and the Morſel dipt in Vinegar, to denote, the Reproaches and Torments of the Meſſiah: Which is an Argument that they expected ſuch a King, as ſhould be expoſed to ſuch Sufferings as our bleſſed Saviour endured, who ſaith, in the Pſalmiſt, They gave me Vinegar to drink, lxix. 21. which perhaps was the Original of this Application of Boaz his Words to the Meſſiah, whoſe Coming they longed for, and found it foretold in more Places than we are aware of.

And eat of the Bread, and dip thy Morſel in the Vinegar.] Under the Name of Bread, is comprehended all the Proviſion which was made for the Reapers, with which they had Vinegar for Sauce, it being very cooling and refreſhing in hot Seaſons, as the Time of Harveſt was. So Pliny obſerves, Lib. xxiii. Cap. 1. Aceto ſumma vis eſt in refrigerando; which cooling Quality is taken notice of by Raſi, and others, upon this Place.

And ſhe ſat beſide the Reapers.] With the Women, that is, who reaped.

And he reached her parched Corn.] This ſeems to ſignify, that Boaz himſelf eat with them, or ſtood by them, to ſee they were well provided; and took a particular Care of her, unto whom he reached ſome parched Corn, which was an uſual, and no mean Food in thoſe Countries, as appears from 2 Sam. xvii. 28. But it may be underſtood of the Servant ſet over the Reapers, (ver. 5.) or ſome of them, who obſerving her Modeſty, that ſhe did not carve for herſelf, reached to her ſome of the Proviſion made for them.

And ſhe did eat, and was ſufficed, and left.] There was ſuch Plenty, (Boaz being a great and a good Man) that more was ſet before them than they could eat; at leaſt, ſhe left ſome of that which was carved to her. This Meal, I ſuppoſe, was after the Heat of the Day was over, in the Afternoon; for then they dined, but their beſt Meal was a Supper.

Ver. 15. And when ſhe was riſen up to glean, Boaz commanded his young Men, Let her glean even among the Sheaves, and reproach her not.] For that looked ſomething like filching to come among the Sheaves. But Joſephus takes the Senſe to be, that ſhe ſhould be permitted, if ſhe pleaſed, to cut down Corn herſelf for her own Uſe; which is not likely.

Ver. 16. And let fall alſo ſome of the Handfuls on purpoſe for her, and leave them, that ſhe may glean them, and rebuke her not.] As if ſhe was too bold in gathering what belonged not to her.

Ver. 17. So ſhe gleaned in the Field until Even, and beat out that ſhe had gleaned.] It ſeems they did not in thoſe Days carry home their Gleanings as they gathered them in the Ears, but beat the Corn out with a Rod; and freeing it from the Chaff, carried it away pure, with leſs trouble than otherwiſe it would have given them.

And it was about an Ephah of Barley.] An Ephah is commonly taken to be about a Buſhel of our Meaſure. See my Notes on Exod. xvi. 36. where it appears, that an Ephah contained ten Omers, and that an Omer was ſufficient for one Perſon's Food for a whole Day; therefore Ruth now had gathered as much as would keep her and her Mother five Days.

Ver. 18. And ſhe took it up, and went into the City, and her Mother-in-Law ſaw what ſhe had gleaned.] That is, wondred at the Quantity.

And ſhe brought forth, and gave to her that ſhe had reſerved, after ſhe was ſufficed.] Joſephus thinks this is ſpoken of Naomi, that ſet before her Daughter-in-Law, ſome Remainders of the Victuals that her Neighbours had brought her in Ruth's Abſence; but it rather ſignifies Ruth's Care of her Mother-in-Law, whom ſhe had in mind, when ſhe was feaſted with the Reapers with more than ſhe could eat, (ver. 14.) and therefore brought what ſhe left home for her Refreſhment.

Ver. 19. And her Mother-in-Law ſaid unto her, Where haſt thou gleaned to-day? And where wroughteſt thou? Bleſſed be he that did take knowledge of thee.] For ſhe concluded, that without the ſpecial Favour of ſome Perſon to her, it had not been poſſible for her to have made ſuch a Day's Work.

And ſhe ſhewed her Mother-in-Law with whom ſhe had wrought, and ſaid, The Man's Name with whom I wrought to-day is Boaz.] Whoſe near Relation to them Ruth did not yet know.

Ver. 20. And Naomi ſaid unto her Daughter-in-Law, Bleſſed be he of the LORD.] Or rather, Let him be moſt bleſſed; for Lamed prefixed to Jehovah increaſes the Senſe, as in Gen. x. 9. See there.

Who hath not left off his Kindneſs to the Living, and to the Dead.] Continued to be kind to the Relicts of Elimelech and his Son, as he had been to them when they were alive.

And Naomi ſaid, The Man is near of kin to us, one of our next Kinſmen.] In the Hebrew, one of our Goels, to whom of right it belonged to redeem the Land, and raiſe up the Name of his dead Brother, by marrying his Widow, according to the Command, Levit. xxv. 25. Deut. xxv. 5. See upon the 4th Chapter of this Book, Verſe 5.

Ver. 21. And Ruth the Moabiteſs ſaid, He ſaid unto me alſo, Thou ſhalt keep faſt by my young Men.] Tho' the Word Nearim be of the Maſculine Gender, yet it ſignifies all young People, and particularly the Maidens, to whom he bid her keep cloſe, ver. 8. And ſo both the LXX, and the Chaldee here expound it; and ſo Naomi, it appears by the next Verſe, underſtood it.

Until they have ended all my Harveſt.] Not only the Barley Harveſt, in which they were now employed, but the Wheat-Harveſt, which followed it. See ver. 23.

Ver. 22. And Naomi ſaid unto Ruth her Daughter-in-Law, It is good, my Daughter, that thou go out with his Maidens, that they meet thee not in any other Field.] She adviſes her to accept his Kindneſs, and not to be found gleaning in any other Field, where ſhe might not be ſo welcome; and beſide, it would look like a Diſtruſt of his Kindneſs, if not a Deſpiſal of it, ſhould ſhe not do as ſhe was invited.

Ver. 23. So ſhe kept faſt by the Maidens of Boaz to glean, unto the end of Barley-Harveſt, and of Wheat-Harveſt.] Which continued many Days; and in all that Time ſhe found, no doubt, the ſame kind Entertainment, which is not here repeated.

And dwelt with her Mother-in-Law.] Conſtantly came home to her at Night, after ſhe had done her Labour. Or the Meaning is, when Harveſt was ended, ſhe did not gad abroad, but kept her Mother company at home; for ſo the Hebrew, ſhe ſat with her Mother-in-Law.

CHAP. III.

Ver. 1. THEN Naomi her Mother-in-Law ſaid unto her, My Daughter, ſhall I not ſeek Reſt for thee?] A Settlement in an Houſe of her own, with a good Huſband.

That it may be well with thee.] That ſhe might live more comfortably than ſhe could do with her. The Chaldee underſtands it, as if ſhe confirmed it with an Oath, that ſhe would give herſelf no Reſt, till ſhe had married Ruth.

Ver. 2. And now, is not Boaz of our Kindred, with whoſe Maidens thou waſt?] She puts her in mind of what ſhe had told her before, ii. 20.

Behold he winnoweth Barley to-night in the Threſhing-Floor.] The Corn being gathered, threſhed or trodden out, it was next of all winnowed, to ſeparate it from the Chaff; and this was commonly done in the Evening, when the Heat of the Day was over, and cool Breezes began to riſe. See Gen. iii. 8.

Ver. 3. Waſh thyſelf therefore, and anoint thee.] Frequent Bathings were neceſſary in thoſe Countries, where they continue to this day for Cleanlineſs; and Anointing for ſmoothing their Skin, and making them appear more amiable.

And put thy Raiment upon thee.] Her beſt Clothes, as the Vulgar expreſſes it; or her Ornaments, as the Chaldee.

And get thee down to the Floor.] To ſome Place near it, where ſhe might ſee, and obſerve what was done.

But make not thyſelf known unto the Man.] She would have her conceal herſelf, ſo that Boaz might not ſee her; nor, as ſome underſtand it, any Man elſe.

Until he ſhall have done eating and drinking.] Upon ſuch Occaſions they made Feaſts for the Labourers in the Harveſt.

Ver. 4. And it ſhall be when he lieth down, thou ſhalt mark the Place where he ſhall lie.] To ſleep, after the Feaſt was done, and the Gueſts were gone.

And thou ſhalt go in.] To the Threſhing-Floor, where he lay down, as we read, ver. 7.

And uncover his Feet, and lay thee down.] She was not to lie by his Side, for that had been immodeſt; but at his Feet, in the Poſture of an humble Supplicant.

And he will tell thee what thou ſhalt do.] Either he preſently underſtood her Meaning, when ſhe told him who ſhe was, or ſhe explained it unto him; and Naomi did not doubt he would comply with her Deſires, and put her into a Legal Way of accompliſhing them.

Ver. 5. And ſhe ſaid unto her, All that thou ſayeſt unto me, I will do.] She put a great Confidence in her Mother's Prudence and Piety, and truſted God would give good Succeſs to her Deſign; which ſeemed not very modeſt, but had no other Intentions than what was agreeable to the Law of God, and accordingly proſpered.

Ver. 6. And ſhe went down unto the Floor, and did according to all that her Mother-in-Law bad her.] Concealed herſelf, but obſerved when he came into the Threſhing-Floor, and where he lay down to ſleep.

Ver. 7. And when Boaz had eaten and drunk, and his Heart was merry.] This is a Sign he had made a great Feaſt, that he and his Reapers, and perhaps other Neighbours, might rejoice together; and (as the Targum underſtands it) praiſe God for his Goodneſs in giving them Plenty, after the Famine that had been in the Land. For ſo the Words there are, His Heart rejoiced, and he bleſſed God, who had heard his Prayer, and removed the Famine from the Land of Iſrael.

He went to lie down at the end of the Heap of Corn.] Such was the plain Way of living in thoſe ancient Times, that the moſt wealthy Perſons looked after their own Buſineſs, both in the Field, and at Home; which made Boaz not go to his Houſe, but lie perhaps upon the Straw in the Floor where his Corn had been winnowed, to ſecure it from Thieves, till it could be laid up in his Barns. Theſe Threſhing-Floors were covered at top to keep off Rain, but lay open on all ſides, that the Wind might come in freely for the winnowing of the Corn; which being done, I ſuppoſe they were ſhut up at Night with Doors fitted to them, that if any body lay there, he might be kept warm; and the Corn, as I ſaid, be ſecured from the Danger of Robbers.

And ſhe came ſoftly, and uncovered his Feet, and laid her down.] Before the Doors were ſhut up, ſhe came in ſo ſoftly that none perceived her, and when he was aſleep, lay down at his Feet, not naked, as it is ſuppoſed he was, but in her Clothes, which we do not find ſhe put off; for ſhe had no Intention of lying with him, but only giving him an Opportunity to conſider what the Law required of him. This indeed looks like a dangerous Practice, which her Mother-in-Law put her upon, expoſing both her and him to great Temptations, and therefore many have condemned it, as a very perilous Adventure; but the known Piety both of Boaz and Ruth, who were not now in their youthful Years (at leaſt Boaz was of a great Age) made Naomi confident no Sin would be committed by them.

Ver. 8. And it came to paſs at Midnight, that the Man was afraid.] It is a ſign he went to Bed ſober, tho' merry, in that he waked ſo ſoon, and was not drowſy, but apprehenſive of ſomething extraordinary; for going to ſleep alone, he perceived another in Bed with him. Or, all this is to be aſcribed to a Divine Motion, which ſecretly ſuggeſted ſuch Thoughts to Naomi, and awaked Boaz at a time when Men uſed to ſleep moſt ſoundly.

And turned himſelf.] Being much troubled, he turned himſelf about, to feel who, or what it was. The Hebrew Word Jilaphet, which we tranſlate turned himſelf, is variouſly interpreted, and hath an unuſual Signification put upon it by the Targum, and the Gemara Sanhedrim, (Cap. 2. N. 4.) where the Modeſty and Chaſtity of Boaz is highly extolled, and compared with that of Joſeph.

And behold a Woman lay at his feet.] He perceived by her Clothes, and (when ſhe ſpake) by her Voice, that it was a Woman.

Ver. 9. And he ſaid, Who art thou?] He had no Thoughts of abuſing her, as the Targum obſerves, but only enquires who ſhe was, and what her Buſineſs was there.

And ſhe anſwered, I am Ruth thy Handmaid.] She humbly acknowledges her Meanneſs, and then acquaints him with her Buſineſs.

Spread therefore thy Skirt over thine Handmaid.] In the Hebrew, Spread thy Wing; which is a Phraſe importing, taking a Perſon into one's Protection and Tuition; and here not a common one, but ſuch as was Matrimonial. Therefore the Chaldee plainly renders it, Let thy Name be called upon thy Handmaid, by taking me for thy Wife. See of this Phraſe upon Deut. xx. 30. From hence, at this day, when two Perſons are married among the Jews, the Man throws the Skirt of his Talith over his Spouſe, and covers her Head with it, as Buxtorf obſerves in his Synagoga Judaica, Cap. xxxix.

For thou art a near Kinſman.] This is the Reaſon of her Addreſs to him; which may be rendered, as we tranſlate it in the Margin, One that hath Right to redeem; for ſo the Word Goel ſignifies. See the foregoing Chapter, ver. 20.

Ver. 10. And he ſaid, Bleſſed be thou of the LORD, my Daughter.] He was ſo far from being incenſed at her Boldneſs, that he wiſhes her all Happineſs.

For thou haſt ſhewed more Kindneſs in the latter End, than at the Beginning.] He doth not condemn her as immodeſt, but commends her true Kindneſs both to her Mother, and to her Huſband, which appeared now more than before, by her Endeavours to preſerve his Name and Family.

In as much as thou followeſt not young Men.] This is an high Commendation, that ſhe did not ſeek an Huſband to ſatisfy her Luſt, but to preſerve the Memory of him who was dead.

Whether poor or rich.] That is, of any ſort.

Ver. 11. And now, my Daughter, fear not.] He would not have her think he had an ill Opinion of her becauſe ſhe took this courſe, or be in doubt whether her Motion was acceptable to him; or that, being a Stranger, and poor, he would deſpiſe her.

I will do unto thee all that thou requireſt.] That is, take her to be his Wife.

For all the City of my People doth know that thou art a virtuous Woman.] She had behaved herſelf ſo, as to gain a general Report of extraordinary Virtue, as the Hebrew Word Chajil imports; which ſignifies one that doth Things ſtrenuouſly. The Words we tranſlate, All the City of my People, in the Hebrew are, All the Gate of my People: By which we rightly underſtand, all that entered in at the Gate; that is, the whole City. But the Gate being the Place where Juſtice was wont to be adminiſtred, the Chaldee Paraphraſt interprets it, It is manifeſt unto all that ſit at the Gate of the great Sanhedrim of my People, that thou art a juſt Woman, &c. This ſhews that Boaz was truly a very excellent Perſon, who thought great Virtue to be a great Portion.

Ver. 12. And now it is true that I am thy near Kinſman: Howbeit, there is a Kinſman nearer than I.] This, I ſuppoſe, was well enough known to Naomi; but ſhe underſtood his Diſpoſition ſo well, that ſhe thought it would be in vain to make any Application unto him.

Ver. 13. Tarry this Night, and it ſhall be in the Morning, that if he will perform unto thee the part of a Kinſman, well, let him do the Kinſman's part.] He reſolved to make no longer Delay, than was abſolutely neceſſary; but promiſes in the Morning ſhe ſhould have Right done to herſelf, and to her deceaſed Huſband, either by the next Kinſman, or by himſelf. Some of the Jews take the Word Tob, which ſignifies Good, and we rightly tranſlate, Well, to have been the Name of the other Kinſman, who was called Tob: And indeed, it is likely this was a Name among that People, from whence by the Addition of iah to it (which was very common) came Tobiah. Raſi ſaith he was the Brother of Elimelech; but there is no reaſon to believe this, for when it had been proper to mention his Name in the next Chapter, ver. 1. we only read that Boaz called him Peloni Almoni, (Ho, ſuch a one) which were Words uſed when they called any one indifferently.

But if he will not do the part of a Kinſman to thee, then will I do the part of a Kinſman to thee, as the LORD liveth.] He confirms his Promiſe to her with an Oath, that if the other Perſon refuſed, he would marry her.

Lie down until the Morning.] Having given her this Security, and thereby quieted her Mind, he bids her take a little bodily Reſt; which was very needful, having been, no doubt, full of of reſtleſs and anxious Thoughts, what would become of her all the former part of the Night.

Ver. 14. And ſhe lay at his feet until the Morning.] In the ſame place where ſhe lay down at firſt; having no other Deſign, but only humbly to implore his Juſtice and Kindneſs unto her deceaſed Huſband.

And ſhe roſe up before one could know another.] That is, before it was light; ſo that if any body had ſeen her, they could not have known who ſhe was.

And he ſaid, Let it not be known that a Woman came into the Floor.] Some think he ſpake this to his Servants: But they were not yet ſtirring; and if they were, they could not diſcover whether ſhe was Man or Woman. It was ſpoken therefore to her, whom he would have to be careful both of her own Fame, and of his; for, as Joſephus here notes, Great Caution is to be uſed to prevent ſuch Rumours, eſpecially when there is ſome ground for them, καὶ μάλιστ' ἐπὶ γεγονόσι.

Ver. 15. Alſo he ſaid, Bring the Veil that thou haſt upon thee, and hold it.] The Hebrew Word Mitpacath is variouſly interpreted, it ſignifying any kind of Covering. The LXX tranſlate it περίζωμα, by which they ſeem to have meant that which we call an Apron, or a Kirtle, which is bound about one. The Vulgar, Pallium; but it is by us moſt properly render'd a Veil; which modeſt Women were wont to throw over their Heads, to cover their Faces.

And when ſhe held it, he meaſured ſix Meaſures of Barley, and laid it on her.] He would not let her go away without ſome Token of his Love to her; and nothing was more ready at hand in the Threſhing-Floor, than the Corn that lay there. It is not certain how much this Meaſure contained, but, no doubt, in the whole, he gave her as much as ſhe could well carry; and was ſo kind alſo, as himſelf to lay it upon her Shoulder. Some fancy that this Load was too heavy for her, but Barley is far lighter than Wheat: And the Chaldee Paraphraſt here ſaith, Strength was given her from before the Lord to bear it. And then adds, Immediately there was a Prophecy that from her ſhould proceed ſix Righteous Perſons; each of which ſhould be bleſſed with ſix Benedictions, David, Daniel, his three Companions, and the King Meſſiah.

And ſhe went into the City.] The Chaldee ſaith, Boaz went into the City; and the Hebrew favours this Interpretation. For the Word for went is in the Maſculine Gender, as in the next Words it is in the Feminine.

Ver. 16. And when ſhe came to her Mother-in-Law, ſhe ſaid, Who art thou, my Daughter?] It was ſo early in the Morning when ſhe returned home, that Naomi could not well diſcern who it was that deſired the Gate might be opened; but perceived it was a Woman, whom ſhe calls her Daughter, as they uſed to do in Civility, it appears by Boaz his Language, ver. 10. But the Vulgar takes it quite otherwiſe, that ſhe aſked her, What haſt thou done, my Daughter? That is, How haſt thou ſucceeded? And indeed, the Anſwer favours this; and the Hebrew Words will bear it, if mi be interpreted not who, but what.

And ſhe told her all that the Man had done to her.] How kindly he had treated her; and what Promiſes he had made her.

Ver. 17. And ſhe ſaid, theſe ſix Meaſures of Barley gave he me.] Then ſhe ſhewed her the Preſent he made her.

For he ſaid to me, Go not empty unto thy Mother-in-Law.] Without ſome Token of my Affection. Some imagine Barley (which is not ſo valuable with us as Wheat) was too mean a thing to beſtow upon her. But they do not conſider, that in thoſe Countries it was a better ſort of Corn than it is in theſe parts of the World; for Bread was commonly made of it, and that not only by the Poor, but the better ſort: Of which we find Examples, both in the Old Teſtament and the New. See 2 Sam. xvii. 28. 2 Kings iv. 42. And in the Goſpel we read of Barley-loaves, wherewith Chriſt fed the Multitude; particularly, John vi. 9. And indeed, Pliny ſaith this was the moſt ancient Food. Antiquiſſimum in cibis Hordeum, Lib. 18. Nat. Hiſt. Cap. 7.

Ver. 18. Then ſaid ſhe, Sit ſtill my Daughter.] She bids her trouble herſelf no farther, for ſhe had done enough.

Until thou know how the Matter will fall.] But wait and expect till ſhe ſaw the Iſſue: Which the Targum expreſſes piouſly, in this manner, Till thou knoweſt how this matter will be determined from Heaven, and wonderfully diſpoſed.

For the Man will not be in Reſt, till he have finiſhed the thing this day.] She knew him ſo well to be a Man of his Word, that he would immediately go about the Buſineſs, according to his Promiſe, ver. 14.

CHAP. IV.

Ver. 1. THEN went Boaz up to the Gate.] Where there was a great Concourſe of People; and where the Judges ſat. So the Chaldee Paraphraſt, He went to the Gate of the Houſe of Judgment, where the Sanhedrim ſat. See my Note upon Deut. xvi. 18.

And ſat him down there.] Among the Elders, as the forenamed Paraphraſt will have it: But that is not likely, for he called the other Kinſman to come and ſit down by him.

And behold, the Kinſman of whom Boaz ſpake, came by.] See iii. 12.

Unto whom he ſaid, Ho, ſuch an one, turn aſide, ſit down here.] When they could not think of a Man's Name, or did not think fit to name it, they uſed theſe Words, Peloni Almoni; which Daniel contracts into one Word, Palmoni, viii. 13. and is the ſame with the Greek ὁδεῖνα.

And he turned aſide, and ſat down.] Suppoſing Boaz had ſome Buſineſs with him, he did not go on his way, but turned aſide to ſpeak with him. This was about Noon, (as Joſephus ſaith) when greater Multitudes were wont to be aſſembled in ſuch publick Places, than at other times of the day.

Ver. 2. And he took ten Men.] He would have a ſufficient Number of Witneſſes of what he did; which, as Maimonides obſerves, was very neceſſary in the Eſpouſal of a Perſon to one's Wife. For, ſaith he, if it had been enough to do it privately, many would have taken an Harlot into their Houſes for a time, and pretend ſhe was their Wife; therefore it was ordained, that after any Man had eſpouſed a Woman, he ſhould marry her publickly, after the Example of Boaz, of whom we read he took ten Men, &c. More Nevochim, Pars 3. Cap. 49.

Of the Elders of the City.] How many Elders there were in every City, is not certain; inſomuch that Bertram conjectures, there was as many as there were Captains of Thouſands, of Hundreds, Fifties and Tens, in every City. Joſephus indeed ſaith, there were ſeven, L. 4. Antiq. Cap. 6. which perhaps was the determinate Number in his Time. But anciently, one would think there were more, becauſe here Boaz mentions ten Elders (who were the ſame with Judges) in the City of Bethlehem, which made Bertram (de Republ. Judaica, Cap. 9.) the more confident, that as the Captains of Thouſands, &c. in every City, were the Elders of that City, ſo there were as many in every City, of the one, as of the other. As for what the Talmudiſts ſay, That there were three Judges in Pecuniary Cauſes, and three and twenty in Capital, it muſt belong, if it be true, to later times.

And ſaid, Sit you down here. And they ſat down.] To hear the Cauſe he intended to bring before them.

Ver. 3. And he ſaid unto the Kinſman, Naomi that is come out of the Country of Moab, ſelleth a Parcel of Land, which was our Brother Elimelech's.] He calls him their Brother, becauſe he was near of kin to them. And he mentions Naomi's Return out of the Country of Moab, to intimate, that her Poverty conſtrained her to ſell her Eſtate, which her Huſband left her. That Intereſt ſhe might part withal, to ſupply her Neceſſities, but it could not take away the Right of Redemption; for as Mr. Selden obſerves in his Book de Succeſſionibus, Cap. 16. both Elimelech the Father, and Mahlon the Son, (unto both which Boaz was of kin) gave this Patrimony to their Wives before they died: (For otherwiſe they could not have had the Poſſeſſion of it.) Or rather, the former gave his Intereſt to Naomi, and the latter his to Ruth; which, how it was done, Maimonides ſhews in his Treatiſe de Donationibus, Cap. 6.

Ver. 4. And I thought to advertiſe thee of it, ſaying, Buy it before the Inhabitants, and before the Elders of my People.] Before thoſe that ſat in the Gate of the Houſe of Judgment, and before theſe Elders, as the Targum expounds it; that is, the ten Elders before-mentioned, that the Bargain might be firmly made, and the Eſtate legally paſſed over to him.

If thou wilt redeem it, redeem it; but if thou wilt not redeem it, then tell me, that I may know.] That is, underſtand thy Mind in this Matter.

For there is none to redeem it beſides thee, and I am after thee.] That is, no other Kinſman remaining of that Family, but they Two.

And he ſaid, I will redeem it.] For it is likely, it lay convenient for him.

Ver. 5. Then ſaid Boaz, what Day thou buyeſt the Field of the Hand of Naomi, thou muſt buy it alſo of Ruth the Moabiteſs, the Wife of the Dead.] For they both had an Intereſt in it; but Boaz prudently conceals the Name of Ruth, till he had conſented to buy the Land, and then tells him whom he muſt take along with it.

To raiſe up the Name of the Dead upon his Inheritance.] According to the Law mentioned Deut. xxv. 5, &c. as it is commonly interpreted. But it was rather, in Mr. Selden's Opinion, the fulfilling of the Law mentioned Levit. xxv. 24, 25. Lib. de Succeſſionibus ad Leges Hebr. Cap. 15. Where he obſerves, that this Phraſe, To raiſe up the Name of the Dead, (which is mentioned alſo, ver. 10.) is quite different from that mentioned in Deuteronomy; being no more, as R. Solomon notes, (upon iii. 9.) than if he had ſaid, That the Name of her dead Huſband may be had in remembrance; ſo that when ſhe came into that Field, Men might ſay, This is the Wife of Mahlon. There is a long Diſcourſe alſo in Abarbinel, upon Deut. xxv. to prove that this doth not belong to that Law of a Man's raiſing up Seed to his Brother. See Buxtorf, de Sponſal. & Divortiis, Sect. 27. But if it do, Grotius thinks that Law only obliged ὁμοπάτριοι, Brethren by the ſame Father, to marry the Brother's Widow; but Cuſtom in proceſs of Time obliged the next of kin to do it. See upon Matth. xxii. 24.

Ver. 6. And the Kinſman ſaid, I cannot redeem it for myſelf, leſt I marr my own Inheritance.] He had a Wife and Children already, which made him afraid to marry a poor Woman with a ſmall Parcel of Land, which would not provide for the Children he might have by her, without diminiſhing his own Inheritance, of which he was poſſeſſed. To which the Chaldee Paraphraſt adds, That it might have made great Contentions in his Family: For thus he makes him ſpeak, I cannot redeem it, (viz. on that Condition) for I have a Wife already; and it is not fit for me to bring another into my Houſe, for fear Brawling and Quarrelling ariſe in it, and leſt I hurt my own Inheritance. In like manner the Midraſch, upon this Book, makes him diſcourſe. But Raſi interprets the Words, as if the Meaning was, That he ſhould bring a Blot upon his Poſterity, by marrying a Moabitiſh Woman (which he thought was forbidden by the Law) for Children are called an Heritage, Pſal. cxxvii. 3. But in this he acknowledges the Man was miſtaken, as many of their ancient Doctors were, for the Law did not forbid the marrying a Woman of that Country. But the plaineſt Senſe is, as Mr. Selden obſerves, That many Inconveniencies might ariſe in his Family by this Marriage, not only by the Diſagreement of his Wives, but by the Difficulty of providing for ſo many Children as ſhe might bring him, and of giving them them good Education, and by diſtracting his Inheritance, and ſuch like things; which he prudently conſidered, as good Reaſons of his Refuſal. See Lib. 1. Uxor Hebr. Cap. 9.

Redeem thou my Right to thyſelf, for I cannot redeem it.] Which is thus paraphraſed by the Targum, Do thou therefore redeem it, becauſe thou haſt no Wife, which hinders me from redeeming.

Ver. 7. Now this was the manner in former times in Iſrael, concerning Redeeming, and concerning Changing.] There was no Law, that we can find, about the following Rite, but only Cuſtom which had long prevailed; when Men redeemed Lands that had been alienated, or gave poſſeſſion of them to another Perſon.

For to confirm all Things.] To make the Bargain valid.

A Man plucked off his Shoe, and gave it to his Neighbour; and this was a Teſtimony in Iſrael.] A ſufficient Evidence, that he transferred all his Right unto that Perſon to whom he delivered his Shoe. It is not eaſy to give an Account of the Original of this Cuſtom; but the Reaſon of it is plain enough, it being a natural Signification that he reſigned his Intereſt in the Land, by giving him his Shoe, wherewith he uſed to walk in it, to the end that he might enter into it, and take poſſeſſion of it himſelf.

The Targum, inſtead of his Shoe, hath the Right-hand Glove; it being the Cuſtom, perhaps, in his Time, to give that in room of the Shoe. For it is leſs troubleſome to pull off a Glove than a Shoe, and deliver it to another, though it hath the ſame Signification; as now the Jews deliver an Handkerchief to the ſame purpoſe. So R. Solomon Jarchi affirms, We acquire, or buy now by an Handkerchief, or Veil, inſtead of a Shoe.

Ver. 8. Therefore the Kinſman ſaid unto Boaz, Buy it for thee.] After the accuſtomed Manner.

So he drew off his Shoe.] And gave it to Boaz, in token that he parted with all his Right to him. The Jewiſh Doctors indeed, differ very much about this Matter; for ſome ſay, He that parted with his Right to redeem the Land, pulled off his Shoe, and gave it to him that bought it; but others, that he who bought it, gave his Shoe to him that ſold it. The truth is, the Text may be either way underſtood, but it ſeems to be moſt reaſonable to think, that he who parted with his Right, parted with his Shoe alſo. See Selden Lib. 6. de Jure Nat. & Gent. juxta Diſciplin. Hebr. Cap. 5. where he obſerves again, how different this was from the Rites uſed, when one renounced his Brother's Wife. And Abarbinel looks upon this as a Demonſtration, that the plucking off the Shoe here mentioned, is not the ſame with that in Deut. xxv. For Ruth doth not here appear to looſe his Shoe, (as the Brother's Wife is there ordered to do, ver. 9.) much leſs did ſhe come to ſpit in his Face; of which there is not one Word in this Ceremony; which he ſhews wholly belongs to the Sale of Lands, or to their Redemption, and bringing them back again into the Family to which they belonged. This appears from the following Words, where Mention is made of nothing but of a Purchaſe of Elimelech's Eſtate.

Ver. 9. And Boaz ſaid unto the Elders, and to all the People, Ye are Witneſſes this day, that I have bought all that was Elimelech's, and all that was Chilion's, and Mahlon's, of the Hand of Naomi.] She had the firſt Right in the Land after the Death of her Huſband, and her two Sons after her; which ſhe entirely parted withal by this Contract unto Boaz, to whom the other Kinſman had paſſed over his Right of Redemption, by the political Ceremony of plucking off the Shoe.

Ver. 10. Mercover, Ruth the Moabiteſs, the Wife of Mahlon, have I purchaſed to be my Wife.] He had her by the Right of the ſame Purchaſe, and did not ſucceed into the Right of a Brother, mentioned in Deut. xxv. for he was not Brother to Elimelech, but only a remote Kinſman of the ſame Family, as Abarbinel there obſerves, who could not enjoy the Land while ſhe lived, unleſs he would take her with it; to whom it belonged as long as ſhe lived, and was to go to her Iſſue when ſhe died.

To raiſe up the Name of the Dead upon his Inheritance.] That the Parcel of Land which he bought, might ſtill be called by the Name of Mahlon, whoſe Wife Boaz married.

That the Name of the Dead be not cut off from his Brethren, and from the Gate of his Place.] That his Name hereby might be remembred, not only in his own Family, but in all the City of Bethlehem; for by the Gate of his Place, is meant all the People that entred in at the Gate.

Ye are Witneſſes this Day.] Both that he bought the Land, and Ruth together with it, at ſuch a time.

Ver. 11. And all the People that were in the Gate, and the Elders ſaid, We are Witneſſes.] After this open Declaration, there was no need of any Inſtrument in Writing to confirm the Purchaſe.

The LORD make the Woman that is come into thy Houſe, like Rachel, and like Leah.] Such a ſolemn Benediction of thoſe who were going to be married, was very ancient, as we learn from Gen. xxiv. 60. and the Jews continue it to this day, which they ſay, was always in the Preſence of ten grave Perſons, at the leaſt, (as Mr. Selden obſerves, Lib. 2. Uxor. Hebr. Cap. 12.) conformable to this Example of Boaz, ver. 2. and the Eldeſt of them pronounced the Benediction, which was a Ratification of what was agreed: So our Mr. Thorndike excellently obſerves, That the Benediction, which we Chriſtians uſe in Marriage, is a Sign of the Allowance of the Church pre-ſuppoſed, as this Benediction of Boaz and Ruth pre-ſuppoſeth the Act to be allowed by the Elders, or Conſiſtory, who ſat in the Gate of Bethlehem. See Rights of the Church in a Chriſtian State, p. 241. In the Review of which he obſerves, That this ſeems to be confirmed by the Opinion of Epiphanius, who ſaith, Our Lord was invited to the Marriage of Cana in Galilee, that, as a Prophet, he might bleſs the the Marriage; which, it is certain, the Church hath always practiſed, to ſignify, that the Marriage was approved to be made according to the Laws of God. And therefore Conradus Pellicanus (an eminent Man at the Beginning of the Reformation) here well notes, That Prayers and Benedictions are never to be omitted in Marriage.

Like Rachel and Leah.] That is, very fruitful.

Which two did build up the Houſe of Iſrael.] Were bleſſed with a numerous Poſterity. They do not mention the two Handmaids, becauſe theſe were Jacob's principal Wives (and Rachel choſen firſt, as ſhe is here placed) whoſe Servants bare Children, not for themſelves, but their Miſtreſſes. See Gen. xxx. 3.

And do thou worthily in Ephratah, and be famous in Bethlehem.] Theſe two are but different Names of the ſame Place, where Boaz and Ruth alſo lived, who ſeems now to have been preſent, as Joſephus repreſents her, and who they prayed might be a great Example of all Virtue in that City.

Ver. 12. And let thy Houſe be like the Houſe of Pharez, (whom Tamar bare unto Judah) of the Seed which the LORD ſhall give thee of this young Woman.] Both Boaz, and all the Bethlehemites, derived their Original from Pharez, whoſe Family was very illuſtrious in Iſrael; and therefore they could not have wiſhed Boaz a greater Bleſſing, than to have as noble an Iſſue as he was to Judah.

Ver. 13. So Boaz took Ruth.] Carried her home to his own Houſe, with all the Solemnity, it is likely, which was uſual in ſuch caſes.

And ſhe was his Wife.] And all other Rites, which were obſerved in thoſe days, being performed, they were compleatly made Man and Wife.

And when he went in unto her, the LORD gave her Conception, and ſhe bare a Son.] A Year after their Marriage, as Joſephus ſaith.

Ver. 14. And the Women ſaid unto Naomi.] After Ruth's Delivery.

Bleſſed be the LORD who hath not left thee this day without a Kinſman.] The Hebrew Name of Goel (which we tranſlate Kinſman) properly belonged to Boaz, and not to his Son, who was now born: And yet the Child ſeems to be here meant, which made the Arabick Tranſlator render it, Hath not left thee without an Heir, who being to ſucceed his Father, what he had done, might be aſcribed to his Son.

That his Name may be famous in Iſrael.] They hoped God would make him an eminent Perſon among them.

Ver. 15. And he ſhall be unto thee a Reſtorer of thy Life.] Such a Comfort, as to make her, in ſome ſort, young again.

And a Nouriſher of thine old Age.] And in old Age, take care of her, and ſupport her.

For thy Daughter-in-Law which loveth thee, which is better to thee than ſeven Sons, hath borne him.] For they hoped he would inherit his Mother's Virtues, and particularly her Affection to Naomi, which was ſo ſurpaſſing, that it made her a greater Bleſſing to her, than a great many Sons of her own Body would have been; for they would ſcarce have been able, out of ſo ſmall a Fortune, to maintain themſelves, whereas this being the Son of a rich Father, could afford her alſo a plentiful Maintenance.

Ver. 16. And Naomi took the Child, and laid it in her own Boſom, and became Nurſe unto it.] Brought it up with a moſt tender Affection, for his Mother gave him ſuck; and then Naomi took him from her, and educated him as her own Child.

Ver. 17. And the Women, her Neighbours, gave it a Name.] It did not belong to the Neighbours, but to the Father, or Mother, to name the Child; but they adviſed Naomi to call it by a Name ſuitable to their foregoing Diſcourſe. See Luke i. 39, &c.

Saying, There is a Son born unto Naomi.] Unto whom they had promiſed ſuch great Comfort from this Child, that it moved them to deſire it might have the following Name.

And they called his Name Obed.] That is, one who ſhould be very ſerviceable unto her; for Obed ſignifies δελεύων, a Servant, as Joſephus interprets it. By which Name, ſaith he, Naomi called the Child κατάσυμβελείαν γυναικῶν, by the Advice and Counſel of the Women, ἐπὶ γηροκομίᾳ αὐτῆς τραφησάμενον, as one appointed to take care of her in her old Age. The Targum thus paraphraſes upon this Name, Who ſerved the LORD of the World with a perfect Heart; a piece of which Service conſiſted in giving due Honour unto Parents. Some make it a Queſtion, why this Child was not called Mahlon, according to the Law which ſeems to require it? But this hath been anſwered already, that what Boaz did, was not in Obedience to the Law in Deut. xxv. for he was not the Brother of Mahlon (in which caſe the Child muſt have borne Mahlon's Name) but only a remote Kinſman.

He is the Father of Jeſſe, the Father of David.] For whoſe ſake this whole Book ſeems to have been written, that it might be certainly known from whom he was deſcended, the Meſſiah being to ſpring from him; which is the Reaſon why the following Genealogy is annexed for the Concluſion of this Book.

Ver. 18. Now theſe are the Generations of Pharez.] He begins no higher, becauſe every one knew that Pharez was the Grandſon of Jacob, and he the Son of Iſaac, &c.

Pharez begat Hezron.] In the Land of Canaan, before they went down into Egypt, as we read Gen. xlvi. 12.

Ver. 19. And Hezron begat Ram.] So he is called in 1 Chron. ii. 6. but in the New Teſtament, Aram, Matt. i. 3. Luke iii. 33.

And Ram begat Amminadab.] Theſe two were born in the Land of Egypt, where Amminadab alſo begat Nahſhon.

Ver. 20. And Amminadab begat Nahſhon.] Who was Prince of the Children of Judah, when they came out of Egypt, as the Author of the Book of Chronicles obſerves, 1 Chr. ii. 10. which is confirmed by Moſes in his Words, Numb. i. 7. ii. 3. vii. 12. x. 14. where we find, that in the ſecond Year after their coming out of Egypt, he was the principal Perſon in his Tribe.

And

And Nahſhon begat Salmon.] Who was born in the Wilderneſs, in all probability, and was called alſo Salma, 1 Chron. ii. 11.

Ver. 21. And Salmon begat Boaz.] Of Rahab, whom he took to be his Wife after the taking of Jericho, Matth. i. 5.

And Boaz begat Obed.] Here the Targum makes Boaz the ſame with Ibzan, Judges xii. 8. (which is altogether improbable) in whoſe days he ſaith the Famine, ſpoken of in this Book, happened; from which they were delivered by the Prayers of Boaz.

Ver. 22. And Obed begat Jeſſe.] Who was alſo called Nahaſh, as ſome think, and is expreſly affirmed by the Targum, becauſe Zeruiah and Abigail are ſaid to be David's Siſters, 1 Chron. ii. 16. And Abigail is ſaid to be the Daughter of Nahaſh, 2 Sam. xvii. 25. But David's Mother, perhaps, had a former Huſband, whoſe Name was Nahaſh, by whom ſhe had theſe Daughters.

And Jeſſe begat David.] Unto whoſe Time there being but four Generations; and Salmon, the firſt of the four married Rahab, after their Entrance into Canaan; from thence, to the fourth Year of King Solomon, there being four hundred and forty Years (as appears from 1 Kings vi. 2.) it muſt neceſſarily follow, that unleſs we ſuppoſe ſome other coming between, (for which we have no good Warrant) theſe four Perſons, Salmon, Boaz, Obed, and Jeſſe, begat a Child in their Old Age. And, indeed, Boaz ſuppoſes himſelf to be no young Man, when he ſpake theſe Words to Ruth, iii. 10. And Jeſſe was counted an old Man, when David his Son was a Youth, 1 Sam. xvii. 12. And therefore, that Account which Primate Uſher hath given of this Matter, in his Chronologia Sacra, Pars 1. Cap. 12. ſeems very reaſonable, that taking out of that Number of four hundred and forty, the ſeventy Years that David lived, and the four firſt Years of Solomon's Reign; then from their coming into the Land of Canaan, to the Nativity of David, there remain three hundred ſixty and ſix, as Aben Ezra obſerves in the Concluſion of this Book. Now theſe Years may be thus commodiouſly diſtributed, if we ſuppoſe Rahab to have borne Boaz in the Forty-ſecond Year after they entered Canaan; and if we aſſign an Hundred and two Years before he begat Obed; and an Hundred and eleven to Obed, before he begat Jeſſe; and as many to Jeſſe before he begat David; which made the juſt Sum of Three hundred ſixty and ſix. And this is nothing ſtrange; for long after this time, we read of very Old Men, who might be capable to beget Children at the Age now mentioned; particularly Jehoiadah the High-Prieſt who lived an hundred and thirty Years, 2 Chron. xxiv. 15. And in our Days, Thomas Parr lived an hundred and fifty-two Years, and begat a Child when he was an hundred and five Years old, as the ſame Primate there obſerves, and produces a great many other Examples of Perſons who lived to a great Age, very vigorous. And, if we could believe the Jewiſh Doctors, they tell us in Juthaſm, that Ruth lived till the Time of Solomon, and ſat with Bathſheba, when he cauſed a Seat to be ſet for her at his Right Hand, 1 Kings ii. 19. I ſhall only add, that Bonfrerius hath largely confirmed this Opinion of theſe Perſons begetting the Children here mentioned in their Old Age, and confuted thoſe who explain this otherways, by ſuppoſing three Boaz's, and other Devices, in his Commentary upon the firſt Verſe of this Book. Only he (and Serrarius alſo, who before him was of the ſame mind) have made a different Diſtribution of the Three hundred ſixty-ſix Years before-mentioned, by ſuppoſing other Years of their Age, wherein theſe four Perſons begat their Sons; which is not at all material.

I ſhall end all with the Targum's Paraphraſe on the laſt Words of this Book; which are, Jeſſe begat David King of Iſrael. Which ſome Latin Copies following, from thence Cardinal Cajetan concludes, this Book was written not only after the Birth of David, but after he was made King of Iſrael; that is, after he was anointed by Samuel to be King of Iſrael.

A COMMENTARY UPON THE FIRST BOOK OF SAMUEL.

THE Two Books, which bear the Name of Samuel, are thought by the Talmudiſts, in Baba Bathra, to have been compoſed, in part, by himſelf, (that is, the firſt Twenty-four Chapters of the Firſt Book) and the reſt by Gad and Nathan the Prophets. And ſo Procopius Gazæus ſaith, that this Book is called by the Syrians, the Prophecy of Samuel. This Opinion the Talmudiſts found upon the 1 Chron. xxix. 29. where it is ſaid, Now the Acts of David, firſt and laſt, behold they are written in the Book of Samuel the Seer, and in the Book of Nathan the Prophet, and in the Book of Gad the Seer. By which Words it is evident, that Samuel did write a Book, and that it contained ſome of the Acts of David, which, it is very probable, are theſe that we read in this Book. Beſides which, there were two other Books, written by two other Prophets, who continued his Hiſtory to the End of his Life. It muſt be confeſſed indeed, that three diſtinct Books are mentioned in that Place of the Chronicles; and we cannot be ſure that we have in thoſe two Books all that was contained in thoſe three; but only an Extract of the Subſtance of them, which perhaps might be made by ſome following Prophet, and divided into two Books: Which were called by the Name of Samuel; becauſe he was the moſt eminent Perſon of the three, and his Acts are here recorded in the firſt place. Certain it is, this Work was extant before the Book of the Kings was written; for Mention is there made, of what we read in this Hiſtory, 1 Kings ii. 27. And in the Book of the Chronicles ſeveral things are repeated, which we find here, in the very ſame Words. It is highly probable alſo, that Samuel having undertaken to write the Hiſtory of the Judges, (to which as an Appendix he added the Book of Ruth) would not leave it imperfect: But added in this Book what concerned Eli and himſelf; who were the laſt Judges of that Nation.

See the Preface to the Book of Judges.

CHAP. I.

Ver. 1. NOW there was a certain Man of Ramathaim-Zophim.] Either he was born at this Place, or lived there (perhaps both) which is called Ramah, ver. 19. of this Chapter; and here Ramathaim (in the Dual Number, as the Grammarians ſpeak) becauſe it was built upon two Hills; which made it appear like a double City. The Title of Zophim ſeems to be added to it, becauſe it being an high Place, there was a Watch-Tower in it: Where, upon occaſion, Men were ſet to obſerve, who approached from all Parts round about. Or, as S. Hierom, and others think, becauſe here was a School of the Prophets; who were wont to ſeat themſelves in ſuch Places as were remote from Company, and fit for Contemplation. Which made Elijah and Eliſha frequent Mount Carmel. And thus the Chaldee Paraphraſe tranſlates theſe Words, There was a Man of Ramathaim, a Diſciple of the Prophets. Who in the Book of Ezekiel are called Watch-men: And from hence ſome think came the Greek Word Σκοπος: Which was the Title of Aſtronomers at the firſt; who from high Places contemplated the Stars.

Of Mount Ephraim.] This is added to diſtinguiſh this from other Places, which had the Name of Ramah in other Tribes: Particularly in that of Benjamin, Joſh. xviii. 25.

And his Name was Elkanah, the Son of Jeroham, the Son of Elihu, the Son of Tohu.] It appears by this Genealogy, that Samuel was a Levite, of the Family of the Kohathites; as we read 1 Chron. vi. 33, 34, &c. See Mr. Selden in his Book de Succeſſion. in Pontif. L. 1. Cap. 18. where he confutes thoſe who fancy Samuel was a Prieſt, yea, the High-Prieſt, as Petavius himſelf imagined.

The Son of Zuph, an Ephrathite.] Ephrata is the ſame with Bethlehem, which was in the Tribe of Judah. Therefore Zuph is not called an Ephrathite, becauſe he was deſcended from the Bethlemites (for he was a Levite) but becauſe he dwelt in that Place; as the Levites were diſperſed through all the Tribes. So Mr. Selden there ſpeaks (from the Hebrew Doctors, and the Targum) Domicilii ratione, non ſanguinis; he is called an Ephrathite, on the account of his Habitation, not of his Blood.

Ver. 2. And he had two Wives, the Name of the one was Hannah, and the Name of the other Peninnah, &c.] Hannah ſeems to have been his firſt Wife: Who proving barren, his earneſt Deſire of Children moved him to take another; as Abraham had by Sarah's Conſent. Which was not in thoſe Times diſallowed by God: Who ſaith himſelf, that he had given to David many Wives, 2 Sam. xii. 8. which ſhews it was not then a Sin in them to have more than one. See Grotius in his Book de Jure Belli & Pacis, Lib. ii. Cap. 5. Sect. 9, 10.

Ver. 3. And the Man went up out of his City.] For though Ramah ſtood high, yet Shiloh ſtood higher: And he firſt went down the Hill from Ramah, before he could go up to the other.

Yearly to worſhip, and to ſacrifice to the LORD of Hoſts in Shiloh.] Where the Tabernacle now was, and where all Sacrifices were to be offered, and no where elſe. Hither all the People were bound to reſort, at the three great Feſtivals, (Deut. xvi. 16.) and not to appear before the LORD empty. Accordingly Elkanah not only worſhipped God, with Prayers and Thankſgivings; but offered ſuch Sacrifices as ſuitable to the Feſtival: And it is likely, preſented other Gifts, according to his Ability, as is there required, ver. 17.

And the two Sons of Eli, Hophni and Phineas, the Prieſts of the LORD, were there.] Ready to offer ſuch Sacrifices as were brought to the Altar. Whoſe Service Elkanah did not refuſe to uſe, becauſe they were notoriouſly prophane; But reverenced their Office, as ſtill Prieſts of the LORD; from whoſe impure Hands he vouchſafed to accept the Offerings of pious People.

Ver. 4. And when the Time was that Elkanah offered.] His Peace-Offerings which were wont to accompany others at the great Feſtivals. For inſtance, at the Paſſover they offered not only the Paſchal Lamb, but ſeveral other Sacrifices; as I noted upon Deut. xvi. 7. All the ſeven Days of unleavened Bread having peculiar Sacrifices belonging to them. See Numb. xxviii. And ſo there was on the ſeven Days of the Feaſt of Tabernacles, Numb. xxix. Now on ſome of theſe Days Elkanah offered ſuch Sacrifices as might make a Feaſt, for his Family and Friends, according to the Law, Deut. xii. 12.

He gave to Peninnah his Wife, and to all his Sons and Daughters.] The Males only were bound to appear before God at theſe Feſtivals; but devout Perſons were wont to bring their Wives alſo with them; and their Daughters as well as Sons; eſpecially when they dwelt ſo near the Houſe of God as Elkanah did; whoſe Habitation at Ramah was not above ſeven Miles from Shiloh. It doth not appear that there was any peculiar Court at the Tabernacle (as there was afterwards at the Temple) for the Women to worſhip in by themſelves; but they came in with their Huſbands, and performed their Duty cloſe to them.

Portions.] Of that Part of the Peace-Offerings, which belonged to him that offered them. Which was the whole; except the Fat which belonged to the LORD, and the Breaſt and Right Shoulder, which belonged to the Prieſt, Levit. vii. 34. With the reſt the Sacrificer made a Feaſt for himſelf, his Family, and Friends; giving to every one a Portion of the Sacrifice: Whereby they had Communion with the LORD, by partaking with him of his Sacrifice, which had been offered to him at his Altar.

Ver. 5. But to Hannah he gave a worthy Portion.] Or, a double Portion; in token of his extraordinary Reſpect and Kindneſs to her.

For he loved Hannah, but the LORD had ſhut up her Womb; or, though the LORD, &c.] Her Barrenneſs did not make him love her leſs, but rather more; becauſe he would ſupport and comfort her under that Affliction.

Ver. 6. And her Adverſary alſo provoked her ſore; to make her fret, becauſe the LORD had ſhut ſhut up her Womb.] It added to her Affliction, that Peninnah ſet herſelf againſt her; and was wont to twit her with her Barrenneſs, ſaying, when her Huſband ſent her a more liberal Portion of the holy Things than ſhe received; Tho' he be ſo kind to you, yet you bring him no Children, as I do: which gave her great Vexation.

Ver. 7. And as he did ſo Year by Year, when ſhe went up to the Houſe of the LORD, ſo ſhe provoked her.] She conſtantly took this Occaſion to upbraid her with her Barrenneſs, when her Huſband expreſſed ſuch extraordinary Kindneſs to her.

Therefore ſhe wept, and did not eat.] Her Grief was ſo great, that it made her turn the Feſtival into a Faſt. So Tertullian underſtands it, who (in his Book de Jejuniis, Cap. vii.) ſaith, God rewarded her Faſting and Prayers with what ſhe deſired; vouchſafing, Inanem cibo Ventrem Filio implere, & quidem Propheta; To fill her Belly empty of Meat, with a Son, and he a Prophet.

Ver. 8. Then ſaid Elkanah her Husband to her, Hannah, why weepeſt thou, and why eateſt thou not, and why is thy Heart grieved, am not I better to thee than ten Sons?] In him we have an Example of a moſt excellent Huſband; who patiently tolerated the inſolent Humour of Peninnah; and comforted dejected Hannah with Words full of tender Affection. Which was truely in St. Peter's Language, to dwell with his Wives κατὰ γνῶσιν, according to Knowledge, as Victorinus Strigelius here obſerves. We cannot from the laſt Words of this Verſe conclude, (as ſome of the Hebrew Doctors do) that Peninnah had ten Sons, (which was not ſuch a Pleaſure to her, as the Affection he had for Hannah would have been) for they may ſignify, according to the common Language of holy Scripture, only a great many Sons.

Ver. 9. And Hannah roſe up after they had eaten in Shiloh, and after they had drunk.] The kind Words of Elkanah ſeem to have perſuaded her to eat and drink chearfully. In whom we have an Example of an excellent Wife; who, ſenſible of her Huſband's Kindneſs, endeavoured to pleaſe him, by complying with his Deſires, and avoiding all things that might be grievous to him.

Now Eli the Prieſt.] He was both the High-Prieſt, and alſo the Judge at this time of the Iſraelites; being born in the end of Gideon's Judicature, and died in the middle of the Philiſtines Tyranny over the Iſraelites; twenty Years before the great Victory Samuel got over them at Eben-ezer, as Sir John Marſham computes, who rightly obſerves, that whenſoever his Judicature began (which is not recorded) it conſiſted only in hearing and judging Cauſes by his Pontifical Authority. For he wrought no Deliverance for Iſrael, that we read of: But was ſuch a Judge as Samuel's Sons were, viii. 1. and as Samuel himſelf was, after Saul began to reign. When all the Days of his Life, he continued to go about the Country and do Juſtice; which he adminiſtred alſo when he came home, at his own Houſe, vii. 15, 17.

Sate upon a Seat by a Poſt.] The Hebrew Word is, upon a Throne; it being a Seat raiſed up to ſome Height, to make him conſpicuous to all that entered into the Houſe of God; where he ſat at the Door of it. The Jews in Seder Olam, and in Jalkut, have a Conceit, that Eli was this very Day, when Hannah came to pray, made Judge of Iſrael: So that from hence they date the beginning of his Judicature. But this is a weak Conjecture, built merely on this Phraſe, Sat on his Seat. Where, as Abarbinel obſerves, he ſat as the High-Prieſt, and not as a Judge. And this was no new thing, but according to Cuſtom, that he might preſerve good Order there; give his Advice to thoſe who had occaſion to conſult him; reſolve their Doubts, and give them his Bleſſing. And he thinks that Samuel was born ten Years or more, before the Judicature of Eli.

In the Temple of the LORD.] It is not unuſual to call the Tabernacle by the Name of a Temple: As the Temple, when it was built, is called a Tabernacle. See Jer. x. 20. Lament. ii. 6. Yet the Talmudiſts, from the Hebrew Word Hachil (which is here uſed) ſay, that when the Tabernacle was removed from Gilgal to Shiloh, the Sides of it were built of Stone, and cover'd at the top with Curtains, having no ſolid Roof. And from hence they fancy it is called Beth, the Houſe of the LORD, ver. 24. which Maimonides interprets an Houſe of Stone. But there is no certainty of this: For ſuch Words as theſe have a larger Senſe. And indeed we are taught as much by the 1 Kings iii. 2. where it is expreſly ſaid, that there was no Houſe built unto the Name of the LORD, 'till the Days of Solomon: And 2 Sam. vii. 6. where Nathan ſpeaks in God's Name to David, in theſe Words; I have not dwelt in an Houſe ſince I came out of Egypt. See L'Empereur in his Preface to Codex Middoth.

From the firſt Words of this Verſe, it appears that Hannah roſe up to go to the Temple at the time of the Evening Sacrifice, for it was after they had dined.

Ver. 10. And ſhe was in Bitterneſs of Soul, and prayed unto the LORD, and wept ſore.] Her Grief returned when ſhe was alone, and thought of her Barrenneſs; which made her pray with great Vehemence, and many Tears, for a Child.

Ver. 11. And ſhe vowed a Vow.] As was uſual, when they earneſtly longed to obtain what they ſought with Prayers and Tears.

And ſaid, O LORD, if thou wilt indeed look upon the Afflictions of thy Handmaid, and remember me, and not forget thy Handmaid.] Theſe are three various Expreſſions of the ſame thing: Whereby ſhe declares, tho' with great Humility, how much ſhe was concern'd, to obtain her Requeſt, of being delivered from her Barrenneſs: For that's the Meaning of looking upon her Affliction, and remembering her. See Gen. viii. 1. Exod. iii. 7, 16.

But wilt give unto thy Handmaid a Man-Child.] She thrice calls herſelf his Handmaid, out of a profound Senſe of her Meanneſs, and his Majeſty: And deſires a Man-Child, becauſe only ſuch could wait upon the LORD in the Service of the Tabernacle; as ſhe intended her Son ſhould do, if God beſtowed one upon her.

Then will I give unto the LORD all the Days of my Life.] The Levites were not bound to ſerve at the Tabernacle 'till they were Twenty five Years old; and not after they were Fifty: But ſhe devoted him to the Miniſtry there, from his Childhood, as long as he lived.

And there ſhall no Razor come upon his Head.] She vowed he would be a Nazarite; Part of whoſe Deſcription this is, Numb. vi. 5. And ſo the beſt of the Jewiſh Doctors interpret it; for the Expoſition of the Chaldee Paraphraſt is very forced: But from hence the Opinion of the Talmudiſts is confuted, who ſay (in the Miſchna, in the Title Sota, Cap. iii.) that a Man might devote his Child to be a Nazarite, before he was of Age; but a Woman could not. Nor doth any of them take notice of this Example of Hannah; which hath made ſome think, that poſſibly they look'd upon this as done by an extraordinary Motion, and therefore not to be a Rule to others; eſpecially ſince ſhe did it before her Child was born. See Jo. Wagenſeil, in his learned Notes upon that Book, p. 448.

Ver. 12. And it came to paſs, that as ſhe continued praying before the Lord, that Eli marked her Mouth.] The inward Anguiſh of her Soul, it is probable, made the Motions of her Mouth, and her Countenance, very different from what is uſual.

Ver. 13. Now Hannah ſhe ſpake in her Heart; only her Lips moved, but her Voice was not heard: Therefore Eli thought ſhe had been drunk.] Hearing her ſay nothing, but only ſeeing her Lips move a long time; with ſuch Geſtures, it is likely, of her Body, Hands, and Eyes, as argued a very great Commotion; he took her to be diſordered with the Wine ſhe had drunk liberally at the fore-named Feaſt. For it is apt to make one talk much; and the great Agony wherein ſhe was, might ſomething diſtort her Face.

Ver. 14. And Eli ſaid unto her, How long wilt thou be drunken? Put away thy Wine from thee.] He ſeems to bid her go to Bed and ſleep; and then come and pray to God.

Ver. 15. And Hannah anſwered and ſaid, No, my Lord; I am a Woman of a ſorrowful Spirit, and have drunk neither Wine nor ſtrong Drink.] Of the Difference between Wine and ſtrong Drink, ſee Numb. vi. 3, 5. Great Affliction of Spirit makes one diſtaſte Meat and Drink.

But have poured out my Soul before the LORD.] An uſual Expreſſion for ſincere and fervent Prayer.

Ver. 16. Account not thy Handmaid for a Daughter of Belial.] This is a Phraſe ſignifying the moſt lewd Perſons, that regarded neither God nor Men. See Deut. xiii. 13.

For out of the abundance of my Complaint and Grief have I ſpoken hitherto.] The Accuſation againſt her being very foul, ſhe purgeth herſelf from it very earneſtly; but in a modeſt manner, and with due Reſpect to the Office which Eli held in the Church.

Ver. 17. And Eli anſwered and ſaid, Go in Peace; and the God of Heaven grant thee thy Petition that thou haſt aſked of him.] Her ſober and reſpectful Anſwer convinced the old Man of his Error; and moved him to diſmiſs her with his Bleſſing, and a ſolemn Prayer to God, that he would grant her Requeſt.

Ver. 18. And ſhe ſaid, Let thy Handmaid find Grace in thy ſight.] For which ſhe returned him moſt humble Thanks; and deſired the Continuance of his Prayers.

So the Woman went her way and did eat, and her Countenance was no more ſad.] She departed from the Temple with ſuch Satisfaction, and Aſſurance, her own Prayers and his would be heard, that there remained no more any Token of Sorrow and Grief; but ſhe eat her Meat, and looked chearfully.

Ver. 19. And they roſe up in the Morning early, and worſhipped before the LORD; and returned and came to their Houſe in Ramah.] I ſuppoſe ſhe acquainted Elkanah with her Prayer, and with Eli his Bleſſing: And it is likely, that he now made a ſolemn Vow to God, if he would be pleaſed to fulfil her Petition. See ver. 21.

And Elkanah knew Hannah his Wife, and the LORD remembred her.] According to her Prayer, ver. 11.

Ver. 20. And it came to paſs, when the time was come about, after Hannah conceived.] The uſual time that Women go with Child, before they be delivered.

That ſhe bare a Son, and called his Name Samuel.] Sometimes Fathers, and ſometimes Mothers, gave the Name to their Children. See upon Gen. iv. 26.

Saying, Becauſe I have aſked him of the LORD.] This was the Reaſon of his Name: Which ſhe gave him, that he as well as ſhe might keep in mind the Intereſt God had in him; from whom ſhe obtained him, by ardent Prayers. For Saul-meel (which is contracted into Samuel) ſignifies Aſk'd of God, as we tranſlate this word in the Margin of our Bibles. He was born (as Sir John Maſham computes, with great Probability) in the time when the Philiſtines domineer'd over Iſrael for forty Years together, (ſee Judges x. 7. xiii. 1.) but in what Year cannot certainly be determined.

Ver. 21. And the Man Elkanah, and all his Houſe, went up to offer unto the LORD the yearly Sacrifice.] At the Feaſt of the Paſſover, or ſome other of the three great Feſtivals. He is a great Example of Piety; who carried his whole Family to worſhip God with him, at thoſe ſolemn Times which the Law enjoined.

And his Vow.] Which it is likely he made, either when he ſaw his Wife was with Child; or perhaps before, when ſhe told him what hope ſhe had her Prayer would be heard, and he worſhipped God, ver. 19.

Ver. 22. But Hannah went not up; for ſhe ſaid unto her Husband, I will not go up 'till the Child be weaned; and then I will bring him, that he may appear before the LORD, and there abide for ever.] She was not bound by the Law to go up with her Huſband: And therefore, tho' ſhe was wont to go, ſhe reſolved as became a prudent Woman to ſtay at home, 'till the Child was ſtrong enough, not only to accompany her, but to be left at the Houſe of the LORD, and be capable of being inſtructed in the Service of God.

Ver. 23. And Elkanah her Husband ſaid unto her, do what ſeemeth thee good; tarry until thou haſt weaned him.] Interpreters here note, the ſweet Agreement that ought to be (according to the Example of this happy Couple) between Huſband and Wife.

Only the LORD eſtabliſh his Word.] We do not read of any thing the LORD had ſpoken about this Child: Unleſs Elkanah look'd upon what Eli had ſaid, as ſpoken by God, becauſe he was God's High-Prieſt. Or the Hebrew Words may be tranſlated, the LORD eſtabliſh his Work, i. e. perfect what he hath begun, by making the Child grow till he was fit for his Service. For the Word Dabar ſignifies any Matter or Thing as well as Word.

So the Woman abode.] At home.

And gave the Child ſuck till ſhe weaned him.] She herſelf was his Nurſe, and ſuckled him, after the Example of Sarah. (See upon Gen. xxi. 7.) And, it is likely, continued to do ſo (out of her great Affection to him) ſeveral Years. Some think three; but it is not improbable ſix or ſeven, as Lyra conjectures. And ſo long I remember one to have ſuck'd, in the Place where I was born.

Ver. 24. And when ſhe had weaned him, ſhe took him up with her, with three Bullocks, and one Ephah of Flour, and a Bottle of Wine.] As they were not to appear before the LORD empty; ſo, upon this Occaſion, they brought an ample Offering to him; to teſtify their Gratitude to the Divine Majeſty. And it is highly probable, that one of theſe Bullocks was wholly offered to God, as a Burnt-Offering; and the other two were Peace-offerings; or, as ſome will have it, one a Sin-offering, and the other a Peace-offering. Which had a large Meaſure of Flour for a Meat-offering, and of Wine alſo attending it; that they might rejoice together before the LORD, when they feaſted with him upon the Peace-offering.

And brought him unto the Houſe of the LORD in Shiloh; and the Child was young.] In the Hebrew the Words are, Hanaar-naar, the Child was a Child, i. e. wholly at their diſpoſal.

Ver. 25. And they ſlew the Bullock, and brought the Child to Eli.] They firſt performed their Duty to God, by offering an whole Burnt-offering to him; reſerving the reſt, I ſuppoſe, till they had aquainted Eli with God's Goodneſs to them, that they might all rejoice together.

Ver. 26. And ſhe ſaid, O my Lord, as thy Soul liveth, my Lord, I am the Woman that ſtood by thee here, praying unto the LORD.] Many take theſe Words, As thy Soul liveth, for an Oath; whereby ſhe aſſures him, that as certain as he was alive, ſhe was the Perſon whom he ſaw in that Place praying, and took for a diſtemper'd Woman. But others (particularly D. Kimchi) think there is nothing of an Oath in them, they being only a Form of Well-wiſhing to him; as if ſhe ſaid, I wiſh thee a long Life, that thou may'ſt educate my Son.

Ver. 27. For this Child I prayed, and the LORD hath given me my Petition which I aſked of him.] She had told him nothing of what ſhe prayed for, when he reproved her; but only in general, that ſhe was extremely afflicted for want of ſomething, which ſhe earneſtly begg'd of God. But now ſhe acquaints him with it, and with her Vow ſhe made, if God granted her Deſire; which ſhe was now come to accompliſh.

Ver. 28. And therefore alſo I have lent him unto the LORD.] Or reſtored him to the LORD (as the Targum expounds it) from whoſe Gift ſhe received him.

As long as he liveth, he ſhall be lent unto the LORD.] Or as the Words may be tranſlated, All the Days that he ſhall be deſired for the LORD. That is, as long as God ſhould think fit to employ him in his own Houſe; which was till he made him a Judge, vii. 15. Then he was not fixed at Shiloh, but went about the Country to Bethel, and Gilgal, and Miſpeh; and then ſettled at his own Houſe in Ramah, as we read there, ver. 17.

And he worſhipped the LORD there.] This ſhews that Elkanah was with Hannah, and gave his Conſent to this Dedication of their Child, to ſuch Service as God ſhould think fit to employ him in: Which he humbly prayed God to accept.

CHAP. II.

Ver. 1. AND Hannah prayed, and ſaid.] Hymns are wont to be comprehended under the Name of Prayers, Pſal. lxxi. 20. to the Compoſition of which holy Souls were ſometimes raiſed by Divine Inſpiration, in their devout Meditations upon the extraordinary Goodneſs of God to them. And indeed, it was the moſt ancient way, as I have obſerved heretofore, of preſerving the Memory of Things to Poſterity: Poets being more ancient than Hiſtorians, or Orators, as Lactantius obſerves, L. vii. Div. Inſtit. Cap. 23. Nor were the Weſtern People leſs famous for this than the Eaſtern: The Germans for inſtance having their moſt ancient Annals in Verſe; as Hermannus Conringius hath ſhewn out of a great many Authors in his Preface to Corn. Tacitus, de Germanorum Moribus.

My Heart rejoiceth in the LORD.] She was acted by the ſame Spirit which moved S. James to give this Direction, Chap. v. ver. 13. Is any afflicted, let him pray, (as ſhe did, i. 10.) is any merry, let him ſing Pſalms, as ſhe now doth: For ſhe was lately extremely ſad and ſorrowful, and could not eat: But now by the Goodneſs of God, is filled with Joy; which made her burſt out into this Thankſgiving.

My Horn is exalted in the LORD.] She who was bowed down and dejected, now lifts up her Head and triumphs: For exalting the Horn ſignifies the Height of Glory.

My Mouth is enlarged over my Enemy.] She was now furniſhed with a full Anſwer to Peninnah, who upbraided her with her Sterility.

Becauſe I rejoice in thy Salvation.] All this Joy and Triumph aroſe from the Goodneſs of God to her; who had delivered her from the Reproach of Barrenneſs: Which raiſed her, as appears by the Sequel, to the Expectation of far greater things.

Ver. 2. There is none holy as the LORD.] The Holineſs of God ſignifies his peerleſs Perfections; as Mr. Mede hath ſhewn in many Parts of his Works. See p. 11.

For

For there is none beſides thee.] Which Perfections are peculiar to himſelf : For though the Scripture vouchſafeth ſometimes unto the Gentile Dæmons, the Name of Gods, yet it never calls them Holy Ones.

Neither is there any Rock like our Rock.] See upon Deut. xxxii. 31.

Ver. 3. Talk no more ſo exceeding proudly.] This was good Advice to Peninnah, and ſuch like Perſons ; not to inſult over others who are not ſo happy as themſelves.

Let not Arrogance come out of your Mouth.] Or, as the Targum interprets it, forbear Reproaches. For ſo the Hebrew Word Atat ſignifies, hard Words.

For the LORD is a God of Knowledge.] None knows what he intends, who perhaps will exalt thoſe who are now abaſed. Or, he knows how to bring to paſs ſuch things, as Men think to be impoſſible.

And by him Acts are weighed.] Or, by him Works are prepared : Even when there is no Diſpoſition in Nature to them.

Ver. 4. The Bows of the mighty Men are broken, and they that ſtumbled, are girt with Strength.] Now the great Senſe ſhe had of God's Power, branches out itſelf into an humble Acknowledgment of this glorious Attribute, in divers Inſtances. And firſt, in vanquiſhing the moſt Victorious : For Bows were a principal Part of Warriors Weapons, Pſal. xliv. 6. and their Girdles being a principal Part of the Military Habit, is elegantly tranſlated to ſignify Strength and warlike Proweſs. Whence Virgil calls feeble Perſons, unmeet for War, diſcinctos, ungirt, as Servius obſerves. See Bochart in Canaan, Lib. 2. Cap. 13. whence the Apoſtle, among the Spiritual Armour, exhorts the Epheſians to be girt about with Truth, Epheſ. vi. For to gird and to arm, to be girt and to be armed, are the ſame thing in Greek and Latin Authors. See alſo Pſal. xviii. 39. lxv. 6.

Ver. 5. They that were full, have hired themſelves for Bread ; and they that were hungry, ceaſed.] to complain of Hunger. This Viciſſitude of Human Affairs, eſpecially the ſudden Turns there are ſometimes from a great height of Proſperity to a very low Condition, and on the contrary, are very wonderful, and ſeriouſly to be pondered ; that no Man may be proud, nor any Man deſpair. The Inſtances of theſe in Hiſtory, are to be found in a great many Authors, beſides what our own Experience may furniſh us withal.

So that the Barren hath born ſeven.] That is, many Children. She reflects upon the great Change which God had made in her own Condition. And Procopius Gazæus notes, that here, Hymno Prophetiam admiſcet ; ſhe mingles Prophecy with her Hymn of Praiſe, and foretels the Fecundity of the Church : For the Number Seven denotes a Multitude.

And ſhe that hath many Children is waxen feeble.] The Jews fancy, that every time Hannah bare a Child, two of Peninnah's Children died. But this ſeems rather to have a general Reſpect to thoſe that have been fertile, and grow barren when God pleaſeth.

Ver. 6. The LORD killeth and maketh alive ; he bringeth down to the Grave, and bringeth up.] The ſame thing is repeated in different Words ; and the Senſe is, the Power of Life and Death is in the hands of God : Whom he pleaſes he takes out of the World, and whom he pleaſes he continues in it ; raiſing Men up even from the Grave, when they were dropping into it. See Deut. xxxii. 39. Pſal. xxx. 3.

Ver. 7. The LORD maketh poor, and maketh rich ; he bringeth low, and raiſeth up.] She acknowledgeth the Power and Wiſdom of God, in making Men of different Conditions ; ſome poor, and others rich ; yea, in making the ſame Men who were very poor, to become very rich ; and they who were mean and contemptible, become great and eminent. Theodoret treats excellently of the wiſe Providence of God, in not making Men all alike ; but ſome of a lower, ſome of an higher Rank : Oration. vi. againſt the Heathens.

Ver. 8. He raiſeth the Poor out of the Duſt, and lifteth up the Beggar from the Dunghil ; to ſet them among Princes, and to make them inherit the Throne of Glory.] Inſtances of this in the Holy Scriptures are Joſeph and Daniel ; the one a Priſoner, the other a Captive : But preferred to the higheſt Dignity, by the Kings of Egypt and Babylon. And in theſe later Ages, Victorinus Strigelius obſerves a memorable Inſtance of the Truth of theſe Words, in Matthias Corvinus, King of Hungary ; who was brought out of Priſon, and ſet on the Throne, not by Sedition, nor by Civil War ; but by the unanimous Conſent of all the Eſtates of the Realm, in grateful Memory of the Benefits they had received by his Father, the Great Hunniades.

For the Pillars of the Earth are the LORD's, and he hath ſet the World upon them.] Theſe Words contain the Reaſon of all that precedes in the five foregoing Verſes : For the very Earth being founded, upheld, and ſupported by the LORD, no wonder that all the Inhabiters of it are in his power, to diſpoſe of them as he thinks good.

Ver. 9. He will keep the Feet of his Saints, and the Wicked ſhall be ſilent in Darkneſs.] Pious Affections in thoſe Days roſe up, many times, to the Height of Prophecy : Whereby God continued in that Nation his true Relation, in the midſt of their idolatrous Inclinations. Accordingly here Hannah begins to predict the Deliverances of the Iſraelites, (who were God's Holy Ones, or Saints, by being peculiarly ſeparated to him and his Service) from the hand of the Philiſtines, and other Enemies : Who ſhe propheſies ſhould ſtumble and fall, as Men do in the Dark, when the Iſraelites, by God's Direction, ſucceeded in their Enterprizes.

For by Strength ſhall no Man prevail.] As appeared afterwards in Goliah.

Ver. 10. The Adverſaries of the LORD ſhall be broken in pieces ; out of Heaven ſhall he thunder upon them.] As he did literally when Samuel fought with the Philiſtines, vii. 10. and when David alſo vanquiſhed them, Pſal. xviii. 13. Procopius Gazæus applies this to the Aſſumption of Chriſt, with the Miſſion of the Holy Ghoſt, and the happy Succeſs of the Apoſtles Preaching, and to Chriſt's ſecond Coming.

The LORD ſhall judge the Ends of the Earth.] As he did when he ſubdued the Philiſtines, who who lived in the Extremity of the Country of Judea, Westward: And now sorely oppressed the Israelites.

And he shall give Strength unto his King.] That is, to David. Of whom she prophesies; who was most properly God's King, whom he appointed in the room of Saul; who by his Disobedience forfeited his Kingdom, and was rejected by God.

And exalt the Horn of his Anointed.] God commanded Saul to be anointed by Samuel, x. 1. but it was upon Condition, which he not fulfilling, the same Person was commanded to anoint David, xv. 29. xvi. 1. Upon which the Spirit of the LORD departed from Saul, and rested on David, xvi. 13, 14. Whom God so wonderfully protected, that all the Subtlety and Power of Saul could not destroy him: And when he came to the Throne, God wonderfully exalted him, as she here speaks: By enlarging his Dominion very far, and making him such a glorious Prince (higher than the Kings of the Earth) that he was the most eminent Type of the great King of all, our LORD Christ, to whom these Words in the fullest Sense belong. 'For who doth not see, saith 'St. Austin, (in his xvii. Book, de Civitate Dei, 'Cap. iv.) that the Spirit of this Woman, '(whose Name was Anna, which signifies 'Grace) propheſied of the Christian Religion, 'the City of God, whose King and Founder 'is Christ; and of the Grace of God, from 'which the Proud are estranged, that they 'may fall; but the Humble are filled with it, 'that they may rise: Which is the chief Import of this Hymn. And indeed this is the first time that the Name of Messiah (or Anointed) is found in Scripture: There being no such Word in all the foregoing Books of Moses, Joshua, the Judges, or Ruth. And therefore, it is the more to be remarked: This Propheteſs being the first that mentions the MESSIAH, in this Song: With which the Song of the blessed Virgin hath such a perfect Resemblance, that one cannot but think Hannah had a respect to something higher than the Quarrel between her and Peninnah, and the Son which God had given her, or the great Acts of David: For the Words are too magnificent to be confined to so low a Sense. And therefore Kimchi upon these Words ingenuously acknowledges, the King here mentioned is the MESSIAH; of whom Hannah spake either by Prophecy or Tradition. For there was a Tradition among them, that there should a great King arise in Israel: And she seals up this Song, with the Mention of that King, who should save them from all their Enemies.

It may be thus paraphrased.

1. Great is the Goodness of God to me, which makes my Heart leap for Joy; great is the Honour he hath done me: So that my Mouth, which had nothing to answer when my Enemy upbraided me, now boasts of the Favour of God to me, who to my exceeding great Joy hath bestowed a Son upon me.

2. For the LORD is incomparable in all Perfections, which none have but himself alone: Whose Excellencies are so transcendent, that there is none in whom we can find so secure a Sanctuary in all our Troubles, as we have in him.

3. Do not vaunt and brag therefore any more on this fashion, nor speak contemptuously of others: For as nothing can be hid from him; so he knows how to bring to pass the strangest Things: Nor can any Man hinder, (let their Pride, and Confidence, and Power, be ever so great) but his Counsel shall stand.

4. The Strength of armed Forces is good for nothing, if not prospered by him: Who brings down those who were mighty Conquerors; and advances those who were their miserable Slaves.

5. The Rich have been seen to fall into such Decay, as to want their necessary Food: And poor starved Wretches have come to great Plenty. As likewise barren Women, as I, have had a numerous Off-spring, and they that had many Children lost them all.

6. No Man can keep himself alive, when God calls him away from hence: And he unexpectedly restores Men to Life, when they were in the very Jaws of Death.

7. It is according as he orders, that some Men are rich, others poor: And the very same Men who now are in a low Condition, he raises up to Greatness and Splendor; and on the contrary, abaseth those that walk in Pride.

8. They that are in the most sordid plight, he advances when he pleases, to the most glorious State: For what can hinder him from shaking the very Foundations of the Earth, and overturning all things; which are upheld and supported only by his Almighty Power?

9. The best way therefore is, by Piety, to secure the Favour of God; who by preserving all his faithful Servants from falling, will fill their Mouths with his Praises: But confound the Wicked, who now boast themselves, when with Amazement they are thrown down into a miserable Condition. For let not any Man be so vain as to imagine, that by his Strength he can maintain himself in his high Station; or keep down good Men from rising up to Glory.

10. They that oppose God shall be broken in pieces; he will strike a Terror into them, and make them fall flat before him. For it is he that is the Judge of the World; and there is no Corner of it where Men can hide themselves from his Sentence: He will advance the King whom he shall chuse, even the LORD Christ; and make him great in spite of all Opposers: Who shall not be able to hinder his Exaltation, or the Growth and Increase of his Kingdom.

Ver. 11. And Elkanah went to Ramah to his House.] When the Festival was ended.

And the Child did minister unto the LORD.] As soon as he was capable.

Before Eli the Priest.] According as he appointed him.

Ver. 12. Now the Sons of Eli were Sons of Belial.] Very wicked Men (see Deut. xiii. 13.) being impious, covetous, guilty of Violence, and filthy Lusts.

They knew not the LORD.] They were not professed Atheists; but they minded not the Divine Service, nor took any care to do God honour; being ignorant (as Kimchi expounds it) of his Law.

Ver.

Ver. 13. And the Prieſt's Cuſtom was, when any Man offered Sacrifice.] Brought his Peace-Offerings to be offered at the Altar.

That the Prieſt's Servant came while the Fleſh was ſeething, with a Fleſh-hook of three Teeth in his Hand.] The Perſon who brought the Peace-Offerings having the largeſt Share in theſe Sacrifices, there were certain Rooms, when the Temple was built, both in the Court of the Women, and of the Men, wherein they had liberty to boil the Fleſh, in order to feaſt with God at his own Houſe: Which Chriſtians afterward imitated in their Feaſts of Charity. The like Rooms there were at the Tabernacle in the outward Court of it. See L'Empereur, in his Annot. upon Codex Middoth, Cap. 2. Sect. 6. p. 80, 81.

Ver. 14. And he ſtruck it into the Pan, or Kettle, or Cauldron, or Pot.] There were ſeveral ſorts of Veſſels for this Uſe; according as the Fleſh to be boiled was little or much.

All that the Fleſh-hook brought up, the Prieſt took for himſelf.] This was a new Cuſtom, which they prophanely introduced: For not content with the Right Shoulder, and the Breaſt, which were theirs by the Law, (Levit. vii. 32.) they would take what they pleaſed of the reſt, that belonged to the People: At leaſt, ſo much as a Fork with three Teeth brought up, when they ſtruck it into the Pot where the Fleſh was boiling.

So they did in Shiloh unto all the Iſraelites that came thither.] This aggravated their Crime, that they made a conſtant Practice of it: And did not only on ſome Occaſions commit ſuch Wickedneſs.

Ver. 15. And before they burnt the Fat.] Which entirely belonged unto God, Levit. ii. 16. vii. 23, 25.

The Prieſt's Servant came and ſaid to the Man that ſacrificed, Give Fleſh to roaſt for the Prieſt.] This was an high Contempt of God, to demand their Part before God had his. For the nobleſt Gueſts at Feaſts were always ſerved firſt.

For he will not have ſodden Fleſh of thee, but raw.] The Fleſh-hook did not always bring up the beſt; therefore as ſoon as the Sacrifice was cut up, they came and took the choiceſt Pieces.

Ver. 16. And if any Man ſaid unto him, Let them not fail to burn the Fat preſently, and then take as much as thy Soul deſireth: Then he would anſwer; Nay, but thou ſhalt give it me now; if not, I will take it by Force.] This argues the very Height of imperious Impiety, that ſuch ſubmiſſive Language ſhould not prevail with them, to have ſo much Reſpect to God, as to let him have his Portion in the firſt place: Though they offered the Prieſt more than his Share, after God was ſerved. None knows to what pitch of Wickedneſs a Man may arrive, when once the Senſe of God is extinguiſhed, and gone out of his Mind.

Ver. 17. Wherefore the Sin of the young Men was very great before the LORD.] Having many grievous Aggravations.

For Men abhorred the Offering of the LORD.] Nothing brings Religion ſo much into the Contempt of the People, as the open Prophaneneſs of thoſe who are the Miniſters of it.

Ver. 18. But Samuel miniſtred before the LORD, being a Child.] Though very young, yet he carefully performed ſuch Offices at the Tabernacle, as he was capable to diſcharge: And did not follow the bad Example of his Familiars and Domeſticks; as we may ſuppoſe Hophni and Phineas were.

Girded with a Linnen Ephod.] We do not read any where of any peculiar Garments appointed for the Levites in their Miniſtration; but only for the Prieſts; and this was none of them, as appears from Exod. xxviii. 40, 41. And therefore the Ephod which the Prieſts are ſaid to wear in Chap. xxii. of this Book, ver. 18. were quite different from the Ephod ordered in Exod. xxviii. for Aaron the High-Prieſt alone: Which had a curious Girdle belonging to it, and the Breaſt-plate with precious Stones inſeparable from it; and was wrought with Gold, and Blue and Purple, and Scarlet, Exod. xxviii. 6. But the Ephod which the Prieſts, or any other Perſons are ſaid to wear, is (for diſtinction ſake) always called Ephod bad, an Ephod made of fine Linnen: Which was not a Sacred, but an Honorary Veſtment, (as I may call it) being a ſhort Garment hanging upon the Shoulders, down to the middle of the Back; but without any Girdle or curious Work in it: which having ſome Likeneſs to that of the High-Prieſt's, was uſed by the inferior Prieſts, to make them more reſpected as ſpecial Miniſters of God; and by other great Perſons, upon ſome ſolemn Occaſion, as David did, 2 Sam. vi. 24. And Eli (ſeeing ſuch a great Appearance of God in him) ordered Samuel to do; though it was not a Habit appertaining to the Levites; much leſs to him who was not of Age, according to the exact Rules of the Law to ſerve in the Tabernacle. Thus Kimchi and Ralbag underſtand it. And the LXX, in 2 Sam. vi. 15. tranſlate it σολὴν ἑξαλλου, an eximious Garment. See Jo. Braunius de Veſt. Sacerd. L. 2. Cap. vi. p. 602.

It ſeems no improbable Conjecture of Fortunatus Scacchus, That from hence was derived the Latus Clavus among the Romans, which was a Veſtment proper to their Senators and Preſidents. It was firſt brought from the Hetruſcans, by Tullus Hoſtilius, when he conquer'd them: Whoſe ancient Language agrees ſo much with the Hebrew, that one may well think they had many things from them. See Myrothec. Cap. iii. 43.

Ver. 19. Moreover, his Mother made him a little Coat, and brought it to him from Year to Year, when ſhe came up with her Husband to offer the yearly Sacrifice.] The Ephod being uſed, I ſuppoſe, only in the Service of God, it was provided at the publick Charge. But for his ordinary wearing, Hannah took care, at her Charge, to provide him a Coat, and other things, it is likely, ſuitable to it; that ſhe might ſtill expreſs her Piety in contributing to his Maintenance at the Houſe of God. And it is very probable, that this little Coat was woven with her own Hands; as the ancient Traditions, that Chriſt's Seamleſs Coat was woven by the bleſſed Virgin. And ſo in Joma the Doctors ſay, (Cap. iii.) that a Prieſt might uſe a Garment ment in his Miniſtry, which was made by his Mother. See Braunius L. i. Cap. xvii.

Ver. 20. And Eli bleſſed Elkanah and Hannah his Wife, and ſaid, The LORD give thee ſeed of this woman, for the loan which is lent unto the LORD.] He gave them this Benediction by a divine Suggeſtion; and thereby verified what ſhe utter'd in her Prophetical Song, ver. 5.

And they went to their own home.] Their Affection to their Son did not make them ſtay there, and neglect their Domeſtick Affairs.

Ver. 21. And the LORD viſited Hannah, ſo that ſhe conceived and bare three ſons, and two Daughters.] None are Loſers, by what they lend unto the LORD.

And the Child Samuel grew before the LORD.] Not only in Stature, but in Wiſdom alſo and Virtue: See ver. 26. Of ſo great moment it is to ſeaſon the Minds of Children early with a ſenſe of God and of Religion: Which is likely to continue with them, and improve, as they grow in Years.

Ver. 22. Now Eli was very old.] Which made him liſtleſs and unactive.

And heard all that his Sons did unto all Iſrael.] Yet wanted not Information of all the forementioned enormous Practices of his Sons.

And how they lay with the Women that aſſembled.] Whoſe Impiety and Luxury proceeded ſo far, as to move them to debauch thoſe Women who came to worſhip God. Of the word aſſembled, ſee Exod. xxviii. 8. Unto which may be added, that the Hebrew word Tzaba ſignifies not only a great many gathered together, but alſo a Station: That is, ſtated times of attendance, which devout Women obſerved for Faſting and Prayer. For that was their Buſineſs at the Temple; unto which they reſorted at certain Times for theſe ends.

At the door of the Tabernacle of the Congregation.] Theſe words ſound as if they committed this Lewdneſs in the preſence of all the People. But ſuch Beſtiality would not have been ſuffered; and therefore this refers to their aſſembling at the Door of the Tabernacle: From whence they led them to ſome private Room about the Tabernacle, (as there were many afterward about the Temple) where they defiled them.

Ver. 23. And he ſaid unto them, Why do you theſe things?] Before mentioned, ver. 14, 15, 16, 22.

For I hear of your evil doings by all this people.] Their Wickedneſs was ſo notorious, that there was a general Complaint of it; which ſhould have moved him to greater Severity, than meerly to reprove and chide them with ſuch Gentleneſs and Lenity, as theſe and the following Words import. Which proceeded partly from the Coldneſs of Old Age; partly from his too great Indulgence to his Children; and partly (as Corn. Benavent. Bertram conjectures) from his being more intent upon the Defence of their Civil Liberties, than the reſtoring Eccleſiaſtical Diſcipline.

Ver. 24. Nay, my Sons, it is no good report that I hear; ye make the LORD*'s people to tranſgreſs.*] By making them neglect and deſpiſe the Service of God, ver. 17. and tempting them to Lewdneſs, ver. 22. This is the Language of a tender Father, not of a zealous Judge; who ought to have paſſed a publick Cenſure upon them, for their publick Crimes, by turning them out of their Office, or ſome ſharp Puniſhment; which his Office gave him Authority and Power to inflict upon ſuch infamous Offenders.

Ver. 25. If a man ſin againſt another, the Judge ſhall judge him: but if a man ſin againſt the LORD, who ſhall intreat for him?] If one Neighbour do an Injury to another, the Buſineſs may be compoſed by the Judge; who interpoſing his Authority, either takes up the difference, or ſees the Perſon ſatisfied who was offended. But if one injure the Judge himſelf, (which was the preſent Caſe) who ſhall take the confidence to ſpeak in his behalf? Was it ever heard, that any one interceeded for a Man to his Prince, when he intended to kill the Prince himſelf? Eli argued well; but he ſhould not have referred their Puniſhment unto God, when it was in his power to puniſh them himſelf.

Notwithſtanding they hearkened not unto the voice of their father; becauſe the LORD would ſlay them.] The words may be render'd out of the Hebrew But they would not hearken to the voice of their father; therefore the LORD reſolved to ſlay them.] But according to our Tranſlation, the Senſe is right enough: For when Men have long ſinned grievouſly againſt many Admonitions (which it may be ſuppoſed their Father had given them) whereby they became incurable; God deprives them of that prudent Conſideration and Diſcretion, which would ſave them from Deſtruction. So Raſi upon theſe words, The Sentence of Judgment was already ſealed againſt them.

Ver. 26. And the Child Samuel grew on, and was in favour both with the LORD and with men.] The words in the Hebrew are, he went on, or grew great and tall, and was good, that is, acceptable, both to God and Men. The meaning is, he made a great Progreſs in Wiſdom and Goodneſs, as well as increaſed in Stature: So that God was well pleaſed with him, and he was well eſteemed by the People. The ſame is ſaid of our Saviour, Luke ii. 52. where Theophylact thus gloſſes, Τετέστι, καὶ τῷ Θεῷ εὐάρεστα ἐπράττε, καὶ τοῖς ἀνθρώποις ἐπαινετά; i. e. He did thoſe things that were well-pleaſing to God, and were praiſed by Men.

Ver. 27. And there came a Man of God unto Eli.] That is, a Prophet who was divinely inſpired, to deliver the following Meſſage to him. Some ſay this was Phineas, others Elkanah; without any ground.

And ſaid unto him, Thus ſaith the LORD.] This is the conſtant Language of Prophets.

Did I plainly appear.] In the Hebrew, Manifeſtly reveal my ſelf.

Unto the Houſe of thy Fathers.] Unto Aaron, who was the Head of the Family of Prieſts. See Exod. iv. 27.

When they were in Egypt, in Pharaoh's houſe?] In miſerable Bondage. As much as to ſay, Have I conferred ſuch Favours upon you, and do you thus requite me? It is the way of the Prophets, when they call Men to repentance, to aggravate their Sins by an enumeration of God's great great Benefits unto them. See Iſaiah i. 2, &c. and Micah vi. 3, 4, 5.

Ver. 28. And did I chuſe him out of all the Tribes of Iſrael, to be my Prieſt?] The higheſt Dignity in the Nation.

To offer upon mine Altar, to burn incenſe, to wear an ephod before me.] Theſe were the ſeveral parts of the Prieſt's Office: And the laſt contains the greateſt of them all, which belonged only to the High Prieſt; who alone appeared before God to conſult him by Urim and Thummim, when he wore the Golden Ephod, with the Breaſt-plate annexed to it: For they were inſeparable, Exod. xxviii. 6, 12, 28.

And did I give unto the Houſe of thy Fathers, all the Offerings made by fire of the children of Iſrael?] There were none of the Sacrifices offered at the Altar, of which the Prieſt had not ſome Share, (ſee Numb. xviii. 8, 9, 10, &c.) For even of the Burnt-offerings, which were wholly conſumed on the Altar, the Skin was by an expreſs Law given to the Prieſt, Lev. vii. 8.

Ver. 29. Wherefore kick ye at my Sacrifice, and at my Offerings which I have commanded in my Habitation? As refractory Oxen were wont to do, when they were prick'd with a Goad, to ſtir them up to work at the Plough: Which ſignifies the higheſt Irreverence and Contempt of God's Authority. See Bochart in his Hierozoicon, P. i. Lib. 2. Cap. xxix. latter end.

And honoureſt thy Sons above me, &c.] By ſuffering them to continue in the Prieſt's Office, and prophanely to feaſt themſelves with the beſt of the Sacrifices before God was ſerved.

Ver. 30. Wherefore the LORD God of Iſrael ſaith, I ſaid indeed, that thy Houſe, and the Houſe of thy father, ſhould walk before me for ever; but now, ſaith the LORD, be it far from me.] God revokes the Decree he had made in favour of him and his Family, of being High-Prieſts throughout all Generations. Which Office was firſt ſettled upon Eleazar, the eldeſt Son of Aaron, and upon his Poſterity, for the very ſame Promiſe is made to Phineas the Son of Eleazar, (Numb. xxv. 15.) which is here ſaid to be made to Eli, who was deſcended from Ithamar, the youngeſt Son of Aaron: Unto whom the High-Prieſthood was tranſlated from the Family of Eleazar, for ſome Sin or other: As now it was reſolved it ſhould be tranſlated back again from the Family of Ithamar to that of Eleazar; becauſe of the horrid Sins of the Sons of Eli. For what Cauſe Phineas or his Poſterity, (for there are various Opinions about the time) loſt the Prieſthood; and how they recovered it in the time of David: See Mr. Selden L. i. de Succeſſ. ad Pontificat. Cap. 2, 3. And Conſtant. L'Empereur, in his Annot. on Bertram de Repub. Jud. p. 411. Some think, that after Phineas, thoſe three Perſons mentioned in 1 Chron. vi. 45. Abiſhua, Bukki, and Uzzi, ſucceeded in the Prieſthood; and then came in Eli: But of this there is no certainty. Procopius Gazæus here obſerves, that this Verſe, Latenter totius Judaici Sacerdotii finem innuit; doth ſecretly intimate the aboliſhing of the whole Jewiſh Prieſthood. For this Promiſe, ſaith he, Thy Houſe and the Houſe of thy Father, ſhall walk before me for ever; was not made to Ithamar, but to Aaron: And therefore he ſhews here what ſhould befall the whole Tribe. Such conditional Decrees are frequent in Scripture; particularly in Jerem. xviii. 7, 8, 9, 10.

For he that honoureth me, I will honour; and he that deſpiſeth me, ſhall be lightly eſteemed.] A remarkable Inſtance of which we have in the Records of the Chriſtian Church: For Euſebius tells us in the time of that Perſecution which he mentions in the Eighth Book of his Eccleſiaſtical Hiſtory, ſome of the Paſtors of the Church, who had not governed the Flock of Chriſt as they ought to have done, were condemned to be Keepers of Camels, and of the Emperor's Horſes, (a Puniſhment among the Romans in thoſe Days, as Valeſius obſerves) ἡ θεῖα κατακρίναϛα δίκη, &c. The divine Juſtice judging them worthy of no better Employment. Cap. xii. de Martyribus Paleſtinæ.

Ver. 31. Behold the Days come, that I will cut off the Arm of thy Father's Houſe.] Our Arm being the Inſtrument whereby we perform all things; this Threatning ſignifies, that not long hence God would utterly take away all Power and Authority from him, and from his Family; both as he was a Prieſt, and as he was a Judge.

That there ſhall not be an old man in thy Houſe.] But his Poſterity ſhall die, as it follows, ver. 33. in the flower of their age, which was accounted a great Judgment in that Nation. So Menaſſah Ben Iſrael, who obſerves in his Book de Termino Vitæ, p. 87. that the Gemara upon Jebamoth mentions a certain Family in Jeruſalem, none of which commonly lived above eighteen Years. Of which they enquiring the Reaſon of R. Johanan Ben Zachæi, he bad them ſearch, if they were not of the Family of Eli, upon which God had paſſed this Sentence, that they ſhould die in the flower of their age: And it was diſcovered that they ſprang from him.

Ver. 32. And thou ſhalt ſee an enemy in my Sanctuary.] The Marginal Tranſlation ſeems moſt literal, Thou ſhalt ſee the affliction of the Tabernacle. As he did, for he ſaw the Tabernacle deprived of the Ark, which was the Glory of it; and lived to hear the Ark was taken by the Philiſtines, iv. 4, 11. But his Family was not thrown out of the Prieſthood, till the Days of Solomon.

In all the wealth which God ſhall give Iſrael.] The Hebrew words may be tranſlated, After all the good God hath done to Iſrael.

And there ſhall not be an old man in thy Houſe for ever.] He repeats the foregoing Threatning, to ſhew the certainty of it. But ſome by an old man underſtand an Elder. So the Talmudiſts in the Gemara of the Sanhedrim, Cap. i. where they make the meaning to be, that if any of his Family did live long, they ſhould never come to Honour. For ſo they tell the Story, that R. Johanan miſſing of ſome Preferment that was deſigned and endeavoured for him, and taking it very heavily, the Doctors that were his Relations, prayed him not to be troubled; for we are (ſaid they) of the Family of Eli, of whom it is ſaid, There ſhall be no old man of thy houſe for ever; that is, None be promoted to any Dignity.

Ver. 33. And the man of thine whom I ſhall not cut off from my Altar, ſhall be to conſume thy eyes, and to grieve thy heart.] It was not a Favour to let any of them live, but a Puniſhment to thoſe who were were grieved to see the High-Priesthood taken from their Family, and those that belonged to it reduced to great Poverty. It is usual in Scripture, to say that of the Parents, which properly belongs to their Posterity.

And all the Increase of thy House shall die in the flower of their age.] This doth not belong to all the Posterity of Ithamar, but only to the Family of Eli.

Ver. 34. And this shall be a Sign to thee, that shall come upon thy two Sons, Hophni and Phineas, that in one day they shall die both of them.] See iv. 11, 17.

Ver. 35. And I will raise me up a faithful Priest, that shall do all that is in my heart, and in my mind.] This seems to be meant of Zadock, who was anointed in the room of Abiathar, 1 Chron. xxix. 22.

And I will build him a sure House.] The High-Priesthood continued in his Line till the Captivity of Babylon, as appears from Ezek. xl. 16. and a long time after it, as Josephus shews, Lib. x. Cap. 4. And our famous Selden, Lib. 1. de Success. in Pontif. Cap. 5, 6. where he shows their perpetual Succession till the time of Antiochus Epiphanes. But Procopius Gazæus here notes, that tho' this, according to the History, is meant of Zadock, who was put into the Priesthood by Solomon, and in whose Line it continued; yet it belongs to none in the highest Sense, but to our LORD Jesus Christ, who offered himself to the Father for us, and is our great High-Priest for ever.

And he shall walk before mine Anointed for ever.] By the Anointed of God is here meant the King; for whom the High-Priest consulted God on great Occasions: And therefore is said to walk before him; because he directed him in his Proceedings, and showed him what he ought to do, in all difficult Cases.

Ver. 36. And it shall come to pass, that every one that is left in thy House.] The remainder of his Family who were not cut off.

Shall come and crouch to him for a piece of Silver, and for a morsel of Bread.] The Hebrew Word which we translate crouch, signifying to bow and to worship, the Vulgar understands these Words, as if they were spoken not of their coming to beg of the High-Priest; but to pray to God in so poor a Condition, as not to be able to bring more than a Farthing, or Mite, to the Treasury; and nothing but a Bit of Bread, (not so much as a Bird, much less a Sheep or Bullock) for a Sin-offering. But the Chaldee takes the Word as we do, for humbling himself to the Priest before mentioned, begging a small Relief of his great Poverty, to which he was reduced. The Hebrew Word for a piece of Silver is Agorah, which signifies a minute piece of Silver, in the very derivation of the Word, as many think. So the meaning is, he should humbly beg, tho' ever so small a Relief.

Put me, I pray thee, into one of the Priests Offices, that I may eat a piece of bread.] Begging of the High Priest that he might enjoy the meanest Pension that was allowed to those Priests who were prohibited to officiate. For so the Words may be translated, Somewhat belonging to the Priesthood. See 2 Kings xxiii. 9. Ezek. xliv. 13. This seems to have been fulfilled in the days of Abiathar, who for Treason was not only put out of his Office, but sent to live upon his own Farm in the Country; and not suffered to live upon the Portion given to Priests at the Temple, 1 Kings ii. 26, 27. By this means his Posterity fell into extream want; in which the just Judgment of God may be observed; that the Children of those who were so wanton, that they would not be content unless they had the choicest parts of the Sacrifice for their portion, should fall into so low a Condition, as to beg their Bread.

CHAP. III.

Ver. 1. AND the Child Samuel ministred unto the LORD before Eli.] Performed such Services at the Tabernacle as Eli directed, being now about twelve Years old, as Josephus thinks.

And the word of the LORD was precious in those days.] God did very rarely in those days reveal his Mind to any Person. See ver. 21.

There was no open Vision.] Here Vision includes all the ways whereby God revealed himself to Men. Which he did then so seldom, that whatsoever Revelation there might be privately to some pious Persons, there was none then publickly acknowledged to be a Prophet; unto whom the People might resort to know the Mind of God. Which was the Cause that Samuel being twice called by God to attend unto him, thought it had been Eli who called him: For they were so unacquainted in these days with the prophetical Spirit, that we read of no more than two Prophets in all the days of the Judges, iv. 4. vi. 8.

Ver. 2. And it came to pass at that time.] After the Man of God mentioned in the foregoing Chapter, (ver. 27.) had been with Eli; perhaps that very Night after he had delivered his Message.

When Eli was laid down.] To sleep.

In his place.] In the Court of the Tabernacle, where there were divers Rooms for several uses of the Priests; as there were afterwards at the Temple.

And his Eyes began to wax dim, that he could not see.] Clearly to do his Duty, after it grew duskish: Which made him, it is likely, go to bed betimes, and leave Directions with Samuel what to do, 'till it was time for him to repose himself. And this might be the reason that Samuel ran so hastily to him, when he thought he call'd for him, that he might know what he wanted; Men of his Age, and dim-sighted, being less able to help themselves.

Ver. 3. And e'er the Lamp of God went out in the Temple of the LORD, where the Ark of God was.] The Lamp in the great Shaft of the Golden Candlestick, which bent towards the most holy place (called the Western Lamp) never went out; but some other of them did go out, when it was morning. See upon Exod. xxvii. 20, 21. The meaning therefore is, that e'er it was day, the LORD called Samuel. See Dr. Lightfoot of the Temple, chap. xiv. §. 4.

And Samuel was lain down to ſleep.] In the Court of the Levites, as the Targum explains it; or in ſome other place near to Eli, that he might be ready to aſſiſt him on any occaſion. The Words ſeem to import, that he had watched moſt of the Night, (for ſo ſome were to do, Pſalm cxxxiv. 1.) and towards Morning went to repoſe himſelf. For thus the Words run in the Hebrew, and in the LXX, and Vulgar: Before the Lamp of God went out, and Samuel lay down to ſleep in the Temple of the LORD, &c. Inſomuch that Victorinus Strigelius tranſlates the Words thus, And Samuel went to lie down in the Temple of the LORD, where the Ark of God was, before the Lamp of God went out.

Ver. 4. And the LORD called Samuel.] Out of the moſt holy place. So the Targum, A Voice was heard out of the Temple of the LORD.

And he ſaid, Here am I.] It is likely Eli lay nearer the Tabernacle than Samuel did, and yet heard nothing: But the Voice paſſing him by, was directed to Samuel, who alone heard it. Theſe Words, Here am I, are a Form of Speech, ſignifying Attention to what was ſaid, and Readineſs to do what ſhould be commanded.

Ver. 5. And he ran unto Eli and ſaid, Here am I, for thou calledſt me.] He thought Eli had ſome Miniſtry wherein to employ him, and therefore ſtarted up preſently, and ran to know what his Pleaſure was. Which ſhows the great readineſs and promptneſs of his Obedience; which made him come, yea run at his firſt Call.

And he ſaid, I called not, lie down again: and he went and lay down.] He thought he might dream.

Ver. 6. And the LORD called yet again, Samuel. And Samuel roſe and went to Eli, and ſaid, Here am I, for thou didſt call me, &c.] He was ſure there was no body yet come to the Temple; it being Night, and the Doors ſhut; and therefore concluded it could be none but Eli that called him: And it is probable, the Voice was like that of Eli's.

Ver. 7. Now Samuel did not know the LORD.] He had not yet learned to know Diſcipline from before the LORD; as the Targum interprets it: That is, how God was wont to teach and inſtruct Men in his Will: Which the next Words explain.

Neither was the Word of the LORD yet revealed unto him.] He was unacquainted with the way, wherein God made known his Mind unto the Prophets; becauſe he had never ſpoken to him before: So that he did not know how to diſtinguiſh between the Voice of God, and of a Man. Maimonides expounds it, he did not underſtand that the LORD was wont to ſpeak with a ſoft, whiſpering Voice; which was therefore called Bath-col.

Ver. 8. And the LORD called Samuel again the third time; and he roſe and went to Eli, and ſaid, Here am I, for thou didſt call me: And Eli perceived that the LORD had called the Child.] This repetition of the Voice ſo oft, awakened Eli to think that this was no Fancy of the Child's; and therefore ſince he knew that he did not call him, he concluded the LORD did; and by this means he was diſpoſed to give credit to what Samuel ſhould tell him, as an Oracle of God.

Ver. 9. Therefore Eli ſaid unto Samuel, Go lie down; and it ſhall be if he call thee, that thou ſhalt ſay, Speak LORD, for thy Servant heareth.] He tells him, in effect, that it was the Voice of God which he heard; and inſtructs him how to behave himſelf, when he called again; and to anſwer, that he was ready to perform whatever he commanded.

So Samuel went and lay down in his place.] Which was not far, as I ſaid, from the place where Eli lay.

Ver. 10. And the LORD came and ſtood.] This Word ſtood (Kimchi thinks) denoteth ſome glorious appearance of God to him; becauſe this is the ſame Word which is uſed in Numb. xxii. 22, 23, 31. where the Angel is ſaid to ſtand to oppoſe Balaam's Proceedings. And ſo the Targum, The LORD was revealed, and ſtood and called, &c.

And called as at other times, Samuel, Samuel.] Only he repeats his Name, to move the greater Attention.

Then Samuel anſwered, Speak, for thy Servant heareth.] He omits the Name of the LORD, in his Anſwer which Eli directed him to make: Either out of fear, or uncertainty, whether it was the LORD that ſpake to him, or no.

Ver. 11. And the LORD ſaid unto Samuel, Behold, I will do a thing in Iſrael, at which both the Ears of every one that heareth it ſhall tingle.] Which in our Language we expreſs thus, It ſhall ſtun all that hear it: As a Man is, when a clap of terrible Thunder ſtrikes his Ears, which even deafens him, ſo that he can hear nothing elſe. This was fulfilled, when the doleful News came, that the Ark was taken, and both Eli's Sons ſlain, and he fell down and brake his Neck, &c.

Ver. 12. In that Day I will perform againſt Eli all the things that I have ſpoken concerning his Houſe.] By the Man of God in the foregoing Chapter.

When I begin, I will alſo make an end.] He doth not mean, that he would begin and make an end at once; but that he would perſevere in his Puniſhments, and not deſiſt when he began, till all his Threatnings were fulfilled, viz. in the Death of Eli, and of his Sons; and the ſlaughter of Eighty-five Prieſts of this Family by Doeg, and the thruſting Abiathar (who eſcaped that Slaughter) out of his Office, and ſo depriving that Family of its Dignity and Honour.

Ver. 13. For I have told him, that I will judge his Houſe for ever, for the Iniquity which he knoweth.] For he could not be ignorant of the Crimes committed ſo publickly; and of which there was ſuch a general Complaint.

Becauſe his Sons made themſelves vile.] Or, they made light of God and of his People; having no regard to either of them. Or, they made the Service of God vile in the Eyes of the People; as the Words may be tranſlated, and as the LXX underſtand them.

And he reſtrained them not.] He did not frown upon them, as it is in the Hebrew. Which doth not ſignify, that he ſhewed no ſign of diſpleaſure againſt their wickedneſs, (for he did chide them, tho' too gently, for it,) but he did not ſeverely reprove them; and when that would not

not reſtrain them, turn them out of their Office, or ſuſpend them 'till they were reformed. For which cauſe God paſſed this ſevere Sentence upon the whole Family; that they ſhould loſe the Dignity of the High-Prieſthood, and be made as vile and contemptible as they had rendered God's Service.

Ver. 14. And therefore I have ſworn unto the Houſe of Eli, that the Iniquity of Eli's Houſe ſhall not be purged with Sacrifice, nor Offering for ever.] By Iniquity is meant the Puniſhment of Iniquity; which he threatens ſhould not be removed, or mitigated, by any ſort of Sacrifices, or Oblations, that could be brought to the Altar: But only (as the Gemara upon Roſh Haſhanah ventures to ſay) by the Law, and by the Retributions of the Saints. By the Law they mean not merely the Study of the Law, but the Practice of it, by obſerving God's Commands: And by Retributions of the Saints, Works of Charity, Bounty, and Liberality, beyond what the Divine Law required. See Dr. Windet, de Vita functorum ſtatu, p. 193.

Ver. 15. And Samuel lay down until the Morning, and opened the Door of the Houſe of the LORD.] This was one of the Works of the Levites, to open and ſhut the Door of the Court of the LORD's Houſe.

And Samuel feared to ſhew Eli the Viſion.] Having no Command from God to do it; and being loth to grieve the old Man by telling him bad News.

Ver. 16. Then Eli called Samuel, and ſaid, Samuel, my Son; and he anſwered, Here am I.] The old Man being ſo ſolemnly threatned by the late Meſſage from God to him; was afraid he was concerned in what the LORD had now ſaid to Samuel.

Ver. 17. And he ſaid, What is the thing that the LORD hath ſaid unto thee; I pray thee hide it not from me: God do ſo to thee, and more alſo, if thou hide any thing from me, &c.] He adjures him to declare to him all that he had heard, and conceal nothing; which obliged him to ſatisfy his deſire, as Micaiah and our bleſſed Saviour did in the like Caſe.

Ver. 18. And Samuel told him every thing, and hid nothing from him: And he ſaid, It is the LORD, let him do what ſeemeth him good.] This Sentence being denounced by a Child, who had his dependance upon Eli, far from any Secular Cunning, being unable to diſcern between the Voice of the LORD, and the Voice of his Tutor, 'till he inſtructed him; was a great deal more terrible to Eli than the Meſſage of the Prophet had been, and wrought a greater Effect upon him. For he humbly acknowledged the Juſtice of God, and ſubmitted to his Sentence (as many of the Fathers think) with a truly penitent Heart. For now he knew (as our Dr. Jackſon obſerves) that the Sentence was irreverſible, being confirmed by an Oath, (ver. 14.) And the Humility and Modeſty of Eli's Anſwer, perſwaded that excellent Perſon, that the fearful Sentence denounced againſt him, extended no further, than to the irreverſible depoſition of him and his Family from the Prieſthood, unto a poor and mean Eſtate, wherein they were to live hereafter. Conſecration of the Son of God, chap. xviii. parag. 5.

Ver. 19. And Samuel grew, and the LORD was with him.] There were manifeſt Tokens that God favoured him, as he did Joſeph, Gen. xxxi. 2. The Targum hath it MEMRA, the Word of the LORD was his help: Or he revealed more and more of his Mind to him: ſo that Iſrael knew God intended him for the Office mentioned in the next Verſe.

And did let none of his Words fall to the ground.] A Metaphor from Arrows ſhot out of a Bow, which hit the Mark. And they may refer either to the Words of Samuel, or of God; which is the ſame. This proved him to be a Prophet, or a Man divinely inſpired.

Ver. 20. And all Iſrael, from Dan even to Beerſheba.] The whole Country of Judæa. See Judg. xx. 1.

Knew that Samuel was eſtabliſhed to be a Prophet of the LORD.] Settled to be a conſtant Prophet, who ſupplied the want of Urim and Thummim, when the Ark was taken from them.

Ver. 21. And the LORD appeared again in Shiloh; for the LORD revealed himſelf to Samuel in Shiloh, by the word of the LORD.] Having begun to appear in Shiloh, he continued this great Favour: For he revealed himſelf to Samuel, not by Dreams and Viſions, but by ſpeaking to him in an audible Voice, as he had done, ver. 4, &c. And indeed he ſeems to have been the firſt Prophet, that was raiſed up to be a publick Inſtructer and Governour of God's People. Others there had been before him; but not with ſo high an Authority, and publick Approbation. And therefore St. Peter ſaith, (Acts iii.) All the Prophets from Samuel ſpake of thoſe Days: As if he was the firſt eminent Prophet whom the LORD raiſed up to them after Moſes.

CHAP. IV.

Ver. 1. AND the word of Samuel came unto all Iſrael.] The Revelation of God's Mind and Will, which had been very ſcarce among them in former Days, (iii. 1.) now grew very plentiful: For as Samuel himſelf was ready to inſtruct every one that came to him; ſo he ſet up Colleges of the Prophets (as we read in the following parts of this Book) who in time were ſettled in divers parts of the Country, for the better preſerving and ſpreading the Knowledge of God among the People, x. 5. xix. 18, 19, 20, &c. Which made Abarbinel diſcourſe on this manner, upon the foregoing Words; In the days of Eli the Word of the LORD was ſcarce, and Viſion was ſeldom: But when Samuel appeared, not only he propheſied frequently, but many of the Iſraelites, by his means were endued with the ſame Spirit, according to theſe Words, and the LORD appeared more frequently in Shiloh, (ſo he underſtands them) becauſe the LORD was revealed to Samuel in Shiloh. Which ſignifies, that the Influence of the Spirit which deſcended upon Samuel in Shiloh reached unto others, becauſe of its abundance, who were diſpoſed to receive it: ſo that they alſo propheſied.

And Iſrael went out againſt the Philiſtines to battel.] This was in the middle of that Forty Years Dominion that the Philiſtines had over the Iſraelites, mentioned Judges xiii. 1. unto which they were encouraged, perhaps, by the Death of the Lords of the Philiſtines; and the great Slaughter which Sampſon had made of them at his Death, Judges xvi. 27, 30.

And pitched beſides Eben-ezer.] Thus this place was called when this Book was written; and ſo denominated from the famous Battel which Samuel fought with the Philiſtines, twenty Years after this, vii. 12.

And the Philiſtines pitched in Aphek.] In a place in the Tribe of Judah, as we read Joſh. xv. 53. upon the Confines of the Philiſtines Country. But ſee xxix. 1. of this Book.

Ver. 2. And the Philiſtines put themſelves in array againſt Iſrael; and when they joined battel, Iſrael was ſmitten before the Philiſtines, &c.] Tho' Samuel was eſtabliſhed a Prophet, and it was ſo publickly known, that all Iſrael came to conſult with him (as the foregoing Verſe ſeems to import) yet the Elders did not take his Advice about this War; as Ralbag thinks. Whoſe Opinion is more probable than theirs, who think they did adviſe with him, and that he bad them fight, on purpoſe that the Sentence upon Eli's Sons might be fulfilled.

Ver. 3. And when the People were come into the Camp, the Elders of Iſrael ſaid, Wherefore hath the LORD ſmitten us to-day before the Philiſtines.] They thought the Juſtice of their Cauſe was ſufficient to entitle them to the Favour of God, tho' they themſelves were wicked. Thus Brutus cried when he fell, O Jupiter! what is the Cauſe of ſo great Calamity? Not reflecting upon his horrible Exactions in Cyprus; and his great Ingratitude to Cæſar, whom he ſlew in the Senate.

Let us fetch the Ark of the Covenant of the LORD out of Shiloh, that when it comes among us, it may ſave us out of the hands of our Enemies.] This was as fooliſh as the other, to confide in God's Help, when they lived in open Diſobedience to him.

Ver. 4. So the People ſent to Shiloh, that they might bring from thence the Ark of the Covenant of the LORD.] This being done without any Warrant from God, provoked him, rather than procured his Preſence with them. But they ſeem to have done it in imitation of Joſhua marching with the Ark againſt Jericho: For which he had a Divine Authority, but they had none. Strigelius therefore well applies to this the Obſervation of Polybius, That many not ſtudying to imitate the Lives of excellent Men, but only ſome of their extraordinary Actions, have done nothing but expoſe their own Folly to the World.

Which dwelleth between the Cherubims.] Or, upon the Cherubims, as the Chaldee, the LXX, and the Vulgar here tranſlate it. But Lud. De Dieu is not ſatisfied with this Senſe; for he thinks the Divine Majeſty did not ſit upon the Wings of the Cherubims, but under them; in the Space between them and the Ark, which was his Foot-ſtool: And therefore he tranſlates theſe words, Who inhabiteth the Cherubims; which were as a Canopy over the SCHECHINAH. But I have followed the ancient Tranſlation, in my Notes upon Exod. xxv. 22.

And the two Sons of Eli, Hophni and Phineas, were there with the Ark of the Covenant of God.] Which they were ordered to bring out of its Place (into which the Levites might not enter) and to accompany it unto the Army.

Ver. 5. And when the Ark of the Covenant of the LORD came into the Camp, all Iſrael ſhouted with a great ſhout.] As if they had already gotten the Victory.

So that the Earth rang again.] It was ſo loud, that it might be heard a great way off. See 1 Kings i. 40. and what I have noted there.

Ver. 6. And when the Philiſtines heard the Noiſe of the ſhout, they ſaid, What means the Noiſe of this great ſhout in the Camp of the Hebrews? And they underſtood that the Ark of the LORD was come into the Camp.] They ſent to get Intelligence; or were informed of it by ſome Deſerters.

Ver. 7. And the Philiſtines were afraid, for they ſaid, God is come into the Camp]. The Symbol of God's Preſence; which perhaps they imagined the Iſraelites worſhipped as their God.

And they ſaid, Wo unto us, for there hath not been ſuch a thing heretofore.] In all the Battels that they or their Neighbours had fought with the Iſraelites, they never heard of ſuch a thing as this; which they thought muſt produce ſome extraordinary effect.

Ver. 8. Wo unto us, who ſhall deliver us out of the hand of theſe mighty Gods?] They fought with Men before, but now with God, before whom none could ſtand. The Hebrew Words Adirim Elohim, which we tranſlate mighty Gods, are tranſlated by Theodoret, the ſtrong God: Which agrees with what goes before, God is come into the camp: And with the Targum, Who ſhall deliver us out of the Hand of the WORD of the LORD, &c.

Theſe are the Gods.] Or, this is the God.

That ſmote Egypt with all the Plagues in the Wilderneſs.] They ſeem not to have perfectly underſtood the ſacred Story; but thought all thoſe Plagues which are there ſpoken of, had fallen on the Egyptians, while the Iſraelites were in the Wilderneſs; where they were when their laſt Plague befel them, by their being drowned in the Red Sea: But Jonathan thus paraphraſes it, Who ſmote the Egyptians with all manner of Plagues; and did wonders for his people in the deſart.

Ver. 9. Be ſtrong, and quit your ſelves like Men, ye Philiſtines.] Theſe Words were ſpoken by their Great Commanders; as the foregoing Words, in all likelihood were: who underſtood what had been done in Foreign Countries.

That ye be not Servants unto the Hebrews, as they have been to you: Quit your ſelves like Men, and fight.] When they were recovered out of the Fright, which ſeized on them at firſt, they conſidered, that notwithſtanding the Power of their God, they had made the Iſraelites ſubject to them, and alſo overthrown them in a late Battel: And therefore their preſent danger ſhould only raiſe their Courage, and make them fight more valiantly.

Ver. 10. And the Philiſtines fought.] They gave Battel to the Iſraelites.

And the Iſraelites were ſmitten, and they fled every Man unto his Tent.] They were ſo routed, that that they did not flee to their Camp, with an intent to renew the Fight (as they did before, ver. 3.) but disperſed themſelves to their own home. And hitherto many of them dwelt in Tents, as I obſerved before: See Joſh. xxii. 14. Judges vii. 8. xx. 8.

And there was a great ſlaughter; for there fell of Iſrael thirty thouſand Footmen.] There fell but four thouſand in the former Battel, before the Ark came among them, ver. 2. ſo little did the bare Preſence of the Ark profit wicked Men, that it rather did them hurt.

Ver. 11. And the Ark of God was taken, and the two Sons of Eli, Hophni and Phineas, were ſlain.] It is likely that (as Joſephus ſaith) Eli parted with the Ark from the Tabernacle very unwillingly; but when he could not help it, he charged his Sons, who went along with it, to loſe their Lives rather than loſe it.

Ver. 12. And there ran a Man of Benjamin out of the Army, and came to Shiloh the ſame day.] Some of the Jews have a fancy that this Man was Saul: For no other reaſon that I can find, but becauſe he was of that Tribe, and a proper Man, who, it is likely, could run ſwiftly. How far Shiloh was from Aphek, or from Eben-ezer (both which were in the Tribe of Judah, as Shiloh was in Ephraim) near to which this Battle was fought, is not certain; but not ſo diſtant, but that a Man might run the ſame day from the one to the other.

With his Clothes rent, and with earth upon his head.] According to the manner of thoſe who bewailed any great Calamity. Joſh. vii. 6. Job ii. 12. Ezek. xxvii. 30. From which laſt Places it appears, it was a Cuſtom among other Nations. And is moſt lively expreſſed by Virgil in Æneid. xii. ver. 609, 610, 611. where Latinus is repreſented as rending his Clothes, and throwing duſt upon his grey Hairs, when he lamented his private and the publick Loſſes. Tiraquellus hath heaped up a great many Examples of this, in his Annotations on Alex. ab Alexandro, lib. 3. cap. 7.

Ver. 13. And when he came, lo, Eli ſat upon a ſeat by the way-ſide, for his heart trembled for the Ark of God.] He had cauſed a Seat, I ſuppoſe, to be ſet for him, by the ſide of the Gate that entred into the City, (ver. 18.) that he might hearken after News; being extremely concerned, above all things, for the Ark of the Covenant of God.

And when the man came into the City.] He paſſed by Eli, and ſaid not a word to him, tho' he ſaw him ſitting there; becauſe he was loth he ſhould be ſurpriſed with ſuch ſad Tidings. Or, perhaps, he came into the City at ſome other Gate.

And told it, all the City cried out.] Looking upon themſelves as put out of the Divine Protection, becauſe they had loſt the Symbol of his Preſence; and the Book of the Covenant, the Bleſſings of which they could no longer claim.

Ver. 14. And when Eli heard the noiſe of the crying, he ſaid, What means the noiſe of this tumult? And the man came in haſtily and told Eli.] They about him had not the heart to reſolve his Queſtion, but brought the Man ſpeedily to acquaint him with the Truth.

Ver. 15. Now Eli was ninety eight years old, and his Eyes were dim, that he could not ſee.] He was not able to diſcern the Sadneſs that was in the Peoples Countenances, but only heard their Shrieks and Lamentations.

Ver. 16. And the Man ſaid, I am he that came out of the Army, and I fled to-day out of the Army.] The Man repreſents himſelf as an Eye-witneſs of what had paſſed, that he might gain the more Credit to what he ſaid: And adds, that he brought the freſheſt News.

And he ſaid, What is there done, my Son?] He ask'd if they had fought, and with what Succeſs.

Ver. 17. And the Meſſenger anſwered and ſaid, Iſrael is fled before the Philiſtines, and there hath alſo been a great ſlaughter among the people, and thy two ſons Hophni and Phineas are dead; and the Ark of God is taken.] He hid nothing from him; but reſerved the worſt News 'till the laſt.

Ver. 18. And it came to paſs when he made mention of the Ark of God, that he fell from off the ſeat backward, by the ſide of the gate.] At the Entrance of the City, where his Chair was ſet.

And his neck brake, and he died.] Tho' he was too indulgent a Father, yet he was highly commendable in this, that he was not ſo much affected with the loſs of his Sons, and the Slaughter of the People, as with the loſs of the Ark of God. For he kept up his Courage, and did not fall, 'till he heard that mentioned. The more publick any Concern is, the more it is laid to heart by Men of worthy Spirits. Such an one was Eli, with whom God was angry upon his Sons account; otherwiſe he was adorned with many Virtues, as Procopius Gazæus obſerves.

For he was an old Man and heavy.] Being oppreſſed with Grief, he ſwooned away; and being both very old, and very unwieldy, his Fall was the more dangerous, and the Vertebræ of his Neck the more eaſily diſplaced.

And he judged Iſrael forty years.] This aggravated the Calamity of his Family, that having been ſo long in the higheſt Station, it fell into great Afflictions in a moment. See upon Chapter the firſt, ver. 9. The Jews obſerve in Seder Olam Rabba, Cap. 13. that on the day he died, God forſook the Tabernacle in Shiloh, having delivered his ſtrength into captivity, &c. Pſal. lxxviii. 60, 61.

Ver. 19. And his Daughter-in-law, Phineas's wife, was with child, near to be delivered; and when ſhe heard the tidings, that the Ark of God was taken, and that her Father-in-law and her Huſband were dead, ſhe bowed herſelf and travelled; for her pains came upon her.] The great Anguiſh of her Mind brought on her Labour: and, as Joſephus thinks, two Months before her Time. Which doth not well agree with what is ſaid in the beginning of this Verſe, that ſhe was near to be delivered. The Hebrew Word which we tranſlate bowed herſelf, ſignifies ſhe fell on her knees. For ſo the manner was in thoſe Countries: which Ludolphus confirms in his Æthiopick Hiſtory, and his Commentary upon it. L. 1. Cap. 14. N. 101.

Ver.

Ver. 20. And at the time of her death, the Women that ſtood by her.] Aſſiſted at her Labour.

Said unto her, Fear not, for thou haſt born a Son.] The mention of which they thought would have revived her, according to what we read in the Goſpel of St. John, xvi. 21.

But ſhe anſwered not, neither did ſhe regard it.] Being ſo overcome with Sorrow and Grief, that ſhe minded nothing that was ſaid or done about her.

Ver. 21. And ſhe named the Child Ichabod, ſaying, The Glory is departed from Iſrael; becauſe the Ark of God was taken, and becauſe of her Father-in-Law and her Huſband.] Only having a little recovered her Spirits, ſhe lamented this chiefly, that God was gone from them: For ſo the Word Glory frequently ſignifies in Scripture, Pſal. cvi. 20. Jerem. ii. 11. The Hebrew Word אי alſo ſignifies the ſame with לא not, as Ludolphus obſerves in his Commentary upon his Æthiopick Hiſtory, Lib. 1. Cap. xvi. 106. And ſo Bochartus here tranſlates Ichabod, by Inglorious, or without Glory: That is, ſaith he, without the true God. P. 1. Hieroz. L. 2. Cap. 34.

Ver. 22. And ſhe ſaid, The Glory is departed from Iſrael; for the Ark of God is taken.] She ſeems to have expired with theſe Words; which ſhe repeats again, becauſe this chiefly lay at her Heart; as the Concerns of Religion do in all pious Spirits.

CHAP. V.

Ver. 1. AND the Philiſtines took the Ark of God.] Why God ſuffered the Ark of his Preſence to fall into the hands of thoſe uncircumciſed People, Abarbinel gives four or five Reaſons. The Iſraelites were ſuch great Sinners, that they were unworthy of his Preſence among them. The Idolatry of Micah remained to this day in the Land; therefore he fulfilled his Threatning, Levit. xxvi. 19, 31. The Sin alſo of the Prieſts highly provoked him to deliver up the Ark, which was in their hands, when they were killed. And the Iſraelites greatly offended in carrying the Ark into the Battle, without asking Counſel of God: who reſolved to demonſtrate his Power even among the Enemies of Iſrael.

And brought it from Eben-ezer.] Where the Iſraelites were encamped before the Battle, iv. 1. and whither it is poſſible they fled, to ſave the Ark, when their Army was overthrown.

Unto Aſhdod.] One of the five Cities of the Philiſtines, where ſome of the Anakims were left unſubdued by Joſhua, (Joſh. xi. 22.) and was in future times the principal City of the Country, called Azotus. And perhaps it was ſo now; which might be the reaſon the Ark was carried thither, rather than to any other City; being ſituated alſo in the middle of the five Principalities; and having a famous Temple in it (mentioned in the next Verſe) whither all the Country reſorted.

Ver. 2. And when the Philiſtines took the Ark of God, they brought it into the Houſe of Dagon, and ſet it by Dagon.] The Heathen were wont to offer part of the Spoil that they took in War, unto their Gods: And what could there be more acceptable than this to Dagon, who ſeemed to have triumphed over the God of Iſrael? Thus we read in After-ages, how Conquerors triumphed not only over the People whom they vanquiſhed, but over their Gods alſo. As Iſaiah repreſented Bel and Nebo carried Captive, when Babylon was taken, xlvi. 1, 2. And Jeremiah ſaith the ſame of Chemoſh, the God of Moab, and Malcolm the God of Ammon, xlviii. 7. xliv. 3. And ſee Daniel xi. 8. Thus the Romans did very frequently, as Bochartus ſhews in his Hierozoicon, P. 1. Lib. 2. Cap. 34. Yet there are ſome who imagine, that their ſetting the Ark by Dagon, (on the ſide of him) ſignified that they intended to do ſome honour to it, as having the Preſence of God in it. Concerning Dagon, ſee what I have noted upon Judges xvi. 23. and Mr. Selden, Syntag. 2. de Diis Syris, Cap. 3. where he confutes thoſe who think Dagon hath his Name from Dagan, which ſignifies Corn, (as if he were the Inventer of it, and confirms the Opinion of thoſe who think he had his Name from Dag, which ſignifies a Fiſh; Fiſhes and Pigeons being ſacred to him. Some take this Idol to have been the ſame among the Syrians, with Triton among the Europeans, or with Neptune, or (as Scaliger will have it) with Venus, who was worſhipped under the Name of Atergatis, and Adargatis: which are only the Corruption of the Hebrew Words Addir-daga, i. e. Magnificent Fiſh, as Mr. Selden there obſerves: Tho' Bochart thinks this was a different Goddeſs from Dagon. P. 1. Hieroz. Lib. 1. Cap. 6.

Ver. 3. And when they of Aſhdod aroſe early in the morning.] To go to pray at the Temple.

Behold, Dagon was faln with his Face to the earth, before the Ark of the LORD.] In a Poſture of the moſt humble Adoration; which was Proſtration; acknowledging the God of Iſrael to be above all Gods. In this ſome of the Jews think there was a Miracle in a Miracle, as they ſpeak: For whereas the Ark was ſet by Dagon, (i. e. on one ſide of him) when Dagon fell, it was not right forward, but he was turned about with his Face towards the Ark. See Buxtorf de Arca Fœderis, p. 171.

And they took Dagon and ſet him in his place again.] Looking upon it as a Miſchance.

Ver. 4. And when they roſe early on the morrow morning, behold Dagon was faln with his Face to the Ground before the Ark of the LORD.] Which ſhewed his former Fall was not by Chance, but by the Power of God, before whom he could not ſtand.

And the Head of Dagon, and both the Palms of his Hands, were cut off upon the threſhold.] It is likely Dagon ſtood on high, upon ſome Pedeſtal or Altar; from whence he was not only thrown down, but his Head and his Hands thrown out of the Door, with the greateſt Contempt; being cut off upon the Threſhold of the Temple. A Token (as moſt Interpreters think) that this Idol was void of Wiſdom and Power, his Head and his Hands (which are the Seat of thoſe Qualities) being gone. Some have a Fancy that Dagon had Feet alſo upon his

 Tail:

Tail: From whence the LXX it is likely here adds, that both his Feet were cut off alſo. Which hath no ground at all in the Hebrew Text: See Selden in the fore-named Book; and Voſſius de Idolol. L. 2. Cap. 16.

Only the ſtump of Dagon was left him.] In the Hebrew the Words are, only Dagon was left to him. That is, ſaith Kimchi, nothing but the Form of a Fiſh remained; all that reſembled a Man being broken off. Thus the LORD ſhewed there was no God beſides him: His Ark, tho' taken captive and carried into a ſtrange Land (as St. Chryſoſtom diſcourſes, Orat. v. adverſus Judæos) throwing down their Idol twice, and thereby demonſtrating, that the Iſraelites were not overthrown, for want of any Power in their God to defend them, but for the Iniquity of thoſe that worſhipped him.

Ver. 5. Therefore neither the Prieſts of Dagon, nor any that come into Dagon's houſe, tread on the Threſhold of Dagon, unto this day.] Out of Reverence to it; looking upon it (as Abarbinel gloſſes) as an holy thing, by the touch of Dagon's Head and Hands. So fooliſhly did they pervert the meaning of God; that inſtead of thinking Dagon to be no God, they honoured the very Threſhold of his Temple, as if it had ſome Divinity in it. For it is an idle Conceit which the Jews have in Jalkut, that forſaking Dagon, they worſhipped his Threſhold. See Buxtorf in his Hiſt. Arcæ, Cap. xix. p. 172. This Superſtition continued for ſome Ages, as Bochartus gathers from Zephan. i. 9. where God ſaith he will puniſh thoſe that leap on the Threſhold, after the manner of the Philiſtines, as he expounds it after the Targum, P. i. Hierozoic. Lib. 2. Cap. 36.

From thoſe Words, unto this day, Hobbs and ſuch-like Writers frame an Argument, that this Book was not wrote by Samuel; not conſidering that theſe things happened when Samuel was but a Youth, and that this was written when he was old; ſo that there was a conſiderable ſpace of time between them.

Ver. 6. But the hand of the LORD was heavy upon them of Aſhdod.] Since they were ſo blind, as not to ſee his hand in throwing down their God, &c. he ſmote them with ſuch ſore Plagues in their own Bodies, as made them ſenſible of his Power.

And he deſtroyed them.] With a Peſtilence, I ſuppoſe, of which many died. See ver. ult.

And ſmote them with Emerods, even Aſhdod and the Coaſts belonging to it.] Not only the People of the City, but of the Villages belonging to it, were ſmitten with this Plague. About which Interpreters differ very much: Some taking this Diſeaſe for a Dyſentery, which was ſo violent that it rotted their Guts, and made them fall down and come out. Whereupon others think it was that which we call Procidentia ani, the falling of the Fundament: But moſt Interpreters, both antient and modern, take it as we do, for the Emerods. For it was ſome Diſeaſe in the Hinder-parts, as appears from the Words of the Pſalmiſt, lxxviii. 66. as they are commonly underſtood. See my Notes on Deut. xxviii. 27. and Nic. Fuller Miſcell. L. 5. Cap. 3. eſpecially Bochartus in his Hierozoicon, P. i. L. 2. Cap. 36. where he gives a large account of the Hebrew Word Apholim, which is uſed only here, and in the fore-named place of Deuteronomy.

At the end of this Verſe, the Vulgar and the LXX alſo add, that a great number of Mice ſtarted up out of the Earth, and over-running their Fields, made great waſte there. But, as Lyra well obſerves, this Gloſs in all likelihood being written in the Margin, out of Chap. vi. ver. 4, 5. it crept at laſt into the Text, tho' it be neither in the Hebrew, nor the Chaldee, nor Syriac, nor Arabic. See Bochart in his Hierozoic. P. 1. Lib. 3. Cap. 34.

Ver. 7. And when the men of Aſhdod ſaw that it was ſo, they ſaid, The Ark of the God of Iſrael ſhall not abide with us; for his hand is ſore upon us, and upon Dagon our god.] Now their Eyes were opened to ſee, that tho' they had vanquiſhed the Iſraelites, they could not ſtand before the God of Iſrael. And it ſeems no unreaſonable Conjecture, that they ſpeak here, and in the following Verſe, concerning the Ark, with a Note of Diſtinction; calling it, the Ark of the God of Iſrael, ver. 8, 10, 11. vi. 3. And the Ark of the LORD, vi. 8. For other Nations had ſuch Arks, and for the ſame uſe, to put their Myſteries in them: As in this was the Tables of the Covenant alone. Clemens Alexandrinus relates what Traſh and other filthy ſtuff was in the μυςικαὶ κίςαι, the myſtical Coffers of the Heathen. From whoſe Superſtition that the Iſraelites might be preſerved, God perhaps appointed this Ark to be made by Moſes. See his Προτρεπτικὸς λόγος, p. 13, 14.

Ver. 8. They ſent therefore and gathered the Lords of the Philiſtines unto them, and ſaid, What ſhall we do with the Ark of the God of Iſrael?] They deſired a general Council might be held, to conſult what to do in this caſe, whether to keep the Ark, or how to diſpoſe of it.

And they anſwered.] i. e. The Lords of the Philiſtines (who in the Language of that Country were called Sarnim, the ſame with Sarim in Hebrew) came to the following Reſolution.

Let the Ark of the God of Iſrael be carried about unto Gath; and they carried the Ark of the God of Iſrael about thither.] They ſeem to be poſſeſſed with a ſuperſtitious Conceit, that there was ſomething in the place, which was offenſive to him; and that he might be better pleaſed with another: Juſt as Æneas and his People indited their Beds and their Houſes, of the Diſaſters that befel them; and Cadmus forſook his own City,

——— tanquam fortuna locorum
Non ſua ſe premeret ———

As if the ill Luck which hunted him, had been the Place's, not his own: As our Dr. Jackſon obſerves out of Ovid, in his Original of Unbelief, Chap. xviii. Paragr. 4.

Gath was the next City to Aſhdod, Northward of it: In which ſome of the Anakims alſo remained. Joſh. xi. 21.

Ver. 9. And it was ſo, that after they had carried it about, the Hand of the LORD was againſt the City, with a very great Deſtruction.] A great many died of the Peſtilence, as they had done at Aſhdod.

And he ſmote the Men of the City both ſmall and great, and they had Emerods in their ſecret parts.] They that did not die, were ſorely tormented by Emerods ; which was a Diſeaſe they had never known before ; as ſome underſtand the laſt Words. Or, they had thoſe the Phyſicians call blind Emerods : which do not ſwell outwardly, but lie hidden within ; and are the moſt grievous, and hard to be cured of all other.

Ver. 10. Therefore they ſent the Ark of God to Ekron.] The laſt City of the Philiſtines Northward : Where in After-times (if not now) the famous God called Baalzebub was worſhipped, 2 Kings i. 2.

And it came to paſs as the Ark of God came to Ekron, that the Ekronites cried out, ſaying, They have brought about the Ark of the God of Iſrael to us, to ſlay us and our People.] Theſe ſeem to be the Words of the Governors of the City ; who had learned from the Experience of the other great Cities, that no place was ſecure from the Stroke of the God of Iſrael.

Ver. 11. So they ſent and gathered together all the Lords of the Philiſtines.] As they of Aſhdod had done, ver. 6.

And ſaid, Send away the Ark of the God of Iſrael, and let it go again to its own place, that it ſlay us not, and our People.] Deſtroy the whole City.

For there was a deadly deſtruction throughout all the City, and the hand of God was very ſore upon them.] Which made them deſire it might be ſent out of the Country, and not to the other Cities in the South, Gaza and Aſcalon.

Ver. 12. And the Men that died not, were ſmote with Emerods ; and the Cry of the City went up to Heaven.] This is the Explication of the foregoing Words : Some were ſtruck with the Peſtilence as ſoon as the Ark came thither, and others lingered under intolerable Pains, which made them cry out in an inexpreſſible manner : For this is an hyperbolical Speech ; things that are exceeding great beyond expreſſion, being ſaid to reach up to Heaven, Deut. i. 28. Thus Virgil, L. 2. Æneid. in many places, ver. 223, 338, 488.

CHAP. VI.

Ver. 1. AND the Ark of the LORD was in the Country of the Philiſtines ſeven Months.] The Hebrew Word Sadeth, which we tranſlate Country, ſignifying a Field (as the LXX here tranſlates it, ἐν ἀγρῷ) Theodoret, and Procopius Gazæus, think, that the Philiſtines being ſo plagued by the Ark in their Cities, ſent it into the open Fields : But were diſappointed of their hope, of being freer from the hand of God there, than in their Cities ; for Mice ſprung up out of the Ground, and waſted their Corn and their Fruits, as the LXX here add, at the end of this Verſe, as they did in the foregoing Chapter, ver. 6. καὶ ἐξέζεσιν ἡ χὴ αὐτῶν μυίας, and their Land bubbled up Mice. But the Chaldee hath no ſuch thing ; and ſaith expreſly, the Ark was in the Cities of the Philiſtines ſeven Months.

Ver. 2. And the Philiſtines.] That is, the Lords of the Country.

Called for the Prieſts.] Who were beſt ſkill'd in ſacred Rites and Ceremonies.

And the Diviners.] Who were a kind of Prophets, pretending to know the Will of God, and to foretel future Events. See Deut. xviii. 12. of this Word Koſemim, which we tranſlate Diviners. From whence Bochartus thinks the Roman Word Caſmilli is derived ; being as much as Koſme-el, the Miniſter of God.

Saying, Tell us what we ſhall do to the Ark of the LORD ?] They never called it the Ark of the LORD 'till this time : But now were ſtruck with ſome apprehenſion that the LORD was above all Gods.

Tell us wherewith we ſhall ſend it to its place.] They did not call them to be reſolved by them, whether they ſhould ſend it home, or no, (for upon that they ſeem to have been reſolved already, ver. 11.) but in what manner it ſhould be ſent, and whether accompanied with any Preſents to obtain his Favour.

Ver. 3. And they ſaid, If ye ſend away the Ark of the God of Iſrael ?] Againſt which Reſolution they had nothing to object, but rather approved it.

Send it not empty.] They anſwer directly to the Queſtion, firſt in general ; that it muſt not be ſent back without ſome Offering.

But in any wiſe return him a Treſpaſs-offering.] Concerning the Hebrew Word Aſham, which we tranſlate Treſpaſs-offering, and how it differs from a Sin-offering, ſee upon Levit. v. 15. It ſeems to be preſented by the Philiſtines, as an Acknowledgment that they had offended the God of Iſrael, by bringing his Ark from its proper Place ; for which they begged his pardon by this Offering.

Then ye ſhall be healed ; and it ſhall be known to you, why his Hand is not removed from you.] It ſeems their Plagues ſtill continued (notwithſtanding their Reſolution to ſend home the Ark) but they hoped by this Offering they would be removed ; and the Reaſon would appear why they were removed no ſooner : For theſe Diviners were not ſure from whence theſe Plagues came : But by this means they thought they ſhould either be healed, or know the Ark was not the cauſe of their Sickneſs.

Ver. 4. Then ſaid they, What ſhall be the Treſpaſs-offering, which we ſhall return to him?] It is very obſervable what Reverence they had to their Prieſts and Prophets, without whoſe Advice they would do nothing : And therefore deſire to be particularly informed, what the Treſpaſs-offering ſhould be ; that they might not ſend one that was improper. All Nations thought their Gods were to be appeaſed, when they were angry, by honorary Gifts, as many have obſerved : Particularly Bochartus in his Hierozoicon, P. 1. Lib. 2. Cap. 36. And of that Opinion they were in theſe antient times. But wiſe Men ſtill give it in charge, Ne quis impius oblatis donis Deum placare audeat : That no wicked Man ſhould preſume to attempt to appeaſe God, by the offering of Gifts, as Cicero ſpeaks, L. 2. de Legibus.

They

They answered, Five golden Emerods, and five golden Mice, according to the Number of the Lords of the Philistines.] Who were five, and were to be at the charge of offering one for each of them. This also was a Custom among the ancient Heathens to consecrate unto their Gods such Monuments of their Deliverances, as represented the Evils from which they were freed. As they dedicated to Isis and Neptune a Table, which contained the express Image of the Shipwreck, which they had escaped: And Slaves and Captives, when they had regained their Liberty, offered their Chains. Which Christians in the fifth Century began to imitate, as Bochartus observes (in the forenamed Place) out of Theodoret. Accordingly the Philistines, hoping shortly to be delivered from the Emerods and Mice, wherewith they were sorely afflicted, sent the Images of them unto that God from whom they expected Deliverance. And this is still practised among the Indians, as Tavernier relates in his Travels to their Country, p. 92. where he saith, That when any Pilgrim goes to a Pagod for the Cure of any Disease, he brings the Figure of the Member affected; made either of Gold, Silver, or Copper, according to his Quality; which he offers to his God, and then falls a singing, as all others do after they have offered. Mr. Selden also hath observed, that Mice were used among the ancient Heathen for Lustration and Cleansing, de Diis Syris, Syntag. 1. Cap. 6.

For one Plague was on you all, and on your Land.] The Plague of Emerods upon their own Bodies; and the Plague of Mice upon their Land.

Ver. 5. Wherefore ye shall make Images of the Emerods and Images of your Mice, which mar the Land.] By this it appears that their Country was infested by Mice, which had eaten their Corn in the Field, and other Fruits of the Earth. Which is a Plague which divers ancient Authors mention, as sent upon several Countries, by the Anger of their Gods: Particularly upon a City in Mysia, and upon the Country of Troas, as is observed by Huetius, in his Quæstiones Alnetanæ, Lib. ii. Cap. 12. N. 12. And Bochart hath collected a great many more Examples of such Devastations, in Spain, Italy, Thrace, &c. made by Mice: Which have the Name of Achbar in Hebrew (as he thinks) signifying a Destroyer of the Field, Hieroz. P. 1. L. 3. Cap. 34.

And ye shall give Glory unto the God of Israel.] That is, acknowledge him, by this Present to him, to be the Inflicter of these Plagues, and to have Power to remove them; begging his Pardon, and seeking for healing from him. For thus this Phrase signifies in the like case, Revel. xvi. 9. where St. John complains, that after many Plagues Men did not repent, to give glory unto God: That is, by repenting, to acknowledge his Sovereign Authority, Justice, Holiness, &c.

Perhaps he will lighten his Hand from off you, and from off your Gods, and from off your Land.] For they had all suffered; their Gods, as well as themselves, and their Land.

Ver. 6. Wherefore then do ye harden your Hearts, as the Egyptians and Pharaoh hardened their Hearts, when he had wrought wonderfully among them.] These Words seem to import, that some of them were loth to send the Ark away with such Presents; and objected against it: Which moved the Priests and Diviners, to bid them take heed, lest they brought upon themselves the Fate of Pharaoh, and his People. With whose History these Men were acquainted; and being discreet Persons, made a good use of the Examples of former times: And believed as much as many of the Israelites did, or rather more.

Did they not let the People go, and they departed?] When it was too late, they consented to what was demanded. The Jews say in Jalkut, that the Philistines at first said among themselves, this is the God who smote the Egyptians with ten Plagues: But they are all ended. Whereupon God said, Do you imagine I have not one Plague more? I will send such an one upon you, as never was from the beginning of the World, &c. See Buxtorf. Hist. Arcæ Fœderis, cap. 19. If they had any such Thoughts, their Priests pertinently enough put them in mind of the Egyptians: That they might not make themselves like them in hardness of heart; as God had made them like in their Plagues.

Ver. 7. Now therefore make a new Cart, and take two Milch Kine, on which there hath come no Yoke.] Both these were in honour of the Ark; that they employed nothing about it, which had ever served for any other use. And there was another Reason also for the latter of these; that they might be the more certain they were led by the God of Israel, if they went directly unto his Country: For Kine unaccustomed to the Yoke, are wont to run back, and turn out of the way into which they are put.

And tie the Kine to the Cart, and bring their Calves home from them?] This would make it still more wonderful, if they did not return to their Calves, when they heard them bleat after them; which they naturally would have done, if a greater Power had not drawn them a contrary way.

Ver. 8. And take the Ark of the LORD, and lay it upon the Cart; and put the Jewels of Gold, which you return him for a Trespass-offering, in a Coffer by the side thereof; and send it away, that it may go.] They had either heard, or by their present Sufferings were made to fear, that it was dangerous to look into the Ark; and therefore they did not open it, to put their Present within it; but put it in a Coffer by the side of it. It is probable the word Argaz (which we meet withal no where else) in the Language of the Philistines signifies either a Coffer, or a Purse, or a Wallet, as Josephus translates it: And Bochartus thinks it likely, that these Golden Jewels were put into little Bags, which hung on either side the Ark.

Ver. 9. And see if it go by the way of its own Coast.] Without any Guide: And being set (as Josephus saith) in a Place where three ways met.

To Bethshemesh.] A City in the Tribe of Judah, in the Confines of both Countries.

Then he hath done us this great Evil; but if not, then we shall know that it is not his Hand that smote us; it was a Chance that happened to us.] From some unknown Cause.

Ver. 10. And the Men did ſo, and took two Milch Kine, and tied them to the Cart; and ſhut up their Calves at home.] The Men of Ekron did all this, as the Prieſts had directed.

Ver. 11. And they laid the Ark of the LORD upon the Cart, and the Coffer, with the Mice of Gold, and the Images of their Emerods.

Ver. 12. And the Kine took the ſtraight way, to the way of Bethſhemeſh, and went along the high way, lowing as they went; and turned not aſide to the right hand, or to the left.] Tho' they had no Driver or viſible Director; and had ſuch ſtrong Attractives to draw them back, and there were ſo many other ways in which they might have gone; yet they went directly towards Bethſhemeſh, without the leaſt deviation; lowing all the way after their Calves, which had been taken from them: Unto whom their Natural Affection would have inclined them to return, if by an higher Hand they had not been led forward to the Land of Judah.

And the Lords of the Philiſtines went after them to the Borders of Bethſhemeſh.] To obſerve, (as the Prieſts adviſed, ver. 9.) whether of themſelves they would go thither.

Ver. 13. And they of Bethſhemeſh were reaping their Wheat-Harveſt in the Valley.] Which being about Pentecoſt, it ſhews the Ark was taken Captive in the latter end of the foregoing Year. Compare this with ver. 1.

And they lift up their Eyes and ſaw the Ark, and rejoiced to ſee it.] Come back to them in ſuch a wonderful manner, without any viſible Conductor.

Ver. 14. And the Cart came into the Field of Joſhua a Bethſhemite, and ſtood there.] This was another marvellous thing, that the Kine went no further; being come into a Territory of a City of the Prieſts, (for ſo Bethſhemeſh was. See upon Joſh. xxi. 16.) who were to take care of the Ark of God.

Where there was a great Stone.] Which ſeems to have been the Boundary of the two Countries.

And they clave the Wood of the Cart, and offered the Kine a Burnt-offering unto the LORD.] The great Stone, I ſuppoſe, ſerving inſtead of an Altar; whereon they offered a whole Burnt-offering of Praiſe and Thanks to God for his Goodneſs: For they thought in reaſon that this Cart, and theſe Kine, ſhould never be converted to any common uſe, and therefore employed them in making this Sacrifice. In which the Prieſts did not ſin, tho' Cows were not, by the Law, allowed to be offered to God; and no Offering was to be made, but in the Place which God had choſen. For this was to be underſtood of ordinary Offerings, not of ſuch as an extraordinary occaſion might require: And beſides, the Ark being here, God was ſo alſo, (who as yet appointed no Place for its future Reſidence, now Shiloh was deſtroyed) and ſo their Sacrifices, they thought in reaſon, might be here acceptable to him. And they the rather choſe to offer theſe Cows to God, becauſe they belonged to him, and therefore were to be his Sacrifices; they having drawn his Ark, and been particularly directed by him.

Ver. 15. And the Levites took down the Ark of the LORD, and the Coffer that was with it, wherein the Jewels of Gold were.] It was not the Buſineſs of the Levites to take down the Ark; but of the Prieſts: Who after they had diſpoſed it to be fit for the Levites to take it upon their ſhoulders, the Kohathites were to carry it. See Numb. iv. 15.

And put them upon the great Stone.] Where, it is probable, they had before offered up the Kine, inſtead of an Altar.

And the Men of Bethſhemeſh offered Burnt-offerings, and ſacrificed Sacrifices the ſame day unto the LORD.] The Sacrifices (which they are ſaid to ſacrifice) were Peace-offerings; which they added to their whole Burnt-ſacrifices, that they might make a Feaſt upon them; as an Expreſſion of their great Joy to ſee the Ark returned to them in ſuch a miraculous manner.

Ver. 16. And when the five Lords of the Philiſtines.] Who ſtood upon the Borders of their Country, ver. 12.

Had ſeen it.] Beheld all the forenamed Wonders.

They returned to Ekron the ſame day.] And reported, no doubt, what they had ſeen: Which convinced them, that their Plagues came from the God of Iſrael.

Ver. 17. And theſe are the golden Emerods which the Philſtines returned for a Treſpaſs-offering unto the LORD. For Aſhdod one, for Gaza one, for Aſkelon one, for Gath one, for Ekron one.] Each City of this Country, I ſuppoſe, was at the charge of preſenting one Emerod. Which Cities are not reckoned in the order wherein they lay; but Aſhdod being the City to which the Ark was firſt brought, it is mentioned firſt. But from South to North they lay in this order, Gaza, Aſkelon, Aſhdod, (which, as I ſaid, was in the middle of them) Gath and Ekron.

Ver. 18. And the golden Mice, according to the number of all the Cities of the Philiſtines, belonging to the five Lords; both of fenced Cities and of Country Villages, even unto the great Stone of Abel, whereon they ſet down the Ark of the LORD: Which Stone remaineth to this day in the Field of Joſhua the Bethſhemite.] As the golden Emerods were made at the publick Charge of thoſe Cities, ſo were the Mice alſo: Unto the making of which, the Villages likewiſe contributed. For their Fields being principally afflicted by the Mice, as the Cities were by the Emerods; and they being all Sharers, ſome way or other, in the publick Calamities, it was thought reaſonable they ſhould all join in this Treſpaſs-offering: Which was an Offering of the whole Nation, as far as ever their Coaſt extended, and that was to the great Stone mentioned, ver. 14. which is there called Eben Gedolah, the great Stone: But he Ebelgedolah, the great weeping, from the Lamentations which were here made, upon the following occaſion mentioned in the next Verſe.

Ver. 19. And he ſmote the Men of Bethſhemeſh, becauſe they had looked into the Ark of the LORD.] Which God had forbidden, not only to the common People, but to the Sons of Levi alſo, Numb. iv. 20. But their Curioſity made them forget their Duty: Being deſirous either to ſee whether the Philiſtines had taken out of the Tables the Covenant; or that they might have a view of ſuch an

an antient Sacred Monument, written by God's own Hand. Out of this Story, as Bochartus ingeniously conjectures, the Greeks forged the Fable of Bacchus; who was very angry with the Athenians, because they did not receive his Mysteries with Pomp, when they were brought out of Bœotia into Attica; and smote them with a sore Disease in their Secret Parts. In his Canaan, Lib. 1. Cap. 18. in the latter end.

Even he smote of the People fifty thousand, and threescore and ten Men.] This Translation is made by an unaccountable transposition of the words: which in the Hebrew lie exactly thus; He smote of the People, threescore and ten men, fifty thousand men. Which the Gemara, with Jarchi and Kimchi, and the Targum expound, He smote all the Sanhedrim, which were Seventy Men, and fifty thousand of the common People. (See Selden, Lib. 2. de Synedr. Cap. 19. N. 3.) But as it is a question whether there was any such Sanhedrim in these days, and it is certain there was not at Bethshemesh; so it is not likely it was such a populous Place, nor is there any Particle to couple the last Sum with the foregoing. Therefore Bochart's Interpretation is far more reasonable, which is this, He smote threescore and ten men; fifty out of a thousand men. God was so indulgent, that is, as not to slay all that were guilty, but only seventy of them; observing this proportion, that out of a thousand Offenders, he smote only fifty Persons; that is, a twentieth part. So that of fourteen hundred that deserved Punishment, he smote only seventy Men; which is the twentieth part of that Number. And this Interpretation is very easy, not only supplying the Particle Mem before Eleph, making the sense to be out of a thousand. And he instances in many places of Scripture, where this Particle is manifestly wanting, to make out the true meaning. See his Hieroicon, P. 1. Lib. 2. Cap. 36. p. 370. where he shows that Josephus thus understood these Words, Lib. 6. Antiq. Cap. 2. where he saith God smote Ἑβδομήκοντα τῶν ἐν τῆς Βηθσάμης κώμης, Seventy of those of the Village of Bethshemesh. And thus Abarbinel also understands the first Words, that he smote at Bethshemesh only seventy Men; the other number, he thinks, refers to those who were slain in the Country of the Philistines; the Story whereof is now finished. For the Particle Beth, he thinks, signifies as much as with, in this manner: Together with the seventy of Bethshemesh, he smote in all fifty thousand, because of the Ark. But Bochartus's Interpretation is most natural; which is highly applauded by another Person of very great Learning: Johan. Wagenselius, who in his Annotations upon the Gemara of Sota, (Cap. 7. Sect. 15.) saith, Ipsa veritas militat, Truth it self defends this Opinion of Bochartus. And indeed it cannot be conceived, there should be so many, as our Translation supposes, to be slain at Bethshemesh, and the Coasts thereof, being but a Village: Or if there had, it is very improbable that God would smite so many at once: For there would have been none left to make Lamentation. Therefore as the Romans decimated the Soldiers that had offended; that is, put every tenth Man to death; so God here punished half so many for this Offence of looking into the Ark.

And the People lamented, because the LORD had smitten of the People with a great Slaughter.] It was a great Slaughter, considering the smallness of this Place; as Abarbinel glosses upon these Words; who takes it, as Josephus doth, for a Village. And it is not strange, that some should be smitten with Death; for it was always accounted in all Nations, a great Prophaneness for any one that was not initiated, to look into their Mysteries: To prevent which hereafter, God made so many Examples of his Displeasure in this place. Instances of those among the Heathen, who were struck blind, or upon whom some other Calamity fell, upon such account, the Illustrious Spanhemius hath noted in his Observations upon Callimachus his Hymn in Lavacrum Palladis, ver. 34. yea, tho' they did it ignorantly, as he shews upon ver. 78, & 82. p. 606. See also Huetius in his Alnetanæ Quæstiones, Lib. 2. Cap. 12. p. 200.

Ver. 20. And the Men of Bethshemesh said, Who is able to stand before this holy LORD God? And to whom shall he go up from us?] They seem, by this, to be sensible of their Rashness, and acknowledge the Holiness of God to be such, that they were not worthy of his Divine Presence among them: But desire that some who could do him honour better than they, might take the Ark into their Care. But Abarbinel thinks they were only struck with a great fear, as the Philistines were when God plagued them: Which made them send the Ark from one Place to another; as they of Bethshemesh now sent to those of Kirjath-jearim, to come and fetch the Ark to their City; fearing more of them should die, if it staid with them at Bethshemesh.

Ver. 21. And they sent Messengers to the Inhabitants of Kirjath-jearim, saying, The Philistines have brought again the Ark of the LORD, come ye down and fetch it unto you.] This was a City which stood upon a Hill, and therefore they desired them to come down from thence. And being a strong Place, there they thought the Ark might be secure, in case of any new Incursions of their Enemies. See concerning this City, Josh. xv. 9, 10. where it is called also Kirjath-Baal, xviii. 14. and Baalah, or Baal-Judah, 2 Sam. vi. 2. 1 Chron. xiii. 6.

CHAP. VII.

Ver. 1. AND the Men of Kirjath-jearim came, and fetch'd up the Ark of the LORD.] They chearfully received the Message; and were so far from thinking themselves in danger by entertaining it, that they thought it a Blessing, and kept it with them till the Reign of David.

And brought it to the House of Aminadab, in the Hill.] In the highest Part, I suppose, of the City: As David afterwards placed it upon Mount Sion.

And sanctified Eleazer his Son to keep the Ark of the LORD.] Which belonged to the Levites: Therefore Aminadab was of that Tribe, otherwise he could not have consecrated (i. e. set apart, apart, or ſolemnly appointed) his Son to keep the Ark, i. e. to attend it, and ſee that no Rudeneſs was offered to it ; as well as to keep a Guard about it, to defend it from violence. If it be enquired why they did not carry the Ark to Shiloh, its ancient Seat ; the Anſwer is, that the Philiſtines had deſtroyed that Place ; and the Tabernacle upon the Death of Eli, was removed from thence unto Nob ; where it remained till the Death of Samuel. And after his Death, it was carried to Gibeon, where it remained fifty Years, according to the account of the Author of Seder Olam Rabba. All which time the Ark was in Kirjath-jearim, 'till David brought it firſt to the Houſe of Obed-Edom, and then to his own City. After which the Tabernacle ſtill remained at Gibeon till Solomon's Temple was built, 1 Chron. xvi. 39. 2 Chron. i. 3. where we read, that even after the Death of his Father, Solomon ſacrificed at Gibeon, the Tabernacle being there.

Ver. 2. And it came to paſs while the Ark abode in Kirjath-jearim the time was long, for it was twenty Years.] This is not to be underſtood of the whole time that the Ark remained here : For it continued, as I ſaid before, in this Place, till the time of David, (2 Chron. vi. 3.) which was about forty ſix Years : therefore it refers to the following Words.

And all the Houſe of Iſrael lamented after the LORD.] Or rather, (as Dr. Lightfoot tranſlates them) Then all the Houſe of Iſrael, &c. Their Idolatry had taken ſuch deep root in them, that neither the loſs of the Ark, nor the ſlaughter of ſo many Iſraelites wrought upon their Hearts : But it was twenty Years before they minded the Ark, or took any notice of it : Then they were awakened to ſome ſenſe of their Duty, and began to ſeek the Favour of God, and lament their Apoſtacy from him. See his Annot. on this Place, and upon Acts iii. 24. p. 758. And one Reaſon why they did not regard the Ark, was perhaps, becauſe it was now ſeated in the Borders of the Country of the Philiſtines, of whom they were afraid. And this is the ſenſe of Abarbinel. For tho' others think, that from the Day that the Ark came to Kirjath-jearim, the Iſraelites began to lament their Sins, and to turn to God ; having heard of the Miracles that had been done in the Land of the Philiſtines, &c. yet he doth not approve of this Opinion ; but will have their Lamentation to begin after the Ark had been twenty Years at this Place : Where it remained many more Years than twenty.

Ver. 3. And Samuel ſpake unto all the Houſe of Iſrael.] Who were aſſembled at ſome ſolemn Feſtival ; or were ſummoned by him to attend him : For after the Death of Eli he began to judge Iſrael.

If you return to the LORD with all your heart.] By this it appears, that his Reproofs, and Inſtructions, and the Repreſentation he had made of their Sin, and of their Danger, had touched their Hearts, and made them begin to lament themſelves, and ſeek his Favour : Whereupon he exhorts them, to give this following Proof of their Sincerity.

Then put away the ſtrange Gods and Aſhtaroth, from among you.] By the ſtrange Gods I take Baalim to be meant : Which are frequently joined with Aſhtaroth, as they are in the very next Verſe to this, where their Obedience to this Exhortation is reported. And ſee upon Judges ii. 12, 13, 17. Judges iii. 7. viii. 33.

And prepare your Heart unto the LORD.] By ſerious Reſolutions.

To ſerve him only.] As it follows in the next Verſe.

And he will deliver you out of the hands of the Philiſtines.] Who had now oppreſſed them, leſs or more, for the ſpace of forty Years.

Ver. 4. Then the Children of Iſrael did put away Baalim and Aſhtaroth, and ſerved the LORD only.] There was now, I ſuppoſe, a general Reformation made in the Worſhip of God.

Ver. 5. And Samuel ſaid, Gather all Iſrael to Mizpeh.] A Place where they had been wont anciently to aſſemble upon great Occaſions. See upon Judges xx. 1.

And I will pray for you unto the LORD.] To accept of their Repentance, and pardon their Sins, and eſtabliſh them in their good Reſolution to ſerve the LORD alone ; and to deliver them out of the hand of the Philiſtines. For all which he could have prayed alone by himſelf ; but he thought their Publick Prayer would be more effectual.

Ver. 6. And they gathered in Mizpeh, and drew Water, and poured it out before the LORD, and faſted on that Day, and ſaid there, We have ſinned againſt the LORD.] This being a Day of Humiliation, Faſting and Prayer, as appears by the latter part of theſe Words, Interpreters commonly expound the former Part of them, as belonging to the ſame matter. And ſome think, as the Targum doth, that by pouring out Water, is to be underſtood the Tears of Contrition, which were drawn from the bottom of their Hearts, and fell from their Eyes before the LORD. Others think they waſhed their Bodies in Water, ſignifying the Purification of their Souls from the filthineſs of Sin. And others, (which Bochartus himſelf thinks more probable) that this Water was poured on the Ground, in token of the Expiation of their Sin, which they deſired and hoped might be remembred no more : as Water poured on the Ground could no more be ſeen. Unto which they think a Place in Job alludes, xi. 16. But we no where find any ſuch Rite as this among the Jews, either in ancient, or later times. And the Conjecture of Fortunatus Scacchus ſeems more ingenious, That an Altar being to be erected to offer Sacrifice, they poured out Water to cleanſe the Ground, that it might not be ſet up in an impure Place, Myrothec. Ælæochriſm. Sacr. 2. Cap. 31. But after all, I think the Interpretation which Conſtantine L'Empereur hath given of theſe Words (in his Annot. on Codex Middoth, Cap. 2.) is far more reaſonable ; which is, that they poured out Water in token of Joy, after they had faſted and confeſſed their Sins, (for he tranſlates the Words, Poſtquam jejunarunt, after they had faſted on that day,) as they were wont to do in the Feaſt of Tabernacles : Unto which he refers thoſe Words in Iſa. xii. 3. in which the Prophet foretels the Joy that ſhould be in the Days of the Meſſiah, by ſaying, Ye ſhall draw Waters

Waters with Joy out of the Wells of Salvation: Alluding to a known Rite among the Israelites, in the Feast of Tabernacles, unto which our Saviour is thought to allude, John vii. 37, 38. And there is the greater Reason for this Interpretation, because Samuel had just before promised them, that the LORD would deliver them from the Philistines, if they heartily repented: Which made them rejoice in hope of it, because they did now sincerely turn to him.

And Samuel judged the Children of Israel in Mizpeh.] When they were reconciled to God, he reconciled them one to another, by determining their Differences, and doing right where any one was wrong'd: Or he declared the Law to them whereby they were to be judged; and perhaps punished some gross Idolaters, or other great Offenders.

Ver. 7. And when the Philistines heard that the Children of Israel were gathered together at Mizpeh, the Lords of the Philistines went up against Israel.] Being ignorant of the true Reasons of this Meeting, the Philistines imagined the Israelites assembled to consult about War, and so resolved to be beforehand with them, and surprize them.

And when the Children of Israel heard it, they were afraid of the Philistines.] Being unarm'd, I suppose, or not prepared to give them Battle.

Ver. 8. And the Children of Israel said unto Samuel, Cease not to cry unto the LORD our God for us, that he will save us out of the hands of the Philistines.] According to the Promise made to them, ver. 3.

Ver. 9. And Samuel took a sucking Lamb.] For after a Lamb was eight days old, it was fit to be sacrificed unto God, Exod. xxii. 30. Levit. xvii. 27. The Hebrew Word Tale, is the Name for the youngest Sheep; as Ajil is for the eldest; and Chebes for one between both.

And offered it for a Burnt-offering wholly unto the LORD.] Whereby he supplicated the Divine Mercy, as the Son of Sirach explains it, Ecclus. xlvi. 16. He called upon the mighty LORD, when his Enemies pressed him on every side, ἐν προσφυρᾷ, by the Obligation of a sucking Lamb.

And Samuel cried unto the LORD God of Israel, and the LORD heard him.] Which is a demonstration that tho' he was not a Priest, nor this place appointed for Sacrifice; yet as a Prophet, he had Authority from God, to build an Altar any where, and to make his Supplication in this manner. Thus other holy Men, Gideon and Manoah, were warranted to offer extraordinary Sacrifices, in places which God had not before appointed. And it is probable, that God answer'd Samuel, as he did Manoah, by Fire consuming the Sacrifice, in testimony of God's acceptance, Judges xiii. 20. And thus we read of an Altar he built in another place, ver. 17. as Elijah did in following times.

Ver. 10. And as Samuel was offering up the Burnt-offering.] Before it was consumed.

The Philistines drew near to Battle against Israel.] Hoping to find them unprepared. The Son of Sirach saith, they of Tyre joined with the Philistines in this Action, Ecclus. xlvi. 17.

But the LORD thundered with a great Thunder on that Day, upon the Philistines, and discomfited them; and they were smitten before Israel.] They were affrighted, like Men out of their Wits, with Thunder and Lightening; which killed many of them, before the Israelites could come up to fight them. For together with this horrible Tempest, Josephus saith, there was an Earthquake, and that the Earth opened in several Places, and swallowed up some of them; who, like blind Men, ran into those Gaps.

Ver. 11. And the Men of Israel went out of Mizpeh, and pursued after the Philistines.] Having Samuel to lead them, as their Captain, according to Josephus.

And smote them, until they came under Bethcar.] A place in the Confines of the Tribe of Judah. This Victory was the more wonderful, because we do not find the Israelites came appointed with any Weapons to Mizpeh: But, as far as can be gathered by the Relation of the Fight, they smote them with their own Weapons; which the Philistines threw away when they fled, and which were found among those that were slain by the Lightening.

Ver. 12. And Samuel took a Stone and set it up between Mizpeh and Shen.] So Jacob and Joshua had done, as Monuments of God's Mercy to them, and their Obligations to him.

And called the Name of it Eben-ezer, saying, Hitherto hath the LORD helped us.] That is, thus far we have gotten the better: For they were not utterly destroyed, but driven quite out of their Coasts, as it follows in the next Verse.

Ver. 13. So the Philistines were subdued, and they came no more into the Coast of Israel.] He put an end to the forty Years Tyranny of the Philistines, mentioned Judges xiii. 1. (See my Notes there, and upon ver. 5. of that Chapter) and Judges xv. 20.

And the Hand of the LORD was against the Philistines all the Days of Samuel.] As in this Battle he gave them such an overthrow, that they were quite driven out of the Country of Israel: So during Samuel's Government, 'till Saul was made King, we never read that they attempted with an Army to invade them; but then they did, xiii. 19.

Ver. 14. And the Cities which the Philistines had taken from Israel, were restored to Israel.] They not only expelled the Philistines, but recovered also several places of which the Philistines had possessed themselves, during their Dominion over them.

From Ekron even unto Gath, and the Coasts thereof, did Israel deliver out of the hands of the Philistines.] Ekron was in the Tribe of Judah; Josh. xv. 45. which the Philistines now forsook out of fear, as some think; or were driven out of it for the present, tho' it was not long before they got possession of it again.

And there was Peace between Israel and the Amorites.] Not by Compact and Covenant; but by the Inclination of both sides, they abstained from all hostile Actions. The Amorites were not the only Remainders of the old Inhabitants of Canaan; but being the most powerful among them, they had long given Name to the rest, Gen. xv. 16. And now the Philistines were thus subdued, none of them, who used to infest the Israelites, durst stir to give them any molestation, but sat quiet and still.

Ver.

apart, or ſolemnly appointed) his Son to keep the Ark, i. e. to attend it, and ſee that no Rudeneſs was offered to it ; as well as to keep a Guard about it, to defend it from violence. If it be enquired why they did not carry the Ark to Shiloh, its ancient Seat ; the Anſwer is, that the Philiſtines had deſtroyed that Place ; and the Tabernacle upon the Death of Eli, was removed from thence unto Nob ; where it remained till the Death of Samuel. And after his Death, it was carried to Gibeon, where it remained fifty Years, according to the account of the Author of Seder Olam Rabba. All which time the Ark was in Kirjath-jearim, 'till David brought it firſt to the Houſe of Obed-Edom, and then to his own City. After which the Tabernacle ſtill remained at Gibeon till Solomon's Temple was built, 1 Chron. xvi. 39. 2 Chron. i. 3. where we read, that even after the Death of his Father, Solomon ſacrificed at Gibeon, the Tabernacle being there.

Ver. 2. And it came to paſs while the Ark abode in Kirjath-jearim the time was long, for it was twenty Years.] This is not to be underſtood of the whole time that the Ark remained here : For it continued, as I ſaid before, in this Place, till the time of David, (2 Chron. vi. 3.) which was about forty ſix Years : therefore it refers to the following Words.

And all the Houſe of Iſrael lamented after the LORD.] Or rather, (as Dr. Lightfoot tranſlates them) Then all the Houſe of Iſrael, &c. Their Idolatry had taken ſuch deep root in them, that neither the loſs of the Ark, nor the ſlaughter of ſo many Iſraelites wrought upon their Hearts : But it was twenty Years before they minded the Ark, or took any notice of it : Then they were awakened to ſome ſenſe of their Duty, and began to ſeek the Favour of God, and lament their Apoſtacy from him. See his Annot. on this Place, and upon Acts iii. 24. p. 758. And one Reaſon why they did not regard the Ark, was perhaps, becauſe it was now ſeated in the Borders of the Country of the Philiſtines, of whom they were afraid. And this is the ſenſe of Abarbinel. For tho' others think, that from the Day that the Ark came to Kirjath-jearim, the Iſraelites began to lament their Sins, and to turn to God ; having heard of the Miracles that had been done in the Land of the Philiſtines, &c. yet he doth not approve of this Opinion ; but will have their Lamentation to begin after the Ark had been twenty Years at this Place : Where it remained many more Years than twenty.

Ver. 15. And Samuel judged Iſrael all the days of his Life.] From theſe Words Mr. Hobbs, and his Followers, draw an Argument, that this was written by ſomebody after the Death of Samuel. Which is a very weak Proof: For the ſenſe may be no more than this; that Samuel was ſo diligent in the Diſcharge of his Office, that he gave himſelf no Reſt, but ſate to judge Cauſes every day.

Ver. 16. And he went from Year to Year, in a Circuit, to Bethel, and Gilgal, and Mizpeh, and judged Iſrael in all thoſe places.] Ἐν πᾶσι τοῖς ἡγιασμένας τάτοις, In all theſe ſanctified places, as the LXX tranſlates theſe laſt Words, (tho' there be no ſuch thing in the Hebrew) becauſe, as Mr. Mede conjectures, here were Proſeucha's, i. e. Places of Prayer, in thoſe ancient Days. But we may more certainly gather from hence, that there was no ſuch High Court then eſtabliſhed (which they call the Sanhedrim in following Ages) to judge all Cauſes; at leaſt, not ſuch inferior Courts, as were appointed by the Law in Deut. xvi. 18. as the High Court is in Deut. xviii. 8. For if there had, there would have been no need of Samuel's riding Circuit every year about the Country, to do Juſtice; as other Judges had done. Judges v. 10. x. 4. xii. 14.

Ver. 17. And his Return was to Ramah; for there was his Houſe, and there he judged Iſrael.] The Power of the Judges was greateſt in War: But when it was over, they ſtill retained ſuch an Authority, that all difficult Cauſes (at leaſt) were brought before them. They were conſulted alſo in all Political Affairs: And that they might know where to reſort to Samuel, when he had ended his Circuit, he kept his conſtant ſtation at Ramah.

And there he built an Altar unto the LORD.] There being no Declaration yet made, where God would have the Ark to be fixed, after the Deſtruction of Shiloh, he built an Altar where he himſelf conſtantly reſided. Becauſe it was fit, when they conſulted about any publick Buſineſs, concerning the Good of the Commonwealth of Iſrael, that there ſhould be a publick Invocation of God's Direction and Bleſſing: Which was done by Sacrifice, as appears from ver. 9.

CHAP. VIII.

Ver. 1. AND it came to paſs when Samuel was old.] The Jews in Seder Olam Rabba, and other Books, make Samuel to have lived no more than fifty two Years; when he could not be ſaid to be old. Therefore Abarbinel forſakes the Doctors in this, and ſhews their Proofs of it to be very weak; and thinks that he rather lived 'till he was Seventy, if not Eighty Years old. But leſs than Seventy, he affirms, none of the Prophets or good Men lived.

That he made his Sons Judges over Iſrael.] When he could not well ſuſtain all the Labour, he took them to aſſiſt him: both when he went his Circuit, and in hearing Cauſes at home. Or, perhaps, when he was old, he went Circuit no more; but ſettled them in a convenient Place (as it follows in the next Verſe) where People might have Juſtice done them, either by him, or by them.

Ver. 2. Now the Name of his firſt-born was Joel, and the Name of his ſecond Abijah; they were Judges in Beerſheba.] As his conſtant Reſidence was at Ramah; ſo he ordered theirs to be at Beerſheba. Whereby, as Corn. Bertram obſerves, (Cap. 9. de Repub. Jud.) the Country was divided into two parts, for the greater Convenience of the People; that the Cauſes of all thoſe who dwelt between Dan and Mount Ephraim, might be brought to be judged by Samuel at Ramah; and the Cauſes of thoſe between Mount Ephraim and Beerſheba, might be judged by his Sons.

Ver. 3. And his Sons walked not in his Ways; but turned aſide after Lucre, and took Bribes, and perverted Judgment.] Covetouſneſs made them take Bribes (contrary to the Law, Exod. xviii. 8.) and they made them pervert Judgment. See Exod. xxiii. 21. Deut. xvi. 19. Procopius Gazæus here aſks this Queſtion: Why God did not puniſh Samuel, as he did Eli, for the Wickedneſs of his Sons? Unto which he anſwers, that Samuel's Sons were not ſo bad as Eli's: For taking Bribes privately, was not like open profaning the Tabernacle, and making the Worſhip of God contemptible. And beſides, it is poſſible Samuel might be ignorant of this Corruption in his Sons: Who did not live near him, but he in Ramah, and they at Beerſheba.

Ver. 4. And all the Elders of Iſrael gathered themſelves together, and came to Samuel unto Ramah.] All the great Men who were diſſatisfied with the Management of Affairs, came to Ramah: Which was one of the Places where Samuel judged the People, and determined their Controverſies, vii. 16, 17.

And they ſaid unto him, Behold thou art old, and thy Sons walk not in thy ways, make us a King to judge us, like all the Nations.] The Weakneſs of Samuel's Body, and the ill Diſpoſition of his Sons Minds, they make their pretence of demanding what they had long deſired to have. The Gemara of the Sanhedrim, Cap. 2. Sect. 6. according to the Tradition of R. Eliezer, ſaith, the Elders were in the right, in deſiring a King to judge them: For according to the Opinion of ſome of their Doctors, this was one of the three things God commanded to be done, when they came into Canaan, that they ſhould make them a King. The only Error was, which aroſe, they ſay, from the Perverſeneſs of the vulgar People, that they deſired a King, like all the Nations. But theſe are mere Fancies; for God gave no ſuch Command, as their beſt Authors, Bechai, Nachman, Ralbeg, and others acknowledge. But their own Pride and Vanity ſuggeſted theſe Deſires to them, that they might not want that outward Pomp and Show which was among their Neighbours. Fear alſo of a potent Enemy, who was about to invade them, might make them think a King neceſſary to lead them on ſucceſsfully to encounter him, (ver. 20. and xii. 12.) But above all, this proceeded from their Inſenſibility of the great Honour they enjoyed above all Mankind, in being under the peculiar Government of God: For whom they had ſo little Regard, that that he ſaith, ver. 7. they deſpiſed him; that is, made nothing of ſuch a King as they could not ſee. But that he had the Supreme Power over them was apparent, in that when they prayed Samuel to make them a King, immediately he prayed to God; ſhewing it was not in his power to do it, but in God alone.

Ver. 6. But the thing diſpleaſed Samuel, when they ſaid, Give us a King to judge us; and Samuel prayed unto the LORD.] To give him Direction what to do in this caſe: But thus far the Elders were in the right, that they came to the Prophet to aſk a King: For none, as I ſaid, could make one, but the LORD alone, who was their Sovereign.

Ver. 7. And the LORD ſaid, Hearken unto the Voice of the People, in all that they ſay unto thee.] Theſe are the Words of an angry Sovereign, (Hoſea xiii. 11.) being as much as to ſay, Let them have their Will. Which he indulged to them, partly to puniſh them; and partly to preſerve them from Apoſtaſy from their Religion. For being as violently ſet upon having a King after the manner of the Egyptians, as they had been to follow their Gods, they might have thrown off the Law itſelf, and conformed entirely to the Cuſtoms of other Nations, if they had not been humoured: For they were ſo ſet upon it, as appears from ver. 19. that after the Prophet had repreſented to them, how much they would loſe by having their Deſires granted, they perſiſted in them, ſaying: Nay, but we will have a King, &c. Which expreſſes a Reſolution to have one whatſoever became of them.

For they have not rejected thee, but they have rejected me; that I ſhould not reign over them.] Theſe words ſhew, that Samuel took it very heavily, that they ſhould be diſſatisfied with his Government: But God tells him, he himſelf had more Reaſon to be angry; for in truth, they had thrown off his Authority, who was their King: (as Samuel tells them afterwards xii. 12.) and therefore was highly offended they ſhould deſire any other. Which the Jewiſh Doctors abovemention'd (ver. 5.) juſtly make an Argument that God did not command them in the Book of Deuteronomy to make them a King; becauſe he was diſpleaſed when they deſired to have one. For the Supreme LORD of the World was their Sovereign, who governed them by Judges, whom he raiſed up and extraordinarily inſpired, when he ſaw occaſion: As he had before conducted them by Joſhua and Moſes, who never ordained any thing of moment without a ſpecial Command for it from God: Who reſerved to himſelf the ſole Power of eſtabliſhing Laws, and appointing Magiſtrates, and making War, as appears by the War againſt the Midianites, Numb. xxxi. For there is no truth in their Opinion, who imagine that the Government of the Iſraelites, before they had a King, was an Ariſtocracy. Joſephus indeed ſeems to ſay ſo, in one or two places of his Antiquities: But in his Book againſt Appion (a very Learned Gentile) wherein he writes moſt accurately, he makes it a diſtinct Sort of Government, different from all other; which he truly calls by a new Name, ΘΕΟΚΡΑΤΙΑ, the Government of God, lib. 2. For God exerciſed the Supreme Authority among them, by his expreſs Command. Which being without Example, that it may not ſeem incredible to thoſe, who are wont to detract from the Sacred Hiſtory, it may be fit to obſerve, (to uſe the words of Hermannus Conringius, in his Animadverſions on Machiavel's Princeps, cap. vi.) that the Dæmons who were worſhipped as Gods by the Gentiles, attempted to imitate this, by ſetting up a like Government. So that memorable Hiſtory of the Original of the Commonwealth of the Cyrenians in Egypt, mentioned by Diodorus Siculus, Strabo, Pauſanias, Juſtin, and others. And that Hiſtory of the Beginning of Heraclea in Pontus, which Juſtin relates, Lib. xvi. Cap. 3. For this Republick being raiſed by the expreſs Command of Dæmons, was upon that account, they ſay, exceeding flouriſhing. No leſs memorable is the Republick of the Mexicans in America, erected by the Command of their Dæmon Vitzipultzi; who above all others endeavoured to imitate the Miracles wrought by God for the Iſraelites. Many others, he there ſhews, pretended to this; tho' all was tranſacted by themſelves.

Ver. 8. According to all the works that they have done, ſince the day that I brought them out of Egypt, unto this day; wherewith they have forſaken me, and ſerved other Gods; ſo do they alſo unto thee.] No wonder they deſired another ſort of Ruler than Samuel; for they had choſen other Gods. And this had been their wicked Humour ever ſince they were delivered from the Tyranny of Pharaoh.

Ver. 9. Now therefore hearken unto their voice.] Since they had no greater regard unto God, and his Miniſter; he reſolved to let them exchange his Government, for ſuch an one as the Nations had; who often oppreſſed them.

Howbeit, yet proteſt ſolemnly unto them: and ſhew them the manner of the King that ſhall reign over them.] He continuing ſtill their King, God was ſo very gracious, as to order Samuel to lay before them at large, into what Servitude they were going to throw themſelves by caſting off the Government of Judges ſet over them by God himſelf; and ſubjecting themſelves to the Power of ſuch Kings as ruled in other Nations.

Ver. 10. And Samuel told all the words of the LORD unto the people, that aſked of him a King.] How ill God took it, looking upon it as a rejection of himſelf; who had hitherto governed them moſt graciouſly, and often delivered them from the heavieſt Oppreſſions. For he either ſtirred up ſome Perſon, by an immediate ſignification of his will and pleaſure, to be their Judge: Or when there was none, he was ready to rule their Proceedings himſelf, by Urim and Thummim, directing them what Courſe to follow, in the publick Concerns of the Nation. Theſe two things plainly demonſtrated (as our Mr. Thorndike hath well obſerved) that God was their King, whom they now caſt off. See Review of the Rights of the Church, p. 68, 133.

Ver. 11. And he ſaid, This ſhall be the manner of the King that ſhall reign over you.] And moreover he declared what kind of Government they choſe, inſtead of God's. There are various various Opinions about the Jus Regium, the Royal Power here mentioned. Which containing divers Particulars that ſeem arbitrary and unjuſt, Interpreters have choſen to expound the Hebrew Word Miſhpat, not by jus, but by mos and conſuetudo; that is, not by Right, but by Manner and Cuſtom. And ſo the Words may be tranſlated, as Joſeph Scaliger obſerved long ago from many Inſtances, (Epiſt. xv.) particularly Gen. xl. 13. and in this Book xxvii. 11. See Petavius alſo upon Epiphanius, Hæreſ. lv. N. 9. But there is no neceſſity of this, as Grotius rightly obſerves, and from him Conringius. For Samuel doth not ſpeak of a juſt and honeſt Right of a King to do theſe things (for his Right is quite otherwiſe deſcribed, in that part of Moſes's Law, which concerns the King's Duty) but ſuch a Right as the Kings of the Nations had then acquired: For they deſired ſuch a King as their Neighbours had; who were all under the abſolute Dominion of their Princes. Which Ariſtotle calls, δεσποτικὴν ἀρχήν. Lib. v. Polit. cap. 10. Οἱ περὶ τὴν Ἀσίαν ὑπομένουσι μὲν δεσποτικὴν ἀρχήν, ἠδέν, δυσχεραίνοντες, They of Aſia endure a Deſpotick Government, nothing at all complaining.

He will take your Sons, and appoint them for himſelf.] To attend him as the Guards of his Body, and in other Offices. This ſhews that he ſpeaks of an arbitrary Power, which Kings in thoſe days uſed. And therefore Abarbinel obſerves that Samuel doth not ſay abſolutely, I will ſhew you the Manner or Right of the King, (as if it were a Right belonging to all Kings) but that ſhall reign over you; that is, of ſuch a King as you deſire, who will adminiſter Affairs in this faſhion.

For his Chariots, and to be his Horſemen.] To look after his Chariots and his Horſes. For ſo the Word Paras ſignifies, (as Lud. De Dieu, and Bochartus have obſerved) and theſe Words ſhould be thus tranſlated, For his Chariots and his Horſes.

And ſome ſhall run before his Chariots.] Be his Footmen.

Ver. 12. And he will appoint him Captains over thouſands, and Captains over fifties.] Others ſhould be diſpoſed of to Military Offices, higher or lower, as pleaſed him, (xiv. 52.) who were to be perfectly ſubject to him, and diſplaced by him, when he thought good.

And will ſet them to ear his Grouud, and to reap his Harveſt.] Others ſhould be made Huſbandmen, to plough his Ground, and reap his Corn on his own Terms; when, perhaps, their Labour was neceſſary about their own Fields.

And to make him Inſtruments of War, and Inſtruments of his Chariots.] Others he would make Artificers: Which was not very agreeable to that Nation; who were inclined from their beginning, rather to look after the Breed of Cattle.

Ver. 13. And he will take your Daughters to be Confectioners, and to be Cooks, and to be Bakers.] He would exerciſe, he ſhews, as Arbitrary Power over the Women, as over the Men; whom he would make to ſerve in ſuch Employments as he thought fit; either for nothing, or ſuch Wages as he pleaſed to give them.

Ver. 14. And he will take your Fields and your Vineyards, and your Olive-yards, even the beſt of them, and give them to his Servants.] Beſtow them on ſuch of his Courtiers as he thought good to raiſe to great Eſtates. Which is not to be underſtood, as if he ſhould challenge a Right to take their Lands from them, (for the contrary appears from the Story of Ahab, who without a very wicked Contrivance could not poſſeſs himſelf of Naboth's Vineyard) but that he ſhould take the Fruit of them, when he thought it neceſſary, eſpecially in time of War, to gratify his Soldiers. To this Caſe Abarbinel confines the Senſe of theſe Words.

Ver. 15. And he will take the tenth of your Seed, and of your Vineyards.] This was part of the Jus Regium in the Eaſtern Countries, (ſee my Notes upon Gen. xxviii. 22.) to have the tenth part of the Fruit of the Land for the King's ſhare: And if they contented themſelves with this Portion, they were accounted good Kings. As Cypſelus King of Corinth, is obſerved by Ariſtotle to have exacted no more of his Subjects than the Tenth of their Fruits. Such Capitations and Taxes, as Bodinus ſpeaks, (Lib. vi. de Repubi. cap. 2.) which are uſual now, being unknown in thoſe days.

And give to his Officers, and to his Servants.] This Revenue being brought into his Exchequer, he therewith paid his Bed-chamber-men, and other Servants, their Salaries. I call them Bed-chamber-men, becauſe the Hebrew Word (which we tranſlate Officers) ſignifies Eunuchs, (as the LXX here tranſlate it) who commonly attended them in their Chambers. And it was the more grievous to have ſuch Men maintained out of this Revenue, becauſe they were Strangers: For it was not lawful for the Jews to make any of their Nation an Eunuch. This Revenue itſelf alſo proved a heavy Burden upon the Jews, becauſe this tenth Part was exacted out of the remainder, after the tenth Part had been paid to the Levites, as Kimchi and Abarbinel obſerve.

Ver. 16. And he will take your Men-ſervants, and your Maid-ſervants, and your goodlieſt young Men.] The moſt beautiful and proper Perſons he could find.

And your Aſſes, and put them to his Work.] Either at the Plough, or for Carriage, or any other Employment wherein they were neceſſary.

Ver. 17. And he will take the tenth of your Sheep, and ye ſhall be his Servants.] So ſubject to him, that if he pleaſed, they ſhould be no better than his Slaves. I know none that hath diſcourſed this whole matter ſo perſpicuouſly and fully, as the late Learned Puffendorf, whoſe Words I ſhall tranſlate, as I find them in his Book, De Rebus geſtis Philippi. This People, ſaith he, had hitherto lived under Governours raiſed up by Divine Inſtinct, who had exacted no Tribute of them, nor put them to any Charges. With which Government they being not contented, but deſiring to have a King like other Nations, that ſhould live in Pomp and Splendor, and keep ſtanding Forces about him, to be ready to reſiſt any Invaſion: Samuel informs them, what it was they deſired, that they might conſider, when they underſtood it, whether they would perſiſt in their Choice: If they would have a King magnificently attended, then he tells them, the King will take their

Sons

Sons, and put them in his Chariots, &c. v. 11. If they would have him keep up conſtant Forces, then he muſt appoint them for Colonels and Captains, and employ thoſe in his Wars, who were wont to follow their Family-Buſineſs, ver. 12. And ſince after the manner of other Kings he muſt keep a ſtately Court, they muſt be content that their Daughters (ver. 13.) ſhould ſerve in ſeveral Offices; which the King would think below the Dignity of his Wives and Daughters. Many Miniſters alſo in ſeveral Employments both in War and Peace, muſt have Salaries to ſupport them; which muſt be paid out of their Fields and Vineyards, ver. 14. For which Services he tells them, the King will exact the Tenth of all belonging to them, that he may maintain his Royal Expences. In one word, if you will have a King, he muſt be maintained, after a Royal Manner, out of your Eſtates.

Ver. 18. And ye ſhall cry out in that day, becauſe of your King which you have choſen.] This ſhews that in all the foregoing Verſes, Samuel deſcribes the uncontroulable Power which the Eaſtern Princes exerciſed over their Subjects; who were patiently to bear whatſoever their Princes impoſed upon them, without any Power to help themſelves. For, as Grotius obſerves, this Miſhpat doth not ſignify a true Right, but ſuch a Fact as hath Effectum Juris, (the Effect of Right) viz. an Obligation of not reſiſting: Which is the Reaſon that Samuel adds theſe Words; that the People loaded with intolerable Oppreſſions, ſhould implore the Help of God, becauſe there was no human Remedy left for their Relief. See Lib. 1. de Jure Belli & Pacis, Cap. 4. Sect. 3. This plainly confutes the Fancy of the Jews concerning their Sanhedrim, and their Power to ſcourge Princes: For as Samuel conſulted no body in making a King, but God alone; ſo when he was made, he got ſuch a Power, that it is ridiculous to think that High-Court could controul him.

And the LORD will not hear you in that day.] But leave them under this heavy Yoke; becauſe they would not hearken unto him, when he repreſented to them what would be the Effect of that Power which they deſired him to ſet over them.

Ver. 19. Nevertheleſs the People refuſed to obey the Voice of Samuel; and they ſaid, Nay, but we will have a King over us.] This Deſcription of the Government of the Eaſtern Kings, did not deter them from perſiſting in their Deſires. But they peremptorily demanded a King, tho' Samuel told them, that this Demand was a throwing off the Government of God. Who always heard their Cry, when they were oppreſſed by their Enemies; but now would leave them without any Help, when they groaned under the Oppreſſion of their Kings. Which Obſtinacy, as an excellent Perſon of ours (Dr. Jackſon) ſpeaks, did prognoſticate that incurable and deſperate Diſeaſe, which had its fatal Criſis in their rejecting Chriſt: who was both Prieſt and Prophet, and their lawful King. In caſting off whom, they could not but caſt off God, that he ſhould not reign over them. And ſo a great Admirer of his paraphraſeth the Seventh Verſe of this Chapter: Let it not grieve thy Spirit, that they grow weary of thee: But let them have their Will, for ſo will they ſerve the LORD and thy Redeemer.

Ver. 20. That we may be like all other Nations.] Strange Blindneſs! that they could not ſee it was their ſingular Felicity, that they were not like other Nations: But had God for their Governor, who never failed, in time of need, to raiſe up Men of wonderful Worth, to be their Deliverers. It was their vain-glorious Humour therefore that made them think, they were inferior to other Nations, unleſs they ſaw a Prince ſet over them ſhining in Gold and Jewels, living in a ſumptuous Palace, attended with Guards richly cloathed, appearing in great Pomp and State, as they did in other Countries; which they fancied would be for the Glory of their Land.

To judge us, and go out before us, and fight our Battels.] There was anciently a Reſpect to their Military Virtue, in the choice of their Kings; the very Word REX, among the Romans, having its Original from their Abilities to govern Armies, and keep them in good Order and Diſcipline. Such were all thoſe great Men whom God had raiſed up, as there was occaſion, to judge Iſrael. Who had been ſo ſucceſsful when they fought for them, that they were always victorious; which they could not promiſe themſelves their Kings wou'd be; the very firſt of which was ſlain in Battel.

Ver. 21. And Samuel heard all the Words of the People, and rehearſed them in the Ears of the LORD.] As he had told all the Words of the LORD unto the People, ver. 10.

Ver. 22. And the LORD ſaid unto Samuel, Hearken unto their Voice, and make them a King.] Such as they deſired, like thoſe of other Nations: For ſo it appears in the following Hiſtory, many of them were, as Samuel had predicted. Witneſs the Words of the People to Rehoboam, concerning Solomon's Government, 1 Kings xii. 4. And the Tyrannical Words of Jezabel to Ahab about Naboth's Vineyard, 1 Kings xxi. 7. And all the Violence of Manaſſeh, who ſhed innocent Blood very much, 'till he had filled Jeruſalem with it, 2 Kings xxi. 16. And what David himſelf did, in the matter of Uriah, when he had defiled his Wife, 2 Sam. xi. 15, 16.

And Samuel ſaid unto the Men of Iſrael.] To the Elders of the People, who had attended him about this Matter.

Go ye every Man unto his City.] He bad them leave the Buſineſs unto him; and God, he doubted not, would ſet a King over them.

CHAP. IX.

Ver. 1. NOW there was a Man of Benjamin, whoſe Name was Kiſh, the Son of Abiel, the Son of Zeror, the Son of Bechorath, the Son of Apiah a Benjamite.] In this Genealogy there is no difficulty but one; which is, that in two places of the Chronicles it is ſaid, that Ner begat Kiſh, 1 Chron. viii. 37. ix. 39. But by begetting there muſt be meant, the giving him his Breeding and Education. For it is evident

Ner was Kiſh his Brother, 1 Sam. xiv. 51. D. Kimchi will have it that he had two Names, Abiel and Ner.

A mighty Man of Power.] This ſeems not to be meant of his Wealth or Intereſt in his Country (for Saul himſelf ſaith, he was of a mean Family, ver. 21.) but of his great Strength, Courage, and Fortitude; which is therefore mentioned, becauſe it hath been often obſerved, that fortes creantur fortibus.

Ver. 2. And he had a Son whoſe Name was Saul, a choice young Man, and a goodly; and there was not among the Children of Iſrael a goodlier Perſon than he: From his ſhoulders and upwards he was higher than any of the People.] They deſired a King like the reſt of the Nations, who look'd upon Perſons of an heroick Stature and Countenance, to be mark'd out for Empire. Whence the Saying of Euripides, Εἶδος ἄξιον τυραννίδος; and that of Curtius, Quippe hominibus barbaris in corporum majeſtate veneratio eſt. But no Words are more memorable, to this purpoſe, than thoſe of Pliny, in the Concluſion of his fourth Chapter of his Panegyrick to Trajan; where he ſaith, the Strength and Tallneſs of his Body, the Nobleneſs of his Aſpect, the Dignity of his Mouth, the Gracefulneſs of his Speech, &c. Nonne longe lateque principem oſtentant? Do they not every where proclaim a Prince? This was a thing ſo carefully provided for in ancient Times, to have a goodly Race of Kings, that the Lacedemonians ſet a Fine upon their King Archidamus (as Plutarch tells us in the beginning of his Book, περὶ παιδῶν ἀγωγῆς) for marrying a Wife of a low Stature; who was likely to bring them, οὐ βασιλέας ἀλλὰ βασιλίσκους, not Kings but Kinglings, to reign over them.

Ver. 3. And the Aſſes of Kiſh, Saul's Father, were loſt.] Wandered out of their Paſture.

And Kiſh ſaid unto Saul his Son, Take now one of the ſervants with thee, and ariſe, go and ſeek the Aſſes.] It is no wonder that he was employed in this Enquiry, for I ſuppoſe he had the Charge of looking after his Father's Cattle; which was an Employment the greateſt Men did not diſdain in antient Time: As we learn from the Hiſtory of Hercules and Paris, and others among the Greeks. And in Judea Aſſes were a conſiderable part of their Subſtance: For the greateſt Perſons rode upon Aſſes 'till the time of Solomon, when Horſes began to be multiplied. Judg. x. 4.

Ver. 4. And they paſſed thro' Mount Ephraim, and they paſſed thro' the Land of Shaliſha, but they found them not; then they paſſed thro' the Land of Shalim, and there they were not, &c.] They ſearched, that is, all the mountainous Country of the Tribe of Ephraim, which lay next to Benjamin, after they had firſt gone thro' that Tribe, as it here follows:

And they paſſed thro' the Land of Benjamin, &c.] Or, they had paſſed thro' the Land of Benjamin; where hearing no Tidings of them, they went into the next Country, to ſee if they were ſtray'd thither.

Ver. 5. And when they were come to the Land of Zuph.] A Territory in the Tribe of Ephraim, where ſome of Samuel's Anceſtors had lived, (i. 1.) and Ramah, where Samuel now dwelt, ſeems to have been in it; as we may gather from the next Verſe.

Saul ſaid to his ſervant that was with him, Come, let us return.] Being uncertain whither to go next, after they had ſought ſo many places in vain.

Leſt my Father leave caring for the Aſſes, and take thought for us.] Be afraid that we are loſt. The Hebrew Word, as Dr. Hammond obſerves (upon Pſal. xxxviii. 18.) ſignifies Solicitude of Mind, mixed with Grief and Sorrow.

Ver. 6. And he ſaid unto him, Behold now, there is in this City a Man of God.] A Prophet.

And he is an honourable Man.] A Perſon of great Fame, and held in high Eſteem.

All that he ſaith comes ſurely to paſs.] Which procured him ſuch Honour.

Now let us go thither, peradventure he will ſhew us our way we ſhall go.] To find the Aſſes.

Ver. 7. Then ſaid Saul to his ſervant, But, behold, if we go, what ſhall we bring the Man?] This was a part of the Honour they did to Great Men, in thoſe Countries, to make them a Preſent, when they had occaſion to addreſs themſelves to them. Particularly Prophets were thus honoured; being Men of God: before whom they were not to appear empty. Thus alſo they demonſtrated their Reverence to their King, in the next Chapter of this Book, ver. 27.

For the Bread is ſpent in our Veſſels, and there is not a Preſent to bring to the Man of God: What have we?] Proviſion for their Table was as acceptable a Preſent as Money: Which appears from what Jeroboam's Wife brought to Abijah the Prophet, 1 Kings xiv. 3.

Ver. 8. And the ſervant anſwered Saul again, and ſaid, Behold, I have here at hand a fourth part of a ſhekel of ſilver, that will I give to the Man of God, to tell us our way.] A ſmall Preſent, but as acceptable as the Widow's Mite; being all they had left in their Travels.

Ver. 9. Before time in Iſrael, when a Man went to enquire of God.] By conſulting a Prophet.

Thus he ſpake, Come, let us go to the Seer: For he that is now called a Prophet, was before time called a Seer.] Tho' the word Nabi, (a Prophet) had been antiently known, as appears by the Books of Moſes; and uſed in Samuel's Days, as appears from many places in this Book; yet the more common Word, which now prevailed, when Saul was anointed King (for in all Languages Words are in and out of faſhion, in ſeveral times) was Roeh (a Seer.) But in following Years, when Samuel wrote this Book, Nabi was become the more uſual Word in all Mens mouths. This is a fair Account of theſe Words, from whence ſome argue that Samuel was not the Author of this Book, nor Moſes the Author of the Pentatench: Where Abraham is called Nabi, (xx. 7.) which ſhews that this was no new Word in theſe days, as they would have this place underſtood. But it might be ſufficient to anſwer unto this, that Nabi did not ſignify in antient times, one that foretold things to come; but only one that was familiar with God, and was inſtructed in his Will, that he might inſtruct others. But now in Samuel's time time it came to be appropriated to the revealing future things, and foretelling what ſhould come to paſs, or revealing Secrets, which none could know but God.

Ver. 10. Then ſaid Saul to his ſervant, Well ſaid, let us go: ſo they went to the City, where the Man of God dwelt.] That is, to Ramah.

Ver. 11. And as they went up the Hill to the City, they found young Maidens going down to draw Water.] At the Fountain, which (as uſual) was at the bottom of the Hill.

And ſaid unto them, Is the Seer here?] Of which there might be ſome doubt; becauſe ſome time he was wont to go Circuit about the Country.

Ver. 12. And they anſwered them, and ſaid, He is; Behold, he is before you, make haſte now.] That is, they could not fail to find him, if they loſt no time, but went ſpeedily to the City, before he went to ſacrifice; when it would not be proper to interrupt him.

For he came to-day to the City.] He either lived without the Gate of the City; or returned from his Country Circuit.

For there is a Sacrifice of the People to-day.] Either at ſome ſolemn Feſtival (the New Moon ſome imagine) or upon ſome ſpecial Occaſion of Prayer and Thankſgiving to God; for the People of that City, or for all Iſrael.

In the High-place.] All Sacrifices were regularly to be offered before the Ark, in the place which the LORD ſhould chuſe. But while this Choice ſtood ſuſpended, becauſe Shiloh was laid deſolate, and no other place appointed; they ſacrificed in other places, where neither the Ark nor the Tabernacle were: The Tabernacle being void of the Ark, which was its principal Furniture; and the Ark being without an Houſe for God to dwell in. What Place then, in this Condition, could be more commodious, than thoſe Cities where the Prieſts and Levites lived; to which the People went for Inſtruction? and they choſe the higheſt Parts of thoſe Cities for this purpoſe. Corn. Bertram, (Cap. 11. de Repub. Jud.) imagines, that from this Example High-places came to be in uſe in After-ages, (unleſs we ſuppoſe them to be the Relicks of the Canaanites, or more antient People) for this is the firſt time we read of an High-place among the People of God. Yet we read before of the thing, tho' not of the Name. See Judges vi. 20. xiii. 19. and ſo early as Abraham's time we read (Gen. xxii.) he was directed to Mount Moriah to offer his Son. The ſame learned Man alſo thinks, that this was the beginning of Synagogues and Schools, as our Mr. Thorndike doth in his Religious Aſſembly, p. 29. For tho' when the Ark was ſettled, it became unlawful to offer Sacrifices in High-places; yet it was no offence to continue there for publick Prayer, and the Praiſes of God, and the Learning of the Law.

The Jewiſh Doctors take this High-place to have been ſome Houſe, where after they had ſacrificed, they feaſted when they had done. And ſo the Targum here tranſlates theſe words, the Houſe of Feaſting.

Ver. 13. As ſoon as ye be come into the City, you ſhall ſtraightway find him.] For on this day he appeared publickly.

Before he go up to the High-place to eat, for the People will not eat until he come; becauſe he doth bleſs the Sacrifice.] That is, the Feaſt upon the Sacrifice. Which were Peace-offerings; the greateſt part wherof belonged to him that brought the Sacrifice; wherewith he entertained his Friends.

And afterward they eat that be bidden.] The Gueſts of him that offered the Sacrifice; who, at this time, I ſuppoſe, was Samuel. For God having told him, that he ſhould that day ſee the Man, whom he intended for their King, it is likely he appointed more Sacrifices to be added unto thoſe which were uſually offered at ſuch times, at his own Charge. That there might be the greater Feaſt, unto which he invited the People, (ver. 24.) that is, the principal of the People, and placed the Gueſts (ver. 22.) and carved at the Table, (ver. 23.) which are all Tokens that he was at the Expence of the Sacrifice, and made this Feaſt for his Friends.

Ver. 14. And they went up into the City; and when they were come into the City, behold Samuel came out againſt them, for to go to the High-place.] Met them directly in his way to the Feaſt: For ſo God in his Providence had diſpoſed things, as it follows in the next Words.

Ver. 15. Now the LORD had told Samuel in his Ear, a day before Saul came, ſaying.] In the Hebrew the Words are, He revealed or uncovered the Ear of Samuel; as is noted in the Margin. Now that was done in order to tell him ſomething: and therefore the meaning is, God told him a Secret; uſing, in all likelihood, a whiſpering Voice.

Ver. 16. To-morrow about this time, I will ſend thee a Man out of the Land of Benjamin.] This ſhews ſtill, that all was done by God's direction.

And thou ſhalt anoint him to be Captain over my People Iſrael, that he may ſave my People out of the hand of the Philiſtines.] Who had grievouſly oppreſſed them for forty Years together: And tho' driven out of the Country by Samuel, yet were ready to invade them again; as they did, it appears, by the following Hiſtory.

For I have looked upon my People, becauſe their Cry is come unto me.] Tho' he would not hear their Cry to relieve them from the Oppreſſion of their Kings, (viii. 18.) yet he was ſo gracious as to make thoſe Kings Inſtruments of their Deliverance from the Oppreſſion of their cruel Neighbours.

Ver. 17. And when Samuel ſaw Saul, the LORD ſaid unto him.] With ſuch a low Voice as he heard the Day before, ver. 15.

Behold the Man whom I ſpake to thee of, this ſame ſhall reign over my People.] The Word we tranſlate Reign, ſignifies ſomething of Coercion, and Reſtraint, as is obſerved in the Margin: And denotes he ſhould rule them with an abſolute uncontroulable Power, ſternly and rigidly, after the manner of the Eaſtern Monarchs. Which was, as I ſaid, a Puniſhment for throwing off the kind and gentle Government of God.

Ver. 18. Then Saul drew near to Samuel in the Gate.] He came up to him, as he was going out of his Houſe.

And

And ſaid, Tell me, I pray thee, where the Seer's Houſe is.] It is an Argument that Saul had led a very private Life, ſince he had never ſeen Samuel, who went about into ſo many places to judge the People.

Ver. 19. And Samuel anſwered Saul and ſaid, I am the Seer, go up before me unto the High-place.] This ſeems to be ſpoken out of Reſpect to him.

For thou ſhalt eat with me to-day, and to-morrow I will let thee go, and tell thee all that is in thine Heart.] All that he deſired to know. This ſhews it was a Supper, not a Dinner, to which he invited him; otherwiſe he might have diſmiſs'd him as well after Dinner, as the next Morning: But the Cuſtom of that Country was to make their Entertainment in the Evening, when Buſineſs was over.

Ver. 20. And as for thy Aſſes which were loſt three days ago.] This ſatisfied him he was a Prophet, that he knew what he came to him for, tho' he had not told him.

Set not thy mind on them, for they are found.] He frees his mind from all care about the Aſſes; that he might eat and drink the more cheerfully at the Feaſt.

And on whom is all the Deſire of Iſrael? is it not on thee, and on all thy Father's Houſe?] The meaning is, all Iſrael deſire a King, and there is none fitter for it than thy ſelf; whoſe Family God is reſolved to advance.

Ver. 21. And Saul anſwered and ſaid, Am I not a Benjamite, of the ſmalleſt of the Tribes of Iſrael? and my Family the leaſt of all the Families of the Tribe of Benjamin?] He thought no Perſon more unfit for the Dignity; both becauſe the Tribe of which he was, had been lamentably impaired in the time of the Judges (Chap. xx.) and his own Family was very inconſiderable in this little Tribe.

Wherefore then ſpeakeſt thou ſo unto me?] He concluded therefore, that Samuel did but jeſt with him.

Ver. 22. And Samuel took Saul, and his Servants, and brought them into the Parlour; and made them ſit in the chiefeſt Place among them that were bidden.] He convinced him he was in earneſt, by ſetting him uppermoſt at the Table, in the moſt honourable Place among the Gueſts.

Which were about thirty Perſons.] The principal Perſons, I ſuppoſe, of the City; who were Witneſſes of the extraordinary Reſpect which he paid him.

Ver. 23. And Samuel ſaid unto the Cook, Bring the Portion which I gave thee, of which I ſaid, Set it by thee.] The Maſter of the Feaſt diſtributed to every one their Portion; or ordered what Diſh ſhould be ſet before them: And Samuel had commanded the Cook (before they ſat down) not to ſet one Diſh upon the Table, but keep it 'till he called for it.

Ver. 24. And the Cook took up the Shoulder, and that which was upon it.] The Left Shoulder and Breaſt: For the Right Shoulder and the Right Breaſt belonged to the Prieſt, Levit. vii. 33, 34.

And ſet it before Saul.] As the principal place was given him at the Feaſt, ſo the principal Diſh alſo was ſet before him; to expreſs ſtill the great Regard he had to his Perſon.

And Samuel ſaid, Behold that which is left.] Reſerved on purpoſe for his Entertainment.

Set it before thee and eat.] Let it ſtand, as it is ſet before thee, and eat of it, as thy Portion.

For unto this time hath it been kept for thee, ſince I ſaid, I have invited the People.] The plaineſt Tranſlation of theſe Words, is that of Lud. de Dieu; Eat, becauſe till this appointed time it hath been reſerved for thee, when I ſaid I have invited certain Perſons. That is, beſides the thirty Perſons, he told the Cook he had invited ſome others (which was Saul and his Attendant) for whom he would have this Shoulder to be reſerved. For by inviting the People, he underſtands only theſe two Perſons; the word People ſometimes ſignifying (as he ſhews) very few. He thinks indeed the Feaſt was not made by Samuel, who brought along with him only theſe two Gueſts: But that ſeems to me, not to agree with the whole Story.

And Saul did eat with Samuel that day.] Who entertained him very nobly; for the Left Shoulder was always accounted the beſt part of the Sacrifice: Being the ſame with that which the Prieſt had for his Portion. And therefore ſet before the King, if he was preſent at the Feaſt, and thence called by Joſephus Μηρὸς Βασιλικὴ, The Royal Portion: For the Arm and Shoulder, as Philo diſcourſes, were the Symbols of Strength and Fortitude.

Ver. 25. And when they were come down from the High-place into the City, Samuel communed with Saul upon the top of the Houſe.] Concerning his Advancement to the Royal Dignity, and his Adminiſtration of the Government.

Ver. 26. And they roſe up early. And it came to paſs about the Spring of the day.] Before the People of the Place were ſtirring.

That Samuel called Saul to the top of the houſe, ſaying, Up, that I may ſend thee away.] According to his Promiſe, ver. 19.

And Saul aroſe, and they went out both of them, he and Samuel abroad. For Samuel intended, out of Reſpect to him, to conduct him part of his way. But went without any of his uſual Attendants; that what he did, might, for the preſent, be kept a Secret.

Ver. 27. And as they were going down to the End of the City, Samuel ſaid to Saul, Bid thy Servant paſs on before us, (and he paſſed on) but ſtand thou ſtill a while, that I may ſhew thee the Word of the LORD.] Which he would have none to hear, but himſelf: Becauſe he now meant only to give him private Satisfaction, that God had choſen him to be the King of his People; before whom afterwards he was publickly choſen by Lot.

CHAP. X.

Ver. 1. THEN Samuel took a Vial of Oil.] It was the Buſineſs of a Prophet to anoint a King, as Abarbinel obſerves upon Exodus xxx. Which he proves from this Example of Samuel's anointing Saul, and afterwards David; and Nathan's anointing Solomon, and the Prophet (which the Hebrew Doctors ſay was Jonah) anointing Jehu, 2 Kings ix. 1, 6. This

This Unction seems to have been made in the open Fields: But that it was done at a Fountain, because Solomon was there anointed, cannot be proved (as the Hebrew Doctors would have it) from that single Instance; which will not make a general Rule. Nor can it be proved, that this was Sacred Oil taken from the Tabernacle, but rather Common: For Samuel was no Priest, and therefore could not meddle with that which was kept there; nor was he now near unto that place.

And poured it upon his Head.] There is no Order of God, that we read of, for the anointing of Kings: But it had been an ancient Custom, two hundred Years before this time, as appears from the Parable of Jotham. See on Judges ix. 8. And it was now used by Samuel, that their King might be like the Kings of other Nations, as they desired. In after-times they were far superior to them, if we may believe the Hebrew Doctors; who say the Family of David had the Privilege to be anointed with the same holy Oil, wherewith the High-Priest was anointed. For tho' the Law appropriated it unto him, yet there was a Dispensation with the Law, manifested by some Prophet. For certain it is, that Solomon was anointed with Oil taken from the Tabernacle, 1 Kings i. 39. Only they say there was a difference in the Form of anointing: The King being anointed in the Form of a Crown incircling his Head; but the High-Priest in the Form of a Cross, by one Line drawn with the Oil running down his Forehead, and by another drawn by the Oil between his Eye-brows: Which they call in the Form of the Greek Letter Chi, having no mind to mention the name of the Cross. See Selden's Titles of Honour, p. 144. De Succeſſ. Pontific. lib. 2. cap. 9. Schickard's Jus Regium, cap. 1. Theorem. 4.

And kissed him.] In token of Subjection and Reverence to him: According to the custom of antient times (see Gen. xli. 40.) and in those following, Psal. ii. 12. This the Jews call Neshikah Shel Gedolah, the Kiss of Greatness or Majesty; in our Language, the Kiss of Homage.

And said, Is it not because the LORD hath anointed thee to be Captain over his Inheritance?] That is, doubt not, but by Authority from God thou art made the Ruler of his People. This was a thing not easily to be believed, and therefore he gives him three or four Signs, in the following Verses, to confirm his Faith. But it must not be imagined, that now he was inaugurated; for that was done afterwards, according to this prophetical Prediction: Which was kept so private, that it shewed he intended no more now, than to assure Saul he should be made King, and publickly install'd their Sovereign.

Ver. 2. And when thou art departed from me to-day, thou shalt find two Men by Rachel's Sepulchre, in the border of Benjamin, at Zelaah: and they will say unto thee, The Asses which thou wentest to seek are found; and lo, thy Father, &c.] He foretelling Saul so exactly, how many Persons he should meet, and the Place where, and what they would say to him, was an Argument that he was a Prophet; and therefore was to be believed in what he said to him from God concerning the Kingdom. Rachel's Sepulchre was in the way to Bethlehem, (Gen. xxxv.) which was in the Tribe of Judah, but in the Border of Benjamin.

Ver. 3. Then shalt thou go on forward from thence, and thou shalt come to the Plain of Tabor: and there shall meet thee three Men going up to God to Bethel.] This had been a Religious Place; ever since the Days of Jacob: as if by God's Appearance to him there, it had been consecrated for Prayer and Sacrifice: And the Tabernacle being now without the Ark, and the Ark in no determined place, they sacrificed in High-places (as Samuel, we read, did in the foregoing Chapter) and particularly here at Bethel; where Jeroboam afterwards settled one of his Calves. But Fortunatus Scacchus thinks it no improbable Conjecture, that they had no Altar; but sacrificed upon the bare Ground. Myrothec. Elæochrism. Sacr. Lib. 2. cap. 5.

One carrying three Kids, and another three Loaves, and another carrying a Bottle of Wine.] Intending to offer Sacrifices of Peace-offerings.

Ver. 4. And they will salute thee, and give thee two Loaves of Bread; which thou shalt receive at their Hands.] This may be look'd upon as a Third Sign, or an Appendix to the Second. And it is the more remarkable; because this Present which they made him, was a Figure of that Honour which the People did him, when he was declared their King. And if these Loaves were two of the three, which they were going to offer in Sacrifice, (as some think they were) the Present was the more noble. But tho' this may be justified, by supposing them to be given to one that was faint with travelling, and which they might recruit at Bethel; yet we may as well think, as Kimchi doth, that they were two Loaves which they brought along with them for their own use in their Journey. Which they freely imparted unto Saul; and Samuel bid him not refuse; but learn thereby, when he had abundance, to be kind to those who were in want.

Ver. 5. After that thou shalt come to the Hill of God.] So called, because they were wont to sacrifice here; or because here was a School of the Prophets, who were called Men of God. Some take this to be Gibeah, others Kirjath-jearim.

Where is a Garrison of the Philistines.] This makes it probable the Hill before mentioned was Geba, or Gibeah: For there they had a Garrison, xiii. 3. which doth not contradict what was said, vii. 13. For tho' the Philistines were subdued, and made no Invasions upon the Israelites while Samuel lived; yet they might retain some Strong-holds, out of which they could not drive them.

And it shall come to pass when thou art come thither to the City, that thou shalt meet a Company of Prophets.] Here it seems was a College of Prophets, settled for the Instruction of Youth in the Knowledge of the Law and of Piety, (who were called the Sons of the Prophets) where tho' the Philistines also had a Garrison, yet in this they were better than many Christians (as Grotius observes) for they spared those Places (when they conquered them) where learned Men lived, and were dedicated to the Study of of Religion. See Lib. 3. de Jure Belli & Pacis, Cap. 11. Sect. 10.

Coming down from the High-place.] Perhaps they came from a Sacrifice, which had been offered in the High-place: And now praiſed God for his Benefits, in the following manner.

With a Pſaltery, and a Tabret, and a Pipe, and an Harp before them.] With variety of Inſtrumental Muſick; among which the Nevel (which we tranſlate Pſaltery) was the chief: Having it's Name, as the Jewiſh Doctors fancy (in the Midraſh, upon Pſalm lxxxi.) from hence; that it put down all other Inſtruments of Muſick, as much as a wiſe Man doth a Fool. Bartoloccius in his Kirjath-Sepher, Pars 2. Fol. 185, &c. gives an Account of this, and the reſt of the Inſtruments here mentioned. With which I do not think fit to trouble the Reader; but only note, that this Muſick was uſed in Propheſying, becauſe the Minds of the Prophets were thereby compoſed, and made apt to receive ſoft and good Impreſſions; as Grotius here obſerves from many Examples.

And they ſhall propheſy.] Sing the Praiſes of God, as the word Prophecy ſometimes ſignifies, Exod. xv. 21. 1 Chron. xxv. 3. In what manner this was done, it is not ſo eaſy for us now to define, or ſpecify (as Mr. Mede ſpeaks.) But one of them ſeems to have been the Præcentor, to uſher in the Verſe or Ditty; and the reſt to have anſwered, Τὰ ἀκροτελεύτια, the Extreams, or laſt Words of the Verſe. See him, Book 1. Diſcourſe 16. p. 78.

Ver. 6. And the Spirit of God ſhall come upon thee, and thou ſhalt propheſy with them.] This was the higheſt Aſſurance of all the reſt, that Samuel anointed him by God's Authority. Who vouchſafed ſuddenly to inſpire him with ſuch Thoughts and Affections, that he became like one of them, viz. a Pſalmiſt: Able in an Inſtant to compoſe Hymns in the Praiſes of God; or to accompany them in their Melodies, which he had never learnt. For he was not bred in the School of the Prophets.

And ſhalt be turned into another Man.] Endued with extraordinary Prudence, and Courage, and ſuch like Qualities, as fitted him for the Government and Conduct of God's People.

Ver. 7. And let it be, when theſe ſigns are come unto thee, that thou do as occaſion ſhall ſerve thee.] As if he had ſaid, I cannot give thee particular Rules about every thing that is to be done by thee: But doubt not to undertake the Government of the People; for God's Spirit ſhall guide thee to do that which the preſent occaſion requires.

For God is with thee.] Be confident of good Succeſs in all thy Undertakings, for God will be with thee, when thou goeſt out againſt thine Enemies. The Chaldee Paraphraſe underſtands the foregoing Words, as if he had ſaid, make all things belonging to a King, and then adds, for the WORD of the LORD will be thy help.

Ver. 18. And thou ſhalt go down before me to Gilgal.] A Place which had been famous for many great things done there, when they firſt came to Canaan: And lay conveniently for all the Tribes beyond Jordan to meet, now they dwelt there.

And behold, I will come down to thee, to offer Burnt-offerings, and to ſacrifice Sacrifices of Peace-offerings: ſeven days ſhalt thou tarry till I come unto thee, and ſhew thee what thou ſhalt do.] This looks like another Sign which he gave him, of God's Preſence with him, in future times, if he were obedient to his Commands. For it cannot be underſtood of his going immediately to Gilgal; and ſtaying there ſeven Days: For the People were firſt to be called together to Mizpeh, where he was made King, ver. 17. and after the Defeat of the Ammonites, he was confirmed in the Kingdom at Gilgal, xi. 14, 15. And then the next Year, a War breaking out with the Philiſtines, all the People met at Gilgal, and Saul with them; waiting for Samuel to come, as he had appointed, to offer Sacrifice: Which Saul, being impatient of ſtaying ſo long for him, offered himſelf, &c. (xii. 4, 8, 9.) and thereby forfeited God's Favour; whoſe Prophet had aſſured him he would not fail to come to meet him here. But then, theſe Words muſt not be pointed as they are now; but as the Hebrew Text will bear: Retaining the ſame Words, and only altering the Pauſe or Point in this manner; Thou ſhalt go down before me to Gilgal, and behold I will come unto thee to offer Burnt-offerings, and to ſacrifice Sacrifices of Peace-offerings, ſeven days. Here is to be a Pauſe: and then another Sentence begins thus, Thou ſhalt tarry till I come unto thee, &c. As if he had ſaid, See in any caſe that thou tarry till I come, and ſhow thee what thou ſhalt do. Which Samuel perhaps knew not himſelf, at preſent: But intended to aſk Counſel of God; and being fully inſtructed in this great Buſineſs, then come to conſecrate him (as Dr. Jackſon conjectures) and eſtabliſh him in his Kingdom: By a ſolemn Sacrifice for ſeven Days, ſuch as Solomon uſed at the Conſecration of the Temple. See his Third Sermon on Jerem. xxvi. 19. and the very ſame he repeats in his Book of the Knowledge of Jeſus Chriſt, Chap. 17. Paragr. 4.

Ver. 9. And it was ſo, when he had turned his back to go from Samuel, God gave him another heart; and all theſe ſigns came to paſs that day.] So great was the Goodneſs of God, that he immediately fulfilled the Laſt and Chief of theſe Signs: For he was no ſooner gone to Samuel, but he felt another Spirit come into him of Wiſdom, and Fortitude, to qualify him for the Government of God's People. Which afterwards God took away from him, becauſe of his Sins, xvi. 14. See Pſalm li. 12.

Ver. 10. And when he came thither to the hill, behold, a Company of Prophets met him; and the Spirit of the LORD came upon him, and he propheſied among them.] He mentions not the other Signs particularly, becauſe they were not of ſuch general Concernment unto others; but for his own Satisfaction: Whereas this of the Prophet's meeting him, and his Converſion into a Prophet, was of great and univerſal Concernment; to make the People reverence him as their King, when they heard how God had honoured him with ſuch an extraordinary Gift from Heaven.

Ver. 11. And it came to paſs, when all that knew him beforetime, ſaw, that behold he propheſied pheſied among the Prophets, then the People ſaid one to another; what is this that is come unto the Son of Kiſh? Is Saul alſo among the Prophets?] It begat Wonder in all thoſe who knew his Education, that he ſhould on a ſudden be inſpired as they were, who were bred up in the School of the Prophets: For tho' it was in the power of God alone to beſtow the Gift of Prophecy upon Men, yet commonly he endowed none with it, but ſuch as were trained up in thoſe Studies, which might diſpoſe them for it. For had it been uſual to inveſt thoſe with this Spirit, who had not been educated in ſuch a Courſe as might fit them to receive it, we cannot think it would have been ſo great a marvel now, as to give riſe to this Proverb. Which muſt not be underſtood, as Procopius Gazæus obſerves, as if Saul had perpetually the Gift of Prophecy: But that he received ſuch a Spiritual Gift, whereby he at preſent propheſied; and was endued with Prudence alſo to govern the People of God. Thus the LXX Elders, who were to aſſiſt Moſes, propheſied; but not always. It is obſerved by Eraſmus, That this became a Proverb, when they ſaw, aliquam indecenter alieno gregi admixtum, any Man indecently mingled with Company that were Strangers to him. Or, when they ſaw a ſudden Change wrought in any Perſon; as Gregory Nazianzen applied it when he was choſen a Biſhop, Saul propheſied, ſo much beyond expectation, and when no body thought of it, that the Miracle became a Proverb.

Ver. 12. And one of the ſame place, anſwered and ſaid, But who is their Father?] This Wonder was preſently ſatisfied, by a prudent Perſon among them, who bad them conſider, who it was that made Prophets: Not Men, nor merely good Education, but God alone; who was the Father of all the Children of the Prophets (i. e. of their Diſciples) to teach them by his Spirit. Which he could beſtow when he pleaſed, upon any Man, and make him a Prophet; without the help of any other Maſter: Which was the cauſe of Amos, vii. 14. And that is the meaning of the word Father in this place; which ſignifies the ſame with Maſter, or Teacher. See upon Gen. iv. 20, 21.

Ver. 13. And when he made an end of propheſying, he came to the High-place.] Herein he differed from the Prophets who met him; that he propheſied but for a ſhort time, this not being his Office: And when he had done, he went up to the High-place from whence they came down. Where was, I ſuppoſe, a place of Worſhip, unto which he went up, to give thanks to God for his Gifts; and to pray to him to proſper him in the Government he deſigned for him.

Ver. 14. And Saul's Uncle.] Who met him here in the High-place; or in his way home.

Said unto him and to his Servant, Whither went ye?] How came you to ſtay ſo long before your return?

And he ſaid, to ſeek the Aſſes, and when we ſaw that they were no where.] In no place where they ſought them.

We came to Samuel.] To be informed by him.

Ver. 15. And Saul's Uncle ſaid, Tell me, I pray thee, what Samuel ſaid unto you?] What Diſcourſe they had with him.

Ver. 16. And Saul ſaid unto his Uncle, He told us plainly that the Aſſes were found. But of the matter of the Kingdom whereof Samuel ſpake, he told him not.] Leſt he ſhould ſeem to have been ſeeking ſo high a Dignity: And becauſe hitherto Samuel thought fit it ſhould be kept a Secret between them two.

Ver. 17. And Samuel called the People together.] How long after he departed from Samuel, we are not told; but now reſolved to declare God's choice of Saul to be their King, more publickly.

Unto the LORD to Mizpeh.] Which was a very famous Place, where they uſed to meet upon great Occaſions, (ſee Chap. vii.) and God was pleaſed to be preſent (as hath been before obſerved) whereſoever there was a general Aſſembly of his People, for the common Good. See upon Judges xx. 1. Yet one cannot well imagine, that every Perſon of the whole Body of all Iſrael was called hither unto this Convention: But by the People we are to underſtand all the Elders and Heads of their Tribes, who governed and repreſented the reſt: And accordingly that which follows, is to be interpreted.

Ver. 18. And ſaid unto the Children of Iſrael, Thus ſaith the LORD God of Iſrael, I brought Iſrael out of Egypt, and delivered you out of the hands of the Egyptians, and out of the hand of all Kingdoms of them that oppreſſed you.] He commemorates the Benefits they received from him, ever ſince they were in Egypt; from whence he brought them; and ſuffered none of the Kingdoms that lay in their way to Canaan, to obſtruct their Paſſage: And ſince they came there, delivered them from many heavy Oppreſſions.

Ver. 19. And ye have this day rejected your God, who himſelf ſaved you out of all your Adverſities and Tribulations.] By raiſing up Judges whenſoever they cried to him for help: Who never fail'd to conquer all their Enemies.

And ye have ſaid unto him, Nay.] When he deſired them to continue under his Government, they refuſed, and would not be denied what they aſked.

But ſet a King over us.] They would not any longer be governed by God, but have a King ſettled over them; to whom they might reſort for help.

Now therefore preſent your ſelves before the LORD by your Tribes, and by your Thouſands.] Into which their Tribes were divided. This was a wonderful Obſtinacy and Stupidity, that after God had given them time to conſider, what it was they deſired, and what difference there was between his Government, and that of the Kings round about them, they ſhould not relent; but perſiſt to the laſt in their Reſolution; and imagine that a King could ſave them, tho' God was not with them.

Ver. 20. And when Samuel had cauſed all the Tribes of Iſrael to draw near.] Unto the Place where the Lots were to be drawn, in the preſence of the Heads of their Tribes and Families, who repreſented all the reſt.

The Tribe of Benjamin was taken.] This is a Phraſe uſed in the vii. of Joſhua, about the Diſcovery of him, who had offended in the accurſed thing: which all agree was by Lots. And ſo Raſi, and Ralbag underſtand it here: Though Kimchi imagines God told them by Urim and Thummim, out of what Tribe and Family their King ſhould be taken. Which is not probable, becauſe the Ark was not now at Mizpeh; before which the High-prieſt was to ſtand, when he conſulted the Divine Majeſty by Urim and Thummim.

Ver. 21. When he cauſed the Tribe of Benjamin to draw near by their Families, the Family of Matri was taken, and Saul the Son of Kiſh was taken.] The Holy Writer ſhortens this Account of caſting Lots: But it is pretty evident, they were caſt four times: In the firſt the Tribe of Benjamin was taken: In the ſecond the Family of Matri in that Tribe was taken. But there being ſeveral Houſholds in that Family, it was caſt a third time, that they might know in what Houſe their King was, and that of Kiſh was taken: And in his Houſe by a new Lottery, Saul was taken: And he took this courſe, as to prevent all Diſpute; ſo to give him the greater Authority over them, as a Perſon divinely appointed; according to what God had ſaid, Deut. xix. 15. And it is very obſervable, that Plato himſelf acknowledges a Government appointed by Lots to be Θεοφιλὴ ἀρχὴν, a Government beloved of God, lib. 4. de Legibus.

Here Interpreters are wont to enquire why their firſt King ſhould be choſen out of the ſmalleſt Tribe, ſprung from the youngeſt Son of Jacob, and out of the ſmalleſt Family in this Tribe: Eſpecially ſince Judah all along had the Preheminence among his Brethren, and the great King was promiſed to ſpring from him. To which this ſeems to be a reaſonable Satisfaction; that this King being extorted by their undutiful Importunities, and given them in Anger (as I before obſerved) God was pleaſed to expreſs his diſlike of it, by this Choice: Whereby he alſo intended to take them off, from depending on their King (whoſe Power was ſmall) ſo much as on himſelf.

And when they ſought him, he could not be found.] Having withdrawn himſelf, either out of Feebleneſs of Spirit (as ſome think) or rather, out of Modeſty, he declined ſo high an Authority, unleſs impoſed upon him: Or, perhaps, being affrighted when he heard Samuel ſtill repreſenting God as offended with them, for aſking a King; which was to reject his Government.

Ver. 22. Therefore they enquired of the LORD further, if the Man ſhould come thither: and the LORD anſwered.] From hence Abarbinel argues, That God directed them, both by Lot, and by Urim and Thummim. Which if it be true, then, though the Ark was not there, yet they enquired of the LORD in the uſual way, and he was pleaſed to give Anſwers any where, in great and weighty Caſes. As Abiathar enquired of the LORD with the Ephod for David, at Keliah and at Ziklag. xxiii. 9. xxx. 7.

Behold he hath hid himſelf among the ſtuff.] Or, among the Carriages. Here the Jews obſerve, that whoſoever flies dominion, him dominion follows. For when they told Saul he was choſen King, he ſaid he was not fit for that Office, and bid them enquire again by Urim and Thummim: Which they make the meaning of the word further. And while they were going to make this Enquiry, he went and hid himſelf, till the Oracle diſcovered him. See Buxtorf, Hiſt. Urim and Thummim. Cap. 3. p. 307.

Ver. 23. And they ran and fetcht him thence; and when he ſtood among the people, he was higher than any of the people, from his ſhoulders and upwards.] A Princely Perſon, and of a Majeſtick Aſpect. As Corn. Nepos deſcribes Iphicrates in the Account he gives of his Life, Cap. 3. Fuit & animo magno & corpore, imperatoriaque forma, ut ipſo aſpectu cuivis injiceret admirationem ſui. He was great both in Mind and Body; having a Form ſo imperial, that his very Aſpect ſtruck every one with Admiration of him. And thus P. Cunæus obſerves, that not only barbarous People, but the moſt polite Nations did, Majeſtatem corporis venerari, look upon a Majeſtick Body with Veneration, Lib. 1. de Repub. Hebr. p. 85. Which appears by what Homer ſaith of Agamemnon, Iliad. 3. ver. 166. and Virgil of Æneas and Turnus: The latter of which he deſcribes juſt like Saul, Lib. 7. ver. 782.

Ver. 24. And Samuel ſaid unto all the people, See ye him whom the LORD hath choſen.] Tho' the People were reſolutely bent to have a King; yet they were ſenſible none could make one but God. And therefore they came, in the beginning of this Buſineſs, to aſk one of his Prophets. But Samuel could not conſtitute one without divine Direction and Appointment; as appears by the firſt Verſe of this Chapter, where he ſaith, the LORD hath anointed thee; and the Lot whereby he was publickly choſen, was caſt before the LORD, ver. 19, 23. And accordingly here he tells them, the LORD hath choſen him. Thus afterwards the LORD commanded David to be anointed, xvi. 1, 3. and among all his Sons Solomon was particularly appointed by God to ſucceed him, 1 Chron. xxix. 5.

That there is none like him among all the people.] Such was his Stature, and his Aſpect, that, as Joſephus expreſſes it, ἐξεῖχε τε ἁπάντων, καὶ τὸ ὕψος ἦν βασιλικώτατον, he excelled, and was moſt kingly in his height, Lib. 6. Antiq. Cap. 5.

And all the people ſhouted.] All that were then preſent; except ſome prophane Fellows, who were ſo far from owning him for their King, that they deſpiſed him.

And ſaid, God ſave the King.] In the Hebrew, let the King live, that is, be proſperous. The ſame form of Words was uſed in After-ages, when they made Kings, 1 Kings i. 34, 39. 2 Kings xi. 12. 2 Chron. xxiii. 11. All this being done at Mizpeh, when Samuel ſet up the great Stone called Eben-Ezer; it is not improbable that Saul was there declared their King.

Ver. 25.

Ver. 25. Then Samuel told the People the manner of the Kingdom, and wrote it in a Book, and laid it up before the LORD.] The Right of the King, which he had laid before the People, upon their first desire to have one (viii. 11.) he now wrote in a Book, and laid up before the LORD: That it might be a Witness against them, that all the Evils which hereafter befel them, were drawn upon them by their own Desires. For what Petrus Cunæus saith, that he wrote the Words mentioned Deut. xvii. 16, &c. is altogether unlikely: They being laid up before the LORD long ago, when the Law was put by the side of the Ark, Deut. xxxi. 26. Josephus said a great deal better, Lib. 6. Antiq. cap. 5. Τὰ μέλλοντα συμβήσεσθαι κακὰ γράψαι, &c. The Prophet having written the Evils that should befal them, he read them in the ears of the King, and then laid up the Book in the Tabernacle of God, to be a Testimony unto future Ages of what he had foretold. A Duplicate of this Writing, it is likely, he left with the Elders of the People.

And Samuel sent all the People away, every Man to his House.] The People were not dismissed by Saul, who would not presently take upon him to exercise his Authority. For Samuel was there, who had been for many Years their supreme Governour. That is, sixteen Years (as Sir J. Marsham computes) before the Inauguration of Saul: And he lived eighteen Years after, as Josephus saith, in the latter end of the sixth Book of his Antiquities; during which time, he exercised the Power of a Judge.

Ver. 26. Saul also went home to Gibeah.] In this he still shewed his Humility: Going to his own home, which was no princely Palace.

And there went with him a Band of Men, whose heart God had touched.] A Company of stout valiant Men, of great Resolution: Whom God inclined to follow him, as his Guard. Or, were moved perhaps, by the Authority of Samuel (who was a Man of God) to go and attend him.

Ver. 27. And the Children of Belial said.] Some very lewd Men (see upon Deuteron. xiii. 13.) who hated all Government: And being, it is probable, Men of some Rank and Quality, were proud, and despised a Person of such a small Family.

How shall this Man save us?] They would not vouchsafe so much as to call him by his Name; but insolently contemned him, as one of no note, who had no Power to deliver them.

And they despised him, and brought him no Presents.] As the manner was to do unto their Kings in the Eastern Countries, when they first tender'd their Service to them. Which was a Token of their Benevolence, Subjection, and Joy. Thus the Psalmist represents the People offering Gifts to the Messiah, Psalm xlv. and lxxii.

Jonathan thus expresses it in this Place, They did not come to wish him a happy Reign.

But he held his peace.] This was an Act of great Prudence: which declared he was endued with an extraordinary Spirit; which enabled him to dissemble his Knowledge of the Scorn they put upon him. For if he had taken notice of it, he must have punish'd it; and it had not been safe to begin his Reign, with any thing of Severity: Therefore he wisely ordered himself, as if he did not observe their Neglect. Corn. Bertram thinks, in his Book de Repub. Jud. cap. 10. that these Men refusing to be governed by Saul, he retired for a while, and led a private Life: leaving Samuel to administer all Affairs, as he had done for many Years. But whether that be true or no, it is evident Saul, in the beginning of his Reign, was endued with a Spirit of singular Wisdom and Moderation: And was none of those Princes whom Dion Prusæus describes (Orat. de Regno, p. 5.) μακαρίζοντας ἐξουσίαν μετ' ἀνοίας, who bless and praise Power, joined with Folly and want of Understanding.

CHAP. XI.

Verse 1. Then Nahash the Ammonite.] He was either the King of the Children of Ammon, or the Captain of his Host; who laid siege to Jabesh-Gilead, as Josephus saith, about a Month after Saul was chosen King: But had levied War against them before (xii. 12.) which was the occasion of their desiring a King.

Came up against Jabesh-Gilead.] He renewed, it is likely, their old Pretensions to this Country: which they had made in the time of Jephthah. For Jabesh-Gilead was in the Tribe of Manasseh on the other side Jordan; bordering upon the Ammonites: who laid a claim to this Country, which the Israelites took from Sihon and Og, as we read in Judges xi.

And all the Men of Jabesh said unto Nahash, make a Covenant with us, and we will serve thee.] Be his Subjects, but not Slaves, with whom no Covenant was made.

Ver. 2. And Nahash the Ammonite answered them, On this condition I will make a Covenant with you, that I may thrust out all your right Eyes.] He would not put out both their Eyes, because that would have made them unserviceable to him: But only the right, which (as many learned Men have observed) was most useful in War; the left Eye being covered with their Shields, which they held in their left hand: So Procopius Gazæus, the left Eye is covered with the Shield; with the right we see our Enemies.

And lay it for a Reproach upon all Israel.] This is the only Reason he gives for such insolent Treatment, that all Israel might know what they were to expect, if he could prevail over them.

Ver. 3. And the Elders of Jabesh said unto him, Give us seven days, that we may send Messengers into all the Coasts of Israel, and then if there be no Man to save us, we will come out to thee.] It may seem strange, that either they should submit so soon to such base Conditions; or that Nahash should grant them so much respite, when he saw them so abject and inclined to yield to him. But the Reason of both is visible: For Saul they thought was not able to help them; having not yet taken upon him the Government, but living privately (see ver. 5.) and Nahash it is like was loth to drive them to Desperation, by denying them this short space to expect Relief; which he thought could not poſſibly come to them; tho' Saul ſhould appear and endeavour to levy an Army; for that he imagined could not be done, in ſo few days.

Ver. 4. Then came Meſſengers to Gibeah of Saul.] So called, becauſe Saul was there born, and bred, and dwelt.

And told the Tidings in the ears of the People, and all the People lift up their Voices and wept.] As Men deſpairing of Relief.

Ver. 5. And behold, Saul came after the Herd out of the Field; and Saul ſaid, What aileth the People, that they weep? And they told him the Tidings of the Men of Jabeſh.] By this it appears (as I noted in the Concluſion of the foregoing Chapter) that ſome Men, not only refuſing to ſubmit to him, but deſpiſing him; he went and lived retired, and led a ruſtick Life: exerciſing no Authority over the People; but leaving all to Samuel's Management.

Ver. 6. Then the Spirit of the LORD came upon him, when he heard theſe Tidings, and his Anger was kindled greatly.] But now he reſolved, by an Impulſe he felt from Heaven, to ſhow that God had choſen him to be their King: Who, upon this occaſion gave him an extraordinary meaſure of Courage, Zeal, and Military Skill.

Ver. 7. And he took a Yoke of Oxen.] Which he had newly brought out of the Field, ver. 5.

And hewed them in pieces, and ſent them throughout all the Coaſts of Iſrael, by the hand of Meſſengers, ſaying, Whoſoever comes not forth after Saul, and after Samuel, ſo ſhall it be done unto his Oxen.] He herein begins to give a proof of his Reſolution, by this terrible Threatning; and by the Repreſentation he made of the Execution he intended, if he was diſobeyed. Whereby it appears that the Kings of Iſrael aſſumed ſuch an abſolute Power as Samuel deſcribed, chap. viii. One part of which conſiſted in making War, and raiſing Soldiers by their ſole Authority, and puniſhing thoſe that did not come to the Army at their Summons. For we never read that they conſulted the Oracle before they went to War; nor that they are reproved by the Prophets for that neglect. In like manner they made Laws, which is the Act of a Sovereign. For tho' they could not alter the Laws of Moſes, but were to govern themſelves by them; yet in things not determined there, or were not clear and plain, they made what Laws they thought good; as appears by David and Solomon, and other of their beſt Princes.

And the Fear of the LORD fell upon the People.] They were no leſs affected with the cutting theſe Oxen in pieces, than they had been with the uſing the Levite's Concubine in like manner (Judg. xix. 19.) as Bochartus notes: who obſerves ſomething like this among heathen People, Hierozoic. P. i. lib. 2. cap. 33.

And they came out with one conſent.] God who put Courage into Saul, poſſeſſed the People alſo with a Fear of offending him; now that he aſſerted his Royal Authority over them. For he names himſelf before Samuel (the Kingly Dignity being ſuperior to the Prophetical) but wiſely mentions him alſo, that they who did not reverence himſelf as their King, might follow the Prophet, whom all reverenced.

Ver. 8. And when they numbred them in Bezek.] Of this place, ſee upon Judges i. 6.

The Children of Iſrael were three hundred thouſand, and the Men of Judah thirty thouſand.] It is thought by ſome, that the Philiſtines invaded them in the Weſt, as the Ammonites did in the Eaſt, (juſt as they had done formerly in the time of Jephtha, Judg. x. 7, 8.) which is the reaſon ſo few of Judah came in at this Summons; being engaged elſewhere againſt another dangerous Enemy. But they would not wholly neglect to come to his Aſſiſtance in this other War, but ſhowed their forwardneſs to obey him, as much as they were able. Bertram alſo, Altingius (in his Shilo, L. 3. Cap. 11.) and others, take it as an Honour done to this Tribe, which had the Preheminence, that they were numbered by themſelves. But Sir J. Marſham looks upon it as the beginning of a Schiſm, Secul. ix.

Ver. 9. And they ſaid unto the Meſſengers that came, Thus ſhall ye ſay to the Men of Jabeſh-Gilead, to-morrow by that time the Sun ſhall be hot, ye ſhall have help, &c.] The morrow after their return, before noon.

Ver. 10. Therefore the Men of Jabeſh ſaid.] Unto Nahaſh the Ammonite.

To-morrow we will come out unto you, and ye ſhall do with us that which ſeemeth good to you.] In caſe, that is, Relief did not come to them by that time: Of which they pretended to have no Hope. Moſt look upon this as ſpoken ironically and in mockery: But Grotius takes it for a Stratagem, to make them ſecure; according to the Opinion of thoſe times, that they might delude the Enemy by deceitful Words: As Eliſha did the Syrians, 2 Kings vi. 18, 19, &c. See lib. 3. de Jure Belli & Pacis, cap. 1. ſect. 17.

Ver. 11. And it was ſo on the morrow, that Saul put the People in three Companies, and they came into the midſt of the Hoſt in the Morning-watch; and ſlew the Ammonites 'till the Heat of the Day.] He ſet upon them, I ſuppoſe, on three Sides, and the Men of Jabeſh iſſuing out on the other, they were ſo diſtracted that they could make little Reſiſtance: But the Iſraelites got into the midſt of them very early, and made a great Slaughter of them 'till Noon.

And it came to paſs that they which remained were ſcattered, ſo that two of them were not left together.] This is added to ſhow, with what a compleat Victory Saul began his Reign: Whereby God eſtabliſhed his Authority.

Ver. 12. And the People ſaid unto Samuel.] Who, it appears from hence, accompanied Saul in this Expedition, to encourage him with hopes of good Succeſs.

Who is he that ſaid, Saul ſhall not reign over us? bring the Men that we may put them to death.] Great Succeſſes make great Alterations in the Affections of the People; who quietly ſaw Saul contemned a little while ago: But now would have Enquiry made after thoſe Sons of Belial, who ſpake opprobriouſly of him, x. 27.

Ver. 13. And Saul ſaid, There ſhall not a Man be put to death this day.] He prudently diſſembled his Knowledge of their Deſpiſal of him, before the Kingdom was confirmed to him: But this Moderation, now that he was wonderfully derfully victorious, argued greater Wisdom and Goodness. For nothing is more glorious than to be humble and meek in the height of Power.

For to-day the LORD hath wrought Salvation in Israel.] Besides the Policy he exercised in pardoning Offenders (whereby he laid the strongest Obligations upon them to be faithful to him) it was a piece of Piety, to imitate God, who had been so good to them all.

Ver. 14. Then Samuel said unto the People, Come, and let us go to Gilgal, to renew the Kingdom there.] New Kingdoms are not easily settled. And this Place was famous upon many accounts, as Mispeh was, where Samuel first declared him King. Particularly, Samuel was wont to judge the People here, vii. 16.

Ver. 15. And all the People went to Gilgal, and there they made Saul King, before the LORD in Gilgal.] He had been anointed in Ramah, and chosen by Lot in Mizpeh; but still some disdained to own him as their King: Which made him content himself for a time, (as I said before) with a private Life. But now, after this signal Token of God's Presence with him, in the late Victory, he was by common Consent acknowledged by all the People for their King. Which is the Meaning of these Words, they made Saul King; for it is certain, it was neither they nor Samuel that could make a King; but God alone: Who ordered Samuel to anoint him, and then made the Lot to fall uon him; and now inclined the Hearts of all the People to submit to his Authority.

The LXX here say, ἔχρισε Σαμυὴλ, &c. that Samuel here anointed Saul King over Israel. And Josephus (Lib. vi. C. 6.) that he again anointed Saul, Τῷ ἁγίῳ ἐλαίῳ, with holy Oil. But there is not a word of this anointing in the Hebrew Text, no, nor in the Vulgar Latin: And the Targum very well expresses it, they made Saul to reign; i. e. would not let him any longer lead a private Life; but prayed him to take the Government upon him according to God's Ordinance, and promised Subjection to him. Gilgal seems to have been chosen for this purpose, rather than any other place: Because there was a sanctified piece of Ground, as Abarbinel speaks, where, when they entered into Canaan, the Ark first stood: Which now perhaps they brought hither, and offered Sacrifice before it.

And there they sacrificed Sacrifices of Peace-offerings before the LORD.] Who was present, as I observed before (see Judges xx. 1.) in such great Assemblies of the Body of the People: With whom both they and their King made a Covenant of Obedience to him, by offering of the Sacrifices.

And there Saul and all the Men of Israel rejoiced together.] By feasting upon the Peace-offerings: Giving thanks to God for the late Victory, and for settling the Kingdom.

CHAP. XII.

Verse 1. AND Samuel said unto all Israel.] In the presence of Saul, as appears from ver. 3, 5.

Behold, I have hearkened unto you in all that you said unto me, and have made you a King.] This Speech was made before they parted from Gilgal; where they had renewed the Kingdom.

Ver. 2. And now behold the King walketh before you.] To rule and govern them, Numb. xxvii. 17.

And I am old and grey-headed.] And therefore very willing to be discharged from the Government of you.

And behold, my Sons are with you.] Reduced also to the State of private Persons; being the King's Subjects, no less than you.

And I have walked before you, from my Childhood to this day.] He appeals to them whether he had not always discharged his Duty faithfully, from the very beginning; when God had made him a Prophet to instruct and guide them. For now they might freely accuse him, if they had any thing to alledge against him: Both he and his Sons being now become Subjects to a more Sovereign Authority.

Ver. 3. Behold, here I am, witness against me before the LORD, and before his Anointed.] He offers himself to be tried, and to give a publick Account of his Administration: Being ready to answer any thing that could be objected against him.

Whose Ox have I taken, or whose Ass have I taken?] He desires them to testify, if he had ruled after the manner of the Eastern Kings: Under which Government they chose to put themselves.

Or whom have I defrauded, whom have I oppressed.] If they knew of no open Violence, he bids them mention any Fraud or Circumvention, of which he had been guilty.

Or of whose hands have I received any Bribes, to blind mine Eyes? and I will restore it you.] He challenges them to prove so much as the receiving any Gift, in any Cause that came before him; and he would make full Satisfaction.

Ver. 4. And they said, Thou hast not defrauded, nor oppressed us, neither hast thou taken ought of any Man's hand.] They acknowledge him to be perfectly an upright Judge: Who could not be charged to have done any thing amiss.

Ver. 5. And he said unto them, the LORD is Witness against you, and his Anointed is Witness this day, that ye have not found ought in my hand. And they answered, He is Witness.] Of his Innocence; and that they had no reason to complain of his Government.

Ver. 6. And Samuel said unto the People, It is the LORD that advanced Moses and Aaron, and brought your Fathers up out of the Land of Egypt.] D. Kimchi refers this to the foregoing Words; as if he had said, the LORD that did such Wonders by Moses and Aaron is Witness, &c.

Ver. 7. Now therefore stand still.] The Jews observe, that they were wont to stand, when they heard the Word of God. Tho' those Words Exod. xx. 18. are but a slender Proof of it.

That I may reason with you before the LORD, of all the righteous Acts of the LORD; which he did to you, and to your Fathers.] He would not dismiss them, till, having obtained this honourable

able Teſtimony from them, he had repreſented to them the great Benefits they had received from God, and their Ingratitude to him.

Ver. 8. When Jacob was come into Egypt, and your Fathers cried unto the LORD, then the LORD ſent Moſes and Aaron; which brought your Fathers out of Egypt, and made them dwell in this place.] Any one may eaſily diſcern, this is but a compendious Narrative of what God did for them, from their firſt coming out of Egypt, till they were ſettled in Canaan: Which, in likelihood, Samuel more largely recited, when he reaſoned with them. Therefore Moſes and Aaron cannot be underſtood to have made them dwell in Canaan; no more than that their Fathers cried unto the LORD, when Jacob came into Egypt, and the LORD ſent theſe two Perſons to deliver them. For many things intervened between both theſe: Till at laſt God ſettled them in their Reſt, in the good Land he promiſed to give them.

Ver. 9. And when they forgat the LORD their God, he ſold them into the hand of Siſera, Captain of the Hoſt of Hazor, and into the hand of the Philiſtines, and into the hand of the King of Moab, and they fought againſt them.] This is a ſhort Hiſtory of the Calamities which befel them, for their Idolatry, after they came there: Some few of which he only mentions; without obſerving exactly the Order in which they came upon them: But theſe were the People who longeſt oppreſſed them.

Ver. 10. And they cried unto the LORD and ſaid, We have ſinned, becauſe we have forſaken the LORD, and have ſerved Baalim and Aſhtaroth: but now deliver us out of the hand of our Enemies, and we will ſerve thee.] This they did very often, Judges iii. 9, 13. iv. 3. vi. 7. eſpecially x. 10, 15, &c.

Ver. 11. And the Lord ſent Jerubbaal, and Bedan, and Jephthah, and Samuel, and delivered you out of the hand of your Enemies on every ſide, and ye dwelt ſafely.] This is perfectly agreeable to the Hiſtory of the Book of Judges; which acquaints us, that as often as they repented, and beſought his pardon, &c. he raiſed up Deliverers unto them: The lateſt of which he only mentions. In which account there is no Difficulty, but only about Bedan: Of whom we no where read. But ſee my Notes upon Judges x. iv. unto which may be added, that the Chaldee Paraphraſe here hath it, he ſent Gideon and Sampſon, &c. whom moſt take to be the Perſon here meant, and called Ben-Dan (the Son of Dan) becauſe he was of that Tribe: And by Contraction called Bedan; juſt as inſtead of Saul-meel (aſk'd of God) they called him who writes this Book Samuel, for ſhortneſs ſake. Who mentions himſelf as one of their Deliverers; becauſe the ſignal Overthrow he gave the Philiſtines, which drove them out of their Country, was freſh in their Memory.

Ver. 12. And when ye ſaw that Nahaſh the King of the Children of Ammon came againſt you, ye ſaid unto me, nay, but a King ſhall reign over us: when the Lord your God was your King.] They would not ſtay till God raiſed them up a Deliverer, or commanded Samuel, who was their Judge, to fight with him: But would have a King like other Nations, always at hand to fight their Battles. See upon viii. 5. The words Nay, ſeems to ſignify that Samuel told them, that God would be with them to deliver them; or that he offered himſelf to be their Leader under God: But they refuſed his Offer, and continued to demand a King.

Ver. 13. Now therefore, behold, the King whom you have choſen, and whom you have deſired.] He could not upbraid them too often with this, that they would not be content with the Government of God, which was peculiar to them; but choſe to be like other People.

And behold, the LORD hath ſet a King over you.] Tho' they choſe to have a King like other Nations, and be governed by God no longer: Yet he ſtill puts them in mind they could not make one, but he was ſet over them by God; as I have before obſerved.

Ver. 14. If ye will fear the LORD and ſerve him, and obey his Voice, and not rebel againſt the Commandment of the LORD.] According to the Covenant they lately made with him, xi. 15. All Virtue ſprings from the Fear of God.

Then ſhall both ye and your King that reigneth over you, continue following the LORD your God.] That is, be defended by him; and continue a happy People: Notwithſtanding they had thus rejected him. This appears to be the meaning, by what is oppoſed to it in the following Verſe.

Ver. 15. But if ye will not obey the Voice of the LORD, but rebel againſt the Commandment of the LORD; then ſhall the hand of the LORD be againſt you, as it was againſt your Fathers.] He would ſuffer their Enemies to oppreſs them, as they did in the Days of the Judges; or ſend other Plagues upon them.

Ver. 16. Now therefore ſtand and ſee the great thing, which the LORD will do before your eyes.] For a viſible Demonſtration of the Truth of all that Samuel had ſaid.

Ver. 17. Is it not Wheat-harveſt to-day?] A very clear Day, and in no diſpoſition to rain. Which was not wont to fall in Harveſt-time; but in the Autumn, and in the Spring: Called the later and the former Rain.

I will call upon the LORD, and he ſhall ſend Thunder and Rain, that you may perceive and ſee, that your Wickedneſs is great, which you have done in the ſight of the LORD, in aſking you a King.] By this he ſhewed how he could in an Inſtant deprive them of all the Comforts of Life; as they deſerved, for their rejecting him and his Prophet: Who was ſo powerful, as by his Prayers to produce ſuch Wonders.

Ver. 18. So Samuel called upon the LORD, and the LORD ſent Thunder and Rain that day.] A very horrible Tempeſt, accompanied it is likely with Lightning; when all was ſerene, and no Sign appeared of it.

And all the People feared the LORD and Samuel.] This ſtruck ſuch a Terror into them, that they were afraid God would deſtroy them, as he did Korah, Dathan, and Abiram: And that Samuel would not intercede for them.

Ver. 19. And all the People ſaid unto Samuel, Pray for thy Servants unto the LORD, that we die not: for we have added unto all our Sins this Evil, to aſk us a King.] Till now they ſeem not to

to have been ſenſible of their Sin, in deſiring an Alteration in the Form of their Government: Therefore it was a miraculous Storm, full of Horror, which extorted this Confeſſion from them; not only of this, but all their former Sins.

Ver. 20. And Samuel ſaid unto the people, Fear not; ye have done all this wickedneſs; yet turn not aſide from following the LORD, but ſerve him with all your heart.] He would not have them deſpair of recoveting God's Favour; and directs them the beſt way to it: By continuing ſo ſenſible of their Wickedneſs, as to be moved to true Repentance, and ſtedfaſt Obedience.

Ver. 21. And turn ye not aſide, for then ſhall ye go after vain things which cannot profit.] He warns them above all things againſt worſhipping other Gods, whom he calls vain things which cannot profit; by a Scheme of Speech in the Hebrew Language, ſignifying, they do a great deal of miſchief. Thus in Prov. xx. 23. the Wiſe Man ſaith, a falſe balance is not good; that is, is very bad and hateful to God; as it goes before, of divers weights. And thus Heathen Writers ſpeak, particularly Homer, Odyſſ. ξ. ver. 85

Ὀυ γὰρ σχέτλια ἔργα θεοὶ μάκαρες φιλέεσι.

The Bleſſed Gods do not love wicked Actions, i.e. they hate and deteſt them.

Nor deliver, for they are vain.] He preſſes them to perſiſt in the Worſhip of God alone: whom if they forſook, and went after other Gods, in vain did they expect Help and Deliverance from them, for they were void of all Power.

Ver. 22. For the LORD will not forſake his People, for his great name ſake; becauſe it hath pleaſed the LORD to make you his People.] The Stedfaſtneſs of God in his Affection to them, notwithſtanding their Provocations, was a mighty Motive to faithful Obedience.

Ver. 23. Moreover, as for me; God forbid that I ſhould ſin againſt the LORD in ceaſing to pray for you: but I will inſtruct you in the good and right way.] Not only pray for them, but teach and inſtruct them: Which were the two great Offices of a Prophet. They had highly diſobliged him; but he imitated God, who pardoned them, and ſo did he.

Ver. 24. Only fear the LORD, and ſerve him in truth with all your heart; for conſider how great things he hath done for you.] All his Prayers and Inſtructions would not do the Buſineſs; without their ſerious Conſiderations. And what more worthy their conſtant Thoughts than the great Benefits they had received from God: Particularly his tender Mercy, in not caſting them off, when they ſhaked off his Government.

Ver. 25. But if you will ſtill do wickedly, ye ſhall be conſumed, both you and your King.] As it proved, not only in this, but in ſeveral future Reigns.

CHAP. XIII.

Verſe 1. AND Saul reigned one year.] In the Hebrew the Words are, the Son of one year in his Reign or Kingdom. A very learned Prelate of our own (in his Demonſtration of the Meſſiah, Part 2. p. 240.) takes the meaning to be, that after the Philiſtines were ſubdued by Samuel, a year paſſed, when Saul began to reign: and after this, he reigned two years free from their yoak. As for his being called the Son of one year in the Hebrew, it is well tranſlated by us reigned one year; becauſe he was born, when he was made King, and changed into another Man: For thus (as Bochartus hath obſerved) the Day of an Emperor's Inauguration, among the Gentiles, was called his Birth-day, viz. Natalis Regni, the Day when he began his Reign.

And when he had reigned two years over Iſrael.] So Ralbag interprets the Hebrew Words; and thereby confutes the ſtrange fancy in Seder Olam Rabba, that Saul reigned but two Years in all. Whereas the meaning is, after this he reigned two years free from the Oppreſſion of the Philiſtines: But when they were ended, the Philiſtines got the upper hand again, and inſlaved the Iſraelites, as appears by this Chapter.

Ver. 2. Saul choſe him three thouſand men.] In the firſt year of his Reign he performed thoſe things mentioned in the foregoing Chapter: And when he had reigned two Years, theſe things fell out which we read in this Chapter. Which is much better than Dr. Lightfoot's Expoſition, that he had been King one Year from his firſt anointing at Ramah, to his ſecond at Gibeah: and after that he reigned two Years more before the LORD caſt him off, and anointed David. Symmachus and Procopius Gazæus, not much otherwiſe. Who by Son of one year think the Simplicity of his Mind is denoted: which he preſerved for ſome time, i.e. till he had reigned two Years over Iſrael, and then he began to be depraved and forſaken of God.

Whereof two thouſand were with Saul in Michmaſh, and in Mount Benjamin, and one thouſand men with Jonathan in Gibeah of Benjamin.] There was another Gibeah in the Tribe of Judah, Joſh. xv. 57.

And the reſt of the People he ſent every man to his Tent.] The forementioned number being ſufficient for his Guard, and to preſerve the Country in Peace, and to oppoſe any ſudden inroad of their Enemies: He would not be burdenſome to his People, by keeping great Forces.

Ver. 3. And Jonathan ſmote the garriſon of the Philiſtines.] Who tho' ſubdued by Samuel at Aben-Ezer, and driven out of the Country; yet kept ſome ſtrong-holds, as I obſerved, x. 5.

That was in Geba.] This was a diſtinct place from Gibeah, tho' both in the Tribe of Benjamin: As is evident from Joſh. xviii. 24, 28.

And the Philiſtines heard it.] And thereupon (as the following Words import) denounced War againſt Iſrael.

And Saul blew the Trumpet throughout all the Land of Iſrael, ſaying, Let the Hebrews hear.] He gave them notice, by a Proclamation, what Jonathan had done, and what was the effect of it: And thereupon ſummoned them to come to Gilgal.

Ver. 4. And all Iſrael heard ſay, that Saul had ſmitten the garriſon of the Philiſtines.] This ſhows ſhews that Jonathan acted by Saul's order: who was deſirous to free his own Tribe from ſuch Intruders.

And that Iſrael alſo was an Abomination with the Philiſtines.] Who were highly incenſed to take Revenge.

And the People were called together after Saul to Gilgal.] Where Samuel had appointed to meet him, x. 8.

Ver. 5. The Philiſtines gathered themſelves together to fight with Iſrael, thirty thouſand Chariots, and ſix thouſand Horſemen, and People as the Sand of the Sea-ſhore for multitude: And they came up and pitched in Michmaſh, eaſtward from Beth-aven.] A prodigious Army, and very formidable, by reaſon of their Chariots and Horſemen, which were alſo very numerous (ſee Joſh. xi. 4.) But it is not likely the Philiſtines alone could bring ſo many into the Field; No, nor after other Nations thereabout were aſſociated with them, it is credible that they ſhould make up Thirty thouſand Chariots of War. For none ever had ſo many; Pharaoh himſelf purſuing the Iſraelites only with Six hundred, Exodus xiv. 7. Therefore moſt of them were no more than Carriages, which were neceſſary for the Baggage of ſuch vaſt Multitudes of People: Which is a better Account, in my Judgment, than to ſay there is a Miſtake made by Tranſcribers in later Times: As Bochartus himſelf thinks, (Hierozoicon, P. 1. Lib. 2. Cap. 9.) becauſe in the Syriack and Arabick Copies there are only found three thouſand. Which is too great a number, without the help of the foregoing Expoſition; for in the vaſt Army of Mithridates there were but an hundred Chariots, and in Darius's two hundred, and in Antiochus Epiphanes's (of which we read 2*Macc.* xiii. 2.) but three hundred.

Ver. 6. When the Men of Iſrael ſaw that they were in a ſtrait (for the People were diſtreſſed) Tho' their wonderful Succeſs againſt the Ammonites had encouraged them to obey the Summons of ſuch a proſperous Leader, as Saul had been; yet when they ſaw the vaſt Army of the Philiſtines, how well they were appointed, and themſelves unprovided, their hearts failed them, and they ſlunk from him as faſt as they had flocked to him.

Then the People did hide themſelves, in Caves, and in Thickets, and in Rocks, and in High-places, and in Pits.] One part of the People endeavoured to ſecure themſelves in Lurking-places: Where it was not eaſy to find them.

Ver. 7. And ſome of the Hebrews went over Jordan to the Land of Gad and Gilead.] Another part of them fled as far as they could from preſent Danger; into the Country of the two Tribes and a half.

As for Saul he was yet in Gilgal, and all the People followed him trembling.] All that were left with him, were in great fear, ſeeing ſo many of their Brethren deſert him.

Ver. 8. And he tarried ſeven days, according to the ſet time that Samuel appointed.] He miſtook Samuel's meaning (as I ſhowed upon x. 8.) who told him he would come and offer Sacrifice, ſeven Days: And then adds, thou ſhalt tarry 'till I come. So two Interpreters, who are ancient in reſpect of our times (Rupertus, and Angelomus) have obſerved an Amphibologia in Samuel's Words in that Place, which may be conſtrued two ways; and it was Saul's Folly to make choice of the wrong Senſe. For the laſt words there are as much as if he had ſaid, be ſure to tarry 'till I come, and ſhow thee what thou ſhalt do. And indeed common Reaſon might have taught him, that if the War was to be undertaken, it was to be managed likewiſe by the Counſel of the LORD: And therefore he ought not to have ſacrificed, or done any other ſolemn Act, before the Prophet, who was God's Embaſſador in this Buſineſs, came to inſtruct him.

But Samuel came not to Gilgal.] So ſoon as Saul expected him.

And the People were ſcattered from him.] That third part of the People who were left, began to go away; when they ſaw Samuel did not come to adviſe and aſſiſt him, in this dangerous Condition.

Ver. 9. And Saul ſaid, bring hither the Burnt-offering unto me, and Peace-offerings: and he offered the Burnt-offering.] And would have proceeded to offer the Peace-offerings, if Samuel's coming had not prevented him.

Ver. 10. And it came to paſs, that as ſoon as he had made an end of offering the Burnt-offering, behold, Samuel came: and Saul went out to meet him, that he might ſalute him.] Welcome him thither: Which he did in honour of the Prophet.

Ver. 11. And Samuel ſaid, What haſt thou done? and Saul ſaid, Becauſe I ſaw the People were ſcattered from me, and that thou cameſt not within the days appointed, and that the Philiſtines gathered themſelves together to Michmaſh.] Theſe look'd like weighty Reaſons; but could not excuſe his Preſumption in not waiting for Samuel, who aſſured him he would come thither.

Ver. 12. Therefore ſaid I, the Philiſtines will come down now upon me to Gilgal, and I have not made ſupplication unto the LORD; I forced my ſelf therefore, and offered a Burnt-offering.] He pretends it was much againſt his Inclination: But pleads neceſſity for what he did; leſt his Enemies ſhould have ſet upon him, before he had commended himſelf to God, and begg'd his Bleſſing. By which it appears, that Burnt-offerings were of the nature of a Prayer to God: Whom they acknowledged thereby to be the LORD of all. Whence it is that we read ſo often of Abraham and Iſaac, that they built Altars (which were for Sacrifice) and called upon the Name of the LORD. The Gentiles alſo, as well as the Jews, invoked God by their Sacrifices, as Mr. Mede hath ſhown from Homer, and other Authors, Book 2. p. 464.

Ver. 13. And Samuel ſaid to Saul, Thou haſt done fooliſhly; thou haſt not kept the Commandment of the LORD thy God, which he commanded thee.] When God advanced Saul to be King, he was little in his own Eyes, and then a great Man in the ſight of God. But now he began to take upon him, and thought it was fit the Prophet ſhould wait for the King, rather than the King for the Prophet: And diſtruſted Samuel's Word, who bad him tarry 'till he came. And ſo intruded upon the Prieſt's Office; or at leaſt cauſed the Prieſt to do that unſeaſonably; which was reſerved for Samuel to do, do, when God thought fit to ſend him: Who had all along tranſacted all Matters between God and Saul. In ſhort, his Folly and Diſobedience conſiſted in this, that he intrenched upon the Prieſt's Office, or upon the Prophet's, or upon both: And would not wait Samuel's coming, nor confeſs his Fault to him when he came; but made Excuſes, and laid the fault upon all but himſelf, ver. 11.

Abarbinel hath expounded this a little more diſtinctly, by obſerving the Command which Samuel gave him when he firſt anointed him, x. 8. where he tells him firſt, he would come and offer Sacrifice; 2*dly*, he bids him wait for him ſeven Days: And laſtly, ſaith he would direct him what to do. Now Saul tranſgreſſed every part of this Command: For he offered Sacrifice himſelf, which God intended ſhould be offered only by the Prophet; and he did not ſtay till the end of the ſeventh Day, but offered on the ſeventh Day in the Morning; and he intended to begin the War, without any Direction from Samuel, what he ſhould do. He thinks alſo, that thoſe Words ſeven Days (in that place) may refer to the Words going before, viz. Peace-offerings ſo many Days. For Saul was bound, as it follows, to tarry till Samuel came, tho' he ſtayed more than ſeven Days before he came.

For now would the LORD have eſtabliſhed thy kingdom upon Iſrael for ever.] This ſuggeſts that the Intention of Samuel's coming to offer Sacrifice at Gilgal for ſeven Days, was to confirm Saul in the Kingdom (as I obſerved upon x. 8.) if he had not fooliſhly deprived himſelf of that Bleſſing: But here the Hebrew Doctors take notice of a Difficulty, which is, how God could intend to eſtabliſh the Kingdom upon him for ever, without contradicting the Prophecy of Jacob, who had promiſed the Scepter to the Tribe of Judah. Which Ralbag thinks is ſufficiently anſwered, by ſaying that for ever ſignifies no more than a long time; as it doth in the Words of Hannah in the beginning of this Book, Chap. i. 22. and in Exod. xxi. 9. and many more Places. And ſo others interpret theſe Words, as long as his Poſterity laſted.

Ver. 14. But now the Kingdom ſhall not continue.] He predicts that God would not let his Family enjoy the Kingdom: Becauſe of other Sins which he foreſaw he would commit.

The LORD hath ſought him a Man after his own heart, and the LORD hath commanded him to be Captain over his People: becauſe thou haſt not kept that which the LORD commanded thee.] God had not yet commanded David to lead his People: But he fully intended to do it, if Saul did not repent and obtain a Pardon of him for his Offence. Whereby he had not provoked him ſo far, as to have an irreverſible Sentence paſſed upon him (as many great Men have thought) but it might have been revoked, if he had not perſiſted in his Folly, and committed a much greater Offence againſt the Divine Majeſty, in the War againſt Amalek. Then Samuel tells him, the LORD would not repent: Which not being added here, makes it probable he was capable of a Pardon, notwithſtanding this Denunciation; if he had begged it with Repentance, and better Obedience for the time to come.

Ver. 15. And Samuel aroſe, and gat him up from Gilgal unto Gibeath of Benjamin.] The Place of Saul's Birth, and where he lived. Which I look upon as a Sign that Samuel did not intend to deſert him, as he did afterward, nor looked upon him yet as forſaken by God.

And Saul numbred the People that were preſent with him, about ſix hundred Men.] A ſtrange Alteration ſince the laſt Year, when againſt the Ammonites he had three hundred thouſand Men with him beſides thoſe of Judah, xi. 6.

Ver. 16. And Saul and Jonathan his Son, and the People who were preſent with him, abode in Gibeath of Benjamin.] They followed Samuel; and it was a ſtrong Place, where they could defend themſelves better than in the open Field: And here, it is likely, he hoped to increaſe his Forces, being in his own Tribe.

But the Philiſtines incamped in Michmaſh.] A Place not very remote from Gibeath; but in the Tribe of Ephraim.

Ver. 17. And the Spoilers came out of the Camp of the Philiſtines, in three Companies.] They ſent out Parties three ſeveral ways, to ravage the Country, there being none to oppoſe them.

One Company turned the way that leadeth to Ophrah.] There was a City of this Name in the Tribe of Benjamin, Joſh. xviii. 23. but many take this rather to be that in the Tribe of Manaſſeh, where Gideon was born, Judges vi. 11.

Unto the Land of Shuall.] So called, becauſe it abounded with Foxes; as Bochart obſerves.

Ver. 18. And another Company turned the way of Beth-horon.] Both the upper, and the nether Cities of this Name, were in the Tribe of Ephraim, 1 Chron. vii. 24.

And another Company turned to the way of the Border, that looks to the Valley of Zeboim, towards the Wilderneſs.] The Chaldee Paraphraſt tranſlates theſe Words, the Valley of Vipers: For Tzeboa ſignifies a ſort of ſpeckled Serpent, wherewith this Valley abounded; and lay towards the Wilderneſs of Jericho in the Tribe of Benjamin. Thus alſo a great Number of the Hebrew Writers tranſlate Zeboim: Which Junius takes for a City in this Tribe. See Bochartus in his Hierozoicon, p. 2. lib. 3. cap. 7.

Ver. 19. Now there was no Smith found thro'-out all the Land of Iſrael: for the Philiſtines ſaid, leſt the Hebrews make them Swords and Spears.] To this miſerable Condition the Philiſtines had reduced them during the Forty Years Tyranny over them, of which we read Judges xiii. 1. But after Samuel had put an end to it, by the great Overthrow he gave the Philiſtines at Eben-Ezer, it ſeems ſomething ſtrange they had not reſtored their Artificers. But the Sloth of the Iſraelites appears in their whole Story: And it was not eaſy, in ſo ſhort a time, for Men to learn this Trade. Which the Philiſtines wiſely deſtroyed, as the Chaldæans, when they deſtroyed Jeruſalem, carried away all the Smiths to Babylon; that they who remained in the Land, might not arm themſelves again, 2 Kings xxiv. 14.

Ver. 20. But all the Men of Iſrael went down to the Philiſtines, to ſharpen every Man his Share, and his Coulter, and his Ax, and his Mattock.] Not to the Country of the Philiſtines, for that was too far off from ſome parts of the Land of Iſrael; but to their Garriſons, which they held among them, even after Samuel had driven the main Body of them out of the Country, as I obſerved upon x. 5.

Ver. 21. Yet they had a File for the Mattocks, and for the Coulters, and for the Forks, and for the Axes, and to ſharpen the Goads.] Thus Pliny tells us in his Natural Hiſtory, Lib. 31. Cap. 14. that in the League which Porſenna made with the Roman People, after the Expulſion of their Kings, it was expreſly covenanted, Ne ferro, niſi in agricultura, uterentur; that they ſhould not make uſe of Iron, but only in the tilling of their Fields.

Ver. 22. So it came to paſs that in the Day of Battle, there was neither Sword nor Spear found in the Hand of any of the People that were with Saul and Jonathan: but with Saul and Jonathan his Son was there found.] The Jews being very much addicted to feeding Cattle, very much neglected mechanical Arts: As appeared when Solomon built the Temple. For there were ſo few skilled in Architecture, among the Iſraelites, that he was conſtrained to ſend to another Nation for them. And ſo Raſi thinks it was in the Trade of Smiths; there being no Iron Mines in the Land. But that was not the true Reaſon, as Kimchi obſerves; for the Philiſtines, as was ſaid before, had tranſplanted the Smiths, when the Iſraelites were under their Dominion. In other Oppreſſions alſo, which they lay under, their Enemies were wont to diſarm them; as appears by the Song of Deborah, Judges v. 8. But tho' they had no Sword nor Spear, yet they had Bows and Arrows, and Slings: Which the Men of Gibeah could anciently manage to a wonderful advantage, as we read Judges xx. 16. And beſides theſe, they antiently uſed Clubs to beat down their Enemies; and before the Invention of Spears with Iron Points, they had ſharp Stakes hardened in the Fire, as many Authors inform us.

Ver. 23. And the Garriſon of the Philiſtines went out to the paſſage of Michmaſh.] Some refer this to the Garriſon mentioned ver. 3. which Jonathan having ſmitten, they that eſcaped joined with the Army at Michmaſh. But it refers rather to the Garriſon mentioned in the beginning of the next Chapter, ver. 1. and the laſt Word relates not to the Paſſage, but to the Garriſon. As if he had ſaid, The Garriſon of the Philiſtines in Michmaſh went out to the Paſſage. For Michmaſh, as Raſi obſerves, was upon a high Hill, as Gibeah was: between which was a Valley, called here a Paſſage. Into which the Garriſon deſcended, to invite the Iſraelites to Battle: Or as the Targum tranſlates the firſt Word, the Captain General of the Philiſtines went out into the Valley; to view the Ground, we may ſuppoſe, and form a Camp there.

CHAP. XIV.

Verſe 1. NOW it came to paſs upon a day, that Jonathan the Son of Saul ſaid unto the young Man that bare his Armour; Come, and let us go over to the Garriſon of the Philiſtines that is on the other ſide.] Of the Valley, mentioned in the foregoing Verſe. This had been a very raſh Attempt, and very criminal (he having no order from his Father, who commanded in chief) if he had not had a Divine Incitation to it. Which he felt upon the ſight of the Philiſtines appearing, as if they intended to aſſault Gibeah: And upon the Information he received of the great Spoil, which the three Parties made of the poor People in the Country, xiii. 17.

But he told not his Father.] Leſt he ſhould have hindred him from this Enterprize, into which he felt himſelf moved by God.

Ver. 2. And Saul tarried in the uttermoſt part of Gibeah.] In ſome Intrenchments he had made without the City.

Under a Pomegranate Tree, which is in Migron.] Where he pitched his Tent.

And the People that were with him, were about ſix hundred Men.] His Forces were not augmented ſince he came to Gibeah, as might have been expected (xiii. 15, 16.) But as Vegetius obſerves, (Lib. 1. de Re militari, Cap. 8.) in omni conflictu non tam prodeſt multitudo, quam virtus. In all conflicts Valour doth more ſervice than Multitude.

Ver. 3. And Ahijah the Son of Ahitub, Icabod's Brother, the Son of Phineas.] It ſeems Phineas (who was ſlain with Hophni) left two Sons; Icabod, who was born after his Death; and Ahitub, who was born before: And left a Son, who is here called Ahijah, and in the xxii. 9. Ahimelech; who left a Son called Abiathar, xxiii. 6.

The Son of Eli, the LORD's Prieſt in Shilo.] Theſe laſt Words, the LORD's Prieſt in Shilo, manifeſtly belong to Eli, who was the High Prieſt while the Tabernacle was in Shilo.

Wearing an Ephod.] Or rather, the Ephod: Which comprehends the Breaſt-plate, with Urim and Thummim, for they were inſeparable from it. Theſe Abijah, being High Prieſt, now wore: For theſe Words, as Ralbag obſerves, belong to him. See Selden, Lib. 1. de Succeſſ. ad Pontif. Cap. 3. Saul being now in great diſtreſs, ſent for Ahijah, to conſult God for him, as there ſhould be occaſion: And as appears by the 18th Verſe of this Chapter, had commanded him to bring the Ark with him from Kirjath-jearim.

And the People knew not that Jonathan was gone.] This makes Joſephus's Opinion probable, that he went away in the Night: Which was prudent upon another account; that he might not be ſpied preſently by the Philiſtines.

Ver. 4. And between the paſſage by which Jonathan ſought to go over unto the Philiſtines Garriſon, there was a ſharp Rock on one ſide, and a ſharp Rock on the other.] So that there was no way to come at the Philiſtines, but by climbing up one of theſe Rocks (ver. 12.) which were thought inacceſſible: And therefore not fortified, as the other Paſſages to Michmaſh were, with ſuch ſtrong Guards, as Jonathan could not encounter.

The Name of the one was Bozoz, the Name of the other Saneh.] Which were ſuch famous Precipices, that they had Names beſtowed on them: The Original of which will not be worth our Enquiry; but the latter ſeems to have taken its Name, from the Thorns that grew upon it.

Ver. 5. The Fore-front of the one was ſituate northward over againſt Michmaſh: and the other ſouth- ſouthward over-againſt Gibeah.] By this we underſtand how theſe two Places lay: Towards which theſe Rocks pointed.

Ver. 6. And Jonathan ſaid to the young Man, that bare his Armour, Come let us go over to the Garriſon of the uncircumciſed.] He ſpeaks of them with Contempt, as Strangers to the Covenant of God.

It may be the LORD will work for us; for there is no reſtraint to the LORD to ſave by many or by few.] He ſpeaks with ſome Diffidence to his Servant: but was inwardly perſwaded of a certain Victory, by the Divine Aſſiſtance.

Ver. 7. And his Armour-bearer ſaid unto him, Do all that is in thine Heart; turn thee.] Which way thou wilt.

Behold, I am with thee according to thy Heart.] He reſolved not to forſake his Maſter in any Undertaking, tho' ever ſo dangerous: Being ſuch a Servant as Gideon had, Judges vii. 10.

Ver. 8. Then ſaid Jonathan, Behold, I will paſs over to theſe Men.] He reſolves to lead the way.

And we will diſcover our ſelves unto them.] At Break of Day.

Ver. 9. If they ſay thus unto us, Tarry until we come unto you, then we will ſtand ſtill in our place, and will not go up unto them.

Ver. 10. But if they ſay thus, Come up to us, then we will go up; for the LORD hath delivered them into our hand: and this ſhall be a Sign unto us.] Which we could not have known without an Inſtinct from God, who often ſuggeſted ſuch Thoughts unto good Men: As we ſee in the Example of Abraham's Servant, Gen. xxiv. 14, &c. And there is ſomething like this, in the beginning of Herodotus his fifth Book concerning the Pæones, and the Perinthians. Where he ſaith the Pæonians went to War by a Divine Direction with the Perinthians; and were ordered, if the Perinthians being oppoſed to them, provoked them by name to fight, then they ſhould invade them; but if they did not, they ſhould abſtain from fighting. Now when they faced one another there happened a three-fold ſingle Combat: and the Perinthians being Victors in two of them, began to ſing a Song of Triumph, and inſult over the Pæonians; who thereupon ſaid one to another, νῦν ἂν εἴη ὁ χρησμὸς ἐπιτελεσμένος ἡμῖν, νῦν ἡμέτερον τὸ ἔργον. Now is the Oracle fulfilled to us, now is our Buſineſs; and ſo ſhouting and falling upon the Perinthians, they vanquiſhed them, and left few of them remaining.

Ver. 11. And both of them diſcovered themſelves unto the Garriſon of the Philiſtines.] At the bottom of the Rocks.

And the Philiſtines ſaid, Behold the Hebrews come forth out of their Holes, where they had hid themſelves.] xiii. 6. They imagined it was not Courage, but Neceſſity, which forced them to come within their View, as they ſought for Food.

Ver. 12. And the Men of the Garriſon anſwered Jonathan and his Armour-bearer, and ſaid, come up to us and we will ſhow you a thing.] They mock'd at them, thinking they durſt not attempt to climb up to them.

And Jonathan ſaid to his Armour-bearer, Come up after me, for the LORD hath delivered them into the hand of Iſrael.] Now he gives him the ſame Aſſurance, which he had before in his own Mind.

Ver. 13. And Jonathan climbed up upon his Hands and his Feet, and his Armour-bearer after him.] Not in the view of the Philiſtines, but by ſome difficult way, which none was ever known to go: And ſo perhaps they came behind them and ſurprized them.

And they fell before Jonathan, and his Armour-bearer ſlew after him.] The firſt onſet was made by Jonathan (as he led the way up the Precipice) who ruſhed upon them with ſuch a Fury, that he threw them down to the ground, and then his Armour-bearer killed them. So ſome underſtand this: Which was a more wonderful Action than that of Horatius Cochlites (as Victorinus Strigelius obſerves) who alone maintained a Paſſage at a Bridge, againſt all the Forces of the Enemy; and cauſed the Bridge to be broken down behind him. But that ſhows, that ſince natural Courage made a Man ſo daring, it is not incredible that Jonathan made ſuch an Attempt by Divine Incitation.

Ver. 14. The firſt Slaughter which Jonathan and his Armour-bearer made, was about twenty Men, within, as it were, an Half-Acre of Land, which a Yoke of Oxen might plow.] Viz. in one Day. That is, ſaith Kimchi, in a very ſmall ſpace of Ground: Which De Dieu will have to be half a Furrow in length. See him.

Ver. 15. And there was a trembling in the Hoſt, in the Field, and among the People: the Garriſon, and the Spoilers, they alſo trembled.] News being brought of this Slaughter to the Hoſt of the Philiſtines which lay in the Field, it put them into a great Conſternation: For they were aſleep, (it's likely) this being done very early in the Morning, as Joſephus thinks, lib. 6. cap. 7. And all the People that attended the Hoſt; as well as the Garriſon, and Spoilers who had been ravaging the Country (xiii. 17.) were very much affrighted: imagining, a great Army had been at hand to fall upon them; of which theſe two were but the Scouts. Whoſe Exploits, perhaps, were alſo magnified beyond the Truth.

And the Earth quaked.] Some think there was a real Earthquake, which increaſed their Fear: But it may be no more than a Metaphorical Expreſſion, for the great Tumult they were in.

So it was a great trembling.] In the Hebrew, a trembling of God, that is, which God ſent upon them: Called by the Heathen a panick Fear, which they thought came from their Gods, and made the ſtouteſt Men quake. So Pindar excellently expreſſes it in his Nemea ix. ver. 63.

——Ἐν γὰρ
Δαιμονίοισι φόβοις
Φεύγουσι καὶ Παῖδες Θεῶν.

When Men are ſtruck with divine Terrors, even the Children of the Gods (i. e. the moſt Heroick Spirits) betake themſelves to flight. And the Army of the Philiſtines conſiſting (as I obſerved on xiii. 5.) of different Nations, it made the Confuſion fuſion and Trembling the greater: becauſe they either did not underſtand, or ſuſpected one another.

Ver. 16. And the Watchmen of Saul in Gibeah of Benjamin looked.] For it was ſeated on an high Hill, which overlooked the Country about it.

And behold the Multitude melted away.] Were ſcattered; ſo that fewer and fewer were ſeen in a Company together.

And they went on beating down one another.] Not being able, in this Confuſion, to diſtinguiſh their Friends from their Enemies.

Ver. 17. Then ſaid Saul unto the People that were with him, Number now, and ſee who are gone from us: and when they were numbred, behold Jonathan and his Armour-bearer were not there.] He eaſily miſſed Jonathan, I ſuppoſe, but could not imagine he would fall upon the Philiſtines, without a good Number of Men to aſſiſt him: which he knew he had not. This made him call the High-prieſt, to enquire of God, that he might be informed what was the matter, and what he ſhould do.

Ver. 18. And Saul ſaid to Ahijah, Bring hither the Ark of God; for the Ark of God was at that time with the Children of Iſrael.] How could he bid him bring the Ark, when it was at Kirjath-jearim in the Houſe of Abinadab? To this Abarbinel anſwers, that he doth not ſpeak of the Ark in which the Tables of the Law were kept (for he doth not ſay, bring the Ark of the Covenant hither) but a little Coffer, wherein the Ephod was kept; that is, a Breaſt-plate with Urim and Thummim. Theſe the Prieſt brought along with him, that Saul might conſult God upon occaſion, as David did, 1 Sam. xxx. 8. Therefore the LXX tranſlate it, προσάγαγε τὸ Ἐφὸδ, bring hither the Ephod. And ſo Raſi and Kimchi. See Buxtorf. Hiſt. Arcæ, Cap. 3. and our learned Dr. Spencer, de Leg. & Rit. Heb. fol. 859. But this doth not ſeem a ſolid Interpretation, there being but one Ark mentioned in Scripture, which is not always called the Ark of the Covenant, but the Ark of the LORD, or the Ark of God, as it is called when it came into the Camp of Iſrael, and was taken by the Philiſtines, Chap. iv. Ver. 6, 11, 17, 18, &c. Therefore here, I ſuppoſe, Saul commanded the Ark it ſelf to attend him; when he wanted the Advice and Aſſiſtance of Samuel.

Ver. 19. And it came to paſs, that while Saul talked with the Prieſt.] Deſiring him to enquire of God, what was become of Jonathan, and his Armour-bearer; and what was the meaning of that Tumult in the Hoſt of the Philiſtines.

That the Noiſe that was in the Hoſt of the Philiſtines went on and increaſed, and Saul ſaid to the Prieſt, withdraw thine Hand.] He was going to take the Urim and Thummim, as the fore-named Authors underſtand it, when Saul hearing the Tumult grow greater and greater among the Philiſtines, bid him forbear: There being no need, for he concluded they were routed; and therefore reſolved without any further Deliberation to go and purſue them. Or, as others underſtand it, the Prieſt having ſtretched forth his Hand to God in Prayer for his Advice, Saul called upon him to deſiſt: For it is plain what they had to do, without any Enquiry.

Ver. 20. And Saul and all the People that were with him, aſſembled, and came to the Battle, and behold, every Man's Sword was againſt his Fellow, and there was a very great Diſcomfiture.] This Joſephus thinks fell out (as I noted above) becauſe their Army conſiſted of divers Nations, who did not know one another, and ſo fell into Confuſion.

Ver. 21. Moreover the Hebrews that were with the Philiſtines before that time, which went up with them into the Camp, from the Country round about.] As ſome, it ſeems, did; either out of Fear, Compulſion, or Deſign.

Even they alſo turned to be with the Iſraelites that were with Saul and Jonathan.] And helped to deſtroy the Philiſtines.

Ver. 22. Likewiſe all the Men of Iſrael that had hid themſelves in Mount Ephraim.] And other Places, mentioned xiii. 6.

When they heard that the Philiſtines fled, even they alſo followed hard after them in the Battle.] Purſued them cloſely.

Ver. 23. So the LORD ſaved Iſrael that day, and the Battle paſſed over unto Beth-aven.] Theſe Words ſeem to imply, that the Fight continued till they came to this Place; which lay weſtward from Michmaſh (xiii. 5.) and there the Philiſtines threw down their Arms; and fled as faſt as they could towards their own Country.

Ver. 24. And the Men of Iſrael were diſtreſſed that day.] When they ſhould have been full of Joy and Triumph.

For Saul had adjured the People, ſaying, Curſed be the Man that eateth any Food until the Evening, that I may be avenged of my Enemies; ſo none of the People taſted any Food.] That they might not loſe time, or make the leaſt Stay in the Purſuit of their Enemies, who fled before them. The King had the ſame Power that the great Sanhedrim had, who, the Jews ſay, might devote thoſe to Deſtruction, who did not obey the Charge that was given them in War. See Selden, Lib. 4. de Jure Nat. & Gent. cap. 6. But this was a very indiſcreet Act in Saul, unbecoming an excellent Captain, for inſtead of purſuing the Philiſtines with Vigour, they fainted for want of Refreſhment. Therefore great Commanders always took care their Soldiers ſhould be moderately fed, that they might not be tired in a long Conflict. So Vegetius informs us, lib. 3. de Re militari, cap. 9. Veteribus ſeculis mos fuit, parco cibo curatos milites ad certamen educere, ut citatiores ſumpta eſca redderet, & longiore conflictu, non fatigerentur inedia: And there was the ſame need of taking a little Refreſhment if they could get it, when they were engaged in a long Purſuit of their Enemy.

Ver. 25. And all they of the Land came to a Wood, and there was Honey upon the Ground.] Which dropped from the hollow Trees, or the Clefts of Rocks, where Bees made their Combs in that Country; and ſometimes upon the very Ground; as Bochart hath ſhown in his Hierozoicon, P. 2. Lib. 4. Cap. 12. where he obſerves this was not peculiar to Judæa, but uſual in other Countries.

Ver.

Ver. 26. And when the People were come into the Wood, behold, the Honey dropped, but no Man put his Hand to his Mouth; for the People feared the Oath.] Wild Honey was so copious in those Countries, and flowed so plentifully, that it gave occasion to that hyperbolical Speech in the Book of Job, xx. 17. where we read of Brooks, or Torrents, of Honey and Butter.

Ver. 27. And Jonathan heard not when his Father charged the People with the Oath.] He and his Armour-bearer being engaged in Fight (with whom some others joined, ver. 21.) long before Saul and his small Army came to join him.

Wherefore he put forth the end of his Rod, and dipt it in an Honey-comb, and put his Hand to his Mouth, and his Eyes were enlightned.] That is, his Spirits and Strength, which were quite spent by long Abstinence from Meat, so that he could scarce see, were restored to him, and he was made fresh and lively to proceed in pursuit of the Enemy. For as Gerh. Vossius observes (lib. 4. de Orig. & Progr. Idol. Cap. lxxix.) the Eyes are wont to grow dim with long hunger: And as all Meat and Drink refreshes and enlivens; so Wine and Honey do it above all other more speedily. For their Spirits are both very subtile, and soon diffuse their Strength through the Body. It is also observed by Learned Men, that Honey is an excellent Medicine for sore and weak Eyes: But that is nothing to this purpose; such Cures being not performed by eating of it, but by anointing the Eyes with it.

Ver. 28. Then answered one of the People.] That came with Saul to the Pursuit.

And said, Thy Father charged the People with an Oath, saying, Cursed be the Man that eateth any Food to-day: and the People were faint.] And yet forbore to take any Refreshment, for fear of the Curse.

Ver. 29. Then said Jonathan, My Father hath troubled the Land; see I pray you how mine Eyes have been enlightned, because I tasted a little of this Honey.] Which did not cause so long a stay, as to hinder the Pursuit of the Enemy.

Ver. 30. How much more, if haply the People had eaten freely this day of the Spoil of their Enemies, which they found: for had there not been now a much greater Slaughter among the Philistines?] They would have been able to pursue them more swiftly, and to have done greater Execution upon them; than they could when they were faint. Thus Men, by their Rashness, hinder what they would have.

Ver. 31. And they smote the Philistines that day, from Michmash to Ajalo.] A City in the Tribe of Dan (Josh. xiv. 42.) which bordered upon the Country of the Philistines.

And the People were very faint.] Otherwise they might have pursued further.

Ver. 32. And the People flew upon the Spoil.] Like a ravenous Bird, which wanted Food.

And took Sheep and Oxen and Calves, and slew them on the ground, and the People did eat them with the Blood.] Raw, or but half roasted or boiled, their Hunger being so sharp, that it made them forget their Duty.

Ver. 33. Then they told Saul, saying, Behold, the People sin against the LORD, in that they eat with the Blood.] All the People were not so prophane, but only some part of them.

And he said, Ye have transgressed: roll a great Stone unto me.] Our learned Dr. Spencer thinks they did not eat with the Blood, as we translate it; but upon or by the Blood. Which was an idolatrous Custom in the East, to invite the Familiarity of Dæmons, as hath been noted on Levit. xix. 26. And therefore Saul, to keep the People from thus defiling themselves, commanded a great Stone to be brought to him, that there they might kill their Beasts at that one place, and then feed upon them. See de Leg. & Rit. Hebr. p. 334. But this doth not seem probable, that they should now practise those idolatrous Rites, when God had wrought such a wonderful Deliverance for them; and they were so impatient to eat, that they had not time to think of such Ceremonies.

Ver. 34. And Saul said, Disperse your selves among the people.] He speaks unto his Officers.

And say unto them, Bring me hither every Man his Ox, and every Man his Sheep.] This is a sign they had not all offended; having not yet killed their Beasts.

And slay them here, and eat, and sin not against the LORD in eating with the Blood: And all the Men brought every Man his Oxen with him that night, and slew them there.] As many as they had occasion to use.

Ver. 25. And Saul built an Altar unto the LORD.] To offer Sacrifices of Peace-offerings, and give Thanks to God for this great Victory. Tho' others think it was not for Sacrifice, but only a Monument of God's Mercy, in his late Deliverance.

The same was the first Altar that he built unto the LORD.] In the Hebrew the Words are, (as is observed in the Margin of our Bibles) that Altar he began to build unto the LORD, i. e. he laid the first Stone himself. We read of his Offering before in Gilgal; but that perhaps was not upon an Altar erected by himself, but was built before by others.

Ver. 36. And Saul said, Let us go down after the Philistines by Night, and spoil them until the Morning, and let us not leave a Man of them.] Having thus refreshed themselves, in the Evening, Saul propounded to them to renew the pursuit: Hoping to cut off their whole Army, when they were asleep in the Night.

And they said, Do whatsoever seemeth good unto thee.] Their good Success made them as forward, as before they were backward to follow him.

Then said the Priest, Let us draw near hither unto God.] It is likely he stood before the Altar (if it were for Sacrifice) and put them in mind, that it was dangerous to undertake any thing without God's Advice: Which he was there ready to ask for them. In the Targum it is, Let us enquire by the WORD of the LORD.

Ver. 37. And Saul asked Council of God.] By Urim and Thummim.

Shall I go down after the Philistines? wilt thou deliver them into the hand of Israel?] Hitherto Saul had some Goodness left in him: For he hearkened to the Priest, when he admonished him of his Duty, which he neglected. The

Targum

Targum here again hath it, Saul asked by the WORD of the LORD.

But he answered him not that day.] Tho' perhaps the Priest had often begg'd an Answer, yet he received none.

Ver. 38. And Saul said, Draw near hither, all the chief of the People; and see wherein this Sin hath been this day.] He concluded some Sin had provoked God, not to regard his Supplication: Which he desired might be found out and punished.

Ver. 39. For as the LORD liveth that saveth Israel, tho' it be in Jonathan my Son, he shall surely die: But there was not a Man among the People that answered him.] Tho' many knew that Jonathan had transgressed his Father's Charge (ver. 28.) yet none would discover it.

Ver. 40. Then said he unto all Israel, Be you on one side; and I and Jonathan my Son will be on the other side: and the People said, Do what seemeth good unto thee.] He had gained great Authority among the People (it appears by this, and by ver. 36.) since his wonderful Success.

Ver. 41. Therefore Saul said unto the LORD God of Israel, Give a perfect Lot: and Saul and Jonathan were taken, and the People escaped.] The Word Lot is not in the Original, but only give perfect, that is, declare who is innocent. So the Word give sometimes signifies to pronounce, Deut. xiii. 1, 2.

Ver. 42. And Saul said, Cast Lots between me and Jonathan my Son, and Jonathan was taken.] This looks like Virtue in him, that for good Example sake, he would not exempt himself, tho' a King, from the same Trial, to which he exposed all the People.

Ver. 43. Then said Saul to Jonathan, Tell me what thou hast done. And Jonathan told him, and said, I did but taste a little Honey, that was in my Hand; and lo, I must die.] This shows a very great Mind, that he neither denied what he had done, nor excused it by his Ignorance, nor refused to die: Tho' he looked upon it as very hard. So Josephus represents it, ἐυγενῶς καὶ μεγαλοφρόνως, &c. with a generous and great Mind, he told his Father the Truth; and desired not to be spared, Lib. vi. Antiq. Cap. 7.

Ver. 44. And Saul answered, God do so and more also: for thou shalt surely die, Jonathan.] This demonstrates Saul to have been of a rash, and of a rigorous Temper. With whom learned Men are wont to compare Titus Manlius; who caused his Son's Head to be cut off, for fighting the Enemy, when he had a fair Advantage, contrary to Order, as A. Gellius tells us, lib. 9. cap. 13. But in this regard Saul was to be commended, as Josephus also observes, that he had a greater regard to his Oath, than to his Kindred and natural Affection.

Ver. 45. And the People said unto Saul, Shall Jonathan die, who hath wrought this great Salvation in Israel? God forbid; as the LORD liveth there shall not one Hair of his Head fall to the ground; for he hath wrought with God this day. So the People rescued Jonathan, that he died not.] They did not rescue him by force and violence, but by their Petition to Saul, and the reason they gave for it. Josephus saith, that by their Prayers and Vows to God, they delivered him: Who, perhaps, signified by the Priest, that he approved the People's desire. They were too forward indeed to swear directly against Saul's Oath: But of the two, his being the most rash, God was pleased to annul it, and absolve him from it. Thus Josephus understands it, They rescued him from the Anger of his Father, καὶ ἐυχὰς ὑπὲρ τῦ νεανίσκυ ποιῆσθαι τῷ Θεῷ, ὡς τὸν αυτὸν ἀπολύσαι τῦ ἁμαρτήματος, and made their Prayer to God for the young Man, that he would loose him from his Sin.

How that Phrase, not a Hair of his Head, &c. was used, appears from 2 Sam. xiv. 11. 1 Kings i. 51.

Ver. 46. Then Saul went up from following the Philistines, and the Philistines went to their own Country.] He pursued them no further, but let them go quietly to their own homes.

Ver. 47. And Saul took the Kingdom over Israel.] Ruled with greater Authority over his People, after this Victory: For the Philistines had enslaved them, (as I observed xiii. 2.) But by this Deliverance they were freed from their Yoke, and Saul recovered his Kingdom.

And fought against all his Enemies on every side.] He did not invade them (as may be gather'd from the next Verse) but repelled them, and kept them within their own Limits.

Against Moab, and against the Children of Ammon, and against Edom, and against the Kings of Zobah, and against the Philistines.] These were the principal Enemies wherewith they were incompassed. And by the Kings of Zobah are meant those that ruled in that part of Syria, which is called Aram Zobah; which lay towards Euphrates: Having that River for its Eastern Bounds, and Damascus and the Land of Canaan for its Western. For it appears to be near to the Israelites, by the frequent Wars which David and Solomon had with the Kings of this Country, 2 Sam. viii. 3. x. 6. 2 Chron. vii. 3. and the Aid which the Syrians of Damascus sent them, 2 Sam. viii. 5. and their flying thither when they were routed, 1 Kings xi. 24. And the Cities which Solomon built in the Wilderness, 1 Kings ix. 17, 18. are said to be in Hamath-Zobah, 2 Chron. viii. 34. which demonstrates it was upon the Confines of Judæa.

And whithersoever he turned himself, he vexed them.] He got the better of them. And in his Days the Reubenites also made war with the Hagerens, and possessed their Land, 'till the time of the Captivity, 1 Chron. v. 10, 18, 19, 20.

Ver. 48. And he gathered an Host, and smote Amalek.] Which War is at large described in the next Chapter.

And delivered Israel out of the hand of them that spoiled them.] The six forementioned Nations.

Ver. 49. And the Sons of Saul, were Jonathan, Ishui, and Melchishua, &c.] These were only fit to accompany him in his Wars, and upon that account are only mentioned here, and xxxi. 2. tho' he had another Son, (Ishbosheth) who is mentioned in 1 Chron. viii. 33. under the Name of Eth-baal.

Ver. 50. And the Name of Saul's Wife was Ahinoam, the Daughter of Ahimaez; and the Name of the Captain of his Host was Abner, the Son of Ner, Saul's Uncle.] For Ner was Brother to Saul's Father, as the next Verse tells us. It seems to me observable, that we never read of more than than one Wife that Saul had, tho' David had many. It is possible he did not think it prudent, in a new-erected Kingdom, to follow the Example of the Eastern Kings in every thing.

Ver. 51. And Kish was the Father of Saul: and Ner the Father of Abner was the Son of Abiel.] As Kish also was, ix. 1.

Ver. 52. And there was sore War against the Philistines all the Days of Saul.] Who could not perfectly subdue them; as appears from their renewing the War, Chap. xvii, &c.

And when Saul saw any strong Man, or any valiant Man.] Who behaved himself with Vigour and Courage in the Wars.

He took him unto him.] To be one of his Guard, or to be preferred in the Army.

CHAP. XV.

Ver. 1. SAmuel also said to Saul, the LORD sent me to anoint thee to be King over his People, over Israel; now therefore hearken unto the Voice of the Words of the LORD.] Being so highly obliged to God, above all other Men in the Nation, it highly concerned him to be very careful to observe his Commands; especially having lately been disobedient, xiii. 13.

Ver. 2. Thus saith the LORD of Hosts, I remember that which Amalek did to Israel; how he laid wait for him in the way, when he came up from Egypt.] See my Notes upon Deut. xxv. 17, 18.

Ver. 3. Now go, and smite Amalek, and utterly destroy all that they have, and spare them not: but slay both Man and Woman, Infant and Suckling, Ox and Sheep, Camel and Ass.] This heavy Sentence was pronounced against them long ago, Exod. xvii. 14. and renewed at their Entrance into Canaan, with a charge not to forget it, Deut. xxv. 19. and now ordered to be put in execution.

Ver. 4. And Saul gathered the People together, and numbred them in Telaim, two hundred thousand Foot-men, and ten thousand Men of Judah.] The Word Telaim signifying Lambs (which it is likely were very plentiful in this Place) the Targum translates it, he numbred them by Paschal Lambs: As if the Passover was kept at this time. And so Rasi fancies that it being unlawful to number the People, he commanded every Man to take a Lamb out of the Flock, and numbred them. But David Kimchi, and others, take this as we do, for the Name of a Place called Telem, in the Tribe of Judah, Josh. xv. 15. For there is no place mentioned in Scripture called Telaim; nor any so near it in Sound as this. See Selden Lib. 3. de Synedr. Cap. 11. N. v. and Bochart's Hierozoicon. P. 1. Lib. 2. Cap. 43. I have often observed that their Armies consisted of Footmen, they having no Horses in Judæa. And in two regards they were more useful than Horsemen, as Vegetius observes Lib. 2. de Re militari, Cap. 1. first, because possunt ubique prodesse, they may be serviceable every where, which Horsemen cannot. And secondly, a great Number of them, sumptu & expensa minore nutritur, is maintained at less Expence and Charge.

Ver. 5. And Saul came to a City of Amalek.] To the Metropolis of the Kingdom, whose Name perhaps was Amalek. For so the Words may be understood, he came to the City Amalek.

And laid in wait in the Valley.] Or fought them in the Valley, as we translate it in the Margin: For they came out to give Battle.

Ver. 6. And Saul said to the Kenites.] Who were of the Posterity of Jethro: Some of which were in the Tribe of Judah, others in Naphthali; and some it seems dwelt among the Amalekites in the rocky part of that Country, Numb. xxiv. 21.

Go, depart, get ye down.] For they dwelt on high.

From among the Amalekites, lest I destroy you with them.] For some of the Amalekites it is likely would flee to them for shelter.

For you shewed Kindness to the children of Israel, when they came out of Egypt. Some of their Ancestors did, which the Israelites did not forget. Exod. xviii. 12. Numb. x. 31.

And the Kenites departed from among the Amalekites.] And went, it is likely, into the Land of Judah.

Ver. 7. And Saul smote the Amalekites from Halah, until thou come to Shur, that is over against Egpyt.] That is, their whole Country, of which this was the Extent; from Havilah in the North-East, to Shur in the South-West. These two, Havilah and Shur, are constantly opposed, as the most opposite Terms of Arabia, as Bochartus hath observed in his Phaleg. Lib. 4. Cap. 6.

Ver. 8. And Saul took Agag the King of the Amalekites alive, and utterly destroyed all the People with the edge of the Sword.] That is, all that could be met with: But some fled no doubt as soon as they saw him victorious; and saved themselves in other Countries. Accordingly we read of good Numbers of this People afterwards.

Ver. 9. But Saul and the People spared Agag.] Whosoever proposed it, they all agreed in it, not to kill Agag: And Saul, it is most likely, was the chief Author of this Counsel. Who, θαυμάσας τὸ κάλλος καὶ τὸ μεγέθος τοῦ σώματος (as Josephus speaks) being struck with Admiration of him as a very goodly and proper Person, thought fit to save him. Not following herein the Command of God, but his own private Fancy and Affection, Lib. vi. Antiq. Cap. viii. Others think he intended to lead him in Triumph. See ver. 12.

And the best of the Sheep, and of the Oxen, and of the Fatlings and of the Lambs.] Interpreters wonderfully vary about the Sense of the Word Hamisnim, which we translate Fatlings: As may be seen in Bochartus his Hierozoicon, P. 1. Lib. 2. Cap. 43. fol. 430. where he shows it signifies Cattle in their full Strength.

All that was good.] Of their Houshold Goods (I suppose) Apparel, and such like things.

And would not utterly destroy them.] As they had been commanded by God; but took them as a Prey unto themselves.

But every thing that was vile and refuse, that destroyed they utterly.] All that was not worth the keeping. Which is a wonderful instance of of the Baſeneſs of human Nature; when governed by Covetouſneſs, or any ſuch like Affection.

Ver. 10. Then came the Word of the LORD unto Samuel, ſaying.] Immediately before Saul returned from his Expedition.

Ver. 11. It repenteth me that I have ſet up Saul to be King.] Whom he reſolved now to throw down from his Throne. See ver. 29. For Repentance in God, imports only the Will of a Change, and not of every Change, but of the Divine Sentence pronounced, which the Scripture calls Repentance. So Procopius Gazæus, Pœnitentia Dei eſt Diſpenſationis ipſius mutatio, God's Repentance is the Change of his own Diſpenſation.

For he is turned back from following me, and hath not performed my Commandment. And it grieved Samuel, and he cried unto the LORD all Night.] Beſeeching him to pardon Saul.

Ver. 12. And when Samuel roſe up early to meet Saul, in the Morning, it was told Samuel, ſaying, Saul came to Carmel.] A City in the Mountains of the Tribe of Judah, where Nabal dwelt, who is called the Carmelite, xxvii. 3. See Joſh. xv. 55.

And behold he ſet him up a place.] Either for the dividing of the Spoil, as the Targum underſtands it; or marking out a Camp, as Kimchi; or he erected a triumphal Arch, as St. Hierom: Having brought Agag with him, to make his Triumph the greater. Which Arch, it may be thought, was in the Form of an Hand: For in the Hebrew the Word we tranſlate Place is Jad, which ſignifies an Hand. Or, as Raſi will have it, he here built an Altar: which Elijah in future Times repaired, 1 Kings xviii. 30. But this is a very groſs Miſtake: For this Carmel was very remote from that Mount which Elijah frequented, as Bochartus hath obſerved, P. 1. Hieroz. Lib. 2. Cap. 48. It may be rather thought, to be ſome Building, erected in the Form before-mentioned, to ſignify that they overcame the Amalekites with a ſtrong Hand.

And is gone down, and paſſed on, and gone down to Gilgal.] In a long Pomp, I ſuppoſe, as a mighty Conqueror.

Ver. 13. And Samuel came to Saul, and Saul ſaid to him, Bleſſed be thou of the LORD.] A Form of Salutation wiſhing him all Happineſs from God: Who had ordered him to undertake ſuch a piece of Service, as he had done him.

I have performed the Commandment of the LORD.] He was ſo inſenſible of any Fault he had committed, that he boaſts of his Performance.

Ver. 14. And Samuel ſaid, What means then this bleating of the Sheep, &c.] Which he had commanded him utterly to deſtroy, ver. 3.

Ver. 15. And Saul ſaid, They have brought them from the Amalekites.] He lays the blame upon the People, when it is evident he himſelf was principally in fault, ver. 9.

And the People ſpared the beſt of the Sheep, and of the Oxen, to ſacrifice unto the LORD thy God, and the reſt they have utterly deſtroyed.] This was a plauſible pretence, it being the Cuſtom all the World over, to give part of their Spoils in War unto their Gods. If there had not been an expreſs Command for deſtroying every thing in this War: So that nothing ſhould be ſpared either for himſelf, or for them.

Ver. 16. And Samuel ſaid unto Saul, Stay.] This ſounds, as if Saul was going away: Being abundantly ſatisfied in his noble Atchievements.

And I will tell thee what the LORD hath ſaid unto me this Night.] When he cried to him without ceaſing, ver. 11. Tho' Samuel was a Prophet, ſaith Procopius Gazæus, yet ſpeaking to a King, he begs leave he may do it freely.

And he ſaid, Say on.] He hoped, it is likely, to hear himſelf commended for his Piety.

Ver. 17. Then Samuel ſaid unto Saul, When thou waſt little in thy own ſight, waſt thou not made the Head of the Tribes of Iſrael, and the LORD anointed thee King over Iſrael?] It is of great uſe for Men to remember what they were: As Placilla the Wife of Theodoſius (Strigellius here obſerves) ſaid to her Husband, Ἀεί σε προσκήκε λογίζεσθαι, τὶ μὲν ἦθα πάλαι, τι δὲ γέγονας νῦν, &c. It behoves thee always to think what thou waſt heretofore, and what thou art now. For calling theſe things to mind, thou wilt not be ungrateful to thy Benefactor: but govern the Kingdom thou haſt received, according to the Laws; and by that means honour him that beſtowed it upon thee.

Ver. 18. And the LORD ſent thee on a Journey, and ſaid, Go, and utterly deſtroy the ſinners the Amalekites.] He was employed in a very honourable Expedition, to deſtroy the declared Enemies of the LORD.

Ver. 19. Wherefore then didſt thou not obey the Voice of the LORD, but didſt fly upon the ſpoil.] With great greedineſs, as a hungry Bird or Beaſt upon his Prey.

And didſt evil in the ſight of the LORD?] The Command was as plain as Words could make it: So that there was no reaſon but his own baſe Covetouſneſs, why it was not obeyed.

Ver. 20. And Saul ſaid unto Samuel, Yea, I have obeyed the Voice of the LORD, and have gone the way which the LORD ſent me, and have brought Agag King of the Amalekites, and have utterly deſtroyed the Amalekites.] A ſtrange Stupidity! to imagine ſuch a partial Obedience could be pleaſing unto God.

Ver. 21. But the people took of the ſpoil, Sheep and Oxen, the chief things that ſhould have been utterly deſtroyed, to ſacrifice unto the LORD thy God in Gilgal.] This was a mean thing, to throw all the blame on the People, whom he ſhould have governed better: And it was worſt of all, to let them pretend Religion for their Diſobedience.

Ver. 22. And Samuel ſaid, Hath the LORD as great delight in Burnt-offerings and Sacrifices, as in obeying the Voice of the LORD? Behold, to obey is better than Sacrifice, and to hearken than the Fat of Rams.] This moſt divine Admonition is inculcated by all following inſpired Writers, David, Solomon, and the Prophets. See Pſal. l. 13, 14. Pſal. li. 16, 17. Eccleſ. v. 1. Iſaiah i. 11, 12, &c. Iſaiah lxvi. 3. Jerem. vii. 21, 22, &c. Hoſea vi. 6. Micah vi. 6, 7, 8. Zach. viii. 16. And ſome of the Heathen have ſaid excellent things to this purpoſe.

Ver. 23. For Rebellion is as the Sin of Witchcraft.] Or, following after Divination: Which is oppoſed to Prophecy, as Idols are to God.

And Stubbornneſs is as Iniquity and Idolatry.] The Words aven and teraphim ſignify all manner of Idolatry. From which tho' Saul was free, yet his obſtinate Diſobedience made him liable to ſuch Puniſhment, as Idolaters deſerved. For as they were to be cut off, ſo he was to be dethroned, as it here follows.

Becauſe thou haſt rejected the word of the LORD, he alſo hath rejected thee from being King.] As Idolaters were to loſe their Lives; ſo he and his Poſterity loſt the Kingdom. And it is obſervable, that he was at laſt ſlain by the hand of an Amalekite, 2 Sam. i. 8.

Ver. 24. And Saul ſaid unto Samuel, I have ſinned, for I have tranſgreſſed the Commandment of the LORD, and thy Word: becauſe I feared the People, and obeyed their Voice.] It is not certain whether he led the People into this Sin, or they led him. I look upon this only as an Excuſe (he having no reaſon to fear the People, who were all at his Command) and that he was not yet thoroughly ſenſible of his Guilt.

Ver. 25. Now therefore I pray thee, pardon my Sin.] By deprecating God's Diſpleaſure.

And turn again with me.] To Gilgal; from whence he came forth to meet Samuel.

That I may worſhip the LORD.] And by Samuel's Prayers obtain a Pardon.

Ver. 26. And Samuel ſaid unto Saul, I will not return with thee; for thou haſt rejected the Word of the LORD, and the LORD hath rejected thee from being King over Iſrael.] The Prophet look'd upon God's Sentence as peremptory; and therefore peremptorily denied his Requeſt.

Ver. 27. And as Samuel turned about to go away, he laid hold upon the Skirt of his Mantle.] It was a four-ſquare Garment, covering the Breaſt and the Back; knit at the Shoulder, but open on the Sides, as Jo. Braunius hath ſhown, Lib. 2. de Veſtitu Sacerd. Hebr. Cap. 5. N. 8. On this Saul laid hold, that he might ſtop Samuel from going away.

And it rent.] A ſign the motion of Samuel was violent; he being full of Indignation againſt Saul.

Ver. 28. And Samuel ſaid, The LORD hath rent the Kingdom of Iſrael from thee this day; and hath given it to a Neighbour of thine, that is better than thou.] That caſual Rent, he took to be an apt Repreſentation of his Deſtiny.

Ver. 29. And alſo the Strength of Iſrael.] The Word we tranſlate Strength imports Victory (as is obſerved in the Margin) and therefore theſe Words ſhould be tranſlated; He that gives Victory, and diſpoſes Kingdoms, or the triumphant King of Iſrael.

Will not lye, nor repent: for he is not a Man, that he ſhould repent.] Sometimes, God is ſaid to repent of the Evil, i. e. to alter his intentions of inflicting Puniſhment. But in this caſe there was no room for it, becauſe of the Oath of God, that Amalek ſhould be cut off. This made Saul's Sin unpardonable; it being of the like nature (to uſe the Words of Dr. Jackſon) as if a Judge or inferior Magiſtrate, being intruſted to do Juſtice in a matter, unto which his Sovereign Lord had peremptorily and determinately ſworn, ſhould upon a Bribe, or other ſiniſter reſpect, neglect his Duty, and (as much as in him lay) make his Maſter forſworn. For an inferior Judge to do this, deſerves more bodily Deaths than one. And therefore tho' God did repent that he had made Saul King, (for he had the Kingdom only by meer Promiſe, not by a Promiſe confirmed by an Oath) yet he would not repent his Depoſition, nor reverſe the Sentence againſt him; becauſe by his prepoſterous Indulgence unto Amalek (God's ſworn Enemy) he did by this Fact incur the Sentence of Depoſition by Oath.

Ver. 30. And he ſaid, I have ſinned.] Now he makes a downright acknowledgment of his Guilt; without any Alleviations of it, from the Fear he was in of the People, or any other thing, ver. 24.

Yet honour me, I pray thee, before my People, and before Iſrael.] He ſubmitted to the Sentence; and only deſired while he was King he might not loſe his Honour with thoſe that waited on him, and with the reſt of his Subjects.

And turn again with me, that I may worſhip the LORD thy God.] He ſpeaks as if he thought, that unleſs it were for Samuel's ſake he was afraid God would not regard him.

Ver. 31. And Samuel turned again with Saul.] He ſaid before he would not, ver. 26. But upon his Importunity (and ordered perhaps by God) he altered his Mind. For he ſpake before only his preſent Thoughts, which upon further Reaſon he might change.

And Saul worſhipped the LORD.] In the company of Samuel; that the People might not deſpiſe his Authority, while he held it.

Ver. 32. Then ſaid Samuel, Bring ye hither unto me, Agag the King of the Amalekites.] This he ſpake to the People, in the preſence of Saul; that he might ſee what he ought to have done himſelf.

And Agag came unto him delicately.] Or, walking in State; for tho' he was at the point of Death, ſaith Kimchi, he could not forbear to come to Samuel in an haughty manner: But this Word ſeems to relate to Softneſs, rather than Pride; and ſignify that he came to him with a ſoft pace, treading gingerly (as we ſpeak) after a nice and delicate manner.

And Agag ſaid, Surely the Bitterneſs of Death is paſt.] Being ſpared by Saul and his Soldiers, he feared no hurt from a Prophet.

Ver. 33. And Samuel ſaid, As thy Sword hath made Women childleſs, ſo ſhall thy Mother be childleſs among Women.] This ſhows he had been a bloody Tyrant; and was now cut off, not merely for the Sins of his Anceſtors four hundred years ago; but for his own mercileſs Cruelty.

And Samuel hewed Agag to pieces.] He commanded it to be done by the publick Executioner of Juſtice: Or perhaps did it himſelf. See Judg. viii. 20. This doth not prove that Samuel continued a Judge after Saul was anointed: But he was authorized to do this by a ſpecial Command from God.

Before the LORD in Gilgal.] For here they had been praying, and offering Sacrifice: And God was preſent in all the great Aſſemblies of his People. See Judges xx. 1.

Ver. 34. Then Samuel went to Ramah.] Where he commonly lived, vii. ult.

And Saul went up to his Houſe in Gibeah of Saul.] Which was the place of his Birth, and conſtant Abode, x. 26. xiv. 2.

Ver. 35. And Samuel came no more to ſee Saul until the day of his Death.] He was wont, it is likely, to make him frequent Viſits: But now he forſook him, as a Man abandoned by God.

Nevertheleſs Samuel mourned for Saul.] Yet he had ſtill ſo much Love to him, or to his Country, as to lament the ſad Condition into which he was fallen.

And the LORD repented that he had made Saul King over Iſrael.] In Teſtimony whereof he utterly caſt him off; and all Samuel's Tears could not procure a Reverſal of the Sentence pronounced againſt him.

CHAP. XVI.

Verſe 1. AND the LORD ſaid unto Samuel, how long wilt thou mourn for Saul; ſeeing I have rejected him from being King over Iſrael?] Since God had told him ſo plainly, and poſitively that the Sentence againſt him was irreverſible, it was in vain to mourn and to pray (as ſome think he did) for his reſtitution to God's Favour.

Fill thy horn with Oil, and go to Jeſſe the Bethlemite: for I have provided me a King among his Sons.] It might increaſe his Sorrow, perhaps, to think that Saul ſhould die ſuddenly, there was none yet appointed by God to ſucceed him. Which might be one Reaſon why now God declared his Pleaſure about that matter.

Ver. 2. And Samuel ſaid, How can I go?] That is, with ſafety.

If Saul hear it, he will kill me.] For he was inraged at the Sentence paſſed upon him; tho' at that preſent he ſeemed to ſubmit unto it.

And the LORD ſaid, Take an Heifer with thee, and ſay I am come to ſacrifice unto the LORD.] Which he, being a Prophet, might do any where: All the Ritual Laws being ſubject to the Prophets.

Ver. 3. And call Jeſſe to the Sacrifice.] To an Euchariſtical Feaſt upon the Sacrifice: Unto which they might invite their Neighbours and Friends.

And I will ſhew thee what thou ſhalt do, and thou ſhalt anoint him whom I will name unto thee.] God promiſes to direct him ſo to manage the Buſineſs, that he ſhould come into no danger. From whence it may be gathered, that it was not the holy Oil wherewith he anointed him, for that was kept in the Sanctuary: Unto which place he could not have gone to fetch it, but it would have been known, and raiſed Suſpicions of what he was going to do. See Fort. Scacchus in his Myrothecium, Lib. 3. Cap. 46.

Ver. 4. And Samuel did that which the LORD ſpake.] Took an Horn of Oil, and an Heifer.

And came to Bethlehem, and the Elders of the Town trembled at his coming.] They went out, I ſuppoſe, to meet him, but trembled when they ſaw him.

And ſaid, Comeſt thou peaceably? They were afraid that he came to reprove them for ſome Sin that was in their City; or that he fled to them for Security againſt Saul's Anger, which might bring them into Danger.

Ver. 5. And he ſaid, Peaceably: I am come to ſacrifice unto the LORD.] That was one Intention of his coming; and tho' there was another (to anoint David) he was not bound to declare it: For where there are two Ends of any Action, one may without any injury to Truth declare the one, and conceal the other. As Moſes did, when he told Pharaoh they muſt go and ſacrifice to God in the Wilderneſs; but ſuppreſſed their Intention to march to the Land of Canaan.

Sanctify your ſelves, and come with me to the Sacrifice.] See upon Exod. xix. 10.

And he ſanctified Jeſſe and his Sons, and called them to the Sacrifice.] It is likely Jeſſe might be an Elder; but if he were, his Sons were not: But he gave them a particular Invitation, and took care they ſhould come prepared. Samuel was not a Prieſt, but being a Prophet he had Authority from God, in extraordinary caſes, to perform the Office of a Prieſt, in offering Sacrifice.

Ver. 6. And it came to paſs, when they were come.] After the Sacrifice was over, while they were making ready the Feaſt, that was to follow upon it; Samuel took Jeſſe privately into a Room, and there it is likely acquainted him with his Commiſſion: Whereupon he called for his eldeſt Son to come to him.

That he looked on Eliab, and ſaid, Surely the Anointed of the LORD is before me.] Beholding a goodly Perſon, handſome and tall (as appears by the following Verſe) he concluded within himſelf, that this was the Perſon God deſigned for his Anointed.

Ver. 7. And the LORD ſaid unto Samuel.] By a ſecret, inward, Suggeſtion.

Look not on his Countenance, nor on the height of his Stature; becauſe I have refuſed him. For the LORD ſeeth not as Man ſeeth; for Man looketh on the outward Appearance, but the LORD looketh on the Heart.] All have not a noble Spirit, who have a noble Aſpect; as appeared by Saul. Which ſhould have made Samuel not conclude ſo haſtily, from a goodly Appearance.

Ver. 8. Then Jeſſe called Abinadab, and made him paſs before Samuel.] That he might have a full View of him.

And he ſaid, Neither hath the LORD choſen this.] God had ſuggeſted to him, as he did concerning the former, that he did not approve him.

Ver. 9. Then Jeſſe made Shammah to paſs by; and he ſaid, Neither hath the LORD choſen this.] He is called Shimeah, 2 Sam. xiii. 3. and Shimmah, 1 Chron. xi. 13.

Ver. 10. Again Jeſſe made ſeven of his Sons to paſs before Samuel.] Not all at once; but ſeven in all, one after another in order; David being the eighth.

And Samuel ſaid unto Jeſſe, the LORD hath not choſen theſe.] Theſe Words ſhow that he had acquainted Jeſſe with his Buſineſs: But theſe theſe four of his Sons, among whom he was to anoint one to be King, were no more qualified for it, than the three firſt: For he had eight Sons in all, xvii. 12.

Ver. 11. And Samuel ſaid unto Jeſſe, Are here all thy Children? and he ſaid, There remaineth yet the youngeſt; and behold he keeps the Sheep.] And ſo was not at home. The moſt excellent Commanders were anciently taken from the Plough, or from feeding Sheep, as Pliny obſerves, Lib. 18. Natural. Hiſtor. Cap. 5. Fortiſſimi viri, & milites ſtrenuiſſimi ex agricolis gignuntur. And ſo Vegetius, Lib. 1. Cap. 3. De Re Militari, diſcuſſes this Point, whether the beſt Soldiers came out of the City or Country: And reſolves, aptiorem armis ruſticam plebem, &c. that the Country People are moſt fit for Arms; who live in the open Air, and are bred up to Labour, and indure Heat, and neglect the Shade: Being unacquainted with Baths, ignorant of Delights, of a ſimple Mind, contented with a little; having their Bodies hardened to the enduring all Labour; who are uſed by their Country Life to carry Burdens, dig Trenches, and ſuch like Labour. And therefore he concludes, that the ſtrength of an Army is to be ſupplied out of the Field: For ſo it is, that the leſs Men are acquainted with the Delights of Life, the leſs they fear Death. Moſes was thus bred a long time in the Service of Jethro: And Saul look'd after his Father's Cattle.

And Samuel ſaid unto Jeſſe, ſend and fetch him: for we will not ſit down till he come hither.] By this it appears, all this was tranſacted between the Sacrifice, and the dreſſing of the Meat for a Feaſt upon it.

Ver. 12. And he ſent and brought him in: now he was ruddy.] His Hair was red, which in ancient times was accounted beautiful, as Bochartus obſerves from this Place. With which agree the Words of Feſtus, who having ſaid that Rutilius ſignifies red, adds, cujus coloris ſtudioſæ etiam antiquæ mulieres erant. Of which colour Women alſo were ſtudious in ancient times. See Hierozoicon, P. 1. Lib. 2. Cap. 34. But it muſt be confeſſed, that the Hebrew Word Admoni doth not ſignify only red, but alſo bright and ſhining; as Bochartus himſelf acknowledges thoſe Words, Lament. iv. 7. are to be underſtood, where he ſaith of the Nazarites, Ademu azem Mippinim, they were more ſhining in Body than Pearls. And I think theſe Words are ſo to be interpreted concerning David, that he had a clear Complexion; or, was very fair (as we ſpeak) and lovely.

And withal of a beautiful Countenance.] Or, had beautiful Eyes, as the Words are in the Hebrew, Oculis ſpeculis & liberalibus, as Conradus Pellicanus here gloſſes.

And goodly to look to.] Of a pleaſant Aſpect; full of Sweetneſs and Clemency, as the ſame Author underſtands it. All this is ſaid to ſignify, that he was a goodly Perſon, and had greatneſs in his Countenance.

And the LORD ſaid, Ariſe, anoint him, for this is he.] The Jews obſerve upon theſe Words, that it was neceſſary to anoint the firſt of a Family, that was advanced to the Kingdom; but it was not neceſſary to anoint his Children that ſucceeded him: Unleſs upon occaſion of a Diſpute, by a contrary Faction. See Selden. de Succeſſ. in Pontificat. Lib. 2. Cap. 9.

Ver. 13. Then Samuel took the Horn of Oil, and anointed him.] He did not hereby inveſt him actually with the Kingly Power: But this anointing was only a Deſignation of him to ſucceed Saul after his Death. So David always underſtood it; looking upon Saul as the LORD's Anointed, as long as he lived; that is, as the King of Iſrael. See Judges ix. 8.

In the midſt of his Brethren.] It had better have been tranſlated, from the midſt of his Brethren; that is, he ſingled him out from the reſt, and privately anointed him. For it is manifeſt, by what is ſaid before, that Samuel was afraid to have it known, and therefore did not anoint him publickly in the midſt of his Brethren. And by Eliab's Treatment of David after this (xvii. 28.) it plainly enough appears, he did not know him to be the King elect of God's People.

The Jews in Seder Olam Rabba (Cap. 13.) ſay David was Twenty Nine Years old, when he was anointed: Which certainly is falſe, if it be underſtood of this firſt Unction by Samuel (whereby God elected him, as in the two following Judah and Iſrael received him for their King) for after Saul's Death he reigned forty Years, and lived 'till he was ſeventy. So that he was thirty Years old when he began to reign: part of which time he ſpent in the Service of Saul; and after that was ſorely perſecuted by him. How long that Perſecution laſted, is uncertain: but it continued ſo long, that it makes the Opinion of Abarbinel probable, that David could not be above twenty Years old, if ſo much, when Samuel anointed him.

And the Spirit of the LORD came upon David from that day forward.] A Spirit of Prudence to behave himſelf wiſely upon all Occaſions; with a Spirit of Courage, ſo that he durſt grapple with a Lion and a Bear: And the Spirit of Prophecy, in which he was very eminent afterwards. In ſhort, a Spirit fit for a Prince.

And Samuel went up, and went to Ramah.] Having no further Commiſſion from God at Bethlehem.

Ver. 14. But the Spirit of the LORD departed from Saul.] Which came upon him, when he was firſt made King, and continued with him 'till this time, x. 11. xi. 6. yet he did not loſe his Courage, but his Prudence and Skill in Government.

And an evil Spirit from the LORD troubled him.] He grew melancholy, timorous, and ſuſpicious: So that he ſtarted where there was no Danger, as the Hebrew Word ſeems to import; and thereby became very unfit for Buſineſs, being ſometimes furious and diſtracted; always full of Anxiety and Solicitude of Mind: Sighing and trembling like a Man in the dark, as Abarbinel explains it. For his Blood and Spirits were thick and heavy; having loſt their uſual Purity and Splendor.

Ver. 15. And Saul's Servants ſaid unto him, Behold an evil Spirit from God troubleth thee.] His Courtiers could not but obſerve a ſtrange Diſturbance in him: Which they look'd upon as ſo unuſual, that they aſcribe it to the Hand of God.

Ver. 16. Let our Lord now command thy Servants that are before thee, to ſeek out a Man, who is a cunning Player upon the Harp.] An Inſtrument always highly eſteemed; as thoſe were who could play well upon it. It is called Cinnor in the Hebrew, from whence no doubt the Greek Κιννύρα is derived.

And it ſhall come to paſs, that when the evil Spirit from God is upon thee.] When a melancholy Fit ſeized him.

That he ſhall play with his hand, and thou ſhalt be well.] It being a bodily Diſeaſe, they hoped by this means he might receive ſome Relief: And perhaps they had ſeen ſome Experiment made of it, upon Men in the like Condition; for Muſick wonderfully alters the Spirits, and conſequently the Blood: And hath a peculiar Virtue in it to cheer and delight thoſe that are ſad, and compoſe thoſe that are furious, as Saul ſometimes was.

Ver. 17. And Saul ſaid unto his Servants, Provide me now one that can play well, and bring him to me.] For none durſt deny his Attendance on him, as Samuel had deſcribed the manner of the Kingdom, viii. 11, 12, &c.

Ver. 18. Then anſwered one of the Servants and ſaid, Behold, I have ſeen the Son of Jeſſe the Bethlemite, that is cunning in playing, and a mighty valiant Man, and a Man of War, and prudent in matters, and a comely Perſon.] It is likely this was ſome Friend or Acquaintance of David's, who had a mind to bring him to Court: And therefore reckons up all his good Qualities, as well as his Skill in Muſick; together with his Succeſs in all Affairs. Which tho' he manag'd with great Prudence, yet he could not have been ſo conſtantly proſperous, if God had not bleſſed him.

Ver. 19. Wherefore Saul ſent Meſſengers unto Jeſſe, ſaying, ſend me David thy Son, which is with the Sheep.] This Meſſage, it is likely, might poſſeſs Jeſſe with ſome Fear that the Secret was diſcovered.

Ver. 20. And Jeſſe took an Aſs laden with Bread and a Bottle of Wine, and a Kid, and ſent them by David his Son, unto Saul.] But by this Preſent he hoped to ingratiate his Son in his Princely Favour. The word laden is not in the Hebrew, but only an Aſs of Bread. Which is a Phraſe uſed in other Authors, as Bochartus hath obſerved out of Athenæus; who mentions this Phraſe in Soſibius, ἄρτων τρεῖς ὄνους καυθηλίους, three great Aſſes of Loaves, Hierozoicon, P. 1. Lib. 2. cap. 34.

Ver. 21. And David came to Saul, and ſtood before him.] Miniſtred unto him among the reſt of his Servants.

And he loved him greatly, and he made him his Armour-bearer.] Which was an honourable Preferment.

Ver. 22. And Saul ſent to Jeſſe, ſaying, Let David I pray thee ſtand before me: for he hath found favour in my ſight.] This was an extraordinary Token of his Kindneſs; that he would not keep his Son to wait upon him, without his Conſent.

Ver. 23. And it came to paſs, when the evil Spirit from the LORD was upon Saul, that David took an Harp and played with his hand.] Joſephus ſeems to have thought, that he alſo ſung Hymns and Pſalms to the Harp; for his Words are, Lib. 6. Antiq. Cap. 9. λέγουσι τὸν ὕμνον καὶ ψάλλων ἐν τῇ κιννύρᾳ, &c. But the illuſtrious Spanheim ſhows that the Word ψαλμὸς is often uſed for the ſound of the Harp. So the Scholiaſt upon Ariſtophanes his Aves, ψαλμὸς κυρίως ὁ τῆς κιθάρας ἦχος. See his Obſervation on Callimachus his Hymn in Apollinem, ver. 12. And ſo Nero truly ſaid (which Tacitus mentions in his Annals, L. 14. Cap. 14.) Antiqui Duces cythara cecinerunt. The ancient great Commanders ſung to the Harp. So Cornelius Nepos reports of Epaminondas, that he was an excellent Muſician.

And Saul was refreſhed, and was well.] All Authors are full of the Power of Muſick; both to ſtir up Paſſions, and to allay them; according to the ſeveral kinds of it. Athenæus (Lib. 14.) praiſes it for the Virtue that is in it, καὶ τὰ ἤθη παιδεύειν, καὶ τὸ θυμοειδὲς καὶ τὰς γνώμας διαφόρως καταπραύνειν, to regulate Men's Manners, and to allay and ſoften thoſe that are furious, and diſturbed in their Minds. Such Songs Ariſtotle calls μέλη καθαρτικὰ, purgative Songs; apt to cleanſe the Mind from turbid Motions, L. 8. Polit. See Gerh. Voſſius concerning this in his Book de Artibus Popularibus, cap. 3. § 13. where he ſhows how Diſeaſes of the Body have been cured by Muſick, as well as of the Mind: And ſect. 45, 46. he ſhows the Power of it over brute Creatures. Bochartus alſo enumerates many famous Artiſts among the Ancients, beſides Orpheus and Amphion (whoſe Hiſtory is dreſſed up fabulouſly) that are celebrated, not by Poets, but by good Hiſtorians, for their wonderful Skill in moving Men's Paſſions by Muſick. Hierozoicon, P. 1. Lib. 2. Cap. 44. p. 461, &c. And long before theſe, the great Eraſmus hath obſerved the Force of Muſick in curing Diſeaſes, and quite altering the Paſſions of Men's Minds, in his Preface to Arnobius upon the Pſalms. Which may be found among his Epiſtles, Lib. 28. p. 1655.

And the evil Spirit departed from him.] For a time: There being lucid Intervals in ſuch Diſtempers as his was; which frequently returned again.

CHAP. XVII.

Verſe 1. AND the Philiſtines gathered their Armies together unto Battel.] In what Year of Saul's Reign this was, we are not told: But Joſephus thinks it was not long after the things related in the foregoing Chapter. For ſo his Words are, χρόνοις δὲ ὑστερον ὀλίγοις, not many years after, &c. For the Philiſtines having received a great Defeat (Chap. 14.) reſolved to be revenged, and thought they had a fair Opportunity, when they heard that Saul was diſtracted.

And were gathered together at Shochoh which belongeth to Judah, and pitched between Shochoh and Azekah, in Ephes-dammim.] See Joſh. xv. 35. By this it appears, that the Philiſtines invaded the Country of the Iſraelites, and poſſeſſed themſelves of ſome Parts of it. That place here called Ephes-dammim, by taking away away the Aleph is called Pas-dammim, 1 Chron. xi. 13.

Ver. 2. And Samuel and the Men of Israel were gathered together, and pitched by the Valley of Elah.] A place I suppose in the same Tribe, for their Armies were not far one from another.

And set the Battle in array against the Philistines.] As ready, and desirous to fight them.

Ver. 3. And the Philistines stood on a Mountain on the one side, and the Israelites on a Mountain on the other side: and there was a Valley between them.] After they had faced one another some time, and neither side thought fit to engage, and begin to fight; they drew up their Armies upon two opposite Mountains, which were parted by a Valley.

Ver. 4. And there went out a Champion out of the Camp of the Philistines, named Goliath of Gath.] For to this City the Anakims fled when Joshua rooted them out of the Land of Canaan, Josh. xi. 22, 23. And here they propagated a Race of Giants; that is, People of great Stature and Strength.

Whose Height was six Cubits and a Span.] A great number of Authors write of such Men of vast Stature in ancient times. See Magius de Gigantibus, and Casp. Schottus; but especially Hermannus Conringius, in his Book de antiquo statu Holmstadii, and in another Book, de Habitu Corporum Germanorum; where he shows the ancient Germans were of a vast Size, as Cæsar relates in his Book de Bello Gal. where he calls them immani corporum magnitudine homines, Men of an huge Greatness of Body. And Pomponius Mela and others say the same. In short, they were generally seven Foot high. And now at this day, there is a whole Nation on the North side of the Strait of Magellan, immani corporum vastitate, as he there observes, p. 37.

Ver. 5. And he had an Helmet of Brass upon his Head, and he was armed with a Coat of Mail.] With Plates of Brass, laid one upon another, like Fishes Scales. So Bochartus in his Phaleg. Lib. 3. Cap. 13.

And the weight of the Coat was five thousand Shekels of Brass.] This shows he was a Man of vast Strength; who was able to walk and to fight with such prodigious Armour: which was impenetrable. Yet this is not to be understood, as Fortunatus Schaccus thinks, as if the Coat weighed so much, for it would have been insupportable; but that it cost so much, or was valued at five thousand Shekels of Brass. Myrothec. Vol. 2. p. 33.

Ver. 6. And he had Greaves of Brass upon his Legs, and a Target of Brass between his Shoulders.] That he might be no where vulnerable. For the Target defended his Neck as well as his Shoulders.

Ver. 7. And the Staff of his Spear was like a Weaver's Beam; and his Spear's Head weighed six hundred Shekels of Iron.] This was one of his offensive Weapons: By which the largeness of his Sword may be measured.

And one bearing a Shield went before him.] Which was proportionable, no doubt, to his Bulk: And was carried before him when he made his Challenge, for the greater State sake; but, when he fought, I suppose, was used by himself.

Ver. 8. And he stood and cried unto the Armies of Israel.] They were divided, it seems, into several Bodies, called here Armies: And they could hear one another from the Mountains on which they were incamped; and Goliath came down into the Valley, and there challenged any body to come and fight with him in the sight of both Armies.

Why are ye come out to set your Battel in array?] He charges them with Presumption, in offering to make War with the Philistines, who were so much superiour to them.

Am not I a Philistine, and you Servants of Saul?] Who doubted of this, that he was a Philistine, and they Saul's Subjects? The meaning thereof is, as Abarbinel explains it, that he was one of the Lords of the Philistines, a chief Ruler in Gath, subject to none; and yet would condescend to fight with any of Saul's Servants: Who, in comparison with him, he look'd upon as no better than Slaves. The Targum will have it, that he brags of his great Deeds: Particularly that he had killed Hophni and Phineas with his own hand, and taken the Ark of God captive; and therefore wonders at their Presumption, that they should come to fight with those, who had gained such Victories over them. Which is not likely, for they had, since that, been beaten twice by the Israelites.

Chuse you a Man for you, and let him come down to me.] He propounds the deciding of their Quarrel by a single Combat: Which seems to have been done out of a Bravado, rather than from any Examples of those ancient times, of ending Quarrels in this manner: For tho' it looks like a charitable design to prevent much Blood-shed; yet no Nation sure was willing to venture its whole Well-being upon one single Man's good Success. We read indeed, as I observed upon xiv. 10. of two or three single Combats, before the Armies of the two Nations ingaged, but they were not intended to be decisive of the Quarrel between them. This therefore was, as I said before, an high rant of Goliath, proceeding from the high Opinion he had of his matchless Strength: Which made him brag, as if he was the Support of the whole Nation; which must stand or fall together with him.

Ver. 9. If he be able to fight with me and kill me, then will we be your Servants; but if I prevail against him, and kill him, then shall ye be our Servants, and serve us.] These Conditions were never acccepted, tho' Saul sought for a Man to fight: But quite contrary, they were so far from being agreed on by either side, that the Philistines did not yield themselves Slaves to the Israelites upon the Death of Goliath; but fled to their own Country, and there defended themselves against them, and fought many Battels with them.

Ver 10. And the Philistine said, I defy the Armies of Israel this day; give me a Man that we may fight together.] He expresses the utmost Contempt of their whole Army: In which he signifies there was not a Man that durst look him in the face.

Ver. 11. When Saul and all Israel heard these Words of the Philistine, they were dismayed and greatly afraid.] For tho' Saul had not quite lost his his Courage, but gathered an Army to fight the Philiſtines; yet it was not ſo undaunted as it had been before the Spirit of God forſook him: And the People's Spirits ſink, when their Leaders flag and are diſmayed.

Ver. 12. Now David was the Son of that Ephrathite of Bethlehem of Judah, whoſe name was Jeſſe.] He being choſen by God to combat with Goliath, the Divine Writer gives an account who he was, and what Relations he had.

He had eight Sons.] In the Book of the Chronicles (1 ii. 13, 14, 15.) there are but ſeven mentioned: One being dead without Children, as R. Solomon thinks: Or being only an adopted Son.

And the Man was accounted an old Man in the days of Saul.] And therefore excuſed from going to the War.

Ver. 13. And the three eldeſt Sons went and followed Saul to Battel; and the Names of his three Sons that went to the War, were Eliab the firſt-born, &c.] Theſe, I ſuppoſe, were Men of the greateſt Experience, and Strength: And therefore fitteſt for the Service.

Ver. 14. And David was the youngeſt, and the three eldeſt followed Saul.] David being young, was not put to the Hardſhips of War: But the eldeſt only undertook to ſerve their Prince and their Country in this time of common Danger.

Ver. 15. But David went and returned from Saul to feed his Father's Sheep at Bethlehem.] In the beginning of this War, as Joſephus thinks, Saul ſent David home to his Father; ἀρκέμενος αὐτὸς τοῖς τρίσι Υἱοῖς, &c. contenting himſelf with three of his Sons, who came to his Aſſiſtance, with the hazard of their Lives.

Ver. 16. And the Philiſtine drew near Morning and Evening, and preſented himſelf forty days.] This is an Argument the Philiſtines could not force the Camp of the Iſraelites: Otherwiſe they would not have ſpent ſo much time in this Bravado. Unleſs we ſuppoſe, as Abarbinel doth, that all this time more Forces were marching to this Place, as their general Rendezvous, both from the Country of the Philiſtines, and from the Land of Iſrael: For ſuch great Armies could not ſuddenly be got together. Or ſome wiſe Men on both ſides were treating all this time, to ſee if they could bring matters to an Accommodation. It is a mere fancy of R. Jonathan, in the Gemara of the Miſna, Title Sota, that Goliath drew near Morning and Evening, that he might diſturb the Iſraelites at their Morning and Evening Prayers, and hinder them from reciting them.

Ver. 17. And Jeſſe ſaid unto David his Son, Take now for thy Brethren, an Ephah of this parched Corn, and theſe ten Loaves, and run to thy Brethren.] For he did not know but Proviſion might be ſcarce with them; or, as ſome will have it, he was informed they were under ſome Hardſhip, and deſired to know how they did. But having other Sons at home with him, it was by a Divine Direction that he ſent David from the Sheep, upon this Errand.

Ver. 18. And carry theſe ten Cheeſes unto the Captain of their Thouſand.] Whoſe Favour might be very ſerviceable to them.

And look how thy Brethren fare, and take their Pledge.] Some think that they went to War, in thoſe days, at their own Charge, and were not paid by the King. Proviſion therefore beginning to fail, Jeſſe's Sons had ſent to him for a Supply, and by a certain token. Which their Father bids David take with him, to know if it were theirs. So ſome expound the word Pledge. But others think that if they had borrowed Money, or pawned any thing for it, he ordered David to redeem it. Or that he ſhould bring ſomething from them, that might certify him of their Health. Others tranſlate the Word not Pledge but Buſineſs: And take the Senſe to be; Bring me word what they do, how they behave themſelves; what Company they keep, and whom they aſſociate themſelves withal.

Ver. 19. And Saul, and they, and all the Men of Iſrael were in the Valley of Elah, fighting with the Philiſtines.] They were now drawn up in Battalia (as we ſpeak) ready to engage: Not in the Valley, but hard by it, on the ſide of the Mountain, where they faced the Philiſtines, and ſhowed themſelves reſolved to fight, if they came down from the other Mountain.

Ver. 20. And David roſe up early in the Morning, and left the Sheep with a Keeper, and took and went as Jeſſe had commanded him: and he came to the Trench, as the Hoſt was going forth to the Fight, and ſhouted for the Battel.] By the Trench, may be meant the Carriages (as we tranſlate the Word in the Margin) wherewith the Hoſt was ſurrounded, inſtead of a Trench made about it.

Ver. 21. For Iſrael and the Philiſtines had put the Battel in array, Army againſt Army.] This is the Reaſon of what follows.

Ver. 22. And David left his Carriage in the hand of the Keeper of the Carriage.] He left the Proviſion which his Father had ſent his Brethren, with his Servant, it being no time to preſent it to them, when they were juſt going to engage.

And ran unto the Army, and came and ſaluted his Brethren.] Acquainting them, no doubt, with their Father's Care of them.

Ver. 23. And as he talked with them, behold there came up the Champion (the Philiſtine of Gath, Goliath by Name) out of the Army of the Philiſtines, and ſpake according to the ſame Words, and David heard them.] Tho' the Armies ſtood ready to engage, yet the Vanity of Goliath made him once more deſire the matter might be determined by a ſingle Combat.

Ver. 24. And all the Men of Iſrael, when they ſaw the Man, fled from him, and were ſore afraid.] They that could look the whole Army of the Philiſtines in the face (among whom they knew Goliath was) one would think ſhould not flee at the ſight of one Man. But the meaning is (as the next words ſhow) they could not indure to hear his opprobrious Words againſt them, and his blaſphemous Words againſt God.

Ver. 25. And the Men of Iſrael ſaid, Have you ſeen this Man that is come up? ſurely to defy Iſrael is he come up.] They bewailed among themſelves their ſad Condition; that all the People of Iſrael ſhould be ſet at naught, and vilified vilified by one Man; who despised both them and their God, ver. 45.

And it shall be, that the Man who killeth him, the King will enrich him with great Riches, and give him his Daughter, and make his Father's House free in Israel.] To make his Family free in Israel, was to make them noble. And the Targum translates it, make them free Princes in Israel: Particularly free from paying any Tribute or Taxes, which was a Royal Privilege; of which see Selden, Lib. 6. de Jure Nat. & Gentium, Cap. 14. fol. 740. Here some observe that Saul had lost his wonted Piety; for he sent not to Samuel, nor consulted the High-Priest, nor offered Sacrifice: But only proclaimed a great Reward to him that should fight with Goliah and kill him. Which showed he had not lost all Prudence: For thus Caleb won Kirjath-sepher, by offering his Daughter in Marriage to him that should take it. And David himself afterwards incouraged his Soldiers to assault the strong Fort of Zion, by promising to make him Commander in chief of all his Forces, who should first enter it. Thus Mathias Hostius observes the Athenians offered an hundred Talents to him that should bring Xerxes to them alive or dead: Many more Instances of this way of exciting Men to valiant Exploits he gives in his History of this Monomachia.

Ver. 26. And David spake to the Men that stood by him, saying, What shall be done to the Man that kills this Philistine, and takes away the reproach from Isaael?] He desired them to repeat the King's Promise; signifying that he would undertake to encounter Goliath.

For who is this Uncircumcised, that he should defy the Armies of the living God?] He would not have them think he was mov'd by the Hope of the Reward (which was not to be despised) so much as by Zeal for God, and for his Country; which suffered by the Reproaches of one, who was not in Covenant with God: And therefore he did not fear him, nor would suffer him any longer to make such proud Boasting.

Ver. 27. And the People answered him after this manner, saying, so shall it be done unto the Man that killeth him.] They all confirmed what was before said.

Ver. 28. And Eliab his elder Brother heard when he spake unto the Men, and his Anger was kindled against David, and he said, Why cameſt thou down hither?] His Passion made him forget that he came by his Father's Order, to see how they did, &c.

And with whom hast thou left those few Sheep in the Wilderness?] This intimates, that he was fitter to look after Sheep, than to fight a Giant.

I know thy Pride, and the Haughtiness of thine Heart, for thou art come down to see the Battel.] Vain-glory he thought brought him to the Battel: And now made him offer to run such a desperate Adventure.

Ver. 29. And David said, What have I done, Is there not a Cause?] He justifies his Discourse; since no Man, no not Eliab himself, had the Courage to wipe off the Reproach which Goliath cast upon them all.

Ver. 30. And he turned from him to another, and spake after the same manner, and the People answered him again after the same manner.] He told them he would undertake to fight Goliath; and they told him what would be his Reward if he killed him.

Ver. 31. And when the Words were heard that David spake, they rehearsed them before Saul; and he sent for him.] They had been spoken to so many, that at last they came to Saul's ear: Who desired to hear himself what he said.

Ver. 32. And David said unto Saul.] Who had told him what he heard reported of his Resolution.

Let no Man's Heart faint because of him: for thy Servant will go and fight with this Philistine.] In assured hope of Victory.

Ver. 33. And Saul said unto David, Thou art not able to go against this Philistine to fight with him: for thou art but a Youth, and he a Man of War from his youth.] This Saul spake out of Kindness to David; whom he would not have to hazard himself against an old Soldier, when he was unexperienced in War.

Ver. 34. And David said unto Saul, thy Servant kept his Father's Sheep, and there came a Lion and a Bear, and took a Lamb out of the Flock.] Not both together (as Castalio supposes in his Translation) but at several times; and it is likely more than once.

Ver. 35. And I went out after him and smote him, and delivered him out of his mouth: and when he rose up against me, I caught him by the Beard, and smote him, and slew him.] Sometimes he pursued the Lion and killed him in his Flight: Or if he turned again to devour him, he boldly caught him by the Beard and killed him. And in like manner we are to understand, he encounter'd the Bear.

Ver. 36. Thy Servant slew both the Lion and the Bear.] The Author of Halicoth Olam, by a strange fetch, concludes from hence, that he killed a Lion with two of her Whelps; and a Bear with one of her Cubs. Pars 4. Cap. 3.

And this uncircumcised Philistine shall be as one of them; seeing he hath defied the Armies of the living God.] He encourages himself by three Arguments. His Mastery over such terrible Creatures as a Lion and a Bear: Which made him not fear this great Beast, Goliath. Who was not one of God's People: Whom he had insolently set at naught as Varlets and Slaves (ver. 8.) tho' they were the Servants of the living God.

Ver. 37. David said moreover, The LORD that delivered me out of the Paw of the Lion, and out of the Paw of the Bear.] In the Hebrew it is, out of the Hand of the Lion, and out of the Hand of the Bear: And Aristotle observes, that Bears have Paws, Χερσὶν ὁμοίως, resembling Hands.

He will deliver me out of the hand of this Philistine.] To silence all Objections, he declares that he was possessed with a full Persuasion, that God would deliver this Philistine into his hands, as he had done the Lion and the Bear: For he felt himself full of that Spirit which then assisted him. Abarbinel thinks, that he repeats this so often, because Saul did not seem to believe it, or did not attend to it: And therefore he saith over again, ver. 37. what he had said, ver. 36. And tells him it was not by his his own Strength, but by the mighty Power of God, that he overcame thoſe furious Beaſts: As he doubted not he ſhould do this Philiſtine by the ſame Power. Whereupon Saul prayed God to proſper him.

And Saul ſaid, Go, and the LORD be with thee.] As he believed he would.

Ver. 38. And Saul armed David with his Armour, &c.] Not that which he was wont to wear himſelf (for he was ſo tall it would not have fitted David) but he ordered them to bring out of his Armoury an Helmet and a Coat of Mail, as it here follows.

Ver. 39. And David girded his Sword upon his Armour, and he aſſayed to go; for he had not proved it: and David ſaid unto Saul, I cannot go with theſe, for I have not proved them: and David put them off him.] He was not accuſtomed to wear ſuch things, not being uſed to go armed: And therefore begged leave to lay them aſide; as likely rather to incumber him, than facilitate his Enterprize. Which Machiavel in his Princeps, Cap. 13. applies to the danger of employing mercenary Soldiers: For aliena arma aut ex humeris decidunt, aut ſunt tibi oneri, aut te conſtrictum tenent.

Ver. 40. And he took his Staff in his hand.] His Shepherd's Staff.

And choſe him five ſmooth Stones out of the Brook.] Or rather five cleft Stones: Not whole and intire, but broken. For the Word ſignifies Partitions; and therefore denotes the Stones to have been ragged; and ſharp-pointed were moſt fit for his purpoſe. See De Dieu.

And put them in a Shepherd's Bag which he had, even in a Scrip.] Which hung by his ſide.

And his Sling was in his hand.] A ſort of Weapon, in the Management of which ſome were wonderful ſkilful in antient Days. See Judges xx. 16. And Livy with other Authors mention Slingers that could hit a Mark, at a very great diſtance: Particularly the Phœnicians, who, as Bochartus obſerves, were famous Slingers; from whom this Art was derived to the Baleares. See Hierozoicon, P. 1. Lib. 2. Cap. 44.

And he drew near to the Philiſtine.] It ſeems David made the firſt motion towards him, to ſhew he was in no fear of him.

Ver. 41. And the Philiſtine came and drew near to David, and the Man that bare the Shield went before him.] As he was wont to do, ver. 7.

Ver. 42. And when the Philiſtine looked about, and ſaw David.] He expected ſome tall, robuſt Perſon to encounter him; and therefore at the firſt did not mind David, who was but a Stripling.

He diſdained him, for he was but a Youth, and ruddy, and of a fair Countenance.] He contemned him upon three accounts: As being a Youth, unaccuſtomed to War: And being beautiful, ſeemed more fit to dance with Women, than to fight with Men: And he came alſo unarmed. See xvi. 12.

Ver. 43. And the Philiſtine ſaid, Am I a Dog, that thou comeſt to me with Staves? and he curſed David by his gods.] So the Romans were wont to do, ſaying, Dii Deæque te perdent: As Goliath it's likely now wiſh'd, that Dagon and Aſhtaroth and the reſt of his Gods would confound David.

Ver. 44. And the Philiſtine ſaid unto David, Come unto me, and I will give thy Fleſh unto the Fowls of the Air, and to the Beaſts of the Field.] For in his hand David was no more than a little Lamb in the hand of a Butcher.

Ver. 45. Then ſaid David to the Philiſtine, Thou comeſt to me with a Sword, and with a Spear, and with a Shield: but I come to thee in the Name of the LORD of Hoſts.] By a Commiſſion from him, who commands all Creatures in Heaven and Earth: And in a full Aſſurance that he will deliver thee into my hand. Concerning the Word Chidon, which we tranſlate a Spear, ſee Bochart in his Hieroz. P. 1. p. 138.

The God of the Armies of Iſrael, whom thou haſt defied.] The Leader and Protector of thoſe Armies, whom Goliath had ſet at naught.

Ver. 46. This day will the LORD deliver thee into my hand, and I will ſmite thee, and take thy Head off from thee.] Which Goliath thought impoſſible, he having no Sword by his ſide.

And will give the Carcaſes of the Hoſt of the Philiſtines this day, unto the Fowls of the Air, and to the Beaſts of the Earth.] David did not raſhly and vainly boaſt before-hand of the Victory, as Goliath had done: But being full of Faith (as Pellicanus here notes) praiſed the divine Omnipotence, and propheſied of an aſſured Victory.

That all the Earth may know there is a God in Iſrael.] Superior to all other.

Ver. 47. And all this Aſſembly ſhall know that the LORD ſaveth not by Sword and by Spear.] They might learn, if they pleaſed, that the LORD needed not human Force to effect his Deſigns. David did not want Courage: But he aſcribes all to God; in whoſe Power and Might he went forth, and not his own.

For the Battel is the LORD's, and he will give you into our hand.] The Battel was properly the LORD's againſt the ſeven Nations of Canaan: Becauſe he had commanded them to be extirpated. But in all other Battels he diſpoſed of the Victory as he pleaſed. Strigelius here notes out of Sophocles the Prophane Spirit of Ajax; who was therefore puniſhed with Madneſs: Becauſe his Father Telamon piouſly admoniſhing him, as he went to War, to fight bravely, but to expect Victory from God; he impiouſly anſwered, that Cowards might overcome by the help of God, but he doubted not to overcome without him.

Ver. 48. And it came to paſs when the Philiſtine aroſe, and came and drew near to meet David.] Having nothing but Victory in his Thoughts, as Pellicanus here obſerves, he aroſe and marched gravely, and pompouſly covered over with Armour, and fearing nothing.

That David haſted and ran toward the Army to meet the Philiſtine.] But David being loaded with no Armour, nimbly ran towards him, and knock'd him down; before he had ſo much as drawn his Sword out of his Sheath.

Ver. 49. And David put his hand in his Bag, and took thence a Stone, and ſmote the Philiſtine in his Forehead.] Which either was bare, (he perhaps contemning David ſo much, as not to pull down his Helmet over his Face) or elſe was thrown with ſuch a force, that it pierced his Helmet firſt, and then his Forehead: Or went

went in at the Place which was left open for his Eyes. However it was, the Divine Hand directed it: For though there were Men so wonderful skilful as to hit a Mark that was fixed and immoveable, though small and at a distance; yet none had such admirable Skill as to be sure to hit a Mark that was in motion, as Goliath's Body was at this time.

And the Stone sunk into his Forehead.] Pierced into his Brain, so that he immediately, as here follows, fell upon his Face to the Earth.

Kimchi thinks that when he said to David, Come, and I will give thy Flesh to the Fowls of the Air, he looked up, and his Helmet then fell from off his Head.

Ver. 50. So David prevailed over the Philistine, with a Sling and with a Stone, and smote the Philistine, and slew him.] So true is that of Vegetius, Lib. 1. Cap. 6. Utilius est fortes esse milites, quam grandes. But it was not mere Fortitude and Valour that prevailed, but the Spirit of God.

But there was no Sword in the hand of David.] This was so wonderful a thing, that so great a Victory should be obtained without the usual warlike Weapons, that it was thought fit a special Mark should be set upon it.

Ver. 51 Therefore David ran, and stood upon the Philistine.] That he might compleat his Victory, and make it notorious to all the Army.

And took his Sword, and drew it out of its Sheath.] He was strong not merely by Nature, but by the Power of God: Otherwise he could not have well managed the Sword of a Giant.

And slew him, and cut off his Head therewith.] It is likely the Stone had only stunned him; but his Life was still in him, after this Blow in his Forehead: And therefore now he quite dispatched him.

And when the Philistines saw their Champion was dead, they fled.] Having lost all their Courage with his Life.

Ver. 52. And the Men of Israel and of Judah arose, and shouted.] As they used to do when they had got the Victory.

And pursued the Philistines, 'till they came to the Valley and to the Gates of Ekron, &c.] They pursued them to their own Country (which was in a Valley) even to the Gates of their principal Cities; as Gath and Ekron were.

Ver. 53. And the Children of Israel returned from chasing after the Philistines, and spoiled their Tents.] They acted like good Soldiers; who did not first fall upon the Spoil, and thereby let the Enemy escape.

Ver. 54. And David took the Head of the Philistine, and brought it to Jerusalem.] After he had shown it to Saul, ver. 57. and exposed it to all the People, xviii. 6. Jerusalem was now become a noted City, which was the Reason, I suppose, why he brought his Head hither: Tho' it is only said, he brought it to that place; where it having been shown as a Spectacle, perhaps was reposited somewhere else.

But he put his Armour in his Tent.] Which, I suppose, was set up for David, upon this occasion; when he prepared himself to encounter the Philistine. And when his Tent was taken down after the Battel, the Armour was deposited in the Tabernacle, as his Sword was, to remain there for a Trophy.

Ver. 55. And when Saul saw David go forth against the Philistine, he said unto Abner the Captain of the Host, Whose Son is this Youth?] Such Cavillers as Spinoza from hence argue, that this Chapter was not written by him, that wrote the former: For how is it possible, say they, that Saul should not know David, who had lately attended on him in his Court? But this is very frivolous; for in such a Multitude of Business as Kings have, and among so many new Faces, which they see every day, it was easy to forget a Man he had seen and conversed withal now and then; especially when he was crazed, and had a Disease in his Head, as Saul had. Besides, David came now in another kind of Apparel, than he did when he was sent to wait upon Saul at Court: For he appeared now as a Shepherd, in a rustick Habit (ver. 40.) and his Countenance, it is likely, was much altered, by the Heroic Motion he now found in himself, to fight with Goliath. And after all, Abarbinel observes, he doth not ask who David was, but who was his Father: Which he might easily forget when he had been disturbed with Melancholly, and with the public Affairs.

And Abner said, As thy Soul liveth, O King, I cannot tell.] He being a military Man, and therefore much abroad, had not seen David when he was at Court, or taken no notice of him.

Ver. 56. And the King said, Enquire then whose Son this Stripling is.] It was natural to desire to know whence such a young Man came, who so much excelled all other Men.

Ver. 57. And as David returned from the Slaughter of the Philistine, Abner took him, and brought him unto Saul, with the Head of the Philistine in his hand.] He thought it was best the King should learn from his own Mouth, who he was; especially after such a glorious Exploit.

Ver. 58. And Saul said, Whose Son art thou, thou young Man? and David answered, I am the Son of thy Servant Jesse, the Bethlemite.] More Discourse, no doubt, passed between them, as appears by the next words; but this was all that was proper to be recorded, in answer to Saul's Question.

CHAP. XVIII.

Ver. 1. AND it came to pass, when he had made an end of speaking unto Saul, that the Soul of Jonathan was knit unto the Soul of David, and he loved him as his own Soul.] Such was the Prudence and Modesty of his Discourse and Behaviour after such an Heroic Action, that he entirely gained Jonathan's Affection.

Ver. 2. And Saul took him that day, and would let him go no more to his Father's House.] Saul also resolved to show greater Respect and Kindness unto him than before. For it appears by this that he had not lived always at Court, after he came first thither; but often went to his Father, when Saul was well and had no use of him.

Ver. 3. Then Jonathan and David made a Covenant.] Solemnly entred into a mutual Friendſhip.

Becauſe he loved him as his own Soul.] Such excellent Men there were among the Heathen, between whom there was ζεῦγος φιλίας, as Plutarch calls it, a Yoke of Friendſhip, wherein they were ſo joined together in Love and Amity, as to have one common Intereſt. He mentions (in his Book περὶ πολυφιλίας) Theſeus and Perithous; Achilles and Patroclus; Oreſtes and Pylades; Pythias and Damon; Epaminondas and Pelopidas: But none of them comparable to theſe two, Jonathan and David; who entred into the moſt ſacred Bonds of mutual Aſſiſtance and Defence to the very Death; and Kindneſs to their Poſterity after either of them was dead. Which was a ſingular Providence of God, who by this means preſerved David, in that ſharp Perſecution, which ſhortly after aroſe againſt him at Court.

Ver. 4. And Jonathan ſtript himſelf of the Robe that was upon him, and gave it unto David.] That he might appear like a Courtier.

And his Garments, even to his Sword, and to his Bow, and to his Girdle.] That he might look like another Jonathan; and all might take notice, they were no longer two, but one. For he put him into the Garb, both of a Courtier, and of a Soldier; or rather, great Commander.

Ver. 5. And David went out whitherſoever Saul ſent him.] Upon military Expeditions: None of which he refuſed, tho' ever ſo hazardous.

And he behaved himſelf wiſely.] Showed as much Prudence in his Conduct, as he did Courage.

And Saul ſet him over the Men of War.] Not over all; for Abner was General, as we ſpeak, of all his Forces: But he made him Captain of his Guard; or gave him ſome other great Command in his Army.

And he was accepted in the ſight of all the People, and alſo in the ſight of Saul's Servants.] Except a few; who envied his Preferment.

Ver. 6. And it came to paſs, as they came.] Marched along, in a great Cavalcade (as they now ſpeak) from the place of Battel.

When David returned from the Slaughter of the Philiſtine.] I ſuppoſe, Saul and the whole Court thought fit to honour David, by accompanying him to Jeruſalem, when he carried Goliath's Head thither.

The Women came out of all the Cities of Iſrael.] All the neighbouring Cities.

Singing and dancing to meet King Saul, with Tabrets, with Joy, and with Inſtruments of Muſick.] As the cuſtom was in times of great rejoicing.

Ver. 7. And the Women anſwered one to another, as they played.] They ſang as well as played on muſical Inſtruments: And they ſang alternately, as they did Exod. xv. 21. And the burden of the Song ſeems to have been that which follows.

And ſaid, Saul hath ſlain his thouſands, and David his ten thouſands.] For his ſlaying Goliath, was the cauſe of the Flight of the Army of the Philiſtines, and the great Slaughter of them.

Ver. 8. And Saul was very wroth, and the Saying diſpleaſed him; and he ſaid, they have aſcribed unto David ten thouſands, and to me they have aſcribed but thouſands; and what can he have more, but the Kingdom?] He began to be jealous they would advance him to the Throne, in a little time; having ſo highly magnified him above their King.

Ver. 9. And Saul eyed David from that day forward.] Narrowly obſerved him, whether he had any ſuch deſign to make himſelf King: Or, as it is commonly interpreted, he looked aſkew upon him, as one he envied and hated, and was afraid of; as the LXX tranſlate it.

Ver. 10. And it came to paſs on the morrow, that the evil Spirit from God came upon Saul.] Which had formerly haunted him, xvi. 14. and now by his Diſcontent, Anger and Melancholy was brought again upon him.

And he propheſied in the midſt of the Houſe.] Before the whole Court. This propheſying is generally underſtood, only of his imitating the Motions, Actions and Geſtures of the Prophets; which ſometimes were very different from thoſe of other Men (ſee 2 Kings ix. 11.) But I do not ſee why this Word ſhould not retain the Signification here, which it hath in other places: That he ſung divine Songs. Which perhaps he the rather did; that David might ſuſpect no danger from him. Abarbinel thinks, that his Mind being diſturbed with various roving Thoughts about his own Condition, and about David, he foretold that David ſhould be Heir of his Kingdom.

And David played with his hand as at other times.] To compoſe and quiet his diſturbed Spirits.

And there was a Javelin in Saul's hand.] Which he had provided on purpoſe, as the following words ſhow, to diſpatch David.

Ver. 11. And Saul caſt the Javelin, for he ſaid, I will ſmite David even to the Wall with it.] This argued he was ſo full of Fury, that he deſign'd to kill him in his own Houſe, before all his Courtiers, when David was waiting upon him, and doing him Service.

And David avoided out of his preſence twice.] Had his Eye upon him, and ſhunned the Blow both now, and at another time mentioned xix. 10.

Ver. 12. And Saul was afraid of David, becauſe the LORD was with him, and was departed from Saul.] Who was as unſucceſsful in all his Deſigns, as David was proſperous.

Ver. 13. Therefore Saul removed him from him.] From his Court.

And made him a Captain over a thouſand.] Inſtead of Captain of his Guard (which required his Attendance at Court) he gave him a Command abroad: Where he hoped he might be killed in ſome Expedition; or he might have an opportunity privately to take away his Life.

And he went out and came in before the People.] As the Leader of that thouſand Men.

Ver. 14. And David behaved himſelf wiſely in all his ways.] None could find any fault in his Conduct, whitherſoever he went.

And the LORD was with him.] Made all his Undertakings proſperous.

Ver.

Ver. 15. Wherefore when Saul saw that he behaved himself very wisely, he was afraid of him.] His Fears increased, as he saw David still grow so prudent, that no Exception could be taken to his Behaviour.

Ver. 16. But all Israel and Judah loved David.] This is to be understood (as Corn. Bertram thinks, de Repub. Jud. c. x.) as if he had said, the Israelites in general loved David, but especially they of the Tribe of Judah.

Because he went out and came in before them.] This Phrase signifies in other places, to administer all things belonging to one's Charge with full Authority. So Moses speaks of himself, Deut. xxxi. 2. and of Joshua his Successor, Numb. xxvii. 21. And so I suppose it signifies here, that David had an absolute Power under Saul, over those whom he commanded: And managed it so well, that he gained every body's Affection.

Ver. 17. And Saul said to David, Behold my elder Daughter Merab, her will I give thee to Wife.] He at last bethinks himself of the Promise he had publickly made unto him that should kill Goliath. The performance of which David did not demand, but in Modesty left it to Saul's own Conscience: Who now intended nothing less, it appears by the sequel, than to be as good as his word.

Only be thou valiant for me, and fight the LORD's Battels.] He would not have him think upon this Marriage, of coming again to live at Court: But to continue a military Life, and fight for his Country; whereby he hoped to be rid of him.

For Saul said, Let not mine hand be upon him.] Now he seems to have some Sense of Honour, and to lay aside those base Thoughts of murdering him himself.

But let the hand of the Philistines be upon him.] By whose hand, God's just Judgment so ordered things, that Saul himself fell.

Ver. 18. And David said unto Saul, Who am I, and what is my Life?] The hazarding his Life, he tells him, could not deserve so high an advancement.

And what is my Family in Israel, that I should be Son-in-law to the King?] This was not a Refusal of the Honour, but an acknowledgment how unworthy he was of it.

Ver. 19. And it came to pass at the time when Merab, Saul's Daughter, should have been given to David.] When all things were ready for the Marriage.

That she was given to Adriel, the Meholathite, to Wife.] A most high Affront to David, and the greatest Injury that could have been done him: which he wisely dissembled. How Jonathan resented this Usage we are not told. It is likely, his Duty to his Father made him intreat David to take it patiently; and to look upon Saul, as one that was sometimes beside himself, and did not know what he did.

Ver. 20. And Michal, Saul's Daughter, loved David, and they told Saul; and the thing pleased him.] Not out of any love to David, or desire to perform his Promise: But because he hoped by her means to bring his ends about, of destroying David.

Ver. 21. And Saul said, I will give him her, that she may be a Snare to him: and that the hand of the Philistines may be against him.] He hoped his Daughter, in obedience to him, might be persuaded to bring him into some Snare that he would lay for him: Or, that being exposed to great dangers (which he was to undergo, as a Condition of having her to Wife) he might perish in some of them.

Wherefore Saul said unto David, Thou shalt be this day my Son-in-law.] That is shortly, within a time, it is likely, prefixed by Saul.

In the one of the twain.] By marrying one of his Daughters. He had two; and tho' he was disappointed in one of them, yet his Promise was fulfilled, if he married the other.

Ver. 22. And Saul commanded his Servants, saying, Commune with David secretly.] It seems David was not forward to embrace Saul's Offer; having been so grosly abused: Therefore Saul ordered his Courtiers in private discourse to take occasion to perswade him to it.

And say, Behold, the King hath delight in thee, and his Servants love thee; now therefore be the King's Son-in-law.] The Affection of the King and of the whole Court, was a mighty Argument to induce him to it.

Ver. 23. And Saul's Servants spake these words in the Ears of David; and David said, Seemeth it a light thing unto you, to be a King's Son-in-law: seeing I am a poor Man and little esteemed?] Having no Estate, and of small Credit: And therefore unable to endow her according to her Quality.

Ver. 24. And the Servants of Saul told him, saying, in this manner spake David.] In the Hebrew, according unto these words; that is, they reported his words faithfully; that he was as sensible of his own Meanness, as of the Honour that was offered him.

Ver. 25. And Saul said, Thus shall ye say to David, the King desireth not any Dowry; but an hundred Foreskins of the Philistines, to be avenged of his Enemies.] This Custom hath prevailed in latter times in some Countries, to give their Daughters in Marriage to the most valiant Men; or those who should bring them so many Heads of their Enemies. Alex. ab Alexandro reports of a People in Carmania, that if any were desirous to marry, it was necessary he should first bring the King the Head of an Enemy, Lib. 1. Cap. 24. Vincent le Blanc reports the like of others, P. 1. Chap. 30. But why did Saul desire the Foreskins of the Philistines, and not their Heads? To this Procopius Gazæus answers, that Saul did not know but David might cut off the Heads of his own Subjects, and bring them instead of the Philistines, and therefore he ask'd so many Foreskins, which the Israelites had not, that he might be sure he had killed so many Enemies. As for Portions, the Hebrew Custom was not like that of the Romans, who required the Wife to bring a Portion to her Husband, ut onera matrimonii tanto æquius sustineat, that he might be able to bear the Charges of Matrimony more equally. But among the Hebrews the Husband endowed the Wife, and received nothing at all with her. And so the Custom was among the People of that Land before they came into Canaan. For Sichem bad Dinah's Relations require what Dowry they pleaſed, and it ſhould be ſettled upon her, he deſiring nothing of them but her, Gen. xxxix. 17. And ſo it was in the caſe of David. See Wagenſeil upon Sota, cap. iv.

But Saul thought to make David fall by the hand of the Philiſtines.] Who he knew would be extreamly enraged againſt David, by putting this great Indignity upon them, as they all counted it, of cutting off their Foreſkins.

Ver. 26. And when his Servants told David theſe words, it pleaſed David well to be the King's Son-in-Law.] In the Hebrew the words are, the thing was right in David's eyes ; that is, he thought fit to accept the Offer upon theſe Conditions.

And the days were not expired.] Which were appointed to be fulfilled (as it is in the Hebrew) before the Marriage took effect: ſo that he had time to perform what was agreed, inſtead of a Dowry.

Ver. 27. Wherefore David aroſe, and went, and his Men, and ſlew of the Philiſtines two hundred Men, and brought their Foreſkins, and they gave them in full tale to the King, that he might be the King's Son-in-Law.] He gave Saul double of what he demanded: partly to ſhow his ſenſe of the Honour he had done him, and partly to expreſs his Love to his Daughter, and to declare his Intention to venture his Life freely to do him ſervice.

And Saul gave him Michal his Daughter to Wife.] There being no way to avoid it, after the Marriage had been ſo ſolemnly treated and ratified.

Ver. 28. And Saul ſaw and knew that the LORD was with David.] He was convinced of it, by the ſucceſs which he conſtantly gave him.

And that Michal Saul's Daughter loved him.] Which was a great Diſappointment to him.

Ver. 29. And Saul was yet the more afraid of David.] Having thus advanced him ; and ſeeing no hope of bringing his Deſigns to paſs againſt him.

And Saul became David's Enemy continually.] He was every day more reſolved to deſtroy him. Such ſtrange Blindneſs, did his Anger and Hatred, and ſuch like Paſſions, bring upon him ; that he ſet himſelf againſt him, who he ſaw and knew had God for his Friend.

Ver. 30. And the Princes of the Philiſtines went forth.] To fight with the Iſraelites: Who had highly incenſed them by David's late Action, as well as by former Loſſes. And they thought perhaps, that David would make uſe of the Benefit the Law allowed, Deut. xxiv. 25. of not going to War in a Year after he was married.

And it came to paſs after they went forth, that David behaved himſelf more wiſely than all the Servants of Saul.] By diſcovering, I ſuppoſe, the Deſigns of the Philiſtines, and preventing them: For we do not read, that they came to a Battel.

So that his Name was much ſet by.] He was very highly eſteemed.

CHAP. XIX.

Ver. 1. AND Saul ſpake to Jonathan his Son, and to all his Servants, that they ſhould kill David.] When he could not deſtroy him by Craft, he declares open Enmity to him ; and commands his Son and his whole Court to make him away : ſome of which he thought would obey him. It is ſtrange that he ſhould ſpeak to Jonathan to murder David, if he knew the Friendſhip he had for him ; and he could not well be ignorant of it, ſince he had ſo publickly declared it, as we read, xviii. 3, 4. But he imagined his Love to a Father, would overcome his Love to a Friend. And there was a great Providence of God in his diſcloſing his Mind ſo freely to Jonathan, whereby David came to be certainly informed of his danger.

Ver. 2. And Jonathan Saul's Son delighted much in David.] He continued to take much delight in his Company : And therefore would not loſe the pleaſure of his Friendſhip, by ſuffering him to be killed.

And Jonathan told David, ſaying, My Father ſeeketh to kill thee, now therefore I pray thee take heed to thy ſelf until the Morning ; and abide in a ſecret place, and hide thy ſelf.] He hoped, I ſuppoſe, to find his Father better diſpoſed in the Morning: And in the mean time would have David ſecure himſelf in ſome cloſe place, where no body could find him.

Ver. 3. And I will go out.] The next Morning.

And ſtand beſide my Father in the Field.] In which, it is likely, Saul uſed to walk in the Morning, and take the freſh Air. Thereabouts he adviſed David to lurk, in ſome ſecret place ; that he might ſpeedily acquaint him with the Iſſue of his Diſcourſe with his Father.

And I will commune with my Father concerning thee, and what I ſee, that I will tell thee.] Let him know how he left his Father inclined.

Ver. 4. And Jonathan ſpake good of David unto Saul his Father.] A noble Act of Friendſhip to adventure to commend him to one, who was his declared Enemy.

And ſaid unto him, Let not the King ſin againſt his Servant, againſt David : becauſe he hath not ſinned againſt thee, and becauſe his Work hath been to thee ward very good.] He repreſented to him, what a Sin and Diſhonour it would be to kill ſuch a faithful Servant as David had been : who never offended him ; but ſtudied by all good Offices to pleaſe him.

Ver. 5. And he did put his Life in his hand, and ſlew the Philiſtine.] Eſpecially he puts him in mind of that hazardous Enterprize, wherein he ſlew Goliath.

And the LORD wrought a great Salvation for all Iſrael.] By which means the whole Realm was delivered out of their Enemies hand.

Thou ſaweſt it, and didſt rejoice.] He deſires him to remember that he himſelf was a Witneſs of it ; and could not then but applaud David, and rejoice in what God had done by him.

Wherefore then wilt thou ſin againſt innocent Blood, and ſlay David without a Cauſe?] Having mollified Saul by ſo many Arguments, he beſeeches him to revoke the Order he had given (ver. 1.) and in downright Terms tells him, if he did not, he would bring innocent Blood upon his own head.

Ver.

Ver. 6. And Saul hearkened to the Voice of Jonathan, and Saul ſware, As the LORD liveth, he ſhall not be ſlain.] Some think he ſware deceitfully; that Jonathan believing he had no ill Intentions towards David, might not perſwade him to fly, but bring him to Court again, where he might have an Opportunity to kill him. But I rather think he ſpake what he really meant at this preſent: Tho' this Alteration proceeding not from any Affection he bare to David, but from a Senſe (which Jonathan's Diſcourſe had wrought in him) how baſe a thing it would be, to ſlay a Man of ſuch Worth, and who had done him ſuch Service, he ſoon forgot it, and returned to his old bent.

Ver. 7. And Jonathan called David, and Jonathan ſhewed him all theſe things: and Jonathan brought David unto Saul; and he was in his preſence as in times paſt.] When he was in his Favour.

Ver. 8. And there was War again, and David went out and fought with the Philiſtines, and ſlew them with a great Slaughter, and they fled from him.] All theſe Battels were only between Parties, for David commanded no more than a thouſand Men, xviii. 13. And if the whole Army of the Philiſtines had been gathered together, Abner would have commanded the Army of Iſrael againſt them; for he was Captain of the Hoſt.

Ver. 9. And the evil Spirit from the LORD was upon Saul, and he ſat in his Houſe with his Javelin in his hand.] The more Services David did his Country, the more did Saul's Hatred and Malice increaſe againſt him. For this new Victory, in all likelihood, made him melancholy and mad to ſee him ſo proſperous.

And David played with his hand.] He did not omit his Duty to Saul, tho' he knew his Danger.

Ver. 10. And Saul ſought to ſmite David to the Wall with his Javelin, but he ſlipt away out of Saul's preſence, and he ſmote the Javelin into the Wall.] His Wrath and Fury made him forget his Oath: So dangerous it is to be poſſeſſed with ſuch Paſſions.

And David fled, and eſcaped that Night.] He got out of the Palace, before Saul's Order (which it is likely he gave) could be executed, to apprehend him.

Ver. 11. Saul alſo ſent Meſſengers unto David's Houſe to watch him, and to ſlay him in the Morning.] As he went out of the Door of his Houſe. By this it is apparent when Saul miſſed his Blow, he was the more enraged, and implacably purſued his Deſtruction.

And Michal David's Wife told him, ſaying, If thou ſave not thy Life to-night, to-morrow thou ſhalt be ſlain.] She had Intelligence either from her Brother Jonathan, or ſome other Friend at Court: Or perhaps ſhe ſaw ſuſpicious Perſons hovering about the Houſe.

Ver. 12. So Michal let down David thro' a Window.] Which did not look towards any of the Doors which were narrowly watched.

And he went, and fled, and eſcaped.] Having moſt of the Night, it is likely, to travel in.

Ver. 13. And Michal took an Image.] In the Hebrew, a Teraphim. But it doth not ſignify ſuch as were made for a ſuperſtitious uſe (which David would not have ſuffered in his Houſe) but a ſimple Image of a Man's Head; ſuch as we now uſe for Blocks, whereon to comb our Perukes. Abarbinel thinks (whom Abendana follows) that Women were wont, in thoſe days, to make ſuch Figures in the likeneſs of their Huſbands; that when they were abſent from them, they might have them in their Image, to look upon them, as ſtill preſent with them. Of which ſort of Teraphim (which were Images in the likeneſs of Men) was this of Michal's; who dearly loving her Huſband, had got one made in his likeneſs. But whatſoever becomes of this, the Conceit that Teraphim were little Puppets (as I may call them) which the High-Prieſt had in his Breaſt-plate (called Urim and Thummim) is plainly deſtroyed. For this Place ſhows that Teraphim were a large Image repreſenting a Man: And therefore fitter for a Bed, than for a Breaſt-plate.

And laid it in the Bed.] Where David was wont to lie.

And put a Pillow of Goats-hair for his Bolſter.] It is hard to determine what the word Cebir ſignifies, which we tranſlate Pillow. For there is great Variety of Opinions among Interpreters about it. But Bochartus hath with much Probability reſolved that it ſignifies great: And the meaning is, ſhe put a great deal of Goats-hair upon his Bolſter. For tho' the word Goats is only mentioned in the Hebrew, yet the word Hair muſt be ſupplied, as a great many other places of Scripture teſtify. See his Hierozoicon, P. 1. Lib. 2. Cap. 51. pag. 623. For in thoſe Countries Goats had long Hair, which was ſhorn as the Wool of Sheep is, and ſerved for many uſes: And it is not unlike Man's Hair, as he there obſerves. It was alſo of divers Colours, ſo that ſhe might chuſe ſome fine Goats-hair (which was ready at hand, being uſed to be ſpun) of the ſame Colour with David's.

And covered it with a Cloth.] As if David had been ſick.

Ver. 14. And when Saul ſent Meſſengers to take David.] He not coming out of doors, where they watched for him, Saul ſent other Meſſengers to take him in his Houſe.

She ſaid he was ſick.] Her Affection to David made her tell an Untruth; whereby he gained more time to get to a place of Safety.

Ver. 15. And Saul ſent Meſſengers again, to ſee David.] As if they came to viſit him, and ſee how he did.

Saying, Bring him to me in the Bed that I may ſlay him.] Such was his inſatiable Rage, that he could not ſtay to ſee whether he would die of his Sickneſs; but when he was able to make no Reſiſtance, reſolved to diſpatch him.

Ver. 16. And when the Meſſengers were come in, behold, there was an Image in the Bed, with a Pillow of Goats-hair for his Bolſter.] An Image dreſſed up with Goats-hair, reſembling a Man.

Ver. 17. And Saul ſaid unto Michal, Wherefore haſt thou deceived me ſo, and ſent away mine Enemy, and he is eſcaped?] He did not expect to be ſerved ſo by a Daughter, whom he had married to David, that ſhe might betray him.

And

And Michal answered Saul, He said unto me, Let me go: why should I kill thee?] This was another Fiction of her own: For it is not likely that she endeavoured to detain him, or that he threatned to kill her if she did.

Ver. 18. So David fled, and came to Samuel to Ramah, and told him of all that Saul had done unto him. And he and Samuel went and dwelt in Naioth] A Place near to Ramah, as the next Verse shows.

Ver. 19. And it was told Saul, Behold David is at Naioth in Ramah.] Ramah seems to have been the Place from whence Samuel was descended, called (in the first Chapter, ver. 1.) Ramathaim Zophim, for the reason I gave there. And Naioth was a neighbouring Place belonging to it, and perhaps the Suburbs of it. Where the Sons of the Prophets either had their ordinary Residence, or were wont sometimes to retire thither for greater Privacy.

Ver. 20. And Saul sent Messengers to take David.] His implacable Hatred had abolished all Respect and Reverence to Samuel (under whose Protection David now was) and to the College of the Prophets, which was a kind of Sanctuary, unto those who fled to it.

And when they saw the Company of the Prophets prophesying, and Samuel standing as appointed over them.] To govern them.

The Spirit of the LORD came also upon the Messengers of Saul, and they also prophesied.] That is, praised God in Hymns; which the Prophets composed and sang to him, 1 Chron. xxv. 1, 2, 4.

Ver. 22. And when it was told Saul, he sent other Messengers, and they prophesied likewise; and Saul sent again the third time, and they prophesied also.] A strange Obstinacy, to contend so long with the Spirit of God: Who quite diverted the Minds of his Messengers from David, by inspiring them with Divine Thoughts.

Ver. 22. Then went he also unto Ramah.] Not out of Devotion, but to destroy David.

And came to a great Well that is in Sechu.] Where Company commonly was, to fetch Water.

And he asked and said, Where are Samuel and David? and they answered and said, Behold they be at Naioth in Ramah.] It is a probable Opinion of Corn. Pellicanus, that Naioth signifies the Habitation or College, where the Prophets dwelt in Ramah.

Ver. 23. And he went thither to Naioth in Ramah.] He directed his Way toward that Place.

And the Spirit of the LORD came upon him also, and he went on prophesying until he came to Naioth in Ramah.] His Messengers did not prophesy till they came thither; but God inspired Saul as he was on the way unto that Place: So that from Sechu, I suppose, till he came there, his evil Spirit was gone, and he praised God as the Prophets did. This was to convince him, that he laboured in a vain pursuit after David, whom the Spirit of God powerfully defended.

Ver. 24. And he stript off his Clothes also.] His Royal Robes (as R. Solomon and other Jewish Doctors expound it) appearing like an ordinary Man; or perhaps in the Prophetical Habit. Or it may be meant only of his upper Garment, whatsoever it was. For when the Germans are said by some to have appeared naked, Tacitus interprets it rejecta veste superiore, throwing off their upper Garment. But the first I take to be the truest Account; and as Procopius Gazæus here notes, Habitus ille regni ablationem significabat, that throwing off his Royal Habit signifies the taking away his Kingdom from him.

And prophesied before Samuel in like manner.] This seems to denote, that his Messengers had also stripp'd themselves when they prophesied. And Abarbinel will have it, that they all still foretold the Crown should be set upon the Head of David.

And lay down naked all that day, and all that night.] As a Man in an Ecstasy, that had not the use of his Senses. But by naked is meant only, as before, stripp'd of his Royal Robe.

Wherefore they say, Is Saul also among the Prophets?] This gave occasion to renew the Proverbial Saying, which had been in use long before. See x. 12.

CHAP. XX.

Ver. 1. AND David fled from Naioth in Ramah, and came and said before Jonathan.] By Saul's being thrown into a Trance (mentioned in the Verse beforegoing) God's Providence gave David time to escape; and he went from thence to Gibeah, where Jonathan was.

What have I done? And what is mine Iniquity? And what is my Sin before thy Father, that he seeketh my Life?] Such violent and unwearied Persecution must arise from some extraordinary Cause or other; which he desires to know: For he could not accuse himself of any kind of Fault, that should imbitter Saul against him.

Ver. 2. And he said, God forbid, thou shalt not die.] He would have him think there was no such danger as he suspected.

Behold, my Father will do nothing, either great or small, but he will show it me; and why should my Father hide this from me? it is not so.] These Words signify that Jonathan knew nothing of his Father's Design; and that he had sent the Messengers fore-named, without his privity, to seize David. Yet it is strange he should not know of his sending to his House to apprehend him. Therefore some think Jonathan, out of dutiful Affection to his Father, dissembled the matter: and would not have David think him so very wicked as he was.

Ver. 3. And David sware moreover and said.] That it was certainly so.

Thy Father certainly knoweth that I have found grace in thine eyes, and he saith, let not Jonathan know this, lest he be grieved.] He was willing to believe that Saul might conceal his Intentions from Jonathan; for the Reason here mentioned.

But truly, as the LORD liveth, and as thy Soul liveth, there is but a Step between me and Death.] But by a most solemn Oath, he endeavours to persuade him, that he was in extream danger of losing his Life.

Ver.

Ver. 4. Then said Jonathan to David, Whatsoever thy Soul desireth, I will even do it for thee.] Both to find out Saul's Intentions, and to save David's Life.

Ver. 5. And David said unto Jonathan, To-morrow is the new Moon, and I should not fail to sit with the King at Meat.] There were solemn Sacrifices every new Moon, and then a Feast upon them. And David being one of the King's Family, by marrying his Daughter, used to eat with him at these Festival Times: And he thought it possible, that Saul, who lately pursued him in a fit of Rage, when the evil Spirit was upon him, might now be mitigated by the Spirit of God coming upon him at Naioth: And so might enquire after him, and receive him into Favour again, as he had formerly done. But he durst not trust to this Opinion, till he had tried his Mind and Affection to him, after the manner here propounded.

But let me go, that I may hide my self in the Field.] He desires, with his Approbation, to retire to his Father's House, and the Field thereabouts, with which he was well acquainted.

'Till the third day at even.] That is, till the next Day but one, after the New Moon, as appears from ver. 27, 35.

Ver. 6. If thy Father at all miss me, then say, David earnestly asked leave of me that he might run to Bethlehem, his City; for there is a yearly Sacrifice there for all the Family.] It is likely this was the custom among pious Families to meet together once a Year, and praise God for his Mercies towards them all.

Ver. 7. If he say thus, It is well, thy Servant shall have peace: but if he be very wroth, then be sure that Evil is determined by him.] If he approved of Jonathan's Licence, he might hope he was pacified: But if he still stormed and raged, he might probably conclude his Destruction was decreed, and that his Hatred continued so implacably, that he must be forced to leave his Country.

Ver. 8. Therefore thou shalt deal kindly with thy Servant.] In giving him a faithful Account how he found his Father disposed towards him.

For thou hast brought thy Servant into a Covenant of the LORD with thee.] It was Jonathan's motion, that they should make a solemn Covenant before God (who is the Avenger of all Falseness) of mutual Friendship, xviii. 3.

Notwithstanding, if there be in me Iniquity, slay me thy self: for why shouldst thou bring me to thy Father?] A marvellous Assurance of his Integrity, which made him freely offer himself to die, without troubling his Father any further, if he knew any Guilt in him.

Ver. 9. And Jonathan said, Far be it from thee.] Do not speak after this manner.

For if I knew certainly that evil was determined by my Father, to come upon thee, then would not I tell it thee?] He disclaims all Thoughts either of killing him himself, or letting him fall into the hands of his Father, if he could prevent it. For who could imagine a Man so solemnly engaged, and who had already shown himself such a faithful Friend, would not discover any Design he knew against him?

Ver. 10. And David said, Who shall tell me?] He desired to know who should bring him Advice how matters stood.

And what if thy Father answer thee roughly?] And not suffer thee to come to me thy self.

Ver. 11. And Jonathan said unto David, Come, let us go into the Field; and they went both of them into the Field.] To take their measures about this matter.

Ver. 12. And Jonathan said unto David, O LORD God of Israel, when I have sounded my Father any time to-morrow, or the third day, and behold, if there be Good towards David, and I then send not unto thee, and shew it thee.] The first Words seem to be an Exclamation: And the rest, as if he had said, Shall I who love thee so much, be thought capable of breaking my word with thee? All these Verses are full of Passion; and the Words are broken, concise, and interrupt: As the Words of Lovers are wont to be, especially when they are disturbed.

Ver. 13. And the LORD do so, and much more to Jonathan: but if it please my Father to do thee evil, then I will shew it thee, and send thee away, that thou mayest go in peace: and the LORD be with thee, as he hath been with my Father.] In this case he advises him to get away, and preserve himself as well as he could: Praying God to make him as successful as his Father had been; and bring him to the Kingdom.

Ver. 14. And thou shalt not only while I yet live, shew me the Kindness of the LORD.] The Kindness promised him before the LORD, or the greatest Kindness. The Words in the Hebrew run plainly thus, and wilt thou not if I be then alive, (viz. when God had advanced him to the Throne, as he did his Father) wilt thou not shew me the Loving-kindness of the LORD? He made no doubt, but rather strongly affirmed his Belief of it.

That I die not.] After the manner of those Kings, who were wont to cut off the Children of their Predecessors: Unto whose Throne they were advanced.

Ver. 15. But also thou shalt not cut off thy Kindness from my House for ever.] The Covenant they had made was not merely personal, but reached to their Posterity.

No not when the LORD hath cut off the Enemies of David, every one from the Face of the Earth.] When he had the greatest Power, and none to oppose his Will.

Ver. 16. So Jonathan made a Covenant with the House of David, saying, Let the LORD even require it at the hand of David's Enemies.] They had made a League of personal Friendship, a little after the Slaughter of Goliath: And now they make a Friendship between their Families; and Jonathan wished that God would requite it, if any of his Family proved David's Enemies. This he renewed afterwards, and added farther Articles to the League, that Jonathan should be next to himself, xxiii. 18.

Ver. 17. And Jonathan caused David to swear again, because he loved him.] Or he made him swear again by the Love he bare to him.

For he loved him as he loved his own Soul.] The greatness of his Love to him, made him think think, he could never do enough to ſecure his Friendſhip to all Generations.

Ver. 18. Then Jonathan ſaid unto David, to-morrow is the new Moon, and thou ſhalt be miſſed, becauſe thy Seat will be empty.] The place where he uſed to ſit with Saul at Table.

Ver. 19. And when thou haſt ſtayed three days, then thou ſhalt go down quickly.] It is commonly interpreted, of ſtaying ſo long with his Kindred at Bethlehem, or ſome other place of Retirement. But in the Hebrew the Words are, thou ſhalt three times (or three days) go down to a very low place: And the meaning ſeems to be, that if Jonathan did not come the firſt day, he ſhould take it for granted he knew nothing; and come again the ſecond; and if he brought him no News then, come the third.

And come to the place where thou didſt hide thyſelf, when the Buſineſs was in hand.] When they were diſcourſing of this very matter; how to diſcover Saul's Affection toward David. Or, when he did David's Buſineſs with his Father, and interceded ſo effectually for him, that Saul promiſed not to kill him.

And thou ſhalt remain by the Stone Ezel.] It is thought to be a Stone that ſhowed Men their way, where ſeveral Roads met: Becauſe the word imports going or travelling.

Ver. 20. And I will ſhoot three Arrows, as tho' I ſhot at a mark.] For when he came, there might be Paſſengers going to and fro': which would deprive them of the Privacy they deſired. Therefore this ſeems to have been given as a ſign that the Coaſt was clear.

Ver. 21. And behold, I will ſend a Lad, ſaying, Go find out the Arrows; if I expreſly ſay to the Lad, behold the Arrows are on this ſide of thee, take them, and come thou; for there is peace to thee and no hurt, as the LORD liveth.] So that he might ſurely appear, and ſhow himſelf.

Ver. 22. But if I ſay thus unto the young Man, behold, the Arrows are beyond thee; go thy way: for the LORD hath ſent thee away.] He would not have him venture to diſcover himſelf; but look upon this as a ſign that God would not have him appear at Court.

Ver. 23. And as touching the matter, that thou and I have ſpoken of; behold, the LORD is between me and thee for ever.] As a Witneſs, and an Avenger, if we keep not the Covenant we have made of perpetual Friendſhip.

Ver. 24. So David hid himſelf in the Field: and when the new Moon was come, the King ſat him down to eat Meat.] He did not immediately hide himſelf in the Field, but when the time came that he had appointed: For he firſt went to Bethlehem, ver. 6, 28.

Ver. 25. And the King ſat upon his Seat, as at other times, even upon a Seat by the Wall.] The Iſraelites ſat at Meat (as did the Greeks and Romans in after-times) in a Half-Round, or Circle: Which they called Sigma, from the antient Figure of that Letter, which was thus, C. Now the middle place, in this faſhion of ſitting, was moſt honourable among this People, as our Mr. Thorndike gathers from this very place. Upon which R. Solomon ſaith, Saul ſat in the head of the Couch next the Wall. For ſuppoſing them to ſit in a Round, or Half-Circle, as the manner always was, we muſt needs conceive that the back or middle of this Half-Circle muſt be towards the Wall, for all Conveniencies. See his Religious Aſſemblies, p. 62. It may be alſo here obſerved, that the cuſtom of lying along, leaning on their Elbows, was not yet introduced, in theſe ancient times; but they ſat at Meat as we do. See Bochartus, Hierozoicon, P. 1. Lib. 2. cap. 5. p. 598.

And Jonathan aroſe.] When his Father came into the Room: And after Saul had taken his place, it is likely, ſat on his right hand.

And Abner ſat by Saul's ſide.] On his left hand, I ſuppoſe, being his Couſin, and the General of his Army.

And David's place was empty.] Which, it is probable, was next to Abner's.

Ver. 26. Nevertheleſs Saul ſpake not any thing that day.] Made no enquiry after David.

For he thought ſomething is befallen him; he is not clean, ſurely he is not clean.] What this Mikrah, or Accident ſignifies, which we tranſlate ſomething hath befallen him, ſee upon Levit. xv. 16.

Ver. 27. And it came paſs that on the morrow, which was the ſecond day of the Month, that David's place was empty; and Saul ſaid unto Jonathan his Son, wherefore cometh not the Son of Jeſſe.] His calling him the Son of Jeſſe argued both Scorn and Diſpleaſure againſt him.

To meat, neither yeſterday, nor to-day?] By this it appears, the Jews anciently obſerved two days, in the beginning of every Month, with Feſtival Joy. The Reaſon was, becauſe the New Moon being proclaimed according to its Appearance, and it appearing unequally, ſometimes in the Afternoon, ſometimes in the Evening, ſometimes at Midnight, therefore they obſerved two days, as Scaliger and others have obſerved. And they who were not clean the firſt day, might obſerve the ſecond: For that ſort of Uncleanneſs here ſpoken of, laſted but one day.

Ver. 28. And Jonathan anſwered Saul, David earneſtly aſked leave of me to go to Bethlehem.] Which he, being next to the King, had power, I ſuppoſe, to grant: As appears from his demanding of Jonathan an Account what was become of him.

Ver. 29. And he ſaid, let me go, I pray thee, for my Family hath a Sacrifice in the City, and my Brother he hath commanded me to be there.] The eldeſt Brother let all the reſt know that their Company was expected.

Now, if I have found grace in thine Eyes, let me go away, I pray thee, and ſee my Brethren: therefore he cometh not to the King's Table.] He expreſſes in many words, the great Importunity of David, for leave to go and viſit his Relations: which he thought might make the King not take it ill, that he had granted it.

Ver. 30. And Saul's Anger was kindled againſt Jonathan; and he ſaid unto him, Thou Son of a perverſe rebellious Woman.] Or, as it is in the Hebrew, thou Son of perverſe Rebellion. That is, a very perverſe Rebel.

Do not I know that thou haſt choſen the Son of Jeſſe, to thy own confuſion?] Made him his Friend, to his utter undoing.

And unto the confuſion of thy Mother's Nakedneſs.] For the World would think that he was none none of his Son: becauſe he loved him entirely, whom Saul hated extremely.

Ver. 31. For as long as the Son of Jeſſe liveth upon the ground, thou ſhalt not be eſtabliſhed, nor thy Kingdom.] He was fully ſatisfied that David, if he lived, would be King of Iſrael. Which if he knew by Samuel's anointing him, it was Madneſs to imagine that he ſhould be able to overthrow the Counſel of God.

Wherefore now fetch him to me, for he ſhall ſurely die.] He could not expect to be obeyed, ſince his Son loved him ſo much: But his Fury made him lay this Command upon him.

Ver. 32. And Jonathan anſwered Saul his Father, Wherefore ſhould he be ſlain? what hath he done?] He declines his Command, by deſiring to know what his Guilt was.

Ver. 33. And Saul caſt a Javelin at him to ſmite him.] It is not ſaid, as it is of David (xix. 10.) to ſmite him to the Wall: And therefore ſome think he intended only to wound him, not to kill him: But the word ſmite, in Scripture, commonly ſignifies to kill, and there is no reaſon to take it otherwiſe here: Saul's Fury being ſo great, that he minded not what he did. One would think that he uſed a Javelin or Lance, as a Scepter: For it was always ready at hand.

Wherefore Jonathan knew that it was determined of his Father to ſlay David.] That it was his unalterable Reſolution. Which is implied in that Phraſe, ver. 31. he is the Son of Death, as Conſtantius L'Empereur obſerves upon Bava Kama, p. 90.

Ver. 34. So Jonathan roſe from the Table in fierce Anger, and did eat no Meat the ſecond day of the Month, for he was grieved for David, becauſe his Father had done him ſhame.] Here are two Reaſons why he faſted: firſt, becauſe he was extremely afflicted for David; and ſecondly, his Father had put Jonathan to ſhame, by his foul Language, and by throwing a Javelin at him: For ſo the Words run clearly in the Hebrew; for he was grieved for David, and becauſe, &c. the copulative and being wanting, as in many other places.

Ver. 35. And it came to paſs in the morning.] Of the third day.

That Jonathan went out into the Field, at the time appointed with David, and a little Lad with him.] According to their Agreement, ver. 20, 21.

Ver. 36. And he ſaid to the Lad, Run, find out the Arrow which I ſhoot; and as the Lad ran, he ſhot the Arrow beyond him.] Which was the Sign given to David of Saul's ill Intentions, ver. 22.

Ver. 37. And when the Lad was come to the place of the Arrow, which Jonathan had ſhot, Jonathan cried after the Lad, Is not the Arrow beyond thee?] He cried ſo loud, I ſuppoſe, that David might hear him what he ſaid.

Ver. 38. And Jonathan cried after the Lad, make ſpeed, ſtay not.] So deſirous he was to be alone with David.

And Jonathan's Lad gathered up the Arrows and came to his Maſter.

Ver. 39. And the Lad knew not any thing, only Jonathan and David knew the Matter.] The meaning of all this.

Ver. 40. And Jonathan gave his Artillery to the Lad, and ſaid unto him, Go carry them into the City.] That he might be left alone with David.

Ver. 41. And as ſoon as the Lad was gone, David aroſe out of his place towards the South.] On the South of the Stone Ezel: On the North ſide of which Jonathan ſhot his Arrows, that the Lad might not chance to ſtumble upon David.

And fell on his face to the ground, and bowed himſelf three times.] After three Bows, he fell on his face; out of Reverence to him, as the King's Son, and his excellent Friend. Arrianus ſaith, lib. 4. that this Proſtration was introduced by Cyrus: But he is confuted by this Action of David; which ſhows it to have been a far more ancient Poſture.

And they kiſſed one another, and wept one with another: until David exceeded.] Being to become an Exile from his Friend, from his Wife, from his Kindred, and the People of God; and from all ſacred Solemnities.

Ver. 42. And Jonathan ſaid to David, Go in peace, foraſmuch as we have ſworn both of us, in the Name of the LORD, ſaying the LORD be between me and thee, and between my Seed and thy Seed for ever.] As much as to ſay, doubt not that I will faithfully keep my Covenant with thee; as I doubt not of thy perpetual Stedfaſtneſs in it, when I am dead. And this muſt be our Satisfaction, in this ſad Separation.

And he aroſe and departed.] That is, David left Jonathan.

And Jonathan went into the City.] I ſuppoſe their Diſcourſe continued but a ſhort time; for fear of being diſcovered.

CHAP. XXI.

Ver. 1. Then David came to Nob.] It is hard to tell where this City was; for it is not reckoned among the Cities of the Prieſts, either in the Tribe of Judah, or of Benjamin, or of any other. But D. Kimchi ſaith, his Father took it for Jeruſalem; and perhaps it was near to it: Where the Tabernacle being fixed, the Prieſts reſorted thither in great Numbers, and ſettled there. In Neh. xi. 32. we find mention of a City of this Name, in the Tribe of Benjamin: Whither Saul perhaps brought the Tabernacle, being his own Tribe.

Unto Ahimelech the Prieſt.] Intending here to commend himſelf and his Cauſe to God; and to beg his Direction and Protection. Ahimelech is no where called the High-Prieſt, but always Ahimelech the Prieſt, or ſimply the Prieſt, ver. 4, 5, 6, 9. yet being the Son of Ahitub (xxii. 9, 11.) who was the Son of Phineas, the Son of Eli, he is generally ſuppoſed to have been the Brother of Abijah (mentioned xiv. 3.) and he being dead, to have ſucceeded him in the High-Prieſthood.

And Ahimelech was afraid at the meeting of David.] Seeing him alone; and having heard, perhaps, ſomething of the King's Diſpleaſure againſt him.

And ſaid unto him, Why art thou alone, and no Man with thee?] A Man of David's Quality, he knew, never went without Attendants.

And the truth is, David had ſome Perſons with him, as the 4th Verſe tells us, and appears from our Saviour's Words (in the ſecond of St. Mark) where he mentions David and thoſe that were with him. But he had no ſuch Perſons as uſed to be his Guard; and he left thoſe that were with him at ſome diſtance, that Abimilech might not ſee them.

Ver. 2. And David ſaid unto Ahimelech the Prieſt, The King hath commanded me a Buſineſs, and hath ſaid unto me, let no Man know any thing of the Buſineſs whereon I ſend thee, and what I have commanded thee.] We are not from hence to take an Example of ſpeaking Untruths (as Conradus Pellicanus here gloſſes) but the Wickedneſs of the World is the more to be deplored, which ſometimes puts a neceſſity upon excellent Men to lye, that they may preſerve their Lives, which cannot be ſafe without it.

And I have appointed my Servants to ſuch and ſuch a place.] Here he acknowledges he had Servants with him: But he had diſpoſed them into ſeveral Places, that the King's Buſineſs might be the better concealed.

Ver. 3. Now therefore what is under thy hand?] He deſires to know what he was able to do for him, to ſupply his Wants.

Give me five Loaves of Bread in my hand.] Particularly he deſires to ſatisfy his Hunger, and enough for his Servants.

Or, what is there preſent.] That is, any other Victuals.

Ver. 4. And the Prieſt anſwered, There is no common Bread under my hand, but there is hallowed Bread: if the young Men have kept themſelves at leaſt from Women.] It was the ancient Cuſtom among other Nations, for the Prieſts to keep themſelves even from the lawful uſe of Women, before they performed their Office: As Porphyry informs us, lib. 4. Περὶ Ἀποχῆς, ſect. 7. Therefore Ahimelech requires this of David's Soldiers, or Companions, that being to eat of the holy Bread, which none but Prieſts might eat, they ſhould eat it with the ſame Purity, which was required of the Prieſts.

Ver. 5. And David anſwered the Prieſt, and ſaid unto him, of a truth Women have been kept from us about theſe three days, ſince I came out.] As many Days as the LORD himſelf required for the ſanctifying of the People, when he appeared on Mount Sinai, at the giving of the Law, Exod. xix. 15.

And the Veſſels of the young Men.] That is, their Bodies: So the Word Keli here ſignifies, as σκεῦος doth in 1 Tim. iv. 4.

Are holy.] That is, ſeparated from Women.

And the Bread is in a manner common.] He adds, that he need not ſcruple to give them the hallowed Bread; for it was not ſo holy as when it was upon the Table of the LORD: But became, in a manner, or in ſome part, common Bread; being now the Food not only of the Prieſt, but of his whole Family.

Yea, tho' it were ſanctified this day in the Veſſel.] The marginal Tranſlation is more plain, eſpecially when there was other that day ſanctified in the Veſſel. He means new Bread was ſet upon the Table of the LORD: So that no wrong was done to him. By the Veſſel is meant, the Diſh on which the Bread was placed, mentioned Exod. xxv. 29.

Ver. 6. So the Prieſt gave him hallowed Bread; for there was no Bread there but the Shew-bread, that was taken from before the LORD, to put hot Bread in the day that it was taken away.] In this neither Abimelech nor David committed any Sin: For invincible Neceſſity diſpenſed with all theſe ritual Laws; as the Jews themſelves confeſs. Particularly R. Levi, who ſaith in a great Famine, they might eat an Aſs's Head, which was an unclean Creature. And they juſtify this by the Words of the Law, Levit. xviii. 5. he ſhall live in them; not, He ſhall die in them. From whence they gather, that in danger of Life ſuch Laws were not to be obſerved. And ſo Procopius Gazæus obſerves, that wiſe Men among the ancient People of God, had leſs regard to theſe bodily Precepts of the Law: And that Abiathar in granting leave to David and his Men to eat of the Pontifical Bread, pluſquam vulgus ſapiebat, was much wiſer than the vulgar People. He calls him Abiathar, not Ahimelech, who granted this Indulgence; for ſo doth our bleſſed Saviour, Mark ii. 26. and there is a learned Friend of mine, who hath a Diſſertation ready for the Preſs, to prove that Abiathar was at this time High-Prieſt. Tho' it is commonly thought he was only the Sagan, as the Jews in later times call him who was the High-Prieſt's Vicar: And upon that account was a ſecondary High-Prieſt; tho' that Name of High-Prieſt did not belong to Abiathar in the higheſt Senſe. And beſides this, there is no Incongruity in ſaying, That was done in the days of Abiathar the High-Prieſt (as our Saviour ſpeaks) which was done in Abiathar's days, tho' done ſomewhat before he came to the High-Prieſthood. As things may be ſaid to have been done in the days of Henry VIII. or any other King of England, which came to paſs before he began to reign.

Ver. 7. Now a certain Man of the Servants of Saul was there that day, detained before the LORD.] It is not to be imagined, that he was detained here by Force and Conſtraint: But by ſome Vow he had upon him; or other Religious Performance, to which he had obliged himſelf.

And his Name was Doeg, an Edomite.] His native Country was Edom: But he was proſelyted to the Jewiſh Religion.

The chiefeſt of the Herdſmen that belonged unto Saul.] The Hebrew Word Abir ſignifies a potent Man or Prince, and is ſometimes attributed to God. And therefore here ſignifies, That he was ſet over all the Herdſmen, as their Inſpector and Governor. Such there were in Syria, as Bochartus obſerves, out of Diodorus Siculus; who mentions one that was προεστὼς τῶν βασιλικῶν κτηνῶν, pecoris regii præfectus. And ſo the Targum and Kimchi, and others, here tranſlate it.

Ver. 8. And David ſaid unto Ahimelech, Is there not here under thy hand either Spear or Sword? for I have not brought my Sword, nor any Weapon with me.] He left them all behind, that he might the better conceal himſelf, and paſs for a private Man.

Becauſe the King's Buſineſs required haſte.] But he pretended to Ahimelech, it was becauſe he had had not time to go to his Houſe: The King preſſing him immediately to be gone about his Buſineſs.

Ver. 9. And the Prieſt ſaid, The Sword of Goliath the Philiſtine, whom thou ſleweſt in the Valley of Elah, behold it is here wrapt up in a Cloth behind the Ephod.] Behind the place where the Garments of the Prieſts were laid up: Of which the Ephod and its Appurtenances were the chief.

If thou wilt take that, take it; for there is no other ſave that here. And David ſaid, There is none like unto that, give it me.] Which he thought he might uſe, tho' it had been laid up in God's Treaſury, as a Monument of his wonderful Mercy: Becauſe he was in great Neceſſity to provide for his own Defence.

Ver. 10. And David aroſe and fled that day, for fear of Saul.] Out of the Country of Iſrael.

And went to Achiſh the King of Gath.] A miſerable Condition! to be forced to flee to thoſe for Protection, who, he had reaſon to think, were his bitter Enemies. For this was the City of Goliath whom he had ſlain; and whoſe Sword he had now about him. But perhaps he thought he ſhould not be known; or he knew Achiſh to be a very generous Perſon; or being now in Diſgrace with Saul, he thought the Philiſtines might take him for Saul's Enemy, and engage with them againſt him. Thus Themiſtocles being baniſhed his own Country, fled firſt to Admetus the King of the Moloſſians, with whom he had been at enmity, and then to the King of Perſia.

Ver. 11. And the Servants of Achiſh ſaid unto him, Is not this David the King of the Land?] Either they meant a chief Commander in Iſrael, who was reſpected as the King: Or they had heard of his being deſigned to be King inſtead of Saul, which made him perſecute him.

Did they not ſing of him one to another, in Dances, ſaying, Saul hath ſlain his thouſands, and David his ten thouſands?] By this it appears, they had good Information of what was done in the Land of Iſrael: And ſo might know what was reported, that Samuel had anointed him to be their King.

Ver. 12. And David laid up theſe Words in his Heart, and was ſore afraid of Achiſh King of Gath.] This diſcourſe deeply affected him; and made him think himſelf not ſafe there.

Ver. 13. And he changed his Behaviour before them, and feigned himſelf mad in their hands, and ſcrabbled on the Doors of the Gates, and let the Spittle fall down upon his Beard.] He counterfeited himſelf to be out of his Wits; or to be a Fool, who never had any. For he wrote upon the Gates, and ſlavered, as Fools are wont to do.

Ver. 14. And Achiſh ſaid unto his Servant, Lo, the Man is mad, wherefore have ye brought him unto me?] Some of the Courtiers had preſented him unto the King: Who ſeeing him a goodly Perſon, had liſted him, perhaps, as an Officer in his Service.

Ver. 15. Have I need of mad Men, that ye have brought this Fellow to play the Madman in my preſence? ſhall this Fellow come into my Houſe?] He would not have his Court troubled with Fools or Madmen. For it is likely he did not believe this to be David; or if he was, he was now become good for nothing: And come out of his own Country, becauſe he was beſide himſelf.

CHAP. XXII.

Ver. 1. DAVID therefore departed thence, and eſcaped to the Cave of Adullam.] Which was a Strong-hold (1 Chron. xi. 13.) in the Tribe of Judah (Joſh. xv. 35.) unto which Tribe he belonging, might hope to find ſome Friends there.

And when his Brethren and all his Father's Houſe heard it, they went down thither to him.] Either to comfort him; or to ſecure themſelves from the Fury of Saul: Who they thought might probably wreck his Hatred to David upon them.

Ver. 2. And every one that was in Diſtreſs.] All needy People, pinched with want, who heard that David was there.

And every one that was in debt.] Perhaps David might not know they were ſuch Perſons: Or if he did, intended not to protect them from their Creditors, if they had been able to pay them. It was the manner in ancient times, among the Gauls, for thoſe who were in Debt, or oppreſſed, to betake themſelves to the Service of ſome great Men: By whom, as they were maintained, ſo they devoted themſelves to live and die with them. Thus Cæſar tells us, Lib. 6. de Bello Gall. Cap. 13. Plerique cùm aut ære alieno aut magnitudine tributorum, aut injuria potentiorum premantur: ſeſe in ſervitutem dicant nobilibus, &c. And theſe they called Soldurii: And the Men that came to David ſeem to have been ſuch, as reſolved to live and die with him.

And every one that was diſcontented.] In the Hebrew, bitter of Soul; that is, lay under ſore Afflictions.

Gathered themſelves unto him, and he became a Captain over them.] They liſted themſelves under him, as their Commander: Who was forced to take this courſe in his own Defence, that he might not be ſuddenly ſurprized. But Grotius obſerves, Lib. 1. de Jure Belli & Pacis, Cap. 4. Sect. 6. that David did not entertain theſe Men into his Service, till in the Judgment of Jonathan, and by many other certain Arguments, his Life appeared to be in imminent danger. And then he neither aſſaulted any City, nor ſought for an occaſion to fight: but avoided it, by ſeeking for lurking Places, ſometimes in the Deſarts, ſometimes among ſtrange People; always taking care not to hurt his Countrymen.

And there were with him about four hundred Men.] Among whom, I ſuppoſe, his own Kindred were the chief.

Ver. 3. And David went thence to Mizpeh of Moab.] For the Moabites were at difference with Saul, xiv. 47.

And he ſaid unto the King of Moab, Let my Father and my Mother, I pray thee, come forth, and be with you.] He the rather hoped for this Kindneſs to be ſhown to his aged Parents

(who were not able to travel up and down, as he was likely to do) becauſe he was deſcended from a Moabite, by the Mother's ſide: Eſpecially if Ruth the Moabiteſs were of the Royal Family, as the Jews imagine.

Till I know what God will do with me.] Who, he doubted not, would make good his Word to him.

Ver. 4. And he brought them before the King of Moab, and they dwelt with him, all the time that David was in the Hold.] All the time of his Exile; when he wandered here and there, and had no certain place of Abode: Being haunted by Saul from place to place; ſeldom ſuffering him to reſt. So Pelicanus expounds the Hebrew word Metzudah: Which ſignifies alſo a Strong-hold.

Ver. 5. And the Prophet Gad.] Who being bred under Samuel, and knowing he had anointed David to be King, reſolved to accompany him in his Baniſhment: Which was a great comfort to him.

Said unto David, abide not in the Hold.] This doth not ſignify any particular ſtrong Place, where he now was: But in general, all thoſe places where he thought himſelf ſecure, in the neighbouring Countries.

Depart, and get thee into the Land of Judah.] Where he would have him publickly appear; as one that confided in God, and in his own Innocence.

Then David departed, and came into the Foreſt of Hereth.] Where there were many ſecret lurking places: Unto which he might upon occaſion reſort.

Ver. 6. And when Saul heard that David was diſcovered, and the Men that were with him.] He was not ſo well beloved, as to have early Intelligence of David's liſting Men: Which made him reproach thoſe that attended him in the following Verſe.

Now Saul abode in Gibeah, under a Tree in Ramah.] Or, in an high place, as Ramah ſignifies. Otherwiſe the firſt Words muſt be interpreted near Gibeah; or in the Territories of Gibeah.

Having his Spear in his hand.] By his Spear is to be underſtood his Scepter, according to the Phraſe of thoſe times. For ſo Juſtin (Lib. xliii. Cap. 3.) ſpeaking of the firſt times of the Romans (which was about the Reign of Saul) ſaith, Per ea adhuc tempora, Regis haſtas pro diademate habebant, quas Græci ſceptra dixere, &c. 'In thoſe days, Kings hitherto had Spears as 'Signs of Royal Authority: Which the Greeks 'call Scepters. For in the beginning of things, 'the Ancients worſhipped Spears for immortal 'Gods. In memory of which Religion, Spears 'are ſtill added to the Images of the Gods.' And thus the Kings of Argos (as Pauſanias tells us, in his Bœotica) called their Scepters, Spears.

And all his Servants were ſtanding about him.] His uſual Guards, and the principal Officers of his Court.

Ver. 7. Then Saul ſaid unto his Servants that ſtood about him, Hear now ye Benjamites.] Ye Men of my own Tribe: of whom he ſeems to ſpeak with diſdain.

Will the Son of Jeſſe give every one of you Fields and Vineyards, and make you all Captains of thouſands and Captains of hundreds?] Beſtow Preferment upon them all, more or leſs; if not Lands of Inheritance. For ſo the Words are to be tranſlated, give you Fields, &c. or make you Captains, &c.

Ver. 8. That all of you have conſpired againſt me.] To conceal David's Deſigns from him, if not to aſſiſt him in them. The Spirit of Jealouſy always poſſeſſes thoſe who are engaged in ſuch bloody Deſigns, as he had againſt David: Which all good Men abhorred.

And there is none of you that ſhows me, my Son hath made a League with the Son of Jeſſe; and there is none of you that is ſorry for me.] He ſuſpected Jonathan had made a League with David; but did not certainly know it, much leſs what it was: And was very much vexed, that none were ſollicitous enough for him (ſo the word ſignifies, as De Dieu obſerves, which we tranſlate ſorry for him) to make a Diſcovery of it to him.

Or ſhew me, that my Son hath ſtirred up my Servant againſt me, to lie in wait as at this day.] His Jealouſy carried him ſo far, as to make him ſuſpect, Jonathan not only ſided with David; but had encouraged him to take up Arms, and to appear openly, as having many Friends and Partakers: For ſince he threw the Javelin at Jonathan, it is likely he abſented himſelf from Court; or did not appear ſo frequently; or looked diſcontented, when he came into his Preſence.

Ver. 9. Then anſwered Doeg the Edomite, which was over the Servants of Saul.] The reſt being ſilent, he undertook to inform the King, who were falſe unto him: Or being a forward Man, and hated David, prevented all the reſt of his Fellow-Servants.

And ſaid, I ſaw the Son of Jeſſe.] He ſpeaks as contemptibly of him, as his Maſter had lately been wont to do; not vouchſafing to call him by his Name, xx. 27, 30.

Coming to Nob, to Ahimelech, the Son of Ahitub.] He repreſents him as if he came to take Advice of Ahimelech, and lay his Deſigns accordingly.

Ver. 10. And he enquired of the LORD for him.] Some think Doeg in this ſlandered Ahimelech, becauſe we read nothing of it; and David ſpeaks of his falſe Tongue: But this may as well be true, as that which follows it. And Doeg's Wickedneſs conſiſted in repreſenting things wrong: Concealing the Truth, and ſaying nothing of David's Pretences to Ahimelech; but inſinuating as if he were in a Plot with David againſt the King. Whereas, the good Man was made to believe, that David was going about the King's Buſineſs, and upon that account aſſiſted him.

And gave him Victuals, and gave him the Sword of Goliath the Philiſtine.] And very innocently, as he very well knew: But repreſented theſe as Acts, whereby he abetted David in his Conſpiracy: Which are the Lyes of which David accuſes him; nothing being farther from the Truth.

Ver. 11. And the King ſent to call Ahimelech the Son of Ahitub, and all his Father's Houſe, the Prieſts that were in Nob: and they came all of them to the King.] By his Father's Houſe is meant all the Houſe of Eli: Whom God had threatned to cut off.

Ver. 12. And Saul said, Hear now thou Son of Ahitub.] He shows not the least respect to him, but rather the utmost Contempt: Calling him in his Rage, the Son of Ahitub.

And he answered, Here am I, my Lord.] But he did not forget his respect unto the King.

Ver. 13. And Saul said unto him, Why have ye conspired against me, thou and the Son of Jesse? in that thou hast given him Bread, and a Sword, and hast enquired of God for him, that he should rise against me, to lie in wait, as at this day.] A very rash Charge, unless there had been Proof, that he did these things with an evil intent, which there was not.

Ver. 14. Then Ahimelech answered and said, And who is so faithful among all thy Servants as David, which is the King's Son-in-law, and goeth at thy bidding, and is honourable in thy House?] The Oracle was consulted only upon publick Occasions, not for any private Business. And therefore the Sense of Ahimelech's Apology for himself is this: Since David was held by all to be a most Loyal Subject, as well as a Person of great Honour, and in high Favour with the King, having married his Daughter; what could he think but that David was sent by the King (as he said he was) upon some Business of publick concern; to command his Forces, suppose (as he had often done) in some Expedition against his Enemies? And doubting what course to take, came to advise with God, as he had done heretofore. For this was not the first time (as he saith in the next Verse) that he had consulted the Divine Majesty for him, in difficult Cases, concerning the good of the Kingdom.

Ver. 15. Did I then begin to enquire of God for him?] He desired that might not be an Argument against him; for he had theretofore done the same thing without any imputation of Guilt.

Be it far from me.] That which he was charged withal; Conspiracy against the King, ver. 13.

Let not the King impute any thing to his Servant, or to his Father's House; for thy Servant knew nothing of all this, more or less.] If there was any bad design, he pleads perfect Ignorance of it.

Ver. 16. And the King said unto him, Thou shalt surely die, Ahimelech, thou and thy Father's House.] A mad Resolution! For what had the rest of the Priests done, to deserve such a bloody Execution?

Ver. 17. And the King said unto the Footmen that stood about him.] In the Hebrew it is, to the Runners: That is, to those who used to go before him, and to follow him when he went abroad.

Turn and slay the Priests of the LORD, because their hand is also with David; and because they knew when he fled, and did not shew it me.] Such was the Power their Kings exercised (as Samuel told them they would) that without a formal Process against a Man accused of a Crime, they commanded him to be cut off at their pleasure.

But the Servants of the King would not put forth their hand to fall upon the Priests of the LORD.] Such was their Reverence to God and Religion in ancient Times: Which kept them in their Wars from doing any hurt to the Priests of their Enemies, as Grotius observes, Lib. 3. de Jure Belli & Pacis, Cap. 11. Sect. 10. And therefore Theodoret here justly praises the Guards of Saul, that they chose rather to expose themselves to the inraged Fury of Saul, than execute it upon the Priests of God.

Ver. 18. And the King said to Doeg, Turn thou and fall upon the Priests.] He who was the Informer, he made also his Executioner.

And Doeg the Edomite turned and fell upon the Priests, and slew that day eighty five Persons.] Kings never want some to execute their Commands, tho' never so bloody. Saul was little better than a Mad-man; and yet had those at his beck who would do as he bid them, because he was their King. It was excellently therefore said by Justin Martyr, Εὐχόμεθα τῆς βασιλεῖς καὶ ἀρχοντας, μετὰ τῆς βασιλικῆς δυνάμεως, καὶ σώφρονα τὸν λογισμὸν ἔχοντας εὑρεθῆναι: Let us pray that Kings and Rulers, together with a Royal Power, may be found having a sober Mind.

That did wear a Linen Ephod.] i. e. ministred unto God: But we are not to understand by the Ephod such a Garment as the High-Priest wore, for this is distinguished from that by the matter of it, which was merely Linen: And nothing else but a Linen Robe, which was an honourable kind of Garment, which others who were not Priests were permitted to wear; as I observed before upon Chap. ii. ver. 18. and see Braunius, Lib. 2. de Vestitu Hebr. sacr. Cap. 6.

Ver. 19. And Nob, the City of the Priests, smote he with the edge of the Sword, both Man, and Woman, and Suckling, and Oxen, and Asses, and Sheep, with the edge of the Sword.] His Fury transported him to deal worse with them than he did with the Amalekites: Some of whom he spared, tho' God commanded him to destroy them all. But he did this to terrify all the Israelites from giving the least Assistance to David; and make them forward to come and tell him, if they knew where he was. In all this was fulfilled the Word of the LORD against the House of Eli by the Prophet, in the second Chapter of this Book: And by Samuel when he was a Child, in the third Chapter. Abarbinel thinks that at this time the Gibeonites were slain; upon which account there was a sore Famine in the Days of David. For Josephus saith, Lib. 6. Cap. 14. that Doeg slew in all three hundred and eighty five Persons: Taking some Men as wicked as himself unto his Assistance.

Ver. 20. And one of the Sons of Ahimelech, the Son of Ahitub, named Abiathar, escaped, and fled after David.] For he could be safe no where else.

Ver. 21. And Abiathar shewed David that Saul had slain the LORD's Priests.] Which confirmed David in his Belief, of the Hatred he bare him, and his Resolution to destroy him.

Ver. 22. And David said unto Abiathar, I knew it that day, when Doeg the Edomite was there, that he would surely tell Saul.] For he knew he was none of his Friend, and a Man that loved Mischief.

Ver. 23. Abide thou with me; fear not: for he that seeketh my Life, seeketh thy Life.] He comforts him with the Assurance, that he would take as much care of him, as of himself.

But

But with me thou ſhalt be in ſafeguard.] For he was ſure God would make good his Promiſe of protecting him, 'till he was made King of Iſrael.

CHAP. XXIII.

Ver. 1. THEN they told David, ſaying, The Philiſtines fight againſt Keilah.] Or, they had told David, &c. For this was done before Abiathar came to him to tell him of the Slaughter of the Prieſts, ver. 6. where it is ſaid he fled to David to Keilah. Which was a City in the Tribe of Judah, Joſh. xv. 44. Which the Philiſtines now beſieged: being encouraged thereunto, perhaps, by the News they heard that David was forced to flee his Country.

And they rob the threſhing Floor.] Which was commonly without their Cities; for the Convenience of Wind, to ſeparate the Chaff from the Corn. See Ruth iii. 2, 15.

Ver. 2. And David enquired of the LORD.] It is probable by the Prophet Gad, who we read before (xxii. 5.) was now with him. For there is no mention yet of Abiathar's having the Ephod: Tho' ſome think it is mentioned, ver. 6. to ſhow how David enquired of God.

Shall I go and ſmite theſe Philiſtines? and the LORD ſaid unto David, Go and ſmite the Philiſtines and ſave Keilah.] A remarkable Inſtance of David's Love to his Country: Unto which he did not become an Enemy, when he was baniſhed from it.

Ver. 3. And David's Men ſaid unto him, Behold, we be afraid here in Judah.] In that part of the Country where they then were.

How much more then if we come to Keilah, againſt the Armies of the Philiſtines?] His Men argued againſt this Expedition, becauſe they did not think themſelves ſafe in their own Country, where they hoped they had ſome Friends: And therefore thought they ſhould be in greater Danger, if they made the Philiſtines their Enemies.

Ver. 4. Then David enquired of the LORD yet again.] Not for his own Satisfaction, but for theirs: As we read in the Hiſtory of Gideon, that he did.

And the LORD anſwered him and ſaid, Ariſe.] Make no delay.

Go down to Keilah, for I will deliver the Philiſtines into thy hand.] Here he expreſsly aſſures him of Victory.

Ver. 5. So David and his Men went to Keilah, and fought with the Philiſtines, and brought away their Cattle, and ſmote them with a great Slaughter. So David ſaved the Inhabitants of Keilah.] He ſeems to have purſued the Philiſtines to their own Country: From whence he brought their Cattle. Or elſe we muſt ſuppoſe theſe Cattle were the Booty they had among the Iſraelites: Which is not ſo probable, becauſe then David would have reſtored them to their Owners.

Ver. 6. And it came to paſs that when Abiathar, the Son of Ahimelech, fled to David to Keilah, that he came down with an Ephod in his hand.] Or rather, with the Ephod. For he being left, I ſuppoſe, to keep the Sanctuary, while his Father and the reſt of the Prieſts went to wait upon Saul, as ſoon as he heard of their Slaughter, took this principal Veſtment of the High-Prieſt, viz. the Ephod, unto which the Urim and Thummim with the Breaſt-plate were annexed, and carried it unto David. Unto whom he hoped to be the more acceptable, when he appeared capable to ſerve him in that high Office. And accordingly he calls upon him, ver. 9. to bring hither the Ephod: As he did afterward, xxx. 7. But the Ephod could do no good, without the Urim and Thummim, which were inſeparable from it. And that he ſpeaks of the High-Prieſt's Ephod is manifeſt, becauſe he doth not call it Linen Ephod, ſuch as the Prieſts wore; but the Ephod. The only Difficulty is, that Saul after this ſeems to have conſulted God by Urim, xxviii. 6. But perhaps he made a new one, in the room of that which Abiathar carried away: But God would not own it, nor any other way give him Advice. Aben Ezra indeed here notes, that there wants that which they call the He Hajediah, that is, the demonſtrative Particle He, to ſhow that he means the High-Prieſt's Ephod, and therefore it was only a Linen Ephod. Which led him into this abſurd Opinion, that in ſome caſes God anſwered without Urim and Thummim; being conſulted merely by an Ephod.

Ver. 7. And it was told Saul that David was come to Keilah.] So remarkable an Action could not but come preſently to Saul's ears; who was not at all mollified by it, but rather more reſolutely bent upon David's Deſtruction.

And Saul ſaid, God hath delivered him into my hand, for he is ſhut in, by entring into a Town that hath Gates and Bars.] The Men of Keilah could not but open their Gates to their Deliverer; but Saul fancied that he ſought for ſafety in a place, that would only ſecure him from runing away from him.

Ver. 8. And Saul called all the People together to war.] Raiſed a great Army.

To go down to Keilah to beſiege David and his Men.] He pretended, it is likely, he would go, and be avenged of the Philiſtines: But his inward Intention was to go againſt David.

Ver. 9. And David knew that Saul ſecretly practiſed miſchief againſt him.] This intimates that Saul did not openly declare, when he raiſed his Army, he would beſiege Keilah; but made a ſhew of ſome other deſign.

And he ſaid to Abiathar the Prieſt, Bring hither the Ephod.] Which no doubt he put on: Otherwiſe he could not have enquired of the LORD by it.

Ver. 10. Then ſaid David, O LORD God of Iſrael, thy Servant hath certainly heard that Saul ſeeks to come to Keilah, to deſtroy the City for my ſake.] Some think that David put on the Ephod, and then aſked the LORD's Advice: But that is a great Miſtake; for the High-Prieſt was the Perſon appointed by God, to aſk Counſel of him for the ſupreme Governour, Numb. xxvii. 21. Therefore David ſpake theſe Words by the Mouth of Abiathar.

Ver. 11. Will the Men of Keilah deliver me into his hands? will Saul come down, as thy Servant hath heard: O LORD God of Iſrael, I beſeech thee, tell thy Servant. And the LORD ſaid,

He will come down.] He seems to have been in a great Fright, and some confusion of Spirit, when he spake these Words: Which made him not only ask two things together (which the Jews say was not usual) but also out of due Order. For the first Question should have been, Will Saul come down? and then the other should have followed, Will they deliver me into his hand? God therefore put him into the right Method, by answering to the last Question first: As the Jewish Doctors observe in the Gemara of the Codex Joma.

Ver. 12. Then said David, Will the Men of Keilah deliver me and my Men into the hand of Saul?] Hence the Talmudists gather, that he who asked out of order, was bound to ask again.

And the LORD said, They will deliver thee.] He saw the base Disposition of their Hearts, whatsoever Gratitude they pretended to David for their Deliverance. For that's a rare Virtue; not to be found in those, in whom Self-love prevails. It is not easy to be resolved, how they enquired of God, the Tabernacle not being there. It is likely David had some Tent, wheresoever he was, wherein he was wont to pray to God, and meditate his Praises, and there God was pleased to answer him.

Ver. 13. Then David and his Men, which were about six hundred.] His Forces were increased two hundred, since the famous Victory over the Philistines, at Keilah.

Arose, and departed out of Keilah, and went whithersoever they could go.] Sometimes to one place, sometimes to another: according as they found any hope of Safety. So Hackspan interprets this Phrase in his Disputationes, p. 403.

And it was told Saul, that David was escaped from Keilah.] Now he began to have better Intelligence of David's Motions; since the Slaughter at Nob: Which made the People afraid to fall under his Displeasure.

And he forbore to go forth.] Not knowing as yet where to find him.

Ver. 14. And David abode in the Wilderness, in strong Holds: and remained in a Mountain, in the Wilderness of Ziph.] Where it was not easy to come at him.

And Saul sought him every day, but God delivered him not into his hand.] As he foolishly fancied he would (ver. 7.) tho' God very manifestly had forsaken him, and was with David.

Ver. 15. And David saw that Saul was come out to seek his Life.] That he was restless in his Endeavours to destroy him.

And David was in the Wilderness of Ziph, in a Wood.] Where he could better defend himself, than in an open Country.

Ver. 16. And Jonathan, Saul's Son, arose and went to David into the Wood.] Being a very private Place, they had, it is likely, by some Intelligence which passed between them, appointed a meeting there.

And strengthened his hand in God.] In his Promise to him. What Hecuba saith in Euripides, is most true in this Friend of David's, and in Saul his Father.

Ὁ μὲν πονηρὸς οὐδὲν ἄλλο πλὴν κακος·
Ὁ δ' ἐσθλός, εσθλός· οὐδὲ συμφορᾶς ὑπὸ
Φῦσιν διέφθειρ' ἀλλὰ χρηςὸς ἐς' ἀεί.

A bad Man is nothing else but bad. But a good Man is still good: Nor because of any Calamity doth he lose his Nature; but is always good.

Ver. 17. And he said, Fear not, for the hand of Saul my Father shall not find thee: and thou shalt be King over Israel, and I will be next unto thee.] He doth not mean, that he would succeed him in his Throne: But be the principal Person in the Kingdom, next to David. Which, I suppose, had been agreed between them.

And that also Saul my Father knoweth.] For he remembred what Samuel told him, xv. 28. and by his wonderful Successes concluded he was the Person of whom Samuel spake.

Ver. 18. And they two made a Covenant before the LORD.] Solemnly renewed the Covenant, which they had formerly made. This is the third time that we read of their making a Covenant. See xviii. 3. xx. 16. In none of which there is any mention of a Sacrifice, no more than there is in the Covenant between David and the Elders of the People, 2 Sam. v. 3. and between Solomon and Hiram, 1 Kings v. 12. which is an Argument that eating together of a Sacrifice, or going between the parts of a Sacrifice, was not essential to the making a Covenant: Tho' it must be acknowledged, the Rite was so ancient of dividing the Parts of the Sacrifice, that hence is the Phrase which is so frequent in Scripture of cutting a Covenant, i. e. entering into it.

And David abode in the Wood, and Jonathan went to his House.] For he did not accompany his Father in his search after David.

Ver. 19. Then came up the Ziphites to Saul to Gibeah, and said, Doth not David hide himself with us in the Strong-hold in the Wood, in the Hill of Hachilah, which is in the south of Jeshimon?] These People were of the Tribe of Judah; among whom David thought himself the safer, because he was of the same Tribe. But they were afraid to be served as those at Nob: Which made them come and discover the Place where he was, very particularly and precisely.

Ver. 20. Now therefore, O King, come down according to all the desire of thy Soul to come down.] Which they knew was very great.

And our part shall be to deliver him into the King's hand.] For being Neighbours to it, they knew all the Avenues of the Wood where he was; and how to come at him.

Ver. 21. And Saul said, Blessed are ye of the LORD, for ye have compassion on me.] This signifies, that the Generality of People did not favour him in his Design: Which made him so joyfully receive the Ziphites Intelligence.

Ver. 22. Go, I pray you, and prepare ye.] Dispose all things so, that I may take him.

And know and see his place, where his haunt is.] Inform themselves perfectly, in what Hill, or Wood, or Cave he hid himself.

And who hath ſeen him.] He would have them certainly informed, that he might not go after him in vain.

For I am told he dealeth very ſubtilly.] So that it was not eaſy to catch him.

Ver. 23. See therefore and take knowledge of all the lurking Places, where he hideth himſelf, and come to me again with the certainty, and I will go with you.] He ſeems very diffident, having been ſo oft diſappointed: And by this means gave David time to get Intelligence, and remove to another place.

And it ſhall come to paſs, that if he be in the Land, I will ſearch him out through all the thouſands of Judah.] Their Tribes were divided into Thouſands (ſee Judges vi. 15.) among ſome of whom he ſuppoſed he would lurk: And he would not ceaſe ſearching for him till he found him.

Ver. 24. And they aroſe and went to Ziph before Saul.] As he had directed them, ver. 22.

But David and his Men were in the Wilderneſs of Maon, in the Plain on the South of Jeſhimon.] Having heard what the Ziphites had undertaken, he diſappointed their Deſign, by going into another Place, with which, it is likely, they were not ſo well acquainted. For Maon was a diſtinct Wilderneſs from Ziph: Tho' both in the Tribe of Judah.

Ver. 25. Saul alſo and his Men went to ſeek him.] Hearing, I ſuppoſe, by the Ziphites, whither he was gone.

And they told David.] He alſo had Intelligence brought him, that Saul was coming againſt him.

Therefore he came down into a Rock.] Some craggy Place.

And abode in the Wilderneſs of Maon.] Not thinking himſelf ſafe there, he went into another part of the ſame Wilderneſs.

And when Saul heard that, he purſued after David in the Wilderneſs of Maon.] So that he came to the very Place where he was.

Ver. 26. And Saul went on this ſide of the Mountain, and David and his Men on that ſide of the Mountain: and David made haſte to get away for fear of Saul; for Saul and his Men compaſſed David and his Men round about to take them.] Saul's Forces being far more numerous, he divided them into ſeveral Parties; who marching ſeveral ways, were about to encompaſs the whole Mountain: So that it ſhould be impoſſible for David to eſcape them. Who therefore made haſte to get away before he was quite ſurrounded.

Ver. 27. But there came a Meſſenger unto Saul, ſaying, Haſte thee and come: for the Philiſtines have invaded the Land.] A marvellous Providence of God, who ſtirred them up at this very time to make an Irruption into the Land of Iſrael, for the Preſervation of David when he was in extreme Danger.

Ver. 28. Wherefore Saul returned from following after David, and went againſt the Philiſtines.] It was very probable David wou'd in a little time have fallen into his hands, had not the Meſſenger, who, I ſuppoſe, was ſent by his Council, deſired him with all ſpeed to come and oppoſe the Philiſtines, who were the moſt dangerous Enemy.

Therefore they called the Name of that place Sela-hamah-le-koth.] That is, the Rock of Diviſions. Either becauſe Saul was diſtracted here between two Counſels, whether to purſue David, or go immediately againſt the Philiſtines: Or becauſe God divided Saul from David; when he was coming up cloſe unto him.

Ver. 29. And David went up from thence, and dwelt in the Strong-holds at En-gedi.] A place in the Tribe of Judah, not far from the dead Sea; which Solomon in his Song celebrates for the famous Vineyards which were there. And St. Hierom and Euſebius ſay there was excellent Balm at En-gedi: From which the Wilderneſs near it took its name, where David found ſecure lurking Places.

CHAP. XXIV.

Ver. 1. AND it came to paſs when Saul was returned from following the Philiſtines.] Who either retreated upon Saul's March towards them; or he drove them out of the Land.

That it was told him, ſaying, Behold, David is in the Wilderneſs of En-gedi.] The very place was not told him where David was; but only in general that he was in that Wilderneſs.

Ver. 2. Then Saul took three thouſand choſen Men out of all Iſrael.] Men of Valour; and whom he thought he might truſt.

And went to ſeek David and his Men upon the Rocks of the wild Goats.] In craggy and buſhy Places, where none but wild Goats lived; but he imagined David might there skulk: And therefore reſolved to be at the pains of ſearching for him there.

Ver. 3. And he came to the Sheep-coats by the way, where there was a Cave.] In which the Sheep reſted in the Heat of the Day. Unto which Place David was directed by God's Guidance: For Saul would not ſuſpect that he would abide in the high way unto thoſe Rocks; where he was going to look for him.

And Saul went in to cover his Feet.] See upon Judges iii. 24.

And David and his Men remained in the ſides of the Cave.] Where they could ſee him by the Light at the entrance of it: But he could not ſee them, becauſe it was dark in the remote parts of it. Some of theſe Caves were exceeding large: Strabo in his Sixteenth Book mentions one that would contain four thouſand Men.

Ver. 4. And the Men of David ſaid unto him, Behold the day of which the LORD ſaid unto thee; Behold, I will deliver thine Enemy into thy hand, that thou mayſt do to him, as ſhall ſeem good unto thee.] We do not read any where that God made a Promiſe to deliver Saul into David's hand: But ſo they interpreted what Samuel had ſaid, that God would take the Kingdom from Saul and give it to David. And they having a deſire to return to their own Habitations, and likewiſe to have Preferment under David, deſired him to make uſe of the Opportunity which now preſented it ſelf of deſtroying his Enemy, and advancing himſelf.

Then

Then David arose, and cut off the Skirt of Saul's Robe privately.] Which he might easily do, if he were asleep: As that Phrase may be interpreted, he went in to cover his Feet. This Robe was long, coming down to the Feet: As the Hebrew Word Meli signifies.

Ver. 5. And it came to pass, that afterwards David's Heart smote him.] He was inwardly troubled.

Because he had cut off Saul's Skirt.] For it looked like an Indignity unto a Prince, to have his Royal Robe disfigured. Tantam intelligebat personæ illius sanctitudinem (as Grotius speaks) such he understood was the Sacredness of his Person. And that very deservedly; for the supreme Powers being obnoxious to many Men's Hatred, ought to be secured in the discharge of their Office. Of which the Romans took care in the very Tribunes of the People, that they should be ἄσυλοι, inviolable, L. 1. de Jure B. & P. Cap. 4. Sect. 7.

Ver. 6. And he said unto his Men.] When he returned unto them, and they grew angry, he had only cut off the Skirt of his Robe, and not killed him.

The LORD forbid that I should do this thing.] Which they desired.

Unto my Master.] For I must own him, as long as he is alive, to be my Lord and Master; unto whom I am bound to be faithful.

The LORD's Anointed.] Whom God hath appointed to be King as long as he lives.

To stretch forth my hand against him, seeing he is the Anointed of the LORD.] Set up by God; who alone could throw him down. For he was as much constituted King by God while he lived, as David was after his Death. And his anointing made his Person sacred: For the very Heathens look'd upon their Kings, as holding the Place of God. So Artabanus the Persian (as Plutarch relates in the Life of Themistocles) This is the very best of our many excellent Laws, Τὸ τιμᾶν βασιλέα καὶ προσκυνεῖν ὡς εἰκόνα Θεοῦ τὰ παυλασώζοντος, That we should honour and adore our King, as the Image of God, who preserves all things.

Ver. 7. So David stayed his Servants with these words, and suffered them not to rise against Saul.] Who still had a desire to kill him, tho' David would not: Which he hindered by his wise and pious Persuasions.

But Saul rose up out of the Cave, and went his way.] To his Camp: Which he had left, to take some Repose in the Cave; having a Guard to attend him, who stood without, while he covered his Feet within.

Ver. 8. David also arose afterwards.] When Saul was gone.

And went out of the Cave, and cried after Saul, saying, My Lord the King.] A bold Attempt to adventure to come into the Presence of such an inraged Enemy. But his Innocence and Confidence in God emboldened him, especially having so strong an Evidence to give him of his Integrity.

And when Saul looked behind him, David stooped with his Face to the Earth and bowed himself.] See xx. 41.

Ver. 9. And David said unto Saul, Wherefore hearest thou Men's Words, saying, behold, David seeketh thy hurt.] He wisely endeavours, at the Entrance of his Speech, to mollify Saul, by transferring all the blame of his Persecution from him, unto the Sycophants and false Accusers that were about him.

Ver. 10. Behold, this day thy Eyes have seen that the LORD had delivered thee into my hand in the Cave.] Out of which he followed Saul.

And some bad me kill thee, but my Eyes spared thee.] A Phrase for taking Pity and Compassion upon those whom we have in our power to hurt.

And I said, I will not put forth my hand against my Lord, for he is the LORD's Anointed.] He acknowledgeth him both to be his King; and appointed by God so to be.

Ver. 11. Moreover my Father.] So he was by the Marriage of his Daughter; and as he was supreme Governour, the Father of his Country. Or if he had not been so, yet this Word was proper to be used, that he might soften and sweeten him into more tender Usage to him.

See, yea see, the Skirt of thy Robe in my hand.] He offers him a Demonstration of the Truth of what he declared: And prays him to observe it.

For in that I cut off the Skirt of thy Robe, and killed thee not; know thou and see.] Let it convince thee.

That there is neither Evil nor Transgression in my hand.] That he had no bad design against him, nor ever attempted to do him any harm. For if he had, it had been as easy to cut his Throat, as to cut off the Skirt of his Robe.

And I have not sinned against thee, yet thou huntest my Soul, to take it.] This was a great Aggravation of Saul's Guilt (which makes David repeat it) that he sought the Life of one, who had no way offended him, and when it was in his power, would not hurt him.

Ver. 12. The LORD judge between me and thee; and the LORD avenge me of thee.] If he still persisted to persecute him. But he doth not, by these Words, avenge me of thee, pray God to punish him for the Injuries he had done him; but only to vindicate and deliver him from his violent and unjust Persecution. So the Hebrew Word Nakam often signifies.

But my hand shall not be upon thee.] He persisted in his Resolution, not to avenge himself: But leave it to God to do him right.

Ver. 13. As saith the Proverb of the Ancients, Wickedness proceedeth from the Wicked: but my hand shall not be upon thee.] Men may be known by their Actions. And this is, as if David had said, were I so bad as I am represented, I should now have shown it: But I will never have my hand in such Crimes. Or thus, it is for wicked Men to do this: But I am none of them.

Ver. 14. After whom is the King of Israel come out? after whom dost thou pursue?] He turns every Stone, as we speak, to appease Saul's Rage; and tells him in conclusion, that it was below him, and a Disparagement to him to raise Armies against such a mean Person as he was.

After a dead Dog, after a Flea.] He repreſents himſelf as contemptible, as it was poſſible: that he might convince Saul it was not for his Honour to take ſo much pains to kill him, if he could: For what an inglorious thing was it for a King, with ſo many armed Men, to triumph over a dead Dog? As if a Lion ſhould hunt after a Flea. Which (as Bochartus gloſſes) if it be ſought, is not eaſily found; and if it be found, is not eaſily caught; and if it be caught, is a poor Prey, eſpecially for a Prince.

Ver. 15. The LORD therefore be Judge, and judge between me and thee: and plead my Cauſe, and deliver me out of thy hand.] He thought he could not repeat this too often, that as hitherto, ſo he reſolved hereafter to leave it to God to judge which of them was in the right; and not avenge himſelf. It may ſeem ſtrange that Saul who came with ſuch an inraged Mind to ſeek for David, ſhould hear him make ſo long a Speech to him with Patience, and not furiouſly fall upon him, as ſoon as he ſaw him. But we may well think, that at the firſt he was ſurprized to ſee him follow after him out of the Cave; and more aſtoniſhed to find, after a few words, that it was in David's power to kill him, if he had pleaſed: Which he knew he had, by a long Perſecution of him, provoked him to do.

Ver. 16. And it came to paſs, when David had made an end of ſpeaking theſe Words unto Saul, that Saul ſaid, Is this thy Voice, my Son David?] Tho' he ſtood at ſuch a diſtance, that it is likely he could not know him by his Face; yet he very well knew his Voice.

And Saul lift up his Voice, and wept.] His Heart being mollified at preſent, by this unparallell'd Kindneſs of David, in ſparing his Life, when he could have taken it away.

Ver. 17. And he ſaid unto David, Thou art more righteous than I; for thou haſt rewarded me good, whereas I have rewarded thee evil.] Moſt Men have their good Moods. And Saul now could ſcarce avoid being touched with a deep ſenſe, how very unjuſt and unkind he had been to one, who truly loved him.

Ver. 18. And thou haſt ſhewed this day, how that thou haſt dealt well with me: foraſmuch, as when the LORD had delivered me into thy hand, thou killedſt me not.] The Demonſtration of his Kindneſs was ſo clear, that he could not but acknowledge it, and be affected with it.

Ver. 19. For if a Man find his Enemy, will he let him go well away?] i. e. He will certainly deſtroy him, to ſave himſelf. The Kindneſs of David therefore was unuſual, and without Example.

Wherefore the LORD reward thee good, for that thou haſt done unto me this day.] Herein David had imitated God; who doth good to the Evil: From whom, Saul prays David might receive his Reward for the good done to him.

Ver. 20. And now I know well, that thou ſhalt ſurely be King, and that the Kingdom of Iſrael ſhall be eſtabliſhed in thy hand.] Theſe wonderful Providences of God over David, and David's no leſs wonderful Virtue, at laſt convinced Saul that God deſigned him to be the King of his People, and that none could hinder his Eſtabliſhment.

Ver. 21. Swear now therefore unto me by the LORD, that thou wilt not cut off my Seed after me, and that thou wilt not deſtroy my Name out of my Father's Houſe.] As he had endeavoured to deſtroy David; and as Kings frequently deſtroyed the Family of thoſe, into whoſe Thrones they were advanced.

Ver. 22. And David ſware unto Saul.] Who ſhould rather have ſworn unto David, he would ſuffer him to live quietly; yea, have invited to return home, and aſſured him of his Protection. But David did not require this: Reſolving to truſt to God, and not to him. Some queſtion how David kept his Oath, when he hanged up ſeven of Saul's Sons, 2 Sam. xxi. But they ſhould conſider, that he did not this of himſelf; but at the deſire of the Gibeonites, unto whom God required Satisfaction ſhould be given, for Saul's bloody Endeavours to deſtroy them.

And Saul went home: But David and his Men gat them up into the Hold.] viz. of Engedi. For he durſt not ſtay in ſuch an open place as he now was in: Knowing Saul's Inconſtancy, and the Hatred he had to him; and the Fury he was in, when the evil Spirit came upon him. It is dangerous to truſt a reconciled Enemy: And the old Saying is very wiſe, μέμνησο ἀπιστεῖν, remember not to be too credulous. And ſo the Son of Sirach, Ecclus. xii. 10, 11. Never truſt thine Enemy. Though he humble himſelf, yet take good heed, and beware of him.

CHAP. XXV.

Verſe 1. AND Samuel died.] According to Joſephus (Lib. vii. latter end) he governed Iſrael after the Death of Eli twelve Years, and lived eighteen in the Reign of Saul, and then died. But according to Sir J. Marſham, he judged Iſrael ſixteen Years before Saul's Inauguration; and after he was made King lived eighteen.

And all the Iſraelites were gathered together, and lamented him.] Such was his Virtue, and ſuch was the Love the People bare to him, that the whole Nation bewailed his Loſs, and that many Days; as Joſephus ſaith, Καὶ ἐπὶ πολλὰς ἡμέρας ἐκλαυσεν.

And buried him in his Houſe at Ramah.] The place where he was born, and had long lived: Where, it is likely, there was a place, belonging to his Houſe, in which his Family was interred.

And David aroſe and went into the Wilderneſs of Paran.] Which was in the ſouthern Parts of Judæa, near to Arabia: Into which he might preſently flee, if there were occaſion. The Mahometan Writers (as Hottinger obſerves) make Paran a part of Arabia deſerta: So that now it was, that David dwelt in the Tents of Kedar; which was the ſame with Paran, as our learned Fuller obſerves in his Miſcellanies.

Ver. 2. And there was a Man in Maon, whoſe Poſſeſſions were in Carmel.] There were two Carmels: One in the North near the Sea, in the Confines of Aſhur and Zebulon, to which Elijah was wont to reſort; and another in the South near Hebron, in the Tribe of Judah, which is here here meant. See Josh. xv. 55. both concerning Maon and Carmel.

And the Man was very great, and he had three thousand Sheep, and a thousand Goats.] A very wealthy Man.

And he was shearing his Sheep in Carmel.] They pulled off the Wool at Rome, and in the neighbouring Countries (as Bochartus observes) but not in Greece, nor Judæa; where they sheared it, as we do now.

Ver. 3. And the Name of the Man was Nabal, and the Name of his Wife was Abigail: and she was a Woman of great Understanding, and of a beautiful Countenance; but the Man was churlish, and evil in his doings.] Uncharitabe, and perhaps oppressive in his Dealings.

And he was of the House of Caleb.] Descended from a worthy Ancestor, but very unlike him. In the Hebrew the word is Calebi, a Calebite, of the Family of Caleb. But the word Caleb signifying a Dog, some of the ancient Interpreters understand the word here, as if the holy Writer insinuated he was of dog-like Dispositions and Manners. Whence the LXX translate it, ὁ ἄνθρωπος κυνικός, a dogged Man, or a Cynick. And so the Syriack and Arabick.

Ver. 4. And David heard in the Wilderness that Nabal did shear his Sheep.] For the Wilderness of Paran was not far from Nabal's House.

Ver. 5. And David sent out ten young Men.] To show his great respect to him.

And David said unto the young Men, Get ye up to Carmel.] For it was a Mountain, as the other Carmel was.

And go to Nabal, and greet him in my name.] Present his Service to him, as we now speak; and wish him continued Happiness, as it is in the following words.

Ver. 6. And thus shall ye say to him that liveth in Prosperity.] In the Hebrew the Words are only, to him that liveth: Unto which we add in Prosperity; because Life in Scripture signifies Happiness, as Death signifies Misery.

Peace be both to thee, and Peace be unto thy House, and Peace to all that thou hast.] A most affectionate, and comprehensive Salutation. Wherein he wishes well to him (both his Soul and Body) and to his whole Family, and to all that he possessed, either at home or abroad: And some think in the first words, he wishes all this might be perpetuated as long as he lived. There could not well be an higher Compliment, as we now speak: For Peace comprehends all manner of Blessings, in the holy Language.

Ver. 7. And now I have heard that thou hast Shearers.] Whom he entertained that day.

Now thy Shepherds which were with us, we hurt them not; neither was there ought missing to them, all the while they were in Carmel.] He represents the good Demeanour of those who belonged to him, while they were in his Neighbourhood. And suggests, that he would not have had so many Sheep to shear, if his Men had been like others, in their Condition. But tho' they were Soldiers, and in great necessity, they never took any thing from him.

Ver. 8. Ask thy young Men, and they will show thee.] He desires him to be informed of the Truth of this, from his own Servants.

Wherefore let the young Men find favour in thine eyes (for we come in a good day) give, I pray thee, whatsoever cometh unto thy hand unto thy Servants, and to thy Son David.] Most humble Words, and full of respect: Mixed with strong Arguments; from their harmless and friendly living in his Neighbourhood; and from the present Festival which he kept, when Men's Hearts use to be open and bountiful: And they did not desire Delicates, but any thing that was at hand, which he could spare.

Ver. 9. And when David's young Men came, they spake to Nabal according to all these Words in the name of David, and ceased.] Added nothing of their own, but waited for his Answer in silence, as Maimonides interprets it, in his More Nevochim, P. i. Cap. 116.

Ver. 10. Nabal answered David's Servants, and said, Who is David? and who is the Son of Jesse?] A most rude and brutish Answer, to such a civil Message, and humble Request.

There be many Servants now-a-days that break every Man from his Master.] He reproaches them all as a Company of Fugitives and Vagabonds: and taxes David secretly, with Infidelity to his Master Saul.

Ver. 11. Shall I take my Bread, and my Water, and my Flesh that I have killed for my Shearers; and give it unto Men, whom I know not whence they are?] A most foolish Speech; when he had just before called David the Son of Jesse: Which shows he knew well enough who he was.

Ver. 12. And David's young Men turned their way, and went again, and told him all these Sayings.] They did not stand arguing with him, or intreating him: But slighted him, as much as he did them.

Ver. 13. And David said unto his Men, Gird you on every Man his Sword: and they girded on every Man his Sword, and David also girded on his Sword.] Being resolved, in his Passion, to be revenged on Nabal.

And there went up after David about four hundred Men, and two hundred abode by the Stuff.] For he had with him six hundred Men in all; as we read before, xxiii. 13.

Ver. 14. But one of the young Men.] Belonging unto Nabal.

Told Abigail Nabal's Wife, saying, Behold David sent Messengers out of the Wilderness, to salute our Master, and he railed on them.] Some of his Servants were wiser and better than he himself, which makes good that Saying of Seneca (in his third Book de Beneficiis) Nulli præcluſa est virtus, omnibus patet, &c. Virtue is shut up from none; it lies open to all. It admits all, it invites all; Free-men and Servants, Kings and Exiles. It makes not choice of such an House, or of such an Estate: But is content with a Man himself. For who can chuse but admire the Wisdom and Fidelity of this Shepherd? who admonished his Mistress of the danger her Family was in; as he rationally concluded from the rude Abuse that had been put upon David; whose Merits he honestly set before her.

Ver. 15. But the Men were very good to us, and we were not hurt; neither missed any thing, as long as we were conversant with them, when we were in the Field.] They confirm every word that David's Meſſengers had told their Maſter, ver. 7.

Ver. 16. They were a Wall unto us, both by night and day, all the time we were with them, keeping Sheep.] They add more than David's Men had ſaid of themſelves, that they not only did them no hurt, but were a Guard and Defence to them againſt Robbers, and againſt wild Beaſts.

Ver. 17. Now therefore know and conſider what thou wilt do; for Evil is determined againſt our Maſter, and againſt all his Houſhold.] This they underſtood, either from the young Men whom David ſent, who let fall ſome words ſignifying how highly he would reſent the Indignity done to him: Or they concluded it from what they had obſerved of the Nature of David; who was very kind, but would not put up rude Affronts.

For he is ſuch a Son of Belial, that a Man cannot ſpeak to him.] So wilful and obſtinate, that they durſt not ſpeak to him of this matter: Fearing he would be more inſolent to them, than he had been to David.

Ver. 18. Then Abigail made haſte.] For ſhe was ſo prudent a Woman as not to neglect the good Advice of a Servant.

And took two hundred Loaves, and two Bottles of Wine, five Sheep ready dreſſed, and five Meaſures of parched Corn, and two hundred Cluſters of Raiſins, and two hundred Cakes of Figs, and laid them upon Aſſes.] This ſhows he was a great Man, who had ſuch plenty of Proviſions in his Houſe. For it is not to be imagined, that ſhe would rob the Shearers of a Feſtival Day, to gratify David.

Ver. 19. And ſaid unto her Servants, Go before me, behold I come after you.] They carried the Preſent; that David beholding it, might be a little mitigated before ſhe came to him.

But ſhe told not her Husband Nabal.] Who, it is likely, would have perſiſted in his Folly: Or been ſo long before he would have been perſuaded to be wiſer, that it would have been too late to prevent the Danger.

Ver. 20. And it was ſo, as ſhe rode upon the Aſs, that ſhe came down by the Covert of the Hill.] By a way full of Buſhes, ſo that David ſaw not her, nor ſhe him, till they met together.

And behold David and his Men came down againſt her.] From another Hill, I ſuppoſe.

And ſhe met them.] In the Bottom, between the two Hills.

Ver. 21. Now David had ſaid, Surely in vain have I kept all that this Fellow hath in the Wilderneſs; ſo that nothing was miſſing of all that pertained to him: and he hath requited me evil for good.] This he ſaid to himſelf: Or to his Men, as ſoon as the Meſſengers came back; or as they were upon the Road to Nabal's Houſe.

Ver. 22. So, and more alſo, do God unto the Enemies of David.] He means to himſelf: But being unwilling to pronounce his own Name, or any other whom he reſpected, together with a Curſe, he transfers it to an Enemy: By a Figure called Euphemiſmus. Or, as ſome take it, the meaning is, let my Enemy deſtroy me, if I let Nabal and his Family eſcape. But the former is the plaineſt Interpretation, it being common in the Jewiſh Language (as Joh. Cocceius obſerves) when they ſpeak of any evil to themſelves, to tranſlate it to another Perſon. Of which he gives Inſtances out of Maccoth, and Bava Bathra. See him upon the Gemara Sanhedrim, Cap. 4. Sect. 18. Annot. 1.

If I leave to him before the Morning-light.] He intended to fall upon them in the Night, when they were in a dead Sleep, after great Jollity.

Any that piſſeth againſt the Wall.] That is (as the Generality of Interpreters think) ſo much as a Dog: This being, they take it, like that Saying of Aurelian mentioned by Vopiſcus, who going to a City, and finding the Gates ſhut againſt him, ſaid in his Wrath, Canem in hoc oppido non relinquam, I will not leave a Dog in this Town. But Bochartus excepts to this Interpretation, that all Dogs do not piſs againſt the Wall, but only the Males; and that not 'till they be ſix or eight Months old: as Ariſtotle and others obſerve. And therefore (to omit his other Reaſons) he takes this Phraſe to be a Periphraſis of a Man: As the Hebrews expound it, particularly Ralbag. So that it is as much as to ſay, I will not leave a Man alive.

Ver. 23. And when Abigail ſaw David, ſhe haſted, and lighted off the Aſs, and fell before David on her Face, and bowed her ſelf to the ground.] Both out of Reverence to him as a great Man; and as an humble Supplicant, for pardon of a great Offence.

Ver. 24. And fell at his feet, and ſaid, Upon me, my Lord, upon me let this Iniquity be.] She applies herſelf to him, in a Speech full of Art and Prudence: And firſt begs, like a kind Wife, that ſhe might ſuffer, not her Huſband; who was not ſo wiſe as he ſhou'd be.

And let thine Handmaid, I pray thee, ſpeak in thy Audience, and hear the Words of thy Handmaid.] She deſires him patiently to hear her Reaſons.

Ver. 25. Let not my Lord, I pray thee, regard this Man of Belial, even Nabal: for as his Name is, ſo is he; Nabal is his Name, and Folly is with him.] She repreſents him as a Man that offended out of Folly rather than Malice: Which might a little excuſe his Rudeneſs. There are many ſuch Alluſions in Scripture, as there is here of Nebala and Nabal. See Gen. v. 25. xlix. 8, 16, 19. and Zephan. ii. 4.

But I, thine Handmaid, ſaw not the young Men of my Lord, whom thou diſt ſend.] If any were to be puniſhed, ſhe had deſired it might be herſelf; yet ſhe had this to ſay in her own behalf, that ſhe knew nothing of the Meſſage ſent by David.

Ver. 26. Now therefore, my Lord, as the LORD liveth, and as thy Soul liveth, ſeeing the LORD hath with-holden thee from coming to ſhed Blood, and from avenging thy ſelf with thine own hand.] This is wonderfully artificial, to preſume ſo much upon his Goodneſs and Clemency, as already to conclude, ſhe had diverted him from his purpoſe; or rather, that God had interpoſed by his good Providence, to hinder him from ſhedding Blood.

Now let thine Enemies, and they that ſeek evil to my Lord, be as Nabal.] That is, may thou have no worſe Enemy than he. Or, may thy Enemies have no more power to hurt thee, than Nabal hath. This is another Argument to perſuade him to Mercy, that Nabal was ſo inconſiderable, that as he would do him no good, ſo he could do him no evil.

Ver.

Ver. 27. And now this Bleſſing.] That is, this Preſent or Gift. The ſame Phraſe in xxx. 26. 2 Kings v. 15.

Which thine Handmaid hath brought unto my Lord, let it even be given unto the young Men that follow my Lord.] To appeaſe their Anger: Or, as unworthy of David's Acceptance.

Ver. 28. I pray thee forgive the Treſpaſs of thine Handmaid.] She ſtill ſpeaks as if ſhe had been the Offender; becauſe ſhe deſired none might ſuffer but herſelf.

For the LORD will certainly make my Lord a ſure Houſe.] She prays him to be good to her, as God would certainly be to him.

Becauſe my Lord fighteth the Battels of the LORD; and Evil hath not been found in thee all thy days.] Se puts him in mind of all his Heroical Acts againſt the Philiſtines, and other Enemies; and that hitherto he had been blameleſs, and done no hurt to the Iſraelites: And therefore hoped he would do none to her, and her Family.

Ver. 29. Yet a Man is riſen to purſue thee and to ſeek thy Soul.] Saul ſhe means reſtleſly endeavoured to take away his Life.

But the Soul of my Lord ſhall be bound in the Bundle of Life, with the LORD thy God.] Be preſerved. For thoſe things which we would not have loſt, nor ſcattered about, we are wont to bind up in Bundles.

And the Souls of thine Enemies, them ſhall he ſling out, as out of the middle of a Sling.] As we bind up things to preſerve them from being thrown about, and loſt; ſo we put things into a Sling, that they may be caſt out of ſight, or a great way from us.

Ver. 30. And it ſhall come to paſs, when the LORD ſhall have done to my Lord, according to all the good that he hath ſpoken concerning thee, and ſhall have appointed thee Ruler over Iſrael.] Nothing could be more obliging than this, at every word to call him her Lord, and to acknowledge his Title to the Kingdom; and her belief that he would certainly enjoy it.

Ver. 31. That this ſhall be no Grief unto thee, nor offence of Heart to my Lord, either that thou haſt ſhed Blood cauſeleſs, or that my Lord hath avenged himſelf.] She reſerves the moſt divine Argument to the laſt; that he would have a clear and quiet Conſcience, and not be diſturbed with a Remembrance that he had ſhed the Blood of the Innocent, or otherwiſe avenged himſelf: which belonged unto God.

And when the LORD hath dealt well with my Lord, remember thine Handmaid.] Thou wilt thank me for my Advice.

Ver. 32. And David ſaid to Abigail, Bleſſed be the LORD God of Iſrael, which ſent thee this day to meet me.] He was ſo moved with this pathetical Speech, that in the firſt place, he acknowledges the good Providence of God, which directed her to come ſo ſeaſonably to prevent the Effects of his Anger: Whereby he was abſolved from his Oath, which he had ſworn to cut off Nabal's Family. And indeed it was null in itſelf; for no Man can oblige himſelf to do an evil thing; as this would have been: There being a double Guilt in it, as Philo obſerves, if he had ſhed their Blood. To which may be applied the Words of Seneca, that in ſuch Caſes, ſcelus eſt fides, to keep one's word, is a wicked thing. See Grotius de Jure B. & P. lib. 2. Cap. 13. Sect. 6. Where he obſerves that Cicero mentions the like Caſe with this in the Vow of Agamemnon. And Procopius Gazæus here well reſolves, that this Oath of David was the effect of Anger; but his ſparing Nabal the effect of Reaſon and prudent Counſel.

Ver. 33. And bleſſed be thy Advice, and bleſſed be thou, which haſt kept me this day from coming to ſhed Blood, and from avenging my ſelf with my own hand.] Next, he commends her, and her wiſe Counſel; for which he beſeeches God to bleſs her: For ſhe had preſerved him from a very outrageous piece of Revenge; which might have afflicted him all his days.

Ver. 34. For in very deed, as the LORD God of Iſrael liveth, which hath kept me back from hurting thee, except thou hadſt haſted and come to meet me, ſurely there had not been left unto Nabal, by the morning light, any that piſſeth againſt the Wall.] It may ſeem ſtrange that his Anger ſhould not cool, in ſo much time as paſſed between the return of his Meſſengers, and Abigail's meeting him: But the Affront was great, and his Soldiers it is likely inflamed his Rage, and he reſolved to make Nabal an Example to others, not to uſe him ſo rudely.

Ver. 35. So David received of her hand that which ſhe brought, and ſaid unto her, Go in peace unto thy Houſe: for I have hearkened unto thy Voice, and have accepted thy Perſon.] Both ſhe herſelf, and what ſhe ſaid, and what ſhe brought were moſt welcome to him. So happy a thing it is (as Euripides ſpeaks in his Heraclidæ, verſe 359.) to fall into the hand of a wiſe, and not a fooliſh Enemy. For the latter, if he get the better, exerciſes nothing but Cruelty: But with the former there is room for Mercy, Juſtice, Moderation, and Pardon. Such an Enemy Abigail met withal; unto whom Nabal's Offence was not more provoking to the Deſtruction of his Family, than the Admiration of Abigail's Virtue to its Preſervation.

Ver. 36. And Abigail came to Nabal; and behold, he held a Feaſt in his Houſe like the Feaſt of a King: and Nabal's Heart was merry within him, for he was very drunken.] He had eaten and drank too liberally, at a very great Feaſt, which he made for his Shearers.

Wherefore ſhe told him nothing, leſs or more, 'till the morning-light.] Said not a word of what had paſſed, becauſe he was not capable to underſtand the Mercy of God to him.

Ver. 37. But it came to paſs in the Morning, when the Wine was gone out of Nabal.] When he had ſlept himſelf ſober.

And his Wife told him of theſe things, that his Heart died within him, and he became as a Stone.] He fainted away, and was as cold as a Stone; out of dread of the Danger, which he imagined ſtill hung over him. For it is a frigid Interpretation of Raſi and Kimchi, that he was troubled to hear of the great Preſent that his Wife had made to David.

Ver. 38. And it came to paſs, that about ten days after, the LORD ſmote Nabal, that he died.] It ſeems he lay ſo long diſpirited, in a ſtupid ſenſeleſs Condition; and then God put an end to his Life, either by ſome Diſeaſe, or by a ſudden ſtroke.

Ver.

Ver. 39. And when David heard that Nabal was dead, he ſaid, Bleſſed be the LORD, who hath pleaded the Cauſe of my Reproach upon the head of Nabal; and hath kept his Servant from Evil: for the LORD hath returned the Wickedneſs of Nabal upon his own head.] He doth not rejoice ſo much in his Death (who was a worthleſs Wretch) as in the Juſtice of God: Who ſhowed him, that if Men would have patience, they ſhould ſee Right done them; ſo that they need not go about to revenge themſelves.

And David ſent and communed with Abigail, to take her to him to wife.] Being a Woman of admirable Prudence, as well as Beauty, (ver. 3.) and one that expreſſed an high Eſteem of him, he ſent ſome to treat with her about Marriage with him.

Ver. 40. And when the Servants of David were come to Abigail to Carmel, they ſpake unto her ſaying, David ſent us unto thee, to take thee unto him to wife.] This was their Buſineſs: Which no doubt they delivered in many more Words, which ſignified the great Eſteem and Affection which David had for her; whom he knew to be a Woman of ſuch great Wiſdom, that ſhe had reſpect not merely to his preſent, but to his future Condition. Otherwiſe, he would not have adventured, being now very poor, to court one that had ſuch Riches.

Ver. 41. And ſhe aroſe, and bowed her ſelf with her Face to the Earth.] In reverence to the very Name of David: Who ſhe highly honoured, as a Man of an heroick Spirit; and who ſhe was fully perſuaded ſhould be King of Iſrael, ver. 30.

And ſhe ſaid, Behold, let thine Handmaid be a Servant to waſh the Feet of the Servants of my Lord.] She ſent him an Anſwer in theſe Words; which ſhow her Humility to be as great, as her other Virtues: for to waſh one's Feet was the loweſt ſort of Service.

Ver. 42. And Abigail haſted, and aroſe and rode upon an Aſs, with five Damſels of hers, that went after her.] That ſhe might come attended ſuitable to her Quality and his. See Grotius, Gen. xxx. 3.

And ſhe went after the Meſſengers of David.] Tho' ſhe did not long deliberate about the Matter, but ſoon conſented; yet it is not likely ſhe followed them immediately: But ſtaid ſome decent time before ſhe went to David.

And became his Wife.] She had a ſtrong Faith in God, to marry a Man who had nothing to live upon, but was forced to wander from place to place, and beg the Aſſiſtance of his Friends. But ſhe verily believed he would at laſt come to the Throne, as ſhe had before expreſſed: And could make ſome Proviſion for him out of her own Eſtate.

Ver. 43. David alſo took Ahinoam of Jezreel, and they were alſo both of them his Wives.] At the ſame time; according to the corrupt Cuſtom of thoſe Days, wherein they had perverted the Law of Nature, which is admirably expreſſed by Euripides in his Andromache, ver. 177, &c.

——————καδὲ γὰρ καλὸν
Δυσῖν γυναιξοῖν ἄνδρ' ἓν' ἠιάς ἔχειν, &c.

It is not good for one Husband to govern two Wives: But he ſhould be content with one, who who would live happily.

And again, ver. 909.

Κακὸν δ' ἔλεξας ἓν' ἄνδρα δισσ' ἔχειν λέσχη.

Thou haſt ſaid, it is an evil thing for one Man to have two Wives.

For where there are more than one, they ſeldom agree, but breed great Trouble to their Huſband. It is commonly thought, that Ahinoam was his Wife before he married Abigail. See upon xxvii. 3.

Ver. 44. And Saul.] Or rather for Saul, the Particle Vau being often ſo uſed.

Had given Michal his Daughter, David's Wife, to Phalti the Son of Laiſh.] Here is the reaſon why David took another Wife; becauſe Saul had deprived him of his former: But it was no good Reaſon for taking two, which were more than he had before. He was not forced from Michal, and therefore we read afterwards that he took her again. And the Jewiſh Doctors are of opinion that this Phalti was a very pious Man, and would never touch her, becauſe ſhe was another Man's Wife: Which was the Reaſon David received her again. See 1 Sam. iii. 15.

Which was of Gallim.] A Town near Accaron, as Euſebius and St. Hierom tell us: Which had its Name from Gal, an heap of Stones; it being, I ſuppoſe, a ſtony Place.

CHAP. XXVI.

Verſe 1. AND the Ziphites.] The old Enemies of David, xxiii. 19.

Came unto Saul to Gibeah, ſaying, Doth not David hide himſelf in the hold of Hachilah, which is before Jeſhimon?] He thought he might ſafely return thither, Saul having ſo lately made peace with him. The Ziphites alſo could not but hear how he had obliged Saul, and what Declaration Saul had made, that he knew David would be King of Iſrael, xxiv. 20. Which David thought might diſcourage them from meddling any more. But quite contrary, they being afraid, if he came to be King, he would remember and revenge their ill uſage of him, went to excite Saul to deſtroy him.

Ver. 2. Then Saul aroſe, and went down to the Wilderneſs of Ziph, with three thouſand Men of Iſrael with him.] The ſame Number he had the laſt time he purſued after him, xxiv. 2.

To ſeek David in the Wilderneſs of Ziph.] The Inconſtancy, Falſeneſs, and implacable Rage of this Prince is inconceivable. Who having not long ago been obliged to David for his Life, and had acknowledged his Error, and made David ſwear he would be good to his Poſterity, yet openly declared himſelf again to be his Enemy, and ſought to kill him.

Ver. 3. And Saul pitched in the Hill of Hachilah, which is before Jeſhimon, by the way.] That is, by the way that went to the Wilderneſs.

But

But David abode in the Wilderneſs, and he ſaw that Saul came after him into the Wilderneſs.] He thought at firſt his Intelligence had not been true; but he was credibly informed, that Saul's Wrath was broke out again, and that he intended to come thither.

Ver. 4. And David therefore ſent out Spies, and underſtood that Saul was come in very deed.] A good Captain always hath Scouts abroad: who aſſured him his Information was true, and that Saul was not far from him.

Ver. 5. And David aroſe, and came to a place, where Saul had pitched.] Within ſight of it; where he might obſerve how they lay.

And David beheld where Saul lay, and Abner the Son of Ner, the Captain of the Hoſt.] Who, it is likely, lay near him.

And Saul lay in the Trench.] Or rather, in his Chariot, for ſo the LXX tranſlate the Hebrew Word by λαμπλήνη, or as ſome Editions have it, ἁπλήνη: Which ſignifies a Chariot drawn by Mules, as Bochartus ſhows out of Homer, and other Authors, P. 1. Hierozoicon, L. 2. Cap. 19.

And the People lay round about him.] He was incloſed, I ſuppoſe, with the Carriages; as our Marginal Tranſlation is of the foregoing Word.

Ver. 6. Then anſwered David and ſaid to Ahimelech the Hittite.] A valiant Man of that Nation, who was a Proſelyte to the Jewiſh Religion: And not only followed David, but was always near to his Perſon.

And to Abiſhai the Son of Zeruiah, Brother to Joab.] Who were the Sons of David's Siſter, 1 Chron. xi. 16. whoſe Father is no where mentioned; being a Man, I ſuppoſe, of no note.

Saying, who will go down with me to Saul to the Camp.] That is, which of theſe two.

And Abiſhai ſaid, I will go down with thee.] Either Ahimelech declined it, as too hazardous an Enterprize: Or Abiſhai, being an hot forward young Man, offered himſelf, while the other ſtood deliberating.

Ver. 7. So David and Abiſhai came to the People by night.] A bold Attempt for two Men to come into the midſt of an Army of three thouſand choſen Men: Who were not without a Watch; tho' they were now aſleep. But a ſtrong Confidence in God's Promiſe that he would preſerve him, overcame all Fear of Danger.

And behold, Saul lay ſleeping within the Trench, and his Spear ſtuck in the ground at his Bolſter: but Abner and the People lay round about him.] To ſecure his Perſon from any ſudden Aſſault.

Ver. 8. Then ſaid Abiſhai to David, God hath delivered thine Enemy into thy hand this day: Now therefore let me ſmite him, I pray thee, with the Spear, even to the Earth at once; and I will not ſmite him the ſecond time.] Tho' David would not kill him himſelf, when he had the like Opportunity (xxiv. 4.) yet Abiſhai thought he might give him leave to do it: And he undertook to ſtick him to the ground at one thruſt, ſo that he ſhould make no noiſe by crying out.

Ver. 9. And David ſaid to Abiſhai, deſtroy him not: For who can ſtretch forth his hand againſt the LORD's Anointed, and be guiltleſs?] Being made King by God's ſpecial Appointment, he look'd upon it as a high Crime to do him any hurt; becauſe he was a ſacred Perſon.

Ver. 10. David ſaid furthermore, As the LORD liveth, the LORD ſhall ſmite him, or his day ſhall come to die, or he ſhall deſcend into Battel, and periſh.] God who made him King, after a ſolemn manner, could only depoſe him: And that he could do ſeveral ways; either by a ſudden Stroke, or in the courſe of Nature, or letting him fall in Battel.

Ver. 11. The LORD forbid, that I ſhould ſtretch my hand againſt the LORD's Anointed.] What he permitted another to do, when he could hinder it, was as if he had done it himſelf. But he abhorred to meddle with that, which belonged to God, as he had before ſaid.

But I pray thee, take now the Spear that is at his Bolſter.] As a witneſs what they could have done, if Reſpect to God, whoſe Anointed he was, had not with-held them.

And the Cruſe of Water, and let us go.] This was ſet there, either for him to drink, if he was thirſty: Or to waſh himſelf; which was preſcribed by their Law in caſe of many Pollutions.

Ver. 12. So David took the Spear and the Cruſe of Water.] By the Hand of Abiſhai: Who like an excellent Soldier was perfectly ſubject to his Commander, to forbear, or to do whatſoever David enjoined him.

And gat them away, and no Man ſaw it, or knew it, neither awaked: for they were all aſleep, becauſe a deep Sleep from the LORD was fallen upon them.] The Jewiſh Doctors in Bereſchith Rabba obſerve, that there are three ſorts of that they call Tardama, which is the Hebrew word for deep Sleep in this Place. The firſt mere ſound Sleep, which God ſent upon Adam, Gen. xi. 21. The ſecond is the deep Sleep of Prophecy, which he ſent upon Abraham, Gen. xv. 12. The third is this here mentioned, which they call the Sleep Marmorita (it ſhould be printed Marmota, as Bochart obſerves) which is a little Creature more drowſy than a Dormouſe. Hierozoicon, P. 1. Lib. 3. Cap. 33.

Ver. 13. Then David went over to the other ſide, and ſtood on the top of an Hill afar off (a great ſpace being between them.) So that he was in Safety, and yet his Voice might be heard.

Ver. 14. And David cried unto the People, and to Abner the Son of Ner, ſaying, Anſwereſt thou not, Abner?] Art thou ſtill aſleep?

Then Abner anſwered, and ſaid, Who art thou that crieſt unto the King?] And diſturbeſt his Repoſe.

Ver. 15. And David ſaid unto Abner, Art not thou a valiant Man, &c.] In the Hebrew the Words are, Art not thou a Man? That is, in Place of Authority, as well as of great Courage and Valour.

Wherefore haſt thou not kept thy Lord the King.] Obſerved better military Diſcipline, for the Preſervation of Saul's Perſon.

For there came one of the People in to deſtroy the King thy Lord.] Came into the Camp with that Intention, and had a very fair Opportunity.

Ver.

Ver. 16. This thing is not good that thou haſt done.] A ſoft way of ſpeaking: But the meaning was, that he was very faulty, as appears by what follows.

Ye are worthy to die, becauſe ye have not kept your Maſter, the LORD's Anointed.] Guarded him better from any Danger. It is probable they deſpiſed David's ſmall Forces, which made them ſo groſsly negligent.

Now ſee where the King's Spear is, and the Cruſe of Water that was at his Bolſter.] He ſets before them the Tokens of their Careleſſneſs; and of the Opportunity he had to kill Saul.

Ver. 17. And Saul knew David's Voice, and ſaid, Is this thy Voice, my Son David?] He was in great Confuſion of Mind, and knew not what more to ſay to him.

And David ſaid, It is my Voice, my Lord, O King.] He humbly acknowledgeth his Authotity; and the Allegiance he owed him: Tho' he had done him ſo many Injuries.

Ver. 18. And he ſaid, Wherefore doth my Lord thus purſue after his Servant? for what have I done, or what evil is in my hand?] Being conſcious of his own Innocence, David expoſtulates with him in a long Speech: And deſires in the firſt place, to know what Crime he had to accuſe him of: eſpecially ſince he lately acknowledged that he was more righteous than himſelf, xxiv. 17.

Ver. 19. Now therefore, I pray thee, let my Lord the King hear the Words of thy Servant.] Having no Anſwer to that Queſtion, he deſires him to be ſo patient, as to ſuffer him to argue a while with him.

If the LORD have ſtirred thee up againſt me, let him accept an Offering.] For God is not implacable, but willing to be reconciled, if I have offended him. Or the meaning may be, if for any Offence againſt God there be juſt Cauſe for this Anger, I refuſe not to die, and expiate the Fault with my Blood. Or the words may refer to Saul, as if he had ſaid, Offer to God ſome Sacrifice, that he being appeaſed, may free thee from this pertinacious Melancholy.

But if they be the Children of Men, curſed be they before the LORD, for they have driven me out this day from abiding in the Inheritance of the LORD.] From having any ſettled Abode in his own Country; which he foreſaw he ſhould be forced alſo to leave, as we read he did in the next Chapter.

Saying, go ſerve other Gods.] That was the effect of their Actions, tho' they did not ſay ſo in ſo many Words. For they baniſhed him into a Nation of another Religion, as Mr. Mede expounds theſe Words. See Book 3. p. 823.

Ver. 20. Now therefore let not my Blood fall to the Earth, before the Face of the LORD.] God ſeeing it, and being the Avenger.

For the King of Iſrael cometh out to ſeek a Flea.] Which was neither for his Profit nor for his Glory. See xxiv. 14.

As when one doth hunt a Partridge in the Mountains.] Hunt a poor Bird from mountain to mountain, with a great deal of Labour, which is not eaſily caught, and worth nothing when one hath it: The Hebrew word Kore is no where to be found, but here and in Jer. xvii. 11. from both which places, we learn it was a mountainous Bird, and of no great value: in taking of which, the Fowler ſpent his pains to little purpoſe. And it was one of thoſe Birds, that ſits upon the Eggs of other Birds, as the words of Jeremiah import, ſhe gathereth what ſhe hath not brought forth, that is, Eggs which ſhe did not lay. From which it is apparent, that this word doth not ſignify a Partridge, which is a Bird of Price, and doth not ſit on other Birds Eggs: But, as Bochart hath taken a great deal of pains to ſhow, was a Bird with a long Bill, and ſhort Feet, called Ruſticula. I will not mention the Opinions of Interpreters about it, for they are very various, and the ſame Men are not conſtant to themſelves; for R. Solomon, who here takes it for a Partridge, in that place of the Prophet Jeremiah, takes it for a Cuckow. See Hierozoicon, P. 2. L. 1. C. 12.

Ver. 21. Then ſaid Saul, I have ſinned, return my Son David.] He invites him to come to the Court again; which is more than he did at their former meeting.

For I will no more do thee harm, becauſe my Soul was precious in thine eyes this day: I have played the fool, and have erred exceedingly.] This is a very ingenuous Confeſſion, wherein he condemned himſelf, as a great Offender againſt God, and againſt David. In which for the preſent, no doubt he was very ſerious, and both aſhamed and ſorry for what he had done.

Ver. 22. And David anſwered and ſaid, Behold the King's Spear, let one of the young Men come over and fetch it.] He durſt not venture to go and preſent it himſelf to Saul, tho' it was the Teſtimony of his Fidelity and Affection to him. For he did not know but the evil Spirit might come on a ſudden upon him, and make him change his good Reſolution.

Ver. 23. The LORD render to every Man according to his Righteouſneſs and Faithfulneſs: for the LORD delivered thee this day into my hand, but I would not ſtretch forth my hand againſt the LORD's Anointed.] He repeats what Saul had confeſſed, the more to affect his Heart with it: and tells him he doubted not the LORD would deal with him accordingly, howſoever Saul uſed him.

Ver. 24. Behold, as thy Life was ſet by this day in mine eyes, ſo let my Life be ſet by in the ſight of the LORD, and let him deliver me out of all Tribulation.] He prays God to deal with him, as he had done with Saul; and then he doubted not to come out of all his Troubles.

Ver. 25. And Saul ſaid unto David, Bleſſed be thou, my Son David; thou ſhalt do great things, and alſo ſhalt ſtill prevail.] He perceived it was in vain to contend any longer againſt David, whom God deſigned for great things (as he ſaw by his moſt worthy and noble Actions) and would ſtill have the better of him, 'till he came to the Throne: for poſſibly Saul look'd upon the taking away his Spear, which I obſerved (upon xxii. 6.) was his Scepter, as an Omen the Royal Authority ſhould be tranſlated to David.

So David went on his way, and Saul returned to his Place.] To Gibeah, from whence he came, ver. 1. but David did not think fit to accompany him, remembring how fickle he was, and therefore, notwithſtanding all thoſe good Words, not to be truſted.

CHAP. XXVII.

Verse 1. AND David said in his heart, I shall now perish one day by the hand of Saul.] Whose Heart he believed was not altered, though he had felt lately some Compunction for what he had done against him. But David had the greatest reason to believe he would never be able to compass his Design, having God's Promise he should be King of Israel; therefore these Words were spoken in a melancholy Fit, when he was under some great Depression of Spirit.

There is nothing better for me than that I should speedily escape into the Land of the Philistines: and Saul shall despair of me, to seek me any more in any Coast of Israel; so shall I escape out of his hand.] He thought that as long as he remained in any part of Saul's Dominions, he would never cease his Persecution: But by going into an Enemy's Country, he would be forced to be quiet.

Ver. 2. And David arose, and he passed over with the six hundred Men that were with him, unto Achish the Son of Maoch, King of Gath.] It is not certain that this was the same Achish mentioned xxi. 10. with whom David took shelter at his first flight from Saul. He seems rather to have been another, who is distinguished from the former by the Name of his Father. But whichsoever he was, he had either invited David to come thither for his Security (hoping to make use of his Valour, or his Prudence in his Wars) or David had sent Embassadors before to treat with him, and had his Royal Word, that he should be protected by him. And it appears afterwards, that he had David in great Esteem; for he gave him a Town for his own Inheritance, ver. 6.

Ver. 3. And David dwelt with Achish at Gath, he and his Men, every Man with his Household: even David with his two Wives, Ahinoam the Jezreelite, and Abigail the Carmelite, Nabal's Wife.] It was a very capacious Place, that could contain so many Men and their Families; some of which might be numerous. And Achish was very generous to receive so many Strangers and old Soldiers into his Royal City, as might have made themselves Masters of it. Ahinoam being here mentioned before Abigail, hath made many think she was his Wife before he took the other.

Ver. 4. And it was told Saul that David was fled to Gath, and he sought no more again for him.] Unto which, it is likely, he was inclined; if he had not found it to be in vain.

Ver. 5. And David said unto Achish, If I have now found grace in thine Eyes, let them give me a Place in some Town in the Country, that I may dwell there: for why should thy Servant dwell in the Royal City with thee?] This he said, that he might avoid Envy. For perhaps he might have too much the Port of a King; having so many Men at his Service, and being attended, no doubt, with a considerable number of them about his Person. In a private Town also he might more freely exercise his own Religion; without any Offence to the Philistines, who worshipped other Gods.

Ver. 6. Then Achish gave him Ziklag that day.] Either out of his Royal Bounty, or on condition of some Service he should do him.

Wherefore Ziklag pertaineth unto the Kings of Judah unto this day.] In the Division of the Land of Canaan, it was first given unto the Tribe of Judah, Josh. xv. 31. and afterwards to that of Simeon, who had a Portion out of the Land given to Judah, Josh. xix. 5. But the Philistines kept possession of it; so that neither of them enjoyed it; till now it became by Achish his Gift the peculiar Inheritance of David and his Successors.

Ver. 7. And the time that David dwelt in the Country of the Philistines, was a full Year and four Months.] How long he wandered up and down, till he settled here, we are no where told: But it is probable the Persecution of Saul lasted a great while.

Ver. 8. And David and his Men went out and invaded the Geshurites, and the Gezerites, and the Amalekites; for those Nations were of old the Inhabitants of the Land, as thou goest to Shur, even unto the Land of Egypt.] The Geshurites and Gezerites were both of them Reliques of the Canaanites, whom God commanded to be rooted out. See Grotius. The Amalekites, who were near, had been destroyed by Saul, but not these that were afar off: Or perhaps these were some that fled into these remote Parts, when they heard Saul was coming against them. And the following Words, (ver. 11. of David's killing all) must be understood, that he left none alive whom he found in these Parts: But there still were Amalekites in other Places, xxx. 1. Abarbinel imagines all the People here mentioned were at enmity with Achish, and hated him and his People: So that when David smote them, he made no Complaint about it.

Ver. 9. And David smote the Land, and left neither Man nor Woman alive, and took away the Sheep, and the Oxen, and the Asses, and the Camels, and the Apparel, and returned and came to Achish.] To give an account of his Actions, and to present him, I suppose, with part of the Spoil.

Ver. 10. And Achish said, Whither have ye made a rode to day?] For David, it is likely, constantly kept his Men in Exercise, upon some Expedition or other.

And David said, against the South of Judah, and against the South of the Jerahmelites, and against the South of the Kenites.] He answers Achish cunningly, in such ambiguous Words, that he might understand him as if he had assaulted the Land of Judah; whereas he only fell upon those People who bordered on those Parts which he mentions. For these Countries lay on the South of Judah: and the Jerahmelites were a Part of Judæa, and the Kenites of the Family of Jethro, were their Neighbours, and Confederates.

Ver. 11. And David saved neither Man nor Woman alive to bring Tidings to Gath, saying, lest they should tell on us, saying, so did David, and so will be his manner all the while he dwells in the Country of the Philistines.] Who had People of some Countries thereabouts; perhaps Tributaries to them, and under their Protection: Whom they might fear David would serve in the same manner, had they known how he dealt with these.

Ver. 12. And Achiſh believed David, ſaying, he hath made his People utterly to abhor him, therefore he ſhall be my Servant for ever.] The Enmity between him and his own People being, as he thought, irreconcilable, he muſt make him his Friend by faithful Service for ever.

CHAP. XXVIII.

Verſe 1. AND it came to paſs in thoſe days.] While David was in the Country of the Philiſtines.

That the Philiſtines gathered their Armies together for warfare, to fight with Iſrael.] Muſtered all their Forces to invade the Land of Iſrael; being encouraged, it is probable, by the Baniſhment of David, the Death of Samuel, and the Frenzy of Saul.

And Achiſh ſaid unto David, Know thou aſſuredly, that thou ſhalt go with me to Battel, thou and thy Men.] Achiſh ſeems to have been the principal Perſon in the Country, and the Commander of all their Forces. For we read of no other King among them but he: Who required David, who was now one of his Subjects, to aſſiſt him in this Warfare againſt his own Native Country.

Ver. 2. And David ſaid to Achiſh, Surely thou ſhalt know what thy Servant can do.] He anſwered in doubtful Words, which might be taken in different Senſes.

And Achiſh ſaid to David, Therefore will I make thee Keeper of my Head for ever.] Achiſh underſtood him, that he would do his beſt to ſerve him: And thereupon promiſed, if he did, that he would make him Captain of his Guard, or ſome great Officer, near to his Perſon.

Ver. 3. Now Samuel was dead, and all Iſrael lamented him, and buried him in Ramah, even in his own City.] This was noted before (xxv. 1.) but repeated here again, to ſhew, that Saul now was ſenſible of his Loſs, wanting his Advice in a time of great Diſtreſs.

And Saul had put away thoſe that had familiar Spirits, and the Wizards out of the Land.] According to the Divine Commandment, Levit. xx. 27. which perhaps he had executed in the beginning of his Reign, when he was governed by Samuel: Or if he did it ſince, it was to ſhew that he had ſome Zeal for God left, whereby he kept up his Authority among the People.

Ver. 4. And the Philiſtines gathered themſelves together.] Met at an appointed Place.

And came and pitched in Shunem.] A Place in the Tribe of Iſſachar, as we learn from Joſh. xix. 18.

And Saul gathered all Iſrael together, and pitched in Gilboa.] A Mountain near the Valley of Jezreel, not far from Shunem: As that Place in Joſhua informs us. So that they ſeem to be pitched, as they were before the great Battle was fought when Goliath fell, upon two Mountains, with a Valley between them.

Ver. 5. And when Saul ſaw the Hoſt of the Philiſtines.] Of which he had a full View from Mount Gilboa.

He was afraid, and his Heart greatly trembled.] For the Spirit of God having forſaken him, his Courage very much failed him: when he ſaw how numerous the Philiſtines were; and heard, perhaps, that David was among them; and reflected upon all the Evil he had done unto him.

Ver. 6. And when Saul enquired of the LORD,] This ſeems to contradict what is ſaid 1 Chron. x. 14. that he did not enquire of the LORD: Which was the reaſon that he ſlew him. But Kimchi and others thus reconcile theſe two Places; that ſince he did not continue to enquire of him, but went to a Witch, it was all one, as if he had not enquired at all; for he did it faintly, coldly, and indifferently: Reſolving, if he was not heard there, to go to ſome other Place for Counſel. See Buxtorf, Hiſt. Urim and Thummim; who obſerves out of Samuel Laniado, a learned Jew, that 'he 'whoſe Heart is perfect with God, lifts up his 'Eyes unto him, and fixes them on him; ho-'ping in him, tho' he doth not preſently hear 'him: And perſeveres in his Hopes, firmly 'ſettling a Reſolution to wait upon him. But 'ſo did not Saul, who was remiſs and negli-'gent, ſaying, If God will not hear me, I will 'go and conſult a familiar Spirit.'

The LORD anſwered him not,] Becauſe he had killed his Prieſts, as R. Solomon here notes. And by this means, as R. Levi Ben Gerſon here farther obſerves, had no body capable of the Holy Spirit, to conſult God for him.

Neither by Dreams,] By which he prayed, perhaps, that God would inform himſelf.

Nor by Urim,] Kimchi thinks that he ſent to Abiathar to enquire about the Event of this War: For he had the Urim with him. It is obſervable, that the Scripture never ſaith that God anſwered by Thummim; for that is comprehended under Urim: Which is always put firſt when they are joined together, and here it is mentioned alone. See xxiii. 6.

Nor by Prophets.] A College of which, no doubt, was ſtill remaining at Ramah; whom Samuel had educated. It will not be amiſs to obſerve that the ſame ways of Enquiry were among the Gentiles, as appears by what Achilles ſaith, in the Council of the Greeks, who met to conſider about the Plague Apollo had ſent among them. Iliad. 1. ver. 62.

Ἀλλ' ἄγε δή τινα μάντιν ἐρείομεν, ἠὲ ἱερῆα,
Ἢ ἠὲ ὀνειρόπολον, (καὶ γὰρ τ' ὄναρ ἐκ Διός ἐστιν)
Ὅς κ' εἴποι——

Where he reckons three ſorts of Men, a Prophet, or a Prieſt, or an Expounder of Dreams: Who might tell why Apollo was ſo angry with them.

Ver. 7. Then ſaid Saul unto his Servants, Seek me a Woman that hath a familiar Spirit, that I may go to her, and enquire of her.] In this he acted like a diſtracted Man, who now approved what he had condemned. He mentions a Woman rather than a Man; becauſe the weaker Sex were moſt addicted to theſe Practices (being moſt eaſily deceived by evil Spirits) among whom ſuch a Perſon he thought might be ſooneſt found.

And

And his Servants said unto him, There is a Woman that hath a familiar Spirit.] There are always some Flatterers in Courts, who will never contradict their Princes; but are ready to comply with them in their worst Designs. And it appears by this, that though this sort of Divination was not publickly practised, yet it was known that there were some who privately continued to consult the Dead. I say publickly, because it is very probable that before Saul executed the Law against them, there were those that made Profession of having familiar Spirits, as there were among the Heathen. For Plutarch, in the Life of Cimon, speaks of Pausanias going to a Νεκυομαντεῖον (an Oracle of the Dead) at Heraclea, where he called up the Soul of Cleonice.

At Endor.] A Place in the Tribe of Manasseh, Josh. xvii. 11. not far from Shunem, as Salianus observes: And part of the Mountain of Gilboa was over-against Endor, and another part of it against Shunem. This Woman, the Jewish Doctors say, was the Mother of Abner.

Ver. 8. And Saul disguised himself, and put on other raiment, and went, and two Servants with him.] He put off his Royal Apparel, and cloathed himself like an ordinary Man, having but a small Attendance; that he might not be suspected to be what he was. These two Servants, the Jewish Doctors say, were Abner and Amasa.

And they came to the Woman by night.] They could not go the direct way, for then they must have passed through the Army of the Philistines: And therefore they fetched a Compass, and travelled also by Night, that they might not be discovered. And it is likely they went on foot, that less notice might be taken of them; and they might go and return through by-ways, which made their Journey the longer. In the Night also it was, that Women went about such magical Practices. For, as Psellus observes in his Book of Dæmons, it is the common Opinion of the Greeks, that none of the Terrestrial Dæmons dare appear in the Day time. Ἑλληνικῆς γὰρ ἔστι δόξης τὸ μήδενα τῶν ἐνύλων δαιμόνων θάρρειν τὰς τῷ ἡλίῳ αὐγάς. Nay, he saith all those things were performed after the Summer Solstice; when the Days grew short, and the Nights increased.

And he said, Divine unto me by the familiar Spirit, and bring me him up whom I shall name unto thee.] This consulting the Dead, was a very ancient Practice among the Gentiles, as appears from Homer: But long before him, mentioned by Moses himself, who forbids it in Deut. xviii. 10. Notwithstanding which, the Israelites, who had a Divine Oracle, and holy Prophets to guide them, fell into this foul Sin, as they did into most of the Gentile Abominations.

Ver. 9. And the Woman said unto him, Behold, thou knowest what Saul hath done, how he hath cut off those who have familiar Spirits and Wizards out of the Land: wherefore then layest thou a snare for my Life, to cause me to die?] For so the Law was, Levit. xx. 27. And Saul seems by the Woman's Speech to have executed it, for she saith he had cut them off; whereas it is only said, that he had put them away: As if he had failed in his Duty, and merely banished such Persons, when he should have put them to death.

Ver. 10. And Saul sware unto her by the LORD, saying, As the LORD liveth, there shall no Punishment happen to thee for this thing.] An Oath was so sacred a Thing in those Days, that they entirely relied upon it, and ventured their Lives upon its Credit.

Ver. 11. Then said the Woman, whom shall I bring up to thee? and he said, bring me up Samuel.] It is a wonderful Thing, that he should believe a Woman should have power to disturb the Rest of Samuel, and bring him thither at her Command: But he was forsaken by God, and grown delirious.

Ver. 12. And when the Woman saw Samuel.] Here Interpreters are very much divided; some imagining it was Samuel himself that appeared: Others, a Spectre, which by the Power of the Devil appeared in his likeness. Several of the ancient Fathers are of the former Opinion, and particularly Justin Martyr: Who in his Dialogue with Trypho the Jew, alledges this as a Demonstration of the Immortality of the Soul, p. 333. And most of the Roman Church are now of the same mind. But Tertullian saith (in his Book, De Anima, Cap. 57.) God forbid we should believe the Soul of any holy Man, much less of a Prophet, should be brought up by the Power of the Devil. Of this Persuasion are a great Number of the Ancients, particularly St. Cyril of Alexandria; who thinks it the greatest Absurdity to believe, that a wretched Woman should call up Samuel's Soul; the Dæmons, with whom such People deal, having no such Power. And so St. Hierom calls this Samuelis Phantasma. Yet there are vast Numbers of modern Authors, who think that by God's Permission, or Dispensation, the Soul of Samuel might appear: Which Sir John Marsham himself takes not to be improbable: See Chron. Canon. xiii. But the very Letter of the Text seems to me to be against this Opinion: Which speaks of bringing him up, and his coming up out of the Earth; whereas, if it had been Samuel, he should rather have come down from Heaven. This Apparition therefore was one of those fallacious Spirits, whom Porphyry speaks of (Lib. 2. De Abstinentiâ) who put on any Shape, and counterfeit (as his Words are) the Gods, and Dæmons, and the Souls of the Dead, Γένος ἀπαταλῆς φύσεως παυλόμορφον καὶ πολύτροπον, ὑποκρινόμενον καὶ θεὺς, καὶ δαίμονας, καὶ ψυχὰς τεθνηκότων. Which a very learned Person (Joh. Wagenseil) hath confirmed, by this Reason, which to me seems very solid; that since God was not pleased to answer Saul (as he confessed) either by Prophets, or by Dreams, or by Urim and Thummim, but had withdrawn himself wholly from him, it is not probable, that he would send Samuel himself to him from the Dead (and none else could do it) and that at the Call of a Witch: When he would not favour him with any Revelation from a living Prophet, or any other way. Confut. Car. Lipmanni, p. 198.

She cried with a loud Voice: and the Woman spake to Saul, saying, Why hast thou deceived me? for thou art Saul.] She cried out for fear of Saul:

Saul: When she perceived, by the Reverence the Spectre paid him, who he was. For so Abarbinel interprets it, he bowed with his Face to the ground, in honour of Saul, whereby the Woman concluded he was the King.

Ver. 13. And the King said unto her, Be not afraid.] Do not imagine I come with any design to discover thee, and bring thee to Punishment.

For what sawest thou?] But tell me what appeared to thee.

And she said, I saw Gods ascending out of the earth.] By the word Elohim the Jews understand a Judge: For so Judges are called in Psalm lxxxii. 1, 6. Peter Martyr therefore interprets it not amiss, a Person very majestick, like a Judge or a King. And so R. Esaias mentioned by Vorstius upon Pirke Eliezer, p. 113. who by Elohim understands hominem insignis atque excelsæ staturæ, a Man of an eminent and high Stature; as the Scripture calls high Trees and Mountains, Trees and Mountains of God. And he is said, to ascend out of the Earth. For so the Heathen endeavoured (as Homer, Virgil, Statius, and other ancient Poets tell us) to bring up the Dead out of the Earth, to give them Answers to their Doubts. Which wicked Custom prevailed long among the Jews; for Isaiah alludes to it in xxix. 4. when he saith they should be brought so low, as to speak like a familiar Spirit out of the Ground, and whisper out of the Dust. And it is evident likewise from Isa. lxiv. 4. that they were wont to go to the Sepulchres of the Dead, there to consult them. For that's the Meaning of sacrificing in Gardens, ver. 3. for there they were wont to bury their Dead.

Ver. 14. And he said unto her, What form is he of?] This is an Argument he saw nothing; but afterwards heard a Voice.

And she said, an old Man cometh up, and he is covered with a Mantle.] Such as Kings wore, and also Prophets; who had very great Authority, xv. 27. 2 Kings ii. 8, 13. The Hebrew word Meil signifies as much as the Greek ποδήρης, a long Garment which came down to the Feet.

And Saul perceived that it was Samuel, and he stooped with his face to the ground, and bowed himself.] By the Description which the Woman gave of him, he concluded it was Samuel; and thereupon made his Reverence to him.

Ver. 15. And Samuel said to Saul, Why hast thou disquieted me, and brought me up?] This shews it was an evil Spirit, personating Samuel, who spake these Words. For it is not in the power of Witches to disturb the Rest of good Men; and to bring them into this World when they please. And Samuel, we may be sure, would never have acknowledged such a Power in Magical Arts: The Credit of which the Devil endeavoured to support.

And Saul answered, I am sore distressed, for the Philistines make war against me, and God is departed from me, and answereth me no more; neither by Prophets, nor by Dreams: therefore I have called thee, that thou mayst make known to me what I shall do.] Some think he omits Enquiry by Urim: Because in truth, he neither did nor could make use of that; Abiathar having carried it away to David. But this doth not agree with ver. 6. which supposes he did enquire by Urim. He should rather, by Repentance, and Prayer, and Sacrifices, and doing right to David, have besought the Favour of God; as Pellicanus here well observes.

Ver. 16. And Samuel said to Saul, Wherefore dost thou ask me, seeing the LORD is departed from thee, and become thine enemy?] Nothing could be more senseless, than to imagine Samuel could do any thing for him, when the LORD, whose Servant Samuel was, would not regard him.

Ver. 17. And the LORD hath done to him.] That is, to David, mentioned in the Conclusion of the Verse.

As he spake by me.] Still the evil Spirit personates Samuel, that Saul might be deceived into a Belief, that it was really he who spoke to him.

For the LORD hath rent the Kingdom out of thy hand, and given it to thy Neighbour, even unto David.] As Samuel had foretold long ago; and now it was ready to be accomplished.

Ver. 18. Because thou obeyedst not the Voice of the LORD.] This relates (Abarbinel thinks) to his Sin in Gilgal, Chap. xiii.

Nor executed his fierce wrath upon Amalek.] This was his next Sin, whereby he highly provoked God's Anger against him: For he was not sensible he had offended his express Command, but justified his Conduct, till Samuel took a great deal of pains to convince him; and then told him, he would rend the Kingdom from him, xv. 28.

Therefore hath the LORD done this unto thee this day.] He doth not mention his Sin in killing the LORD's Priests; because this Decree of taking the Kingdom from him, was passed before that Sin was committed.

Ver. 19. Moreover, the LORD will also deliver Israel with thee into the hand of the Philistines.] Samuel himself could no more know this, than an evil Spirit; unless God had been pleased to suggest it: Which he might think good to do to this Ghost, which personated Samuel, that he might terrify Saul. Or he saw the Philistines to be so numerous, and Saul so feeble and dispirited, that he doubted not the Victory would be on the Philistines side; and therefore confidently pronounced it. But the former is more probable, that God used this evil Spirit to declare his Mind at this time: So that he spake nothing but by his Direction.

And to-morrow shalt thou and thy Sons be with me.] If we take the Word to-morrow strictly, Eustathius, Arch-Bishop of Anticch, his Argument against Origen is good, that this could not be Samuel who spake, because his Words are false: There being more than a Day between this and the Fight, as many have clearly proved from the Story itself. But the Meaning may be no more, than very shortly thou shalt be as I am, that is, dead. For, as many have well observed (particularly Hackspan in his Disputation concerning Angels and Dæmons) by these Words, be with me, mors simpliciter notatur, non vero peculiaris mortem secutus status. Death is simply noted, but not the State which follows after Death.

And

And the LORD shall deliver the Host of Israel into the hand of the Philistines.] He would not have him think his Army should be able to defend him. Abarbinel observes, that he reckons up three Judgments, in the very Order wherein they fell out (which shews all was spoken by God's Order) first, That the Host of Israel should be delivered into the hand of the Philistines: Then, that Saul and his Sons should be slain: And lastly, that the Philistines should come and dwell in their Cities, xxxi. 7. which he takes to be the Sense of the last Words, which otherwise are only a Repetition of the first.

Ver. 20. And Saul fell straightway all along on the earth, and was afraid, because of the words of Samuel; and there was no strength in him: for he had eaten no bread all the day, nor all the night.] No wonder he fainted away, being weak in Body for want of Food: And extreamly afflicted in Mind by this dismal Message, which Samuel, he thought, brought him from God.

Ver. 21. And the Woman came unto Saul.] These Words suggest that Saul was in some private Room, where he alone heard the Words that were spoken by the Apparition.

And saw that he was sore troubled, and said unto him, Behold thy Handmaid hath obeyed thy voice, and I have put my Life in my hand, and have hearkened unto thy words which thou spakest unto me.] She had exposed herself to extream Danger: For what we carry in our Hand may easily fall out, or be snatcht from us.

Ver. 22. Now therefore, I pray thee, hearken thou also unto the voice of thine Handmaid, and let me set a morsel of bread before thee, and eat; that thou mayst have strength when thou goest on thy way.] For without some Refreshment she saw it would be impossible for him to get to his Camp again.

Ver. 23. But he refused, and said, I will not.] He chose rather to die there, than by the Philistines.

But his Servants, together with the Woman, compelled him.] Prest him so hard, that he yielded to them.

And he hearkned to their voice.] Who knew nothing of what he had heard, but thought he had fainted away only for want of Food.

So he arose from the earth, and sat upon the bed.] As the manner (I observed before) then was; and not to lie along when they eat.

Ver. 24. And the Woman had a fat Calf in the house.] The Hebrew Word Marbek is well translated fat, as Bochartus confesses, though it properly signifies (as he demonstrates) a Calf that treads out the Corn, and is fatted up by that means. Hierozoicon, P. 1. Lib. 2. Cap. 31.

And she hasted, and killed it, and took flour and kneaded it, and did bake unleavened Bread thereof.] Because there was no time to let it ferment.

Ver. 25. And she brought it before Saul, and before his Servants, and they did eat: then they arose up, and went away that night.] Before the break of Day; that none might discover they had been with such a Woman.

CHAP. XXIX.

Verse 1. NOW the Philistines gathered all their Army to Aphek.] There were three places of this Name; one in the Tribe of Judah, another in Manasseh, and a third in Ashur. Which last seems to be here meant, where the Sons of Eli were slain. See iv. 1.

And the Israelites pitched by a Mountain which is in Jezreel.] A Valley which was overlook'd by the Mountain Gilboa: From whence the Israelites came down (xxviii. 4.) to draw up their Army here.

Ver. 2. And the Lords of the Philistines passed on by hundreds and by thousands.]. When they took a view of their Army, the great Men appeared, some at the Head of an Hundred, some of a Thousand Soldiers.

But David and his Men passed on in the rearward with Achish.] Who seems to have been the General of the Army: and to have made David and his Men his Life-guard, according to his Resolution, xxviii. 2.

Ver. 3. Then said the Princes of the Philistines, What do these Hebrews here?] Who, they were afraid, would prove false to them, and take part with their own Countrymen.

And Achish said unto the Princes of the Philistines, Is not this David the Servant of Saul, the King of Israel, who hath been with me these days, or these years?] The meaning is, I may say years, not days: For he had been with him part of two Years: And, if he had not formerly known him, his Predecessor had (xxi. 10.) and it is likely he had held Correspondence with him before he came to him.

And I have found no fault in him, since he fell unto me, unto this day?] This intimates, that he looked on him as revolted from Saul; and by the Experience he had of his Fidelity, he thought he might be still trusted.

Ver. 4. And the Princes of the Philistines were wroth with him; and the Princes of the Philistines said unto him,] In an angry Tone,

Make this Fellow return, that he may go again to his place, which thou hast appointed him.] At Ziglag, which they were contented he should possess.

And let him not go down with us to the battel, lest in the battel he be an Adversary to us.] And thereby do them more mischief than the Army of the Israelites.

For wherewith should he reconcile himself to his Master? should it not be with the heads of these men?] That is, of the Philistines. They reasoned wisely, according to the common Practice of Mankind; and well it was for David, that they were such Politicians: For hereby God delivered him out of a very great strait; either of being an Enemy to his Country, or false to his Friends, and to his Trust. And by the same good Providence he was sent back to rescue his Wives, and the Wives and Children of his Men, who were taken captive.

Ver. 5. Is not this David of whom they sung one to another in Dances, saying, Saul hath slain his thousands, and David his ten thousands?] They remembred that he was their old Enemy, who killed killed Goliath: And was highly magnified for it, above Saul himſelf.

Ver. 6. Then Achiſh called David, and ſaid unto him, Surely, as the LORD liveth.] He ſwears by the God whom David worſhipped, that he might be the more believed. Or perhaps he had learn'd ſomething from David of the true God, though he worſhipped others with him.

Thou haſt been upright, and thy going out and coming in with me in the Hoſt, is good in my ſight.] He commends him as an unblameable Perſon in his private Converſation; and as an excellent Commander in his Army.

For I have not found Evil in thee, ſince the day of thy coming unto me, unto this day.] A very honourable Teſtimony from a Foreign Prince.

Nevertheleſs, the Lords favour thee not.] Unto whom Achiſh was forced to yield: For he was not an abſolute King; but the Lords of the Country ſtill retained a great Authority.

Ver. 7. Wherefore now return and go in peace: that thou diſpleaſe not the Lords of the Philiſtines.] From the effects of whoſe Envy and Jealouſy he could not preſerve him.

Ver. 8. And David ſaid unto Achiſh, But what have I done? and what haſt thou found in thy Servant ſo long as I have been with thee unto this day, that I may not go fight againſt the Enemies of my Lord the King?] He had told him before, that he found not the leaſt Fault in him: Therefore this Queſtion may ſeem impertinent. But David was to act his Part handſomely, upon this Occaſion; ſo that, though he was inwardly pleaſed, he would not have them ſuſpect he was glad to be diſmiſſed: And therefore, ſince the King was ſatisfied with his Fidelity, asks why he might not be truſted to fight againſt his Enemies, and that his Lords would give him a Reaſon? But Abarbinel thinks he never intended this; but being choſen by Achiſh to be the Keeper of his Head (xxviii. 2.) he reſolved only to diſcharge this Office; but not to join in the Battle againſt Iſrael.

Ver. 9. And Achiſh anſwered and ſaid to David, I know that thou art good in my ſight as an Angel of God.] He had learn'd ſomething, as I obſerved before, ver. 6. of the Hebrew Religion: And it appears by this, of their Language alſo. And the Meaning is, he look'd upon David as a Man ſent down from Heaven to him: All things proſpering that he took in hand.

Notwithſtanding the Princes of the Philiſtines have ſaid, he ſhall not go with us to Battle.] They ſeem to have made ſuch an Order in Council: Which the King durſt not contradict.

Ver. 10. Wherefore now riſe up early in the Morning.] Leſt any Miſchief ſhould come to him, if he delayed his Departure.

With thy Maſter's Servants that are come with thee.] This intimates, that the Lords of the Philiſtines would not truſt them, becauſe they looked on them ſtill as Saul's Subjects.

And as ſoon as ye are up early in the Morning, and have light, depart.] He adviſes them to loſe no Time, but as ſoon as they could ſee their Way, leave the Army, and march to Ziklag.

Ver. 11. So David and his Men roſe up early in the Morning, to return into the Land of the Philiſtines.] For now they were in the Philiſtines Camp, in the Land of Iſrael, at Aphek, xxix. 1. And the Philiſtines went up to Jezreel.] To the Battel to the Iſraelites, who were pitched there, ver. 1.

CHAP. XXX.

Verſe 1. AND it came to paſs, when David and his Men were come to Ziklag on the third Day.] So many Days Journey it was from the Camp of the Philiſtines to this Place. See the beginning of the next Book, ver. 2.

That the Amalekites had invaded the South, and Ziklag, and ſmote Ziklag, and burnt it with Fire.] To revenge themſelves for what David had done to them, xxvii. 8. which they might eaſily do, when he and his Men were abſent; and but a ſmall, if any, Guard left in the Place.

Ver. 2. And had taken the Women captive that were therein: they ſlew not any, either great or ſmall; but carried them away, and went on their way.] Towards their own Country. This may ſeem ſtrange, that David having killed all he could meet with, and ſpared none, neither Men nor Women, xxvii. 9, 11. they ſhould not ſerve his People in the ſame kind. But though they ſought Revenge, yet they deſired Booty much more: Being a poor, and very covetous People; who intended to ſell them for Slaves, and make Money of them.

Ver. 3. And David and his Men came to the City, and behold it was burnt with Fire: and their Wives, and their Sons, and their Daughters were taken captive.] This befel David when he ſeemed to be in the greateſt Security: Having eſcaped the Fury of Saul, and alſo the Service of the Philiſtines; who were likely to make Saul pay very dear for his ill Uſage of David. But ſuch is the State of this World, we are oft ſurprized with ſudden unexpected Troubles; and, as the Proverb is, many Things fall out between the Cup and the Lip.

Ver. 4. And David and the People that were with him lift up their Voice and wept: until they had no power to weep.] For ſuch Calamities are enough to break the Heart of the moſt couragious and undaunted Spirits.

Ver. 5. And David's two Wives were taken captive, Ahinoam the Jezreelite, and Abigail the Wife of Nabal the Carmelite.] This is ſet down diſtinctly, to aggravate David's Loſs.

Ver. 6. And David was greatly diſtreſſed, for the People ſpake of ſtoning him.] As the Cauſe of this Calamity, in leaving the City unguarded; or in provoking the Amalekites ſo grievouſly as he had done, in the Slaughter of all he could find.

Becauſe the Soul of the People was grieved; every Man for his Sons, and for his Daughters.] Grief took away the uſe of their Reaſon.

But David encouraged himſelf in the LORD his God.] Who had never failed him in the greateſt Diſtreſſes: But done great things for him, and promiſed to do greater.

Ver. 7. And David ſaid to Abiathar the Prieſt, Ahimelech's Son, Bring me hither, I pray thee, the Ephod.] From theſe Words Petrus Cunæus, (Lib. 1. de Rep. Heb. Cap. 14.) concludes that the Kings of Iſrael might make uſe of the Ephod, as well as the High-Prieſt: Becauſe David ſaith, bring me hither, &c. But this doth not ſignify that he himſelf meant to uſe it; but only that he deſired it might be uſed for him: According to what is ſaid of Joſhua, in Numb. xxvii. 21. that he ſhould ſtand before Eleazar the Prieſt, who ſhould enquire for him, &c.

And Abiathar brought thither the Ephod unto David.] From theſe Words the ſame Cunæus, in an Epiſtle of his to Caſpar Barlæus (Epiſt. Eccleſiaſticæ, 506. p. 767.) argues for his forenamed Opinion, becauſe it is not ſaid he brought it le David, but el David: The former of which, he thinks, might have ſignified for his Uſe; but this denotes, it was for him to uſe himſelf. Which he endeavours to confirm from the high Privilege which the King had above other Men, of ſitting in the Houſe of God, &c. But this is confuted lately by a Man very learned in theſe Matters, (John Braunius, Lib. 2. de Veſt. Hebr. Sacerd. Cap. 20. n. 32.) who well obſerves (as Buxtorf alſo doth) that in the foregoing Words David doth ſay, bring the Ephod, li, i. e. pro me, or mea cauſa, for me, or in meam gratiam, for my ſake.

Ver. 8. And David enquired at the LORD, ſaying, Shall I purſue after this Troop?] He enquired by Abiathar. So all the Hebrew Doctors, as Buxtorf obſerves in his Hiſt. Urim, Cap. 3.

Shall I overtake them?] This ſhews it is a vain Obſervation of the Jews, that they were not to ask two Queſtions together: For David ſtill continues to do ſo here, as he had done at Keilah; though God, they ſay there, had ſet him right in his Enquiry, and taught him to do otherwiſe.

And he anſwered him, Purſue; for thou ſhalt ſurely overtake them, and without fail recover all.] He anſwers both Queſtions at once, and tells him alſo more than he ask'd; that he ſhould regain all that he had loſt: Which no doubt was a mighty Encouragement unto him in his Purſuit.

Ver. 9. So David went, he and the ſix hundred Men that were with him, and came to the Brook Beſor; where thoſe that were left behind, ſtayed.] They that were left to look after the Stuff (ver. 24.) who were ſo tired, that they were not able to march any farther.

Ver. 10. So David purſued, he and four hundred Men: for two hundred abode behind, who were ſo faint, that they could not go over the Brook Beſor.] Grief, it is likely, made them neglect to take neceſſary Refreſhment, before they came out.

Ver. 11. And they found an Egyptian in the Field.] They knew him to be ſo by his Habit: Or perhaps they did not know whence he was, 'till he came to himſelf, and told them. But finding him in the Garb of a Soldier, they thought he belonged to the Amalekites.

And brought him to David.] Half dead.

And they gave him Bread, and he did eat, and made him drink Water.] Natural Compaſſion might move them to this: But they had another Motive, which was the Hope of making ſome Diſcovery, by his means, where the Enemies were.

Ver. 12. And they gave him a piece of a Cake of Figs, and two Cluſters of Raiſins.] Did all they could to comfort him up, and revive his Spirits.

And when he had eaten, his Spirit came again to him: For he had eaten no Bread, nor drunk any Water, three days and three nights.] Having no body near him to look after him: And being ſo ſick, he could not look after himſelf. This is to be underſtood as Matth. xii. 40. of one whole Day, and part of two others: As appears from the next Verſe, where he ſaith, three Days ago I fell ſick. In the Hebrew, I fell ſick this third Day, i. e. this is the third Day ſince I fell ſick.

Ver. 13. And David ſaid, To whom belongeſt thou, and whence art thou? And he ſaid, I am a young Man of Egypt, Servant to an Amalekite: and my Maſter left me, becauſe three Days ago I fell ſick.] A barbarous Act, to leave him there to periſh; when they had Camels good Store, for the Carriage of Men, as well as of their Spoil, ver. 17. But this Inhumanity coſt them dear: For by this means they loſt their own Lives. Such is the wonderful Providence of God (as Conr. Pellicanus here piouſly obſerves) which governs all the Deſires, and Thoughts, and Counſels, and Works, and whatſoever is done among Men; both the good and the bad.

Ver. 14. And we made an Invaſion upon the South of the Cherethites,] They are the ſame with the Philiſtines. For the Arabians call their Country (as Bochartus obſerves) Keritha, and the Syrians call it Creth. Whoſe Inhabitants the Hebrews call Crethi or Crethim. And to put all out of doubt, the South of the Cherethites here mentioned, is in the ſixth Verſe explained, the Land of the Philiſtines. Who were excellent Archers, as we may gather from xxxi. 3. See there.

And upon the Coaſt that belongeth to Judah.] The South Coaſt of that Tribe.

And upon the Land of Caleb;] We read no where elſe of this Land: which, in all probability, ſignifies that South part of Judah which was given to Caleb, and which his Poſterity inherited, Joſh. xiv. 13.

And we burnt Ziklag with Fire.] With which they ſeem to have ended their Expedition.

Ver. 15. And David ſaid, Canſt thou bring me down to this Company? And he ſaid, Swear unto me by the LORD, that thou wilt neither kill me, nor deliver me into the hand of my Maſter,] Who, it is likely, had otherwiſe been cruel to him: And therefore he had no mind to ſerve him any longer. Beſides his Service, I ſuppoſe, was no better than Slavery.

And I will bring thee down to this Company.] For he heard them ſay, it is likely, where they would ſtay and reſt themſelves.

Ver. 16. And when he had brought him down,] Who had given him Security, no doubt, by his Oath, as he deſired: And that, as I obſerved before, was ſuch a ſacred thing in ancient times, that all Men relied upon it.

Behold, they were ſpread abroad upon the Earth, eating and drinking, and dancing: becauſe of the great Spoil they had taken out of the Land of the Philiſtines, and out of the Land of Judah.] They had laid aſide their Arms, and were feaſting and making merry; as Men are wont to do, when they have had great Succeſs in their Enterprizes.

Ver. 27. And David ſmote them from the Twilight, even unto the Evening of the next Day.] He came came upon them in the Evening, when they were refreshing and resting themselves with Mirth and Jollity: Being secure that no Danger was near them; because the Israelites and the Philistines (among whom they thought David was) were ready to engage; so that he could no more come to revenge himself, than the Philistines could for the Injuries done to them. And it is probable David let them fall asleep, when they had eaten and drunk liberally; and at Peep of Day fell upon them, and hunted them until the Evening; which begun the next Day.

And there escaped not a Man of them, save four hundred young Men that rode upon Camels,] The Country of Arabia, where this People lived, abounded with Camels: One sort of which run very swiftly. They were used also by some Nations in Battel: As Vegetius observes, Lib. 3. de Re Militari, Cap. 23. See Stewechius's Annotations on him.

Ver. 18. And recovered all that the Amalekites had carried away: and David rescued his two Wives.] Which are here particularly mentioned, because he had the greatest concern for them.

Ver. 19. And there was nothing lacking to them, either small or great, neither Son nor Daughter, neither Spoil, nor any thing they had taken to them.] According to the Word of God, ver. 6.

Ver. 20. And David took all the Flocks and the Herds,] Which had been taken by the Amalekites from the Philistines, and other Places.

Which he drave before those other Cattle,] His Soldiers drave them before those Cattle that had been taken from David and his Men.

And said, This is David's Spoil.] Not that he challenged it all to himself: But that it was acquired by his Valour and Conduct; which they now magnified, who lately spake of stoning him. For some think they sung a triumphant Song, and that this was the Burden of it: Which they repeated at the end of every Verse.

Ver. 21. And David came to the two hundred Men, which were so faint that they could not follow David: whom he had made also to abide at the Brook Besor.] That they might look after their Stuff.

And they went forth to meet David, and to meet the People that were with him.] To congratulate their happy Success: And to receive their Wives and Children, who had been carried captive.

And when David came unto the People, he saluted them.] He was glad to see them, and enquired how they did (as it is in the Margin) for he had left them very weak.

Ver. 22. Then answered all the wicked Men, and Men of Belial of those that went with David, and said,] It is likely David told these two hundred Men, when he saluted them, that they should lose nothing, by their not being able to go along with him: Which made these Men, who had no Conscience, but were only greedy of Prey, to say what follows.

Because they went not with us, we will not give them ought of the spoil which we have recovered; save to every Man his Wife and his Children, that he may lead them away, and depart.] This was a savage Resolution of such as feared not God, nor regarded Men: Since it was not the Choice of their Brethren to stay behind, but meer Necessity, and Inability to travel further.

Ver. 23. Then said David,] Who still preserved his Authority over the most wicked among them.

Ye shall not do so, my Brethren.] He overrules them: But thought fit to do it in a friendly manner.

With that which God hath given us, who hath preserved us, and delivered the Company that came against us, into our hand.] As much as to say, when God hath been so good to us, we ought not to be unkind to our Brethren.

Ver. 24. For who will hearken unto you in this matter?] No equal Persons, he was confident, would be of their Opinion, if the Matter was referred to them.

But as his part is that goeth down to the Battel, so shall his part be that tarrieth by the Stuff: their parts shall be alike.] Polybius explains the Order of dividing the Spoils of War (as Grotius observes, Lib. 3. de Jure Belli & Pacis, Cap. 6. Sect. 17.) some of which was allotted those who remained in the Camp. But the Proportions were various in several Places. In some, a simple Portion was given to a Footman; a double to a Centurion; and a treble to a Horseman. In other Places they varied from this: But howsoever the Division was made, the Commander in Chief was allowed to take the best of the Spoil to himself. As David perhaps now did: And then left the rest to be equally divided among his Men. But the Talmudists say, that in After-Times, the King had all the royal Furniture that was found in the Tent of the conquered Prince, given unto him for his Share.

Ver. 25. And it was so from that day forward, that he made it a Statute and an Ordinance for Israel, unto this day.] The Equity of this Law appears from hence; that by common Consent these two hundred Men were left behind, to look after their Baggage: And they were part of the same Body of Men, linked together in the same common Society: And were hindred by meer Weariness from going to fight, which otherways they would have done. And their Will was accepted for the Deed. And they were in the same common Danger; for if the four hundred had been routed, their Enemies would soon have cut them off.

This Law may seem to have been ordained before by God himself in Numbers xxxi. Which if it were, it may be thought strange that David should not alledge that Law, to quiet the present Contention. But it is evident, this was a very different Case from that: For threescore thousand who staid at home, had no more among them, than the twelve thousand had who went to the Battle, ver. 27. of that Chapter. And what was then done was not ordained to be observed as a Statute through all Generations. This therefore was a new Law, but perpetually continued to the Time of the Maccabees; as appears from the second Book of their History, chap. viii. ver. 28, 30. And Osiander observes, that it pleased the Romans to do the same, as Festus tells us. See Josh. xxii. 8.

But

But the moſt ancient Cuſtom among the Romans was (as Godeſcalcus Stewechius ſhews at large, upon Vegetius de Re Militari, Lib. 2. Cap. 7.) to burn part of the Spoils, as an Offering to their Gods; and for the reſt, ſometimes the Soldiers were permitted to keep what every Man had got, to himſelf: And ſometimes, if the Neceſſities of the Commonwealth required, they were all brought to the Quæſtor, to be put into the Publick Treaſury. Out of thoſe which every Man kept to himſelf, they were wont, when they came home, to have ſome of them upon the Poſts of the Gates to their Houſes: Which it was lawful to remove, when an Houſe was ſold to another Man.

Ver. 26. And when David came to Ziklag, he ſent of the Spoil to the Elders of Judah, even to his Friends.] By this ſeems plain, that he had reſerved ſome Part of the Spoil to himſelf; out of which he made Preſents to his Friends: Some of which were of the beſt Quality in the Tribe of Judah.

Saying, Behold, a Preſent for you of the Spoil of the Enemies of the LORD.] In the Hebrew, a Bleſſing for you, &c. So he calls the Preſent, becauſe it was a Token that he wiſhed all Proſperity to them; who had been kind to him in his Baniſhment, and help'd to maintain and protect him: And whom he was deſirous ſtill to oblige, that they might more readily receive him, when he had a Right to take Poſſeſſion of the Kingdom.

Ver. 27. And to them which were in Bethel.] This ſeems to be the ſame Place, with that which is called Baalath and Kirjath-baal, Joſh. xv. 9, 60.

And to them which were in South-Ramoth.] A Place in the Tribe of Simeon, Joſh. xix. 8. called Ramoth in the South, to diſtinguiſh it from Ramoth-Gilead, which lay Northward. By which it appears he had other Friends, who ſometimes gave him Shelter, or Subſiſtence, beſides thoſe in his own Tribe.

And to them which were in Jattir.] A Town in the Mountainous Part of the Tribe of Judah, Joſh. xv. 48.

Ver. 28. And to them that were in Aroer, &c.] Not that on the other ſide Jordan (mentioned in Numb. xxxii.) but ſome other Place, in the Tribe of Judah, or ſome neighbouring Tribe, where the other Places here mentioned were: For we no where read, that David ever fled, during Saul's Perſecution, into the Country beyond Jordan.

Ver. 29. And to them which were in Rachal, and to them which were in the Cities of the Jerahmeelites.] Theſe People lay on the South of Judah, xxvii. 10. where it is likely, Rachal alſo was.

And to them that were in the Cities of the Kenites.] Who were near to the Jerahmeelites; it appears from the forenamed Place.

Ver. 30. And to thoſe that were in Hormah.] This was a City in the Tribe of Judah, Joſh. xv. 30. afterwards given unto the Tribe of Simeon, Joſh. xix. 4.

And to them that were in Chor-aſhan, and to them that were in Athach.] It is probable that theſe two Places were alſo in the ſame Tribe.

Ver. 31. And to them which were in Hebron.] Which was certainly a City of Judah, Joſh. xv. 54. Where David was firſt made King, and reigned over that Tribe, 2 Sam. ii. 1, 2, &c.

And to all the Places where David and his Men were wont to haunt.] Either to lurk among them, or to get Proviſions, or Intelligence from them.

CHAP. XXXI.

Ver. 1. AND the Philiſtines fought againſt Iſrael.] i. e. Gave them Battel: And as they began the Quarrel (xxix. 1.) ſo they ſeem to have begun the Fight.

And the Men of Iſrael fled from before the Philiſtines, and fell down ſlain in Mount Gilboa.] They fled thither from the Valley of Jezreel, and were there ſlain in great numbers.

Ver. 2. And the Philiſtines followed hard upon Saul, and upon his Sons.] Who were the Leaders of the Army: Which the Philiſtines thought would never rally again, if they were ſlain or taken.

And the Philiſtines ſlew Jonathan, and Abinadab, and Malchiſhua, Saul's Sons.] It ſeems Iſhboſheth was not there, being no warlike Man; or he eſcaped out of the Battel by flight, as Abner and other great Men did: Or perhaps he was left at home to manage domeſtick Affairs. Jonathan ſeems to have deſerved a better Fate: But the Providence of God ſuffered him to be ſlain, that David might more eaſily come to the Throne. For though he had freely conſented to it, yet he was ſuch a Favourite of the People, that many of them might have ſtickled for him.

Ver. 3. And the Battel went ſore againſt Saul.] They purſued him ſo cloſe, that there was no Hope he could eſcape.

And the Arthers hit him, and he was ſorely wounded of the Archers.] In the Hebrew the words are, the Archers found him: Which ſignifies in that Language, to ruſh upon one on a ſudden. Bows and Arrows were the principal Weapons of this Nation; in the Uſe of which they were very dexterous, and did terrible Execution. Which is the Reaſon, ſome think, that David when he came to the Throne, taught the Iſraelites the Uſe of the Bow (as we read in the next Book, Chap. i. ver. 18.) that they might not be inferior to the Philiſtines, nor fall into the like Diſaſter that Saul had done. And when he had made Peace with the Philiſtines, he took ſome of their Archers, with whom he was well acquainted, to be the Keepers of his Body: Which are thoſe ſo often mentioned in the following Books under the Name of Cerethites, 2 Sam. viii. 18. xv. 18. xx. 7. 1 Kings i. 38, 44. 1 Chron. xviii. 17. in all which Places where the Hebrew hath the word Cerethi, the Chaldee Paraphraſt interprets it Archers. See Bochartus in his Canaan, Lib. 1. Cap. 15. p. 459.

Ver. 4. Then ſaid Saul unto his Armour-bearer, draw thy Sword, and thruſt me through therewith.] For tho' he had received many Wounds, yet they were not mortal; at leaſt, not for the preſent.

Leſt theſe uncircumciſed come, and thruſt me through, and abuſe me.] He was afraid they might put him to ſome ignominious Death, or make ſport with him, as they did with Samſon.

But his Armour-bearer would not, for he was ſore afraid.] Dreaded to think of killing his King.

Therefore Saul took a Sword, and fell upon it.] And killed himſelf, as appears by the next Words.

Ver. 5. And when his Armour-bearer ſaw that Saul was dead, he fell likewiſe upon his Sword, and died with him.] Some of the Jews think this was Doeg.

Ver. 6. So Saul died, and his three Sons, and his Armour-bearer, and all his Men, the ſame day together.] That is, all the Men that attended upon his Perſon.

Ver. 7. And when the Men of Iſrael that were on the other ſide of the Valley.] Of Jezreel.

And they that were on the other ſide Jordan.] Or rather, on this ſide Jordan: For the Hebrew Word ſignifies either ſide. And there was no Occaſion for thoſe beyond Jordan to flee.

Saw that the Men of Iſrael fled, and that Saul and his Sons were dead, they forſook the Cities and fled.] Being afraid, I ſuppoſe, to be carried Captive.

And the Philiſtines came and dwelt in them.] The Conſternation being ſo great, that there were none to oppoſe them.

Ver. 8. And it came to paſs on the morrow, when the Philiſtines came to ſtrip the Slain, that they found Saul and his three Sons fallen in Mount Gilboa.] It was contrary to Military Diſcipline, preſently to fall upon the Spoil: Which they did not till the next day.

And they cut off his Head.] As David had done the Head of Goliath.

And ſtript off his Armour, and ſent into the Land of the Philiſtines round about.] They ſent the News of this great Victory; and perhaps his Head and Armour in token of it.

To publiſh it in the Houſe of their Idols, and among the People.] That they might give thanks to their Gods, for the Victory they had obtained.

Ver. 10. And they put his Armour in the Houſe of Aſhtaroth.] As the Sword of Goliath was laid up in the Tabernacle.

And they faſtned his Body to the Wall of Beth-ſhan.] To expoſe it, as we do the Bodies of great Malefactors, to publick Shame and Reproach. And thus it appears by ver. 12. they did with the Bodies of his Sons.

Ver. 11. And when the Inhabitants of Jabeſh-Gilead heard of that which the Philiſtines had done to Saul.] They lived on the other ſide Jordan: For the People on this ſide were fled.

Ver. 12. All the valiant Men aroſe, and went all night.] To avoid Diſcovery.

And took the Body of Saul and the Bodies of his Sons from the Wall of Bethſhan.] Which was a City in the Tribe of Manaſſeh, not far from Jordan, and the Sea of Geneſaret: Out of which the Manaſites could not expel the old Inhabitants, Judges i. 27. To this Place they of Jabeſh might march in a Night's Time, and accompliſh their Deſign. Ariſtotle reports in the fifth Book of his Ethicks (as Strigelius here obſerves) that the Temples of the Graces were built in the very midſt of the Cities of the Greeks, that all Men might be admoniſhed to be grateful. Of which Virtue the Men of Jabeſh-Gilead gave a moſt Noble Example: Who being delivered by Saul, in the beginning of his Reign, from the Ammonites, when they were in danger to loſe their Eyes (Chap. xi.) now repay his Care of them when he was dead, by not ſuffering his Carcaſe to want the Honour of Burial.

And came to Jabeſh, and burnt them there.] Some think they burnt their Fleſh, which was rotten and putrid: Others, that they poured upon their Fleſh Aromatick hot Spices, ſuch as Joſeph ordered for the embalming of his Father: Or, as the Targum underſtands it, they burnt upon, or over them. Where Kimchi notes, that the Paraphraſt had reſpect to the Cuſtom delivered down from their Anceſtors, of burning the Beds and other Utenſils of the Dead upon their Graves; or to the burning of Spices. Certain it is, there was no ſuch Cuſtom as this among the Jews, of burning the Bodies of the Dead. Though ſome think that theſe People imitated the Heatheniſh Cuſtom, affecting Singularity, as appears from the Story of the Benjamites, Judges xxi. 8. where we read, they alone would not come into the Aſſembly of the whole Nation. Such a Singularity Gierus thinks they were now guilty of: And therefore in a parallel Place to this, 1 Chron. x. 11. there is no mention made of this burning: Either becauſe it was an unwonted Practice, or unworthy to be remembred.

Ver. 13. And they took their Bodies, and buried them under a Tree in Jabeſh.] In this alſo there ſeems to be ſome of the Superſtition of the Gentiles; among whom Trees were accounted ſacred Things.

And faſted ſeven days.] Expreſſed great Sorrow; of which this was a Token. Lucian ſaith in his Book De Luctu, that the Greeks were wont in their Funerals neither to eat nor drink for three Days. But this is not to be ſo underſtood; but that they faſted for ſeven Days together till the Evening (as the manner of faſting was among the Jews) and eat nothing all day.

A COMMENTARY UPON THE SECOND BOOK OF SAMUEL.

CHAP. I.

Ver. 1. NOW it came to paſs after the Death of Saul, when David was returned from the Slaughter of the Amalekites.] The Fight between Saul and the Philiſtines fell out, when David was in purſuit of the Amalekites.

And David had abode about two days in Ziklag.] Which it ſeems the Amalekites had not quite burnt; contenting themſelves with the Spoil.

Ver. 2. And it came to paſs on the third day.] After his coming into Ziklag.

That behold a Man came out of the Camp from Saul, with his Clothes rent, and Earth upon his Head.] As the manner of deep Mourners was. See 1 Sam. iv. 4.

And ſo it was, when he came to David, that he fell on the Earth, and did Obeyſance.] Honoured him as his King.

Ver. 3. And David ſaid, From whence comeſt thou? and he ſaid, Out of the Camp of Iſrael am I eſcaped.] Some of the Jews have a Conceit, that this was Doeg's Son: Of which, tho' there be no Proof, yet the Objection againſt it is of no Value. For Doeg was an Edomite, and this Perſon an Amalekite, which ſeems inconſiſtent with his being the Son of Doeg. But it is to be conſidered that all Amalekites were alſo Edomites: Tho' all Edomites were not Amalekites. For Amalek was Eſau's Grandſon by his Son Eliphaz, Gen. xxxvi. 15, 16.

Ver. 4. And David ſaid, How went the matter? I pray thee tell me. And he anſwered, that the People were fled from the Battel; and many of the People are alſo fallen and dead; and Saul and Jonathan his Son are dead alſo.] He relates the Matter very orderly; that firſt the Iſraelites were routed and fled; and then in the Purſuit of them many were ſlain; and in concluſion, Saul and Jonathan his Son. Which two he only mentions; thinking that David was principally concerned in them.

Ver. 5. And David ſaid unto the young Man that told him, How knoweſt thou that Saul and Jonathan are dead?] He might eaſily know that the Iſraelites were beaten; but not ſo eaſily that theſe were in the number of the Slain.

Ver. 6. And the young Man that told him, ſaid, As I happened by chance upon Mount Gilboa.] One would think by this, that he was not a Soldier, but a Countryman, who had occaſion to go that way.

Behold, Saul leaned upon his Spear.] Endeavouring to run it through his Body.

And lo, the Chariots and Horſemen followed hard after him.] So that he feared he ſhould fall into their hands, before he could diſpatch himſelf.

Ver. 7. And when he looked behind him, he ſaw me, and called unto me; and I anſwered, Here am I.] He looked round about him, to ſee if there were any near him of his Servants.

Ver. 8. And he ſaid unto me, Who art thou? and I anſwered, I am an Amalekite.] He did not diſſemble his Country, tho' he knew Saul had no reaſon to be a Friend to it.

Ver. 9. And he ſaid unto me again, Stand I pray thee upon me, and ſlay me.] He would have him lean ſo hard upon him, with the whole Weight of his Body, that the Spear might run through him; which he had not Strength to make it do. This is not a likely Story: For Saul, in all Probability, would have been as unwilling to be killed by an Amalekite, as by a Philiſtine.

For Anguiſh is come upon me.] The Hebrew word Schabatz is variouſly tranſlated. By ſome trembling; by others, Convulſions; by the LXX, σκότος, Darkneſs. Kimchi ſaith it was a Diſeaſe, which ſome ſay was the Cramp: But in Scripture, as Braunius obſerves (Lib. 1. de Veſtitu Sacerd. Hebr. Cap. 17. Sect. 9.) it never ſignifies any one of theſe Things, but ſome Ornament in a Garment. And therefore our marginal Tranſlation is better, my embroidered Coat hinders the Spear from going far into my Body: Or his Coat of Mail, as Diodate tranſlates it. For it conſiſted of little Rings one within another, which made it hard to penetrate. And thus Ralbag among the Jews underſtands it.

Becauſe my Life is yet whole within me.] He was not mortally wounded.

Ver. 10. So I ſtood upon him and ſlew him, becauſe I was ſure he could not live, after he was fallen.] This is contrary to what Saul ſaid juſt before, that his Life was whole within him (unleſs he meant that the Philiſtines would inſtantly come upon him and kill him) and it was as falſe that he ſlew him; for it appears by the foregoing Relation, that Saul killed himſelf: And that not with a Spear, but with his Sword, xxxi. 4. But this the young Man ſaid to excuſe himſelf, if David did not approve the Fact.

And I took the Crown that was on his Head, and the Bracelets that were on his Arms; and have brought them hither unto my Lord.] Saul was the firſt that had the Enſigns of Royal Authority; for the Judges had none: But were mere Miniſters of God (during his Pleaſure) who was their King and Governour. And it is not likely that Saul wore his Crown when he was in the Fight (for that had been to ſet out himſelf a Mark for the Philiſtines to ſhoot at) but it was carried along with him into the Field, by ſome that attended him; to be ready to put on, if he had gotten the Victory, and triumphed. The Jews think that Doeg his Armour-bearer had it in his Cuſtody: Who before he killed himſelf gave it to his Son (this young Amalekite) and bade him carry it to David: Hoping he might thereby ingratiate himſelf with him.

Ver. 11. And David took hold of his Clothes and rent them; and likewiſe all the Men that were with him.] That is, all his Attendants. Every one knows that this was a Token of very great Sorrow, and of a violent Paſſion: Which all Nations uſed, as we learn from Homer, Herodotus, Virgil, and other ancient Authors.

Ver. 12. And they mourned and wept.] The whole Company made great Lamentations, and ſhed many Tears.

And faſted until Even.] Till the Evening Sacrifice was offered: Tho' Buxtorf (in his Synag. Judaica) thinks they abſtained from all Meat and Drink, till the Stars appeared.

For Saul, and for Jonathan his Son, and for the People of the LORD, and for the Houſe of Iſrael; becauſe they were fallen by the Sword.] He had great reaſon to mourn for Jonathan, who was his great Friend; but ſome think he ſhould have rejoiced to hear of Saul's Death, who was his bitter Enemy. But there were many Reaſons for his bewailing his Death, as a publick Perſon, who was lately reconciled to him; and might poſſibly have returned to a better Mind, if he had lived longer. However, the Manner of his Death very much affected him; and the more, becauſe he heard perhaps of his being juſt before to conſult a Witch, and gave no Tokens of his Repentance. The Jews ſay, in both the Talmuds, that he mourned for Saul, as the Prince of the great Sanhedrim; and for Jonathan, as the Father of it. See Selden, Lib. 2. de Synedr. Cap. 16. Sect. 4.

Ver. 13. And David ſaid unto the young Man that told him, Whence art thou? and he ſaid, I am the Son of a Stranger; an Amalekite. He had told David once before who he was, in the Relation he made of his Diſcourſe with Saul, ver. 8. But being aſtoniſhed at the News, he did not attend unto that Circumſtance, or had forgot it. Beſides, a good Judge ought to examine Things ſtrictly, and not to truſt unto the firſt Anſwer.

Ver. 14. And David ſaid, How waſt thou not afraid to ſtretch forth thy hand, to deſtroy the LORD's Anointed?] Who, it is poſſible, might have recovered, and been carried off by ſome of his own Men: The Philiſtines, by ſome extraordinary Providence of God, being diverted from their Purſuit. And it was the greater Preſumption of this young Man to do it; ſince one of Saul's own Servants durſt not venture upon ſuch a Fact.

Ver. 15. And David called one of the young Men.] One of the Guards of his Body.

And ſaid unto him, Go near and fall upon him. And he ſmote him, that he died.] There was a known Law, that no Man ſhould be condemned out of the Mouth of one Witneſs: And the Jews tell us, that no Judge was to ſit alone, but to have ſome other joined with him: And that no Man's Teſtimony was to be taken againſt himſelf. But this was the ſingular Prerogative of their Kings, that they might alone hear any Man's Cauſe, and condemn him; and that out of the Mouth of one Witneſs, or from his own Confeſſion. Of which Maimonides gives this Caſe of the Amalekite as an Inſtance: Which he looks upon as an extraordinary Example, and as the King's Proceſs. See Schickhard, de Jure Regis, Cap. 4. Theorem 14. and my Notes upon Joſh. vii. 25. But after all, it looks ſomething hard, that a Man ſhould be put to death for doing what Saul himſelf deſired, and when he was ſure (if this Man ſaid true) that he could not live. Abarbinel therefore thinks, that this Man being an Amalekite, David ſuppoſed he might kill Saul out of Revenge, for the Slaughter he had made of his People.

Ver. 16. And David ſaid unto him, Thy Blood be upon thy Head: for thy Mouth hath teſtified againſt thee, ſaying, I have ſlain the LORD's Anointed.] That is, thou art the Cauſe of thine own Death; or the Blood thou haſt ſhed, is the Reaſon of thy Death.

Ver. 17. And David lamented with this Lamentation over Saul, and over Jonathan his Son.] He and his Servants had lamented them before, ver. 12. but now David compoſed a Song for a publick and univerſal Lamentation.

Ver. 18. Alſo he bad them teach the Children of Judah.] Among whom he now was; and over whom he firſt reigned. This comes in as a Parentheſis between the former Verſe and what follows; to ſhew his early Endeavours to promote the Good of the People.

The uſe of the Bow.] While he made Lamentation for the Dead, he did not neglect the Care of the Living: That they might be provided with better Means to defend themſelves. For they now looking upon him, as the King God deſigned ſhould rule over them, he ordered they ſhould immediately learn the Skill of uſing Bows and Arrows, in which the Philiſtines excelled them. See what I have noted, 1 Sam. xxxi. 3. Some indeed make this the Title of the following Song, which they were to ſing among their military Exerciſes: But the former ſeems a more natural Interpretation; which Conradus Pellicanus propoſed in the Beginning of the Reformation. The Jews, ſaith he, hitherto uſed only Slings and Swords; but now were taught to ſhoot with Bows and Arrows: For it did not misbecome them to learn the Art of defending themſelves from Infidels. And indeed the Benefit of having good Archers in an Army is ſo great, that Cato took the pains to deſcribe it in his Book of Military Diſcipline, as Vegetius tells us. Who ſays, that Scipio hoped for no Succeſs in Africa againſt the Numantines, niſi in omnibus centuriis lectos ſagittarios miſcuiſſet, unleſs he had mingled ſome choice Archers with every Company of Soldiers, commanded by a Centurion, Lib. 1. Cap. 15. And as this was done among the Footmen, ſo in the next Book he makes it the Qualification of a Captain of Horſe, ſagittas doctiſſime mittere,, to ſhoot Arrows moſt ſkilfully, Lib. 2. Cap. 14.

Behold, it is written in the Book of Jaſher,] That is, this Order for teaching the Children of Judah the Uſe of the Bow, was more largely recorded there. But what Book this was, is very uncertain: Yet Victorinus Strigelius adventures to ſay, Haud dubie fuit Hiſtoria Eccleſiaſtica, qualis nunc eſt Euſebiana, aut Theodoretica: Without doubt it was an Eccleſiaſtical Hiſtory, like that which we have now of Euſebius, or Theodoret. See my Notes upon Joſh. x. 13. I ſhould rather ſay, that Jaſher ſignifying right, it was a Book concerning the right Art of making War: Upon which Subject the ancient Romans wrote many Books; particularly Cato, Cornelius Celſus, Frontinus and Paternus; which were abridged, as he himſelf tells us, by Vegetius de Re Militari, Lib. 1. Cap. 8. Procopius Gazæus thinks theſe Words declare, Hanc hiſtoriam ex multis libris collectam eſſe; that this Hiſtory was gathered out of many prophetical Books.

Ver. 19. The Beauty of Iſrael is ſlain upon thy high places.] The Flower of the Nation; their choice young Men: Together with Saul and his Sons.

How are the Mighty fallen!] What a Slaughter is made among the valiant Men!

Ver. 20. Tell it not in Gath, publiſh it not in the Streets of Askelon.] The City Gath ſeems to have been the Metropolis of the Philiſtines Country; and Askelon next to it. Where it was in vain to wiſh this might not be publiſhed: For it was done already. Therefore theſe are only Expreſſions of great Sadneſs and Sorrow, that this Overthrow ſhould be publiſhed, which he could not but wiſh had never been heard of.

Leſt the Daughters of the Philiſtines rejoice, leſt the Daughters of the Uncircumciſed triumph.] According to the manner of thoſe Countries; where the Women celebrated with Songs and Dances, the Victory of the Men over their Enemies. See Exod. xv. 1, &c. Judges xi. 34.

Ver. 21. Ye Mountains of Gilboa, let there be no Dew, neither let there be Rain upon you, nor Fields of Offerings.] Fruitful Fields, from whence Offerings might be brought to the Houſe of God. Theſe are Poetical Expreſſions, from the common Language of Mankind: Who are wont to ſpeak with abhorrence of thoſe Places, and to curſe them, where any Calamity hath befallen their Friends.

There the Shield of the Mighty is vilely caſt away.] They were forced to throw away their Shields, that they might run the faſter away; which was a great Diſgrace to them.

The Shield of Saul, as tho' he had not been anointed with Oil.] As if he had been a common Soldier. So theſe Words are generally interpreted as ſpoken of Saul. But the Words, as though he had, are not in the Hebrew; where there is only, not anointed with Oil: Which may as well relate to the Shield, as the Jews interpret it, and thus explain it. By the holy Oil, Men were ſet apart for ſome great Office; as that of Prieſts, and ſometimes Kings. Now when any Perſon, in a ſudden Danger of the State, was choſen to be Captain-General of their Army, they were wont to anoint him: That by this Sight he might be animated to fight the LORD's Battels courageouſly. And ſuch a Perſon was called, called, The Anointed of War: Nay, ſometimes (they ſay) their Armour was anointed, to increaſe their Confidence; juſt as the Veſſels of the Tabernacle were, which the Prieſts uſed: Unto which they think David alludes in theſe Words. See Guil. Schichardus, Cap. 1. Theorem 4. of his Jus Regium: Where Carpzovius obſerves, that theſe Words Iſaiah xxi. 9. favour this Interpretation: And is alledged by Raſi and Ralbag, as parallel to this Place. But he confeſſes he can find no where, that their Shields, or other warlike Inſtruments were anointed with holy Oil, to make them fight with greater Boldneſs.

Ver. 22. From the Blood of the ſlain, from the Fat of the mighty, the Bow of Jonathan turned not back.] By this it appears, that Jonathan was a very ſkilful Archer (as perhaps ſome other great Men were) though the common People were not trained up to the Uſe of the Bow: Which Jonathan ſo well managed, that as he always hit his Mark, ſo his Arrows pierced into the very Entrails of the moſt mighty Men.

And the Sword of Saul returned not empty.] Always did great Execution (as we now ſpeak) upon thoſe whom he fought withal.

Ver. 23. Saul and Jonathan were lovely and pleaſant in their Lives.] Courteous and kind to their People: Which is a great Virtue in Princes. To David indeed Saul expreſſed a great deal of Ill-nature: But that proceeded from Saul's Jealouſy, and Fear that he would ſupplant his Family, and place himſelf in the Throne. And this highly advances the Glory of David, that he commends his greateſt Enemy for what was praiſe-worthy in him: As Cæſar, they ſay, could not but ſhed ſome Tears when Pompey's Head was brought to him, though we read of nothing that he ſpake in his praiſe.

And in their Death they were not divided.] Jonathan ſtuck cloſe to his Father in the Battel; and demonſtrated he was engaged in no Conſpiracy againſt him, as he had ſometime charged him.

They were ſwifter than Eagles.] In purſuing their Enemies. For this I have often obſerved, was a requiſite Quality in an excellent Warrior: Therefore in the Choice of Soldiers, Vegetius ſaith, Et velocitas requirenda eſt & robur. Both Swiftneſs and Strength were to be required, Lib. 1. de Re militari, Cap. 8. The great Advantages of being a ſwift Runner, he enumerates in the next Chapter.

They were ſtronger than Lions.] In overthrowing their Enemies, when they overtook them.

Ver. 24. Ye Daughters of Iſrael weep over Saul, who cloathed you in Scarlet, with other delights, and put Ornaments of Gold upon your Apparel.] He would have the Women bear a Part in this Lamentation over Saul, who adorned them with the rich Spoils of their Enemies. The Word other before delights is not in the Hebrew; but the Meaning ſeems to be, that they delighted in fine Clothes, which they did not want while Saul lived. And Scarlet was every where accounted the moſt precious Colour: The Emperor's Mantle being of Scarlet, as Braunius obſerves, Lib. 1. Cap. 15. de Veſtitu Sacerd. Hebr.

Ver. 25. How are the Mighty fallen in the midſt of the Battel! O Jonathan thou waſt ſlain in thy high places!] Of his own Country, which he valiantly defended.

Ver. 26. I am diſtreſſed for thee, my Brother Jonathan: very pleaſant haſt thou been unto me.] His Grief was as great for his Death, as the Pleaſure had been, which he took in his Company, while he lived.

Thy Love to me was wonderful, paſſing the Love of Women.] No leſs ardent, ſincere and ſweet, than the higheſt Conjugal Affection. Which ought to be (as Strigelius here gloſſes) ardent without Simulation, ſincere without any Suſpicions, and ſweet without Moroſity or Diſdain.

Ver. 27. How are the Mighty fallen.] This is repeated three times in this Song: Being an interlocutory Verſe.

And the Weapons of War periſhed!] All Military Glory gone from Iſrael.

CHAP. II.

Ver. 1. AND it came to paſs, that after this, David enquired of the LORD.] By Abiathar the High-Prieſt, as he had often done before, 1 Sam. xxvi. 9. and other Places.

Saying, Shall I go up into any of the Cities of Judah?] Which was his own Tribe, where he had moſt Friends; and therefore it was proper, he thought, to addreſs himſelf to them, who were beſt affected to him. But though he had a Right to the Kingdom by God's Deſignation, yet he would not enter into Poſſeſſion, nor take upon him the Adminiſtration of Affairs, without God's Advice and Direction.

And the LORD ſaid, Go up.] He approved of his going up into that Tribe; and thereby gave him hope of Succeſs.

And he ſaid, Whither ſhall I go up?] He aſked theſe Queſtions diſtinctly, as the Jews ſay the Manner was to do, and not two Queſtions at once. See upon 1 Sam. xxiii. 11. And ſee what I have further noted, xxx. 8.

And he ſaid, Unto Hebron.] Which was a principal City in that Tribe; and in the Middle of it: Where the People might more conveniently and eaſily reſort to him, than in Ziklag: Which was his own Town by the Gift of Achiſh, and at firſt in the Lot of Judah. See 1 Sam. xxvii. 6.

Ver. 2. So David went up thither, he and his two Wives, Ahinoam the Jezerelite, and Abigail Nabal's Wife the Carmelite.] Who being hitherto Companions in his Troubles, were now advanced to be Partakers of his Proſperity. This Theogena the Wife of Agathocles (as Strigelius obſerves) made the Character of a good Wife, who in Marriage enters into Society with a Husband, in all Things, both Good and Evil.

Ver. 3. And his Men that were with him, did David bring up every Man with his Houſhold.] He took care to provide for his Followers, and their Families, according to every one's Merit. But this, it is likely, was not done till he was ſettled: For to go up with ſo many armed Men, had been to frighten them into Compliance.

And

And they dwelt in the Cities of Hebron.] Which was given to the Prieſts to be a City of Refuge (Joſh. xxi. 11, 12.) and therefore could not contain all David's Followers: But only him and his Court. The reſt were diſpoſed of in the Cities depending upon Hebron.

Ver. 4. And the Men of Judah came.] The principal Perſons who repreſented the reſt.

And there they anointed David King.] Who had been anointed privately by Samuel, ſome time ago; but that was only a Deſignation of him to the Kingdom; into which he was now ſolemnly inaugurated by this publick Unction.

Over the Houſe of Judah.] Who would not preſume to know the Senſe of all Iſrael: Tho' they hoped they would follow their Example; as they afterwards did, and anointed him again, chap. v. ver. 3.

And they told David, that the Men of Jabeſh-Gilead were they who had buried Saul.] Which it ſeems he had not heard of, while he was in Ziklag; but now (by ſome Diſcourſe about Saul's Death) that Noble Action was related to him; which he recorded to their honour, in 1 Sam. xxxi. 11, 12, 13.

Ver. 5. And David ſent Meſſengers to the Men of Jabeſh-Gilead, ſaying, Bleſſed be ye of the LORD, that ye have ſhewed this kindneſs unto your Lord, even unto Saul, and have buried him.] This demonſtrates, both the great Piety, and the great Prudence of David. For he teſtified the true Kindneſs he had for Saul, though his virulent Enemy: And by wiſhing ſo heartily the Men of Jabeſh might be rewarded for what they had done, he invited them (who were Iſraelites on the other ſide of Jordan) to own him for their King.

Ver. 6. Now the LORD ſhew Kindneſs and Truth unto you: and I alſo will requite you this Kindneſs, becauſe ye have done this Thing.] He doth not content himſelf merely with praying God to reward them (which he repeats again) but promiſes that he would take care of them, by defending them from the Philiſtines; if they ſhould offer to invade them, for entring their Country without leave, and taking from thence the Trophies of their Victory.

Ver. 7. Now therefore let your Hands be ſtrong, and be ye valiant.] As they had been to an high degree, 1 Sam. xxxi. 12.

For your Maſter Saul is dead.] Or, though your Maſter Saul be dead.

And alſo the Houſe of Judah have anointed me King over them.] He would not have them diſcouraged, becauſe they wanted one to head them; for he being inveſted with the Royal Dignity by the Tribe of Judah, would look upon himſelf as bound to protect them alſo: Tho' they had not owned him for their Sovereign.

Ver. 8. But Abner the Son of Ner, Captain of Saul's Hoſt.] A Man of the greateſt Authority in Iſrael, after Saul was dead; being General of all their Forces.

Took Iſhboſheth the Son of Saul.] Called Eth-Baal, 1 Chron. viii. 31. as there are ſeveral other Names, which end indifferently, either in Boſheth or Baal. For inſtance, Gideon is called Jerubaal, Judges ix. 1. and Jerubbeſheth, 2 Sam. xi. 21. And Mephiboſheth is called Meribbaal, 1 Chron. viii. 34. For Boſheth ſignifies Shame and Confuſion; and Baal being an infamous Idol, the holy Scripture makes theſe Names end promiſcuouſly either in Baal, or Boſheth, or Beſheth.

And brought him over] The River Jordan.

To Mahanaim.] A Place in the Tribe of Gad, Joſh. xiii. 26. So called from the Appearance of an Hoſt of Angels to Jacob, as he came to Padan-Aram, with his Houſhold, Gen. xxxii. 1. Here Abner thought he might moſt ſecurely do what follows, being at a diſtance from David, under whom he could not promiſe himſelf that Command and Authority, which he hoped to maintain under Iſhboſheth.

Ver. 9. And he made him King over Gilead.] Over all the Tribes on the other ſide of Jordan: Which are comprehended under this Name.

And over the Aſhurites.] The Chaldee Paraphraſt underſtands hereby, the Tribe of Aſher: Who tho' remote from Mahanaim, were forward to acknowledge him.

And over Jezreel.] A large and noble Valley, on the Borders of Zebulon, Iſſachar, and Naphtali: Who are all comprehended under this Word.

And over Ephraim, and over Benjamin.] Under whom the Simeonites are comprehended.

And over all Iſrael.] All the Tribes on this ſide Jordan, ſave the Tribe of Judah.

Ver. 10. Iſhboſheth Saul's Son was forty years old, when he began to reign.] Therefore he was born in that very Year in which Saul was made King: For he reigned forty Years, as St. Paul tells us, Acts xiii. 21.

And reigned two Years.] Before there was any Hoſtility between him and David. So Ralbag expounds it, who makes this cohere with ver. 12. it being a mere Fancy of the Jews in Seder Olam Rabba, that the Throne was vacant, and there was no King in Iſrael for five Years. Victorinus Strigelius his Conjecture is far better: who, after he had given the foregoing Interpretation of Ralbag, adds, that after the War broke out between David and Iſhboſheth, and David waxed ſtronger and ſtronger (iii. 1.) Iſhboſheth being an unactive Prince, and unfit to command, Abner took the Adminiſtration of the Government upon himſelf, and managed the War the other five Years which paſſed before David came to the Throne of Iſrael. Theſe five Years the Scripture doth not reckon as a Part of Iſhboſheth's Reign; becauſe he had the meer Name of a King, but no Authority at all.

But the Houſe of Judah followed David.] Stuck cloſe to him, and were entirely at his Command.

Ver. 11. And the time that David was King in Hebron over the Houſe of Judah, was ſeven years and ſix months.] So long therefore Iſhboſheth reigned over Iſrael. Unleſs we will ſuppoſe, either that the Iſraelites were five Years deliberating whether he or Mephiboſheth ſhould be King (whoſe Right it was by the Laws of Succeſſion) or that he reigning two Years immediately after the Death of Saul, they were five Years deliberating whether they ſhould own David or no; neither of which is probable, as Ralbag thinks; who judiciouſly obſerves, that thoſe Words, he reigned two years, are to be joined with ver. 12. and Abner the Son of Ner went out, out, &c. That is, ſaith he, The two firſt Years of his Reign there was no War between the Houſe of Saul and David: And then there had been no open War, if Abner had not been the Author of it, &c.

Ver. 12. And Abner, the Son of Ner, and the Servants of Iſhboſheth the Son of Saul.] The principal Officers about the King.

Went out from Mahanaim to Gibeon.] They paſſed over Jordan, into the Country of Benjamin, where Gibeon was (Joſh. xviii. 25.) to fight with Judah, and to bring them into the Obedience of Saul's Son. It is obſervable, that David did not begin any Hoſtility: But waited to ſee how God would diſpoſe Things in his favour.

Ver. 13. And Joab the Son of Zeruiah, and the Servants of David went out.] To oppoſe the Deſigns of the Iſraelites: For Joab was the chief Commander of David's Forces; whom the principal Officers of his Houſhold attended.

And they met togother at the Pool of Gibeon: and they ſat down, the one on one ſide of the Pool, and the other on the other ſide of the Pool.] The two Armies faced one another (as we now ſpeak) being parted only by the Pool that was between them.

Ver. 14. And Abner ſaid unto Joab.] I ſuppoſe David had commanded Joab not to begin the Quarrel, but only ſtand upon his Defence. For he had ſworn to Saul, that he would not cut off his Seed: And therefore would not willingly engage againſt Iſhboſheth, 1 Sam. xxiv. 21.

Let the young Men ariſe, and play before us.] He deſires that ſome Soldiers might be pick'd out from the reſt; and make the two Armies ſport, as the Gladiators were wont to do in after-times among the Romans. Whereby alſo they might make a Trial of their Courage and Strength. So Joſephus ſaith, Abner was deſirous to learn πότερος αὐτῶν ἀνδρειατέρους στρατιώτας ἔχῃ, which of the two had the braveſt Soldiers.

Ver. 15. Then there aroſe and went over.] The Pool of Gibeon.

Twelve of Benjamin, which pertained to Iſhboſheth the Son of Saul.] They ſtill were forward to begin the Hoſtility: And Abner choſe this Number out of Benjamin, for the Honour (I ſuppoſe) of his own Tribe, and becauſe they were a valiant Sort of People; as appears by the Story in Judges xx.

And twelve of the Servants of David.] Whoſe Valour, no doubt, had been tried in other Exploits.

Ver. 16. And they caught every Man his Fellow.] That is, the Servants of David, laſt mentioned, caught each of them every one of the Benjamites that was his oppoſite.

By the Head.] That is, by the Hair of his Head, which they wore very long in thoſe Days.

And thruſt his Sword in his Fellow's ſide.] That is, David's Men killed every one of the Benjamites with whom he was engaged: So ſome ſay Joſephus underſtood it; though I can find no ſuch Thing in him.

So they fell down together.] All the twelve Men of Benjamin fell down dead together.

Therefore was the place called Helkath-hazzurim, which is in Gibeon.] The Hebrew Words ſignify, the Field of ſtrong Men; as hard and firm as a Rock.

Ver. 17. And there was a very ſore Battel that day.] The Men of Iſrael, enraged at the Loſs of their valiant Men, maintained a furious Fight the reſt of that day.

And Abner was beaten, and the Men of Iſrael, before the Servants of David.] But ſtill Succeſs followed the Men of Judah.

Ver. 18. And there were three Sons of Zeruiah there.] She was David's Siſter: And therefore theſe were his Nephews.

Joab, Abiſhai, and Aſahel.] All three very valiant Men, and great Commanders, as appears from 1 Chron. xxvii. 7. where the laſt of them is mentioned as one of David's twelve Captains over four and twenty thouſand Men. See alſo Chapter xi. 26. of that Book.

And Aſahel was as light of Foot as a wild Roe.] I noted in the foregoing Chapter, and in other Places, that to be ſwift of Foot, to purſue an Enemy, was a Quality highly eſteemed in Warriors. And therefore Plato, I remember, would have this to be one of the Exerciſes wherein Youth ſhould be trained up, viz. Racing; Ἐστιγὼν πάντων πολεμικώτατον ἡ σώματος ὀξύτης πάντως· ἡ μὲν ἀπὸ τῶν ποδῶν, ἡ δὲ τῶν χειρῶν, &c. Lib. 8. De Legibus, p. 852. Edit. Serrani.

Ver. 19. And Aſahel purſued after Abner.] Being deſirous of the Glory, either of taking or killing the greateſt Man in Iſrael.

And in going he turned not to the right hand, or to the left, from following Abner.] Nothing could turn him aſide to purſue any other Deſign: But he went right forward, having Abner only in his eye.

Ver. 20. Then Abner looked behind him, and ſaid, Art thou Aſahel? and he anſwered I am.] He ſpeaks to him civilly, having no mind to kill him.

Ver. 21. And Abner ſaid unto him, Turn thee aſide to the right hand or to the left, and lay thee hold on one of the young Men, and take his Armour.] That he might not return without ſome Spoil, he bids him take one of his Attendants, his Arms and all; and be content with this Glory of carrying away ſuch a Priſoner. Thus Kimchi expounds it. Others think he bids him try his Valour upon one of his Servants, and diſarm him; and not venture to encounter him, who was an old Soldier.

But Aſahel would not turn aſide from following him.] Being poſſeſſed with a vain Deſire, of more Glory than it was reaſonable to expect.

Ver. 22. And Abner ſaid again to Aſahel, Turn thee aſide from following me: wherefore ſhould I ſmite thee to the ground? how ſhall I hold up my Face to Joab thy Brother?] Who was a fierce Man, and he knew would ſtudy Revenge.

Ver. 23. Howbeit he refuſed to turn aſide: ſo Abner, with the hinder end of his Spear, ſmote him under the fifth Rib, that the Spear came out behind him.] Pierced quite through his Liver and Bowels. See xx. 10. So R. Johannes, in the Gemarah Sanhedrim, Cap. vi. Sect. 7. ſaith the fifth Rib is the Place where the Liver and the Gall are ſeated.

And he fell down there, and died in the ſame place.] He died immediately upon the ſpot (as we ſpeak) not being able to go, ſo much as one Step further. So dangerous it is to confide in a Man's own natural Strength; or to refuſe Offers of Peace; or deſpiſe a flying Enemy, as Pellicanus here obſerves. The old Saying was, If an Enemy fly, make way for him.

And it came to paſs, that as many as came to the place where Aſahel fell down and died, ſtood ſtill.] Ceaſed the Purſuit: Fearing perhaps the ſame Fate; or that Aſahel's Body ſhould be expoſed to any Indignity.

Ver. 24. Joab alſo and Abiſhai purſued after Abner: and the Sun went down, when they were come to the Hill of Ammah, that lieth towards Giath, by the way of the Wilderneſs of Gibeon.] They were not ſo nimble as Aſahel, and therefore could not overtake Abner: Yet ſo furious, that the Death of Aſahel could not ſtop them, till they came to this Place.

Ver. 25. And the Children of Benjamin gathered them together to Abner, and became one Troop, and ſtood on the top of a Hill.] Some of this Tribe, of which Abner was, and who were valiant People, as I obſerved before, rallied, as we now ſpeak; and ſtood in a Body, as if they would renew the Fight.

Ver. 26. And Abner called to Joab,] Who was on the Top of another Hill, ver. 24.

And ſaid, Shall the Sword devour for ever?] There ought to be a Meaſure ſet to our Anger: Which ought to go down with the Sun, as the Apoſtle ſpeaks.

Knoweſt thou not that it muſt be Bitterneſs in the end?] In civil Wars, as Cicero ſpeaks (in his fourth Book of his Familiar Epiſtles) all Things are miſerable, and nothing more miſerable than Victory itſelf: Which makes the Conqueror do many things againſt his Will, to ſatisfy thoſe by whom he conquers. Therefore he ſaith in another Place, Extremum omnium malorum eſt belli civilis victoria; Victory in a Civil War is the greateſt of all Evils. Such was this; as he puts him in mind in the next Words, that they who killed one another were Brethren.

How long ſhall it be, e'er thou bid the People return from following their Brethren?] They were all deſcended from one common Father; and all worſhipped one and the ſame God.

Ver. 27. And Joab ſaid, as God liveth, unleſs thou hadſt ſpoken, ſurely then in the Morning, the People had gone up every one from following his Brother.] He wiſhes he had been of this Mind in the Morning; for then there had been no fighting at all, if he had not deſired it, ver. 14. So Dr. Lightfoot paraphraſes this Verſe, If thou hadſt not ſaid what thou didſt in the Morning, (Let the young Men ariſe, and play before us) ſurely the People had gone every one from his Brother: and there had been never a blow ſtruck, but that thou didſt provoke it.

Ver. 28. So Joab blew the Trumpet,] Cauſed a Retreat to be ſounded.

And all the People ſtood ſtill, and followed after Iſrael no more, neither fought they any more.] Neither at that time, nor any other.

Ver. 29. And Abner and his Men walked all that Night through the Plain, and paſſed over Jordan.] They made all the haſte they could home: Being fearful to truſt themſelves near to the Army that had beaten them.

And went through all Bithron, and they came to Mahanaim.] Some think by Bithron is meant the Mountain of Bethor, mentioned Cantic. ii. 15.

Ver. 30. And Joab returned from following Abner: and when he had gathered all the People together,] Returning from the Purſuit, every one reſorted to the Company to which he belonged.

There lacked of the Servants of David nineteen Men, and Aſahel.] This is an Argument that the twelve Men of Judah, who began the Fight in a Combat with as many of Benjamin, were not killed: For if they were, then there would have been no more than ſeven Men killed in the Battel; which is not probable.

Ver. 31. And the Servants of David had ſmitten of Benjamin, and of Abner's Men, ſo that three hundred and threeſcore Men died.] This Loſs was not great in itſelf: For it is likely David had given order, his Men ſhould be as ſparing as they could, in killing their Brethren; who were, he knew, to be his Subjects.

Ver. 32. And they took up Aſahel, and buried him in the Sepulchre of his Father, which was in Bethlehem.] I think Joſephus takes this right; who ſaith, Joab and his Men lodged all Night in the Place of Battel, and buried their Dead; and then next Morning carried Aſahel to be buried among his Anceſtors.

And Joab and his Men went all night,] Having buried Aſahel, they marched all the next Night towards Hebron.

And they came to Hebron at Break of Day.] Where they gave David an account of all this Action.

CHAP. III.

Verſe 1. NOW there was long War between the Houſe of Saul, and the Houſe of David.] Their Enmity continuing throughout the whole Reign of Iſhboſheth, it is likely there were many Bickerings and Skirmiſhes between Iſrael and Judah; but no pitch'd Battel that we read of. The contrary rather ſeems to be affirmed in the foregoing Chapter, ver. 28.

But David waxed ſtronger and ſtronger, and the Houſe of Saul weaker and weaker.] In all their Rencounters (as we now ſpeak) David had the better: And it is likely many of the Iſraelites fell off to him; which very much added to his Strength, and weakened the Houſe of Saul.

Ver. 2. And unto David were Sons born in Hebron.] He had no Children, it ſeems, during his Exile: Or, if he had, they were Daughters.

His firſt-born was Amnon of Ahinoam the Jezreelite.] She was his Wife before Abigail, and brought forth his firſt-born Son; who proved a great Affliction to him.

Ver. 3. And his ſecond, Chileab of Abigail the Wife of Nabal the Carmelite.] Of whom we have no further Account any where: Only he is called Daniel in 1 Chron. iii. 1. And the Hebrew Doctors give this Reaſon of both Names. He called him, ſay they, when he was born, Daniel, (which was his Fundamental, that is, his primary Name) becauſe, ſaid he, God hath judged, or vindicated me from Nabal. And afterwards he called him Chileab, as much as to ſay, like to his his Father: Becauſe in his Countenance he reſembled David. And this he did, for this Reaſon, to ſilence the Mockers of that Age; who ſaid Abigail had conceived by Nabal, whoſe Son this was. For the confuting of which Calumny, God was pleaſed to order that the Faſhion of his Face ſhould be perfectly like to David's.

And the third Abſalom, the Son of Maacah, the Daughter of Talmai, King of Geſhur.] We read of the Geſhurites in the foregoing Book, xxvii. 8. upon whom it is there ſaid David made an Inroad; and brought away this fair Captive, a little before Saul's Death. And when he came to Hebron, and ſhe was ſufficiently inſtructed and prepared to be a Proſelyte, he made her his Wife. Thus the Jews tell the Story: Which doth not ſeem to be true, becauſe it is ſaid in that Invaſion, he ſlew all the Women. We muſt look therefore for other Geſhurites, whom we find in the North, as the forenamed were in the South. See Deut. iii. 14. Joſh. xii. 5. How David came by the Daughter of the King of theſe People, it is not eaſy to tell. Perhaps he thought it Policy to make a Friend of the King of Geſhur, who lay near to Iſhboſheth, and might be a Curb to him, and give him a Diverſion, if he attempted any thing againſt Judah: And therefore married his Daughter.

Ver. 4. The fourth, Adonijah, the Son of Haggith: the fifth, Shephatiah the Son of Abital.] Of the former of theſe, we read in the beginning of the next Book, how his Ambition led him to Deſtruction (as Abſalom's did) but nothing of the other.

Ver. 5. The ſixth, Ithream, by Eglah, David's Wife.] This only being called his Wife (though the reſt were ſo likewiſe) hath led the Jews into an Opinion, that Michal who was his firſt Wife is here called Eglah; becauſe ſhe was a lovely Woman, in whom he much delighted, when he firſt married her. It is ſaid indeed in vi. 23. ſhe had no Child unto the day of her Death: But the Meaning of that is, ſhe was barren after ſhe had taunted David for dancing before the Ark; not that ſhe never had a Child before that time.

Theſe were born to David in Hebron.] During the ſix Years and a half that he reigned there. I do not know what Weight there is in the Obſervation of Conradus Pellicanus on this Place, but leave it to the Judgment of the Reader. God ſo diſpenſed Things, that Men in thoſe days, of many Wives, ſeldom produced many Children, quaſi natura reclamante rei indignitatem, as if Nature abhorred the Indignity of the Thing, and approved the Conjunction of one Man with one Woman. He did well to ſay ſeldom; for we read of one who had threeſcore and ten Sons by many Wives (viz. Gideon) though they came to nothing.

Ver. 6. And it came to paſs, while there was War between the Houſe of Saul and the Houſe of David, that Abner made himſelf ſtrong for the Houſe of Saul.] Went up and down through all the Tribes of Iſrael, to ſtrengthen his Intereſt, and confirm them in their Allegiance to Iſhboſheth: As the ſame Pellicanus expounds it.

Ver. 7. And Saul had a Concubine, whoſe Name was Rizpah, the Daughter of Ajah.] By whom he had two Sons, xxi. 8.

And Iſhboſheth ſaid to Abner, Why haſt thou gone in to my Father's Concubine?] The Jews look upon it as a very great Crime, for any Man, tho' never ſo great, to marry the Widow of the King: For it was eſteemed an Affectation of the Kingdom; as appears in the Caſe of Adonijah. Therefore Iſhboſheth had reaſon to be angry with Abner, though he was ſo unſeaſonably.

Ver. 8. Then was Abner very wroth for the Words of Iſhboſheth.] He was grown ſo haughty, and thought his Merits ſo great; that he thought he might do any thing, without Reprehenſion.

And ſaid, Am I a Dog's Head,] He thought Iſhboſheth uſed him not as a Captain of the Hoſt of Iſrael, but as if he had been a Keeper of Dogs. So the word Head ſignifies, as the Jews generally explain it. Raſi, for inſtance; I am treated as if I was a Commander that hath only the Cuſtody of Dogs. To the ſame purpoſe Kimchi: And R. Eſaias more largely (as Bochart obſerves) When I am a Leader of all Iſrael, thou haſt caſt Contempt upon me, as if I was only ſet over a Company of Dogs. So the Syriack here tranſlates Dog in the Plural: Captain of a Pack of Dogs. Which was a vile Employment, becauſe a Dog is generally accounted the vileſt Animal, Hierozoicon, P. 1. Lib. 2. Cap. 56.

Which againſt Judah do ſhew kindneſs this day to the Houſe of Saul thy Father, to his Brethren, and to his Friends, and have not delivered thee into the hand of David,] He inſolently reckons up his great Services to him, and to his Family: When he could have ruined him, if he had pleaſed; by making David King, as eaſily as he had done him.

That thou chargeſt me with a Fault concerning this Woman?] He upbraids him with Ingratitude, in taking notice of ſuch a ſmall Fault (as he accounted it) of lying with Rizpah. For as Peter Martyr thinks, he did not intend to have her for his Wife; but uſed her as his Harlot.

Ver. 9. So do God to Abner, and more alſo, except as the LORD hath ſworn to David, even ſo do I to him.] Theſe Words ſhew he knew very well God had unalterably reſolved to beſtow the Kingdom of Iſrael upon David: And yet his Ambition led him hitherto, to oppoſe not only David, but the LORD himſelf.

Ver. 10. To tranſlate the Kingdom from the Houſe of Saul, and to ſet up the Throne of David over Iſrael and over Judah, from Dan even to Beerſheba.] A wonderful Change! which the Study of Revenge wrought in him: That he who lately went about the Country, confirming the Iſraelites in their Oppoſition to David, now reſolved to bring them all over to him. Such is the Genius of many great Courtiers, who are irritated upon ſlight Occaſions: and rather rule over Kings, than are ruled by them. They are the Words of Conradus Pellicanus.

Ver. 11. And he could not anſwer Abner again, becauſe he feared him.] He was afraid to provoke him to a higher Degree, by anſwering him again: And therefore now was ſilent, when it was too late.

Ver. 12. And Abner ſent Meſſengers to David on his behalf.] Having thus incenſed his Maſter, he he thought it not ſafe to delay the Execution of what he had threatned. Yet, thought it neither ſafe nor prudent to go himſelf to David, till he tried his Inclinations by Meſſengers, whom he privately ſent to treat with him.

Saying, Whoſe is the Land?] This was as much as to ſay, that he owned him to be Lord of all the Country, by God's ſpecial Gift.

Saying alſo, Make thy League with me; and behold my Hand ſhall be with thee, to bring about all Iſrael to thee.] He deſires all Enmities might be forgotten, and that David would make a League of Friendſhip with him: And then he undertook, having a great Power over Iſrael, to make them all his Subjects.

Ver. 13. And he ſaid, Well, I will make a League with thee.] He ſoon agreed to the Motion; with which he could not but be well pleaſed. But ſome think he did ill, to make a League with ſuch a wicked Man; eſpecially ſince he did not enquire of God, whether he ſhould do it or no. But this is more than any body can tell; for many things were done, that are not recorded.

But one thing I require of thee; that is, thou ſhalt not ſee my Face, except thou firſt bring Michal Saul's Daughter, when thou comeſt to ſee my Face.] This was a very reaſonable Condition, if Abner was able to effect it; both upon David's own account, and her's: For ſhe was his firſt and beloved Wife; and ſhe was by force given to another Man: who could not lawfully enjoy her; David having given her no Bill of Divorce. And therefore Phalti, the Jews think, being a good Man, never knew her, (as I obſerved on the foregoing Book, xxv. 44.) So that ſhe lived unhappy, in a double State of Separation; from David, and from her preſent Huſband. There was ſomething of Policy alſo in this Demand; that he might ingratiate himſelf with the Iſraelites, by ſhowing great Love to the Houſe of Saul.

Ver. 14. And David ſent Meſſengers to Iſhboſheth, Saul's Son, ſaying,] We do not read what Anſwer Abner gave to David, when he required the forenamed Condition of him. But it is probable he let David know, as the Truth was, that it was not in his power to bring Michal without Iſhboſheth's Conſent, whoſe Siſter as well as Subject ſhe was: At leaſt, it was not ſafe to attempt it; and therefore he adviſed him to ſend to her Brother, who could not eaſily deny what he deſired: Which Abner alſo, it is likely, undertook to repreſent, as a moſt juſt Demand.

This Counſel of Abner, David followed, and it had the Succeſs he wiſhed.

Deliver me my Wife Michal, which I eſpouſed to me, for an hundred Foreſkins of the Philiſtines.] Whom he purchaſed of Saul with the Hazard of his Life.

Ver. 15. And Iſhboſheth ſent, and took her from her Husband,] He is called her Husband, ſays the Gemara Sanhedrim (Cap. 7. Sect. 2.) becauſe he loved her with a Conjugal Affection: Tho' he did not enjoy her. This was an honourable Action of Iſhboſheth, to reſtore David his lawful Wife: Like to which Strigelius here notes in ſeveral great Men. Particularly in the famous Scipio, who reſtored Allucius's Wife to him, who had been taken by his Soldiers. And Pauſanias General of the Lacedæmonians; who after the Fight at Platea, ſent Coa, who was a Captive, unto her Relations.

Even from Phaltiel the Son of Laiſh.] Called Phalti in 1 Sam. xxv. 44. The Word El is here added, ſay the Jews, becauſe God interpoſed all the time he had her, to keep them from Sin. For he put a Sword between Michal and him, when he went to bed to her; ſignifying he ſhould be cut off if he lay with her. Kimchi and Ralbag follow this Fancy of the Talmudiſts: But others diſlike it, and think that David had given her a Bill of Divorce. Unto which he being compelled by Saul's Violence, and not doing it willingly, they think it was null; and that David might lawfully take her again; tho' Phalti had enjoyed her. But Abarbinel confutes both theſe Opinions: And thinks that Saul was not ſo impious as to take a Wife from her Huſband, and give her to another: Nor David in ſuch need of a Wife, as to ſend for Michal, if ſhe had lived in Wedlock with another Man. And therefore he obſerves, that Saul is not ſaid (in 1 Sam. xxv. 44.) to give her to wife unto Phalti, but only to give her: That is, to commit her to his Care and Cuſtody in the Abſence of her Huſband; that ſhe might live virtuouſly, and not follow after David. For he ſuppoſes Phalti to have been an old, grave, and pious Man, who might be truſted with her, as he was with the Children of Merab, the other Daughter of Saul; who ſent them to Phalti to be educated, and to bear Michal Company. As for his being called her Husband (in this Verſe and the next) he obſerves the Word is not Baalah, but only Iſhah; which is uſed, he ſaith, for one that is the Keeper and Overſeer of another Perſon.

Ver. 16. And her Husband went with her along weeping behind her to Bahurim.] Being very loth to part with her Company; which was delightful to him.

Then ſaid Abner unto him, Return; and he returned.] Abner intended to have the Honour of preſenting her to the King: And would not have the old Man appear, to diſturb their meeting with his Tears.

Ver. 17. And Abner] Having ſeen David, and given him Aſſurance of his Fidelity, as David him of his Friendſhip.

Had communication with the Elders of Iſrael, ſaying,] Went back to perſuade all, to do as he had done: And by bringing over the great Men to David, he doubted not the Multitude would follow.

Ye ſought for David in time paſt, to be King over you.] For after the Slaughter of Goliath, he was very gracious in the Eyes of all the People, and was much beloved by them, 1 Sam. xviii. 5, 16. And when he was forced to fly, a great many of Iſrael came over to him, while he dwelt at Ziklag: Of the Benjamites, 1 Chron. xii. 2, &c. and the Gadites, ver. 8, 9, &c. and the Manaſſites, ver. 19, &c. and after he came to Hebron, more went over to him out of all the Tribes of Iſrael, ver. 23. and the following Part of that Chapter. And it is highly probable, that as ſoon as Saul and Jonathan were dead, they all generally inclin'd to make David their their King: If Abner, by his great Authority, had not ſet up one of the Family of Saul.

Ver. 18. Now then do it.] Fulfil your own Deſires and Intentions.

For the LORD hath ſpoken of David, ſaying, By the hand of my Servant David I will ſave my People Iſrael out of the hand of the Philiſtines, and out of the hand of all their Enemies.] We no where read theſe Words recorded; but, it is likely, Samuel had often ſpoken them: If not at length, yet they are included in the Words of God to Samuel, when he commanded him to anoint David King over Iſrael, 1 Sam. x. 1, 12. for this was the Intention of giving them a King, that he might fight their Battels, 1 Sam. viii. 29.

Ver. 19. And Abner alſo ſpake in the ears of Benjamin.] Where he had more Intereſt than among the reſt; being of that Tribe: Whom it was neceſſary to take ſome pains withal, to gain their Affection to David. Therefore he ſeems to have ſpoken, not only with their Elders, but to have gone through the ſeveral Families in the Tribe: Who were much devoted to the Houſe of Saul, and had ſtuck cloſe to it; and were the firſt that attempted any thing againſt David, ii. 15.

And Abner went alſo to ſpeak in the ears of David in Hebron, all that ſeemed good to Iſrael,] He went, and reported to David privately, the Senſe of all the People.

And that ſeemed good to the whole Houſe of Benjamin.] Particularly he related how all Benjamin ſtood affected to him: Whom he brought over ſo effectually, that they never forſook the Houſe of David, when all the reſt of the Tribes did.

Ver. 20. And Abner came to David in Hebron, and twenty Men with him.] Now he appeared publickly, and declared himſelf for David.

And David made Abner, and the Men that were with him, a Feaſt.] Not merely as a Token of Kindneſs; but to make a League with him (as he had deſired, and David promiſed, viz. 12, 13.) Into which it had been an ancient Cuſtom to enter by eating and drinking together, Gen. xxvi. 30. xxxi. 44. and other Places.

Ver. 21. And Abner ſaid, I will ariſe and go, and will gather all Iſrael together unto my Lord the King: that they may make a League with thee,] He intended to bring all the chief Men of Iſrael to own him for their King, as he had done; and promiſe to be his faithful Subjects: Which he knew he could effect, becauſe they had already declared their Mind, in the private Conferences he had had with them, ver. 17, &c.

That thou mayeſt reign over all that thy Heart deſireth.] That is, over all the Tribes of Iſrael.

And David ſent Abner away, and he went in peace.] They parted as good Friends do; with wiſhes of all Happineſs on both ſides.

Ver. 22. And behold the Servants of David and Joab came from purſuing a Troop: and brought a great Spoil with them.] In thoſe times of Diſtraction between Judah and Iſrael, we may well think their Neighbours, who were Enemies to both, the Philiſtines, Edomites, Moabites, and others, made many Inroads upon the Country to get Spoil. When Joab and the great Men about David watched, and at this Time had overtaken them, in their return home, and recovered a great Booty from them.

But Abner was not with David in Hebron; for he had ſent him away, and he was gone in peace.] Though Abner was not there when Joab returned victorious, yet he ſeems to be but juſt gone, a little way out of the City, ver. 26.

Ver. 23. And when Joab and all the Hoſt that were with him, were come,] That is, the Captains of the Hoſt, or principal Officers were come to give an account of their Succeſs.

They told Joab, ſaying, Abner came to the King, and he hath ſent him away, and he is gone in peace.] Some officious Courtiers informed him of what had paſſed in his Abſence; as it is likely, they were wont to do of all that the King did. For he that commanded all the Forces, had in effect every body elſe at his command.

Ver. 24. Then Joab came to the King, and ſaid, What haſt thou done? behold Abner came unto thee, why is it that thou haſt ſent him away, and he is quite gone?] He chides the King, as if he did not underſtand his own Intereſt; but was to be taught by him. Which high Preſumption he was conſtrained to endure, becauſe of his great Power with the Military Men.

Ver. 25. Thou knoweſt Abner the Son of Ner, that he came to deceive thee, and to know thy going out and thy coming in; and to know all that thou doeſt.] It is likely that Joab himſelf did not believe, that Abner came with a deſign only to learn how David's Affairs ſtood, and to make his advantage of it: But he would have David believe ſo, that he might have the better Colour for his wicked Deſign of diſpatching Abner.

Ver. 26. And when Joab was gone out from David,] He ſeems to have gone out in an Huff; not ſtaying for an Anſwer.

He ſent Meſſengers after Abner,] In the King's Name, I ſuppoſe, as if he had ſomething further to communicate to him: For otherwiſe it is not credible that Abner would have returned.

And brought him back from the Well of Sirah.] It is not certain where this Well was: But, it is probable, not far from Hebron. Joſephus ſaith twenty Furlongs diſtant from thence.

But David knew it not.] Gave him no ſuch Order, as he pretended.

Ver. 27. And when Abner was returned to Hebron, Joab] Who waited for him at the Entrance of the City.

Took him aſide in the Gate] Which being a publick Place, where Men met to do Buſineſs, and where the Courts of Judgment ſate, it made Abner ſuſpect no Danger.

To ſpeak with him quietly;] Eſpecialy ſince he took him by the Hand in a friendly manner, to have ſome Diſcourſe with him.

And ſmote him under the fifth Rib, that he died,] Immediately, without ſpeaking a Word. See the foregoing Chapter, ver. 23.

For the Blood of Aſahel his Brother.] This was one Reaſon, but the chief was, his Fear that Abner would overtop him, if he brought Iſrael to ſubmit to David: Being a Man longer verſed in Military Affairs than himſelf; and who had governed Iſrael in the time of Saul's Diſtraction, and ſince Iſhboſheth was made King by him. So Joſephus: He was afraid leſt Abner ner ſhould receive from David, πρώτην τάξιν, the higheſt Place above himſelf. Upon which he makes this Reflection, ὁσαχὶ πηλίκα, &c. What will not Men dare to do, who are covetous, ambitious, and will be inferior to none, for to obtain what they deſire? They will commit a thouſand Crimes: and rather than loſe what they have got, they will not fear ſtill to commit greater Wickednesſes.

Ver. 28. And afterwards when David heard it, he ſaid, I and my Kingdom are guiltleſs before the LORD for ever, from the Blood of Abner the Son of Ner:] He lift up his Hands to God (as Joſephus explains it) and with a loud Voice cried out publickly, that God knew he was innocent in this matter: And therefore truſted he would not let him and his Kingdom ſuffer for it.

Ver. 29. Let it reſt on the head of Joab,] The Guilt and Puniſhment lie upon him; who was the ſole Committer of this Murder.

And on all his Father's Houſe,] His Indignation at the Fact, ſeems to have tranſported him too far; making him wiſh all Joab's Family might ſuffer for it: Which was againſt the Law of God (Deut. xxiv. 16.) that Children ſhould not ſuffer for their Father's Sin. It may be looked upon therefore, as a Prophetical Prediction, rather than as a private Imprecation: Or as Words ſpoken in a great Paſſion; which made him think the Puniſhment could not be too ſore, or too laſting, for ſo horrid a Crime. In the Guilt of which Joab endeavoured to involve the King, by ſending for Abner back in the King's Name (as Joſephus takes it) and ſo might be thought to have killed him by his Order.

And let there not fail from the Houſe of Joab, one that hath an Iſſue,] Which was ſuch a very noiſome Diſeaſe, that by the Law of the Jews, it made the very Bed on which a Man, that had it, lay, or the Seat on which he ſat, unclean. In ſhort, he was no leſs abominable among them, than a menſtruous Woman. See Levit. xv.

Or that is a Leper,] How filthy he was accounted, ſee Levit. xiii. where by the Law he was ſecluded from all Society.

Or that leaneth on a Staff,] By reaſon of ſome great Weakneſs, or Lameneſs: Having the Gout, as Pellicanus takes it.

Or that falleth on the Sword,] This, in our Language, ſignifies that maketh away himſelf.

Or that lacketh Bread.] Is a Beggar, and ready to ſtarve.

Ver. 30. So Joab and Abiſhai his Brother ſlew Abner, becauſe he had ſlain their Brother Aſahel at Gibeon in the Battel.] It ſeems Abiſhai was near at hand, ready to aſſiſt in the Murder; if there had been any need of his Help.

Ver. 31. And David ſaid to Joab, and to all the People that were with him,] To the whole Court.

Rend your Clothes, and gird you with Sackcloth, and mourn before Abner.] Theſe were all outward Expreſſions of very great Sorrow; which Joab himſelf was forced to make a Shew of.

And David himſelf followed the Bier.] Was the chief Mourner. In which the Jews think David's Paſſion made him again exceed his Bounds: For Maimonides ſaith, it was not lawful, by their Conſtitutions, for the King to accompany a dead Corpſe to the Grave; but he ought to mourn at home. This is their Doctrine in Sanhedrin, Cap. 2. Sect. 13. and the Gemara there, Cap. 2. N. 5. See Cocceius his Annotations. But a famous Writer among them, Mikotzi, ſaith it was indifferent; the King might do as David did, if he pleaſed: For which he quotes R. Jehuda. Therefore, tho' perhaps it was not commonly done, yet David, to purge himſelf from all Suſpicion of this Crime, and to ſhew his extream great Grief for it, thought fit to do Abner this publick Honour. See Guil. Schickardus in his Jus Regium, Cap. 4. Theor. 13.

The Word we here tranſlate, the Bier, is in the Original, the Bed: On which Perſons of Quality were wont to be carried forth to their Graves, as ordinary People were upon that which we call a Bier. And Kings were ſometimes carried out upon Beds very richly adorned, as Joſephus tells us Herod was, in the latter end of his firſt Book of the Jewiſh Wars, Κλίνη μὲν ὁλόχρυσος, &c. The Bed was all gilded, ſet with precious Stones, and a purple Cover curiouſly wrought, &c.

It is but a Fancy that they were wont to follow the Bier, and not to go before it: To ſignify that they look'd upon their dead Friends not as loſt, but only gone before them; Præmiſſi, non amiſſi, as Seneca ſpeaks.

Ver. 32. And they buried Abner in Hebron; and the King lift up his Voice, and wept at the Grave of Abner, and all the People wept.] By this it appears he was buried in Pomp, and with a long Train of People attending his Corpſe, as there did the Widow's Son in Luke vii. 14. When they came to the Grave, and laid the Corpſe there, it was the Cuſtom to make great and loud Lamentations; which are ſometimes called Howlings in the Prophetical Language. And commonly before the Word weeping, there is mention in Scripture of lifting up the Voice, in doleful Cries. This is as ancient as Abraham's Time, Gen. xxi. 16. and we find Joſeph weeping ſo loud, upon a different Occaſion, that all the Houſe of Pharaoh heard him, Gen. xlv. 2, 14, 15. The Forms of Lamentation are noted by the Prophets, Jerem. xxii. 18. Micah v. 16.

Ver. 33. And the King lamented over Abner, ſaying,] Joſephus looks upon what follows as a kind of Epitaph upon Abner, whom David buried magnificently, as he ſpeaks, Θάψας δ' αὐτὸν μεγαλοπρεπῶς καὶ ἐπιταφίους συγγραψάμενος θρήνους, &c.

Died Abner as a Fool dieth?] By a Fool in Scripture is often meant a wicked Man, a Malefactor; and ſo the Senſe, according to this Tranſlation, is, Did he die by the Hand of Juſtice, for ſome notorious Crime committed by him? or did he die by his own Folly? No ſuch matter. But the Words may be tranſlated out of the Hebrew, How like a Fool died Abner? Or, Should Abner have died like a Fool? That is, what pity is it, that ſuch a valiant Man ſhould die on this faſhion! By Treachery; without any Power to defend himſelf.

Ver. 34. Thy Hands were not bound, nor thy Feet put into Fetters.] He was not a Priſoner, but had both Hands and Feet at liberty; and yet yet could make no uſe of them for his own Preſervation. Victorinus Strigelius thinks that David, in theſe words, diſtinguiſhes him from thoſe Criminals, whoſe Hands being tied behind them, are carried to Execution; and from thoſe idle Soldiers, who being taken captive in War, have Fetters clapt upon their Legs, to keep them from running away. He was none of theſe; neither a notorious Offender, nor a Coward: But perfidiouſly murdered by one, in ſeeming Friendſhip with him. But the plain Meaning ſeems to be; that if his Enemy had ſet upon him openly, he had been able to make his part good with him.

But as a Man falleth before wicked Men, ſo felleſt thou.] That is, before a ſecret Murderer.

And all the People wept again over him.] Upon this Speech of the King, which was mournfully ſpoken, they were ſo affected, that it drew Tears more plentifully from them.

Ver. 35. And when all the People came to cauſe David to eat Meat, while it was yet day,] This was a Cuſtom among the Hebrews; whoſe Friends were wont to come, after the Funeral was over, to comfort thoſe who had buried their Dead, and ſend in Proviſions to make a Feaſt. It being ſuppoſed, that they themſelves were ſo ſorrowful, as not to be able to think of their neceſſary Food. See Jerem. xvi. 5, 7, 8. and Ezek. xxiv. 17. and Grotius upon that Place.

David ſware, ſaying, God do ſo to me and more alſo, if I taſte Bread, or ought elſe, till the Sun be down.] He reſolved to keep a ſtrict and rigid Faſt, which did not end till the Sun was ſet. Hence it appears that they buried their Dead in the Day-time.

Ver. 36. And all the People took notice of it.] Of his great Grief.

And it pleaſed them: for whatſoever the King did, pleaſed all the People.] They were pleaſed with the Honour he had done this great Man: Whereby he ſo ingratiated himſelf with the People, that they were diſpoſed to put a kind Conſtruction upon all his Actions; as wiſe, and well becoming him.

Ver. 37. For all the People,] Of Judah; or, all thoſe that were about the King.

And all Iſrael underſtood that day, that it was not of the King to ſlay Abner the Son of Ner.] That he neither ordered it, nor conſented to it, nor any way approved it; but was heartily grieved for his Death.

Ver. 38. And the King ſaid unto his Servants,] Who perhaps were not ſenſible enough of this Loſs; or, thought he bewailed it too much.

Know ye not, that there is a Prince, and a great Man fallen this day in Iſrael?] He bids them conſider his Birth, and his Power, Authority, and Valour, with all his other excellent Qualities: And they would not think it ſtrange that he buried him with ſo much Pomp, and mourned ſo heavily for him.

Ver. 39. And I am this day weak,] In the Hebrew it is tender, that is, his Kingdom was young (as we ſpeak) and not ſettled and confirmed.

Though anointed King.] Or as the Words may be tranſlated, and anointed King. That is, not born to a Kingdom, but newly called to it, without any hereditary Right to the Authority; which made it more ſlender, than if it had been of long ſtanding. This ſeems to have been the Reaſon why he did not puniſh Joab for this Murder, becauſe he himſelf was not well eſtabliſhed. He had alſo been very faithful, and ſtuck cloſe to him in his Adverſity; and had a mighty Power among the Military Men, (as I ſaid before) and was alſo an excellent Soldier himſelf; which made him very neceſſary to David in the time of Civil War and Diſcord between Judah and Iſrael. Therefore Prudence made him defer his Puniſhment, till a better Opportunity. As God himſelf ordinarily doth not call Men to an Account immediately for their Sins, but takes a time to do it more ſeverely, than if it were done preſently.

And theſe Men, the Sons of Zeruiah, are too hard for me.] He and his Brother had got ſuch an Intereſt in the Soldiery, and among the People both in the Court and Country, that he knew not how to deal with them. Yet he not only ſufficiently ſhewed that he deteſted their Actions; but that he did not ſtand in awe of them. For he commanded Joab to attend Abner's Funeral, with his Clothes rent, and in Sackcloth: And to his face commended Abner highly, and condemned his Murder of him (ver. 31, 33, 34.) which was a great Mortification to him; and a kind of Penance which he made him do for his Crime.

The LORD ſhall reward the Doer of evil, according to his Wickedneſs.] He was confident God would puniſh him, as he deſerved; if he could not do it himſelf. And this may be look'd upon as a Prayer, that God would not ſuffer him to eſcape his Vengeance.

CHAP. IV.

Verſe 1. AND when Saul's Son heard that Abner was dead in Hebron, his Hands were feeble.] Having loſt his Supporter and Defender; and hearing he was gone over to David, as appeared by his dying in Hebron.

And all the Iſraelites were troubled.] Becauſe by his Death the Treaty with David was broke off; or there was none to manage it with ſuch Authority and Prudence as Abner had: And they foreſaw ſome great Change (which they knew not how it would end) by the Loſs of this great Man. For ſo Plato obſerves from long Experience, Ὅταν μέλλει κακῶς πράτ]ειν πόλιν, ἔξειλε τῦς ἀγαθῦς ἄνδρας ἐκ]αύτης τῆς πόλεως ὁ Θεός, When any Calamity is to befall a City, God is wont to take away excellent Men out of that City.

Ver. 2. And Saul's Son had two Men that were Captains of Bands.] Captains, perhaps, of two Companies of Guards about the King.

The Name of the one was Baanah, and the Name of the other Rechab, the Sons of Rimmon a Beerothite, of the Tribe of Benjamin.] The King's own Tribe, which made him repoſe the greateſt Truſt and Confidence in them.

For Beeroth alſo was reckoned to Benjamin.] Tho' it was now in the hand of the Philiſtines, yet it belonged to the Tribe of Benjamin. Joſh. xviii. 25.

Ver.

Ver. 3. And the Beerothites fled to Gittaim.] When Saul was ſlain, ſeveral Iſraelites left their Cities and fled, and the Philiſtines took poſſeſſion of them: among which, this City, it ſeems, was once forſaken by its Inhabitants, 1 Sam. xxxi. 7. There was a Place called Gittaim in the ſame Tribe of Benjamin, Nahum xi. 53. But it is not likely that was the Place here mentioned: For the Beerothites would, in all probability, fly further off from the Philiſtines.

And were Sojourners there to this very day.] When this Book was written, they were not returned to their own Country: Being commodiouſly ſettled, I ſuppoſe, in the other Place. Why this is here related, it is hard to ſay: Perhaps it was to ſhow that theſe were two Soldiers of Fortune (as we now ſpeak) whoſe Neceſſity forced them to ſeek for a Support: Which they met withal at the Court of Iſhboſheth; where they came to Preferment.

Ver. 4. And Jonathan, Saul's Son, had a Son that was lame of his Feet, and was five years old when the Tidings came of Saul and Jonathan,] That is, the Tidings of their Death, mentioned 1 Sam. xxxi.

And his Nurſe took him up and fled: and it came to paſs as ſhe made haſte to flee.] Being in a very great Fright.

He fell, and became lame; and his Name was Mephiboſheth.] This ſeems to be related, to ſhow what it was that emboldened theſe Captains to do what follows: Becauſe he who was the next Avenger of Blood was very young; and beſides was lame and unable to purſue them.

Ver. 5. And the Sons of Rimmon the Beerothite, Rechab and Baanah, went, and came about the heat of the day to the Houſe of Iſhboſheth, who lay on a Bed at Noon.] As the Manner was, and ſtill continues in hot Countries.

Ver. 6. And they came thither into the midſt of the Houſe, as tho' they would have fetched Wheat.] In the Hebrew, carrying Wheat. Which they either brought into the King's Granaries, for the Uſe of his Houſhold; or carried forth for the Supply of their Soldiers, who were maintained at the King's Charge.

And they ſmote him under the fifth Rib; and Rechab and Baanah his Brother eſcaped.] They gave him a mortal Wound: and no body ſuſpecting them, they eaſily made their Eſcape.

Ver. 7. For when they came into the Houſe, he lay on his Bed in his Bed-chamber.] In a private Room; into which he was wont to retire from Company, when he had a mind to repoſe himſelf.

And they ſmote him, and ſlew him, and beheaded him, and took his Head.] The Privacy of the Place gave them the Opportunity to do all this, without Diſcovery.

And gat them away through the Plain all night.] From Mahanaim to Hebron, it was for the moſt part a flat Country, till they came to aſcend the Mountain, on whoſe ſide Hebron ſtood.

Ver. 8. And they brought the Head of Iſhboſheth unto David, to Hebron, and ſaid to the King, Behold the Head of Iſhboſheth the Son of Saul thine Enemy, which ſought thy Life; and the LORD hath avenged my Lord the King this day of Saul and of his Seed.] For they were all now extinguiſhed, except his Grandſon Mephiboſheth; who was of no account, becauſe of his Lameneſs.

Ver. 9. And David anſwered Rechab and Baanah his Brother, the Sons of Rimmon the Beerothite.] One of them only ſpake to the King, but related what they both had done, and therefore he directed his Speech to them both.

And ſaid unto them, as the LORD liveth, who hath delivered my Soul out of all Adverſity.] Together with this thankful Acknowledgment of God's Care of him hitherto, in all his Straits; he ſuggeſts to them, that he needed not the Help of ſuch Men as they, for his future Preſervation and Preferment by wicked Acts.

Ver. 10. When one told me, ſaying, behold Saul is dead (thinking to have brought good Tidings) I took hold of him, and ſlew him in Ziklag, who thought I would have given him a Reward for his Tidings.] He put them in mind of the Story of the Amalekite (Chap. i. of this Book) which they could not but have heard, and thereby might have learnt what Reception they were likely to find with David.

Ver. 11. How much more, when wicked Men have ſlain a righteous Perſon,] For ſo Iſhboſheth was, in reſpect of them: to whom he had done no wrong; but preferred them to a Place of Truſt and Honour.

In his own Houſe, upon his Bed?] This aggravated his Crime; and made it vaſtly different from that of the Amalekite.

Shall I not therefore require his Blood at your hand, and take you away from the earth?] As Perſons unworthy to live; who had ſlain their Maſter, and he a King, in his own Houſe, when he was taking his Repoſe under their Safeguard.

Ver. 12. And David commanded his young Men.] Who were of his Guard; ready at hand to execute his Commands.

And they ſlew them, and cut off their Hands and their Feet.] By David's Order, no doubt; they having ſlain their Maſter with their Hands, and made their eſcape from Juſtice with their Feet.

And hanged them up, over the Pool in Hebron.] Expoſed them in an open, publick Place.

But he took the Head of Iſhboſheth, and buried it in the Sepulchre of Abner in Hebron.] It ſeems David had done Abner the Honour to make him a particular Sepulchre: Where he privately interred the Head of Iſhboſheth. Whoſe Body, no queſtion, was buried by the Iſraelites, with ſuch Honours as were ſuitable to his Dignity.

CHAP. V.

Verſe 1. THen came all the Tribes of Iſrael to David unto Hebron.] That is, Embaſſadors were ſent from every Tribe, by a common Agreement among them.

And ſpake, ſaying, We are thy Bone and thy Fleſh.] They were not overcome by the Arms, but by the Piety and Juſtice of David, to acknowledge him their King: For which they gave ſeveral Reaſons. The firſt is general; that he was qualified by the Law of God (Deut. xvii. 15.) which required they ſhould chooſe one of their Brethren, and not a Stranger. Now he he was of the ſame Blood with them, being deſcended from the ſame common Father, Iſrael.

Ver. 2. Alſo in time paſt, when Saul was King, thou waſt he that led out, and brought in Iſrael:] They were induced alſo by his Valour and Conduct, which he had ſhewn, they well remembred, in the Reign of Saul: When he was ſo ſucceſsful in many Expeditions, that he became the Darling of all the People, 1 Sam. xviii. 5, 15, 16, 30.

And the LORD ſaid to thee, thou ſhalt feed my People Iſrael, and thou ſhalt be Captain over Iſrael.] This was the chiefeſt Argument of all; that God they knew had deſign'd him long ago to be their King: Having ſaid by the Prophet Samuel, that he ſhould feed, that is, rule and govern them, and fight their Battels. We do not read theſe Words any where recorded before now: But Samuel having anointed him, no doubt frequently ſpake of his Office, under the Name of the Paſtor of the People.

And it is the firſt time we find a Governour deſcribed by this Name in Scripture: Though much uſed afterward by the Prophets, who ſpeak in this Language; particularly Ezekiel xxxiv. 23. and many other Places. Whence our Lord Chriſt is called the good Shepherd, and the great Shepherd; that is, Ruler of his People: And both the Greeks and the Romans have borrowed this Word, to expreſs a ſupreme Governour. And truly ſuch Rulers as take care of their People, as a Shepherd doth of his Flock, are divine Bleſſings: Whom Iſaiah calls Nurſing Fathers, xlix. 23. On the contrary, they who lay heavy Burdens on their People, fleecing, or rather fleaing them by cruel Oppreſſions, are called by the Prophets, roaring Lions, hungry Bears and devouring Wolves, Ezek. xix. 2. xxii. 27. Nahum ii. 11, 12. Habak. i. 8. Zephan. iii. 3. Prov. xxvii. 15. Companions of Thieves, Iſa. i. 23. Whales, Dragons, or rather Crocodiles, Ezek. xxix. 3. Pſal. lxxiv. 13, 14. Leopards, Jerem. v. 6. and ſuch like odious Names.

Ver. 3. So all the Elders of Iſrael came to the King in Hebron.] He gave the Meſſengers ſuch a kind Reception, and ſo thankfully declared his Acceptance of the Offer they made him, that upon their return with his Anſwer, the Elders of Iſrael came to wait upon him. By whom ſome underſtand the Senators of the great Sanhedrim: But that's a Fancy which I have often confuted. The plain Meaning is, that the chief Perſons of Authority, in every Tribe, came in the Name of the reſt of that Tribe, whom they repreſented.

And King David made a League with them in Hebron.] It is not ſaid what the Contents of this League, or Contract was. The Jews think it was principally, that there ſhould be an Act of Oblivion of all the Injuries which the People of Iſrael had done to Judah, or they to them, in the Reign of Iſhboſheth. But this is too narrow a Senſe: It is more probable, that he aſſured them he would govern them juſtly and kindly, according to the Law of God; and they promiſed to obey him ſincerely and faithfully, according to the ſame Law.

Before the LORD:] The Ark of God's Preſence was not in Hebron; and therefore it is a Queſtion how it could be ſaid, that he made a League before the LORD. But ſee what I have ſaid of this, Judges xx. 1.

And they anointed David King over Iſrael.] They deſired the High-Prieſt to anoint him, whoſe Office it was: And thereby expreſſed their Conſent he ſhould reign over them. So Procopius Gazæus interprets theſe Words (as he doth ii. 4.) Iterum ſuffragiis, &c. All the Tribes again choſe him by their Votes, to be their King. He was anointed three times; firſt by Samuel in his Father's Houſe (1 Sam. xvi. 13.) Then when the Tribe of Judah owned him for their King (Chap. Second of this Book, ver. 4.) and now when all Iſrael did the ſame. For which Abarbinel gives this Reaſon; David's Unction was repeated ſo often, that it might be the Foundation, and Root, and Principle of all his Poſterity: Who needed no Unction, being anointed in him; unleſs there was any Controverſy about the Succeſſion.

Ver. 4. David was thirty years old when he began to reign, and he reigned forty years.] It is uncertain how old he was when he was firſt anointed by Samuel; and how long after he came to the Court of Saul; and how long he was in Exile from it. About which Men's Opinions are very different: For ſome think, as the Jews do in Seder Olam Rabba, that he was near Nine and Twenty Years old when Samuel firſt anointed him: And conſequently but one Year in Exile. Others (which is the truer Opinion) that he was Twenty Years old at his firſt Unction, and ſo almoſt ten Years in Exile. But it is ſufficient for us to know, what we are here told, that he was thirty Years old at his ſecond Unction in Hebron, immediately after Saul's Death.

Ver. 5. In Hebron he reigned over Judah ſeven Years and ſix Months; and in Jeruſalem he reigned thirty and three Years over all Iſrael and Judah.] By this it appears, that immediately after his third Unction, he made his Attempt upon Jeruſalem; as it here follows: Otherwiſe he could not have reigned there ſo long.

Ver. 6. And the King and his Men went to Jeruſalem.] His firſt warlike Enterprize, after he was their King, was againſt Jeruſalem: Which he reſolved to reduce out of the hands of the Jebuſites; who hitherto poſſeſſed a noble Part of it, viz. the Fort of Zion, which they held, though the Iſraelites dwelt in the other Part of the City.

The Jebuſites the Inhabiters of the Land:] That is, of that Part of the Land. See Joſh. xv. 63. Judges i. 21. xix. 10, 11.

Which ſpake unto David,] When he came to ſet down his Army againſt the Fortreſs.

Saying, Except thou take away the blind and the lame, thou ſhalt not come in hither: thinking David cannot come in hither.] They imagined their Fortreſs to be ſo impregnable, that by way of Contempt and Scorn, they told him the Blind and the Lame were able to defend it againſt him, and all his Forces. So Bochartus tranſlates theſe Words, Non huc accedes, &c. Thou ſhalt not come up hither, but the blind and the lame will drive thee away; i. e. the moſt Feeble and Cowardly among us. Which he thinks is ſo plain a Senſe, that he wonders Men of great Learning ſhould ſeek for any other. Lib. 4. Phaleg. Cap. 36.

But ſo it is, a great many by the Blind and the Lame underſtand the Images of their Gods (particularly our learned Gregory hath a whole Diſſertation about it.) As if they had ſaid, our Gods whom ye call blind and lame, that have Eyes and ſee not, Feet and walk not (as it is Pſal. cxv.) they ſhall defend us: And you muſt overcome them, before you overcome us. Luther himſelf thus explains the Senſe; Theſe Blind and Lame, ſaith he, were the Idols of the Jebuſites; which, to irritate David, they ſet upon their Walls, as their Patrons and Defenders: And they did as good as ſay, thou doſt not fight with us, but with our Gods, who will eaſily repel thee. As for the Fancy of R. Elieſer in his Pirke, Cap. 36. it is altogether groundleſs; which is, that when Abraham bought the Burying-place in Macpela of the Children of Heth, he ſealed a Covenant with them, that when his Seed ſhould poſſeſs the Land of Canaan, (as they believed they would) they ſhould not poſſeſs the City of Jebus. Which Covenant they now engraved upon brazen Statues, and ſet them upon their Walls; ſaying, thou canſt not enter here, unleſs thou break the Oath of Abraham. See alſo Bartoloccius in his Kirjath Sepher, Pars 2. p. 89, &c.

Ver. 7. Nevertheleſs, David took the Stronghold of Zion; the ſame is the City of David.] Their Taunts and Jeers did not diſcourage David, but he aſſaulted the Fort and took it; and made it his Royal Seat.

Ver. 8. And David ſaid on that day,] When the Aſſault was made.

Whoſoever getteth up into the Gutter, and ſmiteth the Jebuſites, &c.] i. e. Cuts off their Pipes of Water, or their Ciſterns into which the Water fell: For the Hebrew Word Tzinnor, which we tranſlate Gutter, is no where found but in this Place, and in Pſalm xlii. 7. and by St. Hierom is tranſlated Fiſtulæ. But I know not how we come to tranſpoſe the Words, he that ſmiteth the Jebuſites, behind the other, which in the Hebrew are firſt. He that ſmiteth the Jebuſites, let him throw down into the Ditch (which was by the Wall) both the Blind and the Lame, which David extreamly hates. Thus Bochart tranſlates the Words, in the Place above-named: Which if it be admitted, there is no need to add thoſe Words (out of 1 Chron. xi. 6.) to make out the Senſe, he ſhall be Chief and Captain: For the Senſe is compleat without them.

Wherefore he ſaid, the Blind and the Lame ſhall not enter into the Houſe.] Or, as it is in the Margin, becauſe they had ſaid, even the Blind and the Lame, he ſhall not come into the Houſe. That is, becauſe they had taunted him with the Blind and Lame, as if they could defend the Fort, and hinder him from coming into it; therefore he was highly provoked to wiſh they might be thrown down headlong from their Walls into the Ditch. And then by the Houſe is meant, neither the Houſe of David, nor the Houſe of the LORD (as many take it) but that very Fort wherein the Jebuſites had dwelt; from which hereafter they were excluded. And indeed it is a very large Word in the Hebrew, ſignifying any Place. If we could admit the Fancy of R. Elieſer, that the Jebuſites engraved the Oath of Abraham upon brazen Statues, whereby they pretended that Fort was ſecured to them and their Poſterity, ſuch an abominable Forgery muſt needs highly incenſe David; whoſe Soul hated ſuch impudent Frauds.

Ver. 9. So David dwelt in the Fort, and called it the City of David; and David built round about from Millo and inward.] The Fort was not wide enough to contain the whole Court, and all his Guards, and others that had occaſion to come hither: And therefore he built round about it, from Millo. Which ſome take for that low Place which lay between the Fort and the City: Which was now filled with People, and thence called Millo.

Ver. 10. And David went on, and grew great.] He proceeded to enlarge his Dominions, as well as his Royal City.

And the LORD God of Hoſts was with him.] This was the Cauſe of his great Proſperity, that God, who commands all the Armies of Heaven and Earth, directed and bleſſed him in all his Enterprizes.

Ver. 11. And Hiram King of Tyre ſent Meſſengers unto David.] To compliment him upon his Succeſſion to the Throne, and taking Jeruſalem. Which was a great Honour; for Hiram was a potent Prince, and yet courted David's Friendſhip; becauſe he ſaw how proſperous he was. And this Friendſhip continued all David's days, unto the Reign of Solomon. When his Son, of the ſame Name, expreſſed the ſame Affection to him, that his Father had done to David.

And Cedar Trees, and Carpenters and Maſons; and they built David an Houſe.] Hearing David intended to ſettle in the Fort he had taken; Hiram ſent him both Materials and Artificers to build him a Palace. For the Jews being given to feeding Cattle, and Husbandry, were not very skilful in Manufactures.

Ver. 12. And David perceived that the LORD had eſtabliſhed him King over Iſrael.] For he had both ſubdued his Enemies, and raiſed him up Friends.

And that he had exalted his Kingdom for his People Iſrael's ſake.] It is an excellent Reflection which Conradus Pellicanus made long ago upon theſe Words: This is the greateſt Grace of a King, that he certainly believes himſelf to be made a King by God, for the ſake of the People: And let him often call to mind, the People were not created or ordained by God for the King.

Ver. 13. And David took him more Concubines and Wives out of Jeruſalem, after he came from Hebron:] The Difference between a Wife and a Concubine, the Talmudiſts generally ſay was, that the latter had neither Dowry ſettled upon her, nor was taken with all the Rites and Solemnities of Marriage: Yet was a Wife of a lower Rank, as well as the former which had both. See Selden Lib. de Succeſſionibus, Cap. 3. and what I have already noted, Gen. xxii. 24. and elſewhere. How many David had of both ſorts, it is not certain: But we read of ſix Wives he had before, iii. 2, &c. And the Jews, after their Way, endeavour to prove from xi. 8. of this Book, that he had eighteen in all: Which number it was not lawful for the King to exceed; unleſs he divorced any of them, and took others in their room. See Schickard de Jure Nep. Cap. 3. Theorem 9. and Grotius de Jure Belli & Pacis, Lib. 2. Cap. 5. Sect. 9. and my Notes on Deut. xvii. 17.

And there were yet Sons and Daughters born to David.] It was looked upon as a Piece of political Wiſdom in Princes, to endeavour to have many Children; that by matching them into many potent Families, they might ſtrengthen their Intereſt, and have the more Supporters of their Authority.

Ver. 14. And theſe be the Names of them that were born to him in Jeruſalem; Shammuah, Shobab, and Nathan, and Solomon.] Theſe are the very ſame Names with thoſe in 1 Chron. iii. 5. only a little Variation in the firſt.

Ver. 15. Ibhar alſo, and Eliſhua, and Nepheg, and Japhia,

Ver. 16. And Eliſhamah, and Eliada, and Eliphalet.] Here are only ſeven Sons mentioned in theſe two Verſes: But in the 1 Chron. iii 8, &c. there are nine. Of which Kimchi gives this Account; that here he mentions only the Sons he had by his Wives; but there are ſome added which he had by his Concubines: which doth not well agree with what there follows, ver. 9.

Ver. 19. But when the Philiſtines heard that they had anointed David King over Iſrael.] So that now Iſrael and Judah were united under one Head, they thought it behoved them to beſtir themſelves: Whereas they ſeem to have been quiet while the War laſted between Iſrael and Judah in the Time of Iſhboſheth, hoping they might deſtroy one another.

All the Philiſtines went out to ſeek David.] They raiſed all the Forces they were able, to find out David and fight him, before he was ſettled in his new Kingdom. The Friendſhip between him and King Achiſh was ſo great, that one would have thought they ſhould have lived in peace. But either Achiſh was dead, or the Lords of the Philiſtines, who were very powerful, over-ruled him, as they did when they forced him to ſend David out of their Army, 1 Sam. xxix. 6, &c.

And David heard of it, and went down to the Hold.] Intelligence being brought him of their Motions, he went from the Fort of Sion, to ſome other ſtrong Place below; where his Army might conveniently have their Rendezvous.

Ver. 18. The Philiſtines alſo came and ſpread themſelves in the Valley of Rephaim.] Which in Joſh. xv. 8. we tranſlate the Valley of Giants, lying weſtward of Jeruſalem; which perhaps they thought to aſſault.

Ver. 19. And David enquired of the LORD, ſaying, Shall I go up to the Philiſtines? wilt thou deliver them into my hand?] Though David went into a Strong-hold, he did not truſt to that, nor intend merely to ſtand upon his Defence: Yet would not give them Battel, till he was encouraged by God to do it.

And the LORD ſaid, Go up, for I will doubtleſs deliver the Philiſtines into thy hand.] A full Aſſurance of Victory took away all Fear of their great Numbers, which is expreſſed by their ſpreading themſelves in the forenamed Valley.

Ver. 20. And David came to Baal-Perazim.] For thither the Philiſtines marched from Rephaim, where they firſt pitched: As appears from 1 Chron. xiv. 11.

And David ſmote them there.] Routed their Army, and ſlew a great many of them in that Place.

And ſaid, The LORD hath broken forth upon mine Enemies before me, as the Breach of Waters.] Overpowered and ſcattered them; as Waters, when they make a Breach in a Bank, overflow and carry all before them.

Therefore he called the Name of that Place Baal-Perazim.] That it might put him and his Poſterity in mind of God's great Power and Goodneſs, which he ſhewed in this Place: Where the Philiſtines were put into ſuch a Conſternation, that they forgat, when they fled, to carrry away their Gods with them; as it here follows.

Ver. 21. And there they left their Images.] Which they had brought into the Field with them; to be carried before their Hoſt, as a Token of the Preſence of their Gods with them. Thus we read in 2 Chron. xxv. 14. that the Edomites had their Gods along with them, when they fought with Amaziah. And perhaps they learnt this from the Iſraelites, who carried the Ark (the Symbol of God's Preſence) in their Army, when they went to fight with theſe Philiſtines; who ſaw it, and took it, as the Iſraelites now did their Images. 1 Sam. iv. 4, 5, &c. But behold here the Difference between the Ark and theſe Images. For when the Ark fell into the hands of the Philiſtines, it ſorely plagued them, as we read in the foregoing Book: But their Images had no power to hurt the Iſraelites, nor ſecure themſelves from being burnt by them, as it here follows.

And David and his Men burnt them.] According to the Command of God, Deut. vii. 5.

Ver. 22. And the Philiſtines came up again, and ſpread themſelves in the Valley of Rephaim.] They ſaw that their All lay at ſtake, and therefore they muſtered up their whole Strength; and perhaps procured the Aſſiſtance of other People, to try their Fortune (as we now ſpeak) in another Battel. So Joſephus relates, that the Syrians and Phœnicians joined them, and came up τριπλασίῳ στρατῷ with an Army three times as big as the former.

Ver. 23. And when David enquired of the LORD.] Tho' he had been ſo ſucceſsful, yet he would attempt nothing without God's direction; to whom, he knew he owed the former Victory.

He ſaid, thou ſhalt not go up.] That is, not directly: To fight in a pitch'd Battle, as they did before. So the following Words explain it.

But fetch a compaſs behind them.] Where they ſuſpected no Danger.

And come upon them over-againſt the Mulberry Trees.] A Place well known to David: Who was taught by God himſelf, not to expect Victory always by main Strength; but ſometimes to make uſe of Stratagems.

Ver. 24. And let it be, when thou heareſt the ſound of a going, in the tops of the Mulberry Trees.] In the Hebrew it is Beroſhe, which ſhould not be rendered in the tops (for Men do not walk on the tops of Trees) but in the beginnings; in the very Entrance of the Place, where the Mulberry Trees

Trees were planted: Where God intended to make a Sound, as if a vaſt Number of Men were marching to fall upon the Philiſtines. There is no doubt but the Hebrew Word Roſch, ſignifies not only the Head, but the Beginning of any thing. So Bochart obſerves in his Phaleg. Lib. 3. Cap. 22. as in Nahum iii. 10. the top (as we tranſlate it) the head of every Street, is the Beginning of thoſe Streets. And Iſaiah li. 20. Jer. xxii. 6. Gilead is called the head of Libanus, becauſe Libanus begins where Gilead ends.

Then beſtir thy ſelf.] Fall upon the Philiſtines.

For then ſhall the LORD go out before thee, to ſmite the Hoſt of the Philiſtines. By making ſuch a noiſe of a mighty Hoſt coming to aſſault them; that they ſhould be amazed, and have no Apprehenſion of David's Army coming behind them.

Ver. 25. And David did ſo, as the LORD commanded him, and ſmote the Philiſtines from Geba, until thou come to Gazer.] He purſued them to the very Confines of their own Land; for Joſephus ſaith concerning Gazer, ἥδε ἔστιν ὅρος αὐτῶν τῆς χώρας, that it was the Border of their Country.

CHAP. VI.

Ver. 1. AGain David gathered together all the choſen Men of Iſrael, thirty thouſand.] Having defeated the Philiſtines, and enjoying ſome Peace, he thought it a ſeaſonable Time, to fetch up the Ark, and ſettle it in an honourable Place: And for that End ſummoned the principal Perſons in Iſrael to attend it. Or, as others will have it, the moſt mighty Men in all Iſrael, to the Number of thirty thouſand; to be a Guard to it, in caſe any of their Enemies ſhould attempt to diſturb the Solemnity he intended.

Ver. 2. And David aroſe, and went with all the People that were with him.] Not only thoſe thirty thouſand, but a vaſt Number of the common People, as we learn from 1 Chron. xiii. 2, 5.

From Baale of Judah.] Which is the ſame with Kirjath-jearim, 1 Chron. xiii. 6. called Baalah, Joſh. xv. 9. and Kirjath-Baal, Joſh. xv. 60. xviii. 14. and here Baale of Judah, becauſe (as this Place ſhews) it belonged to that Tribe. But ſome think there is a great Difficulty here, where it is ſaid they went from Baale, when in the 1 Chron. xiii. 6. it is ſaid they went to Baale. But there is no Diſagreement in theſe two Places: For they muſt go to it, before they could come from it: And here he ſpeaks of their Motion from thence, after they had gone to it.

And brought from thence the Ark of God.] Where it had been a long time in the Houſe of Abinadab, whoſe Son was ſanctified to attend it. See 1 Sam. vii. 1.

Whoſe Name is called by the Name of the LORD of Hoſts.] Or, becauſe of which the Name is proclaimed the Name of the LORD of Hoſts. For by reaſon of the mighty Miracles which were done before the Ark, the Name of the LORD was highly extolled and magnified, not only among the Iſraelites, but the Philiſtines. And by this, ſaith Abarbinel, it was made known, that God dwelt among the Iſraelites: So that not only the Philiſtines were affrighted when this Ark of God's Preſence came among them, 1 Sam. iv. 7, 8. but the Men of Bethſhemeſh alſo, vi. 20.

That dwelleth between the Cherubims.] The learned Lud. de Dieu thinks the moſt ſimple and genuine Conſtruction of all theſe Words to be, by referring the Word aſcher (which) not to the Ark, but unto God, and tranſlating them thus: Who is called the Name, the Name of the LORD of Hoſts, ſitting on the Cherubims, upon it. Which, ſaith he, is an egregious Commendation of the Ark, that it is the Ark of that God, who being incomprehenſible and unbounded in his Eſſence, is called abſolutely the Name, (ſee Levit. xxiv. 11, 16.) even the Name of the LORD of Hoſts, who ſitteth on the Cherubims over the Ark.

Ver. 3.] And they ſet the Ark of God upon a new Cart.] Which ought to have been carried upon the Shoulders of the Kohathites, Numb. vii. 9. for which reaſon no Waggons were allowed to them, as there were to the reſt of the Levites, to carry ſeveral Parts of the Tabernacle. And ſo David himſelf ſaith afterward, it ought to be carried, 1 Chron. xv. 2, 15. And ſo, after the following Miſcarriage, it is plain from the 13th Verſe of this Chapter it was ſo carried. How they came to forget themſelves now, ſo as to put it upon a Cart, one can but conjecture. They ſeem to have imitated the Cuſtom of other Nations, who were wont to carry their Myſteries in a Cheſt upon a Cart, drawn by Oxen or Kine, as the Philiſtines did the Ark itſelf, 1 Sam. vi. 7, 8. Who not being puniſhed for putting it upon a new Cart, the Iſraelites followed their Example the more ſecurely. And that they were wont alſo to carry their Myſteries in a great deal of Pomp (as David here did, ver. 5.) is manifeſt from abundance of Authors. Sanchoniathon mentions an Image in a Shrine in Phœnicia, drawn after the ſame manner; in Euſebius's Præpar. Evangel. Lib. 1. Cap. 15. See our very learned Dr. Spencer, p. 816. But that they learnt this from the Jews, not the Jews from them, ſeems to me moſt probable: Though I can give no Account how they came to put the Ark now upon a new Cart, unleſs it were in imitation of the Philiſtines.

And brought it out of the Houſe of Abinadab that was in Gibeah.] Or, on the Hill, as we read, 1 Sam. vii. 1.

And Uzza and Ahio, the Sons of Abinadab, drave the new Cart.] It ſeems Eleazer (who was ſanctified to take care of the Ark, as we read in the above-named Place) was dead or ſtayed at home to look after his Father, who was now grown aged: So theſe two took upon them to be the Bubulci (as Bochart calls them) who drave the Oxen.

Ver. 4. And they brought it out of the Houſe of Abinadab, which was at Gibeah, accompanying the Ark of God.] That is, when it was brought out of his Houſe, the People flock'd together to attend it.

And Ahio went before the Ark.] He led the Oxen, I ſuppoſe; and Uzzah went behind the Cart, to take care the Ark fell not out.

Ver. 5. And David and all the Houſe of Iſrael played before the LORD] Who was preſent where the Ark was.

On all manner of Inſtruments made of Fir-wood, even on Harps, and on Pſalteries, and on Timbrels, and on Cornets, and on Cymbals.] Where Raſi notes, that theſe Words Becol Atze Beroſhim, do not ſignify any particular Inſtrument, but (as we tranſlate it) the Wood of which the following Inſtruments are made; viz. either Fir or Box. As for the Inſtruments themſelves, it will be to no purpoſe to deſcribe them. The learned Reader may ſee an Account of every one of them, in Bartoloccius's Kirjath-Sepher, Tom. 2. p. 190, &c.

Ver. 6. And when they came to Nachon's threſhing Floor,] It is commonly thought that Nachon was the Name of a Man: But Bochartus thinks it rather the Name of a Place; ſo called by Anticipation, for the Stroke upon Uzzah. For Nacha ſignifies to ſmite, and Nachon ſignifies Percuſſion: So this Floor was called ever after the Floor of Percuſſion; becauſe God ſmote Uzzah in this Place. And accordingly in the 1 Chron. xiii. 9. it is called the Floor of Chidon; which is the very ſame: For Chid ſignifies Deſtruction.

Uzzah put forth his Hand to the Ark of God, and took hold of it; for the Oxen ſhook it.] There is no greater Difference, among Interpreters, about the Signification of any Word, than this Word Sametu, which we tranſlate ſhook it. That which is neareſt to the Truth, Bochartus thinks, is our Marginal Tranſlation, they ſtumbled. Yet this is mere gueſſing, for it hath no Foundation either in the Hebrew, or the neighbouring Languages. But from the Arabick he takes this to be the Senſe; that the Oxen coming into a dirty Place, ſtuck in the Mire; and could not get out their Feet. Which Uzzah ſeeing, and fearing the King and the People, by this Accident, might be ſtopt too long in their Proceſſion, took hold of the Ark: Intending perhaps to carry it, together with his Brethren, to Mount Zion, which was not far off: But this ſhould have been done at firſt; and becauſe he did it not, he was puniſhed by God.

Ver. 7. And the anger of the LORD was kindled againſt Uzzah, and God ſmote him there for his error.] Or, for his Raſhneſs, in touching the Ark: Some think it was becauſe he was not a Levite, and therefore ſhould not have touched it. But it is pretty plain that he was; being the Brother of Eleazer, who was conſecrated to look after the Ark: Which was the Office of a Levite, 1 Sam. vii. 1. But being a Levite, he was guilty of a double Error: Firſt, In not carrying the Ark upon his Shoulders, together with his Brethren; and ſecondly, In touching it; which he ought not ſo much as to have ſeen: But it being cover'd by the Prieſts, the Levites were to take hold of the Staves, and carry it, Numb. iv. 15.

And there he died by the Ark of God.] Or, before the LORD, as it is expreſſed, 1 Chron. xiii. 10. becauſe the Ark was the Symbol of God's ſpecial Preſence. Some think he was ſuddenly choaked; others that his Arm and his Shoulder, upon which he ſhould have carried the Ark, were dried up; others, that he was blaſted with Lightning. But all theſe, and the like Conjectures, are uncertain: It is enough to know, that he died ſuddenly, not from any natural Cauſe, but ſtruck by the Hand of God. See Bochartus in his Hierozoicon, P. 1. L. 2. Cap. 13. who truly obſerves, that though his Intention, perhaps, was good, yet that would not excuſe an Offence againſt the expreſs Law of God. Abarbinel alſo adds this as a Cauſe of his Puniſhment, that he wanted Faith in God: Who would not have ſuffered his Ark to fall into the Dirt, but ſupported it himſelf, without Uzzah's help.

Ver. 8. And David was diſpleaſed, becauſe the LORD had made a breach upon Uzzah.] He took it very heavily: And was angry (as the Word ſignifies) that there was any Cauſe for ſuch a Breach, that is ſuch a Deſtruction. For it detracted much from his Authority and Eſteem, to have ſuch an Accident in the beginning of his Reign, and at ſuch a Solemnity of great Joy: Which was hereby diſturbed and interrupted. Perhaps, he was troubled, being afraid that he alſo might ſuffer, for taking no better care about the carrying of the Ark.

And he called the Name of the place Perez Uzzah, to this day.] In memory of this dreadful Stroke: Whereby the Levites and all others might be admoniſhed of their Duty.

Ver. 9. And David was afraid of the LORD that day, and ſaid, How ſhall the Ark of the LORD come to me?] By this it appears, he had ſome Fear, that he himſelf was in danger: And therefore durſt not bring the Ark into his City. Either thinking, in great Humility, that he was unworthy to have it ſo near him; or that he did not ſufficiently underſtand how to treat it. Which he underſtood better afterward, as we learn from 1 Chron. xv. 2, 13, 14, 15.

Ver. 10. So David would not remove the Ark of the LORD unto him, into the City of David: but David carried it aſide into the Houſe of Obed-Edom the Gittite.] He is not called a Gittite from his being born, or dwelling in Gath (which was a City of the Philiſtines) but from Gath-rimmon a Levitical City, Joſh. xxi. 24, 25. For it is certain Obed-Edom was a Levite, 1 Chron. xv. 18, 21, 24.---xvi. 5. Who, I ſuppoſe, was willing to entertain the Ark: Reſolving to treat it with ſuch Reverence, that he might not offend the Divine Majeſty.

Ver. 11. And the Ark of the LORD continued in the Houſe of Obed-Edom three Months.] A ſhort time, in compariſon with that which it continued at Kirjath-jearim. But all this time it was without the Tabernacle. Which from Gilgal being removed to Shiloh, after the Death of Eli, was carried to Nob; and after the Death of Samuel to Gibeon: Where it remained till Solomon's Temple was built, and then carried thither, as we read, 1 Chron. xvi. 39. and 2 Chron. i. 3.

And the LORD bleſſed Obed-Edom, and his Houſhold.] Made them exceeding proſperous in all their Affairs.

Ver. 12. And it was told David, ſaying, The LORD hath bleſſed the Houſe of Obed-Edom, and all that pertaineth to him, becauſe of the Ark of God.] They could not tell to what to impute pute the extraordinary Happineſs that attended him, but to his religious Care about the Ark.

So David went and brought up the Ark of God from the Houſe of Obed-Edom, into the City of David,] Hoping God would bleſs him and his City, as he had done Obed-Edom, and his Houſe.

With gladneſs.] All the People, I ſuppoſe, again accompanied him, playing on all manner of muſical Inſtruments, as they did before, ver. 5.

Ver. 13. And it was ſo, that when they that bare the Ark, had gone ſix paces,] Without any Mark of God's Diſpleaſure, as before, ver. 7.

He ſacrificed Oxen and Fatlings.] As a Thankſgiving to God for his Goodneſs, upon an Altar erected on purpoſe, on this extraordinary Occaſion. Some think he repeated theſe Sacrifices ſeven times, at the end of every ſix paces. The Word we tranſlate Fatlings, is in the Hebrew, Meri: Whoſe Signification is uncertain. For ſome take it for a Lamb, others for a Ram, and others put a different Meaning on it. But Bochartus, with great Probability, thinks it was a kind of Ox, being commonly joined with Oxen in Scripture, not only here, but in 1 Kings i. 9, 19, 25. Iſa. i. 11.-----xi. 6. Nor doth 1 Chron. xv. 26. contradict this, where it is ſaid, they offered Bullocks and Rams. For thoſe are not the ſame Sacrifices with theſe, which were offered by David; whereas thoſe in the Chronicles were offered by the Levites. See his Hierozoicon. P. 1. Lib. 2. Cap. 19.

Ver. 14. And David danced before the LORD with all his might; and David was girded with a Linen Ephod.] He laid aſide his Royal Ornaments, and was girded only with a ſimple Ephod: Which was, I obſerved upon 1 Sam. ii. 18. an honorary Garment, uſed by thoſe who were no Prieſts. He is ſaid to dance before the LORD, becauſe the Ark was the Symbol of the Divine Preſence. And from hence, it is probable, the Heathen learnt to dance before their Gods: As Callimachus mentions the Chori and Dancings of Youth at the Altar of Apollo. And as there were παίδικοι χόροι, ſo there were alſo ἀνδρικοι, and among the Lacedemonians of old, Men alſo. And Plato obſerves, that among the Egyptians all kinds of Muſick, and Songs and Dances were conſecrated to their Gods, Lib. 3. de legibus, p. 799. See that great Man Ezek. Spanhemius's Obſervations on Callim. Hymn. in Apollinem, ver. 8.

Ver. 15. So David and all the Houſe of Iſrael brought up the Ark of the LORD with ſhouting, and with the ſound of the Trumpet.] Such Ὁλολυγμοὶ, as the Greeks call them, were uſed before their Gods: Of which the great Man now mentioned gives a large Account in his Obſervations upon Callimachus his Hymn ad Delum, ver. 258. Where he obſerves, that ὀλολύζειν anciently ſignified to ſhout for Joy: And in like manner the Latin Word ululare is uſed by Statius for exultare. And this ſort of Rejoicing is at this Day uſed by the Abyſſines, in the Evening of our LORD's Reſurrection; when Men and Women ſhout and clap their Hands, and dance to ſeveral Inſtruments of Muſick, till Morning Light: And all this in their Churches. Which in all likelihood came from the Jews, who ſtill dance in ſome of their Feſtivals. See Ludolphus in his Comment upon his Hiſtoria Æthiopica. Pag. 381. where he obſerves that David, in all probability, did not now dance alone, but in company.

Ver. 16. And as the Ark of the LORD came into the City of David, Michal, Saul's Daughter, looked out through a Window, and ſaw King David leaping and dancing before the LORD; and ſhe deſpiſed him in her heart.] Imagining that he debaſed himſelf, by ſtripping himſelf of the Ornaments of Majeſty, and dancing among the common People. But ſhe underſtood not, as Procopius Gazæus here gloſſes, ardoris ſtimulos, theſe Stings of Divine Love which David declared to her afterward.

Ver. 17. And he brought in the Ark of the LORD, and ſet it in its place, in the midſt of the Tabernacle that David had pitched for it.] The ancient Tabernacle made by Moſes, remained ſtill, as I obſerved before at Gibeon: From whence David did not think fit to fetch it, becauſe he intended ſhortly (as Pellicanus well obſerves) to build a Temple to ſettle it in. For the preſent therefore he only hung ſome Curtains round about it, after the Faſhion of the Tabernacle. See vii. 2.

And David offered Burnt-Offerings and Peace-Offerings before the LORD.] To implore the Continuance of his Mercies to them; and to thank him for thoſe they had received.

Ver. 18. And as ſoon as David had made an end of offering Burnt-Offerings and Peace-Offerings, he bleſſed the People in the Name of the LORD.] He prayed God to bleſs them; and pronounced them bleſſed in his Name.

Ver. 19. And he dealt among the People, even among the whole Multitude of Iſrael, as well Women as Men, to every one a Cake of Bread and a good Piece of Fleſh, and a Flaggon of Wine.] The Talmudiſts have a Conceit, that the Hebrew Word Eſhpar, which we tranſlate a good Piece of Fleſh, ſignifies the ſixth Part of a Bullock: Deriving it from three Words put into one, viz. Echad one, Sheſh ſix, and Par a Bullock. But every one ſees this is a very forced Fancy; and it is not in it ſelf credible, that he could among ſuch a Multitude deal a ſixth Part of a Bullock to every one; or that they could well carry it away, with the Bread and Wine. Bochartus more reaſonably thinks (as ſome of the Jews do) the Word is derived from Shapar, which ſignifies decorus: And ſo the Meaning is, as we tranſlate it, he gave to every one an handſome or decent Portion of Fleſh. See his Hierozoicon, P. 1. Lib. 2. Cap. 18.

So all the People departed every one to his Houſe.] Well ſatisfied with their Prince's Bounty to them, and his Piety to God.

Ver. 20. Then David returned to bleſs his Houſhold.] As he had done the People.

And Michal the Daughter of Saul came out to meet him, and ſaid, How glorious was the King of Iſrael to-day.] This ſhe ſpake ironically, by way of Deriſion and Contempt.

Who uncovered himſelf to-day.] Stript himſelf of his Royal Robes, and put on a Linen Ephod. ver. 14.

In the eyes of the Handmaids of his Servants.] The Women perhaps bare a part in theſe Dances, as they did in Exod. xv. or at leaſt were Spectators of all the Solemnity: From which none were excluded, though ever ſo mean.

As

As one of the vain Fellows ſhameleſly uncovereth himſelf.] Throws off all his Clothes, and cares not who ſees him, nor with what Company he dances. This was ſpoken by way of Reproach, that he mixed himſelf with the Multitude; and ſeems to intimate that he had immodeſtly expoſed himſelf, as ſhameleſs Fellows do; which is not credible. But thus in a Fit of Paſſion ſhe aggravates this Action, as very mean, yea baſe, and much below himſelf. For no doubt David kept himſelf within the Rules of Modeſty, when he was thus jocund, being about a ſacred Buſineſs; and did according to the Command of God, who required the Iſraelites to rejoice in their Feaſts (Deut. xii. 7. xvi. 1.) not with a futilous, laſcivious, and petulant Joy, but with a pious and moderate; as having God himſelf preſent. And thus Plato obſerves, Lib. 7. de Legibus, that ſome Dances are ἐμελῶς, with modeſt and decent Motions of the Body: Others πλημμελῶς, immodeſt and wanton. The latter of which none can imagine David would be guilty of before God: But danced with compoſed and decent, not deſultorious and light Motions; ſuch as vain Fellows are wont to uſe. For as it is Joy that excites Men to leap and dance, ſo divine Joy moves them to do it after a manner becoming the divine Majeſty.

Ver. 21. And David ſaid to Michal, It was before the LORD, which choſe me before thy Father, and before all his Houſe; and appointed me Ruler over the People of the LORD, over Iſrael: therefore will I play before the LORD.] Who had done ſo much for him, that he thought he could not ſhow himſelf thankful enough to ſo great a Benefactor. He thought fit to take down her Pride, by putting her in mind, how God had rejected all her Family, and advanced him to the Throne of Iſrael.

Ver. 22. And I will yet be more vile than thus, and will be baſe in my own eyes.] He thought nothing too mean for him to ſtoop unto; if thereby he could do any Honour unto God. Otherwiſe to dance in the Streets before all the People, had been very unbecoming the Majeſty of a King: As Nero (we are told by Suetonius) and Caligula were condemned for it, among the Romans. For among them it was not uſual, nor was it done in Honour of their Gods. Whereas in David's Time the greateſt Perſons thus expreſſed their Joy and Thankfulneſs to God, by publick leaping, dancing, ſhouting and clapping their Hands.

And of the Maid-ſervants which thou haſt ſpoken of, of them ſhall I be had in honour.] The more he humbled himſelf to do honour unto God, the more he was confident he ſhould be magnified, and had in honour by his People. The Eſteem of the meaneſt of which upon that account, he valued far more than all the vainglorious Praiſes Michal could beſtow on him, for taking State upon him, and neglecting God's Service.

Ver. 23. Therefore Michal the Daughter of Saul had no Child until the day of her Death.] Which is thus explained in the Gemara Sanhedrin, Cap. 2. Sect. 8. She had Children before this Fact, but none after it as long as ſhe lived. See iii. 5. David perhaps quite left her Bed.

CHAP. VII.

Ver. 1. AND it came to paſs when the King ſat in his Houſe, and the LORD had given him reſt round about from all his Enemies.] Enjoyed himſelf in the Palace Hiram had built for him (v. 11.) having no diſturbance from the Philiſtines, or other neighbouring Nations.

Ver. 2. That the King ſaid unto Nathan the Prophet; See how I dwell in a Houſe of Cedar; but the Ark of God dwelleth within Curtains.] Like a religious Prince, he ſpent much of his Time in pious Meditations: And among other things reflected upon the Meanneſs of God's Habitation, in compariſon with the Splendor of his own. Which he thought ought not to be endured, and therefore reſolved to build a ſtately Houſe for God to dwell in.

Ver. 3. And Nathan ſaid unto the King, Go, do all that is in thine heart: for the LORD is with thee.] He ſpake that as a prudent Man, not as a Prophet. For (as Procopius Gazæus here obſerves) the Prophets did not ſee all Things; but thoſe only which the divine Grace revealed to them: As Samuel was ignorant which of Jeſſe his Sons was to be anointed, till God told him. But Nathan had great reaſon for what he ſaid, becauſe he obſerved that the LORD had an extraordinary Kindneſs for David, and proſpered him in all that he went about. And David withal being a Prophet as well as himſelf, he might preſume this Intention was ſuggeſted to him from God.

Ver. 4. And it came to paſs that Night, that the Word of the LORD came to Nathan, ſaying,] God would not ſuffer him long to remain in an Error; but corrected it the very next Night.

Ver. 5. Go and tell my Servant David.] He ſpeaks very kindly of him; tho' he did not approve of his Deſign.

Thus ſaith the LORD, Shalt thou build me an Houſe for me to dwell in?] The Meaning is, he ſhould not build one. But this Manner of Speech declared his Mind ſomething ſharply: To reprove him for his Forwardneſs (without asking God's Conſent) not only in deſigning, but in making a Vow, that he would forthwith build God an Houſe. For it is probable, that upon Nathan's approving his Intention, he made that Vow mentioned Pſalm cxxxii. 3, 4, 5. Surely I will not go up to my Bed, nor give ſleep to mine Eyes, &c. till I have found out a place for the LORD, an Habitation for the mighty God of Jacob.

Ver. 6. Whereas I have not dwelt in any Houſe ſince the time I brought up the Children of Iſrael out of Egypt, until this day.] As much as to ſay, how comeſt thou to deſign me a fixed Houſe, ſince neither I, nor any one elſe thought of one from the Time you have been a People?

But have walked in a Tent, and a Tabernacle.] Contented my ſelf with a moveable Houſe, conſiſting of a Tent and a Tabernacle: In which I was always preſent to conduct and lead my People from Place to Place. By a Tent is meant the inward Hangings of the Houſe, which were of curious Work: And by the Tabernacle bernacle, the Boards to which they were faſtned; and the Badgers Skins, &c. wherewith all was covered.

Ver. 7. In all the Places wherein I have walked with all the Children of Iſrael, ſpake I a Word with any of the Tribes of Iſrael.] That is, of the Judges of Iſrael, as it is interpreted, 1 Chron. xvii. 6. For the word Shibte ſignifies not only Tribes, but Scepters; and conſequently ſupreme Governors, and Rulers: Such as the Judges were, who had the ſupreme Authority in Iſrael. And ſo the following Words explain it.

Whom I commanded to feed my People Iſrael.] He did not command the Tribes, but the ſupreme Governors of them, to feed, that is, to rule his People, and take care of their Happineſs. Here again, feeding is governing (as I obſerved, v. 2.) and the Hebrew Word for feed being raga, as ſome pronounce it (in the Syriack, rega) very learned Men thence derive the Latin Words, regere and reges: Kings being deſigned by God to be the Paſtors of their People.

Saying, Why build ye me not an Houſe of Cedar?] God was the propereſt Judge what Houſe was agreeable to him, and he never ſignified that he diſliked his preſent, and deſired a more ſtately Habitation.

Ver. 8. Now therefore, ſo ſhalt thou ſay unto my Servant David.] He would not have him think he took it ill, that he ſhould deſign what he never ſignified to be his Deſire; but owned him to be his faithful Servant; and therefore accepted his pious Intentions: As we read expreſly 1 Kings viii. 18. which is ſignified in this Meſſage.

Thus ſaith the LORD of Hoſts, I took thee from the Sheep-cote, from following the Sheep, to be Ruler over my People Iſrael.] Therefore he needed not to make any doubt, but that God accepted his Gratitude, in deſigning to make him an Houſe.

Ver. 9. And I was with thee whitherſoever thou wenteſt.] In the Time of his Baniſhment, when he was remarkably preſerved by God.

And have cut off all thine Enemies out of thy ſight.] Both thoſe in Iſrael, and thoſe in the neighbouring Countries.

And have made thee a great Name, like to the Name of the great Men that are in the Earth.] Famed in all the Countries round about, as a potent Prince, and a mighty Warriour: And perhaps, as an holy Prophet greatly beloved of God, and of all his People.

Ver. 10. Moreover, I will appoint a Place for my People Iſrael.] Or, I have conſtituted (or eſtabliſhed) a Place for my People; viz. the Land of Canaan.

And will plant them,] Make them take root there.

That they may dwell in a Place of their own, and not move any more.] No longer wander, as they did in the Wilderneſs.

Neither ſhall the Children of Wickedneſs] The Idolatrous People round about them.

Afflict them any more, as before time.] When they were in the Land of Egypt.

Ver. 11. And as ſince the time that I commanded Judges to be over my People Iſrael.] In whoſe Days they were ſorely afflicted by the Moabites, Canaanites, Midianites, and other People.

And have cauſed thee to reſt from all thine Enemies.] Given him a quiet Poſſeſſion of the whole Kingdom of Iſrael; which never was in ſo happy a Condition as now. A flouriſhing People is a great Bleſſing to the King that governs them; and therefore mentioned in this Verſe, as God's Kindneſs to David. But this Promiſe was with ſome Exceptions, in caſe they became diſobedient: Which provoked God to chaſtiſe them.

Alſo the LORD telleth thee, that he will make thee an Houſe.] A Family, or Royal Off-ſpring, that ſhall reign for many Generations: Which was a ſpecial Favour of God to David; there being none of the Roman Emperors, till the Time of Antoninus, whoſe Children from the Reign of Julius Cæſar ſucceeded them in the Empire, but only Veſpaſian.

Ver. 12. And when thy days be fulfilled, and thou ſhalt ſleep with thy Fathers; I will ſet up thy Seed after thee.] To ſit upon his Throne.

Which ſhall proceed out of thy Bowels.] This ſhews that he ſpeaks of one, who was not yet born, viz. Solomon: And that Abſalom, Adonijah, and the reſt who pretended to the Kingdom, were not deſigned for it: Being already proceeded from him.

And I will eſtabliſh his Kingdom.] He reigned a long time himſelf; and ſo did his Poſterity after him.

Ver. 13. He ſhall build me an Houſe for my Name, and I will eſtabliſh the Throne of his Kingdom for ever.] The latter part of this Verſe can belong to none but the Meſſiah; if the Words for ever be taken in their full extent.

Ver. 14. And I will be his Father, and he ſhall be my Son.] This the Apoſtle ſhews is meant of Chriſt, Hebr. i. 5. For tho' Solomon was called Iedidiah, in token that he was beloved of God, yet in the compleat Senſe of the Words, Chriſt only is intended; who is God's beloved Son in whom he is well pleaſed.

If he commit iniquity, I will chaſten him with the Rod of Men, and with the Stripes of the Children of Men.] This is a mixt Prophecy, ſome part of which belongs to Chriſt, and the other Part to Solomon, and his Succeſſors in the Kingdom of Iſrael: Who, it is plain, is ſolely intended in theſe Words. And by the Rod of Men, and Stripes of the Children of Men, is meant gentle Correction; ſuch as Parents give their Children.

Ver. 15. But my Mercy ſhall not depart from him, as I took it from Saul, whom I put away before thee.] He promiſed not to tranſlate the Kingdom into another Family; as he took it from Saul to give it to David: But the Kingdom ſhall continue in his Line.

Ver. 16. And thy Houſe and thy Kingdom ſhall be eſtabliſhed for ever before thee: thy Throne ſhall be eſtabliſhed for ever.] That is, ſaith Kimchi, for a long time, between four and five hundred Years, which was a rare Thing, and ſeldom known, that the King's Authority continued in any one Family ſo long. But this is chiefly intended of the Kingdom of Chriſt, as Procopius Gazæus here obſerves: From whence the Jews ſaid, John xii. 34. We have heard out of the Law, that Chriſt abideth for ever. This is confirmed by the Rule which Maimonides lays down in his More Nevochim, that though Olam alone doth not neceſſarily ſignify eternally, yet when it is joined with ath either before or after it, it doth ſo ſignify. And that is the Caſe here; this Kingdom is ſaid to be eſtabliſhed ath Olam: Which can belong to none but Chriſt; for David's Kingdom had an End, but Chriſt's hath none. Pars 2. Cap. 28.

Ver. 17. According to all theſe Words, and according to this Viſion; ſo Nathan ſpake unto David.] This ſhows the Integrity of the Prophet; who was not aſhamed to retract his own Words when he was better taught of God. And as Dionyſius obſerves in an Epiſtle to Novatus, μεῖζον ἔσται τῦ σφάλματος τὸ κατόρθωμα, the Correction of his Fault was more eminent and remarkable than the Fault itſelf.

Ver. 18. Then went King David in, and ſat before the LORD.] That is, before the Ark; which, as I have often ſaid, was the Symbol of his Divine Preſence. Sitting among the Heathens, was thought a Poſture proper enough in the Divine Service; as Voſſius hath obſerved, Lib. 2. de Orig. & Progreſſu Idolat. Cap. 34. Quippe index animi magis compoſiti, & hoc agentis, being an Indication of a more compoſed Mind, and attending to what they were about. But among the Iſraelites none were allowed to ſit in the Temple, except the King: Unto whom this was indulged, if we can believe the Talmudiſts; whoſe general Maxim was this, It was not lawful for any one to ſit in the Court of the Houſe of God; but only for the King of the Houſe of David. See Selden Lib. 2. de Synedriis, Cap. 13. Sect. 4. But they have framed this Notion, merely from this ſingle Paſſage: There being no other Place in the whole Scripture to ſupport this Aſſertion, that the King might ſit at Prayer: But on the contrary, on the Sabbath, and on feſtival Days when he came to the Temple, he ſtood by the exterior Pillar of the inward Court of the Houſe of God; as may be learnt from Ezek. xlvi. 1, 2. (compared with 2 Kings xi. 14. and 2 Chron. xxiii. 13.) Nor is there any other Poſture of Worſhip mentioned in Scripture, but ſtanding, or kneeling, or falling on the Face. And therefore Abarbinel ingenuouſly confeſſes, that this is not the Opinion of all their Doctors, ſeveral of which in this forſake the Talmudiſts; and alledge a weighty Reaſon for it; becauſe the Angels themſelves, who are higher than Kings, are not permitted to ſit before the LORD: But Iſaiah ſaith, vi. 2. that the Seraphim ſtood about the Throne; and Micaiah ſaith, he ſaw the Hoſt of Heaven ſtand before the LORD, 1 Kings xxii. 19. and ſee Zachariah iii. 7. From which they conclude, if there be no ſitting allowed above, by what Right was it granted to the Kings of David's Family here below? Many great Men therefore tranſlate the Hebrew Word Jaſhab not ſat, but remained before the LORD: Particularly Vatablus upon 1 Chron. xvii. 16. And others, who allow the King might ſit in the Temple, yet confeſs he might not ſit at Prayer: And therefore expound this Place thus; He took his Seat in the Tabernacle before the Ark: And then he made the following Prayer, ſtanding up, as the Manner was, when they worſhipped God.

And he ſaid, What am I, O LORD God; and what is my Houſe, that thou haſt brought me hitherto?] He begins his Addreſs to God in a very becoming manner; with a moſt profound Debaſement of himſelf, and Confeſſion of his own Unworthineſs, to receive ſuch Bleſſings as God had already beſtowed upon him.

Ver. 19. And this was yet a ſmall thing in thy ſight, O LORD God; but thou haſt ſpoken of thy Servant's Houſe, for a great while to come.] Next, he magnifies the Loving-kindneſs of God, who did not think it enough that he had made him a great King; but promiſed his Poſterity, and at laſt the LORD Chriſt, ſhould ſit upon his Throne. So Abarbinel himſelf expounds theſe Words a great while to come: Intimating, ſaith he, the Meſſiah, the Son of David.

And is this the manner of Men, O LORD God?] He acknowledges there was no Example of ſuch Kindneſs to be found in this World: Where Kingdoms are not perpetuated, as Abarbinel obſerves; but this is the Manner of Angels, who always continue in their Dignity.

Ver. 20. And can David ſay more unto thee?] There was nothing he could deſire beyond this. See 1 Chron. xvii. 18.

For thou LORD God knoweſt thy Servant.] But he thought he might leave all to God, who loved him and took care of him (for that is, to know him) as his faithful Servant.

Ver. 21. For thy Word's ſake, and according to thine own Heart, haſt thou done all theſe great things.] For God, he knew would fulfil his own Promiſe made by Samuel and by Nathan: To the making of which he had no other Motive, but his own good Will; from whence alone all the great Things proceeded, which he had done for him.

To make thy Servant know them.] That David might know how much God loved him, by what he did for him.

Ver. 22. Wherefore thou art great, O LORD God.] He could not therefore but acknowledge his omnipotent Power, and the Greatneſs of his Goodneſs, which beſtows ſuch Benefits upon unworthy Creatures.

For there is none like the LORD, neither is there any God beſide thee.] According to what Hannah had ſaid in her Song, wherein ſhe propheſied of him, 1 Sam. ii. 2.

According to all that we have heard with our Ears.] Which their Forefathers had reported of the Wonders he had done; by Moſes and Joſhua, and in the time of the Judges.

Ver. 23. And what one Nation in the Earth is like thy People, even like Iſrael, whom God went to redeem for a People unto himſelf,] He ſeems to imitate the Words of Moſes, in Deut. iv. 7, 34.

And to make him a Name,] That all the World might know how powerful he was.

And to do for you great things, and terrible for thy Land,] To introduce them into the Land of Canaan.

Before thy People, which thou redeemeſt to thee from Egypt, and from the Nations and their Gods?] Some underſtand by Gods, their Rulers: But their Gods were no more able to ſave the Nations tions whom he drove out, than their Kings and Rulers were.

Ver. 24. For thou haſt confirmed to thy ſelf thy People Iſrael to be a People unto thee for ever: and thou, LORD, art become their God.] This is the Sum of the Covenant (as P. Martyr obſerves) between God and them: That they ſhould be his obedient People, and he would bleſs them, and beſtow all manner of good things upon them.

Ver. 25. And now, O LORD God, the Word that thou haſt ſpoken concerning thy Servant, and concerning his Houſe, eſtabliſh it for ever: and do as thou haſt ſaid.] After his thankful Acknowledgments, he makes his humble Prayer to God, that he would perform his Promiſe to him. For though he did not doubt of it; yet it became him to make it his Requeſt.

Ver. 26. And let thy Name be magnified for ever, ſaying, The LORD of Hoſts is the God over Iſrael; and let the Houſe of thy Servant David be eſtabliſhed before thee.] Yet he did not deſire it merely for his own ſake; but that God might be glorified in what he did for him: And Men might always acknowledge, that the God of Iſrael was the LORD of Heaven and Earth; and faithful in his Promiſe to the Houſe of David.

Ver. 27. For thou, O LORD of Hoſts, God of Iſrael, haſt revealed to thy Servant, ſaying, I will build thee an Houſe: therefore hath thy Servant found in his heart to pray this Prayer unto thee.] That he might not be thought too bold in his Requeſt, he profeſſes he ſhould not have taken this Confidence, if God himſelf had not encouraged it, by his own moſt gracious Promiſe to him.

Ver. 28. And now, O LORD God, thou art that God, and thy Words be true, and thou haſt promiſed this Goodneſs unto thy Servant.] He profeſſes his Belief of the Unchangeableneſs of God's Nature, and of the Truth of all that he ſaid: Upon which he relied with an unſhaken Faith.

Ver. 29. Therefore now let it pleaſe thee to bleſs the Houſe of thy Servant, that it may continue before thee for ever: for thou, O LORD God, haſt ſpoken it, and with thy Bleſſing let the Houſe of thy Servant be bleſſed for ever.] Since God has been ſo gracious as to make ſuch Promiſes, and his Word could not fail; he grows more confident to repeat his Petition, which he had made before. Which is not the vain Repetition, condemned by our Saviour: But proceeded from the abundant Affection of an Heart devoutly affected; which could not ſufficiently acknowledge the Goodneſs of God, and expreſs his full Aſſurance that he would fulfil his Word. To this purpoſe Abarbinel; David did not multiply Prayer for want of Faith, becauſe he diſtruſted the Power of God; or thought his Will was mutable; or that he doubted of his Prophecy concerning him: But rather, this ſhows that he ſtedfaſtly reſted aſſured of all this.

CHAP. VIII.

Verſe 1. AND after this it came to paſs, that David ſmote the Philiſtines, and ſubdued them.] In the Beginning of his Reign they invaded him twice, v. 17, 22. But now David invaded their Country, and made a Conqueſt of it; and brought it in ſubjection to the Iſraelites.

And David took Metheg-Ammah out of the hand of the Philiſtines.] That is, the famous City of Gath, and the Territories thereof (as it is expounded, 1 Chron. xviii. 1.) which is called Metheg-Ammah; becauſe it ſtood upon Mount Ammah: And was as a Bridle to the whole Country, whereby it was kept in obedience. So our Tranſlators underſtand the word Metheg in the Margin of our Bibles. But R. Solomon takes it for a Goad, or a Staff; this City domineering over the Philiſtines. For we read of no King in any of their other Cities: Either in Gaza, or Aſhdod, or Ekron, or Aſcalon; but only in this: where Achiſh formerly reigned, but, it's likely, was dead. There are ſeveral other Interpretations in Bochart his Hierozoicon, L. 2. Cap. 18. P. 1.

Ver. 2. And he ſmote Moab,] Now was fulfilled the Prophecy of Baalim, Numb. xxiv. 17.

And meaſured them with a Line,] Having conquered the whole Country, he took an exact Survey of every Part of it.

Caſting them to the ground.] Laying level their ſtrong Holds and fortified Places.

And with two Lines meaſured he, to put to death.] He divided the Country into three equal Parts; condemning two of them to be deſtroyed.

And with one Line he ſaved alive.] A third Part he preſerved, that he might not be quite diſpeopled. This Severity, the Jews ſay, he exerciſed becauſe they had ſlain his Parents, and his Brethren, whom he committed to the Cuſtody of the King of Moab, during his Exile, 1 Sam. xxii. 3, 4. But in truth, becauſe the Moabites had always been implacable Enemies to the Iſraelites; their Kindneſs to David, before-mentioned, proceeding from their Hatred to Saul.

And ſo the Moabites became David's Servants, and brought Gifts.] And paid David a conſtant Tribute, which continued all his Days, and in the Reign of Solomon: And after the Kingdom was divided, it was paid to the Kings of Iſrael; till after the Death of Ahab they refuſed to pay it, as we read 2 Kings iii. 4, 5.

Ver. 3. And David ſmote alſo Hadadezer the Son of Rehob,] Who is called alſo Hadarezer: For the change of theſe two Letters, Daleth and Reſh, is very frequent, as Bochartus hath ſhown in many Inſtances, P. 2. Hierozoicon, Lib. 2. Cap. 7. Nicolaus Damaſcenus in a Fragment of his recorded by Joſephus (L. 7. Antiq. Cap. 6.) ſimply calls him Adad; which was a common Name of the Kings of Syria: Who according to the manner of the Eaſtern Princes, took their Titles from the Celeſtial Bodies, as Sir John Marſham obſerves; and Adad was the Name of the moſt glorious of them, viz. the Sun, as Macrobius tells us: Who truly ſaith, it ſignifies unus, one.

King of Zobah,] Zobah was a part of Syria, whoſe Eaſtern Border was Euphrates, as the Weſtern was the Land of Canaan, and the Kingdom of Damaſcus. It is frequently called Aram-Zobah in Scripture; of which Bochartus in his Phaleg. Lib. 2. Cap. 7. where he obſerves the Nearneſs of Zobah to Judæa, from the frequent Wars the Iſraelites had with that People, in the Days of Saul, 1 Sam. xiv. 47. and David,

Chap. x. of this Book; and Solomon, 2 Chron. viii. 3. and they of Damaſcus came to help them, which is a ſign they were near them, (ver. 5. of this Chapter) and Rezin fled from thence to Damaſcus, 1 Kings xi. 24. And eſpecially he obſerves that the Cities Solomon built in the Wilderneſs, viz. Palmyrene, and others (1 Kings ix. 17, 18.) are ſaid to be in Hamath, 2 Chron. viii. 4. which ſhows the Situation of Zobah.

As he went to recover his Border at the River Euphrates.] That is, as David went to extend the Limits of his Kingdom (according to the ancient Prophecy, Gen. xv. 18.) towards the River Euphrates, he ſmote this King, who came out perhaps to oppoſe him. See 1 Chron. xviii. 3. where it is ſaid, he went to eſtabliſh his Dominions by the River Euphrates: Which ſeems to relate to David, not to Hadadezer.

Ver. 4. And David took from him a thouſand Chariots,] The Word Chariot is not in the Hebrew: But it is well ſupplied by our Tranſlators, out of 1 Chron. xvi. 4. in which Book many things are explained, which are briefly related here.

And ſeven hundred Horſemen,] Here again is an Ellipſis, as in the foregoing Words: For in 1 Chron. xviii. 4. it is ſaid ſeven thouſand. But as after a thouſand ſomething is to be underſtood, viz. Chariots; ſo after ſeven hundred ſomething is to be underſtood, viz. Captains (as Abarbinel explains it) under whom a great many others ſerved; ſo that Commanders and Soldiers made, in all, ſeven thouſand. Such an Ellipſis is obſerved in this very Book, v. 8. whoſoever ſmites the Jebuſites, and the Blind and the Lame, &c. It is not ſaid what ſhall be their Reward; which is plainly mentioned, 1 Chron. xi. 6. where it is ſaid, he ſhall be chief. See L'Empereur on Bava Kama, Cap. 7. Sect. 7.

And twenty thouſand Footmen, and David houghed all their Chariot-Horſes,] Here again is the ſame Ellipſis, for there is no Word in the Hebrew for Horſes. Yet the Meaning can be nothing elſe, but that he cut the Hamſtrings of the Horſes that drew their Chariots, and made them unſerviceable hereafter. See Joſh. xi. 9. Thus in x. 18. David is ſaid to have ſlain ſeven hundred Chariots, that is, the Horſes of ſo many Chariots: And in Pſalm lxviii. 18. by the Chariots of the LORD, ſome underſtood Horſemen: And lxxvi. 6. the Chariot and Horſe, &c. That is, as well the Horſes that drew the Chariot, as they that rode in it. See Bochartus in his Hieroz. P. 1. L. 2. Cap. 6.

But reſerved of them for an hundred Chariots.] For his Guard, I ſuppoſe, not for War: God having commanded them not to multiply Horſes, Deut. xvii. 16. See there.

Ver. 5. And when the Syrians of Damaſcus came to ſuccour Hadadezer King of Zobah,] For they were Neighbours to him, as I obſerved on ver. 3.

David ſlew of the Syrians of Damaſcus twenty thouſand Men.] Which facilitated the Conqueſt of their Country: Which follows in the next Verſe.

Ver. 6. Then David put Gariſons in Syria of Damaſcus.] Aram Damaſek, which we tranſlate Syria of Damaſcus, was that Part of Syria which lay between Libanus and Antilibanus; whoſe chief City was Damaſcus, ſituated in a Valley called by ſeveral Names in Scripture, as Bochartus notes, viz. Hoba, Gen. xiv. 15. the Valley of Aven, and Beth-eden, i. e. the Place of Pleaſure, Amos i. 5. and Hadrach, Zachar. ix. 1. It was watered by five Rivers; the two principal of which deſcended from Mount Hermon, viz. Abana, and Pharphar, (2 Kings v. 12.) The laſt of which ran by the Walls of Damaſcus; the other ran through it, and divided the City into two Parts.

And the Syrians became Servants to David, and brought Gifts.] In token of their Subjection to him.

And the LORD preſerved David whitherſoever he went.] Kept him from all the Dangers to which he was expoſed in theſe Wars.

Ver. 7. And David took the Shields of Gold that were on the Servants of Hadadezer, and brought them to Jeruſalem.] The Hebrew Particle El, which we tranſlate on, may better be tranſlated with, that is, in the Cuſtody of Hadadezer's Servants, who were Officers in his Treaſury: for it is not likely they brought them into the Field of Battel.

Ver. 8. And from Bera, and from Berothai, Cities of Hadadezer, David took exceeding much Braſs.] Theſe two Cities are called by very different Names in 1 Chron. xviii. 6. tho' perhaps of the ſame Signification in the Language of that Country, with theſe in the Hebrew Language. Or there were four Cities, perhaps, from whence he took much Braſs; two here mentioned, and two in the Book of Chronicles. It is the Opinion of ſome learned Men, that theſe Cities were ſituated at the foot of the Mount Libanus, between Emath and Damaſcus: Which Mount, they ſay, abounded with Braſs. But Bochartus could find no mention of the Braſs of Libanus in any ancient or modern Writer. And the Kingdom of Zobah lying about Palmyra, he takes the City called Berothai to be the ſame with that which Ptolemy calls Βαράθημα in Arabia deſerta; which is very remote from Libanus, P. 2. Hierozoicon, Lib. 6. Cap. ult.

Ver. 9. When Toi King of Hamath had heard that David had ſmitten all the Hoſt of Hadadezer,] This City was alſo in Syria, and was called afterwards Epiphania, as St. Hierom ſays, and lay North of Judæa. See Bochart in his Phaleg. Lib. 4. Cap. 37.

Ver. 10. Then Toi ſent Joram his Son] Called Hadoram, 1 Chron. xviii. 10.

Unto King David,] At Jeruſalem, I ſuppoſe.

To ſalute him, and bleſs him,] To congratulate his good Succeſs in the War with Hadadezer; and to wiſh him continued Proſperity.

Becauſe he had fought againſt Hadadezer, and ſmitten him: For Hadadezer had Wars with Toki.] And was too hard for him.

And Joram brought with him Veſſels of Silver, and Veſſels of Gold, and Veſſels of Braſs.] As a Preſent to King David; whoſe Friendſhip he ſought by this Embaſſy.

Ver. 11. Which alſo King David did dedicate unto the LORD,] As he did what he took from Hadadezer.

With the Silver and Gold that he had dedicated of all People that he had ſubdued.] Theſe Words ſeem to import, that he was ſo far from multiplying plying Silver and Gold to himself (which Moses forbad, Deut. xvii. 16.) that he put all this Spoil, or the greatest part of it, into God's Treasury: For the building of the Temple, which he designed, and his Son was to accomplish, vii. 13.

Ver. 12. Of Syria, and of Moab, and of the Children of Ammon, and of the Philistines, and of Amalek, and of the Spoil of Hadadezer the Son of Rehob, King of Zobah.] Here he reckons up all the Countries, besides Hadadezer's, from whence he brought Spoil to the Treasury of God.

Ver. 13. And David gat him a Name, when he returned from smiting the Syrians.] His Victory over that People (mentioned, ver. 5.) when they came to succour Hadadezer, gained him a great Reputation, as a potent Prince, and a mighty Warrior.

In the Valley of Salt, being eighteen thousand Men.] There is nothing in the Hebrew answering to the word being: Which therefore should be translated, in the Valley of Salt eighteen thousand Men. That is, he slew of the Edomites so many, besides the two and twenty thousand of the Syrians. So we read expresly, 1 Chron. xviii. 12. and in the Title of the lxth Psalm, it is said, they were Edomites, not Syrians, who were slain in this Valley. Only in that Place of the Psalms, there is mention of no more than twelve Thousand slain: Which makes some think it speaks of a distinct Battel from this. But Abishai, who began the Fight, perhaps slew six Thousand, and then Joab coming in with his Reserve, slew twelve Thousand more; which in all make eighteen Thousand. By the Valley of Salt, Epiphanius understands the dead Sea, which was formerly a famous Valley, or rather it was a Valley near that Sea. But neither of these Opinions have any good Foundation, as Salmasius shews: Who takes this Valley of Salt to have been in the Country of Edom, where this Battel was fought; and to be called by this Name, either from the Salt Springs which were therein, or from the Salt that was digged up there. See his Exercit. Plinianæ, Cap. 35. p. 613, 614.

Ver. 14. And he put Garisons in Edom; throughout all Edom put he Garisons.] Having conquered the whole Country, he garisoned the strongest Places in it, with his own Men; to keep them in subjection to him. Some of the Jews translate these Words, He put Captains or Commanders in Edom, that is, great Men to govern them, and as his Deputies to keep them under and raise Tributes, &c.

And the LORD preserved David whithersoever he went.] God's Providence continued still over him to protect him, as formerly (ver. 6.) in all these Expeditions.

Ver. 15. And David reigned over Israel,] He had no Disturbance at home, whilst he made Wars abroad: But all Israel obeyed him.

And David executed Judgment and Justice to all his People.] And having finished his foreign Wars, he applied himself to the Civil Government of his People, according to the Law of God; which he executed duly by himself, or by his Judges. Or rather, while he was engaged in so many Wars abroad, he did not neglect his People at home; but took care that Justice should be administred to them. And so he performed both Parts of such a King, as the Israelites desired, 1 Sam. viii. 20.

Ver. 16. And Joab the Son of Zeruiah was over the Host.] According to the Promise made to that Person, who should first enter the strong Fort of Zion, when he assaulted it, 1 Chron. xi. 6.

And Jehoshaphat the Son of Ahilud was Recorder.] The Hebrew Word Mazkir importing something of keeping in memory, or bringing to remembrance, moved our Translators to render it Recorder, or Remembrancer: As if he wrote the Acts of every Day; which afterwards were digested into Annals. But this sure was not so considerable an Employment as to make him that had it; the prime Civil Officer in the Kingdom, as Joab was the Military. Therefore Victorinus Strigelius takes him to have been the Chancellor of the Kingdom: Which is more likely than their Opinion, who take him for the Master of Requests, who presented Petitions, and put the King in mind of them.

Ver. 17. And Zadok the Son of Ahitub, and Ahimelech the Son of Abiathar were the Priests.] These two were the chief of the Family of Priests; next to the High-Priest, which was Abiathar: called second Priests in 2 Kings xxv. 18. The former was of the Family of Eleazar (1 Chron. vi. 5.) the other of Ithamar. And Zadok is put first, as more acceptable to David than the other: And therefore it is likely, constantly attended at Court; the Family of Eli now beginning to decline, as in the next Reign the other was advanced to the High-Priesthood, and Abiathar and his Posterity quite thrown out. See Selden, Lib. 1. de Succeff. ad Pontific. Cap. 4. Cornelius Bertram hath a peculiar Conceit, that as Abiathar was always acknowledged by David as God's High-Priest, and accordingly took care of the Ark at Jerusalem, so Zadok as principal Priest among the rest, was set over the Tabernacle at Gibeon. But Abarbinel's Opinion is fartheft from Truth, that Zadok was now High-Priest, and Abiathar but his Vicar: Which is directly against the Scripture, which shews Abiathar to have been High-Priest 'till the Days of Solomon. Yet to justify this, he thinks fit to tell a fabulous Story out of Joma, and other Books, which say that David removed Abiathar from his Office, when he fled from Absalom. For commanding him to enquire of God for him, by Urim and Thummim, God was pleased to give him no Answer: But Zadok inquiring, had an Answer. Whereupon David concluded the Spirit of God was gone from Abiathar, and that it was time to fulfil the Prophecy against the House of Eli; and so thrust him out of his Office. For which they have no other grounds but this, that David spake first to Zadok, Chap. xv. of this Book, ver. 24. See J. Wagenseil upon Sota, p. 1068, 1069.

And Seraiah was the Scribe.] Secretary of State, as we now speak; or as others imagine, Clerk of the Council, who set down all Acts and Decrees; others, the Keeper of the publick Accounts. But the Hebrew word Sopher (which we translate Scribe) importing something of Learning (as the word Scribe in the New Testament doth) I take him to have been his his prime Counſellor in the Law, who always attended him. Conſtantine L'Empereur thinks there were two ſorts of Scribes, an Eccleſiaſtical and a Civil; and here underſtands the latter: And would have him ſignify no more than the Muſter-Maſter of the Army. See his Annot. on Bertram. de Repub. Jud. p. 383, &c.

Ver. 18. And Benaiah the Son of Jehoida was over the Cerethites, and the Pelethites.] Or, the Crethites, and the Plethites, as ſome pronounce theſe Words. What they were, is variouſly conjectured. The moſt idle Conceit is that of ſome of the Jewiſh Doctors, who take them for the Members of the great Sanhedrin, nay, for Urim and Thummim. See Selden, Lib. 2. de Synedr. Cap. 15. p. 601. and Cap. 16. p. 668. Certain it is that they were Soldiers, as appears from xv. 18.----xx. 7. 1 Kings i. 34. Where they are mentioned as preſent at the proclaiming King Solomon againſt Adonijah: Which could not have been done ſafely, without ſome armed Force; and if they were not the Perſons, there were none. Yet they were not common Soldiers, but the conſtant Guards of David's Perſon; like the Prætorian Bands among the Romans. So Joſephus calls them σωματοφύλακες, Keepers of the Body, who never departed from the Place where the King was: As we may be ſatisfied by this, that they had a peculiar Commander, and were not under Joab, the Captain of the Hoſt; but are diſtinguiſhed from his Soldiers, xx. 6, 7. Some make them Men of a gigantick Stature, but I know no ground for that; though no doubt, they were proper Men, as we ſpeak, robuſt, and of tried Fidelity: who in the Rebellion againſt David, did not deſert David, but ſtuck cloſe to him, xv. 18. It is further probable, that they were ſelected out of a certain Nation, or Family. For the Cerethites inhabited part of Palæſtine, and were indeed the ſame with the Philiſtines, as I obſerved upon 1 Sam. xxx. 14. and ſee Zephan. ii. 5. The Pelethites it is likely were a Family in Iſrael: For we find two of the name of Peleth mentioned in Scripture. One of the Tribe of Reuben, Numb. xvi. 1. another of Judah, 1 Chron. ii. 33. Their Arms were Bows and Arrows, and Slings; if we may believe the Chaldee Interpreter, who calls them Archers and Slingers: As Procopius Gazæus calls them jaculatores & ſagittarios. Which may be confirmed by this Conjecture, that the Philiſtines having ſorely gauled the Iſraelites, in the fatal Battel with Saul, by their Archers, David took care not only to have his People inſtructed in the uſe of the Bow, but alſo procured ſome Archers from the Cerethites, who were a part of the Philiſtines, to be his Guard: As ſome Princes now get the Switzers. See my Notes upon 1 Sam. xxxi. 3. and upon the firſt Chapter of this Book, ver. 18. The Number of them may be probably gathered from the Targets and Shields of Gold that Solomon made, which were five hundred, 1 Kings x. 16, 17. and were for the uſe of his Guard, 2 Chron. xii. 9, 10, 11. and kept in the Guard-Chamber.

They that would ſee more of them, may look into a little Treatiſe of Opitius, which is wholly upon this Subject: And Fortunatus Scacchus treats largely of them in his Myrotheſium, iii. Cap. 16, 17, 18. where he hath this ſingular Opinion, p. 181. that the Cerethites were inferior to the Pelethites: But I think with great reaſon concludes, that they were the King's Domeſticks, and lay in his Palace, or about it, in the Night: Which he gathers from 1 Kings i. 33. where David bid Nathan and Zadok and Benaiah take with them the Servants of their Lord, and make Solomon King; and accordingly they took the Cerethites and the Pelethites with them, ver. 38. And from the Story of that brave Man Uriah, who would not go to his own Houſe to his Wife, when Joab and the Hoſt lay in the Field; but went and ſlept at the Door of the King's Houſe with the Servants of his Lord, that is, with theſe Cerethites and Pelethites, Chap. xi. of this Book, ver. 9.

And David's Sons were chief Rulers.] So the Hebrew Word Cohen often ſignifies, not only a Prieſt, but a Prince; as many learned Men have obſerved: particularly Hackſpan in his Miſcellanea, Lib. i. Cap. 5. Sect. 15. but eſpecially Selden. Lib. 2. de Senedr. Cap. 16. p. 671, &c. Where he ſhews that the Hebrew Word ſignifies any Miniſter, either of God or of Man. As in the twentieth Chapter of this Book, ver. 26. Ira the Jairite is ſaid to be a Cohen, which we tranſlate chief Ruler about David; and ſo the Chaldee, and the Spaniſh Jews, a principal Officer. But by the Law, neither he, nor David's Sons could be Prieſts. There can be therefore no doubt of this, that they were the principal Officers in the Court of David, the prime Miniſters of his Houſhold: Such, as among us, are the Lord High Chamberlain, Steward, Treaſurer, &c. as appears from 1 Chron. xviii. 17. where this Matter is thus explained, they were at the hand of the King: Waiting on him, as chief Officers in his Court, or as Cornelius Bertram explains it, publicos & primarios Miniſtros, the publick and principal Miniſters of State. See Bochartus, Lib. 2. Canaan, Cap. 17. And this was the reaſon, they ſay, of Abſalom's Diſcontent, that he was not one of theſe Αὐλάρχαι; or, had not a Place according to his mind.

CHAP. IX.

Verſe 1. AND David ſaid, Is there yet any that is left of the Houſe of Saul, that I may ſhew him Kindneſs for Jonathan's ſake?] Having ended his Wars, and ſettled his Kingdom and Court, now he conſiders what private Obligations he had; eſpecially to the Houſe of Saul, but above all to Jonathan. For he promiſed Saul with an Oath, that he would not cut off his Seed, 1 Sam. xxiv. 21, 22. and had made a Covenant of Friendſhip with Jonathan and his Poſterity for ever; confirmed alſo by an Oath, 1 Sam. xx. 14, 15, 16, 17, 42.---xxiii. 18.

Ver. 2. And there was of the Houſe of Saul, a Servant whoſe Name was Ziba.] He had been employed in ſome Buſineſs in Saul's Family; but being a Canaanite (as ſome of the Jews will have it) he did not recover his Liberty with the Death of Saul, but ſtill continued in ſervitude under David.

And

And when they had called him unto David, the King ſaid unto him, Art thou Ziba? And he ſaid, thy Servant is he.] He was in ſuch an inferior Station, that David did not know him; though ſome among his Courtiers did.

Ver. 3. And the King ſaid, Is there yet any of the Houſe of Saul, that I may ſhew the Kindneſs of God unto him? And Ziba ſaid unto the King, Jonathan hath yet a Son, which is lame on his Feet.] Here David, like a good Man and a worthy Friend, and a noble Prince, thinks how he may perform his Promiſe to Jonathan, 1 Sam. xx. 14. where he obliged himſelf to ſhew the Kindneſs of the LORD, that is, great Kindneſs, to his Poſterity.

Ver. 4. And the King ſaid unto him, Where is he? And Ziba ſaid, He is in the Houſe of Machir, the Son of Ammiel, in Lo-debar.] A Place on the other ſide Jordan; in Mount Gilead, (ſee xvii. 27.) where it is likely his Friends thought him ſafe: Being far from David; whom they looked upon as an Enemy. See ver. 7.

Ver. 5. Then King David ſent, and fet him out of the Houſe of Machir, the Son of Ammiel, from Lo-debar.] It is likely he ſent Ziba to bring him to Court, and to aſſure him of the King's Kindneſs.

Ver. 6. Now when Mephiboſheth] Called alſo Merib-baal, 1 Chron. viii. 34.---ix. 40.

The Son of Jonathan the Son of Saul, was come to David, he fell on his Face, and did reverence.] As the manner was when Men came into the preſence of the King, or the King's Son: For thus David himſelf did to Jonathan, 1 Sam. xx. 41.

And David ſaid unto him, Mephiboſheth. And he anſwered, Behold thy Servant.] The King ſpake in a very friendly manner to him: And he anſwered as humbly.

Ver. 7. And David ſaid unto him, Fear not.] This intimates that he had Apprehenſions David might have an evil eye upon him, as one that had a Pretence to the Kingdom.

For I will ſurely ſhew thee Kindneſs, for Jonathan thy Father's ſake, and will reſtore thee all the Land of Saul thy Father,] Which he had purchaſed before he was King, or acquired afterward, or was deſcended to him from his Father: but had been confiſcated (as D. Kimchi obſerves) to the King's Exchequer, becauſe Iſhboſheth and the Houſe of Saul had rebelled againſt David, who was the LORD's Anointed. And accordingly afterward David gave all this Land to Ziba, when he accuſed Mephiboſheth of Treaſon againſt him, xvi. 6. See Selden de ſucceſſion. ad Leges Hebræorum, Cap. 25. fol. 89.

And thou ſhalt eat Bread at my Table continually.] As one of his own Children, ver. 11.

Ver. 8. And he bowed himſelf,] In token of his Thankfulneſs.

And ſaid, What is thy Servant, that thou ſhouldeſt look upon ſuch a dead Dog as I am?] This is an high Expreſſion of his Unworthineſs of any Favour. For a Dog was accounted a vile and unclean Creature, and a dead Dog was of no uſe at all. See iii. 8. 1 Sam. xxiv. 15. Where David ſpake thus to Saul, as Helena (Bochart obſerves) did to Hector. There being no greater Expreſſion of Humility than this, for one to be ſo abject as to call himſelf a Dog. In like manner, he that calls another ſo (as Abiſhai doth Shimei, and Ulyſſes doth the Woers, to whom he calls ὦ κύνες, Odyſſ. 10.) expreſſes the utmoſt Contempt of them.

Ver. 9. Then the King called to Ziba Saul's Servant, and ſaid unto him, I have given unto thy Maſter's Son all that pertained to Saul, and to all his Houſe.] Some underſtand by his Maſter's Son, the Son of Mephiboſheth (called Micah, ver. 12.) becauſe Ziba was not to provide for Mephiboſheth himſelf, who was to be maintained by the King at his Royal Table. But it may as well be thought to be meant of Mephiboſheth, who had this Eſtate given him for ſuch uſes as he ſhould think fit to appoint.

Ver. 10. Thou therefore, thy Sons and thy Servants ſhall till the Land for him, and thou ſhalt bring in the Fruit, that thy Maſter's Son may have Food to eat.] This may ſeem to favour what was ſaid before, that he was to manage the Land for the Benefit of Micah the Son of Mephiboſheth, and his Houſhold, who were to be maintained out of the Product of it: But the following Words, I think, ſhew the contrary.

But Mephiboſheth thy Maſter's Son, ſhall eat Bread always at my Table.] Now he declares publickly, what he had ſaid privately to Mephiboſheth. Who being the Perſon here plainly called his Maſter's Son (i. e. the Son of Jonathan) it inclines me to conclude, that he is underſtood before by that Name: Whoſe Family was to be maintained by the Fruit of the Eſtate that David gave him; though he himſelf was to eat always with David.

Now Ziba had fifteen Sons and twenty Servants.] Who were ſufficient to manage a very great Eſtate.

Ver. 11. Then ſaid Ziba unto the King, According to all that my Lord the King hath commanded his Servant, ſo will thy Servant do. As for Mephiboſheth, ſaid the King, he ſhall eat at my Table as one of the King's Sons.] Thoſe Words, ſaid the King, are not in the Original Text: So that theſe Words may be thought to be Ziba's; who ſaid he would keep a Table for Mephiboſheth alſo, if David pleaſed, and entertain him royally; the Land being ſufficient to afford it. But I do not ſee how he could call it my Table; which muſt be the Language of David: Who now repeated what he had ſaid before, that Ziba ſhould take no care of Mephiboſheth.

Ver. 12. And Mephiboſheth had a young Son, whoſe Name was Micah.] Who had many Sons, from whom iſſued a numerous Progeny, which laſted many Generations. 1 Chron. viii. 34, 35, &c.--- ix. 40, 41, &c.

And all that dwelt in the Houſe of Ziba, were Servants unto Mephiboſheth.] And conſequently accountable to him for all that they received out of the Eſtate: Which, it appears by this, was ſettled upon him.

Ver. 23. So Mephiboſheth dwelt at Jeruſalem.] Ziba went to take care of his Land, which was at Gibeah of Benjamin, but Mephiboſheth ſtaid with the King, that he might partake of his Bounty.

For he did eat Bread continually at the King's Table; and was lame on both his Feet.] Tho' he could not go, yet he was carried thither; for ſo ſo the Words may be tranſlated, though he was lame, &c. This Defect and Blemiſh did not hinder him from being entertained by the King, with the greateſt Kindneſs; which procured him, though deſpicable in his Perſon, Honour from the People, as one in great Favour with their King.

CHAP. X.

Verſe 1. AND it came to paſs after this, that the King of the Children of Ammon died,] Who, it appears by the next Verſe, was Nahaſh: To whom Saul gave a very great Defeat at Jabeſh-Gilead, 1 Sam. xi.

And Hanun his Son reigned in his ſtead.] For it ſeems that was an hereditary Kingdom, as moſt were in thoſe Countries and Times.

Ver. 2. Then ſaid David, I will ſhew Kindneſs to Hanun the Son of Naaſh; for his Father ſhewed Kindneſs unto me.] All generous Minds are full of Gratitude and Compaſſion, as Strigelius here obſerves out of ſeveral heathen Authors. But there is no Example of it greater than in David, who remembers ancient Benefits received from Nahaſh, and pitied his Son who had loſt ſuch a Father. What thoſe Benefits were, is uncertain. Some of the Jews ſay he fled to him, when he durſt not ſtay with Achiſh, and he received him kindly. Others that he entertained his Relations, when the King of Moab, to whom David committed them, ſlew ſome of them. But it is moſt probable, that being an Enemy to Saul, who had given him a great Overthrow, he proved a Friend to David when he was perſecuted by him; and ſent him Relief and Aſſiſtance, and perhaps offered him his Protection.

And ſent to comfort him by the hand of his Servants, for his Father.] According to the preſent Cuſtom among Princes, who ſend ſome of their Courtiers to condole the Loſs of thoſe with whom they live in Friendſhip.

And David's Servants came into the Land of the Children of Ammon.] Where they had Audience of Hanun, and delivered their Meſſage: Which his Court ſiniſtrouſly interpreted, as appears by the next Verſe.

Ver. 3. And the Princes of the Children of Ammon] Who bare a great Sway in all publick Affairs.

Said unto Hanun their Lord, Thinkeſt thou that David doth honour thy Father, that he hath ſent Comforters unto thee?] They meaſured his Affection by their own; who having no Kindneſs for David, imagined he had as little for them.

Hath not David rather ſent his Servants to ſearch the City, and to ſpy it out?] Nothing ſo well meant, but may be ill interpreted; and is wont to be ſo by Men who love no body but themſelves.

To overthrow it.] They perſuade him that theſe Embaſſadors came only to obſerve where the City was weakeſt, and might be moſt ſucceſsfully aſſaulted, and taken.

Ver. 4. Wherefore Hanun took David's Servants, and ſhaved off one half of their Beards,] He was not only very credulous, but very ill-natured; for otherwiſe, he would have civilly diſmiſſed them, whatſoever his Courtiers ſuſpected; or kept them in an honourable Cuſtody, till the Truth had been diſcovered. But this was the higheſt Diſgrace that could be put upon them: For all People thought their Hair a great Ornament; and never ſhaved their Heads or their Beards, but in caſe of mourning: which was forbid to the Iſraelites, Levit. xix. 27. Deut. xiv. 1. And therefore when he had cauſed one half of their Beards to be cut off, they abhorred to cut the other: Which made them look ridiculouſly. See Iſaiah xv. 2. Jerem. xli. 5.---xlviii. 37. We learn what a foul Diſgrace, yea, an heavy Puniſhment, this was in ancient Times, from Nicolaus Damaſcenus, mentioned by Stobæus, Tit. 42. who ſays, that among the Indians the King commanded the greateſt Offenders to be ſhaven, κελεύει κείρασθαι ὡς ἐσχάτης τιμωρίας, as the heavieſt Puniſhment he could inflict upon them. And Tacitus ſaith, that there were few Adulterers among the ancient Germans; whoſe Puniſhment was left to the Huſbands: And they were wont to cut off their Hair, and turn them naked out of doors, and whip them through the Streets. See Georg. Ritterhuſius de Jure Aſylorum, Cap. 10. And at this day, this is the greateſt Indignity that can be offered to any Man in Perſia, to cauſe his Beard to be ſhaved off: As Tavernier relates in his Indian Travels, p. 121. where he tells us the Sophi cauſed an Embaſſador of Aureng-Zeb to be thus uſed; telling him he was not worthy to wear a Beard, and thereupon commanded it to be ſhaved off. Which was juſt like this Act of Hanun. And Aureng-Zeb moſt highly reſented the Affront that was offered him in the Perſon of his Embaſſador, as David did this which was offered him in his.

And cut their Garments to the middle, even to their Buttocks, and ſent them away.] Long Garments down to the heels were worn in thoſe Countries, eſpecially by honourable Perſons: And therefore the King of Ammon ſtill put a further Indignity upon them, in cutting their Garments ſhort, even to the middle: Whereby thoſe Parts were expoſed which required to be covered. For the Iſraelites did not wear Breeches as we do; ſo that their long Garments being cut to the Middle, their Nakedneſs might be ſeen. See Iſaiah xx. 4.

Ver. 5. And when they told it unto David, he ſent to meet them, becauſe they were greatly aſhamed.] Therefore he ſent, no doubt, Clothes to cover them, together with the following Advice.

And the King ſaid, tarry at Jericho] Which was the firſt Place to which they came in the Land of Canaan; and now a private Village, where they might obſcure themſelves, till they were fit to appear in publick.

Until your Beards be grown, and then return.] For it was a Reproach in that Country to have no Beard. And though it was well known how they came to be deprived of them, yet it was not fit that Perſons of their Quality ſhould appear unlike all other Men.

Ver. 6. And when the Children of Ammon ſaw that they ſtank before David,] They wanted not Intelligence, how heinouſly David reſented the barbarous Uſage of his Embaſſadors: Which is expreſſed expreſſed by a Phraſe, which ſignifies that they were become very odious to him. See Gen. xxxiv. 30.

The Children of Ammon ſent and hired the Syrians of Beth-rehob,] They diſtruſted their own Strength, and therefore hired Auxiliary Forces of their Neighbours: Particularly thoſe of Beth-roheb, which was a City belonging to the Canaanites, rather than the Syrians (as Bochart obſerves) who were only Borderers upon it.

And the Syrians of Zoba, twenty thouſand Footmen,] Concerning Zoba, ſee viii. 3.

And of King Maacah a thouſand Men,] Maacah alſo was a City in Palæſtine, beyond Jordan, in the Tribe of Manaſſeh, as Rehob was in the Tribe of Aſſer (Joſh. xiii. 11. xix. 26.) but the Canaanites kept them out of the Poſſeſſion of both, Joſh. xiii. 13. Judges i. 31. Therefore Bochartus confutes thoſe who think Aram-Maacah was the Country of Comagena: For though Aram commonly ſignifies Syria, which was divided into many Countries; yet the Scriptures ſhew theſe Places were not in Syria. But the People of them were called Syrians, becauſe they imitated their Manners: As the Woman in the Goſpel is called Syro-Phœnician, tho' ſhe was a Woman of Canaan, Mat. xv. 27. Mark vii. 26. See his Phaleg. Lib. 2. Cap. 6. latter end.

And of Iſhtob twelve thouſand Men.]Or, of the Men of Tob: A Country unto which Jephthah fled from his unkind Brethren. See Judges xi. 3.

Ver. 7. And when David heard of it, he ſent Joab and the Hoſt of the mighty Men.] He did not think it prudent, to ſtay till they aſſaulted him in his own County; but went and invaded theirs.

Ver. 8. And the Children of Ammon came out, and put the battel in array at the entering in of the Gate.] They drew up their Army either before Rabbah, the Metropolis of their Country; or before Medeba (in the Borders of it) where their Confederates were pitched, 1 Chron. xix. 7.

And the Syrians of Zoba, and of Rehob, and Iſhtob and Maacah, were by themſelves in the Field.] They kept their Mercenary Forces in the Field, and would not let them come into their Cities.

Ver. 9. And when Joab ſaw that the Front of the battel was againſt him, before and behind,] In the Hebrew, the face of the battel, &c. i. e. they had divided their Forces; the Syrians appearing before him, and the Ammonites behind him.

He choſe of all the choice Men of Iſrael, and put them in array againſt the Syrians.] He alſo, like an expert Commander, preſently divided his Army into two Bodies; and pick'd out the beſt Soldiers to engage the Syrians; who, it ſeems, were the ſtrongeſt, or moſt valiant

Ver. 10. And the reſt of the People he delivered into the hand of Abiſhai his Brother, that he might put them in array againſt the Children of Ammon.] He was alſo an experienced Captain, who ſeems to have to deal with that Body of the Enemies which was behind them, as Joab with thoſe before him.

Ver. 11. And he ſaid, If the Syrians be too ſtrong for me, then thou ſhalt help me; but if the Children of Ammon be too ſtrong for thee, then I will come and help thee.] Send a Detachment, as they now ſpeak, from the ſtrongeſt Body, to that which proved weaker.

Ver. 12. Be of good courage, and let us play the Men, for our People, and for the Cities of our God.] The Words were not ſpoken, I ſuppoſe, to Abiſhai alone; but to all the Army by their Officers; that they might not be diſheartned at the ſight of ſuch numerous Forces, as in a manner encompaſſed them: but be ſo much the more reſolute, for the Preſervation of their Country.

And the LORD do that which ſeemeth him good.] If they did their Duty, he truſted God's Providence would favour them: However, it would be ſome Comfort, that they had done their beſt.

Ver. 13. And Joab drew nigh, and the People that were with him, unto the Battel againſt the Syrians: and they fled before him.] He did very prudently in aſſaulting the Mercenary Army firſt; for they that are hired to fight, generally have a great Care to ſave themſelves; having no regard to the Cauſe for which they fight.

Ver. 14. And when the Children of Ammon ſaw that the Syrians were fled,] On whom they principally relied.

Then fled they alſo before Abiſhai, and entered into the City.] They ſeem not to have ſtruck a Stroke; but provided alſo for their Safety, in the City near to which their Army was drawn up.

And Joab returned from the Children of Ammon, and came to Jeruſalem.] Here is no Account of the Number of the Slain, which, I ſuppoſe, were few or none, becauſe they did not fight, but flee. The Year alſo ſeems to have been ſo far ſpent, that it was not a Seaſon fit for laying a Siege to the City. See the next Chapter, ver. 1.

Ver. 15. And when the Syrians ſaw that they were ſmitten before Iſrael, they gathered themſelves together.] Fearing David would fall upon them for aſſiſting his Enemies, they reſolved to be beforehand with him; and therefore levied a new Army to invade him.

Ver. 16. And Hadadezer] Who was the King of Aram Zoba, in Meſopotamia.

Sent and brought out the Syrians that were beyond the River.] i. e. Beyond Euphrates; which was the Bound of his Territories Eaſtward. See viii. 3.

And came to Helam.]A Place, I ſuppoſe, on the Borders of Hadadezer's Country, Weſtward.

And Shobach the Captain of the Hoſt of Hadadezer went before them.] Commanded both his Forces, and theirs which came to his aſſiſtance.

Ver. 17. And when it was told David, he gathered all Iſrael together, and paſſed over Jordan, and came to Helam.] In this Expedition David ſeems to have commanded his Army, in his own Perſon.

And the Syrians ſet themſelves in array againſt David, and fought with him.] They ſeem to have begun the Fight.

Ver. 18. And the Syrians fled before Iſrael, and David ſlew the Men of ſeven hundred Chariots] That is, ſeven thouſand Men, who belonged to thoſe ſeven hundred Chariots, as it is explained in 1 Chron. xix. 18.

And forty thouſand Horſemen.] In that Place of the Chronicles it is ſaid forty thouſand Footmen.

Which

Which teaches us how to explain the Words here; viz. that they were mixed together, Horſe and Foot: And that in all there were ſlain forty thouſand of them, part Horſemen, and part Footmen.

And ſmote Shobach the Captain of their Hoſt, who died there.] Was ſlain upon the ſpot (as we ſpeak) being a valiant Man, who choſe to be killed, rather than fly.

Ver. 19. And when all the Kings that were Servants of Hadadezer ſaw that they were ſmitten before Iſrael,] There were ſeveral petty Kings that were ſubject to Hadadezer; who was the moſt powerful Prince thereabout.

They made peace with Iſrael, and ſerved them.] As, I ſuppoſe, Hadadezer himſelf alſo did: whereby God fulfilled his Promiſe to Abraham (which was renewed to Joſhua) of enlarging the Dominion of his Poſterity, as far as Euphrates. See Gen. xv. 18.----Joſh. i. 2, 3, 4.

So the Syrians feared to help the Children of Ammon any more.] But left them to ſhift for themſelves: Inſomuch that, as it follows, David conquered their Country.

CHAP. XI.

Verſe 1. AND it came to paſs, that after the Year was expired,] In the Hebrew, at the return of the Year: That is, in the Spring-time, he ſent forth his Armies to do that which he could not do in the Concluſion of the former Year; when the Seaſon was not fit for Action, as I obſerved upon the 15th Verſe of the foregoing Chapter. For the Year ending with the Month Adar, the next Year began with the Month Niſan: Which was a fit Time to march into the Field to make War; and ſo commonly employed, that it ſeems to have had its Name (as Bochartus obſerves) from Niſim: Which ſignifies military Enſigns, which were wont to be advanced in that Month. And, in like manner, the Month we call March had its Name among the Romans from Mars, their God of War; becauſe then they began their Military Expeditions. See his Hierozoicon, P. 1. Lib. 2. Cap. 50.

At the time that Kings go forth to battel,] Theſe Words to battel, are added for Explication ſake: But they are not in the Hebrew; in which Language to go forth ſignifies to go forth to War. See Gen. x. 11. Iſa. xlii. 13. Zach. xiv. 3. and other places mentioned by the ſame great Man, P. 2. Lib. 4. Cap. 2.

That David ſent Joab and his Servants with him, and all Iſrael;] All his Soldiers.

And they deſtroyed the Children of Ammon.] Laid waſte their Country, and killed all the People they could meet with.

And beſieged Rabbah.] The Royal City of the Ammonites, Deut. iii. 11.

But David tarried ſtill at Jeruſalem.] He committed the Care of this War to Joab, and did not himſelf go out to fight: As he had done before againſt Hadadezer.

Ver. 2. And it came to paſs in an Evening-tide,] In the Afternoon, when the Sun was declining.

That David roſe from his Bed,] Where he had lain down to ſleep, in the Heat of the Day; as the manner was in thoſe Countries, iv. 5.

And walked upon the Roof of his Houſe.] To take the freſh Air: For their Roofs were flat. See Deut. xxii. 8.

And from the Roof he ſaw a Woman waſhing her ſelf,] In her Garden, where ſhe bathed; or in her Chamber, the Caſements being open. The firſt is moſt probable: And that ſhe waſhed to cleanſe her ſelf from ſuch legal Impurities as are mentioned Levit. xv. 19. which is more likely, than that ſhe did it for Pleaſure, or merely to cool her ſelf in a hot Day, as ſome underſtand it. The 4th Verſe ſufficiently explains this Matter.

And the Woman was very beautiful to look upon.] Of a delicate Shape, and lovely Countenance and Complexion. Thus Jupiter is ſaid to have ſeen Proſerpina waſhing her ſelf, and expoſing her whole Body to his View: Which inflamed his Luſt after her;

Λουμένης ὅλου εἶδος ἐδέρκετο Περσεφονείης.

As Nonnus hath it in his Dionyſ. See Spanhemius ad Verſ. 53. Callim. Hymn. in Lavacrum Palladis.

Ver. 3. And David ſent and enquired after her.] That if ſhe was a ſingle Woman, he might take her for his Wife.

And one ſaid, Is not this Bathſheba the Daughter of Eliam, the Wife of Uriah the Hittite?] This ſeems to be the Anſwer of him who was ſent to enquire about her, that he need not trouble himſelf any farther, for ſhe was another Man's Wife. Who is called an Hittite, becauſe he was ſo by Nation, but a Proſelyte to the Jewiſh Religion: And for his Valour made one of the King's Guard among the Cerethites and the Pelethites; which was the Reaſon, perhaps, that he had a Houſe ſo near the King's.

Ver. 4. And David ſent Meſſengers to her, and took her.] Notwithſtanding he was informed, ſhe was another Man's Wife, he ſent Meſſengers to her to invite her to his Palace; into which he received her. This was a very great Crime, being done deliberately, and adviſedly: And is here recorded for ſeveral great Ends and Purpoſes. Firſt, that the beſt Men may be ſenſible, in what need they ſtand continually of the Divine Aſſiſtance: Which therefore they ought to pray for earneſtly; and watch as well as pray, that they fall not into Temptation. And we ſhould all learn from thence, that they are but Men whoſe Examples are ſet before us; and therefore they muſt live by Rule, and not merely by Example. And that we ought to take heed of Sloth and Idleneſs; being always well employed, and not giving our ſelves liberty to gaze upon Temptations.

And ſhe came in unto him, and lay with him (for ſhe was purified from her Uncleanneſs)] Which ſhows the Reaſon why ſhe conceived ſo quickly. See Grotius.

And ſhe returned to her Houſe.] Early in the Morning, I ſuppoſe, that ſhe might not be diſcovered. The Talmudiſts are ſo deſirous to excuſe their Anceſtors from all Blemiſhes, that they ſay David committed no Sin in lying with Bathſheba; but only in cauſing Uriah to be killed. For, when any Man went to war, he gave gave his Wife, they pretend, a Bill of Divorce: So that if he was killed in the War, it was not Adultery in another Man, who lay with her, as ſoon as the Bill was given. This monſtrous Opinion is ſeriouſly maintained by R. Samuel Laniado againſt Abarbinel; who honeſtly acknowledges, and ſtrenuouſly proves, David was guilty of a very foul Adultery: Which was the more criminal, becauſe it was with the Wife of a faithful Servant of his, who then ſerved him in his Wars, See Buxtorf de Sponſal. & Divort. Sect. 43, &c. and Selden in his Uxor Hæbraica, Lib. 3. Cap. 19. p. 441.

Ver. 5. And the Woman conceived, and ſent and told David, ſaying, I am with child.] She was afraid of Infamy, and perhaps of the Severity of her Husband; who might cauſe her to be ſtoned: And therefore prays David to conſult her Honour, and her Safety.

Ver. 6. And David ſent unto Joab, ſaying, Send me Uriah the Hittite. And Joab ſent Uriah to David.] With an Account of the State of the War; which David it's likely deſir'd.

Ver. 7. And when Uriah was come unto him, David demanded of him how Joab, and how the People did, and how the War proſpered.] Some think (particularly P. Martyr) that theſe were ſuch ordinary Queſtions, as betrayed this was not the Buſineſs for which he commanded him to be ſent: But the laſt Words import, that after the common Queſtions of Joab's and the People's Health, he enquired how the Siege went on, what Approaches they had made to the City; what Hopes they had of taking it; in what time; with other things of like nature, which were of importance.

Ver. 8. And David ſaid, Go down to thy Houſe and waſh thy Feet.] As the manner of Travellers was; this being a great Refreſhment after their Journey.

And Uriah departed out of the King's Houſe, and there followed him a Meſs of Meat from the King.] In token of his extraordinary Favour and Kindneſs to him; and that, eating freely of good Cheer, he might be the more deſirous to enjoy the Company of his Wife. Abarbinel thinks this was a very ſinful Contrivance of David, to endeavour to have his Child thought the Child of Uriah: Or, at leaſt, it was very much below his Dignity, he thinks, to have one of his own Progeny paſs for an ordinary Man.

Ver. 9. But Uriah ſlept at the Door of the King's Houſe, with the Servants of his Lord, and went not down to his Houſe.] Like a true Soldier, he lay all night in the Guard-chamber (with the Cerethites and Pelethites) and not with his Wife. By which means God's Providence ſo ordered it, that the Crime of this Prince (who had been ſo admirably inſtructed in his Duty) ſhould not be concealed, as he intended.

Ver. 10. And when they had told David, ſaying, Uriah went not down to his Houſe,] They that carried the Meſs of Meat after him, gave David this Information.

David ſaid unto Uriah, Cameſt thou not from thy Journey? wherefore then didſt thou not go down to thine Houſe?] He ſtill pretended Kindneſs to him, and great Care of him; telling him he expected no Service of him here, eſpecially after a Journey.

Ver. 11. And Uriah ſaid unto David, the Ark, and Iſrael, and Judah, abide in Tents,] It ſeems they ſtill continued the Cuſtom which we read of, 1 Sam. iv. 4. of carrying the Ark into the Field, as a Token of the Divine Preſence with them, and Favour to them: And that they might conſult the Divine Majeſty in any difficult Caſes.

And my Lord Joab, and the Servants of my Lord, are encamped in the open Field;] Where they lay upon the ground in their Tents. It is an idle Conceit of Laniado, before-mentioned, that Uriah was guilty of Treaſon, in calling Joab, My Lord, in the preſence of David: For which he pretends David might lawfully put him to death.

Shall I then go unto my Houſe, to eat and to drink, and to lie with my Wife? as thou liveſt, and as thy Soul liveth, I will not do this thing.] Theſe are not two Oaths, but the Repetition of the ſame: Which was pronounced with ſuch vehemence, that David's Heart, it might have been expected, ſhould have been deeply touched, to think how he had abuſed ſo brave a Man: And made him reflect how vilely he indulged himſelf in ſinful Pleaſure, whilſt this Man and the reſt glorioufly endured all manner of Hardſhips, and refuſed the moſt innocent Pleaſure, for the Service of their Country: But he was ſo corrupted for the preſent, that he was troubled to find Uriah ſo true a Soldier.

Ver. 12. And David ſaid to Uriah, Tarry here to-day alſo, and to-morrow I will let thee depart. So Uriah abode in Jeruſalem that day, and the morrow.] He ſtill pretended more Kindneſs to him, in giving him time to reſt himſelf after his Journey; and, perhaps, pretended alſo, that he himſelf could not ſooner finiſh his Diſpatches.

Ver. 13. And when David had called him,] Invited him to Supper, the Night before he went away.

He did eat and drink before him, and he made him drunk: and at Even he went out to lie on his Bed, with the Servants of his Lord, and went not down to his Houſe.] The Hebrew Word doth not certainly ſignify, that he was quite drunk; but that he drank ſo much, that he was very merry. However Plutarch obſerves, that brave Men, even when they have drunk too much, preſerve their Modeſty and Gravity: Juſt as good Horſes are orderly, even when their Reins are let looſe. This was an addition to David's Sin, that he endeavoured to intoxicate Uriah, and thereby make him forget his Oath beforementioned.

Ver. 14. And it came to paſs in the Morning, that David wrote a Letter to Joab, and ſent it by the hand of Uriah.] Who, if he ſuſpected any thing of the Adultery, as ſome think he did, (and therefore reſolving that it ſhould be diſcovered, would not go home to his Wife) yet was ſo truſty a Servant, he would not open the Letter, to find what was in it.

Ver. 15. And he wrote in the Letter, ſaying, Set Uriah in the Fore-front of the hotteſt Battle, and retire ye from him, that he may be ſmitten, and die.] Thus one Sin begets many; depriving Men of the uſe of their Underſtanding. For he might better, as Abarbinel obſerves, have told Uriah the truth, and begged his pardon; and obliged him to ſtay with him 'till the Child was born, and then ſecretly put it out to nurſe: Whereby the matter might have been ſo managed, that it ſhould not have been commonly divulged, or not certainly believed. But his Eyes were blinded; and his very Nature was altered, and become baſe and degenerate; now he had given himſelf up to Senſuality. For he that formerly ſpared Saul, when he could have deſtroyed him, and have known who did it, ſeeks the Death of a faithful Servant after a moſt unworthy manner.

Ver. 16. And it came to paſs when Joab obſerved the City, that he aſſigned Uriah to a Place where valiant Men were.] Ordered him to attack a Part of the City, which he knew would be valiantly defended: Or, to make a good Breach, out of which the beſt Men they had in the City would iſſue out againſt them. Joab was herein alſo deeply guilty, in complying with ſuch a Command: Unleſs we ſuppoſe, that he might imagine Uriah had committed ſome great Crime; for which David, conſulting Uriah's Honour, would not puniſh him openly.

Ver. 17. And the Men of the City went out, and fought with Joab:] They ſeem to have made a Sally out of the City upon the Iſraelites; when they ſaw they were preparing for an Aſſault.

And there fell ſome of the People of the Servants of David, and Uriah the Hittite died alſo.] This was a further Aggravation of David's Sin, that he not only expoſed an innocent and a valiant faithful Servant to be killed, but other Perſons alſo with him, who might have lived to do good Service to their Country: For it is not to be imagined, that one Perſon alone was ſet in the Fore-front, where the Service was hotteſt (as David ordered, ver. 15.) but there was a Party of ſtout Men with Uriah, whom he led on.

Ver. 18. Then Joab ſent and told David all things concerning the War:] How it was managed, and what ill Succeſs they had in one Engagement.

Ver. 19. And charged the Meſſenger, ſaying, When thou haſt made an end of telling the Matters of the War unto the King,] Eſpecially this laſt Action.

Ver. 20. And if ſo be the King's Wrath ariſe, and he ſay unto thee, wherefore approached ye ſo nigh unto the City when he did fight? knew ye not that they would ſhoot from the Wall?] All good Kings are careful to preſerve their Subjects; and therefore it muſt be ſuppoſed David would be angry when he heard of this Loſs; till he reflected upon the Reaſon, why they were expoſed to ſuch Danger.

Ver. 21. Who ſmote Abimelech the Son of Jeroboſheth?] Theſe are ſtill the Words the King might be ſuppoſed to ſay; How came Abimelech to loſe his Life? Was it not by venturing too near the Wall? He calls him the Son of Jeroboſheth, who in the Book of Judges is called the Son of Jerubaal: Of which ſee upon the ſecond Chapter of this Book, ver. 8.

Did not a Woman caſt a piece of a Milſtone upon him from the Wall, that he died in Thebez? Why went ye ſo nigh the Wall?] Having ſuch an Example, to make you more cautious.

Then ſay, Thy Servant Uriah the Hittite is dead alſo.] Which he knew would ſoon pacify him.

Ver. 22. So the Meſſenger went, and came and ſhewed David all that Joab had ſent him for.] The whole Proceſs of the War hitherto, but more particularly the Event of the laſt Engagement, as it here follows.

Ver. 23. And the Meſſenger ſaid unto David, Surely the Men prevailed againſt us, and came out unto us into the Field, and we were upon them even unto the entering of the Gate.] The Account he gives of the laſt Action is this: That the Ammonites made a Sally, and were too hard for the Iſraelites, whom they put into ſome diſorder; but they, plucking up their Courage, rallied again, and beat the Ammonites back, following them to the very Gate of their City.

Ver. 24. And the Shooters ſhot from off the Wall upon thy Servants, and ſome of the King's Servants be dead, and thy Servant Uriah the Hittite is dead alſo.] Theſe Shooters were either Archers, or ſuch as managed the Machines (which perhaps they had in theſe Days, as they had afterwards among the Romans) out of which they ſhot Arrows and Stones. Vitruvius ſays, that out of their Catapultæ and Scorpiones they ſhot Arrows, and out of their Baliſtæ they ſhot Stones. Others ſay the quite contrary, as Goteſchalchus Stewechius ſhews in his learned Commentary upon the fourth Book of Vegetius, L. De Re Militari, p. 446, &c.

Ver. 25. Then David ſaid unto the Meſſenger, Thus ſhalt thou ſay unto Joab, let not this thing diſpleaſe thee:] That is, be not diſheartned by this Loſs. David ſhewed no ſign of Diſpleaſure, expecting to hear the News he deſired of Uriah's Death.

For the Sword devoureth one as well as another:] Makes no diſtinction between good and bad.

Make thy battel more ſtrong againſt the City, and overthrow it;] He would have this Defeat make them more reſolute, to aſſault the City with greater force, till they were Maſters of it.

And incourage thou him.] i. e. Joab and his Soldiery.

Ver. 26. And when the Wife of Uriah heard that her Husband was dead, ſhe mourned for her Husband.] But not long: For then David could not have taken her ſoon enough into his Houſe, to cover his Adultery. The common time was ſeven Days, 1 Sam. xxxi. 7.

Ver. 27. And when the Mourning was paſt, David ſent, and fet her to his Houſe, and ſhe became his Wife, and bare him a Son: but the thing that David had done, diſpleaſed the LORD.] This whole Buſineſs was evil in the eyes of God (as the Words are in the Hebrew) not only his Adultery, and the Murder of Uriah, but alſo his taking Bathſheba to his Wife. For according to the Hebrew Doctors, it was utterly unlawful for any Man to marry the Wife of one whom he had defiled. Which hath made ſome of the Jews ſo laborious to excuſe David from the Crime of Adultery. For Laniado himſelf acknowledges, that if David had committed Adultery with Bathſheba, ſhe had been perpetually prohibited, and unlawful to him, as his Words are. But tho' this ought not to have been done, yet, being done, the Marriage held good; and the Children he afterwards had by her were legitimate. See Buxtorf. de Sponſalibus & Divortiis, Sect. 43.

CHAP. XII.

Verſe 1. AND the LORD ſent Nathan unto David:] To awaken him out of his Sleep; and gave him a ſight of his Sins.

And he came unto him, and ſaid unto him, There were two Men in one City; the one rich, and the other poor.] This was a prudent and reſpectful way of awakening David, by an appoſite Parable: Which was ſo managed, that the Prophet did not condemn David, but made him condemn himſelf. And many have very pertinently obſerved from hence, that there is never more uſe of Wiſdom and Diſcretion, than in the Contrivance of Reprehenſion; eſpecially of Princes and great Perſons: Whom the Miniſters of Chriſt ought to admoniſh and reprove in an humble and reverend Repreſentation of their Sins to them, not with rude Exprobations of them, and Declamations againſt them. It is not neceſſary to apply every word of this Parable to David's Caſe (as the beginning of it is exactly fitted) becauſe in Parables ſeveral things are added, which ſerve only to make them decorous and handſome. Yet Abarbinel (as I ſhall ſhew in the Concluſion of it) hath endeavoured to give an account of every part of it.

Ver. 2. And the rich Man had exceeding many Flocks and Herds:] As David had many Wives and Concubines, with which he might have been well ſatisfied.

Ver. 3. But the poor Man had nothing, ſave only one little Ewe-lamb,] Perhaps Uriah had only one Wife, with whom he contented himſelf; or rather was highly pleaſed: She being mild and gentle as a Lamb.

Which he had bought and nouriſhed up:] They frequently purchaſed their Wives in thoſe days; giving to their Parents a Sum of Money for them. See Selden, Lib. 2. De Uxore Hebr. Cap. 20.

And it grew up together with him, and with his Children; it did eat of his own Meat, and drank of his own Cup, and lay in his Boſom, and was unto him as a Daughter.] That is, was exceeding dear to him, and beloved by him. This is a Reſemblance not unlike the Truth, unto thoſe who underſtand how fond many Perſons were anciently, not only of Lambs, but of ſeveral other Creatures: Which they ſuffered to eat with them at their Tables, and to lie with them in their Beds; as Bochartus ſhews in his Hierozoicon, P. 1. Lib. 2. Cap. 43.

Ver. 4. And there came a Traveller to the rich Man,] This may be applied to David's ſtragling Affection, which he ſuffered to wander from his own home, and to covet another Man's Wife. The Jewiſh Doctors ſay, it repreſents that which they call Jetzer hara, the evil Diſpoſition, or Deſire that is in us, which muſt be diligently watched and obſerved, when we feel its Motions. For they have this ingenious Obſervation concerning it, in Bereſchit Rabba, and other Books. In the Beginning it is but a Traveller; but in time it becomes a Gueſt; and in concluſion, is the Maſter of the Houſe. For he, ſay they, who is called a Traveller in the beginning of this Verſe, is called Iſch, a Man, in the concluſion of it.

And he ſpared to take of his own Flock, and his own Herd, to dreſs for the wayfaring Man that was come to him,] Wherewith he might have ſatisfied his Appetite.

But took the poor Man's Lamb, and dreſſed it for the Man that was come to him.] He touches not in this Parable upon the Murder, for that was committed to cover the Adultery, which led the way to the other Crime. And Abarbinel gives a Reaſon why it is not mentioned in his Explication of the Parable: Which is this. The rich Man, ſaith he, plainly ſignifies David; his Flocks and Herds, David's Wives and Concubines: The poor Man repreſents Uriah, who, he thinks, was a Widower, and had ſeveral Children alive by a former Wife, when he married Bathſheba. Whom he compares to a Lamb which he bought, becauſe he ſolemnly eſpouſed her: And with tender Affection he cheriſhed her, and ſhe grew up with him, and with his Children, which he had by his former Wife. This Lamb being taken by the rich Man from the poor, to gratify a wanton Appetite, ſignifies David's taking Bathſheba and lying with her. And it would have made the Reſemblance more compleat, if he had added, that the rich Man killed the poor Man, from whom he took the Lamb. But this is omitted, Abarbinel thinks, in the Parable, that David might not readily apprehend Nathan's Meaning; and ſo be induced unawares to pronounce a Sentence of Condemnation upon himſelf. And then he had a fixt Opportunity to ſhew him, that if the rich Man, who took away the poor Man's Lamb, deſerved Death, according to his own Judgment, how much more did he deſerve it, who had not only taken another Man's Wife; but alſo cauſed him to be ſlain by the Enemies of Iſrael?

Ver. 5. And David's Anger was greatly kindled againſt the Man; and he ſaid, As the LORD liveth, the Man that hath done this thing, ſhall ſurely die.] Puniſhments ſometimes extended beyond the Law, becauſe of the great Atrocity of the Crime.

Ver. 6. And he ſhall reſtore the Lamb four-fold,] This was agreeable to the Law, Exod. xxii. 1.

Becauſe he did this thing, and becauſe he had no pity.] Becauſe he took away the Lamb, he condemned him to make reſtitution four-fold: And becauſe he had no pity (it being his only Lamb) he condemned him to die. Kimchi will have it, that the Word ſignifies twice four-fold; becauſe it is in their dual Number: So that this Puniſhment alſo is beyond the Law. But all the ancient Interpreters are againſt him. But the Jews here obſerve, that theſe Words were ominous: So many of David's Sons periſhing, as he ſaid the rich Man ſhould reſtore Lambs, viz. the Child he had by Bathſheba, Ammon, Abſalom, and Adonijah. See Bochartus in his Hieroz. P. 1. Lib. 2. Cap. 40.

Ver. 7. And Nathan ſaid unto David, Thou art the Man.] Who had pronounced a dreadful Sentence againſt himſelf. Tho' Reproofs of Men in Authority are to be managed very mannerly, as to the Form, wherein they are delivered; yet as to the matter they are to be plain and downright; ſo that they may be made ſenſible of their Guilt.

Thus ſaith the LORD God of Iſrael, I anointed thee King over Iſrael, and delivered thee out of the the hand of Saul.] Who ſought to hinder his Advancement to the Kingdom, by deſtroying him. Thus he aggravates David's Sin, from the Obligations he had to God; who had preferred him to the higheſt Dignity, when he was in a low, and ſometimes a deſperate Condition.

Ver. 8. And I gave thee thy Maſter's Houſe,] His Kingdom.

And thy Maſter's Wives into thy Boſom,] For the Wives of a King went along with his Lands and Goods unto his Succeſſor: It being unlawful for the Widow of a King to be Wife to any but a King; as appears by the Story of Adonijah. But this doth not ſignify that David married any of them; but only that they were delivered into his Poſſeſſion, as all other Things belonging unto Saul were. So Maimonides: And more than this, the Jewiſh Doctors ſay, no Subject might have ſo much as the Horſe of the King, no more than his Scepter and Crown: Much leſs his Widow, or one divorced by him, who was to remain a Widow to the day of her Death. So the ſame Maimonides: The Wife of a King is to be married to none elſe; for even the King cannot legally marry the Widow of his Predeceſſor, or one divorced by him. See Selden, Lib. 1. De Uxore Hebr. Cap. 10. and Carpzovius upon Schickard's Jus Regium, p. 441. But there are thoſe, who, to avoid all Controverſy about this Matter, interpret the Word Naſe, not Wives, but meer Women belonging unto Saul.

And gave thee the Houſe of Iſrael and of Judah;] Dominion over all the twelve Tribes.

And if that had been too little, I would moreover have given thee ſuch and ſuch things.] He need but have asked, and God would have given him all that he could reaſonably deſire: But he ought not to have taken what he pleaſed himſelf. The Jews refer this to the Wives he would have given him: And gather from hence, that their Kings might have eighteen Wives, and no more. See upon Deut. xvii. 17. But it is evident theſe Words ſuch and ſuch things, do not ſignify a certain Number of any thing, but indefinitely other Benefits of any kind: As Theod. Hackſpan obſerves out of many like Places, particularly Iſaiah vii. 20. See his Diſput. 4. N. 3.

Ver. 9. Wherefore haſt thou deſpiſed the Commandment of the LORD, to do evil in his ſight?] Theſe Words, and David's own Confeſſion (ver. 13.) might have aſhamed the Talmudiſts, one would think, from framing Excuſes for David's Sin, and abſolving him from any Guilt. Bartoloccius hath given a large Account of their lewd Prevarication in this matter in his Kirjath Sepher, Tom. 2. pag. 102, 103, &c.

Thou haſt killed Uriah the Hittite with the Sword,] For he contrived his Death, which was as bad as if he had killed him himſelf.

And haſt taken his Wife to be thy Wife.] After he had firſt committed Adultery with her.

And hath ſlain him with the Sword of the Children of Ammon.] This highly aggravated his Crime, as Abarbinel obſerves, that he cauſed him to be ſlain by the profeſſed Enemies of God; who triumphed in the Slaughter of ſo great a Man. And in this Laniado himſelf confeſſes David ſinned, though in nothing elſe.

Ver. 10. Now therefore the Sword ſhall never depart from thine Houſe;] That is, as long as he lived, there ſhould be Slaughters in his Family. Which was fulfilled in the violent Death of his Children Ammon and Abſalom, and (about the Time of his Death) Adonijah.

Becauſe thou haſt deſpiſed me, and haſt taken the Wife of Uriah the Hittite to be thy Wife.] Which, it appears by this Repetition, was a very great Offence: But not greater than his Adultery, as Procopius Gazæus thinks it was.

Ver. 11. Thus ſaith the LORD, behold, I will raiſe up evil againſt thee, out of thine own Houſe,] That is, his own Family. Which was notoriouſly fulfilled in Abſalom's Conſpiracy againſt him.

And I will take thy Wives before thine eyes, and give them unto thy Neighbour; and he ſhall lie with thy Wives in the ſight of this Sun.] For Abſalom had a Tent ſpread in the Houſe-top, and there went in unto them, xvi. 21, 22. Which is ſaid to be done before David's eyes; becauſe, though he did not ſee it, yet it was done ſo publickly that he could not but know it, and yet was not able to hinder it.

Ver. 12. For thou didſt it ſecretly, but I will do this thing before all Iſrael, and before the Sun.] For it was notorious to all, how David fled in haſte from his Son, and left his Concubines behind him, xv. 14, 15, 16.

Ver. 13. And David ſaid unto Nathan, I have ſinned againſt the LORD:] This Confeſſion was made in a few Words: But, no doubt, with many Sobs, and great Grief, Compunction and Contrition of Heart.

And Nathan ſaid unto David,] Not preſently, but after he had bewailed his Sin ſo bitterly, that his Repentance appeared to be hearty.

The LORD alſo hath put away thy Sin, thou ſhalt not die.] He was guilty of Death upon a double account; as an Adulterer, and as a Murderer: As Procopius Gazæus obſerves. But upon his Repentance, the Prophet pronounces an Abſolution to him, thus far; that he ſhould be pardoned the Guilt, and Part of the Puniſhment. That is, he ſhould not periſh eternally (as Raſi and others interpret the Words, thou ſhalt not die) nor here ſuffer the Death he had deſerved. For though when God gave them a King like other Nations, he did not intend that he ſhould be above all Law, and not be bound to the Laws he himſelf had given (as Abarbinel obſerves) yet he was not ſubject to the Puniſhment of the Law, which no Magiſtrate could inflict, becauſe he was the Supreme: But God reſerved his Puniſhment to himſelf, and threatens to inflict it when inferiour Officers could not. Which Threatning did not take away from him the Power of pardoning and releaſing the Puniſhment, but he left that intire to himſelf, and here uſes it. But in ſuch a manner, that he freed David only from the Puniſhment of Death, and the Loſs of his Kingdom: Otherwiſe he was to ſuffer a great many, and ſore Calamities, as long as he lived. See J. Benedict. Carpzovius upon Schickard's Jus Regium, Cap. 2. Theor. 7. p. 137. Whereby it appears how falſe the Doctrine of the Talmudiſts is concerning the Power of the great Sanhedrin, who they ſay had Power to ſcourge their Kings, &c. Which we never find was attempted, tho' Saul and David, and eſpecially Manaſſeh, committed moſt henious Sins, which deſerved ſevere Correction.

Ver. 14. Howbeit, becauſe by this Deed thou haſt given great occaſion to the Enemies of the LORD to blaſpheme, the Child alſo that is born unto thee, ſhall ſurely die.] This was an additional Puniſhment, to be inflicted preſently: Becauſe his Sin was highly aggravated, in that the Nations about them might thereby be tempted to have him and his Divine Law in great contempt; which they ſaw no more regarded by the beſt Men that profeſſed it. Or, they might blaſpheme God, as a Reſpecter of Perſons, who had rejected Saul, and yet kept David on the Throne, who had done worſe than he. Or, the Ammonites perhaps inſulted over Iſrael and their God, when they had killed Uriah and others with him. Yet Procopius Gazæus here well obſerves, there was ſome Mercy mixed with this Puniſhment; for if the Child had lived, it would have been a ſtanding Monument of his Adultery. And therefore it may be thought, that in favour of David God took him away, that he might remove his Reproach.

But this Verſe ſuggeſts a wonderful thing to us, that David remained many Months inſenſible of what he had done, (ſo bewitching is ſenſual Pleaſure;) for the Child begotten in Adultery was born before Nathan came to rouze him out of his Lethargy.

Ver. 15. And Nathan departed unto his Houſe: And the Lord ſtruck the Child that Uriah's Wife bare unto David, and it was very ſick.] Of ſome ſudden ſore Diſtemper; which appeared at firſt, as if it were mortal.

Ver. 16. David therefore beſought the LORD for the Child:] He thought the Threatning might not be abſolute: The Will of God being not always manifeſted intirely at once, but he reſerves ſtill ſomething to himſelf. As when he commanded Abraham to offer his Son; and when he told Hezekiah he ſhould die.

And David faſted, and went in,] To his Cloſet, I ſuppoſe, or ſome Place of Retirement.

And lay all night upon the Earth,] Humbling himſelf greatly for his Sin, which had deſerved this, and far ſorer Puniſhment. Salvian (in his ſecond Book, De Gubern. Dei) deſcribes this admirably. He put off his Purple, ſaith he, threw away his Royal Ornaments, laid down his Diadem, wholly ſtripped himſelf of his Kingſhip, and appeared as a Penitent, in a ſqualid, rueful Garb, faſting, lying on the ground, confeſſing, mourning, repenting, deprecating, &c. and yet with all this Humiliation and Compunction, he could not obtain a Revocation of this Puniſhment. By this, and the Story of Abſalom, it appears that David was a great Lover of his Children; many of which proved great Afflictions to him.

Ver. 17. And the Elders of his Houſe] The principal Officers belonging to the Court.

Aroſe, and went to him to raiſe him up from the Earth:] By their earneſt Entreaties, to have a care of his own Health.

But he would not, neither did he eat Bread with them.] As he was wont to do at other times, when the principal Perſons of the Court ſat at Table with him. But it is not to be thought, that David eat nothing all the time the Child was ſick; but only after he began to deſpair of his Life: Or perhaps, all the time he eat nothing 'till the Evening; and then abſtained from all delicate Food, and contented himſelf with coarſer Fare.

Ver. 18. And it came to paſs, that on the ſeventh day, the Child died:] Either the ſeventh Day after its Birth, before it was circumciſed, or the ſeventh after it fell ſick. This was the firſt Beginning of the Divine Animadverſion upon him (as Salvian ſpeaks) Fuit utique primum, ſed non ſolum, it was indeed the Firſt, but not the Alone: For there followed a long Train of exceeding great Troubles.

And the Servants of David feared to tell him the Child was dead: for they ſaid, Behold, while the Child was yet alive we ſpake unto him, and he would not hearken unto our Voice; how will he then vex himſelf, if we tell him the Child is dead?] Thus they whiſpered and reaſoned among themſelves; ſo that he might not hear them, as appears by the next Verſe.

Ver. 19. And when David ſaw that his Servants whiſpered, David perceived that the Child was dead:] He gueſſed what the matter was.

Therefore David ſaid unto his Servants, Is the Child dead? And they ſaid, He is dead.] They would not acquaint him with it abruptly; for fear he ſhould fall into too great a Paſſion.

Ver. 20. Then David roſe up from the Earth, and waſhed, and anointed himſelf, and changed his Apparel,] Put off the Habit of a Mourner, and prepared himſelf decently to appear before God. For it is certain the Jews were wont to waſh before they went into the Houſe of God, either their whole Body, or their Hands; which was uſual among the Gentiles alſo. And ſome have imagined the Jews learnt it from them; becauſe we find no mention of it, as they ſay, 'till the Time of Judith, xii. 7. See Dr. Spencer, Diſſert. 3. Cap. 2. Sect. 11. But that is a Miſtake; it being mentioned not only here in this Place, but in the Book of Pſalms, xxvi. 6. For God having anciently commanded them to waſh themſelves, before they appeared in his Preſence at Mount Sinai, Exod. xx. 20. they thence, it is likely, concluded it was fit to prepare themſelves for all their holy Aſſemblies, after the ſame manner.

And came into the Houſe of the LORD, and worſhipped.] This was done like a truly good Man, who before he would go to his own Houſe, went to God's; and there gave him Thanks, we may ſuppoſe, for the Pardon of his Sin; and not cutting him off, as he had done his Child. He acknowledged alſo the Juſtice of God, and did not complain of his Severity. He ſubmitted to his holy Will, and beſeeched him, perhaps, that the remaining Afflictions might be moderated, and made profitable to him.

Then he came to his own Houſe, and when he required, they ſet Bread before him, and he did eat.] I ſuppoſe he was in ſome retired Room of his own Houſe, where he lay upon the Earth mourning, and would not eat: From whence he would not remove to any other part of it, 'till he had been firſt at the Houſe of God, and there worſhipped.

Ver. 21. Then ſaid his Servants to him, What is this that thou haſt done? Thou didſt faſt and weep for the Child when he was alive; but when the Child was dead, thou didſt riſe and eat Bread.]

His

His great Officers, who ſat at the Table with him, I ſuppoſe ſaid this.

Ver. 22. And he ſaid, While the Child was yet alive, I faſted and wept, for I ſaid, who can tell whether God will be gracious unto me, that the Child may live?] They thought him prepoſterous, in mourning while the Child was alive, and chearing up himſelf when it was dead. But he ſhews what Reaſon he had for both: It being poſſible God might be ſo kind as to reverſe the Sentence of Death, which he had pronounced againſt the Child, upon David's Humiliation, Repentance, and earneſt Prayer to him for Mercy.

Ver. 23. But now he is dead, wherefore ſhould I faſt? Can I bring him back again? I ſhall go to him, but he ſhall not return to me.] But now God's Will being declared to be abſolute, it was in vain to ſolicite for the Child's Life: which he could not hope to ſee reſtored by Faſting and Prayer, or any other means. But he muſt rather prepare to go to it, than think of bringing it back to him. Maimonides ſays, that they did not lament Infants, who died before they were thirty Days old; but carried them in their Arms to the Grave, with one Woman and two Men to attend them: Without ſaying the uſual Prayers over them, or the Conſolations for Mourners. But if an Infant was above thirty Days old when he died, they carried him out on a ſmall Bier, and ſtood over him in order, and ſaid the Prayers and Conſolations. If he was a Year old, then he was carried out upon a Bed. This Cuſtom Gierus thinks David followed, in making no Mourning for his Child, when it was dead: Though there is no ground to think ſuch Cuſtoms as Maimonides deſcribes, were uſed in theſe early Days. See L. De Luctu Ebræorum, Cap. 3.

Ver. 24. And David comforted Bathſheba his Wife,] Who no doubt was deeply afflicted for the Loſs of her Child: Which was a ſtrong Bond while it lived, to tie David's Affection to her; but being dead, ſhe might fear he would no longer have any Concern for her: But, perhaps, divorce her, as having been the Occaſion of great Evil to him. It is obſervable, that there is not one word ſaid to Bathſheba in all this Relation, either concerning her Guilt, or her Puniſhment. She was puniſhed, I ſuppoſe, in the Calamities that befel David: Who enticed her, not ſhe him, to commit the foul Sin of Adultery; and was innocent in the Murder of Uriah.

And went in unto her, and lay with her;] Which it was not lawful to do, as Maimonides obſerves, while the Days of Mourning laſted: For then they might not ſo much as marry, tho' they did not lie together. But thoſe Days being ended, he enjoyed her Company. The ſame Gierus hath collected a great deal to this purpoſe, in the forenamed Book, Cap. 21.

And ſhe bare him a Son, and called his Name Solomon;] Some think his Mother firſt gave him this Name as ſoon as he was born.

And the LORD loved him.] As the LORD told him, it is likely, by Nathan the Prophet: Who comforted him, after his great Humiliation, with this good Hope, that notwithſtanding his Sin, God would have a Kindneſs for this Son, and make him very famous. Such is the wonderful Goodneſs of God to truly penitent Sinners; who teſtify the Sincerity of their Repentance, by humble Submiſſion to whatſoever Puniſhments God thinks fit to inflict upon them (as David did to the Death of the former Child) and thereby incline the divine Goodneſs to ſhew further Mercy to them.

Ver. 25. And he ſent by the hand of Nathan the Prophet, and called his Name Jedidiah,] But David hereupon ſent to give his Child another Name; ſignifying the Love which he was aſſured God had to him. But the Scripture never calls him by this Name; but always Solomon: Which Name the People loved, becauſe he built the Houſe of the LORD in peaceable Times.

Becauſe of the LORD.] Becauſe he had ſo graciouſly declared his Love to him. For the Name imports, as is noted in the Margin of the Bible, beloved of the LORD.

Victorinus Strigelius tranſlates the firſt Words of this Verſe thus, Tradidit eum in manum Nathan, &c. He committed him to the Hand of Nathan the Prophet; that he might educate him, and bring him up in Piety, and in the Knowledge of all things neceſſary for a Prince to be acquainted withal. For the moſt excellent Natures are apt to err in many things (as he obſerves) without Learning; and therefore though Hercules had a very great Genius, yet he was put into the hands of learned Men to inſtruct him; as appears by the Verſes of Theocritus, which recite his Maſters. Thus Alexander was bred up by Ariſtotle in all manner of Learning: And if Conſtantine, together with his Piety, had not been furniſhed with a great deal of Knowledge, he could not have managed the Cauſe of Chriſt againſt the Arians ſo well as he did in the Council of Biſhops.

Ver. 26. And Joab fought againſt Rabbah of the Children of Ammon, and took the City.] That part of the City where the Royal Palace was, which lay upon the Water that ran by the City, as the next Verſe ſeems to interpret it. It is not to be imagined, that Joab continued the Siege ſo long, as till David had two Children by Bathſheba: But this was done ſoon after the Death of Uriah, when David commanded them to make their Aſſault ſtronger againſt the City, xi. 25.

Ver. 27. And Joab ſent Meſſengers to David, and ſaid, I have fought againſt Rabbah, and have taken the City of Waters.] That part of this City which lay upon the Water: The other part, which was the Heart of the City, being yet untaken. But it being ſupplied with Water from this part, of which Joab had got poſſeſſion, it could not hold out long, but would be forced to ſurrender, becauſe Joab cut off their Water from them. So Joſephus underſtood it, τῶν ὑδάτων αὐτὸς ἀπολεμούμενος, Lib. 7. Cap. 7. And thus ſome learned Men tranſlate the laſt Words of this Verſe, by adding the Particle Mem before Eth, he took from the City the Waters.

Ver. 28. Now therefore gather the reſt of the People together, and encamp againſt the City, and take it; leſt I take the City, and it be called by my Name.] As from the Conqueſt of Africa, Scipio was called Africanus. By this it appears, that though Joab had many Faults, yet he he loved his Prince, and endeavoured to raiſe his Glory.

Ver. 29. And David gathered all the People together,] All that were fit for War.

And went to Rabbah, and fought againſt it, and took it.] The Army being reinforced with ſuch great Recruits, they did not meerly block up the City to ſtarve it, and force it to ſurrender; but took it by Storm, and permitted the Soldiers to plunder and take the Spoil of it; as Joſephus writes, διαρπάσαι τοῖς στρατιώταις ἀφῆκεν.

Ver. 30. And he took the King's Crown from off his head,] This was the King's part of the Spoil: And the Talmudiſts alſo ſay, that all the Houſhold-ſtuff of the conquered King belonged to the King that was victorious. See Grotius, L. 3. De Jure Belli & Pacis, Cap. 23. Sect. 24.

The Weight whereof was a Talent of Gold,] Or rather, the Price, or Value of it: As the Hebrew Word frequently ſignifies, and not only Weight. See Bochartus in his Hierozoicon, P. 1. L. 2. Cap. 37. p. 380. And ſo it is to be taken here; for who was able to carry on his Head ſuch a Weight as a Talent, which they ſay was an hundred twenty-five Pounds?

With the precious Stones,] Which made the Value of it ſo great. Joſephus here ſaith, that there was one Stone of great Price, ἐν μέσῳ in the Middle of the Crown, which he calls a Sardonyx. The Original of which Fable Bochartus hath ingeniouſly conjectured in his Hierozoicon, P. 1. L. 5. Cap. 7. where he mentions other Conceits of the Jews about this Stone.

And he brought forth the Spoil of the City in great abundance.] This Paſſage is thus rendered by Joſephus, πολλὰ δὲ καὶ ἄλλα σκύλα λαμπρὰ καὶ πολύτιμα εὗρεν ἐν τῇ πόλει. He found more and other Prey in the City very ſplendid, and of great Price.

Ver. 31. And he brought forth the People that were therein, and put them under Saws, and under Harrows of Iron, and under Axes of Iron, and made them paſs through the Brick-kilns:] Some of the Inhabitants he cauſed to be ſawn in ſunder; over others, Horſes drew Harrows with great Iron Teeth; others, were drawn over ſharp Sickles, or ſharp Stones; which perhaps he means by Brick-kilns: For ſo ſome Interpreters underſtand it, that he dragged them through the Place where Bricks were made; and there grated their Fleſh upon the ragged Pieces of broken Bricks. Tho' ſome will have this word Malken to ſignify the Place where the Ammonites offered their Sacrifices to their God Moloch or Malcom (as he is often called) and made the People there to paſs through the Fire. So the Vulgar tranſlates it, Fornacem Moloch, the Furnace of Moloch. This dreadful Puniſhment was to terrify other Countries from violating the Right of Nations, by abuſing publick Embaſſadors. Though many have thought it too ſevere, and looked upon it as an Argument, that David did this in the State of his Impenitence: When the mild and gentle Spirit of God was departed from him, and he was become cruel and furious, as well as luſtful.

And thus did he unto all the Cities of the Children of Ammon.] This will not let us think that he puniſhed ſo cruelly, only thoſe who adviſed the uſing of his Embaſſadors ſhamefully, or applauded it (as many it is likely did, that lived in Rabbah) for he treated all the Cities in the Country, in the ſame rigorous manner.

So David and all the People returned to Jeruſalem.] After they had brought all the Country into ſubjection to him, and ſecured the Poſſeſſion of it. For it is not likely all the Country People, Women and Children, were thus uſed: But only the military Men, who had levied War againſt David, and called the Syrians to their Aſſiſtance, and ſince put him to the trouble and charge of a long Siege of Rabbah.

CHAP. XIII.

Ver. 1. AND it came to paſs after this, that Abſalom the Son of David had a fair Siſter, whoſe Name was Tamar, and Amnon the Son of David loved her.] Now begun a ſad Scene to be opened, of the Calamities which Nathan foretold David ſhould befal his Houſe, xii. 10. It is the common Opinion of the Jews, that in the War King David had with the King of Geſhur, he took his Daughter captive; who being very beautiful, he lay with her once (as they fancy the Law, Deut. xxi. 11. allows) and begat of her this Daughter. And aftewards, ſhe becoming a Proſelyte, he married her; and begat Abſalom. So this Daughter being begot while her Mother was a Gentile, they fancy ſhe was not his legal Child; and conſequently Amnon might have married her. See Selden, Lib. 5. De Jure Nat. & Gent. Cap. 23. and Cocceius upon the Sanhedrin, Cap. 2. N. 8. Annot. 7. of which more upon ver. 13. See there.

Ver. 2. And Amnon was ſo vexed, that he fell ſick for his Siſter Tamar; for ſhe was a Virgin; and Amnon thought it hard to do any thing to her.] The Paſſion of his Mind diſordered his Body, becauſe he could not compaſs his Deſires: For ſhe being a Virgin, was under a ſtrict Guard (as Virgins uſed to be) ſo that it was difficult for him to enjoy her Company. For to do any thing to her, ſignifies to do what he deſired: As to do ſignifies not only in the Hebrew, but in other Languages.

Ver. 3. And Amnon had a Friend, whoſe Name was Jonadab, the Son of Shimeah David's Brother:] That is, his Couſin German, who are often called Brothers in Scripture.

And Jonadab was a very ſubtil Man.] To find Means to compaſs an End.

Ver. 4. And he ſaid unto him, Why art thou, being the King's Son,] And the eldeſt Son who was next Heir to the Crown, iii. 2.

Lean from day to day?] In the Hebrew the Words are Morning by Morning. For whatſoever Diverſions he might find in the Day, he had reſtleſs Nights, which made him look pale and wan when he aroſe.

Wilt thou not tell me?] For Men are not wont to hide any thing from their Friends.

And Amnon ſaid unto him, I love Tamar my Brother Abſalom's Siſter.] From theſe Words the Jews are wont to argue, that Tamar was nothing of kin to Amnon; for he calls her not his Siſter, but his Brother Abſalom's Siſter. But this is a very frivolous Obſervation, for in the two two next Verſes he calls her my Siſter; and ver. 7. David calls him her Brother: and ſee ver. 11.

Ver. 5. And Jonadab ſaid unto him, Lay thee down on thy bed, and make thy ſelf ſick:] He adviſes him to feign himſelf to be ſo ill, that it conſtrained him to keep his Bed. Inſtead of doing the true Office of a Friend, he flatters his Paſſion to his utter undoing.

And when thy Father comes to ſee thee,] As he knew he would when he heard of his Sickneſs: For, as I obſerved before, he was a great Lover of his Children.

Say unto him, I pray thee, let my Siſter Tamar come and give me Meat, and dreſs the Meat in my ſight, that I may ſee it, and eat it at her hand.] He would have him pretend, that his Stomach was ſo nice and ſqueamiſh, that he could like nothing that his Servants dreſſed; and therefore defired his Siſter, who underſtood how to make delicate Diſhes, might come and prepare ſomething that he could reliſh.

Ver. 6. And Amnon laid down, and made himſelf ſick:] He eaſily followed bad Counſel, to attain a bad End.

And when the King was come to ſee him, Amnon ſaid unto the King, I pray thee let Tamar my Siſter come, and make me a Couple of Cakes in my ſight, that I may eat at her hand.] She was peculiarly noted, I ſuppoſe, to be very curious in making theſe Lebiboth, as the Hebrew calls them: Which the Greeks tranſlate κολλυρίδας, and are by Interpreters thought a delicious ſort of Cakes: Tho' ſome take κολλύρις to have been an excellent Broth, or ſome other ſupping Meat, which cannot be meant here, becauſe ſhe is ſaid, ver. 8. to bake the Cakes.

Ver. 7. Then David ſent home to Tamar, ſaying, Go now to thy Brother Amnon's Houſe, and dreſs him Meat.] He ſuſpected no Fraud; and Jonadab was ſo wicked as not to diſcover it, and thereby prevent the Miſchief.

Ver. 8. So Tamar went to her Brother Amnon's Houſe, (and he was laid down) and ſhe took Flour, and kneaded it, and made Cakes in his ſight, and did bake the Cakes.] She ſhewed her ſelf an obedient Daughter, and a kind Siſter.

Ver. 9. And ſhe took a Pan,] Wherein they had been baked.

And poured them out before him,] Into a Diſh.

But he refuſed to eat.] Pretending he had no Appetite.

And Amnon ſaid, Have out all Men from me: and they went out every Man from him.] He commanded all his Servants that attended, to leave him alone, that he might take ſome Reſt.

Ver. 10. And Amnon ſaid unto Tamar, Bring the Meat into the Chamber, that I may eat of thy hand.] He removed, I ſuppoſe, into an inner Room (where he thought he might more privately enjoy her) and pretended to be ſo refreſhed by the Change, that his Stomach was come to him.

And Tamar took the Cakes which ſhe had made, and brought them into the Chamber to Amnon her Brother.] Her Innocence made her think herſelf ſafe, eſpecially with a Brother.

Ver. 11. And when ſhe had brought them unto him to eat, he took hold of her, and ſaid unto her, come lie with me, my Siſter.] She ſat down, it is likely, ſuſpecting no Evil, upon his Bedſide to miniſter unto him: Which gave him the Opportunity to lay violent hands upon her.

Ver. 12. And ſhe anſwered him, Nay, my Brother, do not force me;] She having not Strength enough to get from him, reſiſts him with ſtrong Reaſons; praying him to conſider firſt that ſhe was his Siſter. Unto which relation ſhe hoped he would have ſuch a Reverence, as not to meddle with her, though ſhe were willing; much leſs offer violence to her, which was abominable to do to a Stranger.

For no ſuch thing ought to be done in Iſrael;] Whatſoever other Nations did (among whom Idols were worſhipped with filthy Luſts) ſhe prays him not to defile the Church of God, whoſe Glory was Holineſs and Purity. The Jewiſh Doctors ſay, this gave ſuch a Scandal, that the People began to ſpeak thus one to another: If the King's Daughter be thus uſed, what will become of the Children of private Men? And if Men be ſo bold with chaſte Women, what will they be with thoſe that are wantonly inclined? And at this time, they ſay, a Decree was made, that two young People ſhould not be alone together, Gem. Sanhedrin, Cap. 2. N. 8.

Do not thou this folly.] That is, this Wickedneſs. She prays him to conſider the Foulneſs of the Sin; which would highly provoke the Divine Majeſty.

Ver. 13. And I, whither ſhall I cauſe my ſhame to go?] She beſeeches him, beſide the Sin againſt God, to conſider the Diſgrace it would be to her; who ſhould not be able to look any body in the face, nor would any body think of marrying her.

And as for thee, thou ſhalt be as one of the Fools in Iſrael:] Utterly loſe his Reputation; and be look'd upon as a Man void of all Senſe of Religion, Honour, or Humanity.

Now therefore, I pray thee, ſpeak unto the King; for he will not with-hold me from thee.] The Jews commonly fancying that ſhe being begot, as I ſaid before, of a Captive Woman before David married her, there was no ſuch Kindred between her and Amnon, but that he might lawfully have her to Wife. But others think, that ſhe being a young Woman, unacquainted with the Law, imagined, that they who had not the ſame Mother, might lawfully marry; or that the Power of the King was ſo great, that he might diſpenſe with the Law, in this caſe: Or rather, ſhe ſaid any thing that came into her Mind, which ſhe thought might deliver her from the preſent Danger. And this I take to be the trueſt Interpretation. For Abarbinel hath at large confuted the Opinion of her being begotten of Maacah before Marriage, when ſhe was a Gentile. For as the Scripture ſaith no ſuch thing, ſo he thinks it altogether improbable, that ſuch a Man as David would have any thing to do with her, 'till ſhe became a Proſelyte. And therefore, he ſaith, ſhe ſpake theſe Words, not as if ſhe thought it lawful for the King to give her to Amnon for his Wife; but that ſhe might get rid of his Sollicitations, by fair Speeches. For ſhe having urged him with the foregoing Arguments, viz. the Heinouſneſs of the Action itſelf; the Diſhonour it would be to her, and no leſs Reproach to himſelf: And he perſiſting ſtill blindly blindly in his wicked Reſolution, ſhe adds theſe Words to give him hope, that he might have Satisfaction without acting ſo brutiſhly, if he did but aſk his Father's Conſent. As if ſhe had ſaid, If thou art ſo ſick with Love, that thou art ready to die, ſpeak to the King, unto whom thy Life is very dear, and he will preſerve it, by granting thy Deſire; for tho' by the Law thou canſt not enjoy me, yet he will rather chooſe to let me have thee, than ſee thee die. This, ſaith Abarbinel, is the Senſe of theſe Words, he will not withhold me from thee. Which ſhe ſaid to withhold and divert him from his purpoſe at that time; which R. Samuel Laniado (who endeavours to ſupport the forenamed Opinion of their Doctors) doth but very weakly oppoſe. See Buxtorf. de Sponſal. & Divortiis, Sect. 20. See my Notes upon Chap. iii. 3.

Ver. 14. Howbeit he would not hearken unto her Voice: but being ſtronger than ſhe, he forced her, and lay with her.] As the Nightingale in Heſiod ſung in vain to the ravenous Hawk (as Strigelius gloſſes upon theſe Words) ſo Tamar ſaid all this to a deaf Man, who was wholly under the power of his furious Luſt, which would not ſuffer him to mind either God, or Men, or himſelf.

Ver. 15. Then Amnon hated her exceedingly, ſo that the Hatred wherewith he hated her, was greater than the Love wherewith he had loved her.] The Jews are much concerned to give a reaſon of this Hatred. And Raſi, and others ſay, that in her ſtruggling with him to reſiſt his Attempt upon her, ſhe hurt thoſe Parts wherewith he offended, which extreamly enraged him. This is not improbable: But others think it a better account to ſay, that ſhe reproached him ſo bitterly with what he had done, that he could not endure to hear it; and perhaps his own Conſcience began to fly in his face.

And Amnon ſaid unto her, Ariſe, be gone.] He doth not ſo much as ſpeak one kind Word to her, nor call her Siſter (as Pellicanus obſerves) but in a rude manner bids her be gone, as if ſhe had been a common Strumpet.

Ver. 16. And ſhe ſaid unto him, There is no Cauſe;] For this hard Uſage.

This Evil is greater than the other that thou didſt unto me:] It was not a greater Sin, but it did her the greater Miſchief, becauſe it publiſh'd her Shame, and made that known to all, which was done ſecretly.

But he would not hearken to her.] This was very barbarous, to thruſt her out of doors immediately, and in the day-time, without conſulting how to cover, if it were poſſible, ſo foul a Fact. So Joſephus, he would not let her ſtay till Night, but commanded her to be put out while it was day-light, ἵνα καὶ μάρτυσι τῆς αἰσχυνης παραπέσοι, that ſhe might meet with Witneſſes of her Shame.

Ver. 17. Then he called his Servants, that miniſtered unto him, and ſaid unto them, Put now this Woman out from me, and bolt the Door after her.] This was a new Violence to her, to be turned out of doors, with ſuch contemptuous Language, as if ſhe had been an impudent Intruder.

Ver. 18. And ſhe had a Garment of divers Colours upon her: For with ſuch Robes were the King's Daughters, that were Virgins, apparelled.] This was ſuch a Garment as Joſeph the beloved Son of Jacob wore. See upon Gen. xxxvii. 3.

And his Servants brought her out, and bolted the Door after her.] An high Contempt of a King's Daughter; which they knew her to be by her Apparel, if by nothing elſe. But their Dependance on their Maſter over-ruled all the Reſpect due to her.

Ver. 19. And Tamar put Aſhes upon her Head, and rent her Garment of divers Colours that was upon her,] But theſe were Expreſſions of the greateſt Grief, which ſhe was not able to ſuppreſs.

And laid her Hands on her Head, and went on crying.] Bewailing her Calamity. Laying her Hands on her Head was alſo a Token of great Trouble and Grief; ſhe covering thereby her Face, as one aſhamed. Thus Jeremiah ſaith, the Children of Iſrael ſhould go forth from Aſſyria, with their Hands upon their Head, xi. 37. that is, ſaith Abarbinel, like a Woman who bewails her Misfortune, and there is none to deliver her. St. Hierom and Theodoret more plainly; they ſhall go forth with their Hands on their Heads, in ſignum pudoris & doloris, in token of their Shame and of their Grief. Spreading forth their Hands is the ſame. Lam. i. 17

Ver. 20. And Abſalom her Brother,] Unto whoſe Houſe ſhe went.

Said unto her, Hath Aminon thy Brother been with thee?] A modeſt Expreſſion for the foul Rape he had committed: At which he conceived great Indignation, and therefore in ſcorn doth not call him her Brother Amnon, but Aminon. So the Words are in the Hebrew, Hath Aminon thy Brother been with thee?

But hold thy peace, my Siſter: He is thy Brother, regard not this thing.] He ſeems to deſire her to put up the Injury in ſilence, that it might not bring too much Diſgrace on their Family: But indeed, that he might diſſemble the Revenge he intended, upon occaſion, to take of him.

So Tamar remained deſolate in her Brother Abſalom's Houſe.] She would ſee no body, I ſuppoſe, but only thoſe that waited on her in her Brother's Family.

Ver. 21. And when King David heard of all theſe things, he was very wroth.] But out of his great Indulgence, inflicted no ſort of Puniſhment upon him, that we read of: πρεσβύτατος γὰρ ἦν υἱὸς αὐτῷ (as Joſephus obſerves) for he was his eldeſt Son, which made him ſpare him.

Ver. 22. And Abſalom ſpake unto his Brother Amnon neither good nor bad:] Never ſaid a Word to him about this matter, when they met together.

For Abſalom hated Amnon, becauſe he had forced his Siſter Tamar.] Tho' he hated him in his heart, yet he never expreſſed the leaſt Reſentment. So the Particle ki ſhould be tranſlated, not for, but tho'. By this means Amnon was lull'd aſleep into a Belief, that Abſalom would not trouble him for what he had done, becauſe he did not threaten, nor ſo much as expoſtulate with him, nor take any notice of what had paſſed; tho', in reaſon, he ought to have been the more afraid, that he was meditating a terrible Revenge: According to the Fable of the little Mouſe, who when the Dunghil-Cock came into the Parlour, clapping his Wings, and making a great noiſe, was very much affrighted at it, but minded not the Cat which came gently creeping towards her; whom her Mother chid for her Folly, telling her there was no Danger from the fluttering, clamorous Cock; but from the ſilent Cat, ſhe was to expect preſent Death. So Victorinus Strigelius gloſſes upon this Place.

Ver. 23. And it came to paſs after two Years,] In all which time Abſalom had ſaid nothing to Amnon about his abuſed Siſter; that he might think he was ignorant of it, or did not regard it, or had forgot it.

That Abſalom had Sheep-ſhearers in Baal-hazor, which is beſide Ephraim: And Abſalom invited all the King's Sons.] For the time of Sheep-ſhearing was a kind of Harveſt in thoſe Countries; and therefore full of Joy: which they expreſſed by making a Feaſt upon thoſe Days. We read of it early in the Book of Geneſis, viz. of Laban's going to ſhear his Sheep, xxxi. 19. and Judah, after his mourning for his Wife's Death, went to refreſh himſelf at a Sheep-ſhearing with his Friends, xxxviii. 12, 13. And it was at a time of ſuch Joy, that David ſent to Nabal for ſome Relief, 1 Sam. xxv. 8.

Ver. 24. And Abſalom came to the King, and ſaid, Behold now, thy Servant hath Sheep-ſhearers, let the King, I beſeech thee, and his Servants, go with thy Servant.] He had no mind the King ſhould go; but invited him, to avoid all Suſpicion.

Ver. 25. And the King ſaid to Abſalom, Nay, my Son, let us not all go,] For he ſeems to have invited all his Family: When he beſeeched him, and his Servants to go with him.

Leſt we be chargeable unto thee; and he preſſed him: howbeit he would not go, but bleſſed him.] Gave him thanks for his Invitation, and prayed God to bleſs him.

Ver. 26. Then ſaid Abſalom, If not, I pray thee, let my Brother Amnon go with me.] To cover his Deſign, he pretended, I ſuppoſe, a ſpecial Kindneſs for him: Or at leaſt deſired the King to do him the Honour, to let him have the Company of his eldeſt Brother.

And the King ſaid unto him, Why ſhould he go with thee?] Being the next Perſon in the Kingdom to the King, it is likely David thought it would make the Entertainment too chargeable.

Ver. 27. But Abſalom preſſed him, that he let Amnon and all the King's Sons go with him.] Who might have taken exceptions, if Amnon alone had been entertained by him; therefore his Importunity prevailed to have the company of them all.

Ver. 28. And Abſalom had commanded his Servants, ſaying, Mark ye now when Amnon is merry with Wine,] And had no Thoughts of any Danger.

And when I ſay unto you, Smite Amnon, then kill him, fear not: Have not I commanded you? Be courageous, and be valiant.] He encourages them to hope, that he being the King's Son, and next Heir to the Crown, when Amnon was gone (for Chileab ſeems now to be dead) would ſtand between them and Danger of being called to an account for what they did.

Ver. 29. And the Servants of Abſalom did as Abſalom had commanded: then all the King's Sons aroſe, and gat every one upon his Mule and fled.] Fearing he might deſtroy all the Royal Family: For Ambition was as ſtrong in him as Revenge; which appeared afterward in his Endeavours to dethrone his Father. Mules began to be much in uſe in David's days (as Bochart obſerves) who appointed Solomon to be carried on his own Mule, and declared King, 1 Kings i. 33. And Solomon had a Preſent of them made to him, 1 Kings x. 25. And they were not uſed only to ride on, but for Carriage of Burdens, 1 Chron. xii. 40. and to draw Chariots, as the LXX underſtand Iſaiah lxvi. 20. See Hierozoicon, P. 1. Lib. 2. Cap. 19.

Ver. 30. And it came to paſs while they were in the way, that Tidings came to David, ſaying, Abſalom hath ſlain all the King's Sons, and there is not one of them left.] He that ſaw Amnon killed, preſently ran away in a great Fright, imagining all the King's Sons were ſo ſerved.

Ver. 31. Then the King aroſe, and tare his Garments, and lay on the Earth; and all his Servants ſtood by with their Clothes rent.] This was a natural Expreſſion of great Grief, to throw themſelves not upon their Beds (as Maimonides obſerves) but upon the Ground. Otherwiſe, they turned their Beds upſide down, and ſo lay as hard as if they lay upon the Ground. See Gierus de Luctu Hebr. Cap. 18. Sect. 8.

Ver. 32. And Jonadab the Son of Shimeah, David's Brother, anſwered and ſaid,] Who was noted before to be a very ſubtile Man (ver. 3.) and underſtood all the Intrigues (as we now ſpeak) about the Court.

Let not my Lord ſuppoſe they have ſlain all the young Men the King's Sons; for Amnon only is dead:] This he ſpake not from any certain Intelligence he had received from Abſalom's Houſe; but from rational Conjecture, out of what he had learnt concerning Abſalom's Reſentment.

For by the Appointment of Abſalom this hath been determined, from the day that he forced his Siſter Tamar.] He had talked, I ſuppoſe, among his Familiars, that he would take a time to revenge the Injury done his Siſter, though for the preſent he took no notice of it: which Jonadab, being a prying Man, had ſome way or other diſcovered.

Ver. 33. Now therefore let not my Lord the King take the thing to his heart, to think that all the King's Sons are dead: for Amnon only is dead.] He affirms this with the greater Confidence, becauſe he never heard (tho' he was of a very inquiſitive Temper) of any Quarrel Abſalom had with the reſt of the King's Sons, but only Amnon.

Ver. 34. But Abſalom fled.] With all his Servants who committed the Murder. For he ſoon found it was not in his, nor any body's power to protect them.

And the young Man that kept the Watch, lift up his Eyes, and looked,] Round about him.

And behold, there came much People by the way of the Hill-ſide behind him.] They did not think fit to keep the direct Road from Baal-Hazor to Jeruſalem (for what reaſon, we cannot now know) but went about: So that they came not before the Watchman, but behind him.

Ver. 35. And Jonadab ſaid unto the King, Behold, the King's Sons come: As thy Servant ſaid, ſo it is.] Hearing a Company was coming, he went went out, it is likely, to deſcry who they were: And, ſeeing the King's Sons, made haſte and carried David the good News.

Ver. 36. And it came to paſs, as ſoon as he had made an end of ſpeaking, that behold the King's Sons came,] They trod upon Jonadab's heels, as we now ſpeak.

And lift up their Voice and wept: And the King alſo, and all his Servants wept very ſore.] See iii. 32. But we read of no publick Funeral and Lamentations which he made for him, as he did for Abner.

Ver. 37. But Abſalom fled, and went to Talmai the Son of Ammihud King of Geſhur:] For no City of Refuge in his own Country could give him Protection, having committed a deſigned Murder; therefore he fled out of the Kingdom to his Mother's Father. See iii. 3.

And David mourned for his Son every day.] Either for the loſs of Amnon, or for Abſalom; who was loſt, as to any Comfort he could have from his Company. It ſeems to be meant of the latter; for it is ſaid he was comforted for Amnon: and therefore his continued Affliction for three Years together, was upon the account of Abſalom.

Ver. 38. And Abſalom fled, and went to Geſhur, and was there three Years.] This is repeated to ſhew, that he found ſuch Favour with his Grandfather, that he went no further, but continued with him three Years in ſafety. Geſhur, it appears from xv. 8. was a part of Syria.

Ver. 39. And the Soul of David longed to go forth unto Abſalom:] He had a vehement Deſire to ſee him. Though ſome, even of the Ancients, tranſlate the Words, he ceaſed to purſue after Abſalom: As if he had at firſt endeavoured to ſeize him, either in his Flight to Geſhur, or afterwards, when at any time he went abroad. But ours appears to be a true Tranſlation, from the beginning of the next Chapter; where David's Heart is ſaid to be towards Abſalom.

For he was comforted concerning Amnon, becauſe he was dead.] He was unwilling to want the Comfort of both his Sons; and ſince it was impoſſible to bring Amnon back again, he long'd to bring back Abſalom: But he had committed ſo horrid a Crime, that he durſt not venture to reſtore him in his Favour.

CHAP. XIV.

Verſe 1. NOW Joab the Son of Zeruiah perceived the King's Heart was towards Abſalom.] That he longed to ſee him, and have him reſtored to his own Country, if it could be contrived by ſome handſome Pretence for it. Which Joab therefore endeavoured to bring about; knowing he was dear to the People, as well as to David: And he might by his Reduction ingratiate himſelf with Abſalom, whom he looked upon as next Heir to the Crown.

Ver. 2. And Joab ſent to Tekoah,] A City in the Tribe of Judah (2 Chron. xi. 5, 6.) but at a diſtance from Jeruſalem: And the further off, the better for his purpoſe; becauſe the Caſe which the Woman was to repreſent to the King, could not eaſily be enquired into, if he deſired to know the Truth. The Jews ſay, it was in the Tribe of Aſher, the Place where the Prophet Amos was born.

And fetcht thence a wiſe Woman,] A Woman was the fitteſt for this purpoſe; eſpecially a Widow, who was proper to move Compaſſion. And a grave Woman, as Joſephus calls her (πρεσβύτις) was ſtill more proper.

And ſaid unto her, I pray thee, feign thy ſelf now to be a Mourner, and put on now mourning Apparel, and anoint not thy ſelf with Oil, but be as a Woman that had a long time mourned for the dead:] Who put on no Ornaments, nor uſed any Ointment, but appeared in a ſordid neglected Condition.

Ver. 3. And come to the King, and ſpeak on this manner unto him: So Joab put the Words into her mouth.] And, in all probability, introduc'd her into the King's preſence; and then left her to manage the matter with him, according to her Prudence. Or, as ſeems to be ſuggeſted, ver. 21. he ſtood by at ſome diſtance, whilſt ſhe addreſſed herſelf to the King.

Ver. 4. And when the Woman of Tekoah ſpake to the King, ſhe fell on her face to the ground, and did obeyſance,] This was the humbleſt Poſture of Reverence.

And ſaid, Help, O King.] Relieve a poor diſtreſſed Widow.

Ver. 5. And the King ſaid unto her, What aileth thee? and ſhe anſwered, I am indeed a Widow Woman, and my Huſband is dead.] Which made her the greater Object of Pity.

Ver. 6. And thy Handmaid had two Sons, and they two ſtrove together in the Field, and there was none to part them, but the one ſmote the other, and ſlew him.] This, and the foregoing, and the next Verſe, repreſent her Condition as very lamentable: That ſhe had loſt her Huſband, and one of her Sons, and was in danger to be deprived of the other; which was all ſhe had.

Ver. 7. And behold the whole Family is riſen againſt thine Handmaid, and they ſay deliver him that ſmote his Brother, that we may kill him,] Put him to death, as the Law required, Numb. xxxv. 18, 19.

For the Life of his Brother which he ſlew, and we will deſtroy the Heir alſo:] Theſe Words, if ſpoken by the Kindred, ſhew it was not Love to Juſtice, but a Deſire to have the Inheritance, which moved them to proſecute the Murderer.

And ſo they ſhall quench my Coal which is left,] Deprive me of the little Comfort of my Life, which remains (and is in a manner buried as a Coal in the Aſhes) and ruin my Family.

And ſhall not leave to my Huſband neither Name, nor Remainder upon earth.] Utterly extinguiſh her Huſband's Memory. In all this ſhe intended to frame a Caſe as like to David's as ſhe could deviſe: By determining which in her favour, he might judge how much more reaſonable it was to preſerve Abſalom. But there was a wide Difference between her Caſe and his, how plauſible ſoever their Likeneſs might appear. For her Son ſhe pretended was ſlain in a Scuffle with his Brother, and was no premeditated Murder, as Abſalom's was. It was alſo in the Field, where there were no Witneſſes, whether it was wilful or no; Whereas all the King's Sons ſaw Amnon barbarouſly murdered by his Brother. And in this laſt paſſage the Difference is as great as in any; for David's Family was not in danger to be extinguiſhed, if Abſalom were loſt alſo: he having many Children, and alſo many Wives, whereby he might have more. And therefore in that likewiſe this Caſe differed from hers who was a Widow.

Ver. 8. And the King ſaid, Go to thine Houſe, and I will give charge concerning thee.] He promiſes he would take care the matter ſhould be thoroughly examined, and juſtice done her.

Ver. 9. And the Woman of Tekoah ſaid unto the King, My Lord, O King, the Iniquity be on me, and on my Father's Houſe: and the King and his Throne be guiltleſs.] She deſires a ſpeedy Sentence might be given in her favour; which if it prov'd wrong by her miſinforming the King, ſhe prays the Guilt might light on her and her Family, and the King and his be innocent.

Ver. 10. And the King ſaid, Whoſoever ſaith aught unto thee, bring him unto me, and he ſhall not touch thee any more.] If any one endeavoured to lay hold on her Son, he bids her bring that Perſon before him (for which end he commanded his Officers to be aſſiſtant to her) and he would puniſh him, ſo that none ſhould dare to meddle with him any more.

Ver. 11. Then ſhe ſaid, I pray thee, let the King remember the LORD thy God,] She ſeems to deſire him to confirm what he had ſaid by an Oath. For Men ſwore by remembring (or making mention of) the Name of the LORD. Others think ſhe only prays him to remember how merciful and gracious God is, and had been to himſelf, even in pardoning the Murder of Uriah.

That thou wouldſt not ſuffer the Avenger of Blood to deſtroy any more,] In the Hebrew, to multiply to deſtroy: That is, after ſhe had loſt one Son, to take away the Life of the other, as the next Words explain it.

Leſt they deſtroy my Son.] Or, let them not deſtroy my Son, which remains.

And he ſaid, As the LORD liveth,] Tho' it was a bold Requeſt in the Woman to deſire him to confirm what he had ſaid by an Oath; yet ſuch was his pity to her, that to ſend her away entirely ſatisfied, he ſolemnly ſwears he would preſerve her Son.

There ſhall not one Hair of thy Son fall to the earth.] He ſhould not ſuffer the leaſt harm upon this account.

Ver. 12. Then the Woman ſaid, Let thy Handmaid, I pray thee, ſpeak one word unto my Lord the King: And he ſaid, Say on.] Now ſhe deſigned to open her Meaning in this Parable, and plainly deſires the King to make her Caſe his own: but it would take up ſome time, and therefore ſhe beſpeaks his Favour to hear her patiently.

Ver. 13. And the Woman ſaid, Wherefore haſt thou thought ſuch a thing] As that which ſhe had hitherto been ſpeaking of.

Againſt the People of Iſrael?] Who were in danger to loſe Abſalom, the Heir of the Crown; which was far worſe than the private Loſs of her Son.

For the King doth ſpeak this thing, as one that is faulty, in that the King doth not fetch home his baniſhed.] In the Sentence he had pronounced for her, he had condemned himſelf, becauſe he had not called Abſalom from his Exile. This looks like too bold a Speech: But the Senſe is no more than this; Do not judge otherwiſe in thy own caſe, than thou haſt done in mine. For all the World allows (as Strigelius here obſerves) the Reaſonableneſs of that Saying, Odi ſapientem qui ſibi non ſapit. Her Reaſoning indeed was infirm, his Caſe and hers being very unlike upon ſeveral accounts, which I before obſerved. But tho' he ſuppoſed killing of her Son was caſual, but Amnon's Murder deſigned; and ſhe had no more Sons, and David had many, &c. yet David perceiving how the People ſtood affected towards Abſalom (otherwiſe he knew this Woman durſt not have ſpoken after this manner) and it being his own Deſire, as much as theirs, to have him re-called, he overlooked all the Differences there were in his caſe, and did not go about to ſhew her the Weakneſs of her Diſcourſe.

Ver. 14. For we muſt needs die, and are as Water ſpilt upon the ground, which cannot be gathered up again:] She pleads for further Pity towards him, from the Conſideration of our common Mortality, and repreſents that Death comes on apace, and we need not haſten it: And when we are dead, we can no more be recovered, than Water when it is ſpilt on the ground, which is preſently ſucked up and ſeen no more. This is alſo a weak, though plauſible Argument; for by this reaſoning all Malefactors ſhould be ſpared, becauſe it will not be long before Death cuts them off: But when we have a mind to a thing, all Reaſons ſeem ſtrong to perſwade us to it. Some apply this to his mourning for Amnon; as if ſhe had ſaid, doſt thou ſtill weep for thy other Son? He muſt have died; and now he is gone, thy Tears cannot call him to Life again. But this is not probable, becauſe it is ſaid in the concluſion of the foregoing Chapter, He was comforted concerning Amnon, ſeeing he was dead.

Neither doth God reſpect any Perſon,] If this be a right Tranſlation, the Meaning is, that David himſelf was mortal, though a great King. But I think the Hebrew Words, Iſſa Nepheſh, never ſignify Reſpect to Perſons; but the Word Panim is uſed in that ſenſe, not Nepheſh, which ſignifies the Soul, as the other doth the Face or Countenance. Therefore theſe Words ſhould be tranſlated, God doth not take away the Soul, or Life. She argues from the ſparing Mercy of God, who doth not preſently inflict the Puniſhment of Death, when Men have deſerved it. And perhaps ſhe had in this a particular Reſpect to Abſalom, whom God had not cut off, but let him live; and therefore ſhe deſires David to imitate God.

Yet doth he deviſe means, that his baniſhed be not expelled from him.] Or, according to the foregoing Words, but he doth deviſe means, &c. God provided many Cities of Refuge, ſhe means, to which he that ſlew another unawares might flee; where though he was baniſhed from his Habitation for a time, he was not quite expelled, but might return again, after the Death of the High-Prieſt. From whence ſhe argues, that Kings being the Images of God, nothing could more become them than Clemency and Mercy; in mitigating the Puniſhment of Offenders, tho' there were juſt Cauſe of Anger againſt them. Which ſtill was ſhort of the preſent Caſe; for God was not ſo merciful as to provide for the ſafety of a wilful Murderer. But ſuch ſpecious Arguments are good enough, when Men are willing to be perſwaded: And nothing more moving than the Example of God, who doth not delight in the Death of a Sinner.

Ver. 15. Now therefore that I am come to ſpeak of this thing unto my Lord the King, it is becauſe the People have made me afraid:] This ſounds as if the People talked ſo diſcontentedly about Abſalom's Baniſhment, that it was another Motive to her to make this Addreſs to the King. But it doth not ſeem to me to be likely, that the People were diſſatisfied, becauſe he was not recalled; but rather David was afraid the People would be diſſatisfied, if he did recall him. I ſaid indeed before (ver. 13.) that David imagined by her Speech, that they were deſirous of his Return from Baniſhment; but he did not think ſo before: And whatſoever their Deſires might be, they did not expreſs any Diſcontent, becauſe he was not; for then there would not have been any need of this Woman to bring that about, which he deſired more than they. Therefore I think the laſt Words ſhould be tranſlated, not becauſe, but tho' the People made me afraid; that is, thoſe ſhe adviſed withal, told her it was too bold an Attempt: But this did not diſcourage her, becauſe ſhe preſumed the King would be ſo good, as to give her a favourable Audience, and not be angry with her, ſince what ſhe ſaid was well intended. So the next Word is to be tranſlated, but, not and.

But thy Handmaid ſaid, I will now ſpeak unto the King; it may be that the King will perform the Requeſt of his Handmaid.] That is, notwithſtanding the Fears which ſome put into her, ſhe reſolved to make this Petition. And ſhe gives her Reaſon for it, in the next Verſe.

Ver. 16. For the King will hear, to deliver his Handmaid out of the hand of the Men that would deſtroy me and my Son together out of the Inheritance of God:] Clemency and Kindneſs are the Properties of good Kings; and ſuch ſhe ſaith ſhe knew the King to be, who would take pity upon her and her Son, in whoſe Preſervation her Life was bound up. And when ſhe calls the Land of Iſrael, the Inheritance of God, who dwelt among them there, ſhe ſecretly puts the King in mind how dangerous it was to let Abſalom (unto whom ſhe had adventured to apply her Caſe) to continue in an idolatrous Country; where God was not worſhipped, as he was in the Land of Iſrael.

Ver. 17. Then thine Handmaid ſaid, the Word of my Lord the King ſhall now be comfortable:] Thereupon ſhe grew confident that the King's Anſwer would be according to her Heart's deſire; it being the higheſt Glory of a Prince (as the Emperor Titus was wont to ſay) not to ſend any Petitioner away ſad and ſorrowful. And indeed the King's great Patience, in attending to ſo long an Addreſs, might make her preſume to receive a gracious Anſwer.

For as an Angel of God, ſo is my Lord the King, to diſcern both good and bad:] To diſcern between juſt and unreaſonable Petitions; as well as patiently to hear both thoſe things which are grateful, and thoſe which are leſs acceptable. And therefore ſhe doubted not of ſuch a kind Anſwer as the Angels bring, who are Meſſengers of divine Mercy.

Therefore the LORD thy God will be with thee.] To direct him to judge aright, and to ſhew Mercy. There is a great deal of Artifice in all this. For to preſume upon the Kindneſs of another, and to expect gracious Anſwers from their noble Qualities, is very moving; Men being very loth to defeat thoſe who think ſo highly of them; according to that of Ariſtotle, in the ſecond Book of his Rhetorick, We love thoſe that admire us.

Ver. 18. Then the King anſwered and ſaid unto the Woman, Hide not from me, I pray thee, one thing that I ſhall aſk thee. And the Woman ſaid, Let my Lord the King now ſpeak.] As much as to ſay, and I will anſwer truly.

Ver. 19. And the King ſaid, Is not the hand of Joab with thee in all this?] His Prudence made him ſuſpect that a Woman durſt not have adventured upon this Speech, but by the Counſel and Contrivance of ſome greater Perſon. And none more likely than Joab, whom he knew to be a cunning Man, and a Friend to Abſalom.

And the Woman anſwered and ſaid, As thy Soul liveth, my Lord the King, none can turn to the right hand or to the left, from ought that my Lord the King hath ſpoken:] As much as to ſay in our Language, it is even ſo. And therefore ſhe did not ſeek by any Windings, or Turnings this way or the other, to diſſemble the matter, but plainly confeſſed it, as it follows. Concerning the Phraſe, Turn to the right hand or left, ſee upon Gen. xxiv. 49.

For thy Servant Joab he bad me, and he put all theſe Words in the mouth of thy Handmaid.] The Senſe of them, which he left her to manage to the beſt advantage.

Ver. 20. To fetch about this Form of Speech hath thy Servant Joab done this thing:] The Meaning is, Joab inſtructed her, that having obtained pardon for her Son, ſhe ſhould turn about the face of her Speech (as the Words are in the Hebrew) another way; and transfer it to Abſalom, as a parallel Caſe with her own. And ſo Joſephus expreſſes her Senſe, Lib. 7. Antiq. Cap. 8. When ſhe had thanked the King for his Pity towards her, ſhe ſaid, But that I may be more certain of thy Clemency, receive thy own Son into thy favour; for how is it poſſible for me not to doubt of the favour thou promiſeſt me, when thou ſtill ſuffereſt thy own Son to lie under thy Indignation for the like Fault?

And my Lord the King is wiſe, according to the Wiſdom of an Angel of God, to know all things that are done in the earth.] That is, in the whole Kingdom, where nothing could be hid from him, but he knew all Men, and their Counſels; and likewiſe knew what was fit to be done, in anſwer to their Deſires. She ſtill perſiſts in her Admiration of the King, that ſhe might the more incline him to grant her Requeſt.

Ver. 21. And the King ſaid unto Joab, Behold now, I have done this thing: Go therefore, and bring the young Man Abſalom again.] The King turned from her to him (who ſeems to have ſtood in ſome part of the Room, while ſhe delivered her Petition) as the principal Agent in this Buſineſs; whom he was pleaſed to gratify in his Requeſt.

Ver. 22.

Ver. 22. And Joab fell to the ground on his face, and bowed himself,] As the Woman did, when she entered into his presence, to present her Petition, ver. 4.

And thanked the King:] For Favours are to be no less humbly acknowledged, than humbly begged.

And Joab said, To-day thy Servant knoweth that I have found Grace in thy sight, my Lord, O King, in that the King hath fulfilled the Request of his Servant.] He looked upon it as a Mark of the King's great Kindness, who was not angry, but granted so bold a Request; in which he was mistaken: for tho' he passed by the Murder of Amnon, yet he remember'd Joab's Murder of Abner to his dying day.

Ver. 23. So Joab arose and went to Geshur, and brought Absalom to Jerusalem.] St. Ambrose mentions this as an Instance of the wonderful Affection which Parents have to their Children, tho' degenerate and wicked; by which we may raise our Thoughts to comprehend a little of the inconceivable Love of our heavenly Father (as Strigelius here meditates) towards his own eternal Son; and towards Mankind for his sake.

Ver. 24. And the King said,] When he heard he was come to Jerusalem.

Let him turn to his own House, and let him not see my face.] His Affection to him did not so blind his Eyes, but he still saw, it would not be for his Honour, to let him come into his presence.

So Absalom returned to his own House,] This intimates, as if he came not only to Jerusalem, but to the King's Court.

And saw not the King's Face.] Which was some Humiliation to him, and put him upon Repentance; for he saw he had not a full Pardon, being not utterly restored to the King's Favour. The People also were convinced by this how detestable his Crime was, in the King's account; and that he would not easily pass by the like in any other Person, since he could not endure the sight of a Son, whose Hand was defiled with the Blood of his Brother.

Ver. 25. But in all Israel there was none to be so much praised as Absalom, for Beauty, from the Sole of the Foot, even to the Crown of the Head there was no Blemish in him.] For his Father and Mother were both very lovely Persons: But this proved the Occasion of his Ruin; for he grew proud, because he was so much admired; and forgetting his cruel Murther of his Brother, it tempted him to rely on the Favour of the People, in committing of a greater Crime, which was seeking the Life of his Father.

Ver. 26. And when he polled his Head (for it was at every Year's end that he polled it; because the Hair was heavy to him, therefore he polled it.] It is not certain, that he cut his Hair once a Year: For the Words in the Hebrew are, from the end of Days to Days, without any particular Designation of the Time. And therefore the Targum translates it, at stated Times; that is, when it grew too heavy, which might be once in two Years, more or less, as Bochartus observes.

He weighed the Hair of his Head at two hundred Shekels, after the King's weight.] In those days Hair was accounted a great Ornament, and the longer it was, the more it was esteemed. And therefore no wonder Absalom nourished his with much Care, and let it grow to great length: which made him look more like a goodly Person. Insomuch, that in After-ages, they were wont to use Art (as perhaps they did now) to make the Hair grow, and grow thick, and strong (as the same Bochartus hath shewn) and they anointed their Hair also with fragrant Oils of Myrrh, Cinnamon, and such like; and after that, powder'd it with Dust of Gold: All which made it very ponderous. So that Absalom's Hair weighed, when it was cut off, two hundred Shekels; which he demonstrates was no more than three Pound and two Ounces of our Weight. This is not at all incredible, considering that he let it grow so long as he was able to bear the Weight of it; which was increased, it is likely, by such Additions as I have mentioned; for a King's Son would not want any thing that might add to his Splendor. Josephus also informs us, that such Ostentation was in use among the Jews in those days; for speaking of the noble Guard which attended King Solomon, with long Hair flowing about their Shoulders, he saith, that they scattered in their Hair every day, ῥῆγματα τῦ χρυσίυ, little Particles of Gold, which made their Hair shine and sparkle by the Reflection of the Sun's Rays upon the Gold. As for their Interpretation, who think that Absalom's Hair did not weigh thus much, but was sold for two hundred Shekels, Bochartus shews how absurd it is to imagine a King's Son would sell his Hair, or that any one would buy it, especially at that rate; there being no Peruques worn in those days. And besides, the Text confutes it, he weighed the Hair of his Head, &c. whereas, if it had been sold, the Buyer would have weighed the Money, not Absalom; as Abraham did, when he bought the Field of Ephron, Gen. xxiii. 16. and Jeremiah when he bought the Field in Anathoth, xxxii. 9. See his Epistle to Michael Faukellius, at the end of the third Edition of his Geographia Sacra.

Ver. 27. And unto Absalom were born three Sons and one Daughter, whose Name was Tamar; she was a Woman of a fair Countenance.] How the LXX in the Vatican Edition, came to add here, that Tamar was afterward the Wife of Rehoboam, and bare him Abijah, I cannot tell; but I suppose it was from some Jewish Tradition.

Ver. 28. So Absalom dwelt two full Years in Jerusalem, and saw not the King's Face.] He lived privately, having the Company only of his own Family. For it is likely, he was by the King's Command confined to his House, where he had few Visitants, being under the King's Displeasure.

Ver. 29. Therefore Absalom sent for Joab, to have sent him to the King,] He did not employ his Privacy so well as he should have done; but had ambitious Designs in his head, if he could be restored to the King's Favour, and enjoy greater Liberty; for which he intended to make Joab his Intercessor.

But he would not come to him: And when he sent again the second time, he would not come.] Josephus thinks that Joab only took time to consider, whether he should do what was desired: But Absalom was in haste, and could not endure any Delay, and therefore did as follows. Or perhaps Joab thought he had done enough, and was afraid the King might be angry, if he preſſed him further.

Ver. 30. Therefore he ſaid unto his Servants, See, Joab's Field is near unto mine, and he hath Barley there; go and ſet it on fire: And Abſalom's Servants ſet the Field on fire.] He had thoſe ſtill about him, who were ready to execute any Command, tho' never ſo unjuſt; as they did when he bad them kill Amnon. And it appears by this, what a daring Perſon Abſalom was, who durſt affront ſuch a Man as Joab after this manner.

Ver. 31. Then Joab aroſe and went to Abſalom unto his Houſe, and ſaid unto him, Wherefore have thy Servants ſet my Field on fire?] This carried Joab preſently to his Houſe, to expoſtulate with him about the Damage he had done him; for which we do not find he offers any Satisfaction; which may make it ſeem ſtrange, that ſo furious a Man as Joab ſhould not immediately revenge himſelf, by ordering his Field to be burnt, or ſome ſuch way: But he was ſo wiſe as to conſider, that being the King's Son he might ſome time or other be reconciled to his Father, and do him a prejudice.

Ver. 32. And Abſalom anſwered Joab, Behold I ſent unto thee, ſaying, Come hither, that I may ſend thee to the King,] He ſeems to have no Senſe of any Injury he had done Joab, but he had juſt cauſe to complain that he would not come to him.

To ſay, Wherefore am I come from Geſhur?] Theſe were Words too inſolent to be ſent to the King; therefore one would think he only expreſſed himſelf thus to Joab.

It had been better for me to have been there ſtill:] He might have found means to return thither, if he had not had other Deſigns in his head; which made him deſire to have his full Liberty.

Now therefore let me ſee the King's Face; and if there be any Iniquity in me, let him kill me.] He could not but know there was Iniquity in him: but he pretends, if the King would not pardon it, he had rather die than not ſee his Father's Face.

Ver. 33. So Joab came to the King, and told him: and when he had called for Abſalom,] Theſe paſſionate Expreſſions, that he was weary of Life, while he continued baniſhed from the King's Preſence; nay, that he deſired to die, ſo he might but ſee him, moved Joab to intercede for him, and David to receive him into his favour.

He came to the King, and bowed himſelf on his Face to the ground before the King:] Begging pardon, as Joſephus explains it, for the Sin he had committed.

And the King kiſſed Abſalom.] In token of Reconciliation. Joſephus ſaith the King raiſed him up from the ground, καὶ τῶν γεγονότων ἀμνηστίαν ἐπαγγέλλεται, and promiſed him an Oblivion of what was paſt. Which was a great Weakneſs in David; for impenitent Perſons become more wicked by a full Pardon of their Offences, as Abſalom did. Who being thus received into the King's Favour, became more gracious with the People; who before looked upon him as an excommunicated Perſon, and would have nothing to do with him.

CHAP. XV.

Verſe 1. AND it came to paſs after this,] When he thought he had eſtabliſhed himſelf in his Father's good Affection.

That Abſalom prepared himſelf Chariots, and Horſes, and fifty Men to run before him.] He took great State upon him, and made him, as we now ſpeak, a ſplendid Equipage: Being royally attended, as the next Heir to the Crown (for we hear nothing of Chileab, who it is likely was dead) deſigning to draw the eyes of the People to him. Who, as they were much in love with his Beauty, ſo were mightily taken with this unuſual fine Sight of Chariots and Horſes; which the Law did not allow: But David was ſo indulgent, that he took no notice of it.

Ver. 2. And Abſalom roſe up early in the Morning,] He accuſtomed himſelf to riſe betimes in the Morning, to make a ſhow of his great Care for the publick Good.

And ſtood beſide the way of the Gate:] Not of the King's Palace, ſome think, but of the City, where was the Seat of Judgment. But ſince he ſpeaks of coming to the King for Judgment, it is likely he ſate in his own Palace, at the Gate of which Abſalom was wont to ſtand.

And it was ſo, that when any Man that had a Controverſy came to the King for Judgment,] Who reſerved all weighty Cauſes for his own Hearing: And Appeals were made to him from the other Courts, as Corn. Bertram obſerves, Cap. 10. de Republ. Judaica.

Then Abſalom called unto him, and ſaid, Of what City art thou?] He kindly enquired where he dwelt; and, it is likely, what he was, and of what Family, &c. as if he intended to take a particular Care of him.

And he ſaid, Thy Servant is of one of the Tribes of Iſrael.] That is, of ſuch or ſuch a Tribe, and of ſuch a City in that Tribe as he named to him.

Ver. 3. And Abſalom ſaid unto him, See, thy matters are good and right,] He was ſo officious as to look into their Cauſe a while, and examine it; flattering every one into an Opinion, that in his Judgment, he had Right on his ſide. So that if their Cauſe went againſt them, they might conclude, that if Abſalom had been Judge, it would have gone otherways.

But there is no Man deputed of the King to hear thee.] The King he pretended was old, and unfit to judge Cauſes, till ſome others had firſt heard them, and opened the Matter to him. And his Sons [who being principal Officers in his Family (ſee chap. viii. ult.) were the fitteſt to bring Buſineſs to him] were Men of Pleaſure, and did not mind publick Affairs. Thus he ſtruck not only at his Father, but at all his Brethren; and principally, it is likely, at Solomon: who he was afraid would be preferred before him by his Father, being a beloved Son, and born of an Iſraelite, whereas he was begot of a Stranger, the Daughter of the King of Geſhur. Who, it is probable, might put him upon this Courſe; and his Baniſhment for three Years had alſo exaſperated him: And his being ſecluded for two Years more from ſeeing his Father, was ſo far from bringing him to any Senſe of his Guilt, Guilt, that it more inraged him againſt his Father, and all his Family.

Ver. 4. And Abſalom ſaid moreover, O that I were made Judge in the Land, that every Man that hath any Suit or Cauſe, might come unto me, and I would do him juſtice.] Tho' he was admitted to come to Court, and ſee the King, yet he had no Office there, as the reſt of the King's Sons had; which he took ill, and endeavour'd the People ſhould do ſo too; by magnifying his Care, if he were in Authority, to do them ſpeedy Juſtice.

Ver. 5. And it was ſo, that when any Man came nigh him to do him obeyſance,] To honour him as the King's Son.

That he put forth his Hand, and took him,] About the Neck, I ſuppoſe, in token of great Familiarity and Kindneſs.

And kiſſed him,] A moſt vile Piece of Flattery: But People are pleaſed with ſuch unwonted Compliments. For ſo Plato obſerves, that when any Perſon intended to make himſelf a Tyrant in a Popular State, he no ſooner entred upon the Government, but προσγελᾶτε καὶ ἀσπάζεται πάντας ὃ ἂν περιτυγχάνει, he ſmiled upon all, and kindly ſaluted them, whereſoever he met them; avowing that he hated Tyranny, and promiſing great things, both privately and publickly, καὶ πᾶσιν ἵλεως τὲ καὶ πατρῷος εἶναι προσποιεῖται, ſeeming to be mild, gentle, and fatherly unto all, Lib. 8. de Republ. p. 566. Edit. Serrani.

Ver. 6. And after this manner did Abſalom to all Iſrael that came to the King for Judgment:] He continued this Courſe a long time, till he had inveigled the People, and gained their Hearts to him. For as Ariſtotle obſerves in his Politicks, Lib. 5. Cap. 4. all Changes in Commonwealths are made by one of theſe two ways, ὅτεμεν διὰ βίας, ὅτε δὲ δι' ἀπάτης, either by Force and Violence, or elſe by Deceit and Craft. Now there is not a more famous Inſtance in Hiſtory of the latter, than this of Abſalom, who, by flattering Speeches, and large Promiſes, cunningly alienated the Hearts of the People from his Father.

So Abſalom ſtole the Hearts of the Men of Iſrael.] Robbed his Father of the Affections of the People, and poſſeſſed himſelf of them: Some admiring his Beauty and Gallantry; others his Courteſy and Civility; others being taken with his magnificent Promiſes of the noble things he would do, if he were their King. Juſt as Virgil ſaith in Book 7. of his Æneids, that Turnus drew the Hearts of ſome to follow him in the Wars, becauſe he was a moſt graceful Perſon; others, becauſe he was deſcended from an ancient Royal Race; and others were moved by the noble Acts he had done, Ver. 473, 474.

Hunc decus egregium formæ movet, atque juventæ
Hunc Atavi Reges, hunc claris dextera factis.

Thus Abſalom was young and wonderfully beautiful, deſcended from Kings by his Father and Mother's ſide; and tho' he had done no great things, yet boaſted of what he would do, when he had opportunity. Ludov. de Dieu thinks there is a peculiar Meaning in this Phraſe, that he drew their Affections to him, concealing in the mean time his Intentions. Upon John. x. 24.

Ver. 7. And it came to paſs after forty Years,] One would think, that in the Copy which Joſephus uſed, it was written arba, four, not arbaim, forty Years: For his Words are, μετὰ δὲ τὴν τοῦ πατρὸς καταλλαγὴν τεσσάρων ἐτῶν ἤδη παραλελυθότων, four Years after his Father was reconciled to him. But there are no Warrants now for this reading; but the forty Years here mentioned are not to be underſtood, as if this happened after David had reigned forty Years, that is, in the laſt Year of his Reign; for he was now very vigorous, which he was not a little before he died. But as our great Primate of Ireland in his Annals underſtands it, forty Years after David was anointed by Samuel, that is, when he was threeſcore Years old, ten Years before he died. Then his Son conſpired againſt him between the Feaſt of the Paſſover and Pentecoſt; as ſome gather from Barzillai's preſenting him with parched Corn and new Fruits, when he fled from Abſalom, xvii. 28. And ſo Strigelius. But the Talmudiſts in Sedar Olam, and other Books, will have theſe forty Years to commence from the time that the Iſraelites aſked a King to reign over them. And after all, Abarbinel is of opinion, that the plaineſt Senſe is after forty Years of David's Reign; ſo that it was about the latter end of his Life, when this great Calamity befel him, though not in the very laſt Year of it. For it is not ſaid in the fortieth Year, but about the end of forty Years. See Buxtorf. Anticritica, p. 1004.

That Abſalom ſaid unto the King, I pray thee, let me go and pay my Vow, which I have vowed unto the LORD, in Hebron.] Now he pretends Religion, as before he did the publick Good.

Ver. 8. For thy Servant vowed a Vow, while I abode at Geſhur in Syria, ſaying, If the LORD will bring me again indeed to Jeruſalem, then will I ſerve the LORD.] With a ſolemn Sacrifice.

Ver. 9. And the King ſaid unto him, Go in peace.] It is much he ſhould diſmiſs him without any Suſpicion, when he had deferred ſo long to perform this Vow, and made ſuch court to the People, as he could not but be informed.

So he aroſe and went to Hebron.] Which was an high Place, where they were wont to ſacrifice 'till the Temple was built. And it being the Place of his Birth, where the Royal Seat had been in the beginning of David's Reign, he thought it the moſt commodious City, next Jeruſalem, for his purpoſe.

Ver. 10. And Abſalom ſent Spies throughout all the Tribes of Iſrael,] To try how the People ſtood affected to him.

Saying, as ſoon as you hear the Sound of the Trumpet, then ye ſhall ſay, Abſalom reigneth in Hebron.] This was the Signal which was to be given, that they ſhould take Arms. For as ſoon as they heard the Sound of the Trumpet (which he took care ſhould be blown in all the Tribes) theſe Spies were to proclaim that Abſalom was crowned in Hebron; whereupon, all his Partakers, it is likely, ſhouted, God ſave King Abſalom.

Ver. 11. And with Abſalom went two hundred Men out of Jeruſalem that were called,] Invited by him to feaſt with him upon his Sacrifice. And it is likely they were principal Perſons of the City, whom he drew in, to avoid Suſpicion.

And they went in their ſimplicity, and they knew not any thing.] Of his Deſign; but went only to wait upon him, as the King's Son, who did them the honour to invite them to a holy Feaſt. Among theſe two hundred Men, the Jews fancy were all thoſe of the grand Sanhedrin; who thought they had been called by David's Order to attend his Son. For which there is no ground; tho' Mr. Selden has produced a great deal out of the Talmudiſts concerning this matter, L. 2. de Synedriis, Cap. 16. But I have ſhewn elſewhere, there was no ſuch Sanhedrin in theſe times.

Bartenora upon Sota hath a Conceit, that Abſalom begged of the King (for he had ſtolen his Heart before he ſtole the People's) that he would grant him liberty, under his Hand, to chooſe two Perſons whom he liked beſt, to be his Companions; which being obtained, he went with this Writing from two to two, 'till he had gathered two hundred; part of which were the Men of the great Sanhedrin, whoſe Examples others followed; all believing they had been warranted by David to attend his Son.

Ver. 12. And Abſalom ſent for Ahitophel the Gilonite, David's Counſellor, from his City, even from Giloh,] None are more capable to do miſchief to Kings, than thoſe that know their Secrets, having been of the Privy-Council. And it is ſuppoſed by the Jews, that Ahitophel was incenſed againſt David for abuſing Bathſheba, whom they take to have been his Grand-daughter, ſhe being the Daughter of Eliam, xi. 3. and Eliam being the Son of Ahitophel. xxiii. 34.

While he offered Sacrifices:] Or rather, After he had offered Sacrifices, while he ſat at Dinner, he ſent for him to come to him.

And the Conſpiracy was ſtrong; for the People increaſed continually with Abſalom.] Moſt of which, it is likely, intended no harm at the firſt, but came meerly to do honour to the King's Son, and to partake of his Bounty. Nay, Abarbinel is of opinion, that neither Abſalom, nor the Elders of Iſrael, nor the reſt of the People, who were miſled by them, had any Intention to diveſt David of his Crown and Dignity, much leſs to take away his Life; but only to ſubſtitute Abſalom as a Coadjutor to him, for the executing of the Royal Authority during David's Life, and to be his Succeſſor after his Death. And indeed, as it was very monſtrouſly unnatural in Abſalom to deſign the Deſtruction of ſuch a kind Father, ſo it is not very probable that he ſhould gain ſuch a Number as he had, to aſſiſt him in ſuch a villanous Enterprize. And yet, notwithſtanding this, David looked upon this as a Treaſon againſt his Life, as appears from ver. 14. and xvi. 11. becauſe he knew, whatſoever they intended, they would be carried further, tho' they meant no more than Abarbinel ſuppoſes. And more than that, if this Opinion of his were true, it is evident, they themſelves did proceed ſo far as to deſign (contrary to their firſt Intentions) to kill David for their own greater Security. For ſo Ahitophel adviſed, and they all conſented to it, xvii. 2, 4. which ſhews how dangerous it is to go out of the right Way; for they do not know into what Precipices they may fall. And it ſhould be a Warning to all Men, never to begin any thing that is wrong, which may lead them to commit that in the Iſſue, which they abhorred at the firſt; when they find they cannot be ſafe in one Wickedneſs, unleſs they commit a greater.

Ver. 13. And there came a Meſſenger unto David, ſaying, The Hearts of the Men of Iſrael are after Abſalom.] Some of the two hundred Men, who went innocently along with him from Jeruſalem, it is likely, ſent this Intelligence; which did not come preſently: But when the Conſpiracy was plain and open, by a great Concourſe of People to him; and the Elders of Iſrael, and the military Men, (who are called all Iſrael, as Fortunatus Sacchus thinks) declared for him.

Ver. 14. And David ſaid unto all his Servants that were with him at Jeruſalem, Ariſe, let us flee; for we ſhall not elſe eſcape from Abſalom:] Tho' Jeruſalem, at leaſt the Fort of Sion, was a ſtrong Place, yet they could not have time to lay in Proviſion to endure a Siege: And beſide, he was not willing to be cooped up there; but choſe rather to go into the Country, where he hoped to find Friends and Followers.

Make ſpeed to depart, leſt he overtake us ſuddenly, and bring evil upon us, and ſmite the City with the Edge of the Sword.] He knew Abſalom would loſe no time to accompliſh his End; and therefore requires them immediately to be gone, and prevent a Surprize. He was deſirous alſo to preſerve Jeruſalem from being ſacked, being the Royal City, upon which he had beſtowed much Coſt.

Ver. 15. And the King's Servants ſaid unto the King, Behold, thy Servants are ready to do whatſoever my Lord the King ſhall appoint.] One ſeems to have ſpoken in the Name of the whole Court: And it was ſome comfort to him, that he had a Company of ſuch faithful Servants about him, as were ready to execute whatſoever he commanded.

Ver. 16. And the King went forth, and all his Houſhold after him:] In the Hebrew, the Words are, All his Houſhold at his feet. Which ſhews that he went on foot, and would not make uſe of his Mule; being in a mournful State, and deſirous to move his People's Compaſſion to him.

And the King left ten Women that were Concubines, to keep the Houſe.] For their Sex, and their Quality, might be thought to be a ſufficient Protection to them. What became of his Wives is not here related; it is probable they went along with him, to take care of him, as the other were left to take care of the Houſe.

Ver. 17. And the King went forth, and all the People after him,] That is, all the People of Jeruſalem, who were well-affected to him.

And tarried in a place that was far off.] At a good diſtance from the City, where, it is likely, he put the People that came out confuſedly after him into good Order, and waited to ſee what other Friends would come to him.

Ver. 18. And all his Servants paſſed on beſide him;] His houſhold Servants, I ſuppoſe, marched on both hands of him.

All the Cerethites, and all the Pelethites,] Who theſe were, I have ſhewn at large upon viii. 18. and it is poſſible they now brought up the rear.

And all the Gittites, ſix hundred Men, which came after him from Gath, paſſed on before the King.] Theſe marched in the Front of his little Army; but who they were, 'tis hard to tell; for we read nothing of them before. Some take them to have been Proſelytes born in Gath of the Philiſtines, who came with Ittai to David; being attracted by the Fame of his Piety, and happy Succeſſes. Others take them to be Jews, who had fled to David in his Exile, when he was at Gath, and accompanied him ever after, not only in the time of Saul's Perſecution, but after he came to the Crown of Judah and Iſrael.

Ver. 19. Then the King ſaid to Ittai the Gittite, Wherefore goeſt thou alſo with us?] He ſeems to have been the Commander of thoſe ſix hundred Men before-mentioned. And the Jews make him the Son of Achiſh King of Gath; who out of Religion and Friendſhip came to David.

Return to thy place,] That is, to Jeruſalem.

And abide with the King:] For ſo Abſalom was by Uſurpation.

For thou art a Stranger, and an Exile.] Who upon that account might hope to be civilly treated; at leaſt being none of David's Family, and a new Comer, he thought it was not fit to engage him in their Broils.

Ver. 20. Whereas thou comeſt to us but yeſterday, ſhould I make thee this day go up and down with us?] He was newly ſettled at Jeruſalem; and therefore David thought it unreaſonable he ſhould be ſo ſoon unſettled again.

Seeing I go whither I may,] Eſpecially ſince he knew not whither he ſhould betake himſelf for ſafety; and therefore would not have Ittai expoſe himſelf to ſuch Uncertainties. See concerning this Phraſe, 1 Sam. xxiii. 13.

Return thou, and take back thy Brethren:] Some underſtand by his Brethren, the ſix hundred Men that came from Gath: But it is not probable David would part with ſuch a Guard as they were, in this time of extreme Danger, unleſs they had deſired to be gone; therefore he rather means thoſe Perſons that attended him, or were of his Family, who came to ſojourn with him in Judæa.

Mercy and Truth be with thee.] In the Hebrew, the Words are, With thee Mercy and Truth. Which ſome take to ſignify, Thou art a right honeſt and good Man. But our Tranſlation ſeems better, which makes them a Form of a Bleſſing, or Prayer to God, that he would requite the Kindneſs and Fidelity of Ittai, by ſhewing Mercy to him, and faithfully fulfilling his Promiſes made to thoſe who came to put their Truſt in him.

Ver. 21. And Ittai anſwered the King, and ſaid, As the LORD liveth, and as my Lord the King liveth, ſurely in whatſoever Place my Lord the King ſhall be, whether in Death or in Life, even there alſo will thy Servant be.] A marvellous Fidelity in a Stranger, when a Son was a Rebel againſt him. And David's Humanity is no leſs admirable in offering to diſmiſs him ſo freely, yea earneſtly preſſing him to return, becauſe he was a Stranger; though he was in the greateſt need of all the Aſſiſtance he could get to defend him.

Ver. 22. And David ſaid to Ittai, Go, and paſs over.] There was not a word more to be ſaid, now he had ſworn he would not leave him.

And Ittai the Gittite paſſed over,] The Brook Kedron, as it follows in the next Verſe.

He, and all his Men, and all the little ones that came with him.] This ſhews that his whole Family were come, as I noted before, to ſojourn in this Country.

Ver. 23. And all the Country] About Jeruſalem,

Wept with a loud Voice,] Being extreamly afflicted to ſee their Prince, under whom they had lived in great Peace and Proſperity, reduced to ſuch Extremities.

And all the People paſſed over:] All that continued faithful to David in thoſe parts.

The King alſo himſelf paſſed over the Brook Kedron,] He ſtaid 'till the laſt, that he might take notice who appeared for him, as they paſſed over before him.

And all the People paſſed over towards the way of the Wilderneſs.] And when they were over, they marched through the Wilderneſs, that lay between Jeruſalem and Jericho.

Ver. 24. And lo, Zadok alſo and all the Levites went with him, bearing the Ark of the Covenant of the LORD,] That is, all the Kohathites that were at Jeruſalem, whoſe Office it was to carry the Ark, and take care of it.
